LIBRARY
THE MUSEUM
OF MODERN ART
Received:

Scanned from the collection of Eileen Bowser

Coordinated by the Media History Digital Library
www.mediahistoryproject.org

Funded by a donation from Richard Scheckman

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from Media History Digital Library

http://www.archive.org/details/movingpicturewor22newy

FL
PER duplicate discard
1/51
FL
2751

. 22, No. 1 October 3, 1914 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Patchwork Girl of Oz" (Oz Film Co.).

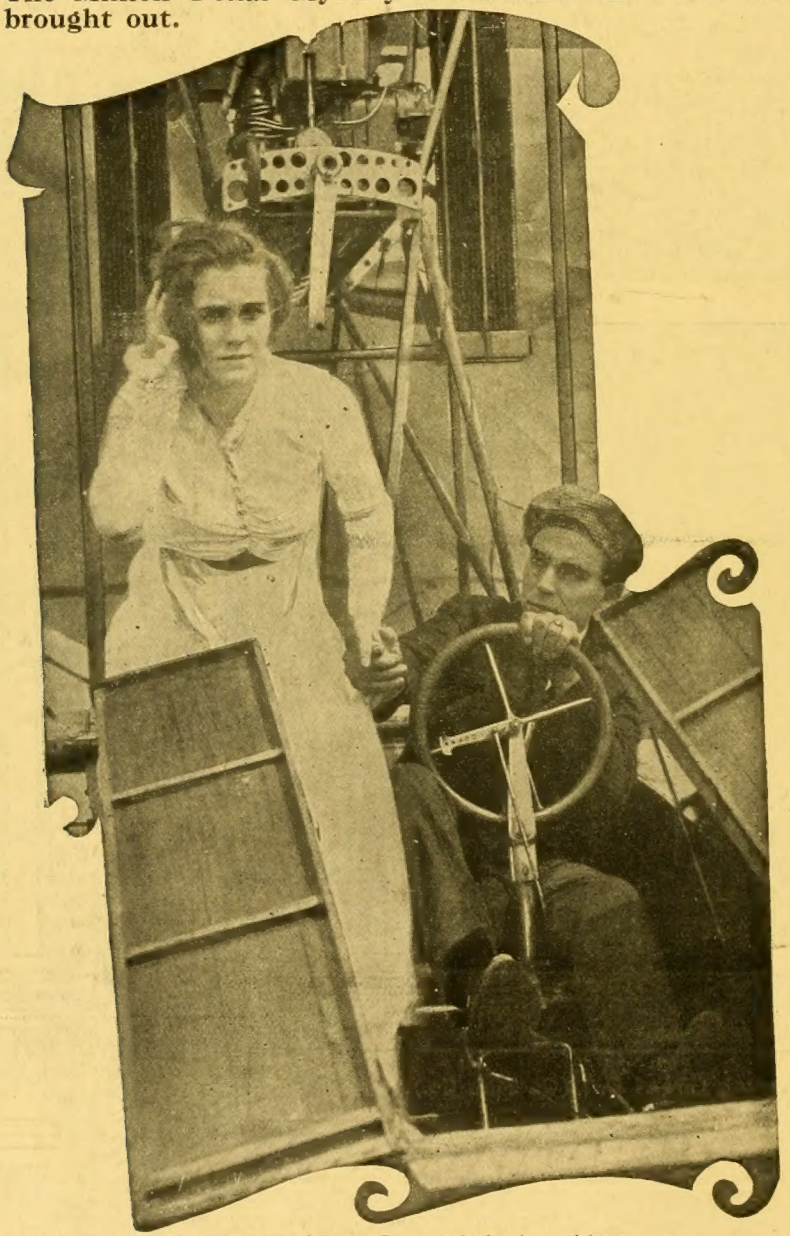
Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

Another Big Thriller!

In episode No. 15 of the Million Dollar Mystery again is depicted the remarkable skill and ingenuity of the great Thanhouser organization. In this episode a dramatic escape in a hydroplane is shown with remarkable realism. The pictures were taken at the risk of many lives. When you see episode No. 15 with its startling thrills, you'll realize why The Million Dollar Mystery has become the most successful motion picture production ever brought out.



Flo La Badie and James Cruze as the heroine and hero of The Million Dollar Mystery

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

Story by Harold MacGrath
Scenario by Lloyd Lonergan

Thanhouser's Million Dollar Motion Picture Production

Fifteen episodes are now being shown at the better theatres everywhere.

two-reel episode is released each week. The story will be complete in episodes. Nearly 300 newspapers are now running this story by Harold MacGrath. Remember this: $10,000 will be paid for the best 100-word solution of the mystery. Book now! Apply to

SYNDICATE FILM CORPORATION
71 W. 23rd Street, New York
Room 411, 5 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago

Or Syndicate Film Corporation Representative at any Exchange in the United States and Canada.

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

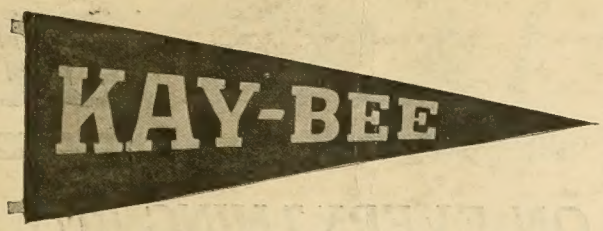
Tuesday, Sept. 29. "The Trail of the Lovely" (2 reel drama.) A beautiful love drama featuring Mildred Hellar, Harry Benham, John Myers and Sam Niblack.

Sunday, Oct. 4. "A Dog's Love." A one reel drama woven out of an interesting story.

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION
New Rochelle, N. Y.

Head European Office:
Thanhouse Films, Ltd., London W. C., England

Regular Thanhouser releases are distributed exclusively in the United States and Canada by the Mutual Film Corporation



One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Friday, Oct. 2—One of the Discard
" " 9—The Sheriff of Muscatine
" " 16—The Word of His People
" " 23—The Spark Eternal

Three a Week

Monday, Sept. 28—Hard Cider
Thursday, Oct. 1—Killing Horace
Saturday, " 3—Fatty Again
Monday, " 5—Their Ups and Downs
Thursday, " 8—Hello Mabel

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Keystone Co. in the very near future will release a multiple reel comedy every other week in addition to the regular releases.

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Wednesday, Sept. 30—The Right to Die
" Oct. 7—The Boss of the 8th
" " 14—The End of the Galley
" " 21—Shorty and Sherlock Holmes

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Thursday, Oct. 1—The Gamekeeper's Daughter
" " 8—The Whiskey Runners
" " 15—Jimmy
" " 22—The Power of the Angelus
" " 29—Eric the Red's Wooing

Released Exclusively Through The Mutual Film Corporation

Pennants—Beautiful bright colored pennants of the four brands can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 35 cents for one, $1.25 for set of four.

Photos—8 x 10 photos of our players can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 15 cents for one, 50 cents for set of four, $1.00 for set of eight.

Keystone Mabel in Four Poses 50 Cents

New York Motion Picture Corporation

FORTY-SECOND STREET and BROADWAY, Longacre Building, NEW YORK

BE

ON EVERYTHING BUT THE

The Universal asks you and your audience to "Be Neutral." But, Mr. Exhibitor, don't be neutral on the PROGRAM QUESTION!

Don't be self-satisfied! No matter what service you are taking at present, you owe it to your box office to investigate every claim Universal is making for the new, wonderful strength of the Universal Program.

TWENTY-ONE STRONG

Here's a sample of the Big Ones

IMP—Shadows (Two Reel Detective Dr.)
(King Baggot playing entire cast)

GOLD SEAL—The Trey O'Hearts, Episode No. 10

"Steel Ribbons" (Two Reel Drama)
(Cleo Madison—George Larkin)

ECLAIR—The Line Rider (Two Reel West. Dr.)

Drop into any theatre showing FIRST the nearest Universal exchange manager be best able to judge if your present ser

Use the brains God gave you and refuse

Universal Film

The Largest Film Manufacturing

CARL LAEMMLE,

1600 Broadway

NEUTRAL

PROGRAM QUESTION!

Your present service may be getting you SOME money, but it's a proven fact that the Universal Program will get you more—The Proof—fifty non-neutral exhibitors switched to this program in one day last week! and you couldn't get them to switch off.

SUBJECTS EVERY WEEK

Released Week of October 8th

REX—"A Law Unto Herself" (Two Reel Society Drama)

VICTOR—"The Man Who Never Was Kissed" (Two Reel Comedy Drama)

101 BISON—"The Phantom Light" (Two Reel Indian Drama)
(Marie Walcamp and Wm. Clifford)

REX—"Virtue Its Own Reward" (Two Reel Modern Drama)
(Pauline Bush and Lon Chaney)

RUN Universal stuff, or better still, ask to run off his last shipment for you. You'll vice is really the best service.

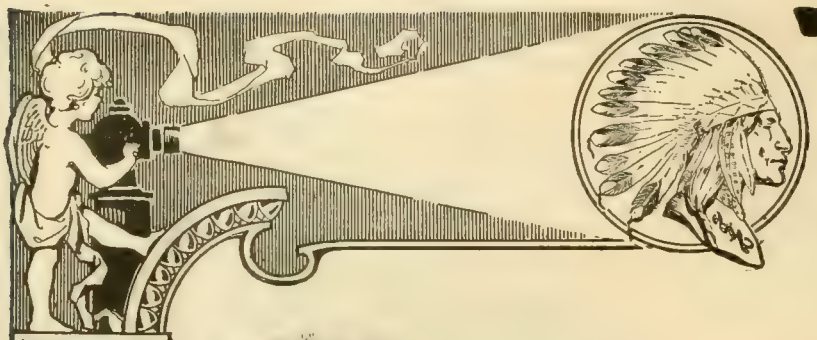
to be neutral on the program question!

Manufacturing Company

Concern in the Universe

President

New York City



ESSA
Six – A

G. M. ANDERSON

Three Big Laughs

Three Big Thrills

MARGUERITE CLAYTON

Released Monday, October 5

"The Fickleness of Sweedie"

Another scream in which Sweedie again outhits the police department.

Released Tuesday, October 6

"The Verdict"

A photoplay masterpiece that is different from the ordinary picture. Adapted from The Munsey Magazines.

Released Wednesday, October 7

THE FABLE OF

"The Family That Did Too Much For Nellie"

By GEORGE ADE

How a family discovered that it didn't pay to Doll Up the cook in Glad Rags.

Released Thursday, October 8

"When Slippery Slim Met the Champion"

Slippery Slim gets an awful "trimming" from the world's heavyweight champion.

Released Friday, October 9

"The Real Agatha"

(IN TWO ACTS)

From the powerful novel by EDITH HUNTINGTON MASON.

Released Saturday, October 10

"Broncho Billy and the Greaser"

A western drama featuring G. M. ANDERSON.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

First to Standardize Photoplays

EVELYN SELBIE

Essanay Film

Laboratory and Studios, 1333 Argyle St., Chicago. Downtown Offices 521 First

-Week

OPPORTUNITY WAITS FOR YOU

"IN THE GLARE OF THE LIGHTS"

(IN THREE ACTS)

This, the second of Essanay's great prize mystery dramas, is booked for release Oct. 17, in conjunction with the COMPLETE SHORT STORY published in the November number of THE LADIES' WORLD magazine. This edition is on the newsstands and in the hands of subscribers the day on which the film drama is released. In the magazine story there is a MISSING PARAGRAPH. Prizes will be offered for the best written paragraph. FIVE MILLION readers of THE LADIES' WORLD must see the Essanay photoplay in order to solve the mystery. THIS PLAY IS A THRILLER OF THRILLERS. LET IT BREAK YOUR ATTENDANCE RECORDS FOR YOU.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN, the world's most popular photoplay actor, is featured in this drama.

A Few Other Big Features

"The Plum Tree"
(IN THREE ACTS)

is undoubtedly one of the most masterful dramas of the year. The demand for it is growing daily.

"One Wonderful Night"
(IN FOUR ACTS)

is "packing 'em in" all over the country. It is called "one wonderful picture." FEATURING FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN.

"The Good-for-Nothing"
(IN FOUR ACTS)

Features G. M. ANDERSON, the most picturesque of all photoplay stars. The drama is one of gripping intensity.

"Blood Will Tell"
(IN THREE ACTS)

The climax of romantic Colonial dramas. Critics call it "one of the best photoplays ever produced."

"Ambushed"
(IN THREE ACTS)

Another of those ESSANAY successes abounding in mystery and adventure which delight any audience.

Manufacturing Co.

lational Bank Building. Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona.

MASTERPIECE FILMS MASTERPIECE FILMS

Release Date Soon to be Announced

MR. MAX FIGMAN

IN

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"

(FIVE REELS)

A Comedy-Drama Adapted from the Novel of

EDWARD EGGLESTON

To make a refined and spontaneous comedy of the first order: To avoid the exaggerated and hysterical type of melodrama, the unnatural in acting and the improbable elements of plot—This has been the aim of the producer.

"THE HOOSIER SCHOOLMASTER" has been translated into a dozen languages. In every paragraph there is a sob or a smile. In every foot of the film there is a tear or a laugh. It is a story of every-day men and women. All great stories have been such. We will negotiate with first-class houses on a commission basis. We will sell to reputable state-right buyers. Write or wire.

M. DE LA PARELLE, Producer
ELLIOTT J. CLAWSON, Assistant Producer

Address all communications to

MASTERPIECE FILM MANUFACTURING CO.,
1111 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

MASTERPIECE FILMS MASTERPIECE FILMS

WILLAT

STUDIOS AND LABORATORIES

NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS

LARGEST :: BEST EQUIPPED :: NEWEST

STUDIOS TO RENT by the Day

PRINTING and DEVELOPING FOR THE TRADE

Capacity 1,500,000 Feet per Week

Inspection Invited

We cordially invite everyone interested in the Motion Picture industry to inspect the New Willat Studios and Laboratories. C. A. "Doc" Willat will be glad to show anyone over the entire plant (10 minutes' car ride from Fort Lee Ferry—130th Street).

WILLAT STUDIOS and LABORATORIES, Inc.

Main Street and Linwood Avenue FORT LEE, N. J.

Executive Offices: 911 Longacre Building, New York City

ADOLPH ZUKOR
President of
Famous Players Film Co.
Famous Players-Savage
Company, Inc.

DANIEL FROHMAN
In Association with
Famous Players Film Co.

CHARLES FROHMAN
In Association with Famous Players-Charles Frohman Co., Inc.

DAVID BELASCO
In Association with
Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play
Co.

Paramount

The list below of the half dozen Paramount motion pictures already released, serves as an indication of the quality of Paramount Pictures. You have now had an opportunity of seeing these six Paramount releases and can judge for yourself :—

Play	Star	Producers
The Lost Paradise	H. B. Warner	Famous Players Film Co.
Odyssey of the North	Hobart Bosworth	Bosworth, Inc.
The Virginian	Dustin Farnum	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch	Henrietta Crosman	Famous Players Film Co.
The Making of Bobby Burnit	Edward Abeles	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
Such a Little Queen	Mary Pickford	Famous Players Film Co.

As to the future, you have only to scan the list below, which represents most of the Paramount releases for the next two months :—

William Tell	Karl Kienlechner	Deutsche Bioscope Co.
Patchwork Girl of Oz	Couderc	Oz Film Company
Pursuit of Phantom	Hobart Bosworth	Bosworth, Inc.
Marta of the Lowlands	Bertha Kalich	Famous Players Film Co.
What's His Name	Max Figman and Lolita Robertson	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
Wildflower	Marguerite Clark	Famous Players Film Co.
The Typhoon	Sessue Hayakawa	Paramount Pictures Corporation
Hypocrites	Smalleys	Bosworth, Inc.
Where the Trail Divides	Robert Edeson	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
The County Chairman	Maclyn Arbuckle	Famous Players Film Co.
Behind the Scenes	Mary Pickford	Famous Players Film Co.
The Man from Mexico	John Barrymore	Famous Players Film Co.
The Rose of the Rancho	Bessie Barriscale	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
Chechako	Hobart Bosworth	Bosworth, Inc.
The Man from Home	Charles Richman	Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
His Last Dollar	David Higgins	Famous Players Film Co.

Paramount Publicity will make this trade mark the best known, and most popular, in the motion picture world.

It is decidedly to your financial interest, as an Exhibitor, to prominently display this Paramount trade mark.

JESSE L. LASKY
President
Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
Treas. and Gen. Mgr.
Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

HOBART BOSWORTH
President
Bosworth, Inc.

JACK LONDON
In Association with
Bosworth, Inc.

Pictures

Hundreds of live exhibitors—those who prefer to show quality pictures only—have already signed the Paramount contract. There still remain many progressive Exhibitors who must now realize the financial advantages of exhibiting pictures such as are in the Paramount Program, and to those we say, briefly: "Do not procrastinate; write immediately to the nearest Paramount Exchange."

Famous Players Film Co., of New England, 31 Beach St., Boston Mass.—New England States: Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Co., Inc., 126 West 46th St., New York City—Greater New York and New York State.

Famous Players Exchange, 1331 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa., and 71 West 23rd St., New York City—New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D. C., and Virginia.

Famous Players Film Service, 404 Ferry St., Pittsburgh, Pa., and 37 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

Casino Feature Film Co., Dime Bank Bldg., Detroit, Mich.—Michigan.

Kansas City Feature Film Co., Gaiety Theatre Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.—Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

Famous Players Star Feature Film Service, Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.—North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Notable Feature Film Co., Boston Bldg., Salt Lake City, Utah, and 1641 Stout St., Denver, Col.—Utah, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho.

Progressive Motion Picture Company, three offices Head Office: 642 Pacific Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.; Central Bldg., Seattle, Wash.; Marsh-Strong Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.—California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

Texas Paramount Pictures Co., Dallas, Texas.—Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma.

Southern Paramount Pictures Co., 65 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga., and 109 University Place, New Orleans. North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida and Louisiana.

Save this list. If not now, EVENTUALLY you will want to refer to it for the name of the Paramount Exchange nearest you.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
ONE HUNDRED and TEN WEST FORTIETH STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

DANIEL FROHMAN
Presents
The internationally distinguished star,

Mme. BERTHA KALICH

In her supreme dramatic triumph,

"MARTA OF THE LOWLANDS"

By Angel Guimera.

In the pathetic role of Marta, Mme. Kalich's marvellous impersonation is one of the greatest demonstrations of pantomimic art ever contributed to the screen.

IN FIVE REELS, RELEASED OCTOBER 5TH.

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM Co.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President,
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director EDWIN S. PORTER, Technical Director
Executive Offices,
213-229 W. 26TH STREET, NEW YORK.

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

JESSE L. LASKY

Presents

Mr. ROBERT EDESON

In

His Famous Character
"How Lander"

"WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES"

A Five Part Romantic Drama

RELEASED OCT. 12

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY COMPANY

LONG ACRE THEATRE
W. 48TH STREET

JESSE L. LASKY
PRESIDENT

N. Y. C.

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
TREAS. & GEN'L MANAGER

CECIL B. DeMILLE
DIRECTOR GENERAL

AM

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

If Y-O-U are one of the Exhibitors who showed Hobart Bosworth in the "Sea Wolf," you will need no urging on our part to book—

"The Pursuit of the Phantom"

In Five Parts

Written and Produced by

Hobart Bosworth

Supported by Courtney Foote, the eminent English actor

Did you know that Hobart Bosworth is the author of over a hundred photo plays of great success? It is rather unusual, is it not, that a man who is as popular on the screen as Hobart Bosworth, could also be the author of so many successes?

Besides, Hobart Bosworth is a master not only of photo play technique but of the creation of strong dramatic plays of extraordinary screen value.

An announcement to the patrons of YOUR HOUSE that Bosworth will present "The Pursuit of the Phantom" would prove an immense drawing card. It is released October 1st, and it would be a wise move on your part to book it immediately, so as to show it as soon after the release date as possible.

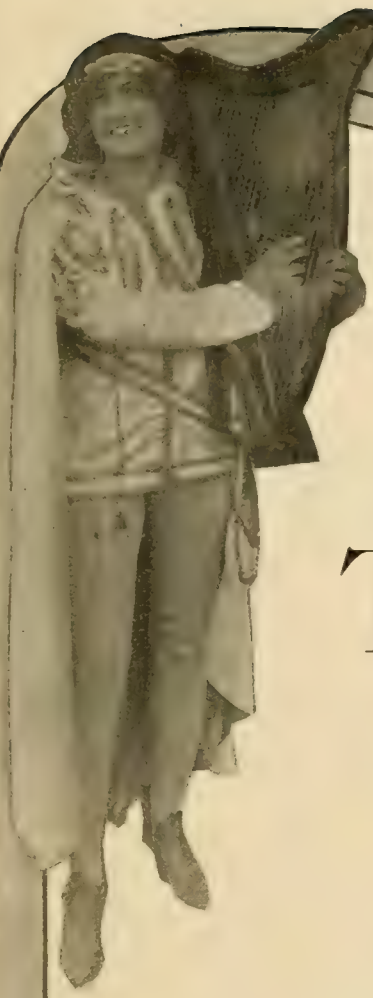
Communicate NOW with the nearest Paramount Exchange. (Bosworth productions are released exclusively through the Paramount Program.)

BOSWORTH INC.

640 NORTH OLIVE STREET LOS ANGELES, CALA.

TIMES BLDG., NEW YORK

PARAMOUNT PICTURES



"The Patchwork Girl of Oz is a star to which the exhibitor need not hesitate to hitch his wagon."
—N. Y. "Telegraph."

A DELIGHTFUL FANTASY, BRILLIANTLY PRODUCED

The Patchwork Girl of Oz

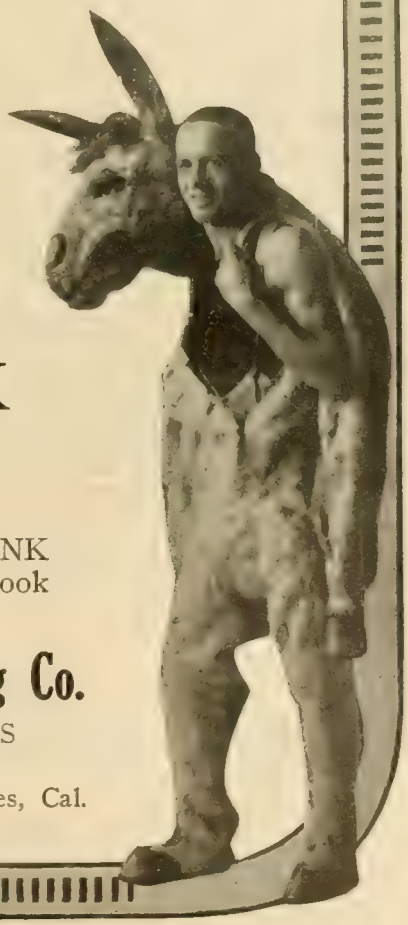
By L. FRANK BAUM,

From his book of the same name
Original Music by L. F. Gottschalk.

Released Sept. 28 through Paramount Program

"In story and in the manner of its presentation, The Patchwork Girl of Oz is so unusual that it might almost be called unique."
—"Dramatic Mirror."

"The plot of the story is above the average and illustrated with many tricks in film production."
—"Billboard."



Make arrangements to secure this feature at once

The Magic Cloak of Oz

Another multiple reel photo extravaganza by L. FRANK BAUM. Just completed. Make arrangements to book it now.

FILMS

The Oz Film Manufacturing Co.

STUDIO AND LABORATORIES
Gower to Lodi Sts.
Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal.

LIFE PHOTO FILM CORPORATION

Presents

"NORTHERN LIGHTS"

By Barbour & Harkins. 5 PARTS

"CAPT. SWIFT"

By C. Haddon Chambers. 5 PARTS

EXHIBITORS--New York, New England and New Jersey We are booking these two master productions direct CANADIAN EXHIBITORS: Book "The Banker's Daughter," "The Greyhound," "Northern Lights" and "Capt. Swift" through Equitable Film Exchange, 591 St. Catherine St. W., Montreal, Canada.

STATE RIGHT BUYERS.—Some territory still left open. Wire States interested in, and we will advise you of our terms. Two feature adaptations from stage plays that are now filling houses to capacity wherever shown. In Greater New York 7 prints continuously working on the bookings of each production.

Lithographs and advertising matter devised for the benefit of

STATE RIGHT BUYERS AND EXHIBITORS

For bookings in the following territory communicate with Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Southern New Jersey and Virginia. Address AMSTERDAM FEATURE FILM CO., 1235 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. Address PEERLESS FILM EXCHANGE, 36 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Address KENO FEATURE FILM CO., 101 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We Build Feature Photo Plays With Profit to the Exhibitors

LIFE PHOTO FILM CORPORATION

EXECUTIVE OFFICES:
220 WEST 42nd STREET, NEW YORK CITY

STUDIO AND LABORATORY:
GRANTWOOD, N. J.

MAKE MONEY!

Short Term Leases for City, County or State

Mr. EXHIBITOR!---Become an EXCHANGE MAN for These Features:

LINA CAVALIERI THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS BEAUTY

in "MANON LESCAUT"

The Six Part Feature that the New York Critics unanimously proclaimed to be the most beautiful and appealing product of the year.

SIX CAPACITY WEEKS—REPUBLIC THEATRE, NEW YORK

THE MOST THRILLING OF ALL DETECTIVE PLAYS

"THE GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY"

With WALLACE EDDINGER, GAIL KANE, CHAS. J. ROSS, ELITA PROCTOR OTIS, and an entire Star Cast.

6 PARTS---52 CONSECUTIVE DAYS at the LOEW NEW YORK THEATRES---6 PARTS

Mr. Exhibitor—Become an Exchange man and make money—you know what these features are worth to you—They are worth as much to anyone in your territory—As a Try-out Lease your City, County or State for One Month with privilege of renewal, and add to your income in your own line of business.
Complete line of 5 and 6 Color Printing, Heralds, Cuts, Press Matter, Photos, etc., for both features.

PLAYGOERS FILM COMPANY

Phone, Bryant 874-875 LYRIC THEATRE BUILDING 213 W. 42d St., N. Y.

HUNTED DOWN

A high-powered story of Western justice. Stirring and dramatic scenes as a faithless lover is tracked to death by a human blood-hound. Ready for booking

WARNER'S FEATURES, Inc., New York

The perilous plight and romantic rescue of a convict's daughter. The rescuer climbs perpendicular castle walls and descends hundreds of feet on a rope with the maiden. A powerful picture in a beautiful setting is

IN THE DUKE'S POWER

COMPLETE SERVICE

A Splendid 21-reel weekly PROGRAM produced by the companies of star players comprising the United Motion Picture Producers, Inc.—

plus

Continuous releases of big FEATURES from the world's best makers of feature films

plus

Superb SPECIALS of four or more reels produced by celebrated players equals

The most complete service possible to offer exhibitors. That is the service of

WARNER'S FEATURES

Inc.

NEW YORK CITY

There are 34 Warner's Exchanges. Write the one nearest to you.

RELEASED
OCTOBER FIFTH
THROUGH
ALCO FILM CORPORATION

The World's Favorite

ETHEL BARRYMORE

IN

THE NIGHTINGALE

A Five-part Motion Picture written for Miss Barrymore by Augustus Thomas

IN PREPARATION

DIGBY BELL

IN

THE EDUCATION OF MR. PIPP

5 REELS

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
220 W. 42D ST., NEW YORK

STUDIOS AND LABORATORIES
FORT LEE, N. J.

GOOD NEWS FOR EXHIBITORS

NEMO BRAND FILMS, "Made in America," will be released by The Box Office Attraction Exchanges. First release, "The Winner," a three-reel Western photo-play with sensational features. A Nemo Feature released each week.

WHITE STAR FEATURES, a product of skill and picture ingenuity, made in California. Will release a feature each week through The Box Office Attraction Exchanges. First release, "Storms of the Heart," a gripping drama of the sea; three reels.

BALBOA, "The Pictures Beautiful," from the wonderful Balboa Studios, Long Beach, California, will contribute the third weekly feature to The Box Office program. Next release: "The Square Triangle"; three reels.

ST. ELMO

6 REELS

The Jury	The Verdict
Mother	A
Father	Great
Sister	Photo
Brother	Play

From the William Fox Studios

A remarkable photo-play production of the famous Victoria Cross novel.

Life's Shop Window

For release in October—Enterprising Exhibitors inquire and book now.

Will o' the Wisp

Action Every Minute

Reel 1	The Duel
Reel 2	Love Story
Reel 3	The Flood
Reel 4	Guess?

OUR POLICY

Three Features, American Made, Released Weekly
Single Reels to Complete a Program
Three Big Special Features Monthly

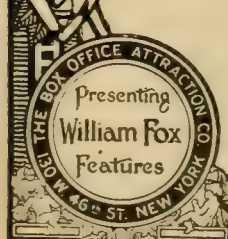
EXCHANGES

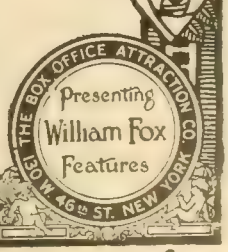
NEW YORK, 130 West 46th St.
CHICAGO, Mallers Bldg.
CLEVELAND, Columbia Bldg.
PHILADELPHIA, 1333 Vine St.
DALLAS, 1907 Commerce St.
MINNEAPOLIS
ST. LOUIS, 3632 Olive St.
SAN FRANCISCO, 1907 Golden Gate Av.
PITTSBURGH, 121 4th Ave.
SYRACUSE, Eckel Theatre Bldg.
BOSTON, 10-12 Piedmont St.
KANSAS CITY, 928 Main St.
DENVER, Ideal Bldg.
SEATTLE, 1214 Third Ave.
INDIANAPOLIS
And Eleven Other Cities

The Box Office Attraction Co.

William Fox, President

Executive Offices: 130 West 46th Street, New York





Strand War Series

As shown at the Strand Theatre, New York City
the Premier Picture Theatre of America

A single reel which is drawing more money into the theatres than most of the big multiple reel features in America today.

Now being booked by the following exchanges:

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut	American Feature Film Co., 162 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.
New York State, Northern New Jersey	Universal Film Exchange, Mecca Bldg., New York City.
Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia	Electric Theatre Supply Co., 13th & Vine Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.
Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia	Liberty Film Renting Co., 105 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky	Empress Feature Film Co., 1517 Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Iowa, Nebraska	Herrick Feature Film Co., 807 Observatory Bldg., Des Moines, Ia.
Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana	Film Supply Co., Portland, Ore.
Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico	Swanson Film Exchange, Denver, Colo.
Canada	Allfeatures, Ltd., 56 King St. W., Toronto, Ont., Canada.
California, Arizona, Nevada	Apex Feature Service, Pantages Theatre Bldg., San Francisco, Cal., or 802 So. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.
Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana	Apex Feature Service, 311 Andrews Bldg., Dallas, Texas.
Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia	Apex Feature Service, 417 Rhodes Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota	Great Northern Film Co., Kasota Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
Michigan	Casino Feature Film Co., 2211 Dime Bank Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Illinois	General Feature Film Co., 5 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Wisconsin, Kansas, Missouri	Mr. A. M. Andrews, 108 So. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
Puerto Rico	Manuel Zeno Gandia, San Juan, P. O. Box 422

STRAND WAR SERIES NO. 4

NOW READY FOR SHIPMENT

LORD KITCHENER'S SECOND ARMY

Field Marshal Earl Roberts inspects the new battalion of Royal Fusiliers at Temple Gardens.
British Airships and Aeroplanes at Ostend.

ARRIVAL OF S. S. EMPRESS

With Belgian troops to support the British at Ostend.
Belgian Infantry moving into field of action at Alost.
Battery of Artillery taking up position.

AFTER THE FALL OF NAMUR

Transport arriving at Zeebrugge with 15,000 survivors and soldiers.
Effect of the cannonading at Malines.
German prisoners at Ostend Station.

STRAND WAR SERIES No. 5 will be released in a few days showing the GERMAN ARMY IN BRUSSELS, Also the Three British Cruisers which were destroyed by the German Submarines.

Wire your application for the "Strand (Genuine) War Series" NOW. First come, first served!

STRAND FILM COMPANY

145 West 45th Street, New York City

(NOTE:—Strand War Cameraspondents will endeavor to film every important event of the European War)

A PRINCE OF INDIA

An American Wharton-made drama in 4 parts. A wildly hazardous yet plausible story of adventure in the United States built around an Indian Rajah, a group of notorious crooks, a cub reporter, and a jewel of enormous value. Thrills, shivers and sighs of relief from the beginning to the end as plot and counterplot unfold. As a great climax a trolley car plunges from a bridge into the depths of a gorge below. Crowded with action and interest. 1, 3 and 6-sheet posters.

THE PERILS OF PAULINE

This great serial film (complete in each episode) is in full stride and swinging along at a record breaking pace. Attendance figures go to smash when Pauline appears, for everybody knows about her and rushes to be present at every showing. To miss a Pauline episode is a tragedy for moving picture devotees. To miss Pauline profits is a grave mistake for moving picture exhibitors.

Pauline always pays because her perils are always real.

MAX HAS THE BOXING FEVER and PICTURESQUE LAKE DHAL

(British India)

A reputation-making split reel which combines a funnier-than-ever Max Linder comedy with superbly photographed scenic views of Lake Dhal (British India) in the natural colors.

IN SOAK

A 1 reel American Hartigan-made comedy. Wifey, at a loss to account for a jewel given her by another man, pawns it and tells her husband she found the ticket. Husband goes to reclaim ticket, and finding the jewel valuable gives it to his stenographer. It's funnier than it sounds.

ECLECTIC FEATURE FILM EXCHANGES FOR YOUR USE

Atlanta—61 Walton St.
Boston—3 Tremont Row
Chicago—5 So. Wabash Ave.
Cincinnati—217 E. 5th St.
Cleveland—622 Prospect Ave., S. E.
Dallas—Andrews Bldg.
Denver—Nassau Bldg.
Kansas City—928 Main St.
Los Angeles—114 E. 7th St.
Minneapolis—4th & Hennepin Sts.
New Orleans—910 Gravier St.
New York—115 E. 23rd St.
Omaha—1312 Farnam St.
Philadelphia—1235 Vine St.
Pittsburgh—715 Liberty Ave.
Portland—392 Burnside Ave.
Salt Lake City—68 South Main St.
San Francisco—67 Turk St.
Seattle—810 Third Ave.
St. Louis—3210 Locust St.
Syracuse—214 E. Fayette St.
Washington—7th and E Sts. N. W.

THE ECLECTIC FILM COMPANY | 110 WEST 40th ST., NEW YORK

"The Cream of American and European Studios"

The Naked Truth

(In Five Parts—5075 Feet)

FEATURING THE INCOMPARABLE LYDA BORELLI

In offering you LYDA BORELLI in "THE NAKED TRUTH," we believe we have pretty nearly reached the Ultimate in Modern Drama!

LYDA BORELLI is unquestionably the Highest Paid Actress in Motion Pictures. In stage technique, expression, personal beauty and those other essentials which make or unmake a Professional Career, we do not think you will find her equal here or abroad!

A STRONG ASSERTION—but one that you cannot fairly challenge until you've seen this wonderful woman in "THE NAKED TRUTH."

FOR HER WORK IN "THE NAKED TRUTH" Lyda Borelli received $20,000—$4,000 per reel—$4 per foot! A Record Price for any Artist Anywhere!

"THE NAKED TRUTH" is founded on the French novel by Henry Bataille—A Story of the Latin Quarter and a Woman's Love—A Story of Infinite Pathos, so vividly and brilliantly told that it lingers long in memory.

"THE NAKED TRUTH" opened the doors of the New Candler Theatre, New York. Its reception by Dramatic Critics stamped it a modern masterpiece.

Now Booking Through the Following Kleine Branch Offices:

GEORGE KLEINE

Chicago—166 N. State St.
Dallas—238 Saner Bldg.
Pittsburgh—509 Lyceum Theatre Bldg.
Toronto—Telephone Bldg.
New York—226 W. 42nd St.
Denver 405 Railroad Bldg.
Seattle—213 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
Atlanta—43 Moore Bldg.
Minneapolis—210 Temple Court Bldg.
San Francisco—653 Pacific Bldg.
Los Angeles—701 Majestic Theatre Bldg.

The Lion of Venice

Made by The Photo Drama Company
(Arranged in 6 Parts—Actual Footage 4950 Feet)

A COLOSSAL PRODUCTION—Large, not in the sense of footage or ensemble, but Big in Conception, Big in Execution, Big in the small things that make Great Pictures!

THE LION OF VENICE was made in Venice, Italy, under George Kleine's personal direction. Before an actor donned his paint or a camera clicked, a contract was drawn by the City of Venice providing "That the scenario must be undersigned by an eminent writer of Venetian history and the properties supervised by an eminent artist who will warrant the artistic value, the truthfulness and the seriousness of the film."

A SPLENDID CONTRACT THAT!—and one which protects YOU quite as much as the CITY OF VENICE.

ASIDE FROM A STORY delightful in its quaint glimpses of Fifteenth Century life, "THE LION OF VENICE" will take rank as an educational subject of rare value. The historic Museums of Venice gave their best and most precious treasures to the making of "THE LION OF VENICE." The shrewdest Antiquarian can find no flaw in its wonderful illusion!

A VENETIAN CAPTAIN accused of betraying his Nation to the Turks—An Engaging Love Tale—A Thrilling Sea Battle—these are the essentials of the story of "THE LION OF VENICE!"

Now Booking Through the Following Kleine Branch Offices:

GEORGE KLEINE

Chicago—166 N. State St.
Dallas—238 Saner Bldg.
Pittsburgh—509 Lyceum Theatre Bldg.
Toronto—76 Adelaide St. W.
New York—226 W. 42nd St.
Denver—405 Railroad Bldg.
Seattle—213 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
Atlanta—43 Moore Bldg.
Mineapolis—210 Temple Court Bldg.
San Francisco—653 Pacific Bldg.
Los Angeles—701 Majestic Theatre Bldg.

WORLD FILM

EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS TO ALL SHUBERT AND LEWIS J. SELZNICK,

WILLIAM A. BRADY

PICTURE PLAY CO.-INC.

PRESENTS —

EMMA DUNN IN —

"MOTHER"

By JULES ECKERT GOODMAN

IN 4 ACTS RELEASED SEPT. 28TH

MOTHER.—THE GREAT CENTER ABOUT WHICH ALL HUMAN LOVE AND TENDERNESS REVOLVES.
YOU NEVER HAVE NEGLECTED HER—DON'T DO IT NOW.

ATLANTA
BOSTON
BUFFALO
CHICAGO
CLEVELAND
CINCINNATI
DETROIT
DALLAS
DENVER
INDIANOPOLIS
KANSAS CITY
LOS ANGELES

WORLD FILM CORPORATION
TRADE MARK
130 W. 46TH ST. N.Y.C.

MONTREAL
MINNEAPOLIS
NEW YORK
NEW ORLEANS
PHILADELPHIA
PITTSBURG
SEATTLE
ST. LOUIS
SAN FRANCISCO
SALT LAKE CITY
TORONTO
WASHINGTON

HOME OFFICE - 130 W. 46TH ST.
NEW YORK CITY

CORPORATION

WILLIAM A. BRADY
VICE PRES. & GEN. MGR.

PICTURE PLAY CO., INC. FEATURES

OTHER WILLIAM A. BRADY FEATURES

TOM WISE IN— A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI

By Tom Wise and Harrison Rhodes

IN— 5 ACTS

RELEASED OCT. 5TH

Washington life as it appears to the new Senator

ROBERT WARWICK IN THE MAN OF THE HOUR

By George Broadhurst

IN 5 ACTS

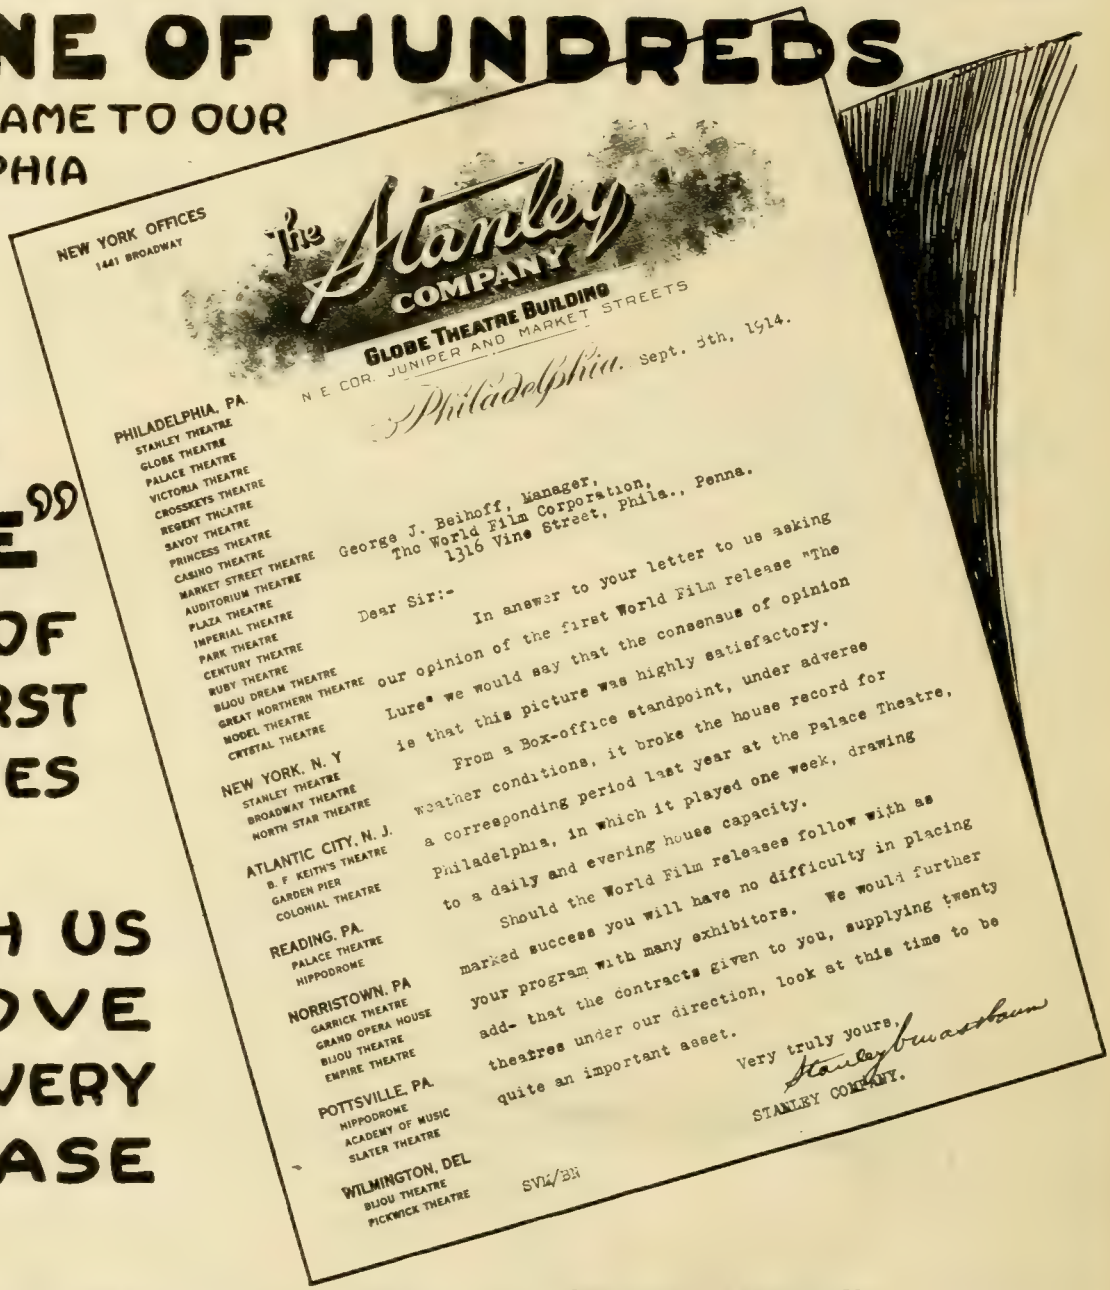
RELEASED OCT. 12TH

A PLAY THAT DEALS WITH POLITICAL CORRUPTION

A LETTER THAT TALKS

ONE OF HUNDREDS

THIS ONE CAME TO OUR PHILADELPHIA BRANCH.



NEW YORK OFFICES
1441 BROADWAY

The Stanley COMPANY
GLOBE THEATRE BUILDING
N E COR. JUNIPER AND MARKET STREETS

Philadelphia. Sept. 5th, 1914.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
STANLEY THEATRE
GLOBE THEATRE
PALACE THEATRE
VICTORIA THEATRE
CROSSKEYS THEATRE
REGENT THEATRE
SAVOY THEATRE
PRINCESS THEATRE
CASINO THEATRE
MARKET STREET THEATRE
AUDITORIUM THEATRE
PLAZA THEATRE
IMPERIAL THEATRE
PARK THEATRE
CENTURY THEATRE
RUBY THEATRE
BIJOU DREAM THEATRE
GREAT NORTHERN THEATRE
MODEL THEATRE
CRYSTAL THEATRE

NEW YORK, N. Y
STANLEY THEATRE
BROADWAY THEATRE
NORTH STAR THEATRE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
B. F KEITH'S THEATRE
GARDEN PIER
COLONIAL THEATRE

READING, PA.
PALACE THEATRE
HIPPODROME

NORRISTOWN, PA
GARRICK THEATRE
GRAND OPERA HOUSE
BIJOU THEATRE
EMPIRE THEATRE

POTTSVILLE, PA.
HIPPODROME
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
SLATER THEATRE

WILMINGTON, DEL
BIJOU THEATRE
PICKWICK THEATRE

George J. Beihoff, Manager,
The World Film Corporation,
1316 Vine Street, Phila., Penna.

Dear Sir:-

In answer to your letter to us asking our opinion of the first World Film release "The Lure" we would say that the consensus of opinion is that this picture was highly satisfactory.

From a Box-office standpoint, under adverse weather conditions, it broke the house record for a correesponding period last year at the Palace Theatre, Philadelphia, in which it played one week, drawing to a daily and evening house capacity.

Should the World Film releases follow with as marked success you will have no difficulty in placing your program with many exhibitors. We would further add- that the contracts given to you, supplying twenty theatres under our direction, look at this time to be quite an important asset.

Very truly yours,
Stanley Company.

SVL/EH

"THE LURE" IS ONE OF OUR FIRST PICTURES

WATCH US IMPROVE WITH EVERY RELEASE

ARRANGE YOUR BOOKINGS NOW FOR "THE LURE" THROUGH

THE WORLD FILM CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, GENERAL MANAGER.

EXCLUSIVE DISTRIBUTORS-SHUBERT AND WM A. BRADY PICTURE PLAYS

130 WEST 46TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY..

23 BRANCHES THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

ON LAND AND SEA

Home Pictures of the Front

In the olden days it sometimes took months for news of a battle to cross the water. Today, when the distribution of news has reached its highest point of perfection in anyone anywhere can enter any moving picture theatre and see what happened shortly after it happened. From camera man to factory to exhibitor the films travel with all possible speed by the fastest expresses—no lost motion, no delay. In consequence, the Pathé Daily News is always News, fresh and interesting. Today's events are the sort that everybody wants to see if you will give them the chance—the Pathé Daily News (issued semi-weekly) may now be obtained through the Eclectic Feature Film Exchanges.

The Pathé Daily News

ECLECTIC FILMS PARIS · NEW YORK

THE ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 WEST FORTIETH NEW YORK CITY

"The Cream of American and European Studios"

LUBIN

"The Beloved Adventurer"

By Emmett Campbell Hall

Featuring

Arthur Johnson and Lottie Briscoe

PUBLISHED IN BOOK FORM 150,000 COPIES SOLD THE FIRST WEEK

HERALDS
for
"The Beloved Adventurer"
from Hennegan & Co.,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

POSTERS
from
the A. B. C. Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Released on the regular programme every Monday through the General Film Co.

1st of Series—
"Lord Cecil Intervenes"

2nd of Series—
"An Untarnished Shield"

3rd of Series—
"An Affair of Honor"

4th of Series—
"An American Heiress"

5th of Series—
"The Girl from the West"

A SERIES OF 15 SINGLE REEL DRAMATIC PHOTOPLAYS
THE FIRST OF THE SERIES WAS RELEASED MONDAY, SEPT. 14TH.
AND CONTINUES EACH MONDAY FOR A PERIOD OF 15 WEEKS.

FIFTEEN CHAPTERS TO THE BOOK, EACH CHAPTER IN ITS REGULAR ORDER REPRESENTING A RELEASE. FULL CLOTH BINDING, WITH FIFTEEN FULL PAGE HALF-TONE ILLUSTRATIONS, INCLUDING AN AUTOGRAPHED FRONTISPIECE OF ARTHUR JOHNSON.

Single Copies, 25 cents; in lots of 25 or more, 15 cents each.

SECURE THESE BOOKS FROM THE GENERAL FILM CO. EXCHANGES

EXHIBITORS ARE URGED TO PLACE IMMEDIATE ORDERS AS THE EDITION IS LIMITED

LUBIN

Lubin Manufacturing Company

Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Office, 154 West Lake Street

LUBIN

LUBIN

MASTERPIECES

IN PREPARATION

ROSE COGHLAN

and ETHEL CLAYTON in

SIX REELS — "THE SPORTING DUCHESS" — By CECIL RALEIGH

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

TO BE RELEASED SOON

EVELYN NESBIT THAW

AND HER SON, RUSSELL WILLIAM THAW

(By Special Arrangement with Fred Mace) in

FIVE REELS — "THREADS OF DESTINY" — By WILLIAM H. CLIFFORD

Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

EDWIN ARDEN and ROMAINE FIELDING

IN

FIVE REELS — "EAGLE'S NEST" — By EDWIN ARDEN

Produced by ROMAINE FIELDING

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

In a 5 Reel Comedy Drama by LAWRENCE McCLOSKEY — Produced by GEORGE TERWILLIGER

RELEASED—FOUR BIG DRAWING PICTURES!

(Through the General Film Special Service)

SIX REELS — "THE FORTUNE HUNTER" — By WINCHELL SMITH

With WILLIAM ELLIOTT, Late Star of "Madame X" Co.

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

FIVE REELS — "THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR" — By J. HARTLEY MANNERS

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

SIX REELS — "THE WOLF" — By EUGENE WALTER

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

THREE REELS — "MARAH, THE PYTHONESS" — By CLAY M. GREENE

Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

SIX REGULAR RELEASES EACH WEEK

"THE BELOVED ADVENTURER." Third of Series "AN AFFAIR OF HONOR." Drama. Monday, September 28th.

"JINKS AND THE BARBER," "JEALOUS JAMES." Split Reel Comedies. Tuesday, September 29th.

"HIS BROTHER BILL." Two Reel Drama. Wednesday, September 30th.

"HIS FIRST CASE." Two Reel Drama. Thursday, October 1st.

"THE GREATER LOVE." Drama. Friday, October 2nd.

"ON CIRCUS DAY." Comedy. Saturday, October 3rd.

SPECIAL ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS

Lubin Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Office - - - 154 West Lake Street

EDISON

THE LONG WAY

A dramatic adaptation from the novel of Mary Imlay Taylor

To have produced a picture like "The Long Way" constitutes a new standard for how much may be told on the screen. It is a masterpiece with a star cast and set in the home of a well-known millionaire. From the acting, dramatic and producing standpoint it is unsurpassed. A story of two sisters, Eva and Rachel. Eva lies away the reputation of Rachel and induces her to marry the very man who caused all the trouble, to save herself. How the tangle is undone is told in three reels of absorbing interest. This film is a masterpiece of dramatic production. The interest in the gradually unfolded story is so wonderfully sustained that the real outcome remains in doubt up to the very last moment. The scenic and photographic effects are beautiful and will surely call forth enthusiastic comment from both public and press.

In three parts. 3,000 feet. To be released Friday, October 9th.

COMING EDISON RELEASES

Monday, October 5th	FATHER'S BEARD.....	1,000 ft. Comedy
Tuesday, October 6th	GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN....	1,000 ft. Drama
Wednesday, October 7th	SETH'S SWEETHEART.....	1,000 ft. Comedy
Friday, October 9th	THE LONG WAY.....	3,000 ft. Drama
Saturday, October 10th	A FRAGMENT OF ASH.....	1,000 ft. Drama

Two Edison Masterpieces to be Released October 9th

"THE LONG WAY," a three part reel. A masterpiece of dramatic production. Scenic and photographic effects are very beautiful.

"MY FRIEND FROM INDIA," another masterpiece in which Walter E. Perkins is in the title role. To be obtained through the General Film Company's special releases. Full of laughs. Now Ready.

Order Edison Posters of the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, direct

Thomas A Edison INCORPORATED

THOMAS A. EDISON, INC.
239 Lakeside Avenue, Orange, N. J.
Makers of Edison Kinetoscope, Model D

VITAGRAPH

"When the Gods Forgive"

Drama.....MONDAY, SEPT. 28

Indian superstition and a timely rain save a man from burning at the stake. He profits by his experience and becomes an exemplary husband. An all-star cast.

"Regan's Daughter"

Two Part Drama.....TUESDAY, SEPT. 29

The man he has arrested saves the detective's life. In gratitude he keeps secret the man's past from his daughter, whom the detective marries. An all-star Vitagraph cast.

"The Heart of Sonny Jim"

Comedy-Drama.....WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 30

Sonny sells his dog to buy Mother Dear a present. Separated from his dog, he pines and grieves. They are reunited and Sonny is himself again. BOBBY CONNELLY as Sonny.

"The Love of Pierre Larosse"

Drama.....THURSDAY, OCT. 1

To save his rival from a raging forest fire, he sacrifices his own life. He does it for the sake of the woman he loves. DOROTHY KELLY, JAMES MORRISON and GEORGE COOPER are the principals.

"Eats"

Vita-Laugh Comedy.....FRIDAY, OCT. 2

Jim and Sam get the eats. Their methods are very ingenious. They have lots of fun, which continues after they land in jail. BILLY QUIRK and LEE BEGGS as the two laugh-provokers.

"The Royal Wild West"

Two Part Comedy.....SATURDAY, OCT. 3

Cowboys, Indians and desperadoes are all English, you know. Naturally, they do things as they would do them in jolly old England. Very clever, deucedly wild and extremely funny. SIDNEY DREW heads the cast.

SIX A WEEK

"FISHERMAN KATE"
Comedy .....Monday, October 5

"HIS UNKNOWN GIRL"
Drama .....Tuesday, October 6

"KILL OR CURE"
VITA-LAUGH Comedy .....Wednesday, October 7

"THE LOAN SHARK KING"
Drama .....Thursday, October 8

"JOSIE'S LEGACY"
Comedy .....Friday, October 9

"THE ROSE AND THE THORN"
Two-Part Drama .....Saturday, October 10

VITAGRAPH ONE, THREE AND SIX-SHEET POSTERS

VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA, E. 15th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

PREMIERE MOTION PICTURES

Produced by the VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

RELEASED

A MILLION BID	5 PARTS
GOODNESS GRACIOUS	3 PARTS
MR. BARNES OF N. Y.	6 PARTS
LOVE, LUCK and GASOLENE	3 PARTS
CAPTAIN ALVAREZ	6 PARTS
SHADOWS OF THE PAST	3 PARTS
BINGLES' MELODRAMA	3 PARTS
MY OFFICIAL WIFE	5 PARTS
UNCLE BILL	3 PARTS
THE PAINTED WORLD	3 PARTS
FLORIDA ENCHANTMENT	5 PARTS

COMING SOON

BROADWAY'S GREATEST SENSATION
THE SMASHING HIT

"413"

3-PART DETECTIVE DRAMA WITH A THOUSAND THRILLS

THE MOST REALISTIC TRAIN WRECK EVER FILMED. ALL-STAR CAST

FILMDOM'S LAUGHING SUCCESS

The Win(k)some Widow

4-PART COMEDY
—WITH—
CISSY FITZ-GERALD
HER FAMOUS WINK AND GREATEST CAST IN COMEDY

AS PRESENTED AT THE

Vitagraph Theatre

NEW YORK CITY

FOR TERMS AND PARTICULARS APPLY

General Film Co.'s SPECIAL SERVICE

By Arrangement with Broadway Star Feature Co. (Inc.)

STATE RIGHTS STILL AVAILABLE FOR "THE CHRISTIAN"

APPLY VITAGRAPH-LIEBLER FEATURE FILM CO.
116 NASSAU ST., N. Y. C.

KALEM'S FIVE-A-WEEK

The Girl and the Stowaway

A Romantic Comedy in Two Acts. One of the Alice Joyce Series Features.

Averse to marrying for money, Lord George refuses to meet the American heiress selected for him. Refusing to be bartered for a title, Adele doesn't care to see the young nobleman. But all ends well, when George, ignorant of her identity, makes a sensational leap from an ocean liner and saves Adele's life.

Released Monday, October 12th. Business-bringing scenes on 1, 3 and 6-Sheets.

Percy Pimpernickel—Soubrette

It is the year 1950. Woman rules the roost while mere Man is a delicate creature who must be protected from the world. Percy is a he-soubrette and his adventures with his bold, bad wife will bring laugh after laugh.

Released Tuesday, October 13th.

Si's Wonderful Mineral Spring

Ruth Roland and Lloyd V. Hamilton in this great farce will make your patrons roar with laughter. How Hiram creates a mineral spring on his rival's property with the aid of rotten eggs makes this one of the funniest comedies of the year.

Released Friday, October 16th

Seed and the Harvest

A Modern Drama in Two Acts. An All-Star Cast

There's a powerful moral for indulgent parents in this absorbing story. The downfall of the pampered and petted son, and a girl's work to save his brother from a similar fate makes this of great heart-interest.

Released Wednesday, October 14th. 1, 3 and 6-Sheets that attract attention.

From Peril to Peril

Every moment in this Helen Holmes story is filled with action. The Kalem actress' sensational dive off a high bridge to capture a pair of yeggmen, just one of the stirring incidents.

Released Saturday, October 17th. Superb 1 and 3-Sheets

KALEM COMPANY, 235-9 W. 23d St., New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX — EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

WESTERN OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.
DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this Issue will be found on page 110.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, October 3, 1914.

Facts and Comments

WE must admit that the motion picture men are lucky. Here was a plan to impose a tax on motion pictures in order to supply in part at least the revenues which have stopped owing to such a great decrease of imports. The President and Congress had considered various schemes of taxation, and there was a feeling among members of Congress that motion pictures looked like a proper subject to help in making up the war-tax. There were isolated protests sent to members of Congress by exhibitors in the West, but the national organization had, as far as we know, taken no official action and formulated no protest. In spite of this apparent indifference on the part of those whom such a tax must have hurt most, the tax was abandoned. It was good statesmanship to spare the motion picture. No doubt its educational value was taken into consideration as well as the fact that it furnishes the chief amusement for the masses of our people. In the catechism of true statesmanship beer and gasoline are much more fit subjects of taxation than the motion picture, which ought to be as exempt from taxation as books and newspapers.

* * *

OUR Commissioner of Licenses is reported as issuing an edict on war-films. He is quoted as saying that there must be no pictures of defeats and victories. We hasten to assure the Commissioner that there is not the slightest cause for worry. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD is in a position to state on most excellent authority that no motion pictures have so far been taken either at or within photographing distance of the front. We are with the Commissioner in his sentiment that the showing of one-sided pictures is a violation of the spirit of neutrality, but we assure him that exhibitors know how to discriminate and eliminate. All these officials and "reformers" make no allowance for the judgment and discretion of the men who conduct motion picture theaters. Their bread and butter depends upon the treatment of their audience and outside interference is often quite unnecessary.

* * *

IT seems that so-called "German sympathizers" have addressed the National Board of Censorship requesting that body to refuse their approval of certain films showing the destruction of villages and cities of Belgium. This is a free country and we are all anxious for the truth. If there has been wanton destruction and cruelty in Belgium and if these films show scenes proving this fact, why should they be suppressed? We cannot imagine that any serious attempt will be made to suppress them, because there is no legal authority vested in any official to suppress them. The kinematograph performs an important mission and a valuable service to humanity in telling the truth about things. If there is any cause which will suffer through the truth being told in films, so much the worse for the cause.

* * *

THE laudable effort on the part of certain theaters to mix opera with motion pictures must be conducted intelligently if desirable results are to follow. That it is so conducted is delightfully evident in most cases. There is, it seems to us, no surer way of introducing popular opera to the masses than coupling it with a first-class motion picture entertainment. Grand opera is often feared rather than appreciated by the masses. The notion prevails that grand opera is a luxury exclusively for the rich. Nothing could be further from the truth. The elevating and refining influence of classic music is universal. In Italy, in France and in Germany grand opera is patronized by all classes of society and appreciated most sincerely by the plain people. There is no reason why things should be otherwise on our side of the water. If the motion picture does nothing more than popularize opera and create and cultivate a taste for classic music it will fulfill a most beneficial mission.

* * *

THE plan of showing a so-called "feature film" portraying the details of a much advertised crime on Long Island has called forth a lively and timely protest by all the forces of decency within the ranks of the industry itself. It looks now as if the police and the licensing authorities will "get after" the obnoxious film and prevent its exhibition. There surely is enough law on the statute books now to stop the yellow activities. The morbid exploitation of notorious crime can safely be left to the yellow press; the screen is too valuable an instrument for entertainment and instruction to be soiled with films which seek to make a profit out of the showing of criminal details.

Pests or Helps

By W. Stephen Bush.

FOR the better part of an hour recently I stood in the lobby of a prominent motion picture theatre in this city discussing the "Wherefore of the Thusness" with an old exhibitor and a stanch friend of The Moving Picture World. In that space of time several young men, all of them carrying a bundle of papers and a confident air, called upon my friend asking for a word in private. Every one of these young men, who looked so active and ambitious, was a booking agent. Being close to the conversation between the booking agent and the exhibitor I caught such phrases as "the best money-maker ever made," "let you have it for a song," "paper pulls like derrick," etc., etc. The exhibitor, tactful and diplomatic, "shook" the aforesaid agents at the rate of about three minutes a man and then confided to me that not one of the agents had the least idea of what kind of features were needed in his house.

"I have," said he, "an audience with distinct tastes and likes of its own. The paper in the lobby and my whole front ought to give an intelligent booking agent some idea as to what I want, and if he cannot draw any conclusions from that he has but to look at my neighborhood. The really 'raw and crude stuff' will not be accepted by my people, but on the other hand, a distinctly classic film would have as little chance. These booking agents and the men that send them out might be of great help to us exhibitors if they stirred up their gray matter a little more energetically."

These remarks of my friend were still lively in my memory when the mail brought a communication to the office, which seems like an echo or repetition of what I had heard. This letter came from a correspondent who described himself as a "new beginner." The writer somewhat bitterly complains of the booking agents. He says that many of the latter are "but simple peddlers" who take "little or no interest in the exhibitor's welfare, merely placing their wares for the sake of the commission they can get out of it. Can the booking agent expect more than a curt reception under such conditions? I contend that no agent should solicit an exhibitor until he has seen the particular feature he is endeavoring to book and knows its value to the exhibitor. The live agent who studies the interests of the various houses that he visits will soon be appreciated by the managers. They are not inclined to use up a lot of time in the various projecting rooms, as they are now doing, but would be only too pleased to rely upon the conscientious and intelligent booking agent who could now and then approach them with something worth while."

It seems to us there is a good deal to be said on both sides of the question. The great and growing number of booking agents results from the present imperfect and unscientific methods of distribution. The tremendous production of cheap features is also in some degree responsible for the fact that booking agents increase and multiply. The big, wide and smooth avenues of distribution which we knew in the olden days are no longer quite as big and as wide and as smooth as they used to be. Even the highly organized groups of producers are sending out solicitors in these days and rely to some extent on the skill of the booking agent. The cheaper grade of producers, with no conception even of the necessity of scientific distribution, depend wholly upon the booking agent.

In the latter case the booking agent is to be pitied rather than censured. If he is a man with intelligence and possessed of some energy it will not take him long to discover the true inwardness of things. He will, with a little experience, be able to "shake" the concern that sends him on his way with obviously impossible films. He will soon find a better employer with more profit to himself. Clever booking agents with the ability of studying the particular needs of exhibitors have a good field before them. By their work they will not only be able to earn something for themselves, but they will help to solve the problem of distribution which, in this country at least, is the great unsolved problem in the motion picture industry. Our methods of booking are still crude, and the employment of booking agents who work from the street is one of the indications that our industry is indeed still in its infancy. All these questions will find their solution when the business of distribution crystallizes into something more settled.

In the meantime we think that the good, clever booking agent is a distinct asset to the industry. Capable men who understand their business won't have to book from the street for any great length of time. On the other hand, it cannot be denied that a man who is simply in search of employment and has no qualifications acts as an irritant on the average exhibitor, who always has troubles of his own. We speak of qualifications advisedly. No one can expect to succeed as a booking agent who is not fairly well posted on conditions in the industry. He must have his bearings before he can expect to do any good either to himself or to his employer or to his exhibitor. In the last analysis the exhibitor is his real employer. His interests are entirely identical with the interests of the exhibitor. He must serve him first and foremost. If the interest of his exchange cannot be harmonized with the interest of the exhibitor he might as well expect to make money by pouring water through a sieve.

Much of the blame for the useless booking agent attaches to the wildcat exchange and the wildcat producer. Unable to make an appeal on the merits of the films these men try to market their stuff by sheer importunity. Men with surplus nerve are required to approach exhibitors with these cheap features. Exhibitors are busy men and naturally resent such imposition. The end is loss and waste all around.

As the market is passing more and more into responsible hands it may safely be predicted that the day of the irresponsible booking agent is nearly over. The last few weeks have brought new groupings into the field; responsible manufacturers more than ever feel the absolute necessity of intelligent and scientific distribution, and exchanges of strength and responsibility are being established all over the country. The film of merit, and especially the feature film of merit, will no longer need such doubtful and adventitious aids as men who approach the exhibitor from the sidewalk carrying their office under their hats.

Until that time comes it will pay the exhibitor to use a little discrimination and to try to separate the wheat from the chaff. Once in a while something worth while may be offered by these itinerants, and for the sake of the possible good, we refrain from characterizing the whole tribe as a brigade of nuisances.

Problems of Feature Production

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

DEMAND for strong features is so far outrunning supply that a hurry call has been sent broadcast "Author! Author!" such as has never assailed the delighted ears of a newly plumed dramatist making his first vanity bow. "Author" does not seem to respond, though he should. Any man can become a successful dramatist by starting out with fertile imagination, instintive recognition of what is dramatic, keen observation, power of concentration, vigorous health and a goat-like ability to subsist on next to nothing. By years of study and careful training he may acquire that judgment which enables him to accurately forecast the effect of his product on an audience. Any man of intelligence can thus become an author, though successful ones are rarely made while you wait.

It is quite helpful to study audiences and the effect of other plays on those audiences. The general principle that one must get at the impression in order to formulate critical judgment of expression is to be considered. Even a critic—I speak from limited personal experience—may pass from a state of sympathetic impressions, of inconsequential receptivity, to describing his impressions, and thus, by painful degrees, to laying golden eggs, ideas worth visualizing on the screen. From mere habit of making photoplays understandable in print, it is among remote possibilities that the reviewer may succeed as a photoplaywright. I say this with reservations, because there never was but one great critic and he has disappeared—some say he is where he ought to be.

To all outward appearances, the principal thing to be done in a play is to make clear the action of characters. That seems to be the general impression. Many directors have told me that clear exposition is not consistent with mystifying the audience, just as though I was plotting to deceive that dear public. "You must not fool the audience," is the usual way of putting it, and there are abundant evidences in what we see on the screen that kind-hearted directors do their level best to let people in front know just how the story is going to turn out. Having seen with our own eyes that the villain with dark furtive glances really did commit the crime, of which the hero is falsely accused, we are relieved of anxiety, even when the hero has a rope, figurative or actual, around his neck. We know that the heroine will get the "papes" and arrive just in time to save her loved one and fall into his arms.

When all is made clear to the audience, where the wicked author has not held up certain facts in order to excite curiosity and intensify suspense, where the director is good enough to let it be known that there is no real cause for anxiety, those members of the audience who have trains to catch need not wait until the end of a big feature—they may go home at any time, assured that all will be well in the end. The wicked author of successful feature plays may insist upon having his creative work published as written. But when you come to think it over, why should not an individual who could not write a successful play if his life depended on it revise that play to suit himself if he owns it, even if he does take all the juice out of it. This is a free country, and every man concerned in the production should have a hack at the play if he feels like it. Why not make a patchwork quilt out of a carefully-designed tapestry—one is as good as the other.

Someday, somewhere, somebody will think it out all by himself that clear exposition is better applied to character and to the motive behind the action. It may dawn upon those concerned in feature-play production that what is done gathers interest when it can be shown why it is done, and this leads back to the working of character forces. It takes time to develop character in the screen story just as it does in real life. While this difficult art is in progress, the author may set up a by-play to excite curiosity and hold interest until the main action is fully developed and under way. He may deliberately hold up the high action that leads to a crisis. It may be necessary for him to gather his forces from various points to deal an effective blow towards the end. It is not unlike a military operation, where the movement of troops is screened and news from the front is censored.

Instead of making it obvious from the outset how the play is to end, it may be delicately hinted toward the crisis that something of importance is going to happen to quicken curiosity and continually augment a carefully constructed line of suspense, though it is possible to intensify any well-devised plot. Any readjustment of the complicated structure is liable to weaken rather than strengthen it. Whenever any serious change is contemplated in a carefully written feature scenario, the sensible and practical way to do it is in conjunction with the author. This means harmony, and no great success ever grew out of discord. The most serious artistic problem that confronts producers to-day, so far as feature plays are concerned, is that of reconciling all elements, creative, directive and interceptive, into one harmonious whole whose combined object is composite success.

When this or that actor, director or playwright goes up in the air over what seems to be an individual triumph, he does not realize that he is only one wheel in the watch. Capital is the mainspring, a fine play the first cog, a capable director the second, suitable and sincere interpreters, camera men, scene workers and men in the scientific departments the rest. The hands are those who reach out for trade. All are factors in an intricate piece of machinery which will not keep time unless the parts work together. One splendid play after another has been spoiled by a lack of united effort to one end.

Concerned only with one department, I have continually advocated the solution of what may be a difficult artistic problem but which is bound to contribute heavily in the end to success. So far as feature plays are concerned, a common weakness seems to be a lack of satisfaction at the end. The end and the ends seem too trivial. One feels a sense of emptiness after it is all over.

We sit two hours watching a production and leave with a vague sense of something lacking in it. It is all right to gain attention by whatever may be attractive and gradually lead to a main line of action which shall reach a great crisis near the conclusion. All that is art. Is it not finer art to have that absorbing entertainment convey something, however subtly imposed, that shall set people thinking, guide toward a truth, or stimulate higher aspiration? Is it not just as well to give these plays, to give each one of these interesting creatures of ours, a soul?

"Still, though he search from shore to distant shore,
And no strange realms, no unloaded plains,
Are left for his attainment and control,
Yet is there one more kingdom to explore.
Go, know thyself, O man! there yet remains
The undiscovered country of thy soul!"

"The Real Agatha"

A Sprightly, Entertaining Comedy in Two Parts, by Essanay, Adapted from the Novel by Edith Huntington Mason.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

SIX romping, bright-eyed, mischievous maidens flit through a wholesome and bright little photo comedy by Essanay that will be released Oct. 9. The seventh girl in the action is a sweet, seemingly demure little baggage, who keeps in the background with eyes atwinkling, and enjoying with roguish delight the deceptive part she takes in the fun. The real Honorable Agatha is she, heiress to the broad lands of the Eykhoff estate and to the millions that go with it, while the six romping beauties are merely decoy ducklings—counterfit Agathas, whose mission it is to keep fortune hunters away from the wealth and hand of the real heiress.

Scene from "The Real Agatha" (Essanay).

The real Agatha is blessed with a highly circumspect and diplomatic chaperon, who has mapped out the plan already referred to and who, for the further protection of her ward, introduces that young lady to intending suitors as her private secretary. Each of the six romping maidens is introduced as the real Honorable Agatha, and the suitors are plainly told that they must select for themselves and abide the result.

Scene from "The Real Agatha" (Essanay).

Young Lord Vincent—called Freddie by his intimates—and a party of friends take an auto trip into the country, knowing nothing of the Honorable Agatha or her millions. They chance to pass through the Eykhoff estate, and while Freddie and his close friend, Archibald Terhune, alight to gain information about the location of a certain village, their companions drive off and leave them stranded, a joke that turns out happily for Freddie in the end.

The wayfarers stumble on the Eykhoff mansion and are at once looked upon as suitors for the hand of the Honorable Agatha, and learn that each suitor is permitted to remain for four weeks as a guest. Here the action of the comedy begins and one enjoys keenly the eager efforts of Archibald to discover the real Agatha among the six. He is middle aged and a fortune hunter, and is caught floundering again and again in his frantic pursuit of the real heiress. Being the senior of Freddie, he severely lectures that young man because he lavishes his attentions on a mere secretary, reminding him that a young man of his family and connections must be careful not to engage in a mesalliance. But Freddie laughs at him and replies that he loves the secretary and not the millions.

In the end Freddie marries Miss Marsh, the secretary, and discovers that he has also married the real Agatha, much to the mortification of Archibald, who needed the millions so sorely.

Richard C. Travels directed the production and also appears in the role of Freddie. He can be congratulated in both capacities. His Freddie is in fine keeping with the requirements of that refined and gentle character. Archibald Terhune is well carried by Oscar G. Briggs. Archibald's overweening sense of his blue-blood superiority and standing is so truthfully shown that, in connection with his fortune-hunting proclivities, it excites quiet mirth.

Our little favorite, Miss Ruth Stonehouse, is exceedingly happy in the part of Miss Marsh, the private secretary and the real Agatha. The love scenes between Miss Marsh and Freddie are delicately sweet, with maidenly reserve on her part and masculine tenderness on his.

Miss Armistead, the chaperon, is given faithful characterization by Miss Helen Dunbar, and the six romping maidens who lead Archibald a merry race for the millions will be greeted with smiling riplets by all who see them.

MENCHEN ON U. S. BATTLESHIP.

Joseph Menchen was one of the many thousand who fled from Paris last week. He went in his automobile taking along many thousands of feet of valuable negative. He and his automobile were taken across the channel by the United States battleship Tennessee. Menchen took numbers of interesting pictures at Havre and on board the ship. Some of these pictures show prominent American citizens.

American Refugees on Battleship Tennessee—Menchen Second from Right, Standing.

JOHN CHER.

RHODES' STORY MAKES THRILLING "U" DRAMA.

"The Awaited Hour" is the title of a short story which created a sensation on its appearance some time back in the Century Magazine. The story was from the pen of Eugene Manlove Rhodes, one of America's virile authors. This story has been secured by the Universal and adapted to a two reel drama. Mr. Brenon has been chosen to produce it. Important in the cast are William Welsh, William Shay and Violet Mercereau.

The story itself is a tragedy, but with such a unique development and denouement that its power for interesting is irresistible. Incidentally there are some highly spectacular feats to be achieved, but Mr. Brenon can be counted on to take care of them.

"Bootle's Baby"

Two-Reel Edison Drama. An Improved Version of John Strange Winter's Delightful Story.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CAST:

Lieutenant Bootle	Robert Conness
Lieutenant Gilchrist	Herbert Prior
Grace Gilchrist	Mabel Trunnelle
The Baby	Margaret O'Meara
Adjutant Gray	Joseph W. Girard
Mrs. Gray	Elizabeth Miller
The Nurse	Mrs. Walker Erskine
Countess Gourbolska	Cora Williams
Mrs. Becton Brown	Mrs. William Bechtel
Miss Trevor	Mabel Dwight
The Hostess	Bliss Milford
The Doctor	Harry Linson

ASHLEY MILLER has visualized a very pretty story in "Bootle's Baby" and has done it with a skill that disposes of severe judgment, though a touch of psychology, a glimpse of what was passing in the minds of Bootle's Baby during her varied experiences might have beautified the screen version. It is not an easy matter to get at the thoughts of a child, but its exploitation is fascinating to an audience. The little girl was suddenly injected into a motherless environment by a mother who could no longer support it and herself, and her emotions, her ideas, her view of her strange surroundings would have given a bright touch to all that transpired, a comedy opportunity Mr. Miller could have handled with ease.

Scene from "Bootle's Baby" (Edison).

Scene from "Bootle's Baby" (Edison).

Grace Gilchrist is the unrecognized wife of Lieutenant Gilchrist, possibly because the latter is a man of dense selfishness. He is portrayed as being unaffected by those social relations which make existence worth while to intelligent human beings, a brooding, morbid and heartless man, in small favor with his brother officers. They are a light-hearted band of good fellows and best of them all is Bootle. Bootle has a boyish nature which makes him so sanguine, so hopeful that human nature in all its phases looks good to him.

Grace Gilchrist makes a final appeal to her husband to help her and, failing to excite his compassion, leaves the child in his room at the barracks, together with a brief note bearing no name but compromising in its nature. He finds the little girl asleep in his bed and carries her and the note to the room of Bootle. There she sleeps until Bootle comes in when she wins her way to his tender breast. He calls his brother officers, proving his innocence by his manly way of showing the compromising note, and they take charge of the frail morsel of humanity in an amazing way, but one demonstrating that motherhood which forms a part of real manhood.

Bootle thereafter has his social trials. His situation is one demanding the courage of innocence when the Adjutant and Mrs. Gray arrive, but he emerges from this first experience with flying colors. Mrs. Gray decides that the baby girl shall remain and finds a nurse for her. A more severe trial occurs a year later, during a house party given by one of the ladies of the garrison. Among the guests expected is Countess Gourbolska, in whose service is Grace Gilchrist, acting as a companion. This brings the mother of Bootle's Baby on the scene and with her a tangle of complications.

First of all Bootle falls in love with Grace, and, when she learns that he has delicately cared for her child, her heart goes out to handsome Bootle. She is ripe to love the man who loves her child, and she is nauseated with the one she has vowed to honor and obey. Every act of Gilchrist shows him to be without those natural sentiments which animate normal men so far as their children are concerned. He is an obstacle to the newly-kindled affection between Grace and Bootle, and of no particular good to anyone concerned. How shall he be eliminated? He is a discouragingly healthy obstacle, not at all inclined to die a natural and thoroughly appropriate death. Here the author steps in and has him thrown from a horse at an opportune moment. He dies of his injuries and confesses all in his last moments. Bootle thereupon gets the girl he loves and a ready-made baby thrown in.

Characterization is confined to the leading roles and is strongest in the portrayals of Bootle and Gilchrist, Robert Conness and Herbert Prior carrying off the honors of interpretation. This is not in disparagement of other members of the company. They perform without blemish, especially little Margaret O'Meara, the baby. She does her tiny best and is most amusing when she looks toward the director or casts side-glances at the cameraman. The fact that she is not camera-wise does not detract from her charm of naturalness, but to the contrary. The play is clean, wholesome and well worth while.

"THE THEATER OF SCIENCE" BY ROBERT GRAU.

Twenty pages more and this volume would contain an even four hundred. In spite of this fact the matter contained in the book might safely be called "light reading." The number of subjects which the author endeavors to treat are numerous, but the threads of system are as thin as gossamer. While the title has an encyclopedic sound suggesting a vast library of reference the chief merit of the volume seems to be its chattiness. There is a Boswellian vein all through its pages. The writer is evidently familiar with most of his subjects and knows how to detail his knowledge and experience in a lively and interesting manner. In recounting the recent past and telling of the actual and the present conditions Mr. Grau is quite readable.

The book begins with a brief but well-told history of the motion picture, in which some space is devoted to the story of the Rev. Hannibal Goodwin, who Mr. Grau tells us "is accredited as the genius who solved the greatest problem in the evolution of motion pictures." After this historic resume the author plunges into "the midst of things" reciting the growth of various producers, giving personal mention to some of the more famous directors and making much of the "pioneers." Exhibition and projection are treated in clever but somewhat discursive fashion.

The book is undoubtedly a valuable contribution to kinematographic literature of which there is precious little; far too little we should say. The style of the book where the narrative is woven by the author himself has the charm of intimacy, though it often overlaps.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi"

World Film Offers Five-Reel Picture of Thomas A. Wise's Drama of an American Gentleman Serving His Country as Senator.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

IT IS safe to say that no one regretted paying the admission price to see Thomas Wise in that dandy play of his, "A Gentleman from Mississippi." The picture of the play, a five reel offering and the third of the Brady plays to be released, is now being distributed by the World Film Corporation. It has the good characters, especially Senator Langdon, who is played by Wise himself, and who is a typical, old-style, gallant Southern gentleman, owner of a cotton plantation forty miles from a railroad station. And the flavor of these characters is about the same as in the original production. This is a big point—it means that the picture has a dozen interesting studies of types. Then it also has the story told by the play, or enough of it to be very interesting. The story is particularly entertaining and the picture has been able to develop those portions of it that the stage could only suggest—the scenes in the home town, the senator's cotton fields, the Mississippi steamboat, etc. The covering of anecdote, repartee and, what is more important, argument, that went with action in the spoken play, is missing in the picture. Yet the story told is clear enough and most of it is every bit as clear and as effective as in the stage play, and the story here is the thing.

Scene from "A Gentleman from Mississippi" (World Film).

The acting is worthy. There is nothing lacking in the work of those who portray the nine chief roles, although there is an especial flavor to Tom Wise's dear old Senator. Nearly all the lesser roles are also well taken. The backgrounds are Southern scenes, actual and convincing; scenes in Washington, that of course are actual; and interiors. All amply explain and interpret the story and all are excellently photographed. A real old Southern mansion was chosen to be the Langdon home. A real cotton field is the background chosen to show how he looks after his negro help. Some Southern village serves as background for the political parade when Langdon is nominated as Senator—in Mississippi that means elected. When the parade reaches the house of the Senator there is a touch of way-back Southern humor in the persuasion of Langdon to take the nomination—the community points its revolver—fifty of 'em—at him and he accepts with hands up.

There had been some talk in the home town of a new navy yard the government was going to buy. Langdon wouldn't speculate in swamp lands to sell to Uncle Sam at a big advance, a thing the Congressman from that district was anxious for him to do. This Congressman is the story's villain. He has persuaded Langdon's son and eldest daughter to put all they can get into these lands; but Langdon doesn't know it. Just before going to Washington, Langdon sends his son North to get money to move his big cotton crop. The Congressman meets the boy in Washington and gets him drunk, then gets him to invest the money in the lands and, since he has his father's power of attorney, even to mortgage his father's property for the same purpose. The object is—the picture doesn't make the point quite so clear as the play does—to force the Senator to vote for the new navy yard and so help the scheme and the schemers.

In Washington the Senator comes into contact with two factions. On one side is an honest newspaper man who becomes his secretary; the other is led by two grafting Senators and the Congressman and with them is a clever society woman. His older daughter and his son side with these, while his younger daughter sides with him and the secretary. The Senator "falls" before the charms of the society woman and just escapes being trapped by her. The action in the last two acts is very pleasing and cleverly contrived. The climax is the Senator's "plan" to turn the tables on the schemers when it has been reported—and truly, for the son had bought the swamps in the father's name—that the old man is the chief owner of the property. It is a good scheme and it astonishes his enemies when he throws it at them, like a bombshell, on the floor of the Senate chamber.

Edgar Lewis

EDGAR LEWIS, whose work as a director in the production of spectacular feature films requiring the services of thousands of actors and actresses has attracted so much favorable comment of late, has had a long and varied career in the amusement field.

Born at Holden, Mo., June 22, 1872, Lewis ran away from home at the age of 12. He rode the rods from his home town, Greencastle, Indiana, to Buffalo and thence came to New York via an Erie canalboat. "Starved out" by the great city young Lewis went back home a few months later, but at the age of 16 left home for good and formally made his debut in the amusement world as canvasman and stake driver in a circus. At 20 Lewis had become manager of a "kid" or side show next to the "big top." He began his stage career "suping" in Indianapolis for road shows. Among other celebrated stars for whom Lewis had the honor of carrying the spear were James O'Neil, Clara Morris, Booth, Barrett, Louis James and Fred Ward. Lewis played his first part—one line—in "L'Article 47" while Clara Morris amusedly looked on. About the same time a small repertoire manager came to Indianapolis looking for people. Lewis got his first part. He played one performance. He was fired.

Edgar Lewis.

Playing every position from "props" to "leads," Lewis finally became a repertoire stage director and built up for himself a considerable reputation in the Middle West. So much of a reputation, in fact, that he decided to come to New York. The young director secured an engagement as leading man with a small permanent stock company. While with this company the director took sick. Lewis saw his chance, put on the next show, the next and the next. Thereafter he devoted his time to directing and resigned his position as leading man.

For several years thereafter Lewis was associated with many prominent stock companies and New York successes, both as actor and director. While producing "The City," Clyde Fitch's last play, Mr. Lewis visited a New York motion picture studio and then wrote a scenario, "The Patched Shoe," which he took to Mme. Blache of the Solax company. After reading it Mme. Blache asked Lewis if he would care to direct it.

"It was not much of a picture," says Lewis, "but we put it on." It was done well enough, however, for Mme. Blache to offer Mr. Lewis a position as assistant director. In a few weeks he became a regular director. Mr. Lewis attributes his success in the motion picture field in a great measure to M. and Mme. Blache and their kindly interest in his work.

GERDA HOLMES GIVES DINNER.

Miss Gerda Holmes of the Essanay company is receiving the congratulations of her friends who were fortunate enough to be invited to a demonstration of her domestic ability. Miss Holmes has a cozy apartment overlooking the lake and last week invited seventeen of her co-workers to a dinner she prepared herself. It is needless to say the dinner was a success from every point of view.

Clara Kimball Young, Artist

Popular Screen Player Talks of Her Work and Her Recreation—A Musician, a Painter, and Also a Cook.

By George Blaisdell.

A BRILLIANT flood of late forenoon sunlight shines upon a girlish figure in black seated at the keys of a great organ. The rays are intensified by the thick clouded glass through which they pass—a natural spotlight. The organist softly plays a familiar hymn. Her eyes, large, dark, lustrous, are not on the multiple banks of keys, but turned upward. Circled about her at a distance of a score of feet are the members of the office staff. Peering through glass doors at the far end of the great salesroom a group of young women employes intently are looking on. None stirs; save for the subdued strains the room is still. It is a tribute to the charm of the scene—an inspiration for an artist.

Standing by the side of a camera a photographer gives a signal. The fingers of the player rest on a chord. The figure and the face become stationary and so remain without a flicker of the dark eyelashes until the photographer's smiling "All right" indicates the end of the pose. Clara Kimball Young resumes her playing. The photograph is recorded, but the real picture remains. It is the Spirit of Music.

Clara Kimball Young.

The writer had been having a chat with Clara Kimball Young in the offices of the Peerless Features Producing Company in Forty-sixth street, and at its conclusion had accepted the invitation of James Young to ride down to the Wurlitzer establishment. It had been an interesting hour. The actress had talked of many subjects, of her love of books, of music, of paintings and painting, of her home—and her garden farm—and of her work on the stage and on the screen. We were sitting in the private office of Charles Jourjon, the head of the Eclair Company, now at the front in France. It was the natural thing that the war should be mentioned.

"Am I interested in the war?" replied Mrs. Young to a question. "Yes, indeed, I am. You know my mother was French—her maiden name was Grenier. My great-great-grandfather was wounded in the retreat of Napoleon from Moscow. He was but nineteen years old at the time and was a sort of protege of the great French commander, who when he found him unable to walk by reason of a shot in the leg picked him up on his horse and enabled him to escape the Russians. The family still treasures the medal of the Legion of Honor which Napoleon bestowed on him afterward. Of course I am in favor of the Allies, but I am so sorry for all the splendid young Germans who are being destroyed." As the speaker ceased there was more than moisture in her eyes.

The former Vitagraph player was but three and a half years old when she made her first appearance before the public. Her mother and father were both players, being then in a repertoire company, at that time so popular. The tiny miss' initial part was in "Peck's Bad Boy," into which a half-dozen words had been interpolated for her especial benefit. As she walked into a scene and asked for some soap, the orchestra would strike up "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay," and the child would dance and sing off the stage. Afterward until she was seven years old she played speaking parts. Then she went to the public schools and to St. Xavier's Academy, Chicago, until the age of sixteen. Her parents removing to Goldfield, Nevada, the young pupil refused to be left behind and packed up her books.

Goldfield, Tonopah and Reno were in those days lively mining towns. Letters come regularly showing that the friends Clara Kimball made in those days are still following on the screen the acting of the woman they then admired in the girl. She was a singer as well as an actress. Later Mr. and Mrs. Kimball accepted a stock engagement with T. Daniel Frawley. Among the plays produced were "The Rose of the Rancho," "Peter Pan," "Captain Swift," "The Devil," "Captain Jinks," "The Climbers," "The Gentleman from Mississippi" and "The Virginian."

Mrs. Young went to the Vitagraph studio about three and a half years ago. "In my first work for the screen I did not feel shy of the camera," she said in reply to a query as to her first impressions. "I was more worried by the members of the stock company standing about. Another trouble I had at the beginning was in restrained acting, with the camera crank whizzing. I felt the impulse to keep time to the sound of that handle. Of course, in a short time I forgot all about it. My first part was as Anne Boleyn in 'Cardinal Wolsey.' The screen gives a player many advantages not to be found on the stage. For instance, in the elimination of mannerisms; and these have to be eliminated if one wants to get ahead. Somehow I feel when looking at a finished picture that I would like an opportunity to do parts of it over again. I note some little thing and take a mental resolution to avoid doing its like again."

Clara Kimball Young and John Bunny.

The talk turned to the many stage favorites who are now appearing in pictures. "Times have changed," suggested James Young, who had entered the office. "I recall when I first went on the screen some of my old stage friends seemed so sorry for me. The motion picture art has produced some great stage directors, as great, I believe, as are to be found in the legitimate. I have had the privilege of working under one man I believe to be the peer of the best I have known or heard of. That is J. Stuart Blackton. Albert E. Smith is another great director, and he combines this faculty with a keen commercial sense.

"Without minimizing the importance of the story, I believe the public goes to the theater to see the player. Of course, the man who can write the perfect story is the foundation of screen work today. But he is hard to find. In my experience at the Vitagraph I have had to rewrite every script I produced. 'Goodness Gracious' never had a script. Mr. Blackton wrote the sub-titles, and that was all we had to go on. I lay awake nights thinking out the best action to follow them."

"Just a moment," smilingly suggested Mrs. Young. "Whose interview is this, yours or mine?" "By George, if that goes in I'll subside," promptly responded the director.

The players were informed they were too late—the remark already was down.

"Which of the plays in which I have appeared do I like best?" replied Mrs. Young to a question. "Well, there is 'The Violin of M'Sieur.' That is one of my favorites—and do you know it was released in Europe just before the war started? You recall there are French and German soldiers in the cast; it was produced so that no offense could be given to those of either side. Then there are 'When Mary Grew Up' and 'Love's Sunset' among others.

"Yes, I like reading, and I do a lot of it, both old books and new magazines. Of the former 'Pickwick' is one of my standbys, and I go over it frequently. I believe I have read 'Little Women' fifteen times. It touches the heart in every chapter. It is life. I like to read 'Pickwick' in the winter time. I can then get up an appetite any time reading of the feasts. Mark Twain is another of my authors. I like Jerome's 'Three Men in a Boat,' too. Singular, isn't it, what a wealth of pathos you sometimes find in comedy?

"Over at our studio in Fort Lee we have just finished 'Lola,' a four-reel subject, by Owen Davis. It is a psychological story, written by Mr. Davis at different times over a number of years. It was put on as a play by Laurette Taylor at a matinee several years ago. All of our productions will be in four reels and will be released by the World Film Corporation. We have a beautifully equipped plant. One regret I have in my new association is that I have to leave my house in Flatbush, with its little garden, for an apartment in Washington Heights. You know I have raised my own vegetables this summer—supplied my own table. I took care of the garden myself, and enjoyed it."

"Yes," proudly interposed Mr. Young, knowingly violating the become-mentioned compact, "You may take my word for it, she is a real cook, too."

Miss Margaret Gibson

MARGARET GIBSON, the little Vitagraph star connected with the Santa Monica, Cal., studio, celebrated her nineteenth birthday on Monday, Sept. 14th, by giving an open-house reception in her new bungalow, erected on the cliff overlooking the ocean. It was in the nature of an old fashioned house-warming, the majority of the guests being photoplayers now in the California district.

Margaret Gibson.

Miss Gibson, or "Gibby," as she is most generally known, was born in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1895. Both her parents were professionals, which accounted for her entering the profession when she was little other than a mere baby. In all her life, she has never really known a home, for hotels are far from the home usually enjoyed by a normal human being. Her longing for a home finally induced her to enter pictures. She made her debut with the Vitagraph company, and in less than three years has risen to a position of stellar importance. With the thought of a home ever uppermost in her mind, she has worked hard and saved diligently. A few months ago work was started on her bungalow, and the grand opening, the biggest day in the little picture star's life, was her nineteenth birthday.

She was like a kid with a new toy. In the midst of her merriment she tried to sing "Home, Sweet, Home," but it was too much for her. She wept like a child, but from pure joy. And her many guests united in claiming it was the most beautiful compliment any home ever received, for the little Vitagraph star, who had never known a home in all her life, welcomed her friends into her own home, which she had worked for and paid for all herself. Few people ever have such a superb opportunity to realize the wonderful meaning of that little word "home."

MADDOX WITH UNIVERSAL.

C. A. Maddox, until recently with the Ramo Film Company of Kansas City, is now connected with the Universal Film Company, of that city.

"The Master Force"

A Two-Reel Kleine-Cines Production Dealing with the Power of First Love.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE high motive of this two-reel photoplay is its most compelling feature. The story flows along in a natural way, as enacted by a capable Italian company. It never rises to great dramatic heights but at the same time maintains a pleasing hold on the observer. The Italian and South American settings are attractive and the photography acceptable throughout.

A simple, almost obvious, plot has been used. The young doctor conducts laboratory experiments to find a cure for tropical fever. In this he is aided by his sweetheart, a young school teacher. The girl even goes to the extreme of inoculating herself with the fever virus in order that he may try his cure. This is the most interesting moment in the fore part of the story.

Scene from "The Master Force" (Kleine).

The cure being effective, the young doctor is offered a place with a mining company in South America, where tropical fever is raging. He goes to this locality and works wonders with the patients. None of this work is shown, which is regrettable, as it would have added much to the credibility of the story.

Here is introduced the second love affair. The doctor, having cured the millionaire owner of the camp, falls in love with his pretty young daughter. News of their engagement reaches the old sweetheart. Greatly downcast over the apparent loss of her lover, she takes a boat for Brazil.

Arriving at the mining camp the school teacher discovers the lovers together. She is so greatly affected that she upsets a lamp in the cabin where she is staying. An alarm is raised and the young doctor responds to the emergency call and saves her life.

The rest of the story follows naturally enough. Having saved his former sweetheart's life, the old love reasserts its force and they thus find happiness.

KLEINE'S "VENDETTA" BOOKS HEAVILY.

George Kleine's latest success, "Vendetta," from the novel by Marie Corelli, will prove itself a second "Quo Vadis?" if the subject continues to book as heavily during the next two months as it has in the past week. General Film Offices everywhere report a big demand and steady bookings among the better class of theaters. George Kleine regards "Vendetta" as the best commercial subject he has ever released. General Film Offices believe that much of its success is due to the fact that the novel has been translated into the German, French, Russian, Italian, Greek, Persian and Hindustani languages. Kleine offices have flooded the daily newspapers of the country with press stories and photographs.

HIGH SCHOOL TO HAVE PHOTOGRAPHY CLASS.

Owing to the demand for first-class photographers in the motion picture business of Los Angeles, the Polytechnic High School of that city will open a course in the study of lenses, cameras and optics, plate and paper work and the chemistry of photography. Students above the tenth grade are eligible.

"The Girl and the Stowaway"

New Romantic Comedy by Kalem Makes an Unusually Pleasing Dramatic Offering in Two Parts.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THERE is good entertainment in many kinds of pictures, but a really good romantic comedy has a delightful touch that is all its own. They are not so common that one of them so pleasing as "The Girl and the Stowaway" should be let slip by without some fitting and special notice. We can't say that the story is especially strong nor can we find any particular technical virtue that puts this picture with distinct successes. But we feel very sure that if the characters in this ocean steamship love story had been real people they would have been thoroughly happy. There is a simple, natural vivaciousness in many of its scenes that makes us accept it as a picture of honest happiness, a feeling the spectator catches and enjoys himself. This is where the value of the picture comes from—it makes the spectator feel happy.

Scene from "The Girl and the Stowaway" (Kalem).

Scene from "The Girl and the Stowaway" (Kalem).

The heroine (Alice Joyce) is an American girl who is very rich, and the hero (Tom Moore) whom she meets stowing away on a great liner—he comes out of hiding to save her pocketbook from a deck hand—is a very poor English lord. The father of this lord lives in a beautiful mansion, but he is simply down and out. His sister has tried to make a match between the girl and the young man; but both young people have rebelled emphatically. Let us mark in passing that the opening set showing the interior of the lord's grand house is a convincing picture—it is a fine set. The girl and the lord have never seen each other, for they have refused to meet. He tries to get a job on a ship and work his way to America. The captain won't look at him, so he jumps aboard and hides under the canvas covering of a life boat.

Every evening he steals out and hooks a loaf of bread from the steward's window. The third day at sea he gets a peep at the girl passing on the deck below him. He is constrained to watch and sees her drop her purse. One of the ship's servants is polishing the door knob of a cabin. He, too, sees the purse, and when the girl passes on he snaps it up and hides it in his blouse. The girl misses it and returns. The helper says he knows nothing about it; but the lord jumping from the upper deck yanks it out of his blouse. The girl tries to thank him, but he already is scampering back to his cache and she doesn't know what has happened to him nor who he is. This makes her the more interested and soon she comes on him unexpectedly bringing home his day's bread. It calls for an explanation; but after that she sees to the larder for him by slipping sandwiches and the like from the table. A very delightful moment comes now. The girl's sister surprises the two talking beside the life boat. She too is taken into the secret and there are now two to help with cabin contraband to feed the stowaway. Suspense is kept up very well all through by the ship's officers, who come very close to the hiding place several times. At length the lord is caught and ignominiously made to don rough togs and scrub and polish with the crew. In a well handled group of incidents, the girl is again brought into the picture's central stream. And the girl's snobbish mamma, who wanted her to marry the lord and was mad because she wouldn't, is now way up in the air, because of the slouchy deckhand the daughter is interested in.

When the ship reaches its dock, the action in the story becomes melodramatic; but it is exciting and furnishes a thrill when the villain, the "hand" who stole the purse, throws the heroine overboard. The lord sees it and jumps to the river and saves her. On the dock the girl's mamma is giving cold praise and her rich father is wondering how he can do something for the brave young man, when one of his lordship's acquaintances sees a friend in rough clothing and comes up to have it all explained and ends by properly introducing the lord by his proper name to papa and mamma. To this two or three scenes are added just enough to bring it to a satisfying and graceful close.

Most of its scenes were really taken on a steamer out at sea and we get an excellent idea of the ship. It is a very pleasing picture.

"Perils of Pauline"

Fourteenth Episode Is a Real, Old-Fashioned, Shake-the-House Thriller—Doesn't Depend on What Went Before.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

IT makes no difference whatever whether one has seen any other installments of "The Perils of Pauline" or not; his interest in this number will be as keen either way. It is quite self-contained; has its beginning of interest and its climax which clears up all the questions involved except that the villain, though badly defeated again, is still out of prison and still able to employ thugs and the like to make another try at getting Harry and Pauline out of the way. It is a melodrama in which the suspense is very marked and over and above the suspense there are thrills and horrors and more thrills piled on until the spectator expects no more—he knows from experience when he's got his money's worth—but still they come. It has some clever bits of picture-making in it too. Harry and Pauline in one place dive down under water and find a way out of the flooded vault through an old fire place and chimney. We see them swimming under water and it is as convincing as can be. There is also a burning city in it. Summing up, we have no hesitation in commending it as a distinctly popular offering. People who wouldn't like thriller melodramas on the stage take real pleasure in them on the screen and there seem to be plenty who like them in either place. This is truly a real one.

ALBUQUERQUE FILM CO. RE-INCORPORATED.

It is now the Albuquerque Film Company of Los Angeles and the company has incorporated under the laws of California. The capital has been increased to $200,000. George P. Hamilton, the president of the company, said in Albuquerque the other day, that he had not abandoned the plan of building a studio in that city, but there would be no action looking to that end taken this year.

"Doc"

A Four-Reel Photoplay Written by Eleanor Gates, Released by Sawyer, Inc., Company.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS Western photodrama tells an entertaining story. The original narrative, written by Eleanor Gates, appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. It brings before the observer a running narrative of events, none of which rises to extreme heights; in fact there is a commendable avoidance of sensationalism.

The production is not free from faults, but holds the interest in spite of them. For one thing it gets a false start.

Scene from "Doc" (Sawyer).

The kidnapping of the quarry owner's child is the main incident of the story, yet at the outset Bill Travers committed an act of criminal negligence which caused the death of two men. This was too grave an offense to pass by so lightly, there being no effort to hold him. He then kidnaps the child and makes away with it.

Sydney Seaword plays the part of the young doctor. He is called to the quarry headquarters to attend the wife of Eastman, the owner, who is grieving over the loss of her child. Eastman for some reason not made clear does not tell the doctor of the kidnapping.

Scene from "Doc" (Sawyer).

After leaving the stricken mother the "Doc" is called on a mysterious errand to the country, where he is led blindfolded to treat the wounded companion of Bill Travers, who was shot by Eastman.

Having treated the wounded man the "Doc" becomes very suspicious of the cabin and its surroundings, but it is not until later that he connects up the disappearance of the child with these men. He then trusts to the intelligence of the black horse, Dolly, to again lead him to the cabin. Bill Travers is captured in town and a search party goes out to procure the child and attend to the other man.

The photography in this production is not of the very best. It has plenty of light on the various scenes, but was apparently poorly projected as we saw it, giving certain spots the appearance of being out of focus. Better projection would undoubtedly help this very much.

William D. Taylor

WILLIAM D. TAYLOR was born in Ireland and was educated at Clifton College, England, where he excelled in hurdles and rowing. His ambition was to go into the army and he was duly examined but failed in the eyesight test and had to abandon the idea. Instead he went to France and Germany to study languages and finally came to America and ranched it in Southwest Kansas. Returning to England he met Charles Hawtrey, the famous actor, and although not quite nineteen joined his company and played in "The Private Secretary."

William D. Taylor.

After playing with a number of traveling companies in the old country William Taylor again crossed the pond and joined Fanny Davenport, playing juveniles and understudying the leading roles at the same time. He stayed with this fine actress for three years and only left her when she died. He played every kind of character with her, including leads, and transacted much of her business for her, which included a yearly journey to Europe for the purchase of properties and costumes. Mr. Taylor joined the Castle Square Stock Company in Boston, taking Jack Gilmore's place at a moment's notice. He also acted with Katherine Kidder in "Madame Sans Gene" on the road and in New York and with Sol Russell in repertoire and has been with a number of high class stock companies.

Mr. Taylor started his motion picture career with the Kay Bee forces at Santa Monica and then joined the Vitagraph, where he did some important work, including the name part in "Captain Alvarez," which made such a sensation on Broadway. He is at present with the Balboa company at Long Beach, where he is both directing and taking his own leads and occasionally writing his own stories.

William Taylor is very much of a man, athletic, tall and well built. He has an all-round love of sports and is as fond of visiting the theater as ever. He is a prominent member of the Photoplayers' Club, a general favorite and an excellent dresser.

A DISCLAIMER FROM WILLIAM FOX.

Again we are printing without comment the following two paragraphs of letter received from William Fox, except to say that this is given space to permit Mr. Fox to disclaim any motive of personal aggrandizement in the matter. We believe this will close the incident in our columns:

Editor Moving Picture World, New York City.

Dear Sir—I read, with interest, the communication from Mr. Carl Laemmle, published in your last number. Nobody knows better than you that newspaper controversies, especially when they assume a personal tone, obscure the real issue. I know it sufficiently well to avoid one at this juncture. * * *

Whatever else I said at the Hotel McAlpin meeting—and I do not plead unguarded words or moments—I did say that I sought no personal aggrandizement in taking the initial steps to organize the National Independent Motion Picture Board of Trade, Inc. I say it again to you, a publicist, in full expectation that you will place before your readers this renunciation—which it is not easy for me to make—of an opportunity to reply to Mr. Laemmle's remarks. Very truly yours, (Signed) WILLIAM FOX.

CLAUD ERBY GOES TO KLEINE'S DALLAS OFFICE.

Claud Erby, well known throughout Middle West picture circles, left Chicago Saturday, Sept. 19, to take charge of George Kleine's Dallas office. He succeeds W. G. Todd, resigned. Mr. Erby has had a long and successful experience in both the theatrical and picture fields, and it is safe to assume that the genial personality which won him so many friends in the Middle West will stand him in good stead in his new environment.

"Such a Little Queen"

Five-Part Famous Players Production, with Miss Pickford in Title Role, Ranks with Company's Best.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IT would be hard to find a keener or more critical audience than an afternoon house in the Strand. Over the great theater on Tuesday afternoon, one of the hottest of the year, there swept continual waves of subdued mirth, alternated with deep silence, in response to the varying emotions stirred by the working out of Channing Pollock's romantic comedy. "Such a Little Queen" is in five parts. It is an all-around production and ranks with the best previous efforts of the Famous Players. The direction bulks big: and if it be said the exteriors were selected and the interiors designed under the eye of an artist the same praise should be accorded the cameraman and the laboratory forces.

Scene from "Such a Little Queen" (Famous Players).

Miss Mary Pickford has the role of Queen Anna Victoria of Herzegovina; and her performance is of that rare quality which we always expect from this star. Comedy and drama are alike to her. She is as delightful in the one as she is moving in the other. As a comedienne she seldom does the anticipated; and therein to a great degree lies the charm of her work. As the Little Queen we see her in widely varying circumstances—in prosperity and in adversity. The poise of royalty on a throne fades in a twinkling when, transplanted to a New York apartment, she awkwardly attempts to cook a dinner on a new-fangled gas stove. We forget the impossibilities in Mr. Pollock's story as we follow her through her troubles, never serious for more than a limited period.

Scene from "Such a Little Queen" (Famous Players).

Russell Bassett is the prime minister of Queen Anna. He is also her guide, philosopher and friend, the participator in her ups and downs. The veteran comedian is a splendid foil for the star; he contributes materially to the success of the production, is one of its factors. Carlyle Blackwell is King Stephen of Bosnia. It is doubtful if in his long years on the screen he has had a finer opportunity for the portrayal of his skill as an actor. The work that falls to him is more in the line of straight drama. He is convincing in the role of the king betrothed to a queen for whom he cared nothing; he is strong as the wooer of the queen without a kingdom. Harold Lockwood as the young American business man abroad and also at home is delightful in his breeziness, in his disregard of royal conventions, in his readiness to assist royalty down and out, as the particularly apt saying goes. Arthur Hoops gives a good portrayal in the shorter role of Prince Eugene, the conspirator who causes all the troubles. Other characterizations that stand out are those of the domineering cook and of Mr. Lauman, the ham magnate.

"Such a Little Queen" is crowded with incident. It starts with a snap; one instinctively feels by the end of the first reel that the action has got to move fast to sustain the interest so unmistakably established, and then promptly forgets the fear. The opening is striking. We are shown a panoramic view of the Kingdom of Herzegovina in the valley, the great mountains in the background, and a like scene of the Bosnian center. It is an atmospheric touch that is worth while. The earlier scenes of the story were taken in California, in a section topographically matching that revealed in the panorama.

We are not going to attempt to enumerate the many strong situations in this story, nor refer to the larger settings. Suffice it to say that "Such a Little Queen" is a mighty fine production, and, as we said before, an all-around one. It should be. It was directed, we have later learned, by Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford.

MONTAGU OPTIMISTIC.

In a letter to the Moving Picture World, E. H. Montagu, European agent for the Selig pictures, writes:

"It may interest you to know that the war is not interfering with business very much, although at first some of the manufacturers and agents were a little panicky. Of course, the Continental manufacturers are doing very little, their factories being practically closed, and this, in itself, is giving a further impetus to the American manufacturers who have the goods, and who print in this country. The war had, however, the effect which was bound to come without it, viz., of putting a final closure on the long film, and although there are plenty being shown and rented, they are being put out at a price which cannot be profitable to the man handling them.

"The English manufacturer, who you would think would have a fine chance of now pushing his goods, is not rising to the occasion, but has made in most cases a lot of clap-trap war and spy dramas, of which I feel sure the public are heartily sick, for there can be no doubt that hearing nothing but war news talked of all day long, they do not want when they go out for their amusement to still have it thrust down their throats."

"MONTY" AND "DARKFEATHER" FEATURES.

At the Norbig Studios, in Edendale, Cal., Frank Montgomery has established his own company to produce two series of pictures, both of them to be released through Sawyer, Inc. Frank Montgomery has for years been famous for his production of Indian features, having been associated first with the Bison Company, next with the Universal, and still more recently with the Kalem, having charge of the features in which Princess Mona Darkfeather appeared with such great success.

His contract with Sawyer, Inc., calls for the release of 3,000 feet of film a week, beginning early in October. Two reels of this will be in the "Darkfeather Features," of which twelve will be produced in twelve consecutive weeks. There will also be the single reel, "Monty Comedies," weekly, for which he has engaged Jane Keckley and other capable people.

These new releases will doubtless find rapid favor with the public—the combination of Mona Darkfeather as an actress and Frank Montgomery as director, is a strong one.

NASHVILLE MAY HAVE FILM FACTORY.

W. C. Lamphier, described by the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner as an Eastern moving picture man, has been in Nashville going over with the Industrial Board the project of organizing a film company in the Tennessee city. Mr. Lamphier is said to have been very confident that such an institution in Nashville could be made a successful enterprise.

Among the Picture Theaters.

FINE ADDITION TO POLI CIRCUIT.

THE newest theater to be added to Sylvester Z. Poli's chain of amusement places, The Palace, at Hartford, Conn., is proving one of the most popular of the entire Poli circuit, the beautiful new playhouse being the Mecca of local theatergoers. Thomas H. Cullen, an experienced theater manager, is in charge and has already built up a large business, through his enterprising, progressive methods. The Palace is the largest theater in Hartford, having a seating capacity of 2,900. Located at the corner of Main and Gold streets, it occupies a prominent spot in the center of the city business section. The lobby is wide and well appointed, display frames being built in the side walls, allowing a generous display of paper for coming and current attractions. The main floor, with a seating capacity of 1,138, is well sloped, the stage being in plain view of everyone in the audience. Large, comfortable seats with leather upholstering add to the attractiveness. The same is true of the balcony and the gallery, both spacious sections.

Thomas H. Cullen.

The lighting is one of the features which attracts the immediate attention of one entering the theater. Although the theater is sufficiently lighted, all lights are of the indirect system. The interior is finished in delicate colors, all blending in fine harmony. Throughout the theater, the same color scheme prevails and the same regard for the comfort and ease of the patrons has been maintained.

Interior View of Palace Theater, Hartford, Conn.

An extensive ventilation system has been installed. By means of a large electric pump, fresh air is forced into the theater through scores of holes in the floor and a large suction fan takes the impure air outside. The air changes completely every two minutes. The theater is of concrete construction, and there are no posts to obstruct the view. One girder, seventy feet long, suspends the gallery, and the balcony is supported in a similar manner. Equipped with every modern appliance, the Palace Theater is one of the most up-to-date in the country for ease, comfort, and safety. Feature motion pictures, Famous Players productions, and six acts of vaudeville are shown, the prices being ten cents to any seat in the afternoon, and ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents in the evening.

QUINN'S SUPERBA, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

IT is quite within the bounds of reason to say that in the past year there is no other city in the world that has gone ahead in motion picture theater construction as rapidly as Los Angeles. A short twelve months ago the average theater manager was well satisfied with a modest interior and an exterior outlined with lights placed at intervals of a foot or more and a fair sized electric sign. A good exemplification of what the public now demands is the new picture palace erected on Broadway, near Fifth, by J. A. Quinn, and called Quinn's Superba.

Mr. Quinn is a Los Angeles manager of recognized ability and was among the first to employ, to the exclusion of all others systems, the indirect lighting plan that enhances the beauty of Quinn's Superba; he has also been highly complimented in having worked out the elaborate light decorations on the facade which make this beautiful edifice stand out. Mr. Quinn is in favor of making Los Angeles preeminently the "City of Lights," and he is certainly doing his share towards carrying out his favorite hobby. The mammoth electric working sign which surmounts the three-story structure is among the largest used by any theater in the west. On each side of the name is a unicorn of heroic proportion darting a fiery tongue at his companion; ribbons of light steam over the front of the building, which is carried out in the rennaissance style of architecture, in colors of cream and white. A massive cornice and frieze with theatrical figures modeled therein gives an appropriate touch to the whole. The markee is a solid mass of lights, art glass and copper.

Lobby of Quinn's Superba, Los Angeles, Cal.

The lobby, foyer and auditorium are carried out in the classic style of architecture. The woodwork of the foyer is selected mahogany of beautiful grain, and the walls are paneled with large beveled plate mirrors. The floor is carpeted in deep red Wilton velvet.

In the auditorium the walls and ceiling are held in soft light green tones, trimmed with cream and gray effects and high-lighted in orange. The sounding cove over the proscenium arch has a beautiful mural painting by a well-known local artist. This cove, aside from its decorative effect, assures such perfect accoustic properties that the faintest whisper from the proscenium area can be distinctly heard in any part of the house. On each side of the proscenium and midway between the footlight line and the cornice, are balconies with draped French windows, adaptable for singing specialties. The stage itself is well equipped in spite of the fact that it is a miniature one.

The floor of the auditorium is bowled and the seats are arranged in circular form. The carpets, luxurious upholstered leather opera chairs, silk velour drapes and velvet stage curtains are of a deep red. An efficient ventilating system assures the air's changing completely every few moments, it being estimated that there is supplied thirty cubic feet of fresh air to each person, each minute, allowing for a capacity audience at all times.

The Superba is using the best available pictures and the equipment for its proper projection is unsurpassed.

Their soloists provide high-class musical numbers on each program and an orchestra of twelve pieces under the direction of Miss Mae Gates plays accompaniments for both pictures and the vocal numbers.

"God, Man and the Devil."

A Five-Reel Melodrama to Be Released Under the Warner Feature Brand.

Reviewed by Harry W. DeLong.

A MOST peculiar title, liable to be misleading and also open to more or less criticism, perhaps, until the picture is viewed in its entirety. The story of the plot is not new but it is so capitally handled that many fathers and mothers will find in it a replica of their own life experiences; not only the parents but sons of more or less mature years can get a wholesome lesson from its scenes. The pictureplay that contains elements conducive of good and which impresses itself on the spectator, after leaving the theater, so that its scenes linger in the mind and bring back recollections of the past, even if they do contain more or less of sensation, deserves the approbation of the public. This production contains much that is human. It depicts faithful, filial devotion in the face of unutterable ingratitude that never wavers, only in anguish.

Scene from "God, Man and the Devil" (Warner's).

There has got to be some merit in a five-reel picture to hold the interest of an audience through the interval of time it requires for its presentation, and that this release grows stronger as it grows shorter is a feature in itself.

Scene from "God, Man and the Devil" (Warner's).

The story depicts the life of a worse than profligate son, whose father is a millionaire. He is blessed with, not only loving and indulgent parents, but his every wish is gratified. Naturally, being of a selfish, careless nature, his ruin is encompassed and he disregards the feelings of all but himself. To obtain money to liquidate his obligations and indulge himself, he finally forges his father's name and thus brings disgrace upon his family.

A virile, ambitious former young employee in the father's mill has gone into the Northwest woods and established a large working lumber camp of his own, and knowing of the son's disgrace, through the father, invites him to come west, which he does and is made a partner in the business. Here the scenes shift to the snow country in the mid-winter. The "devil" in the scion of the millionaire soon evinces itself, and he mistreats the lumber-jacks until they are driven to a state of frenzy, and attempt to wreak summary vengeance on him. He is saved by his partner.

At this juncture of the visualization two new characters are introduced, Joseph DuBois and his very attractive daughter. The father has served a term in a Canadian prison for a crime of which he was innocent. Through resentment he becomes a smuggler, and with dog teams plys his trade back and forth across the border; his daughter disapproves but assists him. They are finally discovered by the mounted police and the father is shot. The daughter escapes and is befriended by the camp-owners. The devil in the millionaire's son causes him to insult the girl, which is discovered by his partner, and in fear he flees his wrath. The chase continues through snow covered mountain passes until the culprit is dashed to death in an avalanche.

The photography, in the snow scenes especially, is of the best, and the acting of the entire cast worthy of mention. There is quite an educational element inculcated in this production regarding the Northwest country.

Barry O'Neil.

ALTHOUGH Barry O'Neil has been solely directing for the past five years it is quite admissible to classify him under the heading of the Lubin Famous Players, as he has been a famous player for over twenty years. Though born in New York, little observation is necessary to tell that he is of Irish parentage and in his stage career he has favored Irish roles, especially of the Boucicault type. Since his engagement in the Lubin studio the management has forced upon him the masterpieces of their productions, thus for instance Charles Klein's plays, "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Third Degree," which were five reel features not only directed by O'Neil, but the plays enhanced in spectacular effect by scenes and action which in the Klein manuscripts were only spoken of.

Barry O'Neil.

One of O'Neil's greatest productions was the famous earthquake photoplay entitled "When the Earth Trembled," written by Edwin Barbour. The scenes in this picture were most thrilling, houses collapsed and interior scenes showed players of the cast buried in the ruins. In this wonderful picture the interiors of four different houses were constructed for what is called break-aways. O'Neil was the architect. The structures were built of wooden bricks, the rooms plastered and papered and fitted with electric lamps, chandeliers and handsome furniture. All to tumble in at the cue and become a ruin in five minutes. Over thirty carpenters, builders and other constructors worked for five weeks to build the break-aways and three thousand dollars of property was wrecked by Barry O'Neil pulling a string. Such is the detail that the able director demands for his productions, but he gets the results and it pays.

Viewing O'Neil's ability as a director the Lubin company always provides him with a talented company. Ethel Clayton, who is at present his leading lady, is doubtless one of the most famous players of the silent drama, and a score of others are not only tried and true but offer the best efforts of their ability to their much respected director.

SAN ANTONIO'S THEATERS CRITICISED.

Acting under authority of an Aldermanic resolution, a board composed of the city building inspector, fire chief, electrician and fire marshal of San Antonio, Texas, has declared many of the local houses are ignoring the local code enacted in January of last year. In an extended report the board points out many instances in which specified houses have failed to meet the requirements of the law.

"The Patchwork Girl of Oz"

A Unique Five-Part Subject Made by L. Frank Baum—Released by the Paramount Corporation.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

THIS fantastic feature, consisting of five reels, is a close relative of "The Wizard of Oz." Indeed, both productions have the same father and the family likeness is striking. A vein of grotesque humor is rare and not easily worked.

"The Patchwork Girl of Oz" is a fairy tale pure and simple. The plot is original and rich, with funny incidents and weird figures, such as made "The Wizard of Oz" the unique entertainment that it was. The land of "Oz" has peculiar people and strange laws and the nonsense of it all is simply delightful. It seems that three of the principal characters in the play have, through careless handling of mysterious herbs and nostrums, become petrified, greatly to the horror of their lovers and relatives. A "crooked magician" has just finished a wonderful powder of life at the request of his wife, who is tired of doing the housework. The wife has made a feminine counterpart of the old strawman in "The Wizard of Oz" and expects to convert the grotesque figure of a housemaid into a living servant by means of her husband's powder. The whimsical looking figure is promptly infused with life and the domestic problems of the magician's household seem in a fair way of being solved when the mistress, together with her prospective son-in-law and another character, are suddenly changed into stone.

Now, it would take too much time, years, in fact, to prepare another powder of life and the magician is thoroughly exhausted with the work of making the first powder. Resourceful as all magicians ought to be, the wizard discovers another remedy for recalling the petrified figures back to life. He finds an old recipe in one of his black books setting forth that "a seven leaved clover, three hairs from a woozy's tail and water from a dark well" are a sovereign simple for petrification. The search for the ingredients of this strange remedy develops all kinds of laughable and startling adventures. The most formidable enterprise is the capture and taming of the terrible woozy. The woozy is a strange beast which I shall not attempt to classify in the zoological world. It has some of the characteristics of a German daschund, its neck looks like a pleated accordeon, its head resembles a primitive type of camera, while its tail simply defies description.

On closer acquaintance the woozy turns out to be far less ferocious than the magician thought. The fearsome animal, in fact, proves to be quite complaisant and even anxious to oblige by parting with the hair from its tail. Alas, that is not enough. No one in the party is strong enough to pull out the hair until Providence, which never fails in any well-regulated fairy tale, comes to the rescue. The finding of the seven leaved clover presents but little difficulty, but the locating of the required dark well plunges the magician into a veritable Odyssey of exploration. He meets the strange tribe called the Hoppers, who have but one leg, and who pounce upon him in terrible fury when they discover that he has two legs. Next he runs into the land of the Horners, who are more hospitable and who direct him to just such a dark well as the black book required.

Now while the plucking of the seven leaved clover was an easy matter in itself, the consequences proved terrible. It turns out that the plucking of a seven leaved clover is about the worst crime that can be committed in the Land of Oz and the crooked magician comes to grief with all of his relief party. He is arraigned before the queen and things look very dark indeed for everybody when a juryman, a typical ragged inhabitant of the realm of "Oz," falls in love with the housemaid, who has been a faithful member of the relief expedition. Things begin to brighten right then and, of course, the end is very gratifying to everybody and everybody lives happy thereafter. Before this end comes, however, we see much good spectacular work in which the soldiers and the court of the "Kingdom of Oz" play a prominent part.

This idea to give a prominent part to the spectacular element is a very happy one and goes a long ways toward making the picture attractive. It gave play to the inventiveness and skill of the author and director. On the whole these opportunities were well improved.

Nothing is more difficult to create than a good fairy tale in films and "The Patchwork Girl of Oz," with all its good points, is not free from imperfections. The acting is fair, and some of the characters enter into their parts with a good deal of enjoyable enthusiasm. The photography is at times a little below the high standard that all first-class productions now agree to be judged by.

Altogether the production will prove of value to the exhibitor, because it has the merit of originality and because some parts of the film will send the average auidence into roars of laughter. There is a well recognized field for features of this kind and as a children's entertainment I would be quick to recommend it to every exhibitor. In that respect it may be said to be in a class by itself. L. Frank Baum, the author and director, has shown some talent for filming grotesque things acceptably, and with experience added to his talent we may look forward for more finished productions of this kind. Of good fairy tales for use on the screen there can never be enough.

William C. DeMille

WILLIAM C. DEMILLE, one of the most successful playwrights of the decade and for the past ten years a leading dramatic author and teacher, left New York last Wednesday for Hollywood, California, where he will become the head of the scenario department for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, working in conjunction with his brother, Cecil B. DeMille, Artistic Director Wilfred Buckland, and Oscar Apfel.

W. C. DeMille.

"We believe," said Mr. Goldfish, "that Cecil DeMille, without any previous motion picture experience, proved beyond question of doubt that a man with the proper stage experience, mental equipment and with sufficient imagination to create a dozen or more stage successes, is sufficiently equipped to become a great motion picture creator — Cecil DeMille proved this. Now William DeMille, who has had as much, if not more success in the spoken drama than Cecil and who is the originator of many stage successes and who possesses the proverbial "De Mille" versatility and imagination, will take over the scenario department, and who can gainsay the fact that that the scenario department is to be a vast gainer thereby."

Some insight into the varied career of Mr. DeMille can be gotten from the following, taken from "Who's Who on the Stage": Educated at Columbia University and a graduate of the University of Freiburg, Germany, Mr. DeMille's first stage success was "Strongheart," in which Robert Edeson made so great a hit. This production, written and staged by William DeMille, made him a wealthy man. "Classmates," another Edeson success, and "The Warrens of Virginia," which was produced by Belasco, were written by DeMille, with "The Genus" and "The Land of the Free" following. "The Woman," produced two years ago by David Belasco with an all-star cast, is the most recent work of William DeMille and proved one of his best.

Mr. DeMille collaborated with Prof. Brander Matthews at Columbia on many dramatic documents and lectured the classes there on dramatics. He was instructor at the Carnegie Hall Dramatic School for three years and collaborated with Mr. Belasco on many prominent successes.

Mr. DeMille, when he arrives at Los Angeles will begin work on the scenario of his own play, "The Warren's of Virginia," but will not confine his work to his plays alone, for the Lasky company have arranged for the definite charge of their scenario department for Mr. DeMille.

PICTURE PLAYHOUSE COMPANY HAS NEW SERIES

The Picture Playhouse Film Co., of West Fortieth street, New York, announces that it has closed a contract for the purchase of the "Polidore Series of Comedies," which are said to be a hit in the theaters where they have been shown.

Building Universal City

Great Enterprise of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in California Rapidly Taking Form.

THE Universal's long heralded city, the aim for two years of Carl Laemmle and his associates, is rapidly becoming a concrete reality. In the new site in the San Bernardino Valley there is rapidly rising a city capable of accommodating 15,000 souls, built for the express purpose of making motion pictures, the first city of its kind ever constructed by the hand of man.

This city has one peculiarity which marks it out from every other municipality. It is a chameleon, or a changeable city. When the plans for it were made the architects, landscape artists, engineers and directors were told to keep this one idea uppermost: the greatest usefulness with the least amount of construction. For that reason every building which has been put up or which is planned is designed to have a four or five fold usefulness. Every facade of every building is of a different type of architecture and usually represents a different kind of usefulness. For instance, a building designed primarily for a saddlery shop and a blacksmithy has one front elevation which looks like this kind of a building. From the other three angles it has the appearance of a Gothic hunting lodge, military barracks and a Wild West ranch. In addition to this any one of these front elevations can be changed in thirty-six hours to represent an entirely different kind and character of building.

This idea has been carried out throughout the entire city and landscapes have been treated in the same way—that is, viewed from one side they present a certain aspect; from the opposite direction the character, climatic or sectional, is of an entirely different sort. This will enable a director who under ordinary circumstances would have a certain number of good locations in such an extremely favored site as Universal City to construct from ten to twenty more scenes with the same locations, which can be changed under the skillful guidance of the general manager.

There is work and work galore in Universal City before it will begin to represent the elaborate and crafty plans of Mr. Laemmle and his lieutenants. In the first place after the plans of the city had been made the different streets had to be paved, and it was all done with asphalt and macadam. Every stream and gully had to be spanned by a bridge or viaduct and here comes the first intimation of how changeable the complexion of the city can be. Every bridge is so constructed that it can take on the aspect of a Japanese arch bridge, a Roman stone paved bridge or a steel cantilever bridge, or in fact any other kind of a bridge for which a director has need in the production of a scenario.

All of the streets had to be scientifically paved and piped for gas, electricity and sewer mains. The main boulevard of the city is six miles long and this taken in conjunction with other main streets and cross streets will give the reader an idea of the amount of work which the Street Department alone had to do. The piping for water alone was an important item, for every building is so equipped, and the city itself is probably supplied with the best water which can be obtained in California. Its reservoir is fed by seven artesian wells which give water 99 per cent. pure at the rate of 300,000 gallons per day. The roadways of the city are peculiar in that they are made in different widths and the styles of top dressing so that there will be as great a variety in this respect for the director to choose from as possible.

The zoo, which will be housed in especially constructed buildings and cages, has been taken intact from the ranch and with the additions which have since been made to it it is now the largest and finest privately owned menagery in the world today.

The administration building will cost $30,000 and its four facades are all different, representing different styles of architecture and apparently different exteriors. The laboratory which is being built has also the same peculiarity of exterior appearance and will cost $25,000. An exhibition theater which takes on either the appearance of a city or a country theater at the behest of a director will cost the company just exactly $8,000. There are barracks for the housing of the Universal's troop of expert cavalrymen and a bunk house for the cowboys. All of these are modern, clean, sanitary and whole-

Site of Universal City, Showing Boulevard.

Administration Building, Universal City.

General View of Universal City.

Saddlery and Blacksmith Shop.

some and beside this they can be used for many other things from the moving picture standpoint.

One of the most picturesque spots in the city is the Indian village, which is the largest in America and is inhabited by a tribe of redmen who are encouraged to pursue their life and adorn themselves as grotesquely as possible.

The wonderful revolving stage is one of the most up-to-date features of this city. The location of the stage has been chosen with a view to vistas which can be seen through the windows.

The wardrobe department is a building standing alone and occupies a floor space of 50 x 100 feet. It contains a wardrobe of every conceivable sort which is valued in the rough at about $35,000. In addition to this the costume shops which are nearby are so arranged that they are built to turn out the designs which are required by every period of dress from the era of palm-leaf girdles to the present time. Its costume shops contain twenty electrically operated sewing machines and the work is supervised by one of the best known costume designers obtainable, who is able to outfit a picture in the proper costumes demanded by any age.

There are two hospitals and infirmaries thoroughly equipped with every modern instrument for surgical and pathological remedy and these are under the direction of the two Universal physicians, Doctors Lloyd Mace and F. Lamberson, assisted by a corps of trained nurses. Treatment in these hospitals is also defrayed by the Universal.

The first notable incident of the mobility of the new city was shown in the preparation of a thrilling scene for "Trey o' Hearts." The director knew of just the proper location for a fire and for a daring rescue by means of a rope acting as a pendulum, but sad to relate this scene is in Jersey City, N. J., and that was three thousand miles away. It was out of the question to take a company that distance in order to stage this one scene, and even then the city fathers of the city on the heights would not have consented to the total destruction of one of their office buildings even for the edification of ten million moving picture fans, who are following the destinies of this stirring serial drama. The only thing to do was to reconstruct the scene from buildings already standing and this was done in three days, and the result was so perfect that New Yorkers who gazed upon it in wonder were compelled to pinch themselves before they could realize that they were in California and not New Jersey, but the scene was speedily burnt to the ground and this newest of cities, the Chamelon, once more resumed its work-a-day color.

ALCO ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Alco Film Corporation, of which there are five producing Allies, The All Star Feature Corp., The California Motion Picture Corp., Popular Plays and Players, Inc., the Favorite Players Film Co., and Excelsior Film Corp., announce their complete program, which will be seen throughout the country beginning with October 5th, when Ethel Barrymore in Augustus Thomas' "The Nightingale" will be released.

Alco announce their first three releases and from appearances they constitute a most formidable arrangement.

First comes Miss Barrymore, followed by the excellent Irish character delineator, Andrew Mack, in the popular work, "The Ragged Earl," and then Carlyle Blackwell in "The Key to Yesterday." A more varied selection of plays could hardly be imagined.

Al Lichtman, for the past four weeks touring the country opening branch exchanges and contracting for the distribution of the Alco products, returns to New York this week with the announcement that the entire United States has been covered and the result is that every city in the Union will, on October 5th, flaunt Alco films to their publics.

Mr. Lichtman's tour has been a remarkable one. From his first stop at Philadelphia to his concluding effort at Los Angeles, there has not been a hitch in the expected arrangements and the most sanguine member of the Alco directorate could not foresee the alacrity with which prominent exchange men, exhibitors and the trade in general accepted the Alco program.

Although practically a closed corporation, the Alco people have been flooded with offers of financial assistance from prominent film men, if they would but allow the Alco program to be controlled in certain territory by them.

Walter Hoff Seely, head of the Alco, paid a flying visit to Boston the latter part of last week and reports excellent results of the Alco system throughout New England. Alexander Beyfuss, head of the California Motion Picture Corp., reports the "Coast" up and ready to take Alco to its breast. Withal, the outlook for Alco is said to be most promising.

All War Picture Fakes

That's What John Tippett Says From His Vantage Point in London.

VARIOUS and conflicting reports of operations in the war zone have been brought to this country by refugees, and there have been many accounts printed in the papers. But it is doubtful if a more graphic or sincere narration of actual conditions as they present themselves to a business man has been received, as the story told in a letter just received by Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, from his London representative, John D. Tippett. Mr. Tippett realizes, as well as anyone in the world, that the entire moving picture-going public of the United States is waiting on the qui vive for actual pictures of war scenes from the great European conflict which is raging so fiercely in France and Germany. His letter is utterly frank, and views the situation from an authoritative standpoint which will explain many of the unauthorized films which are being shown in this country, and the reason why it is almost impossible to secure actual war scenes. Following is the letter:

Sept. 5, 1914.

Mr. Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., 1600 Broadway, New York.

My Dear Mr. Laemmle—I notice that the Universal is sending a staff of eight cameramen to the front to get war pictures, etc., Now, I advise you to go very slow in this business. It just means a man's life to take any pictures over there at present, and the chances are that it will be so in the future as well. You have no conception of the conditions across that channel—absolutely no conception. I do not care what the American papers print, it is just twice as terrible.

From the first we have had a lot of still pictures brought over, although if the enemy caught hold of a man with a camera, they shot him on the spot. They do not care who he is. I believe this is the thirty-fifth day of the war, and there has not been one single subject brought into London thus far, and you must remember, too, that there is no law here restricting the showing of war pictures. Absolute freedom is given on that score. But with one exception, there has not been a picture of the slightest consequence shown. One company managed to get some scenes from Louvain, and they only did that by an accident. They happened to have a cameraman in Ostend, who, in some manner, got into an officer's machine. They went to Louvain after the burning and secured some very good pictures. But with this single exception, no pictures have been shown which are of the slightest interest as far as real war scenes are concerned. Of course, we have plenty of manouevres, and all that business.

To show you how scarce this class of pictures is, all the theaters the other day billed a short subject of King Albert reviewing his troops in Belgium as they were going to the front. As a matter of fact, this picture was taken six or eight months ago.

Now you know that I am aware of what I am talking about from the position I occupy here. Anything you see in America of any consequence is fake. I do not care what it is, if it is relative to the trouble now on the Continent. In the first place, while there is a great deal of bayonet work going on, the major part of the fighting is from one to two miles away. Several rifles used in Europe today kill at two miles with accuracy, and a man can be hit at three miles. At night they work with enormous searchlights mounted on big motors and in the daytime, of course, with the aid of strong telescopes. Now, if a man were allowed to use a camera—this is absolutely forbidden—the enemy would assume, with the aid of their glasses, that it was a new-fangled gun, and they would spot him with a big, fat shell before he could turn the crank a dozen times.

You received a subject from me a short time ago of some prisoners at Bruges. Well, that cost us altogether between $700 and $800, for I have had two men in Belgium from the very first, and good men, too. They were half of the time in jail and finally managed to leave there the other day, lucky to escape with their lives, with the loss of a lot of film, and I think a camera as well. Cameramen are absolutely forbidden to go anywhere near the points of interest.

To get even small photographs is a most daring exploit. I understand some officers have given orders to kill every English correspondent, and many of them have made a practice of killing any person caught with a camera, irrespective of who he is. The story has never been told as to what has happened during the last few weeks in Belgium, and men from America, and people from other neutral governments, have disappeared, and will never be heard of again.

One of my reasons for writing this letter was the reading of a trade paper advertisement. In my opinion the advertiser is very foolish to try to fool the American people in that manner with some old faked-up junk.

There has never been a moment since this war started that the thought has not been uppermost in my mind to secure war pictures, and I feel very keenly my failure to be able to send you any, with the exception of those already shipped. Unfortunately, all communications from our continental offices are cut off on the jump. So they have been unable to give any assistance.

Of course some one may bring a picture occasionally. It is hard to believe that this war is going along without at least an occasional picture being taken. I have got all the lines out here that are possible to secure everything of interest.

Our business is holding up exceedingly well, and, unless we have a collapse, which may occur, we will have a good Fall, notwithstanding the loss of our continental connections.

(Signed) JOHN D. TIPPETT.

KLEINE LAUNCHES "THE NAKED TRUTH."

All Kleine offices are now booking "The Naked Truth," the five-part subject made from the sensational French novel, "La Femme Nue," by Henry Batille. This was the Kleine success which opened the doors of the New Candler theater, New York. The picture features the famous European actress, Mlle. Lyda Borelli, who duplicated in Italy Fanny Warde's American success in "Madam President." By the terms of her unusual contract with George Kleine, no motion pictures may be shown in a city at the same time she is showing there on the legitimate stage.

The Art of Exhibition

Sidelights on the Presentation of Motion Pictures Projected by an Expert with the Credentials of Success—A Coming Budget of Rare Information for Ambitious Exhibitors.

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE presentation of motion pictures has, in the course of time, developed into a science. As it affords a talented man a wonderful chance to express beauty and appeal to the human soul, it may be called an art. In a vague and general way these facts have come to be recognized not only within the industry, but also by the general public. We have solved many problems in production; we are slowly and painfully working out the problems of distribution, but the plainest and the most telling progress has been made in developing the art of exhibition. In some important aspects the art of exhibition has advanced far more rapidly than either the tasks of production or distribution. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the exhibitor is often hindered by the slower rate of progress made in the closely related branches of production and distribution. It will help all around to state this fact and dwell upon it. The exhibitor is flooded with offers of quantity at a time when quality alone can help him to maintain and increase his patronage.

Samuel L. Rothapfel.

The art of exhibition is just taking root. Neither you nor I can tell what stately growth and what noble heights may be reached in the future, but both you and I can learn something from concrete and indubitable success. This article is inspired solely by a desire to help ambitious and progressive exhibitors striving to maintain a high standard of quality and to accomplish the greatest material success possible. Night after night I have presented myself at the Strand Theater, only to find entrance impossible. Every time I tried to get in after eight-thirty o'clock I found the lobby jammed with patient and determined people, waiting to get in and see the show. The courteous guardian of the gate had the same regretful smile and the same polite assurance: "Nobody can get in before 9:30." This happened on many a night when the heat was almost stifling. Of course I knew the cause of it all, or at least a very respectable percentage of the cause. The name is Samuel L. Rothapfel, the Wizard of Presentation. I knew that all the threads led into his hands and that his spirit animated the whole big theatre from the sidewalk to the rear wall of the stage, and from the ceiling to the cellar. The question of "How does he do it" had occurred to very many others beside myself, and some of them had traveled a good many miles to try and get the right answer. In this series of articles I want to unfold the secret as far as written words can reach. I want to present a close and intimate view of this embodiment of the art of exhibition and to set his views and methods plainly before the readers of the Moving Picture World.

Nor can I omit mention of the men who have made this success materially possible. The phrase "million dollar" has become cheaper than copper pennies, and one must restore the good old expression to its old meaning, renovate it as it were before using it. It is the "Million Dollar House," with all the phrase in its truest meaning implies, which must share the glory of success. The builders of the Strand, with their indomitable faith in motion pictures as the most popular and commercially the most profitable entertainment, have built an enduring memorial to their good judgment and their sound enterprise.

While I realized that here was much ore well worth mining, I would not have attempted the task had I not received the most kindly assurances of support from the wizard himself. I had pointed out to him that all the exhibitors in the country would be interested in methods which kept a house with almost thirty-five hundred seats filled most of the time. I had scarcely finished my invitation and appeal when Rothapfel, in his impulsive, rapid way, began to pour out his ideas. And right here is one of the reasons of his phenomenal success. The man is unspoiled to this moment, and likely to remain unspoiled. He was an idealist with his soul filled with his lofty ambitions when he gathered his first little audience in a small mining town in eastern Pennsylvania, seating his patrons on chairs borrowed from an undertaker's shop, and he is precisely the same idealist now when the finest and largest audience in New York pays its nightly tribute to his genius.

If you expect to find a self-satisfied man in the office of the Strand his name is not Rothapfel. "Rothie" is the most dissatisfied exhibitor in the world. With unsolicited praise poured into his ears from all sources his sole reply is: "Oh, this is nothing; wait till I get going." In another minute the man is in the midst of his favorite topic; ideas rush from him like water down a rock, defying channels and embarrassing you with so much lavish wealth. Now, I want to make this flow run between set and definite shores. I want to analyze the elements of his success for the benefit of exhibitors everywhere. He has promised to do it for the readers of the Moving Picture World.

On and off he and I have talked of music and atmosphere and program and of such subjects as "Treating the Pictures" and "The Psychology of the Screen," "The Heart and Soul of the Audience, "Reserved Seats in Motion Picture Theaters," "Why Singers Help the Entertainment," "The Relation of the Manager to His Employees," "Possible Prices," "The Theater, Its Construction and Its Physical Aspect" and "The Morale of the Motion Picture." All the time I have had a lively sense of duty working within me. It seemed to me that it would save thousands of our readers time and worry to set these ideas before them. Rothapfel's talks—all of them—abounded in practical values, and I felt it would be very much in accord with the old Chalmers gospel of usefulness and service to give them the widest circulation possible. I know of no better medium than the Moving Picture World. Hence the announcement of the coming of these articles. The man with the smallest capacity will find a grain of profit here and there and so will the man with a larger theater and correspondingly larger responsibilities. Mr. Rothapfel himself has chosen the order in which these topics are to be presented, and the first will be "The Program." There are subdivisions of this most important subject, and there will be illuminating rays along the entire way.

It will help and encourage exhibitors aiming high and often struggling against cruel odds to know that Rothapfel has not advanced to where he stands today over a path of roses. On the contrary, it has been especially true in his case that the gods grant no success without sweat. Nor is his success of today just a pleasant companion ready to come at his mere beck and call. Success in the art of exhibition must be wooed day after day, sometimes gently and sometimes rudely. He modestly attributes his success to two great co-operative forces: the splendid theater, which is large and fine enough for any flight, however high, and the enthusiastic loyalty of his employees. Those things will be treated of, however, under the proper headings, and I must bring this introduction to a close with a word or two about the man who will do much of the talking hereafter. He is one of the most widely copied men in the amusement world today. Quite often he is copied unintelligently. The real reasons for and the true sources of his success are not grasped, and the result of this kind of imitation is, as we all know, "a most lame and impotent conclusion." These articles are to explain the whys and wherefores of the record-breaking crowds in the sense and often in the very words of the successful man himself.

"Tell the readers of the Moving Picture World," said Mr. Rothapfel, when all arrangements had been made, "that I am deeply interested in the problems of my fellow-exhibitors and that it is my earnest desire to help them in any way that I can. If one of your readers has a special problem of his own that seems to call for special treatment, let him write to me through the Moving Picture World and I will answer him in the course of these articles."

The first instalment of the series will be "The Program."

KALEM'S SANTA MONICANS EAT RABBIT PIE.

It is reported from the West Coast that John E. Brennan and Frederick Hornby, of the Kalem Santa Monica comedy bunch, recently shot fourteen rabbits—live ones. Director Albert W. Hale turned over the spoils to his two comedians, and the result was a feast of rabbit pie. The whole company was in on it.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

FREE advertising secured through unnecessary clashing with the authorities, or challenges made in that direction, is deserving of the unqualified condemnation and can bring neither credit nor profit to those who resort to such tactics. This matter has been a topic of discussion in many circles connected with the motion picture business during the past few days. It followed a discussion of a question as to how far producers of motion pictures may go without disturbing the policy of neutrality maintained by the American government with reference to the European war.

* * *

A very prominent and influential German-American society has made a protest to the National Board of Censors against the licensing of a certain film purporting to deal with incidents of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. The protestants claim the film will tend to prejudice and possibly unduly disturb audiences and, in view of the present situation in Europe, the production of the film would be a violation of President Wilson's neutrality policy. It was the opinion of many that the protest was a "plant" for free newspaper advertising, but subsequent development showed that a protest had really been made to the National Board. At the same time there was a reservation of opinion as to the advertising question in view of the declared attitude of the producers of the film objected to.

* * *

According to published statements credited to the producers of the film they intend to exhibit the film to a representative of President Wilson at Washington and if the film is approved it will be exhibited in spite of any protest the National Board of Censors may make.

* * *

The conservative people in the motion picture business do not indorse this sentiment on the part of the producers. It lacks even a color of common sense. In the first place, the defiance is made before an opportunity has been given the National Board of Censors to see the film and act upon the protest. Why declare war before there is occasion for it? In the second place, what has the representative of President Wilson (or the President himself, for that matter) to do with the case?

* * *

This neutrality question is such a delicate one and presents so many phases that it is difficult for most people to understand how far one may go without violating it, or even comprehend what neutrality really means. There are many Germans in this country who feel that President Wilson has technically violated the neutrality because he refused to receive their delegation. After the Belgian Commission called upon the President and submitted their protest against alleged atrocities committed by Germans in Belgium a German-American delegation sought audience at the White House to make reply to the protest. The President refused to see the delegation on the ground that it consisted of residents of this country who were not on the scenes involved in the matter and were, therefore, not in a position to make proper presentments. Taking this position as a criterion, it is a safe bet that the President will not waste any of his valuable time inspecting motion pictures to determine what bearing they may have upon the neutrality question. And, as there is no Censorship Board at Washington, it is extremely difficult to see what reasonable excuse there can be for taking the disputed pictures there for adjudication.

* * *

An impartial view of both sides of the question leads to the conclusion that the question of neutrality is not involved at all. The disputed film and the protest against it come entirely under the jurisdiction of the National Board of Censors, the Commissisoner of Licenses and the police authorities. If it is true, as stated in the protest, that the film will prejudice and disturb the people, or some of them, then the three departments mentioned will have the right to condemn and suppress this and all other films that may tend to disturb the peace of communities, or incite them to riot. Commissioner of Licenses Bell has already taken a stand on this proposition by giving his inspectors positive orders that motion pictures showing partiality towards any of the countries now involved in the great European conflict must be suppressed; nor must any pictures tending to create race feeling, or demonstrations between pictures, be exhibited.

It is true that Commissioner Bell's orders were based on and followed the suggestions of President Wilson that Americans maintain a neutral position regarding the European war, but it is well understood in all municipal circles that the injunction is practically a police regulation to guard against any unnecessary outbreaks. No producer should allow his mind to become clouded by the neutrality question. There is the equally important local question involved which must be equally respected and the producer who stands upon a technical interpretation of neutrality, regardless of the other consideration is bound to suffer loss and get others in trouble, even should he avoid the Board of Censorship and Commissioner Bell. During the Civil War in this country the authorities were frequently obliged to stop theatrical performances that threatened to arouse certain people of communities to acts of violence and in the present day the same surveillance will be applied to the stage and the motion picture screen.

* * *

It is claimed that many German residents in this country are unduly sensitive and that the protests against the picture now under consideration emanated from Germans residing near the place where the scenes were taken. This presents a phase that removes one of the causes for suspicion that the whole affair was an advertising dodge, as it accounts for the knowledge on the part of the protestants that such a picture was in course of preparation. Those suspecting a "plant" had been made were wondering how the protest came to life before the film had reached the Board of Censors, or even before the film was ready to leave the studio. The fact that some German residents may be unduly sensitive regarding matters touching upon the European situation does not, however, bear heavily upon a determination as to whether or not the film is what those protesting people say it is. That issue is merely incidental. It is quite natural for all the nationalities to be more or less sensitive regarding the terrible situation "on the other side." The question before the Board of Censors and the municipal authorities will be the possible irritation of that sensitiveness.

* * *

It is said the producers of the protested film say they are victims of circumstances, that work on the subject was begun before the European war started, that the whole story is based upon a dream and the closing scenes show the Germans in a better light. Under ordinary circumstances, they say, there would have been no protest. The latter declaration would seem to close the case and cause the producers to change their determination to proceed in spite of what the Board of Censors may do. The subject may be a most excellent one and it would be unfortunate should the producers suffer the loss of time, labor and expense expended upon it, but it would be far better to bear that loss than be an instrument of disturbances throughout the country. If the production has merit it will have the same drawing power upon the restoration of "ordinary circumstances" as it would if that condition now existed.

* * *

One of the principal points made by those discussing the matter was that the case brought forward another opportunity for justified appeal to motion picture people to unite in everything tending to benefit the interests of all. There can be no doubt that after hard trials the National Board of Censorship has established itself in the confidence of the people and it is the duty of all producers to loyally abide by its just decisions. Any attempt to evade or combat them must eventually weaken the confidence the Board now enjoys and cause a renewal of the censorship battles that caused so much loss of time and money during recent years.

* * *

A manufacturer who took part in the protested film discussion said he knew what it was to have subjects thrown back on his hands by adverse censorship and, at times, felt that the judgment of his staff was superior to that of the critics; but, in the long run, he found it best to give way and make the best of it. He did not admit that the National Board of Censorship was entitled to credit for the artistic improvement in films, but he cheerfully conceded that the work of the Board had, in a large measure, done away with the adverse comments on the character of the subjects and complaint by the public of the existence of pictures unfit for exhibition is now rarely heard. "This has been of immeasurable value to the business," he said, "and, all things being equal, I am willing at all times to submit to its rulings. I am a bitter opponent of official censorship and know that challenges of the National Board of Censorship must eventually bring the other into existence. The difference between the two is that the latter is national, while the former cannot help being factional."

Doings at Los Angeles

IT is said that many actors practice facial expression before their mirrors at night, or when at home. Screen artists surely do the same, for a few nights ago Carl Uhlman, of the New York company at Inceville, was doing a scene in his room, using a revolver. He thought the gun unloaded, and, as he aimed the weapon and rehearsed the scene, it went off, the bullet grazing his chest. The wound was only a superficial one, but painful enough to teach the actor a thing or two.

* * *

Since the submarine tube has been invented for making moving pictures under the sea many good subjects have been released of this nature. It only remains for some Western company to film the famous bottom of the sea at Catalina Island a resort near here, which has been visited by tourists for many years. The under-sea life is wonderful, and many visitors make the trip in the glass bottom boat to see the life which abounds on the ocean bed. The water is magically transparent.

* * *

Frank Montgomery, who, assisted by Mona Darkfeather, has been producing Kalem Indian pictures, will now release, through Sawyer's, pictures made by himself and his players. Two reels of drama and one of comedy will make up his weekly output. The funny films will be named "Monty Comedies," while the others will bear the sign "Darkfeather Features." The new concern will occupy the Norbig studios at Edendale until new quarters can be built.

* * *

The California Fleas, the latest in theatrical and moving picture circles, is now well on its feet, having given its initial entertainment in T. M. A. hall.

* * *

Again incorporation papers have been drawn up for a new film company. This time it is the Photoplay Amusement Company, of which W. F. and H. A. Bierhans and L. P. Green are at the head. They incorporated for $20,000, and 90 per cent. has been subscribed. It is not known what they intend doing.

* * *

Jennie Lee, who was well known on the real stage, and who scored a big success in Dickens' "Bleak House" about 30 years ago, celebrated her sixty-fifth birthday on the fourth of this month. She is working in D. W. Griffith's company, and every one at the studio stopped work to congratulate this woman. She is playing in "The Clansman."

* * *

The Trinity auditorium will open on the 28th with "Cabiria." Fans of the screen are already planning on seeing this big film at the large theater.

* * *

It is not generally known that Editor William H. Clifford of the New York forces is a playwright as well as a scenario writer, but he is, and it was he who wove the story "Mr. Aladdin." In addition he wrote "Threads of Destinies," which will be the vehicle for Evelyn Thaw. Besides that, he writes from two to five reels a week for the local producers. He claims that he has "nothing to do till tomorrow," but he certainly must have.

* * *

It is said, and the person who said it is pretty good authority on the subject, that W. N. Selig, owner of the wild animal farm near Eastlake Park, has willed to the city the whole place, and Manager Tom Persons has arranged to open the Zoo to the public about October 15. Much improvement has been noted here, and the whole place is in good shape for the people who wish to visit the interesting exhibit. Buildings have been contemplated which will afford the public a skating rink, dancing pavilion and other attractions. The architecture will be of the mission type.

* * *

"Hoodoo" seems to have replaced Fred for Kelsey's first name, for he has had a round of bad luck in producing for the Mutual lately, his topping misfortune being the loss of a borrowed Spanish silver-mounted saddle in a barn fire up in the desert. Recently he pulled a dynamite explosion, and in the big crash a number of sections of government pipe were destroyed. At other times he has had bad luck while far away from civilization, and now he is timid when it comes to making something where he has to borrow props or go far away.

* * *

On a visit to the Selig studio I discovered that Lanier Bartlett, who writes many scenarios, and who, in "The Carpet of Bagdad," aided greatly in the staging, had spent several years in the Orient. His knowledge of props of that part of the world aided him in telling how the market scene should be staged.

* * *

Director Reginald Barker has completed "The Night Stage" at the New York studios. He will depart for New York soon to do a few scenes for a big feature picture, the largest part of which is laid in the west. The Statue of Liberty is to be used in some of the scenes. He will be gone about two weeks.

* * *

Clune's Broadway Theater has added to its lobby display by showing a stuffed lion which is said to have belonged to a company here that killed it when it became distempered. It made a good "ballyho" when the popular theater ran a lion feature.

* * *

"Dare Devil" George Larkin, the hero in "Trey o' Hearts," is at his stunts again. He thrilled spectators when he jumped into the water from the second yard arm of the Alden Bessie, a schooner which was used in the latest installment of the feature series. The yard arm is 85 feet above the water and Larkin made the jump in short order. The camera registered 25 pictures for the drop. Director Lucas was going to snap George while in mid-air, but all he got was the smoke. The tenth installment has just been completed.

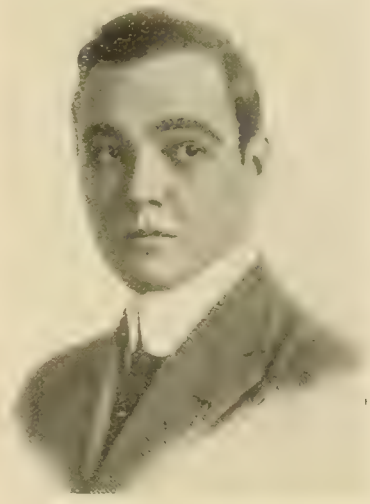
* * *

The Industries Educational Film Company is fitting up its new studio on the tenth floor of the Knickerbocker Building.

CLARKE IRVINE.

Charles Ray

CHARLES RAY, leading man for the Kay-Bee and Broncho companies of the New York Motion Picture Company at Santa Monica, California, was born in Jacksonville, Illinois, in 1891, and is therefore one of the youngest leading men with real experience in the business. He does not inherit his talents, but adopted the stage as a profession while very young, and does not mind admitting that his first theatrical job was delivering handbills. He became water-boy, usher and box-office clerk in turn, and then went on as an extra hand and finally traveled with a small repertoire company for over two years, starting at the bottom and working up to leading parts. Then came numerous stock engagements in different parts of the states, interspersed with occasional tours, the very finest schooling for a young actor. During this time Charles Ray played every variety of part from singing and dancing to Shakespeare. He then joined the New York Motion Picture Company and is well into his second year with them and is one of their most valued actors.



Charles Ray.

Charlie Ray is tall and athletic, and is possessed of a fine figure. Good looks, light brown hair and keen brown eyes and smart dressing add to his popularity as much as does his charm of manner and absence of "side." He owns an automobile and loves to "let her go" and lives in Los Angeles with his mother to whom he is much attached.

LYRIC THEATER OPENED.

The Lyric Theater, a moving picture emporium, at Decorah, Ia., was opened in the early part of September. The 330 seats that the theater accommodates have been filled at every show since the opening night, and Miss Ellen Larson, the manager, is particularly pleased with the outlook for her investment so far. The entrance to the Lyric commands an air of style and beauty, and the appointments are up-to-date.

PURCHASES THEATER.

Sidney G. Spear of Plattsburgh, N. Y., has purchased the Imperial Theater of Hogle & Walsh, that city. Mr. Spear has remodeled the house and changed the name to the novelty.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Where Is It?

SOMEWHERE there is an Amaranth theater in Boro Park. This might be the Boro Park in New York City, for all we know or don't know, but there is nothing to show whether it is New York or Alaska—though we do not think it is Alaska. Of course, for a house-to-house distribution, the state is not important, but it always looks better. The particular point is that this unknown manager writes a good advertisement in his booklet program. Look at this, for instance:

> What we advertise we show. You cannot pass a gilded nickel for a Five ($5) Dollar gold piece without getting into trouble. Neither can you give a bad show and retain your patronage. What we advertise outside—we show inside.
>
> We tender you an
>
> INVITATION
>
> to our theater and airdome so you may judge as to the excellence and high quality of our show. Don't gamble on uncertainties. When investing in amusement, invest right.

Want's Some Programs.

The Orpheum theater, Nampa, Idaho, sends in its house organ for criticism. Its main appeal is made with a credited reproduction of one of the clever Fables from Real Reels, Salt Lake City. There is also a paragraph from this paper, some straight talk about the house written with a pen and a firm conviction the show is good and a program on the third page where the program properly belongs. There is not much room for criticism. It is clean cut and well done. If it were larger, it would be better, perhaps, but they use every line of space they have to advantage.

E. E. Sharp wants some programs from brother managers and is willing to send his in return. Will you chaps please note?

That's the Way.

H. R. Weber, of the Star theater, Chambersburg, Pa., writes he comes right in without knocking. That's the proper way. If there is any "knocking" to be done we do not think we need much help. He says:

> The Star Theater comes right in without knocking. I am sending herewith a newspaper carrying one-half page program for the week. This I put out on Monday and buy several hundred papers, fold them with the Star program on the outside and give them to my patrons as they come in. On page four I carry my regular ad regular every day, and I have an arrangement with the paper to print the synopsis of my feature every day on the same page. Giving the patron a newspaper appears to make a very favorable impression, but I hardly know if it is as effective as a program.
>
> The exhibitor who fails to use the coat-hanger scheme is missing something great. I wrapped my programs around the nails and sealed them in an envelope and distributed them over town, they made a big hit everywhere.

Mr. Weber is welcome whether he knocks or not, but it seems to be up to him to explain what he has been doing the past few months of silence.

The half-page advertisement is on the upper half of the back page and gives the synopses for the week. The ad falls seven inches and carries a nine inch reader. The big ad runs a half column for each day on the seven-column page. This is effective work in a small town, but too expensive where the rate runs by the line instead of the inch.

Tango Lessons Free.

> Thursday, August 27, the Third Street theater will give with every paid admission a complete booklet giving instructions of how to dance all of the modern dances. The instructions are by Miss Grace Field and Mr. A. Baldwin Sloane.
>
> On Saturday, August 29, we shall show the film, in which Miss Field and Mr. Sloane will demonstrate the different dances. The idea is to get one of the bookets on Thursday, bring it with you on Saturday, compare the two, go home, get some one to play the piano for you, and dance the Tango, Maxixe and the Hesitation Waltz.

Of course this probably is a book put out by the makers of the film, but the point is that they took it up promptly and worked it so nicely that the announcement can serve as a guide to other managements. Probably the Third Street people sleep, but they don't snore.

Good But Boomerang.

The Rex theater, Hopkinsville, Ky., announces that it is going to charge ten and twenty cents to see Brewster's Millions. It also announces that this is the last time this year that they are going to charge that much. This rather nullifies the effect of some of the matter printed in the announcement. They say, for instance:

> To claim that there is only one admission price due on a moving picture is worse than foolish. It is an open statement on the part of those that make it, that they cannot see anything beyond the cheap and melodramatic. It is a statement that whatever they paid for clothes twenty years ago is the price they pay today. And it may be so. But if they pay no more today than they did twenty years ago their appearance will tell the story.
>
> The twenty-cent picture means no more to us than the ten-cent one from the standpoint of profit. If we charge you more to see the picture it is a sure thing that we pay more to get it. The respect for our mental development demands that we get the best. Nothing would give us greater pleasure than to be able to present nothing but the great productions made in moving pictures featuring the great actors and actresses of our day. The prestige gained for this theater from showing the best is worth more than all of the dollars we may ever hope to make.

This is all good argument and true, but it naturally leads to question: if the better picture is so desirable the Rex promises not to run another one for at least three months, why? The announcement is all right save that it is kicked into the gutter but this one promise not to do it again "this year." One good film deserves another and Brewster's Millions should have been used to pave the way for other productions of similar merit. You have to be careful in writing an advertisement not to stumble over your own argument and get tripped up. From Septembebr 2 to January 1 is a long time to tie a house down to one ten-cent price. Lots may happen meanwhile, and always there will be persons to remember the earlier promise. It is much better to explain than to apologize. The Rextra is now a twelve page issue with plenty of advertising for the house and the outside advertiser as well.

A Coupon Scheme.

Jacques E. Abrahams, of the Star theater, Brooklyn, sends in a card that he has used to help keep business up through the summer. Roughly speaking it suggests a commutation meal ticket, with a border of fives and tens totaling two dollars. These are sold to stores in the vicinity and as far away as possible, the merchants paying four cents each. When two dollars worth of purchases have been punched the ticket is good for one five-cent admission to the Star, except on Sunday nights. Mr. Abrahams writes that he has disposed of 30,000 of these tickets to 65 stores during the summer and that he kept business up at a slightly reduced cost. Nights when a feature raised the price to ten cents an additional payment was required.

The scheme is a good one, but the tickets are so cheaply printed that they do not look valuable and the impression that something worth while is being given is not created. As Mr. Abrahams points out, it is possible with the magic free ticket to bring people past other houses to the Star, and since the use of the ticket is valuable to the Star, a better piece of printing would have given much more return than the slightly increased cost. A cut signature or something should have been used to protect the ticket from forgery, and some means should have been taken to trace the source of the tickets. Any manager who employs this scheme should note these points. If tickets are sold by the thousand, the imprint of the distributing firm should be given. Then if ten thousand tickets are sold and fifteen thousand turn up, it is easier to trace the extras. The ticket should also carry the statement that it is not good until the full amount of merchandise has been purchased and it would be better still to reserve the presentation of the actual ticket until the preliminary card has been used up and properly punched. A good wording would be:

> This ticket, when properly punched to prove the purchase of two dollars' worth of merchandise from
>
> Card of the Merchant here
>
> will be accepted by the
>
> STAR THEATER,
> 3814 Thirteenth Avenue,
> Brooklyn, N. Y.,
>
> For one
>
> FREE ADMISSION.
>
> Except on Sunday evenings or when the presentation of a feature film requires an increased admission fee, when it will be accepted as payment of five cents.
>
> Cut of Manager's signature.

It will cost a little more to get up, but not so much more than it will not show an added profit.

Something New.

Plenty of managers have given bits of film—one to five frames—as souvenirs, but Manager Moore of the Irving theater, Irvington, Ind., has a whole reel. This is backed up by a lucid program announcement.

> It is not an unusual thing for some one to ask to see a motion picture film. For those who are interested in the way our pictures are produced, we have placed a reel of film in the lobby of the theater. It will be there all week.
>
> This film is 1,000 feet long, and is composed of 16,000 separate photographs, each about the size of a postage stamp, and each one almost, but not quite, like those next to it. When this picture is shown on the screen it is run at the rate of one foot, or sixteen pictures, a second. This film is a "positive," mounted on a celluloid strip, and is printed from a negative which has been made at the same rate of speed that we run it.

A 4,000-candle-power light, in a machine on the same principle as that of the magic lantern, shows one of these minute pictures on the screen for the fraction of a second. Then the light is shut off, the film is moved forward so that the next picture is in place, the light is turned on again and the next picture is shown. This operation is repeated, as we said, sixteen times a second, which is so fast that the eye cannot see the change, making it look like a continuous picture in motion.

The individual pictures on the film have an area of about five-eighths of an inch, and when shown on the screen cover 168 square feet, or about 35,000 times the area of the film. It is an interesting fact that the microscopic photographs will show, when so enormously magnified, fleeting expressions on faces, and every little detail of all within the camera's range.

Film is an every day story to the manager, but it still interests the public. Even cuttings are eagerly examined, and a whole reel is a real novelty to most of an audience. The above is printed on the back of the week's program and it is pretty certain that it made business.

Changed Form.

Frank D. Adams has purchased the interest of Jon Hutchinson in the Star theater, Milledgeville, Ga., and has slightly changed the form of this first daily one side program-newspaper. Now the paper is about the same size sheet, but longer than it is wide instead of the reverse, a handier form for reading. We think it is the only theater program in the country that gives the official daily weather forecast. It is a sheet unique in many ways and we are glad to see that Mr. Adams is keeping it going. He should, however, have kept the serial number in. The change was announced in a well phrased form letter signed in ink. A telling line is

> Remember that I am trying to please you, but to do so I must have your help and friendship.

The program would be more effective were it framed in a six-point border.

Not Enough.

Edward A. O'Neil, of the Touraine theater, Brooklyn, sends the first issue of Touraine talks, and incidentally writes he would rather read The Moving Picture World than eat.

The trouble is that there is not enough of the talk. What there is is gossipy and intimate. It doesn't belie its name. It talks about the reels instead of clipping the synopsis, but it doesn't talk enough to fill the modest four pager. The second page, devoted to house talk, should be a solid page and not a half page. The half page looks as though the talker did not have enough to say to last the page out. The first paragraph is capital.

> This is our first edition of Touraine Talks. They are written and distributed for the purpose of keeping you alive to the fact that you have a theater on the Park Slope whose management is striving day in and day out to not only entertain and please you with Motion Pictures carefully selected and properly displayed but whose aim and ambition is to have the Touraine Theater known as a place where folks can come and be assured that what they see will be clean and wholesome.

A whole page each week in the same sincere vein would help a lot. The first issue marks the opening of the house. Perhaps Mr. O'Nil will have more time for writing when things get going.

Score One.

Here's one man who shot a job back to the printer when he did not follow instructions and set an invitation in Old English. Every little helps. There may come a time when there will be NO theater advertisements set in this blind type. E. C. O'Keefe, of the Regent Theater Company, Billings, Montana, is the hero. He writes:

> Am enclosing herewith sample of card which I used at the opening of my new house here in Billings. I recently sent in one used to announce the feature, "A Million Bid," and have noted your criticism of same, for which I thank you. A funny thing happened this time. I told the printer NOT to use Old English for this one and sure enough the proof came in Old English. Of course I immediately made him reset it and the enclosed card is the result.
>
> One fault I am quite sure you will find with it is that there is too much on it for the space offered but I tried to cut it down but it seemed that I couldn't. There were so many things I wanted to put over. However, there may be other suggestions which you might have to offer on it. I trust it will look somewhat of an improvement over the last one.
>
> I might add that I intend to run only big features in this house and get the advanced price. I have booked Paramount, two a week; General Masterpieces, Shubert productions and others, making a very strong lineup. People here like features and if presented in a first class manner, will pay more. Our house is the best picture house in town. We have a mirror screen, fine seats, excellent ventilation, good music and fine pictures. We look for a good business from the start. I still will hold onto the Luna theater here and run general service at ten cents. Might say that the Luna was a total failure until I took it and now it is the most popular show in town. The Regent, formerly the Broadway, has been a lemon also, but I am confident that with the right sort of pictures, good projection, courteous treatment and attention to details, it should be a winner, so I took a chance on it after four others have failed. I immediately started to remodel it, closing it during August, built a canopy, new ticket booth, installed a mirror screen and two Powers 6 A machines, repaired seats, and dozen other small improvements, costing in all over $1,500.
>
> At any rate, it is worth a trial. We figured the time of the feature house is at hand so got into the game ahead of our competitors.
>
> Later on I will get back into the program brigade and issue one for both houses, then will send you a sample for your inspection.

The letter shows that Mr. O'Keefe knows his own answer. The card does contain too much copy. It is a card 3½ by 4½ and carries this letter press in script:

Announcement
The new Regent Theater announces for its opening
Saturday and Sunday, August 29th and 30th
"Shadows of the Past"
Vitagraph's Stupendous Broadway Success featuring Miss Anita Stewart.

It will be the policy of this All-Feature Photoplay House to present only the choice of the world's feature films in a faultless manner, at a uniform admission.

Matinee:	Evening:
Children 5c	Children 10c
Adults 10c	Adults 15c

A less crowded card would have attracted more favorable attention, and once he had them in the house Mr. O'Keefe could have explained by means of a slide all that relates to the policy of the house. The prices of admission could have been carried in one line in a smaller type or at the worst two six-point Gothic lines, and in the space thus gained the rest of the text could have been given its proper display.

This is the best rule for small stuff:

If You Have Two Things You Want to Say and Space for Only One, Select the More Important of the two and Get That Over. Do Not Try to Tell Both and Tell Nothing. ONE Statement That Is Read Is Better Than TWO UNREAD.

The card is a much better job than the last sent in, but it is too crowded. It would have been still better in engraver's shaded or one of the type faces, but this does very well for a starter and perhaps, in time, Mr. O'Keefe can coax his printer to get some new stuff in his cases.

As a last resort the admission prices and the announcement of policy might have been printed on a card about the size of a visiting card slipped into the same envelope. We'll be watching for that program. Feeding two houses it should be a good one.

Won't Insult Him.

Charles F. Kean, of the Opera House, Minersville, Pa., takes part of two columns on the front page of the local paper to announce that "he will not insult" the intelligence and ability of the producer by showing Judith of Bethulia for five cents—he is going to charge ten. It's a snappy way of announcing while defending the raise in price, but we think that if Mr. Kean keeps on with the same class of features as he has booked for the first five special Friday features, he'll be up to fifteen cents by the end of the month and a half. He supplements his newspaper work by a well written folder announcing the change and the first five subjects. It is well displayed and clean looking, but the red and green ink is a little too violent for the subject. All green, which matches the tinted paper, would have been better. Mr. Kean writes easily and fluently. His arguments do not sound labored. The only objection that might be offered to the work is the veiled suggestion that ten cents is an awful lot of money. Ten cents is little enough. The argument should have been worded to suggest "only ten cents" instead of "all for ten cents." Take this paragraph:

> In justice to ourselves we feel that we cannot offer this class of attractions at the prices that we have always charged. We know that there are many lovers of GOOD PHOTOPLAYS in Minersville who will gladly pay the price we are compelled to charge for bookings of this character. We must charge TEN CENTS. This price applies to Children as well as Adults.

Now see how this sounds:

> Of course it will not be possible to present these big features at the same price we charge for the regular releases. Many managements regularly charge twenty-five cents admission to these and similar features, and we believe that there are hundreds of lovers of good photoplays—the best plays—in Minersville who would gladly pay these prices. But we have been exceptionally fortunate in our booking arrangements and we are able to announce an admission of ONLY TEN CENTS, but this is dependent on getting ten cents for each seat. We cannot make it half price to the kiddies, much as we wish we could.

It says the same thing, but now a favor is being conferred instead of asked.

We would like to see more of Mr. Keefe's advertising.

> Made to laugh at.
> Where pleasure grows.
> All for your pleasure.
> We please the family.
> Keep tomorrow in mind.
> Take a look at the best.
> A week of wonder pictures.
> Worth your dime—and time.
> If it's worth showing we show it.
> Pleasure coupled with comfort.
> Others are good, here is the best.
> Nothing like a visit—begin today.
> Better than many—equal to any.
> Pictures that bristle with novelty.
> Treat yourself to the best. Go to the ——.
> Always the best picked from first releases.
> For that something better desire. Go to the ——.
> The fact of us showing it is a guarantee of its goodness.
> We always show the best productions from the best producers.

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Mass Action.

ALICE C. BROWN offers a new way of stating an old proposition in advancing her theory of "mass action." Her letter is so interesting that it is given in full:

Seems to me that if the man who has taken down in shorthand, reproduced on the typewriter, etc., the stories he has seen on the screen for 18 months, will stop that method, and, having studied the film of, say "Gladys the Goose-Girl," go home and write one similar, but about Helen the Hen-Wife, paying proper attention to the differences between both Helen and hens and Gladys and geese, he will make more progress; his imagination will have a chance to stretch its legs. Of course, it is doubtful if his script will sell, but once upon a time, in chemistry, I learned of a condition called "mass action," in which a relatively inert substance present in large quantities overcomes a more active substance, purely by reason of its quantity; so with writing; a large quantity of even mediocre work is bound to have its effect, result in more material advance than a little of higher class. It's apt to be more regular and amounts to better practice. I have a theory, too, that one works along without much apparent advance, then suddenly reaches a top notch, sells a script; then the next fifteen or twenty drop back below that top notch, and naturally don't sell; then comes another time when the cumulative effect shows, and possibly two or three scripts reach top notch; and shortly a higher point is reached, but the bulk of the work inevitably drops back somewhat; gradually the average level is raised, until the original top is merely one's average work, and so one goes from one top notch to another, until everything is good enough to sell. (That is the ideal, of course.)

Also, it is a mistake to call the typewriter, paper and stamps, the material of which photoplays are built; they are not any more than the horse and wagon that deliver the concrete, brick and lumber are the material of the house. Photoplays are built of ideas, facts, incidents, situations; the simple fact that Jane climbed the fence may be built into an incident (very good practice, such work is, too), that may have an important bearing on the crucial situation of a tragedy, or it may be the climax of a comedy, the beginning or the end of a story. Of course, if one writes 300 plays without any sign of improvement, it would seem as if God didn't intend one to be a writer, and one might just as well go to chicken-raising or something else that's easy.

Somewhere I read that there are two types of mind—the copyist and the creator—and they never change one into the other; now the copyist will never make a writer, and if you copy literally and with due attention to dotting the I's and crossing the T's, you might just as well stop now; but if, when you read the recipe for a cake, you say, "That's all right, but I'd put more sugar and flavor it with orange instead of nutmeg," the chances are you have the creative mind, and practice will bring results. That ought to be a simple test and one that could be applied by one's self.

As a variation of the plan of pinning the incipient plots to the plank in one's study, I have evolved this way, which I pass on: There is a plate rail in the room I have appropriated for my work; I got some hooks that screw in, and some clips with perforated handles—saw 'em at the five and ten cent store, spring filing clips (ask for paper clips. E. W. S) I suppose they are; I invested in a handful and now I literally hang my scripts for a week or two between rewriting; each manuscript is clipped together and hung on a hook; there they all are in plain sight, ready to be taken down, added to, copied or otherwise handled; it suits me better than any other way I have tried. Of course, I don't keep three hundred hanging, but half a dozen can be easily cared for, and kept moving; one goes out, a new one takes its place; to-day's script goes on the last hook, naturally pushing the one of last week forward for consideration and revision.

Here's a question, no hurry, but I've thought of it several times. It not infrequently happens that in a story the fond couple take their departure; often it doesn't make an atom of difference whether they go by train and the final glimpse is of the observation car, or by boat, when the last scene is of the farewells from the railing of the ship; but it might make a difference to the producer; should one say that this scene may, if more convenient, be done in the other fashion?

I just want to say "Hear! Hear!" to Miss Justice's remarks about no synopses only; not only is it the fun and joy of writing, but it seems to me I have the first right to do all I possibly can to my idea; and I can't do it in a synopsis. And it also seems to me that an editor wouldn't have to handle a great many of any one person's scripts before he learned whether that particular person did full justice to the story in the synopsis, or whether the important thing was the development.

The matter Miss Brown makes reference to is the man who took down in shorthand numerous scripts and studied them in accordance with the example of another man who found success in that way. It happened oddly enough that this letter came just as we had come from lunch with the second editor within a period of eleven days to tell us that this first man wrote scripts that needed only the most superficial editing. One man found in the system the secret of success. Another man found failure. One man studied and was backed up by natural aptitude. The other man merely followed in a mechanical way the example of the other and either did not give his brains to the work or else he lacked imagination.

The mass theory is correct, except that the inertia of the mass, once overcome, should move more rapidly to success. Success most always comes with suddenness, with unexpectedness, breaking into the dreary toil like the sun through the clouds, but having caught the trick, the writer should make at least 25 per cent of sales, working from that to 40 to 60 per cent. Some writers do even better than this.

Replying to the question, the scene may be written either as a boat or train scene, or as "back of station." The director will know he can alter to something more convenient if he wants to.

Rotation.

An Oklahoma housewife, in a chatty letter, tells of her scheme of work. She aims at fiction as well as photoplay honors, and the first development of a theme is as a story, once she has the plot well set in her mind. It may take her several days in the intervals of her household work to get the story into crude fiction form, and she does not strive to put in the little refining touches. Now she lays the story aside and takes up a fiction form she has previously worked and translates that into photoplay. This, too, she sets aside and turns to the revision of a story already roughly in photoplay form. Then she starts fresh with another fiction story, takes the last fiction story for photoplay and then revises the last crude photoplay. By rotation of work she gets variety and no one story becomes stale. Of course this method will not work with some people who cannot let go of a story until they finish it, but if you have no particular plan of work, why not try this? It may be what you have been looking for. It certainly is a helpful idea for the beginner, though most trained writers write a play, revise it if necessary and then send it out before turning to the next.

But one thing in the letter stands out above the rest. The correspondent has spent the odd moments of two years merely acquiring facility of expression for her fiction work. She did not start out to write stories, she started first to learn to write paragraphs and even sentences. Why not practice writing just scenes?

Too Much.

With lots of writers complaining that they cannot get ideas, here is a correspondent who gets too much idea, just for a change. She writes:

> Why do I find it impossible to write one reel plays?—Gene Gauntier returned a 3 reel play last spring with the criticism—"The play as it stands contains enough material for five or six reels." It seems to me that one reel plays are merely episodes not stories; and when I think they are stories find they contain very, very many leaders. You state, do not worry about the number of scenes, so that each scene carries the story forward properly—Have never been able to write a drama in less than 104 scenes—half of which are full length scenes, Gene Gauntier also advised me to take the story part—this I did and found I could make two three reelers of same by changing the theme of one.
>
> Others seem to worry about the multiple market at present—what in the world shall I do if the one reel again predominates?

The trouble with the writer seems to be an inability to pick from a complicate plot just one element of the story that, in itself, is sufficient to hold the interest for a thousand feet. One reel plays are not episodes but stories if all the episodes of one chain of developments are used and all other episodes left out. The correspondent, however, has not cultivated the judgment that will permit her to reduce any one theme to the last analysis and so she thinks three or four themes, the incidents of which are so interwoven that they seem to be one whole.

A ship's cable may consist of five or six strands of twisted fibre. It seems to be a complete whole, yet the rope may be unravelled into the separated strands and these in turn into the fibres that compose the strand, just as five or six stories written into a five or six reel play can be reduced to five or six one reelers and these, in turn, into the scenes that go to make each reel.

Mayonaise dressing seems to be one complete mass, yet it is really egg and oil and codiments and chemical treatment will not only resolve the mixture into its component parts, but will go still further and separate the chemical elements of the egg and the oil.

It will pay to learn to analyze plots reducing the story to its individual elements and taking only such as have definite relation to one part of that story. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to use a familiar example, is first of all, the story of Uncle Tom. It is also the story of George and Eliza Harris, the St. Clairs, Legree and Cassie, and Marks the lawyer, and any one of these could be made into an individual story without particular reference to the main character.

Selling Ideas.

One of the newcomers writes that she has been offered $15 for a three reel idea and asks advice, which has already been given, but perhaps there are others who face the same problem. The script has been submitted to several other companies and rejected by them.

It is a temptation to accept $15 if no more is forthcoming, and this appeals particularly to the novice. On the other hand the script that has been the rounds may be fixed up to sell to one of the original ports of call when a better grip on technique is acquired, and even an idea should be worth more than $15. There is a growing tendency on the part of certain directors who are supposed to supply their own scripts, to purchase "ideas only" and with a few minor changes to put the stories out as their own. It is a vicious system and should be checked. It is a pretty safe proposition that the idea that is worth fifteen dollars to a director will be worth more than that to the author in the long run.

Your Address.

If you write an editor a hundred times, put your address on your hundred and first letter just the same. That may be the time he wants to reply and he may not have remembered the other hundred letters. If you cannot afford printed letterheads, type the address in, but give street, city and state every time you write, even if you do not expect a reply. Make your address a part of every business communication and even if your name is Smith or Jones type that on the sheet. Don't trust to the signature alone. It's one of the little things that count.

It Seems Longer.

Alice C. Brown contributes to the department what she thinks is a new wrinkle, though Bannister Merwin made the stop watch writing famous two or three years ago. She writes:

> My scripts kept "coming back and coming back and coming back"—you've heard the pitiful tale before—so I resolved to get a fresh point of view. With an ordinary watch, with second hand, I found out how fast I count—15—18 in 10 seconds. Then at the show, I found out how long the most common actions take. How long does the ordinary business talk last? How long does the ordinary telephone conversation take How long does it take John to come from the house door to the curb, get into his auto, wave his hand to Kitty and get off? Armed with this information, I took my scripts and analyzed them, sorting out the scenes in columns of 10, 20, 30, 40 seconds, which also means feet of film. And do you know what I discovered? A script that I fondly imagined would amply fill one reel, and probably need condensing for that, would by this standard take exactly 550 feet. Did I see a great light? Well, some! And it is surprising how many of the 45 and 50 scenes that make up many reels are the little ones of ten to twenty feet; but it is only when you take them apart that you find it out.

We have even published tables of numbers of scenes employed and their footages, all of which lead to the suggestion that a scene on the screen that runs ten feet seems to run fifteen or twenty according to the rapidity of the action. Most authors overwrite rather than fall short, but it is a good thing to know how your average action should run. You cannot do much good work timing a reel in the theater, because the reel that should run sixteen to eighteen minutes may be run off in eight, if the house is full, but it pays to sense the actions and do things right. It is not possible to work with any great degree of accuracy, since directors work in different tempi, and one man may get the action of a script into nine hundred feet where another man in the same employ with the same company and the same script will turn in 1,800 feet of negative. You can, however, get in a general way a sense of the length of action, and it will help much in writing ideas.

Busts and Inserts.

About the best quick rule for determining the difference between a bust and an insert is the question as to whether the matter shown is active or inactive. A letter, a photograph, a card or anything similar is an "on screen" or "insert," no matter if the letter is held in a person's hand or a finger points to some particular line. A very close view of a part of a scene of action is a bust even though it may not show much action.

Just as a matter of fact it is not a matter of life and death whether you call it a bust or an insert so long as you clearly indicate to the director what you want, but in the interests of accurate writing this definition is given here because it has been asked for several times of late.

It might be added that an insert is part of a scene, being inserted in that scene (whence the name) but a bust is a numbered scene by itself in most studios.

Dreams.

Waving a waggish forefinger at us, a correspondent recalls to our memory the fact that we wrote in "Technique of the Photoplay" that "it was a dream" was the last resort of the unimaginative author to cover up a wholly impossible situation. Then he points to our name on "He Woke up in Time," and asks if the rule has been changed.

Not a bit of it. The fact remains. It is poor business to blame on a dream what would never pass for real life, but the story was asked for and we had a choice between breaking one of our own rules or losing a check. We banked the check. That's all. We'll break any rule in the book if any director asks us to and backs up the request with a check, but that does not invalidate the rule.

Criticism.

We think that criticism is helpful, but now and then it hurts a bit. One of the most careful letters on criticism we have had comes from a man who has more than arrived. He writes:

> We have kept up a regular criticism of each other's work by correspondence, and it has helped some—still, there is a question in my mind whether criticism amounts to very much after all. If a man has real writing ability he is capable of detecting a genuine plot when he finds it, and is able to construct it, excellently or indifferently, according to his talent. He may not be able to judge accurately its value as a story, but he can sound its validity as a plot.
>
> A criticism by another writer amounts to nothing more than his personal opinion of the way the story under fire should have been handled, and, while his may be the better way, the original author will invariably disagree. This leads to a clash of viewpoints, the effect of which, I think, is to shatter a writer's perspective of his own plot building.
>
> The accrued experience of my correspondence with Hayn leads me to the opinion that a criticism is of use only to inspire care to avoid technical errors. In other ways, especially if the critic is not in sympathy with the author's particular style of story, the result is irritation of the writer and a demoralizing effect upon his ability to appraise the intrinsic worth of his creations. Criticism of this sort would also set a limit upon originality if the fault-finding remarks were absorbed mentally.
>
> At least, all of this is my personal belief, and considering that temperaments differ in writers, and style with the temperament, Fred and I now confine our criticisms almost entirely to technical points, and if one writes a story dealing with ghosts and graveyards, the other does not rap it simply because he does not like to think of morbid things. He examines the workmanship of the story.

Criticism is no more than the personal opinion of the critic and valuable only in proportion to the training and judgment of that man. The general suggestion can help, but the man who does not like caviare says it is not nice. You and others may like caviare. Allow for tastes.

Why War Is Hell.

One of our private pupils happened along this morning and he had his tail between his legs. He wrote that he knew we had warned against the war story and yet he just had to write this travesty, so he wrote a comedy that would cost a couple of thousand dollars to get across and sent it in.

Now let's look over the reasons why.

In the first place there is the probable sale. War is no joke. It will be no joke for some months to come. A comedy based on war will last seven seconds less than the snowball in the place where snowballs do not last at all. A drama will last nine-tenths of a second longer, but that is hardly worth counting. If we sold stuff only on the North American continent, it might be a little different, but we sell to the whole world when we can, and right after the war and before the French and German studios can get busy, we are going to dump into the world market all we cannot sell them now. War stuff will not be among the items sold. No editor is going to purchase stuff that will sell to, say, only 45 per cent of the market.

Consider the question of expense. War is a matter of powder, smoke and men. All cost money. In a good war scene, say of the siege of Paris, perhaps a million rounds of cartridges will be used, and every darned one of those will have to be made to order, for black powder instead of smokeless must be used, the big guns will have to be hired, men will have to be hired to man the guns, regiments must be employed and there must be dead horses and burning buildings and all the rest, and all for stuff that will not sell!

And after all the rest comes the question of good taste. There is such a thing as good taste. You would not write a story about your mother's funeral.

One Kick.

We have consistently opposed the use of the author's name on the screen, believing the time is not yet when the author should either be praised or blamed, but, on the other hand, we do not believe that a director has any right to purchase an idea and announce it as his own script. He has still less right to take the idea and paying for one reel, make it into two or pay a one-reel price for a two-reel script even if he makes it in one reel.

We shall be glad to receive signed letters on these points.

Get It Out.

Now and then you'll hit an idea that you know to be worthless and yet you feel that you must work it out and see how it will look on paper. You will save time and worry if you get it down on paper at once. Sometime you will have to do it and that time might as well be now. We've even seen bits of business trying to crawl into other scripts, when we refused to write a whole idea, so now when we get one of those things we put it on paper and perhaps a year or so later we put it down again and in the meantime it has grown into something worth while.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be indorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending 4 cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

The first seventy-four questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form. They may be obtained by remitting 25 cents, money, or stamps, to the editor. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy. You may be surprised at the number of questions you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 52.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Permission to use the contributor's name must accompany each answer, otherwise only the name of the city will be used. Theatre managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

What is the effect, both mechanically and electrically, of heat on copper? Does or does not a copper wire which is kept within its rated capacity, deteriorate with time? For instance: suppose your theatre to be fed by one-fourth of a mile of No. 2 uninsulated wires. These wires you were compelled to supply. They had been in use for six years, supplying the old theatre. Finally, you built a new house. Would or would you not renew the feeders, assuming they had never been worked above their capacity? How could you determine this matter?

Roll of Honor.

The Roll of Honor on Question 46 is made up of the following: Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington; Harry T. Dobson, Toronto, Canada; John Mason, Toronto, Canada; L. B. Minges, Lestershire, New York; A. T. Weiss, New Orleans, Louisiana; Hugh J. Schuck, Iowa Falls, Iowa; Geoffrey Jefferson, Ypsilanti, Michigan; Theodore Grottke, Jr., Spring Valley, New York; John Solar, Watertown, New York; W. J. Neff, Reno, Nevada; George Van Deurs, Brooklyn, New York, and J. Claude ReVille, Florence, South Carolina.

There were so many of the answers which were perfectly correct that it was a hard matter to decide which was entitled to publication. I have, however, selected the answer of J. Claude ReVille, Florence, South Carolina, the determining factor being the plain wording and thorough understandableness of his answer. The others had just as correct a reply, but not worded quite so acceptable.

Answer to Question No. 46.

By J. Claude ReVille, Florence, S. C.

The Question:

What is a circular mill? How many c. m. is a wire ¼ of an inch in diameter? What is its area, and not only tell us how you obtain the answer, but give the rule for obtaining the c. m. area of any circle or wire? What standard is used for measuring square or rectangular conductors?

The Answer:

Question 46 is really composed of three queries which I will answer in their order.

First—A circular mill is the unit of measurement employed in measuring the cross section, or area (cross section and area mean the same thing), of all round wires. It is the area of a circle one mill or .001 (1/1,000) of an inch in diameter. In other words a round wire 1/1,000 (also written .001) of an inch in diameter has a cross section, or area of one circular mill.

Second—The circular mills contained in a wire ¼ of an inch in diameter may be found by dividing 1,000 by 4, the result being .250 (250/1,000) of an inch, or in other words, 250 mills, which is the diameter of a ¼ inch wire expressed in mills. To find its area we square the diameter by multiplying it by itself, thus: 250x250=62,500, which is the area or cross section in circular mills. The circular mill diameter of any circle, or wire, may be found by measuring the diameter of the circle or wire with a micrometer calliper reading in thousandths of an inch; with a micrometer calliper reading in mills (which is the same thing) or with a wire gauge of known accuracy. If the wire gauge be a standard one the diameter of each opening will be stamped on the back of the gauge in thousandths of an inch (mills), or you can look in the wire tables and find the diameter, in mills, of the wire corresponding to the number indicated by the gauge. Having ascertained the diameter of the wire in mills, or thousandths of an inch, square the diameter by multiplying it by itself, which gives the area. If you have the diameter expressed in fractions of an inch, such as ¼, ⅛, etc., divide 1.000 by the fraction and square the result.

Third—The unit used in measuring square or rectangular conductors, such as bus bars, is the square mill. A square mill is the area of a square, each side of which measures one mill, or, .001 of an inch. Its area is equal to .001x.001=.000001 of a square inch. The square mill area of a square or rectangular conductor is found by multiplying its thickness in thousandths of an inch by its width in thousandths of an inch. What is the area, in square mills, of a bus bar measuring ⅝ of an inch by ⅞? 1.000÷⅝=.625 of an inch, or 625 mills. 1.000÷⅞=.875 of an inch, or 875 mills, so our bus bar is 625 by 875 mills, and its area is equal to 625x875=546,870 sq. mills. A square mill has a value equal to 1.2732 circular mills. In order to reduce square mills to circular mills multiply the square mill area by 1.2732. In order to change circular mills to square mills multiply the circular mill area by .7854, which means that a square mill equals 1.2732 circular mills and that a circular mill equals .7854 of a square mill.

Proposed State Law.

The New York State Federation of Labor, which had its recent convention in Schenectady, adopted resolutions favoring the introduction of a state license law for operators. When the moving picture delegates to the convention arrived on the ground, it was very quickly discovered that there was a wide divergence of opinion as to what ought to be done. The up-state locals, to a man, favored the drafting of an universal state law which would allow any licensed operator to operate in any city, town or village in the state, and were opposed to the apprenticeship idea. Local 306, of New York City, on the other hand did not favor this kind of law, they arguing that the only protection the New York City operator now had from the small town operator was his inability to operate without a New York license; also 306 favored the apprenticeship clause. For a time it looked like a deadlock. One Smith, from Buffalo, it is said, had told his local that he was "going to get an universal state law which would allow any operator in the state of New York to operate in any city therein." Mr. Smith very quickly discovered that he had bitten off considerable more than one average sized man could chew. He evidently had not taken into consideration the fact that, whereas local union 306 has six hundred members in good standing, all the other locals in the state have less than four hundred in good standing, so that, viewed purely on the majority rules basis, New York City held the balance of power. The delegates argued, and argued and re-argued. One delegate already had a law drafted, and proposed to undertake the contract of telling the rest of the state that it was the law they wanted, and anyhow it was the law they had to have, but the "rest of the state," particularly New York City, could not see it that way. The up-shot of the matter was a resolution was adopted by the Federation which calls for the drafting of a law, and now comes the tug of war.

In considering this matter one has got to bear in mind the fact that oil and water absolutely will not mix. In this proposition the desires of the up-state locals may be considered as representing the "oil" and of the argument and the wishes of New York City operators, who are in the majority, the "water," or vice versa. New York City men very naturally strenuously object to "Willie, the usher," in the little villages taking an examination in that village or county, the examination quite possibly being made by a totally incompetent examining board, and then being in a position to grab his easily obtained license and hike for the White Lights of Broadway. On the other hand the small town operator very naturally wants the privilege of coming into New York City, and you can bet that if he had a license he would make the experiment, or a whole lot of him would anyway. But the New York City authorities would never in this wide world stand for that. The hazard of operating in a small town is one thing and the hazard of operating in a great city, with its enormous congestion, where the theater may be next door to, or even under a building in which are one, two, or even several thousand human beings and hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property is quite another thing.

It seems to me, however, that an universal state license law need not necessarily be opposed by Local Union 306, provided that all operators must be examined by a single state board, which board shall be composed of one thoroughly competent operator, one member of the board of fire underwriters, and one member, say of the Electrical Department of the state, or of the Electrical Department of New York City, this latter suggestion is made on the spur of the moment. What I am getting at is that the board absolutely must be composed of carefully selected, thoroughly competent examiners, and I believe that the competency of the first board should be carefully looked into by the authorities who are now in charge of licensing in New York City.

I cannot see that a law of this kind would, in the long run, work any material injury to New York City operators, because a board of this kind would not license any but competent men, and that would mear that "Willie, the usher" would be eliminated right then and there The proposition of having examinations for state license made by a half dozen, or a dozen examining boards, one located in each city in the state, is, in the judgment of the editor, absolutely absurd on the face of it; also it is thoroughly impractical. A state license, in the very nature of things, could, it seems to me, only emanate from a single state examining board covering the whole state, and you can bet your everlasting tiddle de winks that an operator who had to travel fifty, or a hundred miles to be examined would be pretty sure he would be able to pass before he took the trip. In other words only competent men who had confidence in themselves would seek for a license under those conditions.

Another scheme which might be practical would be to have two classes of license, and, in fact, I think that in the end there will have to be two classes of license, a second class license to enable an operator to work only in a town of, say, less than 5,000. The matter of a state license is a very broad, and, under the existing conditions, a pretty reasonably deep question, and the solution cannot, in the judgment of the editor, be reached without full and free discussion and the setting forth of various views, ideas and opinions, and after that is done the calling of a convention of operators.

The columns of this department are open to any operator who wishes to set forth his views on the state license proposition for New York state. His name will not be used if he so requests. And after the discussion is over then comes the drafting of the law, and you may take it from me, my brothers, it is going to be some task to draft a law which will embody the state license proposition, the apprenticeship proposition, to which the up-state locals (as I understand) are opposed, and the other desired things, which will withstand the attacks that will undoubtedly be made on it in the courts after it is passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor. We have no easy task in front of us gentlemen. If we intend to get a license law that will be of any real value to the operators of New York state. There will most likely have to be an examination fee incorporated, sufficient in amount to make the examining board self sustaining.

No Trouble With Them.

C. W. Fichtner, Burlington, Iowa, orders a Handbook and says:

> I have your first edition, but am a little late in getting the second. Still, better late than never. Am running two Powers Six, and have had no trouble with them since their installation, a year ago last January. Projection in our little city is fine.

I was in your town last summer and called at some of the theatres. Lang syne—away back in about 1881, I lived on South Third street, Burlington, for a year, and afterwards I fired an engine out of Burlington on the "Q." I have many pleasant recollections of your city.

Get Real Knowledge.

S. M. Groom, Alamogordo, New Mexico, orders the question booklet and says:

> I have only operated a few months, but like the work and want to become efficient enough to pass the examination required to become a licensed operator. Does the Handbook prepare operators to pass the examination?

It does not. The Handbook will enable the operator to become a better operator, or it will enable the apprentice to combine the practical experience he is acquiring with the very necessary theoretical, or technical end of his profession, but the man without practical experience could not learn to become an operator, or to pass an examination, merely by studying the Handbook, or by studying any other book. Friend Groom's ambition to learn is laudable, but I would rather hear him say that he wished to learn in order to place improved results on the screen, than in order to pass an examination. If his incentive is to improve in his work he will not stop studying, but if the incentive is merely to get a license, the probability is that as soon as the aforesaid license is secured there will be no more study, and therefore no more improvement. And let me tell you, Brother Groom, that the possession of a license is by no manner of means proof that you are a good, or even a competent operator. Except in a few states, such as Massachusetts, where a bona fide examination is given by men who understand their business and are able and competent to determine, not merely whether the applicant is fairly well acquainted with electrical action, but also whether he is a competent man to be placed in charge of a projector, which, through ignorant handling, or through ignorance of the optical principles involved, may do untold and entirely unnecessary injury to the eyesight of the community. The fire hazard is not the only hazard involved, and it is not the worst hazard either, though very few seem to have grasped that simple fact. Very few have been killed, and comparatively very few ever have been injured in moving picture theater fires, but every day thousands of pairs of eyes are injured by excessive and totally unnecessary flicker, or jump and movement in the film, both of which a competent operator could either reduce or obliterate entirely.

Where Can He Get It?

M. B. Jennings, Sumner, Illinois, says:

> I am owner of a picture house in this little town of 1,800 and of necessity do my own operating. I read the department and am trying as hard as any one ever tried to learn all I can in order to give my patrons the best possible service. Have often noticed a book—the Handbook—mentioned in the department, but cannot find out where to obtain a copy of it. Where can I get it, and is it devoted to everything in general pertaining to the moving picture business, including projection? How can I become a licensed operator? Would it benefit me, and where would be the nearest local union I could join?

It is surprising how many there are who write in asking the price of the Handbook and where it can be obtained. For heaven's sake, man, look at the advertisement which will be found at the end of the department every week, and cease from troubling. There, Brother Jennings, I guess that will hold you for a few minutes. No, the Handbook does not cover everything. If it did it would be a book of a thousand pages. It covers projection and the various things allied thereto, and its worth the $2.50 it costs all right, and then some. You would be obliged to go to a city which issues licenses and take an examination. It would not be of any benefit to you. As to joining the union I do not know which local you would be eligible to; possibly Peoria or Springfield.

A Very Clever Invention.

Abram J. R. MacDougall, Brooklyn, New York, is the inventor of a very clever device, and one which not only does the work it is designed to do, but is also extremely simple and positive in its action. It has been approved by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York City. Mr. MacDougall has used the device in his own theater in Brooklyn for more than a year, and the editor has watched it operate; it works perfectly.

It consists of a fire shield and an auxiliary fire shutter, in conjunction with a mercury switch. Just inside the lower end of the fireshield is a roller mounted on a carrier attached to the lower fire shield by screws X-X, Fig. 1. This roller rests against the film between the lower machine sprocket and the lower magazine fire trap, the roller being held up by the film when it is stretched tight by the take-up. When the roller is up the auxiliary fire shutter A, Fig. 1, is held up mechanically, and the moment the roller drops, the shutter also drops by its own weight. In Fig. 2 we see roller B mounted on a wire which extends in into the lower shield, the same being shown at B, Fig. 1.

On top of this roller rests a wire which operates glass bulb C, which is, in reality a mercury switch.

The thing works as follows: As long as the film is being pulled into the magazine the roller inside the fire shield is held firmly in upright position, by the film, but the moment the film breaks and the end passes down into the magazine, or anything else occurs to slack the film between the lower sprocket of the magazine, this roller drops, which releases auxiliary shutter A, allowing it to fall, and at the same time roller B drops and operates mercury switch C, which breaks the motor circuit and stops the machine. Switches 1 and 2, Fig. 2, have been eliminated in the improved design. As shown in Fig. 1 the mercury switch is boxed in.

This device is one of about two hundred inventions all designed to do the same thing, but the difference is that this one not only works, but it is extremely simple, and therefore is practical. Whether Brother

MacDougall will succeed in introducing his switch or not we cannot, of course, say, but I can vouch for the fact that the thing is entirely practical, and would, of course, to some extent lessen the fire hazard, hence would probably be promptly approved by the various authorities, even as it has been approved in New York City.

Daylight Screen.

Carl H. Carson, Chairman of Motion Picture Committee of Southern California High Schools, Pasadena, Cal., writes:

> Kindly inform me where we can reach the people who make the daylight screen, used so successfully in the recent New York show? What kind of screen would you suggest for a school auditorium where the throw is 112 feet and the seats farthest from the screen 125 feet, the room being practically square? How large a screen should be used? Will not the metallic finish, or mirror screen, distort the image for those sitting at the side of so large an auditorium? Where high school students operate the machine under faculty supervision, would not a motor generator be preferable to the mercury arc rectifier? What apparatus would you suggest to give us a direct current for both motion picture machine and stereopticon? We now have a. c., but, of course, must put in d. c. right away. Would it be better to continue using the a. c., with rheostat and use a motor generator for the projection, or would it be advantageous to use d. c. for the stereopticon lenses? The projector is a Powers Six A. Do you know anything of the General Electric motor generator? I am sorry to trouble you with so many questions of this sort, but it is almost impossible to get an unbiased opinion from the various dealers, and, of course, we feel that for school installations we must have the very best we can get with the means available. There are a number of schools in Southern California which are equipped for motion picture work, and any information you can give us will be a great favor to all.

Presumably you refer to the "Day and Night Screen" made by the Day and Night Screen, Inc., 291 Broadway, New York City, of which L. A. Thompson is president. As to the kind of screen to use under the conditions named and the size of picture, I would suggest either a mirroroide, a gold fibre, or a day and night, and one with the roughest possible finish, that is to say, having a matte surface. Obviously I cannot, in the department, give you advice as to which of these screens I would personally prefer. However, they are all good, and I believe any one of them would give you satisfaction. I would suggest, though, that before installing one of these screens you make a little experiment as follows: Erect a plaster screen. Have the plasterer make a special trowel, as per the illustration, the Vs to be ⅛ of an inch deep, and to have an angle of 45 degrees. The plasterer should use this trowel to lay off the screen into Vs vertically, but not horizontally, and then the screen should be coated with muralite, or alabastine.

Frankly, gentlemen, this is an experiment, but I believe if it is done with reasonable care it will do away almost entirely with the distortion of the figures due to the side view. On the other hand I am not certain it will operate that way, and I warn you, you will be taking your own chances in making this experiment. The metallic screen will not, I believe, distort the image any worse than a flat plaster screen would, but the out of focus effect in an auditorium of that kind would, I think, be excessive with the mirror screen, since it is impossible to get a very rough surface on glass.

As to the motor generator versus mercury arc rectifier, I think that students would find one practically as easy to operate as the other. Under the conditions named I would use a. c. through rheostat for the dissolver, because if you only have one rectifier or motor generator you would be obliged to connect your dissolver lamps in series, and that would, I believe, be an impractical proposition for students to handle. If you are generating your own current, why I would suggest a 70-volt generator for the projection current, and you could then use the same in either the projector or the stereopticon. I do not quite undersand your letter in this regard. Mercury arc rectifiers and motor generator sets which operate at arc voltage can only operate two arcs when burning in series, and burning arcs in series is quite a delicate proposition; they are difficult to handle. The General Electric motor generator is a good machine, as is also the Fort Wayne, and Hallberg's. The Wagner rotary converter is also very good. The efficiency of these devices range from 60 to 70 per cent. The size of the picture where the rear seats are 125 feet distant ought, in my judgment, to be pretty close to 20 feet, but it would be difficult to project a good 20-foot picture where the projector is handled by students. For this reason I think that 18 or 19 feet would be more satisfactory.

Handbook Again.

H. J. Schuck, Iowa Falls, Iowa, writes:

> Dear Friend:—I take the liberty of calling you "friend" because you have been one to me, and a helpful one at that, both in the Handbook and in the department. Is there a later edition than the second edition of the Handbook? I have but one kick to register against it; it does not give tables or information concerning the focal length of condensers to use with various objectives. Can you tell me where such information can be found

Brother James' article, which appeared in the department recently, comes nearest of anything I know of to supplying lens information, and the table prepared by Friend Griffith is of distinct value. There will be another valuable article by an optician presently. No, there is no third edition to the Handbook, and won't be until the present book is out of date. Brother Shuck also sent an answer to question 46.

Elementary Questions.

New York City propounds the following questions which shows that he has no large knowledge of electrical action, and I am sorry to say this is the state of affairs with quite a considerable percentage of New York licensed operators.

> 1. If I connect two lamps in multiple on a 25-ampere rheostat, how many amperes would each lamp pull? 2. Would it heat the rheostat more than one lamp would? 3. Would the combined light of the two make more light if focused on one spot than one lamp on the rheostat alone? 4. There being two craters to project the light even though the amperes were divided would there not be more light?

1, 2, 3 and 4.—If you connected two lamps in multiple on one rheostat you could only make one of the arcs burn. If you lit one arc the instant you struck the other one the first one would go out, and when you relit the first the second would go out. The reason for this is that the arc, when burning, has resistance, and when you bring the carbons of the other arc together to strike an arc, at the instant of contact of the carbons, there is a short circuit which steals all the current from the arc which is burning and puts it out, and there you are.

Handicapping Himself.

L. F. Guimond, president and treasurer of The Monticello Amusement Company, Monticello, New York, orders a set of questions, and arises to make the following remarks:

> Because of your recommendation I purchased the Laemmle meniscus-bi-convex condenser combination, and have installed same. The difficulty is this: no matter what adjustment we make we can find no happy medium between yellow edges and blue center, and if the arc be moved far enough forward to eliminate the blue we get the yellow, and vice versa. Equipment as follows: Powers motor driven Six A; a. c., 91-foot throw; 5/8 carbons; Powers inductor; 4.4 objective; condensers both 7½. I might add that I wrote John D. Elbert, San Francisco, having no more definite address, and just received my letter back marked "Unknown." If others who wished to follow your recommendation as to the Elbert mount received the same report it is likely it cost Mr. Elbert some loose change. Should think he would at least be in the directory. Looks to me as though Uncle Sam had stubbed his toe in my case. Am investigating the Green Film Cleaning Machine. Can you help me there? We are out for the very best projection, and are willing to put in everything that will forward this end. At present we are trying out a screen of muslin sheeting, wet, wrung out, stretched over a frame and painted with a weak mixture of aluminum paint. If you are interested will let you know the result. In closing I would like to say that any manager or operator who tries to do business without the Moving Picture World is handicapping himself immeasurably merely to save $3.00 a year. The projection department alone is worth the "price of admission." By the foregoing you can see we are boosters for The World, and, while we hope for a long life, we will be with you at the finish.

This is an interesting letter in several respects. In the first place I don't know, and it sounds rather absurd, but it seems to me that the whole trouble lies in the fact that your operator has not moved the lamp house ahead or back. Most likely it is too close to the mechanism. There is one thing, though, I have got to find out about, and that is what does Brother Bryson mean by "7½ meniscus." If he means that the convex curvature is the same that the plano convex would be, then it is not a 7½ by considerable. Presumably this is not the case. It must be remembered that with the meniscus lens the convex curvature must be enough greater to neutralize the negative effect of the concave curvature, in order that the lens have the given focal length. I would suggest that the operator try altering the distance between the two lenses by moving the front lens back, or the back lens ahead, or both, and moving the lamp house ahead and back. I would also suggest that he measure the two lenses (see page 356 of the Handbook for directions), to make sure they are 7½ lenses. As to the Green Film Cleaning Machine, you have got my angora there. It seems to me as though I did describe that device quite a while ago, but I have not time now to look back through the department and find the article in question. Any machine which will remove the oil and dirt from the film will improve projection to some extent, provided, of course, the films are dirty, as they usually are. Let us hear about your aluminum experiment, though I do not think it will be successful. Elbert's address is 2583 Sutter street, San Francisco.

Probably a Worn Sprocket.

W. Crowther, Fall River, Mass., makes the following inquiry:

> Will you kindly tell me the cause and cure of the following: Am running a Powers Six, of which I took charge a week ago, this being the only machine I am not familiar with. Have experienced trouble as follows: A little piece of film rips off one side and wraps around the intermittent sprocket, which causes the picture to jump. This, of course, means a stop to take the film off, and stops are mighty bad. I believe the cause of the trouble is due to the worn aperture plate, or sprocket teeth too sharp. Have been operating three years, and have gotten along all right so far, except this one trouble which has stumped me. I sometimes think it is because the film is old and brittle.

It is rather hard to say exactly what the difficulty is, but I think it is hooked sprocket teeth—sprocket teeth so badly worn that they are formed into a hook. Examine your sprocket teeth, and if you find this condition get a new sprocket at once. A sprocket that is badly worn is not fit to use. Also be sure that the face of your intermittent sprocket is perfectly clean. Wash it off every morning with a toothbrush and a little kerosene. A worn aperture plate would not cause trouble such as this. Quite possibly, however, the difficulty is aggravated by old, shrunken, brittle film.

A Non-Rewinder.

The Northern Sales Company, New York City, is preparing to place on the market an unique piece of mechanism in the form of an automatic rewinder, or, more properly speaking, a machine magazine equipped with mechanism which is designed to do away with the rewinding of film. The editor has examined the device, and, while he would not care to express an authoritative opinion until such time as the device has been tested out in actual theatrical work for at least a short time, still the thing looks as though it would deliver the goods, and in the opinion of the editor it is worthy of serious consideraton and a fair test.

The inventor is Mike Delaney of Detroit, Michigan, but the experts of the Northern Sales Company have perfected the mechanism and put it into marketable shape.

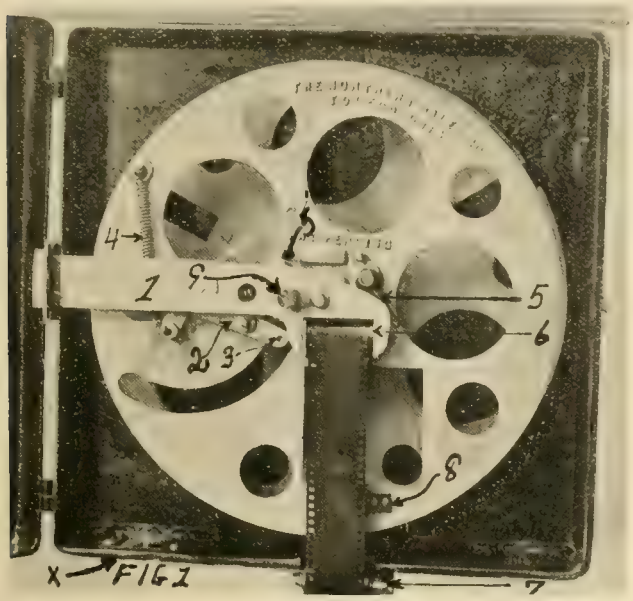

Fig. 1 shows the front of the upper magazine with the reel in place with the film coming out of its center and passing down to the machine.

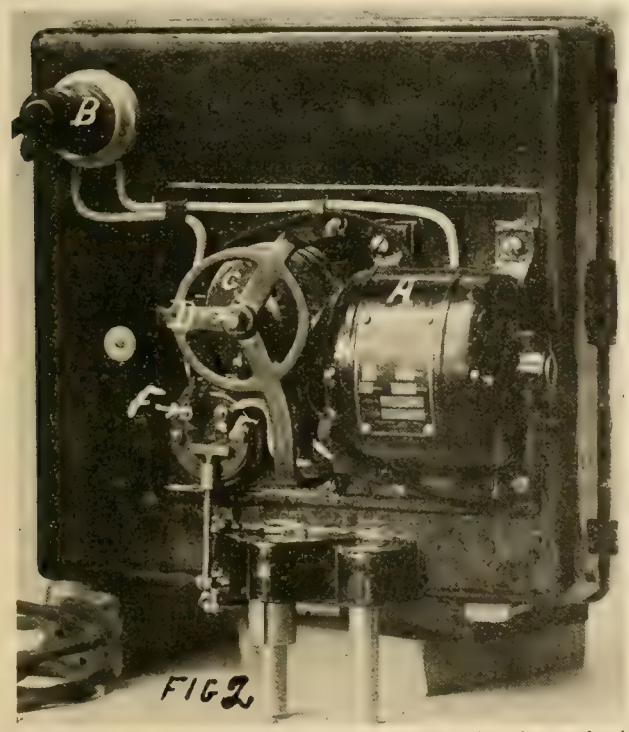

Fig. 2 shows the back of the upper magazine, with the mechanism attached thereto, but in actual operation the motor and mechanism is covered with a substantial aluminum casing. The operation is substantially as follows: The lower magazine is simply the regular machine magazine which comes with the projector, there being no change necessary in either the lower magazine or the take-up. The upper magazine is placed on the mechanism in the usual way when the film is received from the exchange, and the exchange reel is placed therein for the first run. The upper magazine is equipped with two fire traps, one at 7, Fig. 1, and one at X, Fig. 1. When the film is being run off the exchange reel and down into the lower magazine, where one of the non-rewinding film reels is placed to receive it, it passes through fire trap X, and the operation is the same as with the regular upper magazine and regular reel, except that in threading the film onto the non-rewinding film in the lower magazine it is dropped down around a roller, which cannot be seen in the illustration, and brought out over roller 6, Fig. 1, and the end is slipped under spring clamp 8, Fig. 1. Now when the film has been run into the non-rewinding reel the title is in the center and the end of the leader attached thereto is under spring clamp 8, but before the non-rewinding reel is placed in the upper magazine, the upper magazine is raised out of its socket and turned one-quarter around so that the side shown in Fig. 1 faces the lamp house. And now comes something that is rather difficult to explain without a very complete set of illustrations, and even then you would probably have to see the actual reel in order to thoroughly understand it. In Fig. 1 both sides of the reel can be seen, and when in the lower magazine the front side, which carries the hub of the reel, is and must be locked to the back side, else the film would not rewind. This is accomplished by means of two little levers, one of which is shown at 5, and the hub of the other one, which is behind bar one, can just be seen at 5^1. These levers operate a small dog on the back side of the reel face, which locks the front face of the reel to the back. The hub of the reel is a very peculiar affair, which really should have been illustrated. It consists of a semi-circle of spring brass, reinforced with flat steel springs and two brass rollers, one of which is carried at 3 on the end of Part 2, the purpose of which will be explained later. The other sets on a tangent, at an angle of 50 degrees with the face of the reel, and this roller serves to make the bend in the film which brings it out square over roller 6, Fig. 1.

Now when the film has been wound on the non-rewinding reel and the reel is ready to be placed on the upper magazine it is necessary to unlock the front side of the reel from the back side, and this is accomplished by moving levers 5 and 5^1. Part 1, Fig. 1, swings outward on a hinge at its back end, and after the reel is placed on its spindle in the magazine part 1 is closed and latched by latch 9. The end of the film under spring clamp 8 is released and carried down through fire trap 7, and threaded through the machine in the usual manner; carried on down to the lower magazine and threaded onto another non-rewinding reel as before described.

By the way, I nearly overlooked one point. Before placing the reel in the upper magazine, a metal band is slipped around the outside of the film and clamped into place. This is to hold the film in position and prevent it from unwinding on the outside.

We are now ready to run the film, and I will try to describe what takes place as clearly as may be, though it is a somewhat difficult proposition. In Fig. 2 A is a small motor having a high starting torque; B is a switch, which supplies the motor, which runs continuously, with current taken from an ordinary lamp socket; C is a clutch plate which runs continuously with the motor, being mounted free on Shaft D which carries the reel in the upper magazine. Just behind clutch plate C is a magnet, of which clutch plate C is a pole piece, the magnet being attached rigidly to shaft D; E is an automatic switch operated by roller 7, Fig. 1, through the connections shown in Fig. 2. The thing works as follows: The back part of the reel, Fig. 1, carries the film roll by means of an outside band before spoken of. The front part of the reel remains stationary, being attached to arm 1, Fig. 1. The back side of the reel is attached to front end of spindle D, Fig. 2, and revolves therewith, carrying with it the film roll. Now have you that squared around in your mind? Let me put it in another way. Looking at Fig. 1 and imagining the reel to be filled with film, the front, or face of the reel, to which the reel-hub is attached, remains stationary, whereas the back of the reel which carries the film roll is attached to shaft D, Fig. 2, and will revolve whenever clutch plate C makes contact with the magnet for which it is the pole piece. Now when the film roll revolves the film is shoved out of the reel at 6, and not pulled out by the projection machine, and it is this feature which makes me believe that this particular non-rewinding reel has a good chance for success, since it puts no strain at all on bad patches. The film passes down over roller 7, Fig. 1, and from there to the top sprocket of the magazine which sets somewhat ahead (further away from the lamp house) than roller 7, so that if any strain is placed on the film the tendency is to instantly pull roller 7, which is held out against the film by means of the very flexible coil spring, back under the magazine. Now look at Fig. 2 and note the connections between roller 7, Fig. 1, which can also be seen in Fig. 2 under the magazine, and the upright lever which carries a cross bar at its upper end, and you will see that when roller 7 is shoved back the effect would be to raise the upright lever or shaft, and shove the cross bar against F-F, which are the opposite poles of a magnetic circuit which operates to magnetize the magnet. Remember that motor A is running continuously and thereby continuously revolving clutch plate C. When the least strain is placed on the film by the upper sprocket of the projector pulling on it, roller 7 instantly moves back, raising the cross bar, closing the magneto circuit, which instantly causes clutch plate C to impinge on the face of the magnet, and revolves the magnet which carries with it shaft D, Fig. 2, and te back side of the reel in Fig. 1 and the film itself, so that more film is instantly pushed out at six.

Now all this sounds extremely complicated, but it really is not. In fact it is very simple, and what is more it works, and in operation I find the lever carrying the cross bar switch jumps up and down almost continuously. And now for the office of part 2, Fig. 1.

Part 2, Fig. 1, carries on its end a roller at 3 which moves in a long semi-circular slot in the reel face being held at its inner end by spring 4. Now as the film is gradually taken from the reel the opening in its center becomes larger and this opening is full of loose film, or at least there is considerably loose film therein at all times. The office of the roller is to hold what might be termed the outer edge of the turns of loose film down against the inner side of the film roll so that it always will make a fifty degree turn up and out at point six. Roller 3 impinges on the celluloid side of the film and I think there is no danger of injury to the film by this action, provided coil spring 4 be not too strong. I would, however, suggest to the Northern Sales Company that in order to avoid any possibility of scratching the strength of coil spring 4 it ought to be kept as low as is found practicable. Roller 3 ought to be either ball bearing or else be of some bearing which will offer a minimum amount of friction.

The Northern Sales Company has agreed to allow the editor to make any tests of this device which he may desire, and as soon as practical I shall place not less than three and possibly six of these non-rewinders in different theaters in different parts of the country, and then I will make final report as to exactly what the judgment of the department is on the device. I hope and believe that this decision will be favorable, since if the device is found to be commercially practical it will do away with not only the annoyance and labor of rewinding, but also with an immense amount of damage to film.

South Get Busy.

J. C. Re Ville, Florence, South Carolina, writes:

> Enclosed find 25 cents for which please send me another copy of the questions, the copy I formerly purchased having been misplaced. Have not seen any answers from the South so I am going to get some in. Started several but do not get them finished in time as I have been very busy, but by having the questions in advance I think I will be able to do something.

It will be not only to your credit, Brother Re Ville, but your benefit as well.

Low Wages.

From a certain city in an Eastern State comes the following:

> My position is chief operator at the ——— theater. Have been operating almost seven years, and all that time has been spent in two houses. Salaries here are not very favorable. The chief operators in the three large theaters receive $18.00 per week, which I don't think is enough for any man who cares for and repairs twelve side-wall fans, a bunch of ceiling fans, two large exhaust fans, two ozones, two projectors, as well as taking care of other electrical repairs even though he does have one assistant. I appreciate the projection department and the Handbook, and am very sorry indeed that I don't have more time to participate in the good work of the department, but you know, Mr. Editor, that a man with a wife and two kiddies must keep moving to make even a fair living in these strenuous days. I feel that my service as operator ought to be worth, at least, $25.00 per week. I don't know it all, but I believe I can deliver the goods. Please do not publish this letter as I have enclosed the required amount for a personal answer.

I have made the personal answer, but this letter sets forth conditions which require comment, therefore having suppressed the writer's name and the name of the town and State I am using a portion of his letter. It is nothing short of outrageous to ask a man to do all that work for $18.00 a week, and it is nothing short of asinity and utter foolishness for managers to make the income of their box office very largely dependent upon the work of a man whom they expect not only to deliver the goods on their screen, but also do a great deal of other work, all for about half the amount an ordinary bricklayer receives. Honestly now, Mr. Manager, what would you yourself think of the intelligence of a man who erected a dramatic theater at a cost of $50,000, put on the finest play he could procure, regardless of expense, and then handicap that play by employing the very cheapest stage manager he could possibly get hold of? And even this is not a fair comparison, since the mistakes of the cheap stage managers would very largely be rectified or neutralized by the high class actors themselves, whereas you, as managers of moving picture theaters, are placing the actors at the mercy of the cheap operator, who has it in his power to absolutely ruin their performance. Now, I don't mean to say the writer of the foregoing letter is doing anything of that kind. I believe him to be a thoroughly competent operator, as well as a conscientious man, who will perform his duties to the best of his ability regardless of the salary. However, the fact remains that the managers in the city in question are, by paying ridiculously low salaries and piling on extra work, doing everything they possibly can to discourage their operators from producing high class results. They are making the position of operator in that city as undesirable as they know how to, and, as a general proposition, a man don't break any bones to hold a position which is not particularly desirable anyhow. I therefore venture to say that, whereas this particular correspondent may be, and I think is, delivering good work, other men in that city probably are not. I am very sure that if circumstances forced me to do the operating, take care of the electric fans, do the electrical work around the theater and other stunts, all for a piffling $18.00 a week, I would not bust any corset strings striving for excellence on the screen. As a matter of fact I would not touch such a job with a ten-foot pole, and I cannot conceive of any conditions that would induce me to touch it. My own system is to not let Mr. Manager tell me what he will pay me, but for little me to tell Mr. Manager what I will work for, and not work unless I get it.

From an Old Timer.

From one of our old and valued correspondents comes the following:

> It is some time since I wrote, but I have not outgrown my habit of finding fault. First of all let me ask you not to publish my name, the town, or the name of the theater, in connection with this letter, because I want to tell you of a manager (?) here in our village. His operating room is 8 feet square, with a corner 2 by 3 cut out of that. The ventilation is a 12-inch pipe—no more. The two machines are Powers Six A. One of them has used the same intermittent movement for twenty months, running eight hours a day, and when I asked him for a new sprocket and shaft for it he said: "They cost too much," and I did not get them. The other is a new machine. The rewinder is set at the rear, so that when rewinding I cannot see the picture, also when threading one machine the door of the upper magazine covers the observation port so I cannot see the picture—result, bum light quite often, especially when making a splice with my back to the machine. The current is a. c., through Fort Wayne compensarcs. Both compensarcs are on one number six lead, which comes from the board about 25 feet away. This board carries two machines, a two k. w. sign transformer for front lights using 22 amperes, 8 amperes per house lights and 10 fans; box office and operating room lights 5 amperes, and is supplied by two lines of No. 6 in multiple covering a distance of 125 feet from the stage. Of course, the stage lights are not in use when the machine is running, but the auditorium and operating room circuits are, and that means 5 amperes more. Then a line of No. 4 runs to the service switch about 30 feet away, and from there to the transformer is another multiple No. 6. There is not a fuse in the house large enough to carry the load, and therefore jump wires have been put in. By meter test there is a drop of 15 volts with full load on, but only using one machine. When I light the other arc to warm up the carbons it is still worse. The curtain is a good alabastine one, but the other houses here have gold fibre, and mirroroide, and use mercury arc rectifiers. The manager is dissatisfied with my work, because I do not get a bright enough picture. I have tried everything, even to putting both compensarcs in multiple on one machine and cutting down the width of the interrupter of the shutters to get a better light. The manager seems at last to have waked up to the fact that it is the equipment, and while he has spoken of rewiring, and getting a patent screen, he has not done it. What is your advice?

Briefly, my brother, my advice is to do it, and do it quick. What in the name of heaven does the manager expect from an intermittent movement running that length of time, and from lines that are overloaded heavy enough to cause a 15 volt drop? Does he expect to get the same picture as his competitors get who are using semi-reflecting screens and direct current? Well, it cannot be did without a make-up, and the only make-up on that particular proposition is rewiring that house and putting in a current rectifier of some kind, of not less than 50 ampere capacity. The alabastine screen, if coated occasionally, is all right, though, of course, a semi-reflecting screen will give a brighter picture with equal amperage. I have given this letter in full just to show how utterly unreasonable some managers are. Pharaoh of old asked the Hebrews to make brick without straw—a thing which could not be done. This manager asks his operator to produce results with an equipment with which they cannot be produced—to make bricks without straw.

Why Is He the Tail of the Dog?

Arthur Ayers, Bellefontaine, O., asks some questions concerning the union, and then says:

> I wish you would tell me why it is the operator is the last individual in the moving picture industry to be considered? Why do the manufacturers spend fortunes on magnificent productions, with never a thought of how it is going to be reproduced, or projected? They don't seem to realize the fact that all their efforts may go for nothing if the production is not properly projected. Of course, they are not directly responsible for the inefficient operator, still it does seem that they might work wonders by getting in touch with exhibitors' organizations with regard to this important branch of the business. Outside of what yourself and the Moving Picture World have done there has never been any effort to make available knowledge of projection, or to elevate projection.

Yes, it is an amazing thing that producers have not recognized the self-evident and obvious fact that the incompetent operator can absolutely nullify their best work, and make of the most beautiful production a howling travesty and ridiculous farce. But they don't recognize that fact, and they never have recognized it. One individual, who is president of one of the largest producing companies and a man who should know better, since he was one of the very first men to go into the moving picture game, and has been in it ever since, recently told me that "the operator did not cut any figure. Any boy could run a projection machine with an hour's instruction." Now, the gentleman referred to is a friend of mine, and I like him, but I could have knocked his durn'd block off for making such an idiotic remark. He is a smart man, and I guess he has made millions out of the film industry; but that only serves to emphasize the utter foolishness of his assertion.

I don't know, Brother Ayer, the thing is past my comprehension, and I do not think any one else can dig up an intelligent answer either. The attitude of the producers, in this particular respect, tempts one to pull off their hats and examine their heads to see if there are not a pair of long ears concealed somewhere on their cranium. The producers are mostly very bright men in other respects, and good business men, too, but the instant their productions are finished and sold they don't seem to care a tinker's dam what becomes of them, or whether they are properly placed before the public or not.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

MAKING A CONVERT (Edison), September 15.—A film of unusual interest, written by Epes Winthrop Sargent and produced in co-operation with the Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey. Apart from its educational value, there is inculcated an interesting plot, which contains a lesson to impulsive people who keep their friends on the ragged edge when crossing streets, or on boarding or leaving street cars. John H. Collins, director, has brought out the points in good shape. Elsie MacLeod and Andrew J. Clark have the leading roles and are supported by a clever cast, headed by Harry Gripp. This is an interesting and timely release.

THE EUGENIC GIRL (Selig), September 15.—This is what might be denominated a strenuous comedy, as far as athletics are concerned. A young lady, who is an enthusiast regarding athletics, believes in eugenics. She is burdened with five suitors, one of whom is a newspaper reporter—the favored one. She determines to marry the best man, and arranges a lot of athletic stunts in which they are to compete. The newspaper reporter, knowing his failings, engages a professional and disguises him as an unknown—who is the winner. Later the reporter dons the disguise and fools the girl, who accepts him. A real laugh producer.

RASTUS KNEW IT WASN'T (Lubin), September 15.—A police station comedy, by E. W. Sargent, in which John Edwards figures as Rastus, a porter, who manages to do everything wrong, even to leaving the scrub pail for the chief to fall over, the said scrub pail figures as the instigator of all the trouble, assisted by a bomb, a moving picture and a comedy police force. It is greeted with laughter. On the same reel with "She Made Herself Beautiful."

SHE MADE HERSELF BEAUTIFUL (Lubin), September 15.—On the same reel with "Rastus Knew It Wasn't." A cranky boob of a husband, with a wife who is not much to look at in make-up, but who is a good cook and housekeeper, advises her to make herself beautiful. She proceeds to do so, with the assistance of a beauty specialist, manicurist, a hairdresser and several mechanical accessories. He finds her all fussed-up, but no dinner. The ending is in the wife's favor and quite funny.

INTO THE DEPTHS (Kalem), September 15.—A picture drama featuring Alice Hollister, supported by Henry Hallam and Harry Millarde. Not a very strong or particularly interesting offering. It borders on the triangle idea, which has been worn threadbare. It is somewhat obtuse in construction, but it develops in the finale that a husband is reformed by a dream during a drunken sleep. This is the redeeming feature.

THE WAY OF HIS FATHER (Essanay), September 15.—Picturization of a story from the Munsey Magazine; scenario and production by Harry Mainhall. There are some faults to be found with this picture play on account of the abruptness and ingratitude of the son (Richard C. Travers). It is not human, neither is it natural. Thomas Commerford does a splendid piece of work as the father, a country physician, whose only wish in life is to have his son succeed him in his practice. The young man redeems himself in the end, but does it in an ungracious way. However, it is an interesting number.

THE AGELESS SEX (Vitagraph), September 16.—A laughable comedy, written by John Francis Beckwith and produced by Capt. Harry Lambert, with Darwin Karr, Naomi Childers, George Stevens and Charles Eldridge. A man ruminating over the falseness of the average female, as regards her make-up, falls asleep in his chair and dreams that his wife confesses to being eighty-two years old. He demands she get behind a screen and hand out the false parts of her. He receives so much that he kicks over the screen and finds a "Rag, a Bone and a Hank of Hair;" then he wakes up. This is an exceptional comedy.

JIM (Selig), September 16.—A domestic picture drama with the scenes laid in a farming country. It is the old story of the young farmer falling in love with the school teacher. Everything is smooth in the love line until father marries a widow, who has an actor son. The actor steals Jim's girl and puts her on the stage. Two years later they leave an infant daughter in the care of Jim and his stepmother. The baby grows into a beautiful woman. Jim discovers that she has grown to love him, despite their difference in age, and they marry.

THE FABLE OF LUTIE, THE FALSE ALARM (Essanay), September 16.—George Ade tells how a "Warbler's" career was abruptly ended by four eminent coffin trimmers, called critics. Ruth Stonehouse appears as the victim who imagines that she is endowed with a phenomenal voice—that is, she thought she could sing, so did her mother and also her father, who invested $350 in a concert, to find out how really bad the morning papers could deliver a roast. Anyhow, they knocked the music out of her system. This release is greeted with laughter.

A SUMMER IDYLL (Edison), September 16.—The theme of this plot is an old one, but nevertheless the action of the picture is not only interesting but amusing; it also contains considerable sentiment. The author is Dorothy H. Brown. Augustus Phillips and Gladys Hulette are featured, supported by a large cast. A millionaire, tired of the notoriety his money brings to him, changes places with a poor friend. When they arrive at a summer hotel the poor friend is the center of attraction among the female guests. A quiet little girl wins the millionaire.

POLITICS AND THE PRESS (Vitagraph), September 17.—Written by William A. Tremayne. Van Dyke Brook did the directing and also had the role of the political boss of Griggsville, a rube city. Norma Talmage appears as his daughter. The Press, a local newspaper, is opposed to him and he scares the editor out of town. A new one arrives (Antonio Moreno) who refused to be scared and then war is declared, which furnishes the action for many intense scenes. In the finale the young editor's life is saved by the boss's daughter, and then there is a love mix-up, of course.

THE SCAB WAITER (Melies), September 17.—The waiters in a German restaurant strike and the proprietor is forced to send for help. The agency sends him a remodeled tramp. He turns out to be a joke, breaks dishes and puts the place on the "ruin"; then he is turned out himself—strenuously. Later he is discovered regaling a couple of his pals with food purloined from the restaurant stock. Fairly funny.

SOPHIE'S LEGACY (Essanay), September 17.—A comedy picture in which Sophie endures the trials of a "rich lady." Slippery Slim and Mustang Pete accidently learn of her financial luck, through her father; then comes the struggle between the two to see who will win Sophie and the money. They resort to desperate means. Slim uses a beautiful blonde as his weapon and Mustang Pete retaliates with an Indian squaw, who claims Slim as her husband. His plan fails and Slim marries Sophie—right "under his nose."

THE PEDDLER'S BAG (Biograph), September 17.—While inconsistances occur in some of the scenes of this picture play, it is nevertheless absorbing. The leading characters are a gamekeeper, his wife and the wayward son of the Squire, who forces his attentions on the gamekeeper's young wife, with the assistance of the village peddler, who is bribed to carry him into the lodge in a bag. A tragedy occurs, the termination of which forms the interest to the spectator in the plot. An exceptional court scene is the feature of the picture in which a dramatic moment occurs that straightens everything out satisfactorily. A strong release.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORAL, No. 58 (Selig), September 17.—Several scenes that are interesting, from the fact that they bring back to the recollection the good old "Country Fair," with the parade of livestock, the diving horse, the rope walker, the parachute balloon jumper, mile track races of local pacers, runners, trotters, etc. Panama canal scenes are shown, including the Pacific entrance, scenes at the Newport races, war scenes at Berlin, London and Belgium and field practice of the Women's Red Cross Emergency Corps, with the new motor-cycle individual field ambulances.

FATHER'S TIMEPIECE (Vitagraph), September 18.—A comedy picture play, written by Gregory Kerr and produced by Lee Beggs, who plays the role of the father. Constance Talmadge and Billy Quirk have leading roles. The plot reminds one of the old farces so popular years ago. The cast is made up of a typical old grouch, with an obstinate daughter, who loves a young man that the father dislikes. The plot hinges on the loss of a watch, and the complications surrounding it furnishes the comedy, which is not of a very frantic nature.

THE LONESOME TRAIL (Selig), September 18.—One of B. M. Bower's delightful "Flying U Ranch" comedies. Weary is "donestuck" on the schoolmarm but queers himself by shooting her pet gopher. A quarrel ensues and each is too proud to inaugurate a reconciliation. Jim buries the gopher with "cowboy honors" and erects a headstone; then through arousing jealousy in the mind of the schoolmarm and arranging a series of heroic incidents he wins out—with the aid of the rough-and-ready cowboys.

FOR REPAIRS (Lubin), September 18.—A neglectful husband caused much anxiety to his wife who is a slave to domestic affairs. She suddenly decides to plunge into the social world herself. There is much marital trouble but the miraculous escape of their little child, whom they both neglect, from a terrible death brings husband and wife together and saves them from the parting of the ways. Will M. Ritchey is the author and Paul Powell is the director. The cast is a good one. The plot is familiar, but nevertheless the picture is interesting.

EASY MONEY (Kalem), September 18.—A farce comedy in which John E. Brennan is featured as "Bill, a Hobo." The author is Frank H. Clark. Mr. McGuff makes $2,000 in a lucky speculation. He wants to buy an auto, while his wife wishes him to purchase a farm. The incidents which result, in the former getting his way, and what occurs to him afterwards is productive of much comedy, although inconsistent, It is quite a laugh producer.

HIS CHANGE OF HEART (Biograph), September 18.—A demonstration of how a heartless man is brought to a realization of his sordidness by an act of Providence. He is the president of a railroad, who instructs his agents to make no settlement with a child's parents which has been killed by a train on his line. A young surgeon is the sweetheart of the president's daughter and denounces to her the action of the company. He is overheard by the father and ordered out of the house. Next day the girl is seriously injured and taken to the hospital. The father at sight of his daughter realizes his injustice to the child's parents and the young surgeon. A wholesome picture.

AT THE RISK OF HIS LIFE (Selig), September 19.—A very strenuous picture play concerning the doings of a gang of counterfeiters. Most of the scenes included in this offering are evidently intended to be intense and of strong melo-dramatic flavor. Conviction is lacking in many places through the fault of abruptness and brutality. To those who admire explosions this will prove interesting. Utter disregard of human life seems to be the main feature.

THE GERMAN BAND (Lubin), September 19.—On the same reel with "Pins Are Lucky." Everybody has heard the little German band time and again. They are numerous in both the city and country, but who would ever stop to think, if they could think while the band is playing, that a romance could be woven around the personages; a romance which contains lots of comedy and some sentiment. It is received with many laughs.

PINS ARE LUCKY (Lubin), September 19.—It is an old saw, "Find a pin and pick it up and all the day you'll have good luck." E. W. Sargent has used this theme for a comedy. This superstition is probably more prevalent amongst all classes of people than any other existing. It is seldom that any one passes a pin that catches his eye, or hers, as the case might be, who does not stoop and pick it up. The incidents that the author has worked out of this are interesting and amusing. Pins are lucky for the lovers but not for dad and the rival. On the same reel with "The German Band."

THE CUB REPORTER'S ASSIGNMENT (Kalem), September 19.—In this picture Irene Boyle is featured in an absorbing story. She is ably supported by Robert Ellis, who plays the title role. There is a love story and a case of mistaken identity which cause some very peculiar mix-ups. There is not only heart-interest in the plot but some comedy. The acting is adequate and the directing has been well done.

BRONCHO BILLY BUTTS IN (Essanay), September 19.—A Western drama, featuring G. M. Anderson, who is author and producer and he also plays the leading part, and certainly butts in with a vengeance. He holds up a grouchy father, befriends the daughter and her sweetheart and forces the old man, at the point of a gun, to consent to his daughter's engagement. Hardly up to the Broncho Billy standard. Scenery and photography are as good as usual.

JIM'S VINDICATION (Edison), September 19.—The author, E. Lynn Summers, assisted by John H. Collins, director, has ingrafted a lot of heart-interest and human nature in this picture play. Frank McGlynn, as Jim, does a splendid piece of acting in the part. Sally Crute is also very artistic as his wife, in fact all in the cast do good work and the interest is sustained to the last scene.

MURPHY AND THE MERMAIDS (Biograph), September 19.—On the same reel with "The Fire Chief's Bride." A comedy that is made up of a series of incidents both possible and impossible. An Irishman while fishing falls asleep and dreams he is afflicted with mermaids, which brings trouble with his wife and daughter. A peddler turns the table on him also, and altogether Murphy has a strenuous time.

THE FIRE CHIEF'S BRIDE (Biograph), September 19.—Many ludicrous happenings occur in this picture, the fire chief being the main sufferer. It is quite laughable in spots. On the same reel with "Murphy and the Mermaids."

FINE FEATHERS MAKE FINE BIRDS (Vitagraph), September 21.—A dramatic picture play, directed by William Humphrey, who also plays the leading part. Leah Baird, Carolyn Birch and Rex Hitchcock have the prominent parts in support. This is not a very original plot, but it contains a great deal of human nature. The conditions shown here exist in a great number of families in real life, and perhaps will bring home to many spectators a few minutes alone in which to "think it over."

THE UNTARNISHED SHIELD (Lubin), September 21.—(The second of "The Beloved Adventurer" series). The author is Emmett Campbell Hall. Arthur Johnson, who directs the offering, also plays Lord Cecil, who is placed in a painful position, politically and socially, by a younger brother, who falls under the spell of a foreign actress who is the rage in London. She is a member of a band of foreign spies who are attempting to obtain the secrets of the British harbor defenses. Rodney becomes a traitor and his punishment is left to Lord Cecil. There is much intensity in this offering, and the acting deserves mention.

SWEEDIE'S SKATE (Essanay), September 21.—Sweedie tries her luck on roller skates and causes a panic. First, she adorns herself with her mistress' jewels, then she hikes for the skating rink. Never having been on roller skates before, she creates a sensation. A burlesque police force is introduced to help out with the comedy, which is very boisterous.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE HASTY ELOPEMENT (Edison), September 21.—(Ninth of "Octavius, Amateur Detective," series). F. A. Kummer is the author of this comedy. "Octavius" has just become the possessor of a new car and determines the elimination of auto thieves, who had been terrorizing the vicinity. The thieves are captured by him, but he gets into a peck of trouble through unintentionally assisting in an elopement.

JUST A BIT OF LIFE (Biograph), September 21.—A photoplay which contains originality in its plot. A man and his wife are separated and reunited in later years through a photograph, recognized by their child, whose heart hungers for her mother. Scenes which embrace strange circumstances create interest and suspense. Charles Mailes is the professor, husband and father. Irene Howley, is the unfortunate wife. This is quite a touching offering and well acted and produced.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 59 (September 14).—Some of the more interesting items of this number are of the fair at Salem, N. H., where a young woman on horseback jumps from a height of forty feet into water; auto races at Brighton Beach, New York City; finely photographed views of a baseball game at Boston between the home team and the New Yorks, the old-time warship Constellation, Uncle Sam's oldest veteran, and unusually dramatic scenes of the departure of French troops for the front.

Licensed Specials

MERELY MOTHER (Biograph), September 15.—A special two-part picture drama, containing much that is of heart-interest. It depicts the ungratefulness evinced by a daughter as she grows up from babyhood to the age when she becomes a wife and is possessed of a child of her own. The loving mother has sacrificed even the common comforts of life to educate the daughter, so that she may gain a social position. The closing scenes are very touching, but in the end, through the husband, the mother is established and made happy in their beautiful home.

WHEN YOUTH MEETS YOUTH (Cines), September 15.—This two-part picture drama has been reviewed at length by Hanford C. Judson, in The Moving Picture World, and can be found on page 1783, issue of September 26, 1914.

STEVE O'GRADY'S CHANCE (Vitagraph), September 15.—Special feature in two parts, by C. R. Cooper, with Ned Finley, Edith Story and Logan Paul in the leading parts. A newspaper story, wherein a reporter loses his job in the city and migrates to the South. He strikes a small town where a bank robbery has just occurred, and takes a chance to earn a large reward that is offered for the capture of the thieves. In the mountains he meets a girl, with whom he falls in love, who cares for him after he has met with an accident. She helps him to capture the leader of the gang and they get the hidden money. He sends the "scoop" to the city paper, is reinstated and marries the girl. A good picture.

THE TWIN BROTHERS VAN ZANDT (Lubin), September 16.—A two-reel melo-dramatic picture play, written by Malcolm Douglas and produced by John Ince, who plays a dual role, the twin brothers. By a most peculiar twist of fate a man is forced, by extenuating circumstances to impersonate his twin brother for a time. Eventually he is able to defeat the plans of intriguing blackmailers and to restore himself to his proper position. During his experiences he discovers that a niece, whom he suspected of treachery, is loyal and innocent.

THE MOONSHINERS (Kalem), September 16.—This is a two-act drama of the mountains. It is of about the same calibre of other pictures of this sort. There is the usual revenue officer, who falls in love with the head of the moonshiner gang. This time she is a half-breed Indian (Princess Mona Darkfeather). There are many narrow escapes, and in the ending all the characters are killed but the two sweethearts. The scenes on the hillside ranges are exceptionally photographed.

THE DOUBLE LIFE (Lubin), September 17.—A two-part picture play produced by Harry C. Myers, who plays the real villain role. The scenario is by Norbert Lusk, and it tells of the life of a woman of the world (Rosemary Theby), who is the proprietoress of a gambling resort, in partnership with the villain. She has a daughter (Anna Gutter) whom she keeps in ignorance of her life and after her education she isolates her in the country, in the care of a chaperon. Her partner, curious as to her weekly absentations, follows her and discovering the existence of the daughter, determines to make her his wife, notwithstanding her mother's strenuous objections. There are many strong scenes, including a raid by the police on the gambling house. The daughter is present but is rescued by her country lover (Harry Wilgus). A picture with a moral.

SHEEP'S CLOTHING (Edison), September 18.—This two-part picture-play has been reviewed at length by Louis Reeves Harrison, in The Moving Picture World, and can be found on page 1219, issue of August 29, 1914.

SPARKS OF FATE (Essanay), September 18.—A two-part picture drama in which Ruth Stonehouse, Francis X. Bushman, a hydro-aeroplane and the wireless telegraphy play the leading parts. There are several big features introduced in the scenes, the main one being where Mr. Bushman is rescued from the sea by an aeroplane. The photography deserves special mention, along with the acting and direction. Taken all in all ,it is a drama of absorbing interest and intensity.

THE REWARD OF THRIFT (Vitagraph), September 19.—A two-part special feature belonging to the series arranged in co-operation with the Saving Bank Section of the American Banker's Association. Ned Finley and Tefft Johnson, who play leading parts, are the producers. The story is from the pen of Edwin M. LaRoche. Rose E. Tapley and a star cast make this thrilling picture full of strenuous, virile characters, an intense offering, calculated to teach to the wage-earner the theory and system of saving. A most worthy picturization.

THE POTTER AND THE CLAY (Kalem), September 21.—This two-part picture play has been reviewed at length in the Moving Picture World by Hanford C. Judson, and can be found on page 1761, issue of September 26, 1914.

THE LIVING FLAME (Selig), September 21.—This two-part picture play contains a lesson to those who are disposed to be too social. The salutation, "Have a drink, old man," causes the downfall of a brilliant young lawyer to the extent that it jeopardizes his professional career. There are many intense and interesting scenes embraced in the two reels, but in the finale the man who is mostly responsible for his downfall realizes his mistake and in the end helps him to redeem himself.

Independent

LOVERS' LUCK (Keystone), September 9.—Works up to a grand and general knockabout of human beings that is astonishing—is always astonishing. The picture is vulgar, perhaps a bit more so than usual. It is sure to make laughter in the many loud and often and even the few will laugh some. It is good as an offering to the public, but not so good as the best Keystones are.

EVERY MAN HAS HIS PRICE (Majestic), September 15.—A pleasing and popular incident; the director, Author Mackley, has worked it up to very good advantage. The sheriff has the rich villain in jail for assault. He has legally stolen a big land holding from a score of settlers; but he has foolishly punched the face of one of them. They are preparing to tar and feather him and the sheriff, through the grating, lets him see what's in the wind. The sheriff takes a bribe to let him get away the bribe is a return of the land and all the money he has with him to reimburse the settlers for the court expenses. A likable offering.

THE HIGHGRADER (Reliance), September 16.—A popular and speedy melodrama of the mining camps. It is one of those commercial offerings that have real commercial value—money comes from what the people like. It has a little good suspense, a little good humor and a little good romance. It is one of those slightly built offerings in which the player is the thing rather than the play; but, as we have said, it is a good, sensible offering.

DOWN THE HILL TO CREDITVILLE (Majestic), September 18.—A pertinent little comedy that gives thoughts and laughs at the same time. There is a poem which furnishes the theme and the subtitles and it is about a couple that get married on the installment plan. Even the dominie did the splicing on that scheme and when their house, furniture and all that was theirs is being taken back for nonpayment, they think they had each other still; but the minister gives them another think—he, too, hasn't been paid.

FOILED AGAIN (Komic), September 20.—A burlesque villain is the chief figure in this number. His numerous plans to kill the girl fail one after another. The photography is good and the characterizations also, but the humor does not come up very strongly.

HER AWAKENING (Majestic), September 20.—A two-reeler of Christie Cabanne's production; but a good way from being equal to that skillful director's good work. All the picture's interest comes in the second reel and in the latter part of that; it is the only part that has any freshness. Although there is good scenes in it all through, the action is such that even Blanche Sweet, in the leading role, acts poorly.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL NO. 36 (Reliance), September 21.—Carolyn Wells is said to be the author of the episode now being developed in the series. She has, in this number, reached speedy action; but it is of rather poor quality—we miss the strong hand at work that made the series the thing it was a few weeks ago. The same director, Jack Noble, is choosing his scenes well and making the action run smoothly. The number has some mighty fine views of Newport and thereabouts.

THE REDEMPTION OF A PAL (American), September 21.—A two-reeler that is not dramatic, but has a pleasing, romantic sentiment. The story is slight and, as shown, not made convincing. A charity that is not explained to the hero is misunderstood by him, a reforming tough. He thinks his sweetheart who is helping a millionaire, reformed from selfishness, in a new scheme of charity, has turned against him. But soon he finds that the rich man is not furnishing a home for her; but has started a new mission of which she is to be matron.

MEG OF THE MINES (Majestic), September 22.—A Western number, featuring Mae Marsh as the daughter of a prospector, who prevents two men from filing on her father's claim. The story has been done before in numerous ways. It is here very well pictured and attractively presented.

CAUGHT IN A TIGHT PINCH (Beauty), September 22.—A little society comedy in which Harry Pollard plays the young man who goes to a dance in tight shoes. Marguerita Fischer is the girl. There is some rivalry over winning the girl. The wedding pictured inside the ring at the close made a clever scene.

HIS FAITH IN HUMANITY (American), September 23.—William Garwood appears in this number as Jim, a young man released from the workhouse. He is invited to the home of a well-to-do man interested in sociology. The wife steals money from the safe and allows Jim to take the blame, though she confesses later. This is an interesting sociological study, though the plot is familiar. The photography is good.

THE NEWSBOY'S FRIEND (Imp.), September 24.—No. 6 of the adventures of Matty Roubert. In this the lad collects money to entertain the newsboys at Coney Island. He visits Nathan Straus, Hy Mayer, De Wolf Hopper and then the boys are shown at Coney having a high time. This is one of the best of this series so far.

THE TAMING OF SUNNYBROOK NELL (American), September 25.—Nell is the daughter of a ranchman, but not the wild type suggested in the title as Vivian Rich portrayed her. Jack Richardson plays the designing married man from the city and William Garwood the hero who saves the girl from him. The story itself is neither very new nor very strong, but is brilliantly pictured and contains some very attractive settings; the cast also is appealing.

OUR LAND OF GOLD (Powers), September 25.—A half-reel descriptive offering, to be shown with a piece called "Be Neutral." The views of various gold-mining processes in Alaska were instructive and entertaining.

THE MAN IN THE ATTIC (Frontier), September 28.—The fore part of this picture, showing Joe with the money in his hands does not carry the idea that he is a counterfeiter strongly enough. The development is vague. The dripping of the blood from the attic has been used repeatedly in "The Girl From the Golden West" and other productions. This offering is only fair.

THE PROOF OF A MAN (Victor), September 28.—A film story with Warren Kerrigan and Vera Sisson in the cast. He plays the part of a lame youth who invades a Chinese hop joint and saves the girl. This is pretty much on the seamy side of life and these people have appeared in much stronger offerings.

HARD CIDER (Keystone), September 28.—The old man creeps into one of his cider barrels in order to catch the would-be thieves. The lover nails the old man in, in order to elope with the girl. The thieves then come and the barrel starts on a wild career. This has been done many times before, but is here handled unusually well. This makes a good eccentric offering.

CHARLIE'S SMOKER (Crystal), September 29.—Charlie gives a smoker to his friends and his wife calls out the fire department, thinking the house is on fire. This makes an amusing half-reel comedy. All are drenched by the hose.

BELMONT BUTTS IN (Crystal), September 29.—This, on same reel with above, pictures Belmont as a country youth who butts into family affairs and gets considerably damaged as a result. Fairly pleasing and both numbers are well photographed.

THE NEW BUTLER (Joker), September 30.—Ernest Shields and a good supporting company here present a good example of farce comedy. The photography is good, the plot a complicated one and the situations prove very laughable. This is a diverting offering and will please the average observer.

THE GAMEKEEPER'S DAUGHTER (Domino), October 1.—A two-reel romantic offering, brilliantly photographed and full of action and entertainment. The king goes to his hunting lodge unknown to the gamekeeper, meets the daughter and falls in love with her. The gamekeeper comes near shooting the king, for which he is thrown in jail. The hunting scenes were particularly attractive in this. Later the girl's lover rescues both her and the gamekeeper and all go to America. The close is tragic as the king has his own daughter killed, thinking it was the gamekeeper's daughter. A fine offering of the romantic type.

LOVE DISGUISED (Joker), October 3.—A Max Asher number, in which Max poses as the Count De Gink in order to win the girl's hand. A familiar plot this, but the company puts it on in quite an amusing manner. The hotel setting is pleasing and the costumes of a better type than usual. This is an improvement over any of the comedy offerings recently shown by this company.

FOUR DAYS (Frontier), October 4.—This pictures the events of four days, Dolly Larkin and Fred Church being the lovers. It is all done in quite pleasing comedy style. Even Joe's attempted villainy at the last seemed amusing, coming so unexpectedly. The construction is novel and this proves entertaining.

THE COUNTLESS COUNT (Joker), October 7.—A farcical offering in which the girl is to be married off to a count whom she does not love. Ernest's friend impersonates the girl and some rough-house situations follow, the count being thrown in jail. This is quite funny in its way and is well photographed.

THE OLD BELLRINGER (Nestor), October 7.—In this number Murdock MacQuarrie plays the part of an aged organist who finds an abandoned baby near the church. In later years the girl grows up and falls in love with her own father, who learns the truth from the organist and leaves her still in ignorance of her parentage. This is well enough presented but not the most satisfying sort of story to the observer.

THE SENATOR'S LADY (Powers), October 8.—There is some pretty sentiment in this adaptation of D. R. Locke's poem, "Hannah Jane," but it can scarcely be said to possess a complete plot. It pictures in an attractive way the reflections of a man in high office who is tempted to desert his plain wife, but refuses to do so. Just a slight, sketchy offering with Edna Maison and Bert Hadley in the leads.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN (Nestor), October 9.—An amusing comedy number in which Eddie has to marry within a given time to get a fortune. He mistakes the aunt for the girl, both having the same name, and proposes to her. His efforts to get rid of the aunt prove very funny. This plot is fresh and well handled by a competent cast.

THE MAYOR'S MANICURE (Powers), October 9.—This number, featuring Edna Maison and Joe King, tells a story of politics and newspaper life. The girl, who is a reporter, pretends to be a manicure and obtains valuable secrets from the mayor's office. In spite of this rather shady operation the mayor forgives her and falls in lover with her. The pictures are well taken and the cast an agreeable one.

Independent Specials

THE VARSITY RACE (Thanhouser), September 22.—A lively two-reel college story, written by Philip Lonergan. Irving Cummings plays the part of Jack, the bow oarsman of the winning crew, and Muriel Ostriche the professor's pretty daughter. The plot ingredients are familiar, including the stolen examination questions, the false accusation of the hero and his subsequent saving of the great race. But it is all well photographed and acted with snap. Some of the racing scenes were evidently taken at the intercollegiate races at Poughkeepsie. A good college yarn.

THE SHOOTING MATCH (Sterling), September 24.—A Ford Sterling number. Hans and Snitz prepare for the shooting match. Snitz arranges with the score-keeper to extract the shot from Hans' cartridges. This leads to a general scramble and Snitz takes refuge in a tree, which Hans and his friends cut down. This is very amusing in spots. The plot itself could have been compressed into one reel to advantage. Men of a sporting turn will appreciate the shooting contest.

AS THE WIND BLOWS (Rex), September 28.—A strong two-reel offering with Anna Little, William Worthington and Herbert Rawlinson in the cast. It brings up the usual triangle situation of the girl who marries a man she does not love while she does care for another. But this production is handled so well that it escapes the obvious and keeps the observer pleasantly puzzled as to the result. The strongest way out was to have the wife learn to love her husband and this the picture does. In both acting and photography this is pleasing and the story is one of unusual merit.

THE BATTLE (Sterling), September 28.—A two-reel juvenile offering, with Olive and Little Billy in the leading parts. The story is not strong, the first reel being slow and uncertain in development. Billy's dream, in the second reel, where he takes part in some genuine Indian warfare and saves the fort from destruction, was interesting. But it was necessary to make a substitution in the horseback ride. The photography is uneven and quite below the standard in some places. This is only moderately entertaining, though Billy and the little girl are very captivating.

AS A CROW FLIES (Gold Seal), September 29.—This is the ninth of the Trey O' Hearts series. Alan has saved Rose from the burning building. She again falls into the hands of Seneca Trine. Alan escapes the conspirators and is rescued after diving from the mast of a schooner. Trine takes Rose on a special train West. Alan joins forces with Judith and pursues them, first in an aeroplane and then in an engine. The rescue of Rose from the rear end of the moving train was a daring feat. A good installment.

THE RIGHT TO DIE (Broncho), September 30.—A two-reel number of a strong psychological type. The story is unfortunately of the depressing sort. A ruined broker goes to his room, reads various volumes dealing with the subject of suicide and determines to kill himself. He takes a dose of narcotic which only puts him to sleep. He dreams of his daughter's approaching disgrace and his wife's death. The leading man in this gave a remarkably consistent piece of acting, but the tone of the production is very strongly repellant in spite of the happy ending when the man awakens and learns that the market has turned in his favor.

TILL THE SANDS OF THE DESERT GROW COLD (Eclair), September 30. A two-reel story picturing the hard fate of a man who twice lost the woman he loved, once early in life and the second time after she has married once more. Jim first loses the girl at a Hallowe'en party. Five years later in the West the husband turns out to be a brute. In the course of events the husband dies a horrible death on the desert and the wife is supposed to die also. Jim takes the baby girl and raises her to womanhood. Then the mother turns up, married a second time and she and Jim are again separated, in spite of their great love for each other. This story is neither very novel in plot or setting, but is fairly entertaining.

THE TENTH COMMANDMENT (Imp), October 1.—A three-reel production, written by William Blaisdell. The opening scenes, in which the jealous wife installs a dictograph to hear what her husband, a doctor, says to his nurse, strongly suggest the recent Carman murder case. Interest in this situation is raised to high tension. But the murder does not follow; instead the wife runs away with her admirer, Burdick. She leaves him after discovering his intentions and returns to her parents. Five years later more stirring events follow—the shooting of the child, Burdick's fatal carouse, the fire scene and death of the nurse. Then the reconciliation, which was excellently staged. This is well photographed and vividly enacted. Ruth Donelly does exceptional work as the jealous wife; William E. Shay and Violet Mercereau also appear. A strong melodramatic offering.

THE ROCK OF HOPE (Victor), October 2.—A two-reel production, showing the downfall and regeneration of a young doctor. He is induced to drink by his rival just before an operation on his sweetheart. This drinking scene was overdrawn and unconvincing, as frequently happens in pictures. Later the story becomes quite interesting. The rival wins the girl and the young doctor goes out into the country to forget. A memorial rock on the seashore, where a steamer was once wrecked, becomes his rock of hope. Later the girl and her husband appear. The husband sustains two falls, which gives the plot a rather made-up effect, the latter killing him and restoring the original lovers to each other's arms. The principals in this are interesting, but the story not strongly constructed in places.

ONE OF THE DISCARD (Kay Bee), October 2.—This two-reel subject, produced by Ince and Sullivan, deals with the roughest form of early Western life. Yet it is handled in a way that gives it a strong human appeal. Jack tires of living with the girl from the dance hall and deserts her, leaving the girl embittered by her experience and vowing revenge upon all men. He marries in the East. Three years afterward Jack again comes West, strikes it rich and winds up at a resort where his old friend is a roper-in. She plans to fleece him and then relents after reading his wife's letter. The acting and photography are good and the production a very strong one of its type.

MONSIEUR BLUEBEARD (Bison), October 3.—This third two-reel installment of the Francois Villon productions is particularly strong and novel. Murdock MacQuarrie in the part of the vagabond poet, which he is handling so capably, visits the castle of the despised Bluebeard, at the suggestion of King Louis. The manner in which he rouses the enslaved populace to rebellion and traps Bluebeard in his lair makes good entertainment. The death of the hated monarch was well staged. This is finely presented and unusually good in every way.

THE PIPES O' PAN (Rex), October 4.—A two-reel number featuring Joseph King and Pauline Bush as an artist and his wife. The artist dreams of painting "The Daughter of Pan" and later employs a model to make life poses. The model's abbreviated attire will undoubtedly raise the old question of just what constitutes real art in such matters. This will shock some observers. The husband's conscientious scruples were rather too sudden to be very convincing. This holds the interest throughout, but it undoubtedly steps over the line of delicacy to an extent.

THE BOSS OF THE 8TH (Broncho), October 7.—A two-reel story of ward politics. This is well constructed throughout and the photography is good. The general tone of the story is not very elevating, however. Shorty, the stool-pigeon, is railroaded to prison for defying the boss because he is in love and wants to reform. When he comes out he scares the boss so that he dies from heart failure. The characterizations are good but the plot is not very pleasant.

THE WHISKEY RUNNERS (Domino), October 8.—A two-reel western picture that works up to a strong and fresh ending situation. It is an Ince, Davis and Spencer production in which the action all through is fair and speedy enough to keep it seemingly fresh and interesting. There is plenty of fighting and shooting and fast riding. The backgrounds are perfectly chosen and the rough characters satisfy.

THE SHERIFF OF MUSCATINE (Kay-Bee), October 9.—A two-reel hold-up man story. In the first reel there are sensational exploits, fast riding and lively shooting when the bad man is chased by the sheriff's posse that capture him. The beginning of the second reel works up the well known bad man's old mother situation, which turns out to be nothing but a ruse, the old lady being the bad man's girl and the trick designed to fool the sheriff through his sympathies and give a chance to rob both the village bank and the post-office. If we had been let into the trick before it started we would have been more in sympathy with the author's purpose and also been held in suspense as to whether the trick would work or not, which would have been sustained until the very end. As it is, we lose a good deal of suspense and feel until the ruse is shown up displeased with the producer for, as he lets us think, "pulling the old gag on us." It is a pretty good offering as a whole, but it might have been better.

THE HEART OF A BRUTE (Box Office Attractions).—A two-reeler telling the hopeless romance of a man who often acted like a wild brute toward most whom he met; but who had a very kind heart none-the-less. He is contrasted with another kind of villain much to his advantage. It is fresh though that there have been pictures something like it; it is pleasingly acted and, like most of these Balboa offerings, it has a decidedly popular flavor—it will go well with the majority. Its scenes are in the west and in the mining region. There are only four chief characters and the tale is simple, clear and entertaining.

THE SQUARE TRIANGLE (Box Office Attraction).—A three-part Balboa picture of friendship that has a marked popular quality. Three middle-aged men are cordially serving together as guardians of a young girl (Jackie Sanders). She has a love affair, but the man is not worthy and the three shield her with their counsel and watchfulness. In the end she finds that she really loves one of the guardians. These three make the "triangle"—when the girl's father had been alive, he had been one of them and there had been four. The girl marries one and the triangle is squared again. Excellent photography, good acting and pleasing action make this picture with a distinctly wholesome and entertaining atmosphere a fine offering.

British Notes

CERTAIN municipal authorities, in fact those in office in all our principal provincial cities, are still determinedly antagonistic to any effort by exhibitors in the direction of Sunday opening. The Middlesex County Council, under the jurisdiction of which lies a vast number of moving picture shows in greater London, has been most immovable in its conviction that Sunday cinemas were a great wrong, and it is not too much to infer that other authorities in the country have moulded their views upon the question from the decisions of the Middlesex body. Patriotism, however, is a truly wonderful element and appears to have accomplished in this case what endless petitions and logical arguments have failed to do. Upon the undertaking to devote a proportion of the takings to the National Relief Fund the exhibitors in Middlesex are to be allowed to open their doors on the Sabbath. An attempt is also being boldly advanced to open all shows throughout the country upon a similar arrangement and the success of the departure does not seem too much to hope for. At any rate the precedent created by the Middlesex County Council is a valuable one from the exhibitor's point of view and should be the first stepping stone to general Sunday opening.

* * *

A few good pictures have arrived in London this week from France showing the initial stages of the sacking of Louvain. As the German Government is refuting the charges of violence it is quite possible the moving picture may be called in to point the accusing finger at the conclusion of the war.

War is responsible for many legal complications and anachronisms. It may not be generally known that German or Austrian ideas and inventions registered at the London Patent Office are rendered void by the war. A few British manufacturers have already realized this and taken advantage of the situation by appropriating foreign patents which it may be to their advantage to manufacture.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

SELZNICK ENTERTAINS.

Prosperity with a capital "P" reigns staunchly in the offices of the World Film Corporation, for you would have seen evidences of that fact should you have been at the Coney Island Mardi Gras held Sept. 15. There as the guests of General Manager Lewis J. Selznick were all the salesmen of the New York branch, enjoying the Mardi Gras to their heart's content, because they had delivered the goods, and had made a record for booking feature films in the greater New York district. In the party were Harry G. Segal, manager New York branch; Walter J. Lamb, New York City salesman; Emil Bullwinkle, office; Jerome Sobel, Brooklyn; John Schwartz, general assignments, and Maurice Lobel, Connecticut representative.

LIFE PHOTO SELLS CANADIAN RIGHTS.

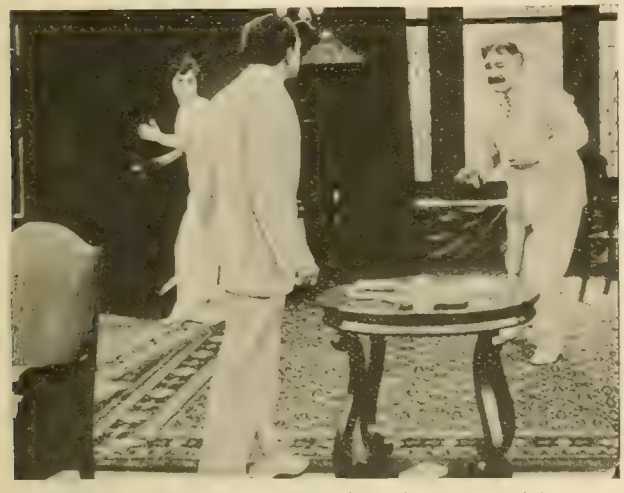
The Equitable Film Exchange of Montreal, Canada, of which David Roskam is president, has purchased the exclusive Canadian rights to all of the Life Photo Film Corporation productions. Mr. Roskam is personally acquainted with every owner and theatrical manager in Canada. He has just opened a pretentious suite of offices at 591 St. Catherine street west, Montreal.

"A Prince of India"

Four-Part Eclectic Produced by Wharton Contains Good Drama and a Sensational Denouement.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IT is a strong story that Wharton, Incorporated, has given us in "A Prince of India." It is a story containing many good dramatic situations and of continuity in interest, with a smashing finish. Smashing is used literally; a trolley car jumps the track, breaks through a fence, and tumbles end over end into a gorge many feet below. The feat is not put over in miniature; what appears to happen so far as the car is concerned plainly does happen.



Scene from "A Prince of India" (Eclectic).

Thurlow Bergen is the Prince who is enamored of the Countess Mirska, known to her intimates as the Badger Queen. Mr. Bergen gives a fine performance. Elsie Esmonde plays the Countess. She is convincing; there is in her manner that which easily might lead the Prince to believe she is what she pretends to be. Her gentleness with the Prince changes when in consultation with her confederates to the hardness of the woman of the underworld. That she falls in love with the Prince as he has been infatuated by her, that she prevents the consummation of the almost completed robbery, only goes to prove that she is a woman after all and above all.

Scene from "A Prince of India" (Eclectic).

William Riley Hatch has the role of Moreland, the well-dressed and polished crook, who seeks to obtain possession of the jewel known as the Kiss of Death and who does not hesitate in his eagerness to get it to sacrifice the life of his male accomplice. Mr. Hatch at some moments has the bearing of the villain of melodrama, but these are rare. His work on the whole is most acceptable. Billy Mason, well known to picture followers through his long and excellent work with the Essanay company, has the role of the cub reporter. Mr. Mason fits the part and of it makes much. M. O. Penn is the Rajah on tour in the United States. What he has to do is well done.

The picture is well staged. The settings match the other details of the general production. The story does not make necessary the creation of Oriental atmosphere except in a minor way—the entourage of a Rajah stopping at a hotel—and it is adequate. The exteriors are of Ithaca, N. Y., and there are charming backgrounds.

"A Prince of India" is a strong production, one worth while not to miss.

"Ireland a Nation"

Five-Reel Production Giving Irish History in Picture Form, Released by Macnamara Feature Film Co., Inc.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

WALTER MACNAMARA, who wrote the scenario for "Ireland, A Nation," has been quick to seize upon the recent passage of the Home Rule bill as rounding up a significant phase of Irish history. It is now possible to write the epitaph of the great patriot, Robert Emmet, who said before his execution: "Let no man print my epitaph until Ireland takes her place among the nations of the earth." It brings a decided thrill, at the close of this five-reel offering, to see the grave stone of the beloved Emmet properly inscribed.

The first view of this production was given at the Forty-fourth Street theater, New York City, the evening of September 22. The playhouse was crowded with a host of moving picture people and friends of the producers, all of whom had come by special invitation. The house was accordingly expectant and there was a happy sprinkling of folks from the "ould sod," who applauded the film story and the rollicking Irish music of the evening. A quartette and soloists rendered most of the old favorites.

Prior to the beginning of the main production a reel of scenic film was shown, giving intimate views of the famous county Glendalough, the lakes of Killarney and other beautiful scenes. The management of the Forty-fourth Street theater should take immediate steps to improve the condition of its screen. In its present state it detracts greatly from the photography, having a soiled, wrinkled surface which is plainly visible through the pictures, giving a decidedly wierd effect at times.

Irish history is easily dramatized, for it contains many episodes which have a ready-made fictional interest. But little has to be added in the way of deliberate invention to keep up a story flavor. This production covers a vast amount of ground for a five-reel subject, and if it is to be criticised for anything it is the constant shifting of the interest from one character or event to another. This naturally could not be avoided. In telling so much it was impossible to keep from slurring the interest in certain dramatic episodes which piled upon one another too rapidly, in order to make room for the next.

Barry O'Brien makes an interesting figure as Robert Emmet. The other characterizations of Michael Dwyer, the Informer, Napoleon Bonaparte, Anne Devlin, Sarah Curran and others are acceptable. The performers are also restricted from individual acting in a way by the wealth of events to be shown.

The Irish House of Parliament is first pictured and the manner in which it was lost through the perfidy of Lord Castlereagh. Robert Emmet then steps into the picture and is seen making a visit to Napoleon to solicit his aid in fighting the English. On his return home Emmet is captured and imprisoned, through the efforts of the Informer. This familiar character acts as the villain of the piece. Anne Devlin's loyal friendship for Emmet is well brought out; neither the offer of gold nor threat of hanging could induce her to betray him. Emmet's trial and defiance of the English government is shown. Then follows his execution.

The last reel takes up Daniel O'Connell and the fatal duel he fought with D'Esterre. Next the famine and the Emigration period, and finally the passage of the Home Rule bill this year.

LASKY PLAYERS GO TO MONTEREY.

Cecil De Mille and eighteen players from the Lasky company went to Monterey, Cal., last week to photograph scenes among the missions for "The Rose of the Rancho."

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

OHIO EXHIBITORS MEET.

Anniversary of the Formation of Their State Organization Celebrated at Columbus.

THE Ohio branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America held its annual convention at Columbus, Ohio, on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 15 and 16. The meeting was held in the Southern Hotel and in the same room in which the organization was first formed five years ago. Over 100 exhibitors were present and the meeting was highly enthusiastic.

The first session was called to order at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by President M. A. Neff. In the evening of Tuesday there was a banquet at the Southern Hotel and the concluding sessions were held on Wednesday. President Pearce, of the National League, was present on Tuesday and addressed the convention.

All the exchanges in the state of Ohio and many other manufacturing interests were represented. The meeting was harmonious throughout.

The business transacted is represented by the following resolutions, all unanimously adopted:

CONCERNING AMALGAMATION.

Whereas: The executive committee of the M. P. E. L. of A. met in conference with the executive committee of the I. M. P. Association in the city of Dayton in July, 1914, and, after a general discussion, an agreement was reached. On report of the executive committee of the M. P. E. L. of A. to the convention of the League in session, a resolution was made and passed, that all former members of the M. P. E. L. of A. who had bolted or withdrawn from the League, should be reinstated upon individual application being made to their local or state organization, and that no fee should be charged for reinstatement, but the dues of each applicant should be paid from the time of making application for reinstatement, and

Whereas: The foregoing is a plain statement of the agreement at Dayton for the amalgamation of the two bodies, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Ohio State League demand that the agreement be sacredly and honestly kept and that the representatives of the I. M. P. Association keep their word, carrying out the statements made by them to the M. P. E. L. of A. convention at Dayton, and that they immediately make application for reinstatement as they promised to do. Be it further Resolved, That we recommend that all former members of the M. P. E. L. of A. who have not made application before Nov. 1, 1914, shall pay the regular initiation fee, and their membership voted upon, the same as if they had never been members of the League.

Resolved, That we endorse the action of President A. N. Wolf, of New York, in his action in refusing to accept the membership into the State of New York League, only upon the conditions agreed upon at the National Convention at Dayton, Ohio.

Resolved, That the M. P. E. L. of Ohio pledge its loyal and earnest support to M. S. Pearce, President of the National League.

TRADE PRESS ENDORSED.

Resolved, That the M. P. E. L. of Ohio is unalterably opposed to endorsing or designating any particular paper or publication as its official organ, unless, however, it should be one organized and maintained exclusively by the League. Be it further

Resolved, That we express our sincere appreciation to all of the moving picture publications for their loyal and enthusiastic support that they have heretofore extended to our League, and for the great good they have accomplished for the best interests of our business; and that we encourage and desire to co-operate with them in their very worthy efforts.

SUGGEST A MANUFACTURERS' ORGANIZATION.

Resolved, That, as it has not been heretofore practical for this League to effectively and satisfactorily confer and deal with the motion picture manufacturers with reference to affairs pertaining to their business and of interests in common, now, therefore, we suggest that the motion picture manufacturers organize, with officers and committees, for the purpose of negotiating and co-operating with this League in protecting the motion picture industry.

REGARDING AN EXPOSITION.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the M. P. E. L. of Ohio that the place of holding the next national exposition be consistent with the wishes of the bonafide motion picture manufacturers who naturally support the same. Now, therefore, we recommend to the National Executive Board that they confer with such manufacturers and designate a time and place of holding the national exposition and that the convention of the National League be held at the same time and place. That this League considers either New York or Chicago or Philadelphia as more advantageous to the interests of the exhibitor and manufacturer.

AGAINST "MOVIES."

Resolved, That the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Ohio, in convention assembled, resent the common reference to our business as the "movies" and with due appreciation and regard for its high standard request that "photoplay" or "motion pictures" be used, and that our members use their best efforts to have the trade papers and public press so designate our business and avoid any objectionable reference to same.

On the question of censorship a resolution was offered by Samuel Bullock, of Cleveland, requesting that the matter be submitted to a referendum vote, but there was no second to the proposition. It was the opinion of the members present that the law should have a fair trial before any attempt be made to repeal it.

On report that the Board of Censors were lax in their work, a committee was appointed to investigate that office. A grievance committee was subsequently appointed by President Neff to keep tabs on the state censors.

Reports from the Cleveland Local were to the effect that everything was harmonious in that city since the amalgamation and that Cleveland exhibitors were better organized than ever.

Building Inspector T. P. Kearns addressed the convention on Wednesday and informed the members that the proposed new building code would provide for motor-driven machines, also he assured them that the new code would not be retroactive.

Among other communications to the organization President Neff told the members that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the office of state president. A strenuous protest was entered against this decision.

WISCONSIN ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Exhibitors Form Wisconsin Photoplay Association at Milwaukee—Officers Elected—Want All to Join.

ABOUT fifty Wisconsin exhibitors met at the Plankinton House, Milwaukee, on Tuesday, September 15, pursuant to a call issued by Charles Philips, formerly president of the International Association, and formed an organization called the Wisconsin Photoplay Association, and the intention is to affiliate with the International Association. Mr. Philips called the meeting to order and addressed those present upon the necessity of organizing to meet injurious legislation. He said among other things that Milwaukee had always fought with success every attempt to pass laws antagonistic to the motion picture interests and urged that the exhibitors of the state at large join in the movement and bear their share of the expense.

An election of officers was held, with the following result: President, J. E. Sherwood, of Madison; Vice-President, A. R. Schuber, of Plymouth; Secretary, R. G. Nuss, of Milwaukee; Treasurer, George Fischer, of Milwaukee; Board of Directors, O. A. Noalke, of Lake Mills; W. T. Laibl, of Cedarbury; M. Rice, of Milwaukee; H. Trinz, of Milwaukee; A. T. Larson, of Pewaukee. Charles Philips was elected counsel for the organization.

An elaborate luncheon was served at the Plankinton by the Milwaukee exhibitors, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

It was reported that bills have already been drawn for presentation at the next legislature providing for a state license, a state building code, a censorship board and other matters bearing upon the picture theater business.

HERRINGTON TALKS ON ORGANIZATION.

Fred J. Herrington, organizer for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Pennsylvania, presided at a meeting of moving picture men of Uniontown, Pa., Sunday, September 20, in the Imp Theatre, at which he explained the advantages of an organization and the necessity of immediate action.

Mr. Herrington discussed two questions of importance to every one interested in the picture business, and they will be considered at the next session of the State Legislature. They are the censorship matter and the proposed new state building code. The latter proposition, if it becomes a law, will undoubtedly put some out of business. The censorship matter is an unsettled question at the present time, and there is no telling what disposition will be made of it at the next session of the Legislature in January.

Mr. Herrington understands the situation thoroughly, and is a very fluent talker. He will be pleased to meet groups of exhibitors in various parts of the state, and set forth the advantages and necessity of organizing. He can be addressed at his residence, 23 Knox avenue, Pittsburgh, or at his place of business, 115 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh.

Dyreda—New Producing Company.

Frank L. Dyer, J. Searle Dawley and J. Parker Read, Jr., at the Head of a Combination That Looks Good.

THE Dyreda Art Film Corporation is the latest aspirant for honors in the film field, and if names count in the winning of those honors they are here: Frank L. Dyer, J. Searle Dawley and J. Parker Read, Jr. Mr. Dyer is the former president of the General Film Company, Mr. Dawley is a long time director with the Edison and Famous Players companies, and Mr. Read has been a successful producer and exploiter of independent special features.

One subject already has been completed—"One of Millions," a story of the present war in Europe, and treated from the domestic phase rather than the military. It is in three reels. The leads are played by Laura Sawyer and Robert Broderick. Miss Sawyer is an experienced and a popular player. She was for a long time with Edison and was featured in a number of Famous Players' subjects during the past year. Mr. Broderick has been seen recently in productions of the Famous Players, of Pathe and of Kalem. On the stage he has played many important parts in high-class plays. Four other good players are already under contract.

Frank L. Dyer.

The second subject is now being produced at the studios of the company at Yonkers. The plant erected on the Clara Morris estate for the Reliance Company under the supervision of David W. Griffith has been leased from the Mutual Film Corporation. "In the Name of the Prince of Peace" will be in four or five reels, and, like "One of Millions," is from the pen of Mr. Dawley, who directed the first as he is directing the second. He is making full use of the two great stages—one glass inclosed 100 by 60 and the other outdoors, 130 by 100. In one scene of the subject now being made Mr. Dawley used an interior which is believed in depth to excel anything heretofore produced in the country—130 feet. "In the Name of the Prince of Peace" also has the European war for a background, but particular pains have been taken to avoid wounding the sensibilities of sympathizers with any of the fighting nations. There are battles in it, to be sure; they serve, however, more to create an atmosphere for the story, as complementary to the dramatic side. One of the factors in the production is the Second Battery, N. G. N. Y., with a detail of fifty men. The initial two subjects, it is said, will in no way mark the height of the company's capacity in the making of pictures, but will serve to show the exhibitors and the picture public what may be expected in the way of quality and also enable the producer to develop his working staff, both on the artistic and the mechanical end. Mr. Dawley says, by the way, that right now he is more than satisfied with the ability of his force. At the head of his camera department is Irving Willat, and with Dyreda pictures photography will receive a lot of attention; in charge of stage carpentry is Robert Nicholls.

J. Searle Dawley.

Up to the present the company has not closed contracts for placing its product on the market, although offers have been received from four distributing concerns. In conversation on Thursday Mr. Read said the company appreciated that next in importance to making good pictures was the medium of placing them before the public, and consequently much consideration had been given to the matter. Mr. Read said further that negotiations were on with one of the larger theatrical magnates for the production of his plays by the stars that have appeared in them.

"As regards the class of subjects we will put out I can only say it will be of the very best that Mr. Dawley can make," said Mr. Read. "It will be what the public wants. At the present time that seems to be big stuff with big stars. Some film men think this demand will die out, but it unquestionably is the thing right now. I think you will agree with me when I say that Mr. Dawley has had wider experience in handling stars, if I may use that expression, than any other director in America. There can be no question as to his success, his great success, in this particularly difficult field."

J. Parker Read, Jr.

The officers of the Dyreda are: President, Frank L. Dyer; vice-president and general manager, J. Parker Read, Jr.; treasurer, J. F. Redfield, formerly assistant treasurer and assistant secretary of the General Film Company. Mr. Dawley, who holds an important interest in the stock of the Dyreda, will have full charge of production. Mr. Dyer, it is said, will give his full attention to the affairs of the company.

Frank L. Dyer prior to assuming the presidency of the General Film Company was for a long time president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., of Orange, N. J. In this position he was the active head of all the Edison manufacturing companies. By profession Mr. Dyer is a lawyer. His administration of the General Film Company was popular with exhibitors.

J. Searle Dawley went to the Edison Company in May, 1907, as a director. Before that he had been for five years in stock in Brooklyn, where besides playing he wrote eighteen plays, all of which were produced. With the Edison Company Mr. Dawley did notable work, one of his most popular subjects being the "Charge of the Light Brigade," of which single reel 309 prints were sold in England alone. Mr. Dawley went to the Famous Players in June, 1913. His work for that company speaks for itself.

ACTOR HURT IN HIS CHEST.

The Liberty Motion Picture Company obtained unexpected settings for a dramatic production recently when a $20,000 fire occurred in the neighborhood of its "location," near Harmonville, Pa. When the blaze assumed serious proportions the company took a hand at the fireman job. George Wilbert, leading man, was caught in falling debris and sustained injuries to his chest.

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION LIQUIDATING

The Exclusive Supply Corporation of 220 West Forty-second street, this city, is closing out its business. All its furniture and stock on hand are now being sold and accounts settled.

MOBERLY'S GRAND THEATER BURNED.

The Grand Theater of Moberly, Mo., was caught in a local conflagration September 9 and destroyed.

Warner's Celebrates Anniversary

Mutual Congratulations on the Growth of the Company—Directorate Increased and Officers Elected.

THE staff of Warner's Features, Inc., got together Monday night in honor of the first anniversary of the inauguration of the firm's feature service.

It was on September 21, 1913, that the debut occurred. The releases that marked the opening of the service were "A Living Corpse," "Jeptha's Daughter" and "In the Power of a Hypnotist," and ever since that time the original plan announced by President P. A. Powers when he incorporated the company—that of releasing three big features a week—has been adhered to.

Mr. Powers' remarks at the staff's celebration were devoted to the aims and policies which have been responsible for the great growth of the company during its year of activity, closing with this impressive keynote:

"I want especially to impress upon you that our growth is due to one prime cause—we give the exhibitor what he needs. We have been giving him great features. We are now giving him a complete service of the best single and multiple reels that can be produced. It is the exhibitor's part to please the public. It is our part to enable him to do so. So long as we bear in mind this truth we will go forward with still greater strides."

P. A. POWERS,
President.

HARRY M. WARNER,
Vice-President.

O. S. GOAN,
Treasurer.

P. A. CHASE,
Asst. Secy. and Treasurer.

The facts brought out at the celebration are especially interesting as a record of business progress.

Mr. Powers' idea at the time he incorporated the company and became its president was to build up a big organization for the marketing of feature films on a scale hitherto unattempted. To this end his first attention was given to distributing facilities. He proceeded at once to establish exchanges, and by the time the first releases were made twenty offices had been opened in all parts of the country.

The scheme of releasing three big features a week, thus supplying a regular feature service, met with quick response from exhibitors. Warner's Features became exceedingly popular, and it was soon evident that the right note had been struck. Then came the rapid development which has made the company's initial year decidedly a notable one.

First, the constantly increasing business necessitated a corresponding increase in distribution facilities. From time to time new exchanges were opened, until to-day the number has reached the total of thirty-four, covering the United States, Canada and Europe. Furthermore, the demand by exhibitors for "more Warner" has brought about a tremendous increase in the number of releases. Whereas, the original plan was for three features a week, the present requirements have caused the addition of a twenty-one reel weekly program and big specials of four or more reels selected from the world's famous producers.

The new weekly program is just now attracting much attention. Plans to make it an unusually well balanced one have been effectively carried out in the formation of a general producing organization under the title of the United Motion Picture Producers, Inc. This general company, consising of the most experienced and successful film producers, so regulates the production of its individual companies that the diversified character and quality of the Warner's program is always maintained. As to the big "specials" which will be released from time to time, the first of these—now ready—is "The Adventures of Kitty Cobb," adapted from James Montgomery Flagg's famous series of drawings.

Still another development of the company's first year was the action taken at the recent annual meeting of the stockholders. A feature was the report of the treasurer, which was received with many expressions of gratification. The report showed the wonderful progress made during the year. As a result, it was unanimously decided to double the company's capitalization in order to cover the large increase in its operations. The stockholders also increased the directorate of the company to seven members instead of four. The directors are: P. A. Powers, J. A. McKinney, W. D. Campbell, of Campbell, Heath & Co., New York; J. E. Baum, of the Supple-Biddle Hardware Co., Philadelphia; H. M. Warner, L. G. Erb and Leo C. Stern. The officers elected are: P. A. Powers, president; H. M. Warner, vice-president; O. S. Goan, treasurer; J. A. McKinney, secretary; P. A. Chase, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

Included in the plans for the coming year are further additions to the number of Warner exchanges. The idea is to make it as convenient as possible for exhibitors of Warners program and features to transact business with the company, and while the thirty-four exchanges now in operation cover the country very thoroughly new offices will be opened whenever the needs of certain territories call for such action.

REEL FELLOWS ENTERTAIN.

The Reel Fellows of Philadelphia held an enjoyable meeting at J. E. Emanuel's Ridge Avenue Theater recently, at which time the house was filled to capacity. Entertainment was provided from sketches playing at other Philadelphia houses and proved a welcome feature in addition to several interesting pictures. Refreshments in ample quantity were supplied.

HARRY ENNIS GOES TO BILLBOARD.

Harry Ennis, who for the past year and a half has been editor of the motion picture section of the Clipper, has transferred his activities to the Billboard. Mr. Ennis now is editing the music department, taking especial cognizance of popular songs, and writing reviews of legitimate productions and vaudeville and burlesque skits, as well as looking over the pictures when not otherwise engaged.

Mr. Ennis has been succeeded on the Clipper by George Proctor.

DAVID HORSLEY ANNOUNCES A NEW BOY.

Born at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, to Mr. and Mrs. David Horsley, a son. Mr. Horsley is quite elated over the advent, especially as it comes upon the heels of the announcement of his "Ace" brand of pictures to be released by the General Film Company. Mother and boy are doing well. Horsley is asking his friends for a title for the new release.

Horsley in Licensed Group

His Ace Comedies to Take the Place in General Films Program Formerly Held by Pathe.

DAVID HORSLEY has been taken into the licensed fold, and, for the first time in the history of that powerful organization, a new brand of film has been added to the regular program of the General Film Company.

Ever since the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company in 1908, efforts have been made by the powers of the film world, both in and out of the company, to add to the list of licensed manufacturers, but in spite of the great pressure that has so frequently been brought to bear the original ten manufacturers held intact and the lineup remained unchanged until the present year. Quite recently Pathe Freres severed its relations with the General Film Co., and it is in effect to fill this void that another manufacturer has been taken in.

Mr. Horsley was the first independent manufacturer in America, and consequently has bucked the competition of the licensed organization longer than any other man in the field. His struggle from a meagre beginning, his steady advance through the successive trying conditions of the fast growing industry and final triumph as the possessor of one of the large commercial plants in America and admission to the General Film program of his productions indicate his progressiveness.

DAVID HORSLEY.

For the present Mr. Horsley will release three one-reel comedies a week. These comedies will be known under the new brand name of Ace, and will probably be procurable from the various offices of the General Film Company about the middle of October, although no definite date has yet been set.

The productions will for the next three months be made in the Centaur studios at Bayonne. Later, as the winter sets in, two companies will be sent to California, probably near Los Angeles, where Mr. Horsley is considering the erection of a new studio. At least two companies will, in any event, continue to work in the Bayonne studios all winter.

O. W. Biarmer, who was Mr. Horsley's aide in his negotiations with the General Film Co., has been appointed general sales manager of the Centaur Film Company. Milton H. Fahrney continues as director-in-chief. Mr. Fahrney's comedies are said to be the finest that this long experienced director has accomplished.

Tommie Mullens is directing a new style of slapstick comedy of high promise. Two other directors of special selection for a demonstrated ability to produce laugh makers, one for cartoon and the other for "polite" comedies, are hard at work, and their names are being withheld from publication to aid Mr. Horsley in springing a surprise when the releases are made.

The acting forces include some good performers, such as Mlle. Valkyrien, the Danish star.

Nettie Noges is another Russian player of international repute.

Elaine Ivans heads the native contingent, and in this talented young miss—she has just turned eighteen—Mr. Horsley expects to develop an American favorite.

Harry La Pearl, many years producing clown of the Barnum & Bailey and Ringling circuses and recognized as the greatest American pantomimist, and ten other leading clowns are under contract.

Chester Beecroft, one time advertising and publicity manager of the Motion Picture Patents Company, and who until recently occupied the same position with the General Film Company, is also associated with Mr. Horsley in a general capacity of broad scope.

Big things are expected of the Ace Comedies, and their appearance on the General Film program will be watched with eager interest.

CIVIL WAR ENGINE FILMED FOR 'FRISCO.

The General, a locomotive that did much service in the Civil War, is to be brought out of its honored retirement in the car shed in Chattanooga and shown in a picture to be taken for the Georgia exhibit at the San Francisco fair. It is said that the engine can do forty miles an hour, and it will have a chance to do this in the re-enactment of the scenes showing the struggles between the Andrew Raiders and the Federals.

BULLOCK, OMITTING CENSOR TAG, IS UPHELD.

Sam Bullock, proprietor of the Boulevard Motion Picture Theater, of Cleveland, Ohio, arrested recently, charged with exhibiting a motion picture not bearing the "leader" of the State Board of Censors, has been discharged in court. The trial was short, the examination involving only two or three hundred words. "There is no violation of any penal statute for not showing a 'leader' attached to a film," said the court, "and the defendant is discharged."

STANDEES PROHIBITED IN SCRANTON, PA.

Director of Public Safety Derby, of Scranton, Pa., has notified all managers of theaters, moving picture houses and public halls that the selling of standing room will not be permitted during the season about to open.

THE IMP COMPANY IN CONNECTICUT.

Herbert Brenon's Imp company has been spending several weeks at Lake Waramaug, New Preston, Conn. Here in the Berkshire Hills they made the exteriors for three new productions—"Redemption," "Lest We Forget," and "Peg o' the Wilds." The last two are said to have given special opportunities to the new leading woman of the company, Violet Mercereau.

Upper row—Ed Baker, Charles Swartz. Second row—Herbert Brenon, producer; Phil Rosen, photographer; Mrs. Allen Walker, Wiliam Welsh (in character). Third row—William E. Shay, Violet Mercereau, Hobart Henley. In front—Cyril Brenon.

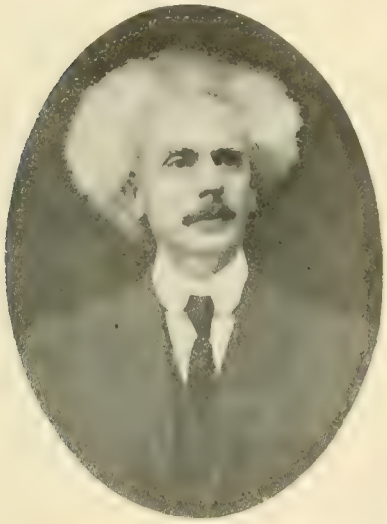
Robert Hope-Jones Dead.

Passing of Famous Organ Builder Whose Later Work Contributed So Much to Entertainment of Picture Patrons.

THE death of Robert Hope-Jones, who committed suicide at Rochester, September 13, removes from the musical field one of its most notable figures. This famous organ builder, who had reached the age of seventy-three years, is known the world over for his wonderful adaptation of electric forces to the playing of this type of instrument, both large and small. Mr. Hope-Jones was recently spoken of by the professor of music of Wellesley College, Mass., as "the greatest mind engaged in the art of organ building in this or in any other age."

In England, where he was born, Mr. Hope-Jones created a veritable revolution in organ building. He built organs for celebrated cathedrals and public buildings and went from that country to many foreign lands, where he carried on this work.



The Late Robert Hope-Jones.

His labors in the United States, since first coming here in 1903, have been equally revolutionary, though greatly hampered by financial difficulties. The plant of the Hope-Jones company was recently purchased by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company and the inventor was associated with this firm at the time of his death. His suicide was probably due to depression of spirits over some pending lawsuits.

Perhaps the most lasting monument to his memory in this country is the wonderful organ installed at Ocean Grove Auditorium at Ocean Grove, N. J. This is said to be the greatest pipe organ in the world and has furnished pleasure to thousands of music lovers. Even more astonishing in its details is the Hope-Jones unit orchestra, which took him over twenty-three years to complete.

This unit orchestra was recently described by a writer in the Scientific American, who says as follows concerning it:

"Mr. Hope-Jones began his experiments as a hobby, and though it has now become his life work he still looks upon it with the same fondness as the one who does work for sheer pleasure. Naturally, he commenced this work on the organ. He began by placing all the movements in the organ under electrical control. This very soon showed that he could secure an action on the instrument that far exceeded the ordinary movement. But this did not satisfy him. As a musician, he felt that the musical qualities of the organ were not what they might be, and he therefore set out to improve them. Very soon he had a new invention that made possible a finer quality of tone and a larger variety of timbre. This was an apparatus for photographing sound waves in the atmosphere. With photographs of every conceivable instrument in every conceivable variety of tone, it was a comparatively easy matter to reproduce pipes whose notes were, if not exactly identical with those of the original, very near them. And when the percussive instruments that worked in harmony with organ pipes were added, it enabled the player to absolutely control the expression by hand and foot. It was now possible to reproduce the tones of the very finest musicians, and the control of the instrument and its rapid action permitted the operator to produce music such as we associate with the very finest orchestras."

Mr. Hope-Jones was recognized by his associates and musicians the world over as a man of remarkable personality. He was originally an electrical engineer by profession, but afterward a voluntary church organist, which naturally turned his mind toward the development of musical instruments. He was elected a member of the British Institute of Electrical Engineers, and was also a member of the Royal College of Organists.

Moving picture audiences are particularly indebted to Mr. Hope-Jones for the adaptation of the unit orchestra to the requirements of exhibitors. The great instrument now in use in the Vitagraph Theater in New York City was installed by him personally.

Hunter Bennett Returns to New York.

Assistant General Manager of World Film Corporation Finds Increasing Demand for Features.

LEAVING New York July 5, Hunter Bennett, assistant general manager of the World Film Corporation, has just returned to New York after a tour of inspection of the twenty-three branch offices of his company.

"The popularity of the feature film," says Mr. Bennett, "is on the increase, and I can cite instances where many of the largest and the best photoplay houses in the country are signing up for exclusive feature service. I have found cases where some exhibitors complain that they cannot increase their receipts by playing features. Upon looking into this matter closely I learned that these exhibitors lacked the qualifications that go to make a showman. They know that features are being used to advantage by other exhibitors, and while they would like to follow the methods of their more successful competitor they do not see that it is concentration that puts the other man forward. He appreciates that the feature needs to be billed and advertised, just as one would a traveling attraction. When that is done results are bound to follow. The public wants to see the features, but they want to know where to go and what they are going to see when they get there.

"I find the South is a trifle slower in taking to the feature than other portions of the country have been. This is due to the fact that many of the Southern exhibitors do not know how to distinguish between a feature and the regular service, and they do not give their patrons the opportunity of understanding that they are giving them something above the average in booking features for their patrons. However, the feature film is gradually gaining ground in the South. The exhibitors down there are beginning to realize that in playing features they must also play the newspapers and the billboards to smash box office records.

"The most progressive exhibitors are on the Pacific Coast. In San Francisco and Los Angeles feature films of quality have been seen before they were shown in New York City. This is due to the patrons being educated to look for the newest and the best that filmdom has to offer. As this desire and demand grows throughout the country, feature film manufacturing will have to come to a higher plane and supply finer pictures than they have up to now. We feel that this demand is surely coming and we are convinced that we have gauged matters right, for the demand for the Shubert and Brady releases has been so great throughout the country that where we planned one and two prints would be sufficient we find that two and four are being called for.

SCOTT SIGNS WITH SAWYER.

C. R. Scott, of the firm of Underwood & Scott, comprising the Dallas Film Co., of Dallas, Texas, has been in New York for the past four weeks, and after thoroughly investigating the local picture field and viewing all the programs offered, he decided upon the service of Sawyer, Inc. Contracts were signed on Tuesday, by which they will handle the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas as a Sawyer zone.

Mr. Scott is very well known through the Southwest as one of the pioneers in the film business of the region. For the past eight years he has handled pictures in the territory, at one time operating a chain of theaters. These he abandoned in favor of the film exchange proposition. In Texas alone there are 700 theaters in operation, according to Mr. Scott, and in his whole territory covered by the Sawyer zone franchise there are nearly 1400 buying exhibitors.

SELIG'S BOXING KANGAROO ESCAPES DEATH BY FIRE.

Selig's boxing kangaroo, known in vaudeville as "Bob Fitzsimmons," had a narrow escape from being burned to death at the Cozy Theater, Waco, Tex., on Thursday night, September 18.

This clever animal is under the management of Lewis H. Daugherty, filling dates on a southern circuit, and was booked for three days, beginning Thursday, at the Cozy. "Bob" was housed in the basement of the theater, where the fire broke out about midnight. Mr. Daugherty, luckily, chanced to pass the theater at the time, and a fire alarm was turned in. But he did not let "Bob" wait until the arrival of the firemen. He entered the theater and rushed to "Bob's" cage where the poor creature was almost suffocated by the dense smoke. Manager Daugherty and "Bob" had to be assisted to the open air, where they soon recovered.

"Bob" is one of the most intelligent pets of the big Selig Zoo at Los Angeles.

Blinkhorn Goes Into Renting

At the Head of the Blinkhorn Photoplays Corporation, He Is Opening Nine Exchanges.

AN American film man visiting England last spring was asked by a prominent British trade man if he knew "Blinkie." "Indeed I do," was the response. "And let me say if you have here any more like him shoot 'em over. We'll be glad to make room for them. 'Blinkie's' made a bunch of real friends."

It was quite a bit less than two years ago that Albert Blinkhorn opened business in New York City. It was not long before he was the president of the American Hepworth Company, handling the output of the well-known English company for the United States. So, too, he marketed the product of Turner Films, in which were featured Florence Turner, old-time and present-time favorite. Mr. Blinkhorn "caught on" with the American crowd from the start. He brought with him a way of considering a subject before he gave a decision as to his viewpoint; so, too, he had the faculty of convincing those with whom he came in contact that his word was good—that a verbal promise was the equivalent of his bond.

Albert Blinkhorn.

Mr. Blinkhorn has resigned his position as president of the Hepworth American Company and formed the Blinkhorn Photoplays Corporation. He has opened offices in New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Atlanta and Dallas, and a man now on the road is making arrangements for exchanges in Denver, Seattle and San Francisco. The executive offices of the company are in the World's Tower Building, 110 West Fortieth street, this city, where Mr. Blinkhorn has heretofore been situated. Here will be directed the booking of Hepworth, Florence Turner, Charles Urban Trading Company, Eclipse and Hecla productions, as well as Ivy Close features, the latter of which are controlled by the Hepworth Company.

The creation of a new organization is due to the changing market conditions in the United States and in no measure to any alteration in the amicable relations that have existed between Mr. Blinkhorn and the Hepworth Company. Mr. Blinkhorn for some time has held the opinion that the best way to get full value out of films is to rent them yourself. To put it mildly, he says, the condition of the state's right market is unsatisfactory. The Blinkhorn Corporation will not limit itself to the brands named, but is in a position to buy American negative or positive prints of subjects of approved merit for marketing through its exchanges, for distribution in the United States or throughout the world.

Mr. Blinkhorn is president and general manager of the new company, and has full control. He will make a specialty of educational subjects and also films suitable for presentation in churches of all denominations. He now has some of these on hand. He said the other day, in answer to a question, that the war in Europe would not affect the product of the Hepworth, Turner or Eclipse companies: "I made arrangements when in London to have first-class features sent over," said Mr. Blinkhorn, "and I hope to give my patrons some of the best releases on the market. If I have succeeded here far beyond my anticipations it is because of the splendid treatment I have received from the trade at large. Make no mistake, I appreciate it."

Screen Club Nominees.

Four Tickets from Which Members Will Select Officers at Election on October 3.

FOR the annual election of the Screen Club, which will be held at the club house in Forty-seventh street on the afternoon of Saturday, October 3, four tickets are in the field. There is quite a bit of rivalry over the presidency. Although President Baggot has not at the present writing formally indicated his intentions not to be again a candidate, there is no doubt in the minds of his close friends that he will not alter his determination, reached some time ago, that a change in the complexion of the official board should be brought about, that the infusion of new blood will be healthy for the organization. There can be no question that the growth of the Screen Club, since its formation two years ago, has been far beyond what its charter members dared hope. It speaks volumes for its administration.

The candidates so far named, with the choice of the official nominating board first in order, are as follows: For president, King Baggot, James Kirkwood, Joseph Farnham, Billy Quirk; first vice president, James Young, Ben Wilson (two tickets), William Robert Daly; second vice-president, J. Stuart Blackton, Adolph Zukor, C. A. Willat, Augustus Phillips; third vice president, Francis X. Bushman, J. Stuart Blackton, J. C. Graham, James Durkin.

For corresponding secretary, Samuel E. Spedon (two tickets), Bill Barry (two tickets); recording secretary, Dave Wall, Paul Scardon, Fred Beecroft, Jack Noble; treasurer, George Blaisdell; for board of governors (two years, four to be elected), Jacob H. Gerhardt, George A. Lessey, Hopp Hadley, Ashley Miller; Hopp Hadley, Jules Bernstein, Jacob H. Gerhardt, Frank Powell; Jacob H. Gerhardt, Hopp Hadley, King Baggot, James Kirkwood; Samuel E. Spedon, Frank Powell, Jacob H. Gerhardt, Jules Bernstein.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN IN TOWN.

Francis X. Bushman registered at the Screen Club on Tuesday, September 22. He comes to New York at the head of an Essanay company under the direction of E. H. Calvert, for the taking of scenes in "The Slim Princess," the four-part feature being produced by the Chicago company. Others in the party were Ruth Stonehouse and Wallace Beery. They stopped at the Biltmore. The players were in Washington on Monday, where scenes were taken.

Mr. Bushman was complaining about the heat and denied he had brought it with him from the Lake City. He said he had been tipped off that the weather in the metropolis was very cool and brought clothing to withstand the chill breezes. He was unprepared for a temperature soaring in the nineties, with General Humidity right on the job. The Essanay star said he expected to stay in New York the remainder of the week. He was looking fine and fit—trained to the ounce; but this seems his normal condition.

VITAGRAPH NIGHT AT THE REGENT.

Under the personal conduct of Sam Spedon, publicity man for the Vitagraph Company; Hughie Mack, Wallie Van, Flora Finch and Lillian Walker greeted a large and happy audience at the Regent theater, Seventh avenue and 116th street, Monday evening, September 21. "The New Stenographer," a Vitagraph feature in which all of the players named appeared, was shown and greeted with much laughter. After the show George Balsdon, general manager of the Picture Theaters' Company, which operates the Regent, conducted the party to the West End restaurant on 125th street, and presided at an elaborate supper.

CHICAGO LETTER

BY JAS. S. McQUADE

Healthy Business for Chicago Supply Houses.

COLUMBIAN carbons of fair quality are now being turned out in good quantities, and are being sold to exhibitors direct by the National Carbon Company, of Cleveland. The regular market price of $4.75 per 100, for 5/8 in. by 12 in., is charged.

Another concern, the name of which has escaped me, has recently begun the manufacture of projector carbons, of an extremely high grade. This firm is well known as the manufacturer of carbon motor brushes. Its product will be handled by the Central Electric Co., the head office of which is in Chicago, with branch offices in several other cities. In about two or three weeks samples of the firm's projector carbons will be submitted to the larger supply houses for testing. The firm announces that these high grade carbons will be put on the market at the regular prices.

Chicago supply houses report a large increase of business during September and the latter part of August. This has been especially so with the Kleine Optical Co. This indicates a healthy condition of affairs with exhibitors. The nature of the orders pouring in shows that exhibitors are taking greater pride in the thorough fitting of their theatres, and that they are ready and willing to secure all the latest projection devices and articles of general equipment.

A Strong Testimonial to the "Circulation" and "Readibility" of the Moving Picture World.

It is almost superfluous to furnish evidence showing the merits of the Moving Picture World as an advertising medium for the trade; but the following letter, bearing the date of Sept. 5, from George Kleine, is a remarkable tribute, not only because of its candor and that it came unsolicited, but also for the reason that it comes from the oldest and largest concern of its kind on this continent:

> Mr. Jas. S. McQuade,
> c/o Moving Picture World,
> 64 W. Randolph St.,
> Chicago, Illinois.
>
> Dear Mr. McQuade:—In your issue of August 8th, we carried a page advertisement, featuring our catalogue of Motion Picture Apparatus and Theater Supplies. We repeated this in four subsequent issues with inquiries pouring in at the rate of 500 per week.
>
> Such returns from a publication of 100,000 circulation would be considered very fair; from a trade paper they are extraordinary. Surely, they form a strong testimonial not only to the circulation of The World, but the "readibility" of its columns as well.
>
> Checking up our inquiries, we find a great majority from the "worth-while" men of the trade, which in itself is an item of much importance in judging the returns of a campaign of this character.
>
> We are delighted with our returns thus far, and believe you will be pleased to hear of it.
>
> Very truly yours,
> KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY,
> Per George Kleine.

"Stink Bombs" Follow Threat on Account Labor Trouble.

The patrons of the Biograph and Vitagraph theaters, this city, located at 2443 and 3143 Lincoln avenue, respectively, were forced to leave these houses Sunday evening, Sept. 20, by the vicious throwing of "stink bombs," akin to the Chinese "stink pot," used in warfare by Chinese piratical junks, in their forays on peaceful merchantmen in days gone by.

These fine new theaters are controlled by Lubliner & Trinz, who opened them only a few weeks ago, and the only reason that can be given by the manager for the outrages is that it is due to labor trouble. According to him, he has made it a policy to employ operators affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and he asserts that several days before the outrages he was visited by two representatives of the I. B. E. W., who threatened to injure his business unless he hired operators from that organization. He ordered them from his office, with the result already stated.

The Vitagraph theater was the first to suffer because of the manager's action. It is said that two men entered the house about 9 o'clock on the evening mentioned, and after watching the show for a few minutes, they threw the obnoxious bombs and disappeared.

About five minutes later a similar offense was committed in the Biograph theater. The patrons of both theaters sought refuge in the open air until the stench had been overcome by the exhaust fans, when they again took their seats.

At the time of writing the culprits had not been discovered, but a force of city detectives is on their track and it is hoped they will soon be brought within reach of the strong arm of the law.

Censor Funkhouser on Co-Education and Pictures.

Major Funkhouser, the active head of Chicago's censor board, is much in demand as a speaker before reform organizations. In a speech delivered last week before the Chicago Christian Endeavor branch, at its seventh annual convention in this city, he expressed himself as being unalterably opposed to co-education; declaring that boys and girls should be segregated until their ideas of life are formed. He urged the members of the organization to stand for segregation of the sexes in schools. Incidentally he announced his belief that moving pictures will soon be shown in every school in this country.

"The white slave moving picture is gone," he said. "The public is tired of the subject in drama, reel and story. A tale like that of 'The Fight' couldn't 'get by' today. Keep the boys and girls apart until they have enough education to stand alone."

Real War Pictures Few in Number.

Philip Rader, a daring young American aviator, succeeded in getting moving pictures of an artillery duel between the German and French armies near the town of Meaux, in France, a few days ago. After securing the pictures he hid the camera and the precious film in the cellar of a deserted house and fled, the house then being near the zone of firing.

"I believe the pictures I took are almost the only ones in existence showing an actual artillery duel in the present war," said Mr. Rader to Edgar A. Mowrer, a war correspondent. So few real pictures are being taken of scenes of the war that people the world over will anxiously await their arrival at home theaters.

Liberal Gift to Chicago's Theatrical Hospital.

To perpetuate the memory of his wife, who died recently in New York, and who was his partner in vaudeville, "Jack" Wilson has donated $5,000 to the fund being collected to build the American Theatrical Hospital in Chicago. The money is to be used to provide and equip an operating amphitheater to be known as the "Ada Lane Wilson Memorial."

In addition to the gift of $5,000, Mr. Wilson has taken building bonds in the project to the amount of $15,000. The tender devotion of Mr. Wilson and his wife and their continued happy married life had long been a source of pride to the theatrical profession, and their union often was pointed to as a refutation of the frequent statement that no theatrical marriage is a success.

The American Theatrical Hospital, when completed, will be the only institution of its kind in the United States, as it will be devoted exclusively to the treatment of members of the theatrical and photoplay professions and employes of theaters.

Joseph Hopp, the well-known exchange man, now president of a Chicago bank, was one of the most active citizens in the enterprise of building the new hospital.

Chicago Film Brevities.

John F. Pribyl, personal representative of Wm. N. Selig, returned from a trip to Colorado Springs, Monday last, to which resort he went after being discharged from the Michael Reese hospital, this city. Mr. Pribyl is now in excellent health and is kept busy, outside of his other labors, in acknowledging the hearty personal congratulations of numerous friends.

* * *

Chicago exhibitors, using Paramount service, would be glad if the Paramount Co. could give them a chance to see the pictures in this city in advance before bookings are made. Chicago exhibitors are exacting in this respect, as they consider themselves the best judges of the programs that will suit their patrons.

* * *

Adolph Eisner, who has been Universal branch manager at Calgary, Alberta, for some time past, returned to the city a few days ago. I understand that Mr. Eisner does not intend going back to the northwest, as the winters are pretty trying.

* * *

The Box Office Attraction Co. has opened an office in Suite 516, Mallers Bldg., this city. T. C. Montgomery, formerly of the General Film Co., has taken charge. This office controls the booking of the company's releases in some of the middle western states. Their latest production, "St. Elmo," is now being booked in Illinois.

* * *

J. H. Mayer, formerly editor of the Billboard in Cincinnati, spent a few days in the city last week. Mr. Mayer reported the recent Ohio state convention in Columbus for the New York Morning Telegraph. He advised me that the convention had approved of the publication of a trade paper by the Ohio branch of the League. This paper will probably be called the Motion Picture Age and will have offices either in Cincinnati or Columbus. Mr. Mayer has been appointed editor.

* * *

The Blinkhorn Photoplay Corporation has opened an office in Suite 511, Mallers Bldg., this city. A. G. Buck, formerly with the Edison Co., has been appointed manager. This office will distribute the company's product in middle western states. Hepworth, Florence Turner, Eclipse and Hecla brands are now being released.

* * *

Francis X. Bushman, E. H. Calvert, Ruth Stonehouse and Wallace Berry left for the East last week to take scenes for the four-reel Essanay production, "The Slim Princess," written by George Ade. Scenes will be taken in New York harbor, Old Point Comfort and Washington. Mr. Ade will personally supervise the taking of some of the sets.

* * *

The Chicago board of censors rejected, last week, the "$5,000,000 Counterfeiting Plot," in which Wm. J. Burns figures prominently. Harvey Brient, who has spent quite a sum in preparing to exhibit the picture in the city, protested strongly against the action of the censors, and demanded reasons for the rejection of his picture. The censors informed him that they were not required to give reasons. Afterwards it was decided that the censors would again view the picture later on.

* * *

Annette Kellermann, who is at present living in France, hopes to appear in a new spectacular film in the coming year. Her manager has privately informed Alfred Hamburger, this city, that he is offering $500 for the scenario of a new photoplay for Miss Kellermann. In this photoplay Miss Kellermann's swimming, diving, dancing, swordsmanship, etc., must all be given a good showing.

* * *

The Englewood Theater, West 63rd and South Halsted streets, was broken into by burglars last week. The safe was blown open and the burglars escaped with $682 and jewelry worth $1,400, according to the statement of L. M. Quitman, the manager.

* * *

A reader of the Chicago News asks that paper in a recent letter why the life of Sir William Wallace, the great Scottish chieftain, should not be done in films. The "Scottish Chiefs," a thrilling novel by Miss Jane Porter, which I read when a boy, affords splendid material for a scenario. Now let some of our big producers go ahead.

* * *

Essanay is now sending more films to England than before the war started. This should be the experience of most of our leading manufacturers, as the English market depends chiefly on America for its product.

SAWYER HAS "SHAKESPEARE" PICTURES.

Sawyer, Inc., announce that they have closed contracts with the Trans-Oceanic Flms, Ltd., to handle their productions, "The Life of Shakespeare: His Intrigues and Romances" and "The Aerial Scout." The Shakespeare film is in five reels, and it is one of the most brilliant and dramatic of feature films. The great bard's life was one long series of adventures, romances and intrigues; far surpassing the imagination of modern scenario writers are the facts that history has brought down to us, and which are so strikingly recorded in this picture, which will shortly be released.

"The Aerial Scout," in two reels, is a thrilling story which might almost be called melodramtic. Certainly it holds interest every moment of the time.

HANFORD C. JUDSON OFF TO THE HILLS.

Hanford C. Judson, of the staff of the Moving Picture World, has gone to the White Mountains for rest and recuperation. Mr. Judson is not ill, but he has not recovered his old-time snap and ginger following two operations early in the summer. The best wishes of his associates and a host of friends go with him to his retreat in the hills, in full confidence that the invigorating New Hampshire air will be the tonic that sends him back to them better than ever.

NEW ALICE JOYCE PICTURE.

Kalem Star Photographed Wearing a Lucille Gown and a Million Dollars' Worth of Jewels.

THERE is that about the phrase "a million dollars' worth of jewelry," which presents a tremendous appeal to the popular imagination. The average person has never seen so great a fortune in gems at one time. With but one exception, no person of modern times, and but few who figure in history, have been known to wear a collection of jewels totalling a million dollars.

It takes a strong imagination, a keen knowledge of human nature and an appreciation of what constitutes good publicity, to originate an advertising device which makes use of a girl of surpassing loveliness, wearing a gown representing the supreme achievement of the country's foremost modiste, and a million dollars' worth of gems. Here are all the elements calculated to arouse interest and fill the average person with curiosity. They form a combination which is irresistible.

Alice Joyce.

The half-tone of Miss Joyce is the photograph of an oil painting which was made recently while a forthcoming feature of the Alice Joyce Series was being filmed. Aside from the fact that the painting is a wonderful likeness of Kalem's beautiful star, the picture is of interest in that it shows Miss Joyce wearing a three-thousand-dollar gown designed by Lucille (Lady Duff-Gordon), and jewels which approximate a total value of a cool million.

The fame of Lucille as a designer of gowns for the members of ultra-fashionable society is widespread and the fact that Miss Joyce wears a gown which represents Lucille's utmost achievement, would alone be sufficient to arouse a keen desire on the part of the feminine photoplay patrons to see the feature in which the gown is worn. Added to this is the wealth of gems with which Kalem's star is adorned.

It required no small sum to secure the loan of the jewels for a few hours' use. It is stated that the rental and the expenditure necessary to insure their safety during that time actually exceeded the cost of producing the average two-reel production. An arrangement was effected with Lebold & Company, of New York, among the most prominent of the Fifth avenue jewelers, whereby Kalem secured the loan of the gems for a period sufficient to take the scenes in which they were to be used. A special force of detectives was employed to surround the studio and guard Miss Joyce while the scenes were being filmed and later, when the portrait from which the oil paintings were made, was being photographed.

Among the jewels worn by the Kalem star were a magnificent tiara, containing eighty diamonds; a huge pear-shaped pearl, famous the world over, suspended from a necklace of diamonds; a superb diamond sunburst, in the center of which nestled a pigeon blood ruby, and a hand-beaten gold bracelet containing a circle of pearls surrounding a superb ruby.

The beautiful oil painting which shows Miss Joyce in the Lucille gown and wearing the fortune in jewels will create a sensation wherever it is shown. Exhibitors who appreciate the great attention-attracting value of this painting, and its value when advertising future Alice Joyce features, will therefore be gratified to learn that a limited number of them have been made by Kalem and that they will be sold at actual cost, $14, f. o. b. New York. Paintings similar to these have been sold for $35.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"VIRTUE ITS OWN REWARD" (Rex).

Is virtue its own reward? Those of the old religious school will probably say, "Yes." But what has been your experience? "Virtue" and "Sacrifice" are two very nice sounding words but, after all, what are they worth when put into actual practice? Annie and Alice are the two girls of our story. Annie and Alice are sisters, suckled at the same mother's breast, taught the same morals, reared in the same town under similar environments, and yet it would be hard to find two girls more differently constituted, mentally and morally, than Annie and Alice. But this is one of the incongruities of nature none of us can explain. Yet the situation that is found in this play, with just a little common place town as the background and these two girls as the central figures what explanations have you to offer. In its reflection of small town life the play is a gem—the situation, however, we do not think is unusual. In fact, we fear it is all too common, particularly in the small town—that failure on the part of people to properly estimate and appreciate Virtue in its highest form.

Scene from "Virtue Its Own Reward" (Rex).

"Virtue Its Own Reward" will strike a responsive chord in the heart of everyone. This story is not complex, still the situation that is evolved is not to be resisted. It is human. As for the interpretation of the play, Pauline Bush, one of the foremost emotional actresses of the screen, interprets the role of Annie. Supporting her are splendid artistes, every one. The play itself has been adapted from the short story by John Barton Oxford which appeared some time ago in one of America's first class magazines. Harry G. Stafford arranged it for the screen. It will be released Oct. 11.

THANHOUSER PLAYERS BACK FROM YELLOWSTONE.

The first expedition of motion picture actors to be granted governmental permission to take pictures in Yellowstone National Park, has returned to the Thanhouser studio. There have been permits granted for the use in the park of motion picture cameras, but never before allowing a company of actors to actually work out a picture. The Yellowstone trip constitutes an advance in the educational phase of the motion picture industry. By these pictures, which will soon be released by the Thanhouser company, the scenic wonders of the nation's first playground will be brought to the millions of people in the United States.

This point was given emphasis by Secretary of the Interior Lane in granting the permit. The motion pictures will first be shown to the Secretary of the Interior at Washington. The company was headed by Mignon Anderson and Morris Foster. John Lehnberg appeared in the character parts.

"THE NIGHTINGALE" (All Star).

The accompanying scene from "The Nightingale," in which Alco Film Corporation makes its debut, with the prominent dramatic star, Miss Ethel Barrymore, in the title role of Isola, is a silent demonstration of just how far this new motion picture venture will go to make their program attractive.

"The Nightingale" is an original work from the pen of Augustus Thomas and was written by him in ten weeks of work, so that the part therein would admirably suit Miss Barrymore's personality.

Scene from "The Nightingale" (All Star).

Five parts, three hundred scenes and no sparsity of novel features will characterize "The Nightingale" when it is first shown at the houses fortunate enough to have secured the Alco program, on October 5th, which is given as the release date.

In addition to Miss Barrymore, the cast is one of exceptional excellence and boasts numerous prominent players, especially selected by Miss Barrymore herself.

"The Nightingale" will be the first Alco release, to be followed by that prince of Irish character portrayers, Andrew Mack in a Popular Plays and Players production of "The Ragged Earl."

"The Nightingale" is the work of the All Star Feature Corporation.

NEWMAN SELLING BRASS LACQUER.

The Newman Lacquer Company, 3346 Bonaparte avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio, is putting on the market something very new. It is transparent lacquer, which is applied with a brush, similar to varnishing, to brass railings, brass poster frames, and all metal ware, and keeps and preserves the metal in a bright, beautiful and lasting lustre for years, same as on a brass bed. Thus, it is not necessary to polish the brass rails, poster frames or metal work once that this lacquer has been applied.

Any theater manager will read this information with considerable pleasure, as many of them object to the trouble connected with polishing brass goods, which this lacquer will save them the necessity of doing.

SYDNEY AYRES LEAVES AMERICAN.

Sydney Ayres, director of the first company of the American Film Manufacturing Company, at Santa Barbara, Cal., left that enterprise on September 26. As director for the above company, Mr. Ayres has produced some of the successes of the past year, namely, "Does It End Right?" "The Painted Lady's Child," and "The Cocoon and the Butterfly." Mr. and Mrs. Ayres leave Santa Barbara for New York early in October, when negotiations now pending may lead to a big project.

"WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES" (Lasky).

Through the Paramount Pictures Corporation, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company will release, on October 12, their second production in which the prominent dramatic star, Robert Edeson, appears, "Where the Trail Divides," which as a stage play was one of the most successful of the Henry B. Harris enterprises and always considered by Mr. Edeson as one of his most attractive parts.

"Where the Trail Divides," in which Robert Edeson plays the role of "How" Lander, an Indian, educated at Carlisle and married to a white woman, is a typical and kaleidoscopic story of the protestations of the whites against the marrying of one of their kind to a red man, the struggles of the Indian when his white wife's sentiments turn toward another of her own sect and of the ultimate return to her red-man husband of the woman.

Scene from "Where the Trail Divides" (Lasky).

In "Where the Trail Divides" Mr. Edeson will have the support of Winifred Kingston and the prominent character actor, Theodore Roberts, and a specially select cast of players. It is in five parts and said to possess over three hundred scenes.

"HIS BROTHER BILL" (Lubin).

Charles P. Brown has written a beautiful war story of the days of '63, one of those tales in which after the guns of the North and South had been silenced, love dominated and joined families who had fought for what they believed to be right. Carnage and hunger had given place to peace and plenty and the boy of the South and girl of the North kissed and pledged troth and happiness for all time. The picture is staged by John Ince and cast by a pick of his talented company.

Scene from "His Brother Bill" (Lubin).

"AN AFFAIR OF HONOR" (Lubin).

This is the third number of the "Beloved Adventurer" series written by Emmett Campbell Hall and now being released one each Monday on the regular Lubin release program. It has already been made clear that Lord Cecil's master-thought is the honor of his house. The shield of Croftlaigh has so far never been tarnished and never will be so long as the Beloved Adventurer is alive. Sentiment, however, puts him to severe tests and in this case he acts in the interests of two young lovers who are very dear to him. Cecil's life, however, comes pretty near being the stake for he must fight and with a man to whom he owes no grudge. The duel comes nigh to being a tragedy, but happily the valuable life is spared for more adventures. The incident and story is too long to be here narrated, but it is very dramatic and the picture will be much enjoyed by the admirers of this romantic career. Mr. Johnson's supporting cast is an imposing one, including Florence Hackett, Jeannette Hackett and other notables of the Lubin Players.

Scene from "An Affair of Honor" (Lubin).

SENSATIONAL THREE REELER FOR MARY FULLER

Mary Fuller under the direction of Walter Edwin is working on the production of a three-reel sensational play especially written for her by Miss M. B. Havey, entitled "The Girl of the People." The role afforded Miss Fuller is particularly adapted to her talents and one which Miss Fuller has had ambitions to play. The story revolves about a girl reared in the slums of a great city struggling in the sweatshops, who finally blooms forth as a modern Joan de Arc. There are many moments in the play when the action is tense, when the situation draws the heartstrings taut, when Miss Fuller rises to supreme heights as an emotional actress.

Charles Ogle supports Miss Fuller in an important role.

CALIFORNIA TO RELEASE THROUGH ALCO.

Alex E. Boyfuss, the general manager of the California Motion Picture Corporation, was a visitor to this city on Thursday, September 17. His object was to confer with the representatives of the Alco Company with a view to releasing the products of his organization through the Alco Company. Satisfactory arrangements were made. Mr. Lockwood, of Cornell, Lockwood & Jeffries, looked after the legal end for the California company.

Before returning to the Coast Mr. Boyfuss had a short talk with a World man, in the course of which he dwelt upon the singular advantages of Northern California as a motion picture producers' country. He declared the scenic opportunies were extraordinary. The first release of the California company is due in New York in the early part of October, and will be shown to the press shortly thereafter.

WAR TAX OF $100 ANNUALLY ON THEATERS.

The Administration's proposed emergency "war tax" measure, designed to produce approximately $100,000,000 in revenue to offset the falling off in customs receipts due to the European war, contains a provision for the taxing of proprietors of theaters and amusement houses in cities of more than 15,000 population in the amount of $100. Each circus will have to pay $100, to be collected in each State wherein a performance is given. The proprietors of other amusement places not specifically mentioned will be called upon to give up $10.

Notes of the Trade

CANADIAN Animated Weekly is the style of a new syndicate which has taken over the studio and equipment of the British American Film Manufacturing Company in Montreal. Their first topical release, entitled "Events in Canada During War Time," is being booked by the Canadian Universal Film Co.

* * *

"The Three Men Who Knew" is a wierd melodrama in two reels, resembling "Out of the Far East," is at present under production at the Imp Studio. It is being directed by Frank Crane, who will be seen in the lead, with Dorothy Phillips playing opposite. Alexander Gaden is playing the heavy. Stuart Paton is the author.

* * *

Scenario writers should take notice that the Frontier company at Santa Paula, Cal., are no longer producing comedies, and are in the market for single reel Western dramas only.

* * *

At Lake Hopatcong recently, Miriam Nesbitt, the leading lady of the Edison Company, was given a royal reception by many of the natives and vacationists. Upon arrival at the Lake, Miss Nesbitt unreluctantly accepted an invitation to attend a dance. Not anticipating any celebration or demonstration, she was stunned with surprise when her many screen admirers collected in the gayly decorated ballroom and showered her with congratulations for the delightful characterizations she has displayed in the Edison films.

* * *

N. G. Spitzer, formerly with the Syndicate Film Corporation, is now the Kansas City manager for the World Film Corporation. His offices are to be Gloyd Building, Kansas City.

* * *

Frank Dayton, who plays "heavy" character parts with the Essanay company, is the best friend and provider the Essanay menagerie has. He comes to the studio with bags of food which he distributes to the eagle, rare birds and prize fowls installed in the Essanay "back yard."

* * *

Jay Morley, who has been with the Broncho and other companies, has joined the Frontier at Santa Paula, Cal., and will play heavies and leads.

* * *

From the offices of George Kleine comes the announcement that the two-part feature subject "The Wrecked Special" will be released through the General Film Company, Tuesday, October 6. It is a railroad story, novel in plot and unusual in execution. It tells the story of a railway switchman who is confronted with the dreadful alternative of wrecking a special train or seeing his baby daughter killed before his very eyes. He makes his choice, and years later is compelled to pay the penalty.

* * *

Hunter Bennett, the assistant to the general manager of the World Film Corporation is paying a flying visit to the Boston offices of the company, in connection with the Shubert and Brady features.

* * *

After a two weeks' visit among his friends in New York Otis Turner, director of the Turner Special Feature Company, has returned again to the coast. He does not intend to return to the direction of his company at once, however, but instead will spend the remaining three weeks of his vacation among his friends in and around Los Angeles.

* * *

Otto Meyer, known as the Frontier Sheriff, has become quite a pedestrian. His rambles are confined to nights, and as a companion he carries Otto Meyer, Jr., age three weeks.

* * *

Ira H. Simmons, former booking manager of the Shubert Feature Co. and the World Film Corporation, is now located in the World Tower Building and is actively seen about town as the junior member of the new firm of Montgomery-Simmons Film Service Company.

* * *

We have just received from the Amusement Supply Company of Chicago, a copy of their new catalog. It embraces all makes of machines, supplies of every kind and a list of repair parts. Also diagrams showing the parts and number of each, for all standard machines.

* * *

John Jones, well known along the coast, is with the Frontier. He is a character actor of ability, and in addition will have charge of the stage mechanics.

* * *

Grace Goodall, who will be remembered for the tremendous success she scored as the "head waitress" in the Cohan and Harris production "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," is now being featured by the Edison Company as "Fantasma" in the well-known play of that name, successfully produced by the Hanlon Brothers on the legitimate stage.

* * *

Robert Warwick, the star in the William A. Brady picture plays from "The Dollar Mark" and "The Man of the Hour," was one of the invited guests at the advance showing of the later picture, which took place in the World Film Corporation offices at 130 W. 46th St.

* * *

David Belasco's O. K. on the scenario of "The Girl of the Golden West" started work on it at the Lasky studios this week. Oscar Apfel will direct this production while Cecil De Mille will devote his time to "The Rose of the Rancho."

* * *

Edythe Sterling has again returned to her old love, the Frontier, after a vacation of six months.

* * *

George Kleine's big six part subject, "The Lion of Venice" came in for a unique compliment last week. Members of the Chicago board of censors were so delighted with the official presentation of the picture that they asked the date of its first theatre engagement. This occurred at the Hamlin Theatre, West Madison St. and Hamlin Ave., September 22.

George Kleine announces that his various branch offices are now ready to book "The Naked Truth," the splendid five part modern story which opened the doors of The New Candler Theatre, New York, last summer.

* * *

The magnet to motion pictures has drawn one more well known character man from the "legit" and musical comedy, and with it a valuable addition to the western Essanay company. Many will recognize Ernest Van Pelt in the Essanay comedies which are now causing side-splitting laughter. Hiram Clutts is the character name used by the former footlight favorite while in the same cast with "Slippery Slim," "Sophie Clutts," "Mustang Pete" and "Becky Beyers."

* * *

Mr. O. E. Goebel, President of the St. Louis Motion Picture Co., is on his way to the Frontier Studio at Santa Paula, Cal.

* * *

Harold Lockwood of the Famous Players has received a considerable amount of mail this week complimenting him on his excellent portrayal of the "American," in "Such a Litt le Queen." Associated with Mr. Lockwood, and supporting Mary Pickford, in this picture, is Carlyle Blackwell, the papular motion picture star, who plays the part of the Blackwell, the popular motion pic ture star, who plays the part of the by the Famous Players for the above roles and their splendid work shows the wisdom the Famous Players exercised in selecting their casts.

THESE LOBBY PICTURES are hand colored. They are a work of art. They add tone to the Theatre and denote CLASS. MAKE YOUR LOBBY NEW

Blanche Sweet
Mae Marsh
Mable Normand
Marguerite Fisher
Fred Mace
Winifred Greenwood
Maude Fealy
Irene Hunt
Henry Walthall
Robert Harron
Norma Phillips
Florence LaBadie
Anita Stewart
Lillian Walker
John Bunny
Pearl White
Kathlyn Williams
Vivian Rich
Ed. Coxen
Roscoe Arbuckle
Grace Cunard

Francis X. Bushman
Lottie Briscoe
Mary Fuller (2 styles)
Mary Pickford (2 styles)
Crane Wilbur
Chas. Chaplin
Ford Sterling
King Baggott
Arthur Johnson
Paul Panzer
Pearl Sindelar
Warren Kerrigan
Alice Joyce
Cleo Madison
Margaret Snow
James Cruze
Dorothy Gish
Lillian Gish
Francis Ford

Size 22 x 28 Inches. 75 Cents Each. Framed, $2.50 Each.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3 PER THOUSAND, of over 400 players is the best souvenir extant. It will increase your business. Note our other publications. Post Cards for hand coloring. Hand Colored Post Cards.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, Association and Independent, 400 different names, 20 cents each.

LARGE PICTURE, semi-photo, glazed finish, size 11 x 14, $1 per doz.; 43 prominent players.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14. Prominent players, $2.00 per set of 12.

Photographs for lobby display of the two and three reel features of all of the Mutual multiple reels—set of 6, $1.00. Always ready 10 days ahead of release.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 14 E. 17th St., N. Y.

Middle West Office—Lyric Theatre Bldg., Dayton, O.

Send for Catalogue of over 400 players and samples free. Write us giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

Motion Picture Trade Abroad.

Budget of Interesting Information on Industry in Foreign Countries from United States Consuls.

BRAZIL.

(Consul General Julius G. Lay, Rio de Janeiro.)

Moving picture show houses, or cinematographs, as they are known here, constitute the most popular form of indoor public diversion in Rio de Janeiro, and the successful maintenance of at least five large theaters in the down-town district of this city, with about 30 other show houses scattered throughout the city, is evidence that they are well patronized. The Companhia Cinematographica Brasileira, Largo do Carioca, 13, controls some of the most important show houses in Rio de Janeiro and in many other cities in Brazil. It has four houses in this city—the Pathe, with a seating capacity of 600; Odeon, with 500 chairs; Avenida, with 400; and the Parc Fluminense, with 1,000. In the city of Bello Horizonto, State of Minas Geraes, there are three first class show houses, one of which, the Cinoma Commercio, with a capacity of 400, is owned by this company; it also controls the largest show house in Juiz de Fora, State of Minas Geraes, with a capacity of 1,000, as well as others in other cities in and beyond this consular district. Mr. Gustavo Jose de Mattos is now remodeling several large stores and will, in the course of a month, open the Cine Palais, at Avenida, Rio Branco, 147, Rio de Janeiro.

Character of Exhibitions.

There are six to eight exhibitions per day in each show house, commencing at 1:30 p. m. and ending at about 10:30 p. m., the average show running about 2,000 meters (meter = 3.28 feet) of films, usually including two or three separate subjects, except on certain occasions, when special extremely long historic or dramatic films are exhibited. Programs are changed Mondays and Thursdays in Rio de Janeiro, but in the smaller towns every other day. All moving picture show-house machines are operated by electricity in which manner the lighting is also furnished. The public is very particular about the class and quality of the films produced, and it is readily perceivable to any person who has visited the moving picture show houses here that only the very best films are used. Love, intrigue, drama, spectacular, and tragic films, in the order named, seem to have the largest demand. Comic, scenic, and war pictures are also shown, and historical pictures when well executed are well patronized. Up to recently cowboy and Western pictures were popular, but the public seems to have become tired of them. Industrial and educational pictures are not much in demand, and films of Indian warfare and those involving the negro question will not be put on by the managers. The reading matter should in every instance be in Portuguese, the language of Brazil. The following are the most popular makes of films in Rio de Janeiro at present: Gaumont, French; Pathe, French; Cines, Italian; Nordisk, Danish; Messter, German; and Vitagraph, American.

Attitude Concerning American Films.

American films have been shown here in the past, and importers state that they have been given a fair trial, but the trade in American films has dropped considerably in the last few years because the price is higher than European films illustrating the same class of subjects, and the manner of presenting the plots and situations with plenty of intrigue in the European films appeals more strongly to the public here. The manager of one of the largest importing firms asserted that American manufacturers have apparently overlooked the very important feature of employing a competent translator for the reading matter on the films.

Cost of Films—Import Duty.

The rental price of films depends largely on the quality and original purchase price, but an average program costs Rs. 208000 (6.40) per day, with permission to change twice per week. The average cost of European films is about 25 cents (American currency) per meter (39.37 inches). The extremely high import duty on films is the principal reason why their use has not been more extensive here: They are dutiable at Rs. 258000 per kilo, which is equivalent to $5.63 per pound, American currency. Films average about 100 meters per kilo (2.2 pounds).

Motion picture machines are dutiable at Rs. 608000 each, which is equivalent to $29.75 (American currency). There are several additional small taxes for handling, stamps, etc., as well as customs-broker's charges. There are several manufacturers of films here, but this industry has been carried on only on a small scale.

CHINA.

(Vice Consul General A. E. Carleton, Hongkong).

Moving Picture Shows in the Far East.

The development of the moving picture business in China is proceeding slowly and the various promoters are not finding that the undertaking at present is very remunerative, yet, at the same time, they are sanguine as to the possibilities in the not-far-distant future. As a matter of fact, the moving picture shows cannot have the same success in the Far East, especially in China, as in other parts of the world without an immense outlay of money for educational purposes. The Chinese in and about the treaty ports have taken kindly to this form of entertainment, but only after years of patient endeavor, and those living away from the coast ports, who are not in touch with Western people, are scarcely aware of the existence of these shows. It thus will be seen at a glance that the possibilities are really immense for the development of a tremendous business in this line, but the trade must be created by consistent work. Having interested the Chinese sufficiently, there is no limit to the expansion of the moving picture shows.

There are not 50 cinematograph shows in all China and Macao, and all of these are in the treaty ports. In the Philippines there are reported to be over 75, and the limitations have by no means been reached. In Hongkong and Kowloon there are only 5 in continuous operation, and with a population of over half a million it seems not unlikely that in a few years this number will be more than doubled.

The Obstacles Encountered.

In this colony the one great difficulty seems to be a matter of price, for the present rates of admission are beyond the average Chinese, and shows with popular prices have not been experimented with beyond a tentative attempt, which unfortunately proved a failure. This, however, was some time ago, before the Chinese in general learned to appreciate their value. It might be tried again with far better results. The chief hindrance to a greater development of these forms of entertainment appears to exist in the Chinese themselves, for they do not care to participate in making films of scenes, customs, etc., of their own country. Of course, this objection has been in a measure done away with in the treaty ports, where they have come in touch with Western civilization to a certain degree. Even in Hongkong and Kowloon this superstition is still pronounced.

Film Preferences and Costs.

As a matter of fact the films now generally in use in Hongkong and in the treaty ports are over 40 per cent secondhand films, and of the total in use it is estimated that 25 per cent only are American. The short pieces are 400 feet or 500 feet in length. Most of these seconds are imported from Europe; and some of these occasionally are years old, which have gone the rounds of Europe, eventually finding their way to the Far East. It is not uncommon to pay only $5 gold for a complete film of American production, whereas the export price for these films was originally 7 cents gold per foot. The customary price in Hongkong, the writer is informed, is about 6 cents gold for new films. Under the circumstances the market for new material here is not good, for the managers of the movies in Hongkong confessedly buy the second grades.

The tastes of the better-educated Chinese materially differ from those living, for instance, in Canton, as was demonstrated a short time since, when the nthony and Cleopatra film had a good run in Hongkong, but in Canton was taken off the second night, as the people did not care for it. As a rule the Chinese prefer comics, historical, and war; they prefer short pictures, where there is plenty of movement. The drama of the Western world is outside of their knowledge and understanding. It is necessary to give them films where the picture itself is self-explanatory.

High Prices Limit Attendance.

The theater prices in Hongkong are far from being popular, ranging as they do from about 25 cents to 75 cents gold for European theaters and half these amounts for the Chinese theaters. As a result these shows attract only a certain class of people and are not for the masses. The Europeans form a small percentage of the audience as a general rule, as they are adverse to paying these amounts.

Regarding the prices, which to foreigners appear extravagant, there is perhaps a logical explanation more applicable perhaps to a small theater-going community like Hongkong than to most cities. Distances are greater than it seems possible for so small a place, because the transportation facilities from sections of the Peak district or from Kowloon are slow, tedious, and expensive. These difficulties are not imaginary. This is one of the reasons why there are only two shows an evening, one commencing at 4:15 and the other at 9:15, each practically of two hours' duration. Under the local conditions the people do not care to attend shows of an hour's duration. Then the Chinese theaters continue for hours, and naturally the Chinese cannot be content to stay only for a short period; they desire and insist upon a long sitting.

Managers of local theaters have tried all sorts of schemes to shorten the shows and likewise lessen the prices. Under the circumstances and on account of the heavy expenses for operating them it does not seem possible to lessen the admission charges very much. Continuous performances of, say, one hour each would probably not be popular in Hongkong, and therefore the present method in general must be adhered to.

The language question is one of some difficulty in China, and the expense of having the readings in Chinese is large under the present conditions, where the number of users is limited to such a few theaters. The lack of a chain of theaters seriously handicaps the business, both as to language and purchases of new films. As a result, the two European shows under European management are using English readings.

Variety Entertainments—Film Manufacture.

The custom in Hongkong seems to be to use one long film and fill up the rest with short films. One of the local theaters has a sort of a variety entertainment as well, although pictures are the principal feature.

In Hongkong an American company has been here for some time manufacturing Chinese pictures at an average cost of $2,000 (gold) for films of the usual length. These films are in most cases for the Chinese alone, although this company has taken many of great educational merit, which are being used in the United States, not only in the movies but for sale to periodicals. At the best the undertaking has not as yet been a financial success for the reason indicated. If my information is correct, the proportion of American films seen here is small, and the reason appears to be that the producers do not give what the local market demands. As before indicated, the Chinese demand movement in every picture—heavy tragedy or love pictures do not appeal to them; they want all of the happenings the world over. No doubt the American manufacturers produce these films, but somehow or other they are not seen here to any great extent.

(The consular officer furnished more detailed information concerning the individual moving picture shows in Hongkong, which may be had from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and its branches.)

(Consul General Thomas Sammons, Shanghai.)

Growing Popularity at Commercial Metropolis.

The moving picture theaters of Shanghai draw their patrons from the 15,000 foreign inhabitants and from a very small portion of the 1,000,000 natives dwelling in the Native City and Foreign Settlements. The steadily increasing audiences and erection of new theaters testify to the growing popularity of this entertainment. Comic plays and scenes are perhaps best received in Shanghai. American films are well liked, because of their realism, purposefulness, and strength of plot, though practically every known make is screened here.

Five per cent ad valorem duty is collected on imported films. The rental paid for supplies of first class films is about $50 per week, which includes one change, though the methods of renting films vary greatly, and in some cases the films are rented by the meter per night. For medium-class films the rental is about $37.50 per week. When rented by the meter (39.37 inches), the price per night is about 1 cent per meter for films which have not been on exhibition at one or more of the other theaters. Films which have been shown in other theaters rent for about one-half cent per meter.

The purchase price for new films is 8 to 15 cents per foot, while the price for secondhand films is 1 to 5 cents per foot. However as a general rule, films are rented and not purchased.

Erection of New Theatre.

A new spacious moving picture theater, the New Olympic, is being erected at the junction of Carter and Bubbling Wells Roads, and will be operated under the management of Mr. Ramos. This theater is located in the heart of the International Settlement. Each of the theaters here shows about 5,000 feet of film during the one daily performance given. They are all electrically lighted and operated. The films are changed biweekly, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Moving pictures of an educational nature have been introduced at the Young Men's Christian Association at Shanghai. Films intended for use in this climate should be packed in sealed tins. None of the Shanghai moving picture theaters deal in machines or supplies. There are two firms here which deal in cameras for taking films, one of which also manufactures films.

SPAIN.

(Vice Consul Harris N. Cookingham, Seville.)

Summer Exhibitions on the Plazas.

The motion picture trade in Seville consular district has been growing constantly and rapidly, until at present motion picture entertainments are undoubtedly the principal means of public amusement. In winter the theaters of Seville are largely devoted to the cinematograph, and in summer practically all the available plazas of the city are let for open-air exhibitions, which attract thousands of spectators of all social classes.

The indoor or winter theaters of Seville are few, inclusive of the opera and vaudeville houses, where motion pictures are shown; hence the sittings are extremely limited and the performances are repeated almost hourly during the evening, from 7:30 to 12:30. The winter prices range from about 4 to 19 cents per seat, according to location. The summer exhibitions, however, under the cloudless evening sky of Seville, offer better opportunities to the public for witnessing the pictures, which are projected on curtains specially erected on the open plazas and park spaces. As all Seville lives out of doors from 9 o'clock to midnight during the summer months and seeks quiet amusement in convenient quarters, the motion picture exhibitions fulfill a natural demand.

Seats at the best open-air exhibitions now cost about 4 cents; but hundreds of people, some in private carriages and motor cars, gather around the inclosure to see the pictures gratis from without. The managers of local coffee and refreshment gardens have in many cases installed motion pictures for the pleasure of their patrons; in these cases there is no charge other than that for the beverage or refreshment ordered, and a customer having paid for his order is entitled to retain his table seat throughout the evening. Military bands often furnish music at the regular exhibitions, which provide a partly new program every evening, except when the repetition of some extraordinary or very popular film is demanded for three or four successive nights.

How Films Are Obtained.

The films used in the local exhibitions are procured almost exclusively from two Seville rental agencies, which also deal in the projecting machines and all other necessary apparatus. As one of the local houses in a branch of Pathe Freres, of Paris, the Pathe machines are most largely used under their various names, and the Gaumont manufacturers find a smaller market. These are practically the only machines in local use. All machines for city entertainments have electrical attachment; those for use in the small towns, where electric current is not available, are furnished with acetylene-gas outfits. It is estimated that in Seville throughout the summer 15 to 18 projecting machines are employed by the several purveyors of amusements. The attendance is not known, but it is evidently enormous.

The films shown at the motion picture entertainments are the Pathe productions under their various names, including the Iberia, Brittania films, American Kinema; and the Italian Valeto, Gaumont, Cines, Nordisk, Hepworth, Vitagraph, Eclair, Itala, Celio, Cuesta, and Hispano films. The local preference in picture stories appears to be for those films depicting romance and intrigue; scenic and spectacular; dramatizations of well-known historical and Biblical events are also very popular. World-famous novels such as Quo Vadis and other works which lend themselves to effective staging, are seen here in films of 1,800 to 3,000 meters. The classic and pseudoclassic plays are also favorites with the Sevillian public. This public demands good acting, and at least adequate staging in all films under all conditions. Explanatory notes are made as brief as possible, consistent with the coherence of the plot. Detective stories and tragedies, rather than industrial scenes and foreign processions, appeal to the local spectators. There are noticeably few films shown here of local or Spanish current events, exclusive of certain bullfights in which well-known matadors take part.

Rental Costs—Customs Duty.

The local picture theater managers obtaining their films from the two Seville agencies pay in rental therefor from about one-fifth of 1 cent per meter to about 3 cents per meter per day (that is, from 6 to 87 cents per 100 feet, approximately), according to value and demand. For new films, which one of the rental agencies purchases from the manufacturers or branches, it pays generally about 26 cents per meter; and for used films, 2 to 10 cents per meter, according to condition.

Neither the films shown here nor the projecting machines and apparatus in local use are imported into Seville direct by sea; these come from branch houses in other parts of Spain or overland from France. The customs duty levied on blank films imported into Spain is 2 pesetas per kilo ($0.175 per pound) net weight; on finished films ready for projection, as well as on the machines and apparatus for projecting, 3 pesetas per kilo ($0.263 per pound) net weight.

American Films and Machines.

As for American films, both the Seville rental agencies state that these find favor here. The market for American motion picture machines is, in the present circumstances, inevitably limited, but not negligible, provided these can compete in quality and prices with the French machines now in use here. The demand for films of American manufacture rests not so firmly upon the acting portrayed as upon the setting, for American scenery constitutes one of the chief charms of the American films. It is not necessary that the play depict scenes of the Wild West, but preferably it might be staged out of doors, either in typical country, beautiful gardens, or populous city streets. Good acting is essential and common to all or the great majority of the motion pictures shown here, but the commending distinction of the American pictures must, to Sevillian spectators, always lie in their effective, novel, and interesting outdoor setting, either with heroic or with romantic action. It is probable that the shorter American plays, such as are presented almost nightly at the various picture theater "revues," will have relatively larger demand than the films of 1,500 or 1,800 meters.

AUSTRIA.

(Consul Ralph C. Busser, Trieste.)

Extent of Business—Prices of Films and Apparatus.

Trieste, with a population of 250,000, has twenty-two motion picture theaters. The exhibitions commence at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in winter and 5 o'clock in summer; Sunday at 3 o'clock. The show is then continuous, closing about 11. The principal theaters buy their own films, but the majority rent them from local agencies. These rental agencies either buy the films outright from the manufacturers or rent them on principal's account. Their commission on sale of films to the theaters varies from 20 to 30 per cent.

The price paid by theaters for rental of films is $30 to $100 per week, according to the character of pictures and the length of the film. The changes are three to seven times, according to the class of film. For new films, 24 to 50 cents per running meter is paid; for second-hand films, 4 to 8 cents per meter.

The cinematograph machines used in Trieste are nearly all of French and German manufacture, the French machines being considered the best. The machine itself costs $60 to $100. The price of machine and all accessories, complete, ranges from $300 for a small installation to $400 for a large installation. On the sale of machines and apparatus a commission of 25 to 40 per cent may be paid.

The principal local agencies for the sale of cinematograph apparatus and the sale and rental of films cover not only the city of Trieste but the neighboring Provinces of the Austrian Adriatic coast, such as Gorizia and Gradisca, Istria, and Dalmatia. In these Provinces of the district the language reading is in Italian; in Styria, Carinthia, Carniola, Bosnia and Herzegovina the German language is used.

Character of Films in Demand.

In Trieste the most popular films are detective scenes and dramas of love and intrigue; to a lesser degree historical dramas, comic, spectacular, and war scenes. Indian and cowboy pieces were formerly popular, but the public here has been surfeited with them, and they no longer attract the same interest. Moving pictures have not yet been introduced into the public schools of this district. From time to time, however, special exhibitions at reduced prices are arranged for school children in local theaters. The films for educational purposes represent chiefly scenes from history, popular science, and industry. The scientific views, for example, are from the life of strange peoples, from zoology, botany, geography, etc., including the picturesque scenery and natural wonders of the world.

Of still greater importance for educational purposes are the industrial films, which are designed to spread knowledge of special branches of industry and to illustrate the origin, conversion, and transformation of the important commodities of trade. The exhibition of industrial films are of special value to trade apprentices and to students of the engineering, art, and industrial schools, as they take the place to a certain extent of study excursions to factories, power plants, and other places of industrial operations. To say nothing of traveling expenses and loss of time, such excursions cannot always be practicably arranged to suit the convenience of the persons interested.

Among the many types of industrial films which have been utilized for educational purposes in Austria might be mentioned the following: Scenes from the cottage industries, such as the manufacture of lace, weaving, spinning, wood carving, etc.; the industries of mining, lumbering, and fishing; the production of sugar, rice, tea, coffee, fibers, and other field crops; fruit raising and wine culture; the canning and preserving of foods; the great power plants of the world and the various branches of the electrical industry; the making of porcelain, glass, and glassware; the manufacture of steel and other metal products; the production of rubber and leather, and the products of same; illustrations of the various textile industries; experiments with liquid air; the laying of a submarine cable; the construction of the Panama Canal; the building of bridges and other concrete and steel structures; locomotive and shipbuilding; aerial navigation, etc.

RUSSIA.

(Consul John H. Grout, Odessa.)

Popularity of Moving Pictures.

One of the rapidly growing businesses in South Russia is that of conducting moving picture shows. There is hardly a town of appreciable size that does not have its place of amusement of this kind, while each city has many in proportion to its population. In the larger places many of these places of amusement remain closed during the summer months, although the principal ones are to be found permanently open.

As a rule the films are changed twice a week, either Mondays and Saturdays or Tuesdays and Fridays, to suit demand and convenience. Very few of the theaters buy their films. In each large city, such as Kief and Odessa, there are representatives of European film manufacturers, who distribute over a large territory. The condition of the films handled vary from much worn up to almost new. The first class theaters usually contract with the suppliers for the first use of specified films in their localities. Other places take almost anything sent. In addition to the films supplied by local representatives, many of the theaters also secure films from abroad, mostly from Paris and Berlin, from outside makers. The firm of Pathe Freres of Paris has an agency in Odessa and deals in apparatus as well as films.

American Films—Prices.

Good pictures are always in demand. Almost all classes of subjects are appreciated, although those depicting comedy, drama, magic, war, love, and manners and customs are mostly shown. Much interest is always evinced by audiences here in American plays, although they are comparatively seldom seen. American comic pictures are particularly appreciated. The principal makes of films mostly used in this part of Russia are the Nordisk, Gaumont, and Pathe.

Prices for the use of films vary according to condition of film and length. For an average length film, when first shown, 350 rubles ($180.25) per week is charged, while 200 rubles ($103) is charged per week where it is shown for a second week. Other terms are 10 kopecks (5 cents) per meter for first use, 6 kopecks (3 cents) for second, and 3 kopecks (1½ cents) for a third. Contracts with supplies usually call for two changes per week. Agents are about the only ones here who purchase films outright. These often secure new films at 50 kopecks (25 cents) per meter and second-hand at 10 kopecks (5 cents). There are no manufacturers of films in this consular district. A start has been made in employing moving pictures for educational purposes in certain of the public schools. All of the best moving picture theaters here do a good business. In view of the interest in them shown by the general public and the lack of partiality as regards origin of films there should be a good field here for American films. A good market could be obtained here for not only our new but old films, which, as a rule, would all be new when first shown here. Many of our old films could be sold here outright, while more expensive ones would have to be rented. In making a contract for rentals, much pains would be required in order to conform with peculiar conditions, etc., and secure permanent business by being liberal to the lessees. In letting a film the fact would have to be taken into consideration, provided the film were sent directly from the United States that it ordinarily takes about 12 days by post to reach this country, while, if it were sent by the line of steamships which have lately been running direct to Odessa from New York, one month would have to be reckoned. Those American firms who desire to enter this market and secure permanent trade should, when conditions in Europe again become normal, send representatives over here to study thoroughly the needs and conditions. A well established American branch house, located at a central point, could handle the distribution of films over a very large area. Insets to pictures should be in the Russian language, and when forwarded should be well packed in tin boxes.

Under section 169, paragraph 1, of the Russian customs tariff, lanterns for picture projection, including moving picture machines and films, pay a duty of 9 rubles per pood ($0.128 per pound). Where the film is packed in the usual round tin box weight of box is included.

Exhibitors News

Interesting Information Concerning Moving Picture Men Gathered By Moving Picture World Correspondents Everywhere.

KENTUCKY.

COOL, dry weather has had a most stimulating effect on the motion picture business in Louisville and the exhibitors report that conditions are considerably more favorable than they were at the corresponding season last year. The amusement parks, airdomes, river excursions and most of the other outdoor places to go and things to do have been suspended for the season and, though most of the legitimate theaters are re-opened, they appear not to have cut in on the motion picture patronage to any extent. Several good features have been shown in Louisville houses during the past week, and well filled auditoriums have been the rule.

The Bluegrass Motion Picture Manufacturing Company, with an authorized capital stock of $35,000 and rather an ambitious program, has been incorporated in Louisville by George P. Kendrick, A. D. Kendrick and I. D. Martin. The first is president and treasurer of the company, George H. Kendrick manager and cameraman, and Mr. Martin is organizer and business manager. The promoters and officers are now engaged in selling stock, and after the capital is paid in they will begin making pictures. For that purpose they will have the use of the 115 acres in the country estate of George P. Kendrick, a wealthy jeweler of Louisville, at Glenarm, in Oldham county, twenty miles east of Louisville. The estate is said to furnish numerous ideal backgrounds for motion picture work, and will be used at the outset in connection with the high-class drama films the company expects to make at the outset. Later it is expected that the company will branch out into other lines. Mr. Martin and George H. Kendrick have had considerable experience in taking motion pictures, and recently returned from Mexico, where they took war pictures which they disposed of to a New York concern.

Julius G. Reader, formerly with the Ohio Motion Picture Company, of Cincinnati, who was considering opening a house in this section, has taken a position with the S. & P. Film Supply Company of Louisville, and will travel Kentucky for that concern. He has been in the Kentucky field for some time and is well known there.

The Broadway Amusement Company, which leases the Walnut theater and operates the East and West Broadway theaters, and others in Louisville, is conducting a popularity contest which will run through until December 31, when the numerous prizes will be given to the winners. The first prize is a trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, which with the rest on the list will bring the total up to about $2,000. Each cent paid in admission at any one of the six theaters entitles the patron to one vote, while "trade cards" which will admit the purchasers to any of the six theaters call for an increased number of votes, the $5 card giving 2,500 votes and the $10 card 7,500. The contest is attracting a great deal of attention, and is resulting in increased patronage at the several theaters in the chain. Besides the grand prizes to be awarded at the end of the contest, special prizes are put on every few weeks to go to the girl who gets the most votes in all the theaters combined during that week. At this time there are four prizes up on such an intermediary contest, the first prize being $10 in cash, the second a barrel of flour, the third $5 in cash and the fourth a box of chocolates. There are a number of contestants entered in the race and later a plan will be announced of reporting the standing of the several who have been entered for the honors at regular intervals in order to encourage balloting. Besides the three theaters named, the company operates the Ideal, the Crown and the Baxter theaters, at widely separated sections of the city, thus insuring a wide interest in the contest and a wide patronage.

At the Walnut street theater the Broadway Amusement Company maintains a ten-cent fee on three days of each week, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, at which time the World Film Corporation features are shown. During the remainder of the week the admission price is five cents, and the company advertises that the show is the "best value for the money in the city." There was some question at the start as to whether the two admission rates would not result in confusion and make trouble, but according to J. L. Steurele it has not worked out that way, and the theatergoers who patronize the Walnut have become accustomed to the difference in the prices.

The Kentucky theater, of Paducah, recently let a contract to C. D. Warren for re-painting and decorating the lobby and entrance of the theater. The house, which was operated as a motion picture house during the summer, will be opened in a few days for its regular winter engagements, which will be announced later by Manager W. A. Finney.

Hurley Brothers, who operate a string of theaters in Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois, have sold their picture shows at Morganfield and Princeton, Ky., but are still operating at Providence, Ky.; Mt. Vernon, Ind., and Mt. Carmel, Ill. Roy Hurley, who was in charge of the picture show at Morganfield, has gone to Providence to take charge of the Dreamland theater. H. M. Harris is in charge of the Princess at Morganfield.

Reports concerning the forming of a stock company of negroes to start a motion picture house at Floyd and Jefferson streets in Louisville have been going the rounds for some time. However, the talk appears to be dying out and it is said that the "dusky brethren" were unable to get together on the proposition.

E. H. Taylor, Jr., & Sons, distillers of Frankfort, who recently had a picture made of their plant at that city, are more than pleased with the advertising value which has been observed in the pictures shown at the National Association of U. S. Internal Revenue officers' banquet on the roof garden of the Waldorf Astoria and in a number of other convention halls and motion picture houses in New York and Boston. The magnificence of the plant has caused a great deal of very favorable comment, according to Colonel E. H. Taylor, Jr.

C. W. Joehrendt, who for some time has been operating the Arena theater of Campbellsville, has moved with his family to Monticello, Ill., where he controls two motion picture houses. The manager of one of these latter houses recently resigned his position to go to Denver and Mr. Joehrendt decided to take charge in person. Frank Romine has been placed in charge of the house at Campbellsville.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

TENNESSEE.

THE European war is affecting business with the Tennessee moving picture houses and those of the South a great deal more than those of any other section of the country. The South depends almost entirely upon the cotton crop for its business. The crop this season is an excellent one, but as exports to England, Germany, Russia and other large cotton-using countries are entirely cut off this fall, business throughout the South is not booming to any marked extent, a good many people are out of work and naturally the picture business has been affected to some extent. Lumber operations have also been curtailed, and the copper and other mining industries around Knoxville are not operating to anything like capacity. Tennessee, however, has been making rapid strides in the motion picture business during the past year or eighteen months, and will certainly be a lively place as soon as conditions return to normal.

The Business Men's Association of Lebanon was behind a movement whereby a corps of moving picture men took pictures of the principal points of interest in the city. These pictures will form a part of the film to be shown at the San Francisco Exposition in 1915.

Two motion picture machines were in action at Nashville recently when under the direction of the counsel for the state in nuisance cases, several thousand dollars' worth of good and bad whisky, wine and other spirituous liquors were emptied into Cumberland river early in the morning by the receivers in the cases. Six drays were required to transfer the liquor from the warehouse to the Sparkman street bridge, where the bottles were opened and emptied of their contents. The moving picture men had been waiting for several weeks for a chance to get these pictures.

The Strand theater of Nashville has applied for a charter of incorporation, listing the capital stock of the company at $25,000. The incorporators are Hugh M. Waddle, Roy C. Shelton, H. A. Waddle, J. B. Brent and Frank Pierce.

The Tennessee Industrial Film Company, capitalized at $12,000, has filed application for a charter under the laws of Tennessee. The new concern will operate at Knoxville. The incorporators are R. C. Wright, E. A. Sehorn, Charles Barber, Herbert D. Dobson and Henry Hudson. The company proposes to film educational and industrial subjects.

The Gay theater, of Knoxville, after having undergone extensive alterations, was reopened for business on Labor Day. The interior of the theater has been completely rebuilt, and the new balcony has a seating capacity of 700. New upholstered seats have been installed throughout, and the total seating capacity of the house is now 1,500. The ventilation system has been improved, and six exits have been provided on each floor. A gold fiber screen has been installed, and the machines will now throw the pictures a distance of 108 feet. The completed theater is one of the best equipped theaters in Tennessee, it is said.

Suit has been filed in chancery at Chattanooga to secure the collection of eight months' rent for use of the building located at 826-8 Broad street, originally leased for a five-year term as a theater. An airdome has been operated on the premises. Will S. Albert and F. M. Catron are named as defendants in the proceedings. Ike Poss, an agent for the estate of P. Poss, owner of the property, is the complainant. Attached to the bill are eight notes, each for $100, signed by Mr. Albert, and to be paid monthly as rental on the building. Eight other notes, each for $25, are also attached, upon which it is stipulated that they shall be paid in advance monthly as rent on a room adjoining the theater, which is used as a property room. The notes cover the rent claimed to be due for the last eight months of the five-year lease on the building.

The Queen theater of Knoxville has made arrangements to show the Famous Players pictures at the theater hereafter. The Jack London stories and Mary Pickford productions have become immensely popular all through the South and big audiences are being played to whenever pictures of this class are shown.

The Majestic theater of Chattanooga is staging a number of vaudeville and musical turns in addition to its regular run of motion pictures.

The Alhambra theater of Chattanooga recently showed "The Vendetta" and a number of other high-class productions.

The work of making 20,000 feet of Tennessee films for the San Francisco Exposition of 1915 is coming along rapidly, under the direction of S. I. Connor, field representative of the Tennessee Exposition Commission, and operating for the Bon Ray Film Company. Nashville has been apportioned a total of 7,000 feet, Memphis 6,000 and Knoxville and Chattanooga divide up the remainder. Side trips to districts surrounding each city will be included in their division of the 20,000 feet of film. Fifteen hundred children recently took part in one of the pictures, made at Centennial Park, near Nashville, Tenn. The children ranged in age from two years to fourteen and were shown at their many sports in the big park.

GEORGE.

WISCONSIN.

SOME of Milwaukee's super-prudes objected to the title of "For Those Unborn" appearing at the Butterfly theater and asked that the name be changed. Nothing objectionable was found in the film. The censor commission of the citizens' committee had viewed the picture and found nothing that demanded elimination. Later a request came to Manager Graham that the name be changed as complaints had reached the censors that the title constituted an offense. Perhaps the time is coming when exhibitors will have to maintain sub-title printing plants to meet the demands of local censorship. In Chicago the censors cut out a sub-title referring to the unborn, but it went through the rest of the picture.

Wee's Opera House at Orfordville has installed a machine and will give picture shows.

C. M. Mast has sold the Temple theater at Washburn to P. T. Trowbridge of Milwaukee.

E. B. Korth of Orangeville is planning to erect a reinforced concrete building at that place to be used as a moving picture theater, opera house, dance hall and garage.

The Majestic theater, "the Acknowledged Home of the Best Pictures" has been in business at Madison for over a year. An "epoch-making program" was offered for anniversary week.

A special performance of the "Made-in-Fondulac" pictures for the members of the cast and the advertisers was held at the Orpheum.

W. L. Fursman and Ralph L. Thacher have achieved distinctiveness with their new Varsity theater in State street in Madison by giving the residents of the city "after-breakfast" shows. The Varsity is the first to open at 10 a. m. The first performance was one to a select crowd. Invitations were mailed to members of the state and city government and the local press.

Elwyn G. Hamer will be advertising manager of the new People's theater (formerly the Rex) at Oshkosh, which is operated by the New People's Theater Company, a local concern with an unusually large number of shareholders. It is running pictures and vaudeville.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

CINCINNATI.

THE regular season in this vicinity is getting into full swing, hastened somewhat by unusually cool weather, which has routed the airdomes and driven the crowds into the closed houses. Most of these report a very noticeable and gratifying increase in the volume of business, although there are not a few which, with superior ventilation, handled large crowds all through the summer. So far depressed business conditions resulting from the war have cut no appreciable figure in the business of local exhibitors, the attendance at most of the houses, on the contrary, holding up remarkably well.

The Orpheum, the big house up on Walnut Hills, found that the weather was getting too cool for the airy roof to be attractive to crowds last week, and consequently closed that part of the house for the season, after experiencing a highly profitable summer by reason of having this breezy spot during the heat of June and July. The crowds have been accommodated in the roomy auditorium, however, which is one of the largest for theatrical purposes in the city. Even this, however, was taxed to capacity on Sunday afternoon and evening, when the big Essanay production of "One Wonderful Night," featuring Francis X. Bushman, was the attraction. The crowds which turned out for this were undoubtedly the best of the season for the Orpheum, and probably the best which any house in the city has experienced. At every performance the house was completely filled, crowds waiting outside for the completion of the performance in order to get in for the next. This continued until the last running of the feature. On Saturday night Lubin's "The Wolf" was almost equally successful.

Most of the pictures now being shown in Cincinnati bear the mark of the approval of the Ohio Censor Board in the shape of a map of the state in yellow and the statement of the board's approval. Not a few complaints continue to be heard from the exchange on the score of the board's work, it being asserted that there is undue delay in passing on pictures, with corresponding trouble for the exchanges in handling the demands of the exhibitors. It seems that the board is overcrowded with work, in trying to handle the large number of films which have accumulated, and hence is unable to get them out as rapidly as is desirable. It is understood in Cincinnati that the opening of a new exchange, which expected to open for business a week or so ago, has been postponed on account of the delay of the censor in passing upon films submitted for their approval.

Edward T. Lux, manager of the local Universal offices and of the Cincinnati Buckeye Film Company is in New York on business connected with the disposition of the latter business, negotiations for the sale of which have been under way for some time, it is understood.

The Nordland Plaza, the Alhambra and the Orpheum, three of the leading film houses of the city, showed the Shubert production of "The Chimes," dramatized for the camera from Dicken's story and released by the World Film Corporation last week with considerable success.

Manager John H. Havlin of the Grand showed "Cabiria," the big Itala feature, last week for the second round, the drawing power of the attraction having been such as to make this an obviously profitable move. Its educational side has proved valuable, many school teachers and their pupils attending for this reason. Manager Havlin extended a special invitation to all of the school principals, as well as to teachers of history in the high schools of the city, to attend as his guests, and this invitation was accepted cordially by the teachers.

In connection with the showing of "Cabiria" the press agent of the Grand tells a yarn which ought to be true, if it is not, and it at least indicates the fact that some people have not yet discovered that photo dramas are holding the stage, as it were, in many "regular" theaters, the Grand among them. It seems that an enterprising restaurant man in Cincinnati makes a practice of securing an advance copy of all theatrical programs, by means of which he secures the names of the actors and addresses them at the theaters with cordial invitations to patronize his place while in the city. He followed this practice with "Cabiria," failing to note that it is a film production, and a large number of his circular invitations, addressed to Madame Quaranta, the Italian actress who took the title role, and others in the cast were received at the Grand. The restaurant man received little business from this particular bunch of circulars, however, and perhaps by this time he has learned why.

The eagerness of theatergoers to see something with a war flavor was gratified last week by Lyman H. Howe, who is filling an engagement of several weeks at the Lyric, and who showed several reels of pictures, taken before the war, of course, showing the maneuvers of troops of all of the armies now engaged in the European struggle. Views of battleships and of many of the forts which have figured in recent news dispatches also had very timely interest, and helped to account for the large audiences which the Howe show, an annual attraction in Cincinnati, continues to draw.

Some local pictures of interest shown at the Lyric last week in connection with the Howe pictures included the official pictures of the laying of the cornerstone of Hanselmann Lodge's new Masonic home in Cincinnati, as well as of several other local events of interest. Hanselmann Lodge is the only Masonic organization in Ohio whose ceremonies are conducted in the German language. As announced in these columns some time ago, it had motion pictures taken of the exercises at the laying of the cornerstone for preservation in its archives.

Motion pictures which served both to entertain and to instruct in a very practical manner featured the meeting on Monday night of last week of the Cincinnati Ben Franklin Club, an organization of the printers of the Queen City. The pictures showed the process of paper making, from the cutting of the logs to the operations at the pulp mill, and thence through the mills to the completion of various grades of paper. The pictures were supplied by one of the large paper concerns near Cincinnati.

The local branch of the motion picture operators' union participated conspicuously in the Labor Day parade which was held in Cincinnati, being one of the few organizations in a complete uniform. The men wore blue caps and trousers, tan shoes and white shirts, and presented an extremely neat and natty appearance. Each man carried a flag over his left shoulder. An amusing incident which occurred during the parade, involving Harry Lacey, business agent of the union and a marshal in the section including the operators, showed that American citizens of all races are able to view the war with something like good humor and calmness. Lacey happens to be an Englishman, and in acknowledgment of this fact one of the boys in the reviewing stand, of pure German blood, shouted in English of strong Teutonic flavor, as the operators passed: "God save the King!" Lacey smilingly acknowledged the salute and the motion picture boys passed on.

The Elite theater in North Dayton was opened last week with a fine initial program and good houses, souvenirs being presented to each woman and child attending on the opening day. The building is a handsome one, with all modern improvements and conveniences for the comfort of patrons, and indications from the first week's business are that it will meet with a successful season.

CASEY.

PENNSYLVANIA.

THE New Lyric theater in North Main street, Butler, is being rushed with all possible speed and it is expected that it will be opened some time in October. Mr. Carleton is the manager of this theater, which will be one of the finest in the city when completed. It has a frontage of 40 feet on Main street and is 180 feet deep. The lobby will be 18 feet wide by 40 feet deep. The auditorium will seat over 1,000 persons.

The East Liberty branch of the Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh, Pa., has arranged a series of educational moving pictures to be given this fall and winter. Among those listed are the following: Friday, Oct. 23, "The Making of a Newspaper"; Friday, Nov. 13, "The Story of a Telephone Girl"; Friday, Nov. 27, "The Manufacture of Lumber."

George A. Jones, Jr., manager of the Richards Features, and H. L. Grelle, manager of the Grelle Feature Film Company on the third and fourth floors respectively of the Camera-phone building, Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, were given orders recently by the city officials to vacate. Each was given forty-eight hours to do the stunt in. Jones got busy and secured a room on the second floor of 121 Fourth avenue and had some time to spare, while Grelle was not so lucky in finding a place but was fortunately granted an extension of time. It is reported that a film manufacturing concern on the top floor was not molested. Exchange managers of this city have an idea that the reason why some of the exchanges are locating in various parts of the city and not in Fourth avenue, which is known as "Film Row," is because rents are so high there.

With an excellent bill, Manager Harry Winslow opened the Orpheum theater for the 1914-15 season at Sharon last week with vaudeville and motion pictures.

The Jefferson theater at Hamilton cleaned, painted and refurnished, was reopened last week for a continuous showing of Miss Mary Pickford in "Hearts Adrift." "Hearts Adrift" was exhibited at this theater early in the summer and made such a pronounced hit that the management has been compelled to answer to the many special requests that the great sentimental photodrama of human emotions be repeated.

A Pennsylvania charter of incorporations has been granted the Lion Film Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, with a capital of $10,000. Incorporators are A. E. Irons, Pittsburgh; H. R. Morrow, Bellevue; Mark Chrisholm, Homestead.

Harvey B. Day, manager, recently opened a new branch of the Pittsburgh branch of the Box Office Attractions Company in the Decatur building over the General Film Company's office on Fourth avenue. Mr. Day is well known to the Pittsburgh exhibitors, having been manager of the George Kleine Attractions for almost a year. He was associated with the best theatrical organizations for years but severed all connections here to take charge of a chain of theaters in the Middle West. He has traveled extensively in this and other countries, and is one of the most popular exchangemen in Pittsburg.

E. L. Harmon, of the American Poster Mounting Company at Pittsburgh, reports business increasing. He recently placed an order for more frames and when these are installed will have a capacity of 1,500 sheets a day.

John R. Goble has been elected president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Western Pennsylvania. He is a contractor and an exhibitor and conducts both of these successfully. He was born in Cooksburg in 1868 and came here in 1897. He is a carpenter by trade and has been in the contracting business for the past ten years. He built the North End theater for the Kummer Brothers in 1912, and his management of it has been a big success.

The Feature Film and Calcium Light Company of Pittsburgh expects to rig up a Baird projector in the basement of their building soon, so as to give practical demonstrations of the merits of the machine to the exhibitors.

The Palace theater on the south side of Pittsburgh has changed hands. Grossman Brothers sold out to S. Gelbman.

D. Leo Dennison has been appointed as manager of the Kleine Film Exchange in Pittsburgh, successor to Harvey B. Day.

K. L. Mann has opened up a new picture house in Melisburg. He reports business very good.

MANLEY.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

THE Unique theater at Mankato, Minn., has been reopened by the American Amusement Company and will again be operated in conjunction with the Grand theater. Manager Arthur Erickson of the Grand will have charge of both houses. Erickson has opened a show at Madison Lake, showing Sunday and Wednesday nights in the village hall. Percy Wirig is local manager.

The Odeon theater at Laurel, Mont., has been leased to William Tyrrell.

William Puhler and E. S. Powell of Brinsmade have made arrangements to open a moving picture show at Towner, N. D. They have sold their equipment at Brinsmade to the Farmers' Mercantile Company.

The city council at St. Paul, Minn., has granted licenses to C. L. Graham to operate a moving picture theater at 315 Maria avenue and to the American Amusement Company to operate at 1077-79 Payne avenue.

Earl Tracy of Bonanza Springs has leased the Byhre building at Beardsley, Minn., and opened a moving picture show.

Scenics to be known as "Orpheum Travel Films" will be a regular feature at the Orpheum theater in Minneapolis, Minn. The first of these take the patrons into the warring countries.

D. F. McPherson, proprietor of a moving picture theater in Aberdeen, S. D., charged with giving a performance within a mile of a church while religious service was being held, was bound over for trial at the next term of the municipal court. The operators, charged with similar offenses, waived jury trials and sought trials by the judge, but the court refused to accept the waiver and they will be tried by jury.

A special matinee for school children was given at the Metropolitan theater in Rochester, Minn., when the African Hunt pictures were shown.

Fred Baumbach has begun the enlargement of the Idle Hour theater at Bryant, S. D.

Criticisms from the Moving Picture World are reproduced by the Yankton theater at Yankton, S. D. These are not limited to those which speak highly of the films but also those which damn with faint praise.

The high standing of Saxe Brothers in their home city of Milwaukee is shown that on the night they opened their new Saxe theater on Seventh street in Minneapolis, Minn., they received telegrams of congratulation from Governor McGovern of Wisconsin and also from the mayor of Milwaukee. Samuel Robinson, who was prominent with the Seaver enterprises at Peoria, will be the local manager for the new house. Anita Dewitte Cook, prominent in Minneapolis church work, will be organist and Eric S. J. Olander leader of the orchestra.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

ILLINOIS.

COOL weather has come to many sections of Illinois earlier than usual. As a result airdome business has slumped while the regular photoplay houses have noticed a gratifying increase in patronage. The houses in the smaller cities which have been idle throughout the summer were ready for business and have resumed their regular programs.

Col. Nat H. Cohen's new moving picture house in Urbana is to be known as the Majestic. The theater will be in the building which is now occupied by the postoffice and as soon as the government vacates it remodeling of the structure will begin. Plans have been placed in the hands of a Chicago architect.

The Clayton Opera House at Clayton has been leased by Frank Coup and C. C. Castle. Primarily it will be a moving picture house. However, some theatrical attractions will be booked but as it is announced that all such exhibitions will have to be gilt-edged the patrons are assured a large percentage of photoplay bookings. Coup has been seven years in the show business and promises a high standard of shows.

The Princess theater at Rushville has been taken over by R. F. Burnham, who will put into the business several years of theatrical experience. New projection apparatus, a new operating room, redecoration and extensive alterations have been added. After October 1 the house is to be operated as a five-cent moving picture show, reserving a few dates for traveling attractions.

Lewistown is to have a new moving picture show, it is reported. J. F. Knock has been negotiating for the old canning factory building in the east part of the city and will convert it into a photoplay house. Inasmuch as it is not situated in the business part of town, it is probable that lengthy programs at bargain prices will be offered as an inducement for patrons.

J. N. Petrie is back in the moving picture business at Watseka. Since he disposed of the Star theater in that city he failed to find a location that suited him and has purchased the Princess theater of F. H. Gard.

Frank E. Jones of Mount Vernon, who recently bought a half interest in the Gem theater at Sullivan and has since been managing the house, has purchased the other half interest from his partner, Walter Warren of Mount Vernon, and has assumed full control. Warren has gone into the clothing business at Mount Vernon.

As a town boosting movement Henry McMillen showed six reels of moving pictures at DeLand. A crowd of from 400 to 500 farmers was attracted to the public square and it is probable that a plan will be evolved whereby the photoplay will be used frequently to exploit the trading advantages of De Land.

The management of the Yale theater at Carbondale makes the following interesting announcement to its patrons: "The Yale Amusement Company has never yet taken a cent out of the city for its own use; the profits so far have all been spent in improvements, to make the local theater better and more comfortable. And it will be years before the investment can pay for itself and then we will take the money and build you a new one."

Labor troubles will no longer bother the Vaudette Amusement Company. The differences between the company and the stage hands' union which grew out of alleged grievances of the moving picture operators have been adjusted. The local federation has given the Gaiety, the vaudeville and picture house, and the Vaudette the exclusive picture house, clean bills and the union men may again patronize them.

The Airdome at McHenry recently gave the annual benefit for Riverview Camp Royal Neighbors of America.

Macomb had a real "Million Dollar Mystery" which afforded the papers in the Military Tract, as that section of the state is known, a great deal of amusement. A set of the Mystery films for one of the Macomb houses went astray. "The mayor hasn't declared a holiday to be celebrated upon their recovery," said one Galesburg paper, "but most of the town is expecting it to be one anyway."

James Fenton of Monmouth has closed his airdome at Astoria, leaving the moving picture field there to the Duncan theater. The Duncan has introduced the people of Astoria to the photoplay matinee, the town having acquired day electrical service.

The Wilmette theater at Wilmette has been taken over by the management of the Village theater and the two houses will be operated in conjunction, the booking for both being done by Manager Sparr of the village. A new screen has been installed in the Wilmette.

The American theater at Carthage has installed a new $1,000 orchestral Violaphone.

"I positively guarantee every statement made in regard to this picture to be true," declared Manager L. M. Rubens of the Princess theater at Joliet in apprising his patrons of the coming of "The Spoilers." Fortunately there were nothing but favorable advance statements made in Joliet.

The Gem theater at Grafton which has been closed all summer has been reopened.

A pie-eating contest between sixty boys was one of the stunts at the Rock Falls Corn Carnival, which was filmed and will be shown in Northern Illinois picture houses.

Manager Clauer of Dreamland theater at Galena is a member of the Masonic band of that city. On the night he opened his remodeled house, the musicians surprised him by appearing on the scene at 7 o'clock and giving a concert. A new stucco front, interior decorations with handsome paintings, and a new indirect lighting system are among the improvements.

S. H. Gihlman of New Orleans, La., is said to have secured a location in Normal for a moving picture theater. The building will be remodeled and redecorated.

Oak Park has enough graduates of the University of Wisconsin at Madison to form a large local alumni association. The moving pictures of the decennial reunion at the school therefore did a big business at the Oak Park theater on Sept. 12.

The Lyric theater at Robinson gave a free show for old soldiers the night of Sept. 16. "Molly, the Drummer Boy," was shown.

Moving picture shows are increasing the revenues of the city of Peoria. The amusement places now add $1,576 a year to the municipal treasury.

A great many Illinois theaters are showing the moving pictures which demonstrate the manufacture of various makes of automobiles. There is a great deal of interest in this class of pictures, especially in the smaller towns. The farmers are enthusiastic motorists and eager to go behind the scenes at the factory.

E. P. Milburn has purchased the Spencer building in South Main street in Marseilles and will remodel it for use as a modern moving picture house. He will give up his lease on the present location about the first of the year. It is probable the new house will book some vaudeville.

W. W. Wolfe, a grocery clerk, and A. A. Rose of Champaign, have had the Ludwig building at the corner of Main and Water streets in that city remodeled into a moving picture theater seating 375 persons which they plan to open about Oct. 1. Rose formerly was employed by the Wurlitzer Company at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Fred L. Vermillion, a well-known commercial photographer of Springfield, has entered the moving picture making field. His first films were about 500 feet of the Labor Day, the Shriners' and the Knights Templar Parades held in Springfield. They were shown at the Princess theater. Vermilion is equipped with an automobile and plans to film all events in Central Illinois and turn out the work in twenty-four hours. Arrangements were made to film the principal features of the Illinois State Fair at Springfield. There is a good field in and around Springfield for an alert cameraman as events of national importance occur there continuously.

Old soldiers of Bureau County were admitted free to the Apollo theater when the annual reunion was held at Princeton.

Frank Osborn has been appointed manager of the new Royal theater at 322 Seventh street in Rockford. Elmer Eriels will be in charge of the projection.

Two Illinois moving picture houses are operating lecture courses, laying off the photoplays on the nights the literary or musical numbers are given. Hamilton & Warren of the Photoplay theater at Camp Point are the latest. Burr Swan of the Knights of Pythias Opera House at Pittsfield tells why he is giving a lecture course: "You see, I've never lost any money in the moving picture business. The place is paying a fair return for what I put into it. Taken the whole year round, it is Pittsfield's center of entertainment and recreation and amusement. Business is not dropping off and I am not going to wait until it starts to drop. I am going to keep on showing the very best stuff I can get in that opera house. I am going to keep on until everybody in town and the country round about is proud of 'our opera house,' 'our lecture course,' 'our picture show.' And I am going to show it at a minimum profit because in the end the minimum profit is the biggest profit. A lot of my friends labor under the hallucination that words and more words come easy for me; in other words, that I like to hear myself talk. Which may be more or less true, but nevertheless there is not a successful business man in Pittsfield or anywhere else but who will tell you my theory of running the opera house is good sound business sense, the giving of value received. It is good sound business sense to make your place of business stand for service. That's why I am offering a $400 lecture course for 99c. This lecture course will be a part of the good things you will see and hear at the K. of P. Opera House in Pittsfield, a part of your recreation, a part of your entertainment, a part of your education."

The new picture show at the opera house in Dixon has an augmented orchestra on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

DETROIT.

IT used to be considered quite a sight to see dozens and dozens of automobiles lined up in front of the high-class theaters playing legitimate dramatic attractions, either before or after the performance, yet there is hardly a night that automobiles by the score do not line the streets in front of the Liberty, Washington, Garden, Addison and Gladwin picture theaters. All of these theaters have a large following of automobile owners, and it is not an uncommon occurrence for late arrivals to be compelled to "park" their machines two and three blocks away from the theater owing to all of the space nearer being taken.

Fall business with the picture houses has started in earnest. Most everybody is back from their vacation, the evenings are cool and people are again patronizing the "movies" as thick as flies on a molasses barrel. In spite of the number of new theaters erected since last fall, there is not a manager or a proprietor who does not say that his patronage is larger than it was a year ago. It must be remembered that Detroit is growing; the latest census gives us a population of over 650,000, which shows a gain of 44,000 in the last 12 months.

The Grand Boulevard Theater Company closed a deal on Sept. 16 with William F. Klatt, whereby that company takes over 53 feet on the Grand Boulevard belonging to the latter, giving him stock in the company in exchange for the ground. The result is that instead of only 87 feet frontage on the boulevard, the Grand Boulevard Theater Company now has a frontage of 140 feet by 120 feet deep. This means that instead of building a theater to seat only 1,200 as originally planned, the total seating capacity will be increased to 2,000. The theater proper will run from side to side, or east and west instead of north and south. The original idea of making it a duplex theater, however, will still be carried out. Mr. Klatt, who is president and general manager of the Detroit Theaters, Inc., which operates about six picture houses in Detroit, had intended to build a small house on his 53 feet of ground so that by disposing of it he abandons his plan and leaves a clear field for the Grand Boulevard theater, thereby bringing this house considerably closed to Woodward avenue, which is Detroit's main thoroughfare. The location of the Grand Boulevard is directly opposite the eight-story retail building of the Ford Motor Company. Actual construction work will start by October 1, and it is expected that the theater will be completed about the middle of January or the first of February.

The Gladwin Park theater on Jefferson avenue, adjoining Water Works Park, has arranged to show the big features of the World Film Corporation. The Gladwin Park is one of the largest and finest picture theaters in Detroit. Mr. Langloise, the manager, reports that business is picking up every day. The house never fails to have capacity at the first performance in the evening, and four nights out of the seven is also packed at the second night show. This theater has a very large automobile trade, many of the patrons coming in from Gross Pointe, which is further out Jefferson.

A local advertising firm is showing short reels and commercial films every night on a screen over the building at 210 Woodward avenue. Between the various reels advertising slides are thrown. As Woodward avenue is Detroit's leading business thoroughfare, there is always a good crowd on the opposite side of the street looking at the pictures.

For the past two weeks deputies of the State Fire Marshal's Department have been making a rigid examination of Detroit's moving picture houses to see how many were complying with the state law, which is that all theaters showing motion pictures must be examined twice each year by the fire marshals and that each must pay a fee of $10 and receive a license from the state. There are 125 theaters in Detroit showing pictures and all but 25 small ones have complied with the law, according to the statement of one deputy. Final warnings have been served on the theaters disobeying the law, and unless they comply within a week or ten days their places will be closed.

The Washington theater is being redecorated throughout. The management has given special attention to the stage setting, which is said to be one of the most beautiful in the United States. Manager Howard O. Pierce has arranged with several local artists of note, such as Harold Jarvis, to entertain the patrons with vocal solos, and in addition there will be special pipe organ recitals daily. Mr. Pierce feels very well satisfied with the business done since the house opened and is confident that the Paramount attractions will be packing the house three times daily before very long. Mary Pickford in her latest success, "Such a Little Queen," was the attraction for the week of September 20. Big business was the result.

Williams Bros., architects in the Kresge building, will let contracts this month for a theater on Dix avenue between Military and Cavalry avenue for E. A. Risk. The house will be 60 by 120 and will seat 800. It will

(Continued on page 88.)

Calendar of Licensed Releases

Current Releases

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—A First-Class Cook (Comedy)
—The White-Hand Society (Comedy)
EDISON—Love by the Pound (Tenth of the "Wood B. Wedd" Series) (Comedy)
ESSANAY—Sweedie's Clean-Up (Comedy)
KALEM—The Viper (Special—Two parts—Drama)
LUBIN—An Affair of Honor (Third of the "Beloved Adventurer" Series) (Drama)
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 63, 1914 (News)
SELIG—The Going of the White Swan (Special—Two parts—Drama)
SELIG—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 61 (News)
VITAGRAPH—When the Gods Forgive (Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Derelicts (Special—Two parts—Drama).
CINES—A Shot from Ambush (Special—Two parts—Drama)
EDISON—The Mystery of the Glass Tubes (Eleventh of the "Chronicles of Cleek" Series) (Drama)
ESSANAY—White Lies (Drama)
KALEM—Grouch, the Engineer (Drama)
LUBIN—Jinks and the Barber (Comedy)
—Jealous James (Comedy)
MELIES—A Circus Romance (Comedy)
SELIG—The Real Thing in Cowboys (Comedy—Drama)
VITAGRAPH—Regan's Daughter (Special—Two parts—Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1914.

EDISON—Buster Brown Gets the Worst of It (Comedy)
—In a Prohibition Town (Comedy)
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Adult Girl Who Got Busy" (Comedy)
KALEM—The Ex-Convict (Special-Two parts—Drama)
—Food for the Dogs of War (Educational)
LUBIN—His Brother Bill (Special—Two parts—Drama)
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 64, 1914 (News)
SELIG—The Loyalty of Jumbo (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—The Heart of Sonny Jim (Comedy—Drama)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Spirit of Jealousy (Drama)
ESSANAY—Slippery Slim Gets Cured (Comedy)
LUBIN—His First Case (Special—Two parts—Drama)
MELIES—Blind Marriage (Comedy)
SELIG—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 62 (News)
VITAGRAPH—The Love of Pierre Larosse (Drama)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Peasant's Lie (Drama)
EDISON—The Poisoned Bit (Special—Two parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—Golf Champion "Chick" Evans Links with Sweedie (Special—Two parts—Comedy)
KALEM—The Slavery of Foxicus (Comedy)
LUBIN—The Greater Love (Drama)
SELIG—An Embarrassing Predicament (Comedy)
VITAGRAPH—Eats (Comedy)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The New Road's Mascot (Drama)
EDISON—A Transplanted Prairie Flower (Drama)
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy Trapped (Western—Drama)
KALEM—The Legend of the Amulet (Drama)
LUBIN—On Circus Day (Comedy)
SELIG—Four Minutes Late (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—The Royal Wild West (Special—Two parts—Comedy)

Advance Releases

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Borrowed Cook (Drama)
EDISON—Father's Beard (Comedy)
ESSANAY—The Fickleness of Sweedie (Comedy)
KALEM—The Dancer (Special—Two parts—Drama)
LUBIN—The Beloved Adventurer No. 4, "An American Heiress" (Drama)
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 65, 1914 (News)
SELIG—The Moving Picture Cowboy (Special—Two parts—Comedy)
—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 63 (News)
VITAGRAPH—Fisherman Kate (Comedy)

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Gwendolin (Special—Two parts—Drama)
CINES—The Wrecked Special (Special—Two parts—Drama)
EDISON—Greater Love Hath No Man (Drama)
ESSANAY—The Verdict (Drama)
KALEM—For the Love of Mike (Comedy)
—Hesanut Hunts Wild Game (Comedy)
LUBIN—Wife's Athletic Mamma (Comedy)
—A Hunting Absurdity (Comedy)
COLUMBUS—What Would You Do? (Comedy)
SELIG—The Way of the Redman (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—His Unknown Girl (Special—Two parts—Drama)

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

EDISON—Seth's Sweetheart (Comedy)
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Family That Did Too Much For Nellie" (Comedy)
KALEM—The Lost Mail Sack (Special—Two parts—Drama)
LUBIN—The Girl at the Lock (Special—Two parts—Drama)
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 66, 1914 (News)
SELIG—The Reparation (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—Kill or cure (Comedy)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Their Little Drudge (Drama)
ESSANAY—When Slippery Slim Met the Champion (Comedy)
LUBIN—In Old Virginia (Special—Two parts—Drama)
COLUMBUS—The New Apprentice (Comedy)
—Kissing Germ (Comedy)
SELIG—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 64 (News)
VITAGRAPH—The Loan Shark King (Drama)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—They Were College Boys (Comedy)
—The Man Hunters (Comedy)
EDISON—The Long Way (Special—Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—The Real Agatha (Special—Two parts—Drama)
KALEM—The Tattered Duke (Comedy)
LUBIN—The Green-Eyed Monster (Drama)
SELIG—Jimmie the Porter (Comedy)
—Doc Yak's Bottle (Cartoon)
VITAGRAPH—Josie's Legacy (Comedy)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—His Mother's Home (Drama)
EDISON—A Fragment of Ash (Drama)
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy and the Greaser (Drama)
KALEM—Fate's Midnight Hour (Drama)
LUBIN—When the Ham Turned (Comedy)
SELIG—Her Victory Eternal (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—The Rose and the Thorn (Special—Two parts—Drama)

IN PREPARING FOR THE SEASON'S BUSINESS REMEMBER THAT POSTER FRAMES ARE A VERY ATTRACTIVE LOBBY DISPLAY. WE ARE SELLING THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST PRACTICAL POSTER FRAME MADE. AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO., First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Calendar of Quality Releases

A PROGRAM OF QUALITY

For Your

PROGRAM HEADLINERS

BIOGRAPH -- KLAW & ERLANGER

Three Reel Productions

For Each Tuesday

THE TWO REEL BIOGRAPH

For Each

Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday

A ONE REEL BIOGRAPH

BIOGRAPH QUALITY

Calendar of Independent Releases

Mutual Film Corporation

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1914.

KOMIC—Bill Manages a Prize Fighter (No. 7) (Comedy)..
MAJESTIC—The Great God Fear (Two parts—Comedy Drama) .....
THANHOUSER—The Harvest of Regrets (Drama).....

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1914.

AMERICAN—A Modern Rip Van Winkle (Two parts—Drama) .....
KEYSTONE—Hard Cider (Comedy).....
RELIANCE—Our Mutual Girl No. 37 (Topical).....

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1914.

BEAUTY—The Legend of Black Rock (Drama).....
MAJESTIC—A Mother's Trust (Drama).....
THANHOUSER—The Trail of the Lovelorn (Two parts—Drama) .....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1914.

AMERICAN—The Ingrate (Two parts—Drama).....
BRONCHO—The Right to Die (Two parts—Drama).....
RELIANCE—Where the Mountains Meet (Western—Drama) .....

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1914.

DOMINO—The Gamekeeper's Daughter (Two parts—Drama) .....
KEYSTONE—Killing of Horace (Comedy).....
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 92 (News).....

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1914.

KAY-BEE—One of the Discard (Two parts—Drama).....
PRINCESS—The Balance of Power (Drama).....
RELIANCE—The Sheriff's Master (Western—Comedy)....

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1914.

KEYSTONE—(Title Not Yet Announced).....
RELIANCE—The Wireless Voice (Two parts—Drama)....
ROYAL—Cousin Billy (Comedy).....

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1914.

KOMIC—The Million Dollar Bride (Comedy).....
MAJESTIC—Out of the Air (Two parts—Drama).....
THANHOUSER—A Dog's Love (Drama).....

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

AMERICAN—Daphnia (Two parts—Drama).....
KEYSTONE—Their Ups and Downs (Comedy).....
RELIANCE—Our Mutual Girl No. 38 (Topical).....

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

BEAUTY—Nieda (Drama) .....
MAJESTIC—The Unpainted Portrait (Drama).....
THANHOUSER—The Cripple (Two parts—Drama).....

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

AMERICAN—Billy's Rival (Drama).....
BRONCHO—The Boss of the 8th (Two parts—Drama)....
RELIANCE—The Badge of Office (Western—Drama).....

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

DOMINO—The Whiskey Runners (Two parts—Drama)....
KEYSTONE—(Title not yet announced).....
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 93 (News).....

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

KAY-BEE—The Sheriff of Muscatine (Two parts—Drama).
PRINCESS—The One Who Cared (Drama).....
THANHOUSER—The Benevolence of Conductor 786 (Comedy) .....

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

KEYSTONE—(Title not yet announced).....
RELIANCE—The Tardy Cannon Ball (Two parts—Drama).
ROYAL—The Pet of the Petticoats (Comedy).....

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1914.

ECLAIR—Fate's Finger (Drama).....
FRONTIER—The Man in the Attic (Drama).....
REX—As the Wind Blows (Two parts—Drama).....

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1914.

IMP—The Dark Horse (Drama).....
STERLING—The Battle (Two parts—Juvenile-Comedy)...
VICTOR—The Proof of a Man (Drama).....

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1914.

CRYSTAL—Charlie's Smoke (Comedy).....
—Belmont Butts In (Comedy).....
GOLD SEAL—The Trey o' Hearts, Series No. 9 (As the Crow Flies) (Two parts—Drama).....
UNIVERSAL IKE—The Shack Next Door (Comedy)....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1914.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 134 (News).....
ECLAIR—Till the Sands of the Deserts Grow Cold (Two parts—Drama) .....
JOKER—The New Butler (Comedy).....
NESTOR—The White Wolf (Indian-Drama).....

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1914.

IMP—The Tenth Commandment (Three parts—Drama)...
REX—The Boob's Legacy (Comedy).....
STERLING—No Release this Week.....

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1914.

NESTOR—Out of the Frying Pan (Comedy).....
POWERS—The Actress (Drama).....
VICTOR—The Rock of Hope (Two parts—Drama).....

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1914.

"101" BISON—Love and Baseball (Two parts—Drama)....
JOKER—In the Clutches of the Villain (Comedy).....
—Barcelona, the Pearl of the Mediterranean (Educational) .....

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1914.

ECLAIR—The Man Who Came Back (Western Drama)....
FRONTIER—Four Days (Drama).....
REX—The Pipes of Pan (Two parts—Drama).....

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

IMP—Shadows (Two parts—Drama).....
STERLING—Myers' Mistake (Comedy).....
VICTOR—Disillusioned (Drama) .....

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

CRYSTAL—Liferitis (Comedy) .....
GOLD SEAL—The Trey o' Hearts, Episode No. 10 (Steel Ribbons—Two parts—Drama) .....
UNIVERSAL IKE—Three of a Kind (Comedy).....

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 135 (News).....
ECLAIR—The Secret Treaty (Two parts—Drama).....
JOKER—The Base Ball Fans of Fansville (Comedy).....
NESTOR—The Old Bell Ringer (Drama).....

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

IMP—Universal Boy in "Rural Adventures" (Juvenile—Drama) .....
REX—A Law Unto Herself (Two parts—Drama).....
STERLING—Hypnotic Power (Comedy) .....

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

NESTOR—He Never Said a Word (Comedy).....
POWERS—The Mayor's Manicure (Comedy—Drama).....
VICTOR—The Man Who Was Never Kissed (Two parts—Comedy—Drama) .....

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

"101" BISON—The Phantom Light (Two parts—Drama)..
JOKER—Cruel, Cruel World (Comedy).....

IN THE JURY BOX

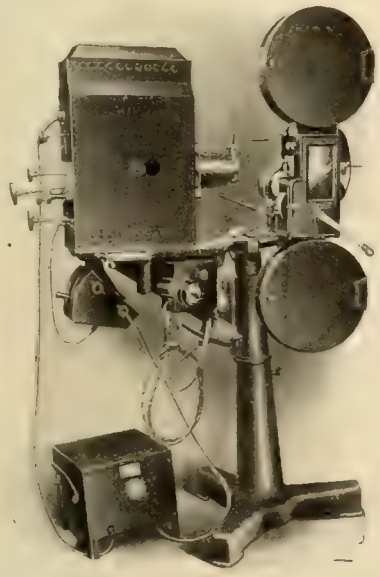
Write to a user of a Simplex projector. You will then be convinced that it is the Peerless Motion Picture Machine.

Oakland, Fla., July 13, 1914.
We have run a Simplex 18 months, no repairs. Don't see how a machine could be better.
(Signed) Matthews & Ogburn,
Hopkins St. DIMOND PHOTO PLAY.

New Smyrna, Fla., May 6, 1914.
Been operating your machine for the past two years, and it sure surpasses any other machine on the market.
(Signed) E. R. MOULDIN.

Waterford, N. Y., July 18, 1914.
The Simplex gets the picture on the screen and that's what the people pay for.
(Signed) Casino Theatre,
H. LEVY.

Cohoes, N. Y., July 2, 1914.
Our first, or at least the writer's first, experience with the Simplex. Must say I am agreeably surprised, as I've always favored another make.
(Signed) Cohoes Amusement Co., Ltd.
L. A. BUETTNER, Mgr.



YOU purchase a Simplex projector and your expectations will be fulfilled and your patrons' ideals realized.

Write for Catalogue A Today?

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

(Continued from page 83.)

be of solid brick with concrete floor, tile partitions and stones and tile ornamental front.

Maurice Geiger, of the Eclectic Feature Film Exchange, is now making his permanent headquarters in Detroit at the Berkhoff hotel on Monroe avenue. Mr. Geiger is also representing the Pathe Daily News. He formerly was connected with the Cleveland office, but was transferred to Detroit about two months ago and devotes all of his time to the local trade and nearby towns. Mr. Geiger is having splendid success in placing his company's productions, which are being shown in the very best theaters in the city. "The Stain," which ran at the National theater some weeks ago, proved the biggest drawing that that theater ever had since it opened, according to the statement of the house manager, C. R. Hagedorn. Among the theaters playing Eclectic and Pathe attractions are the New Washington, Garden and New Empire. It is reported that if business continues as good as it has been so far, the Eclectic people will establish a film exchange in Detroit, similar to the one in Cleveland. Mr. Geiger knows the picture business from A to Z, has a very pleasing personality and will be glad to assist any local exhibitor in any way he can.

The Miles theater is again showing moving pictures at the noon hour, from 12:30 to 2:30, similar to the arrangement of last spring. An admission price of 10 and 20 cents is charged, and those who care to are privileged to remain over until the regular afternoon performance. In this way, a person may be entertained from 12:30 to 4:30 with a two-hour picture show and two hours of vaudeville for the one price. Business has started in very well and it is the plan of the management to continue this policy through the winter and until late in the spring.

SMITH.

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE United States Steel Products Company has awarded a contract for the construction of the moving picture theater in the Mines and Metallurgy building on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition that is to form a portion of the exhibit of this concern. Moving pictures are being taken, showing the metal working plants of this company in detail.

Frank L. Hudson, of the San Francisco office of the Eclectic Film Company, has returned from a business trip to Denver, Colo., in the interests of this concern.

At a recent meeting of the Exhibitors' League of San Francisco the actions of the officers, who conferred a short time ago with Chief of Police White to secure a modification of his order relating to the display of war pictures, were upheld without discussion.

The Valencia theater, on Valencia street, which has been given over to moving pictures for several weeks, is to become a part of the Kahn & Greenfield Circuit.

The Bell theater, Twenty-eighth and Mission streets, has been closed temporarily, but arrangements are being made for reopening it at an early date.

The Forestic theater on Tenth avenue, in the Sunset district, has been reopened after having been dark for several weeks.

Charles Grogg, of Grogg's theater, Bakersfield, was a recent visitor here and while in town made the purches of a Photoplayer that represents an investment of about $6,000.

W. E. Cory and M. A. Cory, prominent exhibitors of this city, and officials of the local and state Exhibitors' Leagues, visited the State Fair at Sacramento this week and conferred with exhibitors in the Sacramento Valley in regard to the arrangements for the State Convention to be held in San Francisco early in October.

Turner & Dahnken are preparing to put two new Powers 6 A Cameragraphs in the Tivoli theater. These machines were selected by W. Lewis, the operator, who enjoys the reputation of being one of the leading men in his profession on the Coast.

A number of the most prominent moving picture houses in the Fillmore street section have raised their price of admission to a dime, stimulated by the success of some of the downtown houses in getting out of the nickel rut.

The Nat A. Magner Company has purchased the rights in this territory to "The Escape" and this feature is now booked weeks in advance.

The Cort theater will shortly open with moving pictures for a short time, "Cabiria" being booked there for an engagement. This production was shown here this summer at the Gaiety but a run of four weeks was not sufficient.

H. P. Brown & Son have awarded contracts for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater at Salinas, Cal. The architect is William Binder, Rea Building, San Jose, Cal.

The Bell theater at Livermore, Cal., has been reopened by Max Berlin, after having been closed for some time.

The Florence theater at Oakland, Cal., recently taken over by Fred Frisk, has been sold but will be conducted along the same lines as formerly.

The Gem theater on Eighth street, near Broadway, Oakland, Cal., is now being conducted by Allen E. King.

A. B. Crose is erecting a new theater building at Tehachapi, Cal., and a moving picture show will shortly be opened there.

The Opera House at Sanger, Cal., is now being operated by Ed Parkinson as a moving picture theater.

Arrangements have been made to open a moving picture theater in the Reynolds building, Sparks, Nev.

J. Dunnigan has purchased the interests of E. J. Miller in the moving picture house conducted at Arbuckle, Cal.

Taylor Snow has opened a moving picture house on Carson street, Fallon, Nev.

Walter Godley is arranging to open a moving picture theater in the Abbott building, Porterville, Cal.

Dick Wilbur has opened the Isis theater, Modesto, Cal., the house being under the management of W. B. Harrison.

W. H. Farley and F. E. Smith of Marysville have taken possession of the Colonial theater at Pacific Grove, Cal., recently purchased by them. G. B. Clark, the former owner, has gone to Ukiah, Cal., where he has purchased the Rex theater.

The Union theater has been opened at Thirty-eighth street and Brookdale avenue, Oakland, Cal., by W. G. Darling and H. H. Park. This house was formerly known as the Edison theater.

The Linden theater, recently reopened at Oakland, Cal., is being renovated and one hundred new chairs have been added.

The Elite theater at Woodland, Cal., which was closed for a time during the summer months, has been reopened by Mrs. William Hunt.

Mr. Pike of the firm of Pike & Slissman, Oroville, Cal., has disposed of his interests in the Rex theater to Mr. Goodenow.

The Criterion theater, Colusa, Cal., has been taken over by E. J. Cook, one of the former owners.

The new theater to be erected at Watsonville, Cal., for the Turner & Dahnken Circuit will have a seating capacity of about 1,200 and will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. The work will be in charge of Architect W. H. Weeks of San Francisco.

The United States Feature Film Company has moved its studio and offices from Chico, Cal., to Oroville, a few miles away, where a large tract of land has been placed at its disposal. The first release is expected some time in October.

E. A. Burton, formerly of Fowler, Cal., has moved to Lemoore, where he will open a moving picture house.

Baum & Minasian contemplate the erection of a moving picture theater at Colusa, Cal.

The Palmares Hotel & Theater Co. has been incorporated at Pomona, Cal., with a capital stock of $300,000 by T. W. Newman, W. Newman, S. L. Sullivan, F. H. Macartney and D. W. Markin.

The Golden Gate theater, San Pablo avenue, near Stanford avenue, Oakland, Cal., is shortly to be enlarged and renovated throughout.

CHURCH.

PHILADELPHIA.

PLANS and specifications are being made by a local architect for a large brick and terra cotta motion picture house to be erected on Frankford avenue above Columbia avenue, for John M. Kennedy, Jr., at an estimated cost of $40,000. The size of the theater will be 82 by 152 feet, and will be modern in every respect, excepting the outside, which may possibly represent some ancient design.

"The Trey o' Hearts" episode is meeting, in Philadelphia, with the wildest kind of success. The Cayuga theater, Germantown avenue and Cayuga street, is booked to show it each Thursday.

The work of remodeling and renovating the Fifty-second Street theater, at Sansom street, West Philadelphia, has been completed and is now open. New upholstered seats have been installed. Samuel F. Wheeler is proprietor.

C. H. Lloyd, architect, Harrisburg, Pa., is preparing plans for a theater building to be erected at Steelton for R. M. Frey of that place. It will be two stories in height and 40 by 120 feet. The architect would be glad to receive estimates and designs of furnishings and equipment.

Under the management of C. Schwartz the Quaker City Exchange has opened offices at 1223 Vine street, in the heart of the "Exchange district." Mr. Schwartz, until recently, was with the Monarch Exchange, from which firm he severed his connections in order to concentrate his experience to his own advantage.

Dreamland, at 835 Market street, Philadelphia, will soon have their orchestra playing again

Pending alterations the Grand, at 52d and Market streets, will close down. A new front is contemplated which will add greatly to the theater's attractiveness.

CONGDON.

KANSAS.

THE way wheat prices have been soaring the past few weeks, every few days putting an extra ten million dollars or so into the pockets of the Kansas farmers, is making the exhibitors sit up and take notice. Hutchinson is one of the grain centers and milling points where wheat money will doubtless be spent rather lavishly. And the picture show houses there are getting ready for it. Manager C. B. Yost of the Pearl theater has had his house redecorated, a new front put in, and the lobby remodeled. The DeLuxe has been given a coat of white paint. The Elite, closed during the summer, was opened when school began—and all are hoping and expecting to see fine business this fall. There was good business all summer, for those which remained open.

Charlie Hardin, connected with the Mutual Film Corporation in Kansas City, visited his mother, Mrs. Harriet Hardin, at Cottonwood Falls, while in that part of the state on business.

Gas, Kansas, is another town where the prospects of crop money are stimulating the moving picture industry. Jack Hering, Wilbut Shields and Carl Saylor, who are musicians, have leased the Funk building on South Jefferson street and will open a first class moving picture theater there soon. It is said that at least one and possibly two other new picture shows will be opened in Gas this month.

This is the season of fall fairs in Kansas and the people are flocking into the towns where the fairs are held. This means tremendous business for the picture show houses.

Special matinees of "The Million Dollar Mystery" are held at the Echo theater in Great Bend for the benefit of people outside the city who cannot see a picture play except on Fridays. Ordinarily there is a show at the theater only in the evenings.

BROWN.

MISSOURI.

THE almost continuous rains in Kansas City for two weeks were not altogether a bad thing for all the moving picture houses. The weather kept men from playing golf and getting outdoors, so when the afternoon grew long they had to drop into a picture show. The opening of the theaters and the opening of the public schools has caused rather a readjustment in programs and plans, feature films for the children, for instance, being shoved along to Friday nights.

The Parent-Teachers' Associations in Kansas City, of which there is one in almost every school district, are expected to take a close and decided interest this year, as last, in the kind of films shown Friday nights in the neighborhood picture show houses. While in some cases the suggestions of the associations are the cause of expense, it is also true that the associations largely advertise the Friday night programs, and encourage the children to attend them. It is forecasted that this year there will be tremendously more interest in moving picture shows among school children than ever before, which will be encouraged and fostered by the teachers and parents.

T. L. Newman, manager of the new Royal in Kansas City, is advertising quite extensively his new releases of the Paramount service, and is having large attendance.

W. Allen of the Standard Amusement Company, which operates the Palace, the Tenth Street, and the Twelfth Street theaters in Kansas City, and also being interested in the Broadmour and Willis Wood theaters—all moving picture houses—says business has been very good all summer, and is getting better all the time.

The Iris vaudeville program was adjusted recently to the program of the Lona theater, so that Sedalia people could have the benefit of the great film "Checkers." The vaudeville and the moving picture schedules coincided, and so all could go to both events if they wanted to, either to the first or the second shows of either on the special evenings.

The Bijou theater at Brookfield was opened recently after being the subject of considerable decorative improvements. The new coat of paint was especially fruitful of comment among the picture enthusiasts who have the Bijou habit.

Arrangements have been made to get moving picture films of the big annual fox hunt on the John Watkins ranch near Excelsior Springs.

Sweet are the rewards of fame! All the great men of the world have had cigars named after them, but that wins the support only of the men. A few famous actresses have had cosmetics or candy named after them—and that attracts the ladies. Now comes a picture play that is so famous that business men are eager to get in on the advertising value of the name. And there is a soda fountain drink named after it! In Springfield the Meyer & Meyer Drug Co., which calls itself "The big store with the yellow front," is now serving a "Million Dollar Mystery Sundae." If you want to know what's in it, "ask the man," and he'll tell you that the mystery has not yet been solved.

BROWN.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

STRICT neutrality, it is said, is to be enforced in the matter of moving pictures in the District of Columbia purporting to be taken on the battlefields of Europe. This statement was made by a member of the Board of District Commissioners, who is reported to have said that the operators of moving picture theaters have always been ready to co-operate with the Board in keeping productions all that they should be in point of view of morals, and that he believed that they will be just as ready to avoid offending in the matter of our spirit of neutrality. It would, he declared, be most unfortunate if Washington, the seat of the strongest of neutral governments, should allow the exhibiton of strikingly partisan films, which could not but stir up unpleasantness and resentment. It is further stated that the powers of the commissioners to censor films or to revoke licenses of theaters under any circumstances are not clear, and become increasingly doubtful when a question of constructive violation of neutrality is involved. The matter will probably be gone into by the corporation counsel and it is thought that some way can be found to prevent the display of pictures that show reverses in the "enemy's" arms, whether such films side with the French-Belgium-English, or the German-Austrian forces.

It seems as though ten cents is the limit which the people of Washington will pay for admission to a regular "movie" show, almost regardless of what is exhibited, unless it be in one of the legitimate theaters. This was evidenced by a change of price at the new Strand theater. "Cabiria" readily brought advanced prices, but "The Littlest Rebel" failed to take at fifteen and twenty-five cents. There is little doubt but that the people could eventually be educated up to paying more than ten cents for a first-class show, but no moving picture exhibitor cares to continue an experiment of this type which is bound to be a losing game for an extended period. On the other hand, "Neptune's Daughter," with Annette Kellermann starring, readily brought 25, 35 and 50 cents at the Columbia, a legitimate theater, and there was a string of people before the box office each day for each performance given, and the theater showed these films for two weeks. The Belasco theater also met with similar results, but when it comes down to a regular moving picture house trying to get away with fancy prices, the attendance is mighty slim.

An educational film depicting what can be done with a four-wheel drive, 1½ ton auto truck, was displayed at the Cosmos theater last week for the benefit of government officials, local newspaper men and others. A truck was shown, escorted by a company of cavalry, carrying supplies through plowed fields, deep sand and mud, and ditches three feet deep, and ended with the arrival of the detachment in the shifting sands of the seashore, where the bags of provisions were unloaded and placed on lighters to be carried to waiting warships. Other difficult tests were shown, such as running the car through thick underbrush in a forest and climbing the sides of mountains over which there was no roadway, and up a pile of lumber arranged in steps, on its own power, and then backing down, a step at a time, the incline being a 49 per cent. grade.

George W. Smiley, of the Electric Film Rental Company, is spending the week traveling through Virginia with a group of live-wire features.

There has been some little talk around town that the serial stories portrayed by films were not taking very well, and with this came talk of cancellations. "The Million Dollar Mystery" is continuing exceptionally popular, at least in the Northeast section, for on every Saturday night when instalments are shown at the Empire theater, on H street, people are actually turned away. Manager Greenberg states that he is perfectly satisfied with the results he is obtaining with this and also with "Our Mutual Girl." This latter, of course, is a somewhat different proposition, as its attraction lies mainly in the fact that new styles in women's wear and portraits of people in the limelight are shown weekly.

"Joe" Morgan is doing quite a little in the way of repainting and redecorating the Princess theater, on H street, Northeast, in preparation for the fall and winter season.

The Appollo theater is doing a good business on Tuesday and Friday evenings, when operating a country store. Expensive presents are given immediately following the first show. This is made possible by charging an admission of ten cents to both adults and children. The distribution is made by an attache of the theater dressed in overalls and wearing a farmer's hat together with the usual underbrush said to adorn all farmers' chins. He does a little bit of singing before playing Santa Claus, although but little could be said of his voice when heard by the World correspondent. Another feature at this theater are the illustrated songs by Harry Chick. A general admission of five cents is charged for the second show.

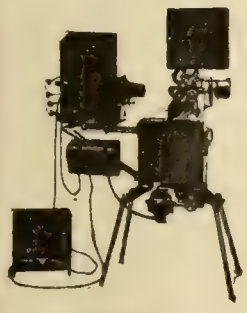
The Empress theater, on Ninth street, is being put into shape for the season and the lobby has been repainted and redecorated.

A two-column advertisement, a part of the publicity promised by the Washington Post to the Exhibitors' League of the District of Columbia, containing the following cryptogram, is attracting considerable attention among the moving picture fans of the city: "Saturday, October 31 (Hallowe'en). See Them! Meet Them! Talk to Them! WHO? Your Favorite Photoplay Stars at Convention Hall—Watch the Washington Post and the Moving Picture Screens for Further Announcements," and similar slides are being flashed in the theaters. Even to the uninitiated, this sounds like something good, and it is, for it's the ball that the exhibitors are to give on the date named. A large number of acceptances have already been received from the moving picture actors and actresses to whom invitations to be present were sent, and more are expected within a few days. One of these invitations found its way clear out to California, but the distance between the West coast and Washington is too great to make such a visit possible. The date set is a government semi-monthly pay day, a sort of a holiday and a Saturday, a combination that cannot but mean success.

Several of the downtown theaters are trying out a ticket-issuing machine recently introduced on the market. The register is equipped with ten keys, in two banks, one of which controls the number of tickets issued, the other governs the price of the tickets. If the patron desires two ten-cent tickets the pressing down of the proper keys causes the printing of the tickets required and their ejectment through a slot at the outside of the window. It is claimed that by its use temptation is removed (the machine is equipped with counters showing the number of tickets sold and the amount of money obtained from their sale), that money is saved on the cost of the tickets, it is speedy and removes congestion, business is always balanced when the last ticket is sold each day and cash must balance with the amount registered, five different-priced tickets can be issued by the same machine, and all the cashier has to do is to press the buttons and make change. One of these machines has been installed at the Leader theater on Ninth street and seems to be working well.

Annual meetings of the stockholders of the Cosmos Theater Company, the Pastime Amusement Company and Meader Amusement Company have been called for October 14, at the offices of the various companies at 307 Ninth street, Northwest.

C. L. LINZ.

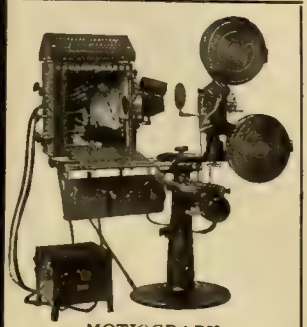


POWER'S

MAIL ORDERS FILLED INSTANTLY

WRITE, WIRE, OR CALL FOR IT

WE HAVE IT



MOTIOGRAPH

We Talk Little

Our Method is Doing Things for the Customer.

Things That Mean Better Projection and Better Projection Means Better Business For All Concerned

Let Us Convince You

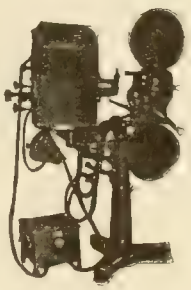
We are Distributors for the

Power's 6A
Simplex Projector
Motiograph 1914
Edison's New Model "D"

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

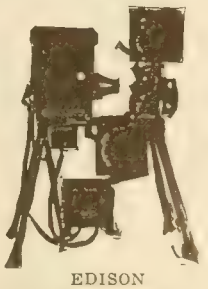
21 East 14th Street, New York

The Largest Motion Picture Supply House in America



SIMPLEX

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETELY



EDISON

LICENSED FILM STORIES

EDISON.

FATHER'S BEARD (Oct. 5).—Kennedy's greatest ambition was to raise a full beard such as his father used to wear, but neither Mrs. Kennedy nor the children would hear of it. He therefore took advantage of a long trip and allowed his beard to grow. The result was an hirsute adornment which so thoroughly disguised him that he was unrecognizable even to his old friends. On the very day of his homecoming, the entire village was in an uproar over the report that a desperate burglar had attacked several people. Sally, the village gossip, served as the means of scattering this alarming bit of news, and each time she told it the man's size and ferocity took on extra proportions. On one point, all were agreed—he had a full beard.

The houses were placed in a state of siege, and everything prepared to give the desperate intruder a warm reception. Things were at this pass when Kennedy arrived home, only to find the door barricaded from the inside. His efforts to attract their attention was greeted with a pail of scalding water and his own shotgun was fired at him as he tried to force a window. Panic-stricken, Mrs. Kennedy fled from the house with her children, Kennedy followed her, trying to make her recognize him, but was forced to retreat before the onslaught of the constable and his friends.

He succeeded in reaching the house and was in the midst of a veritable siege when suddenly it dawned upon him that his beard was causing all the trouble. Immediately, he began to shave, and had only succeeded in removing half of it when the door was forced, and the constable, the neighbors, his wife, and the children rushed in. Recognition was instantaneous, and as a result Kennedy decided not to grow a beard after all.

GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN (Oct. 6).—The fatalism of ages was apparent in little Foomi's slow nod when Paul told her that he would have to seek a wife among his own people. Their love affair had been watched by Oshimo, who swore vengeance upon the young officer. With this object in view, he sent a note, purporting to come from Foomi, asking Paul to meet her in the garden tea house for a last goodbye. This note fell into the hands of one of Paul's comrades, who decided to keep the rendezvous in Paul's stead. He had no sooner entered the tea house when Oshimon sprang upon him and stabbed him to death. Foomi witnessed the crime, and as Oshimo dragged his victim into the garden, she picked up the broken hilt of a dagger and followed him.

Startled by approaching footsteps, Oshimo dropped the body at the gate, and as Fate would have it, Paul issued just at that moment, and as he stooped to examine the corpse, was surprised and arrested by several soldiers who were passing. The blood stains upon his hands and his known enmity for the dead officer went hard with him at the trial. He was about to be sentenced when Foomi rushed in and proclaimed her own guilt, showing the broken dagger hilt as proof. Paul was thoroughly convinced of the girl's innocence and tried to interest the doctor in her case to no avail. They were in the midst of a heated argument, when a little Japanese girl forced her way into the room and threw herself at their feet. To all questions, she would only answer, "Foomi is innocent."

Despairing of getting anything more out of her, Paul and the doctor decided to follow her. She led them to the garden tea house and upon entering, they found the body of Oshimo and a confession of his guilt. The two men quickly secured Foomi's release, and a new day dawned for her when Paul assured her of his love and of his intention to marry her.

SETH'S SWEETHEART (Oct. 7).—Midsummer days, with the arrival of smartly dressed city chaps, generally bring a certain amount of gloom into the lives of rural swains. Seth's case was no exception, for when Old Man Green drove up to the house with Harry and Dick, the new summer boarders, Sally immediately became greatly interested in them and Seth's complaint gradually brought on more words, ultimately ending in Sally's returning his ring. Seth became desperate and decided to end everything. He confided his intentions to Hy Green, but was disappointed at not being taken seriously. Drowning seemed an easy death until he realized how cold the water was, and then he started off in search of a rope intending to try hanging.

He had just found the necessary cord when loud yells attracted his attention and he discovered Percy floundering around in the lake, having upset a rowboat in his citified efforts to show off. Seth sprang to the rescue, and on pulling the gasping Percy from the water, decided that turn about was fair play, succeeded in securing Percy's co-operation in getting the best of Harry and Dick. Percy entered into the plan with zest, and attacked the two city chaps in behalf of his rescuer. In the midst of a rough and tumble fight, Seth rushed away to bring the constable, and having secured the latter's revolver, was able to pose in the light of a hero, and win back the attention of Sally.

THE LONG WAY (Special—Three Parts—Oct. 9).—Eva Leven was the weaker of the two sisters, and though in love with Belhaven, she had refused him repeatedly, and finally married Johnstone Astry, a young millionaire. Had matters halted there, it would have been different, but both Eva and Belhaven failed to hide their real feelings, which resulted in Astry's becoming suspicious.

Rachel, Eva's sister, was of a different type. Serious minded, and accustomed to watch over Eva, Rachel's thoughts were in the far away Philippines where Charter was stationed with his regiment. Her dreams suffered a rude awakening on overhearing a piece of gossip to the effect that Charter was engaged to another woman.

She had every confidence in Charter, despite the fact that he had never been able to bring himself to the point of proposing. His last word had been "remember" and surely the look in his eyes could not be mistaken. Yet, it was likewise true that he had not written. All of this Rachel turned over in her tortured mind, little knowing that Fate had interfered preventing Charter from writing, and that, even at that very moment, the young officer was lying in a Philippine hospital, stricken with cholera as the result of a stubborn fight to save his men from the scourge.

On this very same night, Astry surprised Eva and Belhaven together in the conservatory, and curtly demanded an explanation. Nonplussed, the culprits stood with bowed heads. Eva blurted out the lie which turned away her husband's just wrath, but placed a serious charge against her sister's name, implicating her with Belhaven, thus deliberately sacrificing them both in order to save herself.

Astry was inflexible, demanding that Belhaven and Rachel should be married immediately. Frantic with grief and terror, Eva flew to her sister's room and confessed the whole sordid truth, begging Rachel to consent to the marriage, in order to prevent a tragedy. Rachel, remembering her promise to their mother to watch over Eva, and believing the gossip she had heard about Charter, after a terrific struggle, consented to carry out the plan, and was married to Belhaven a few days later.

Their's was a marriage in name only, but little by little, Belhaven learned to worship his wife. Matters had reached this stage when Charter returned from the Philippines, he to learn of Rachel's marriage and she to realize that the report of his engagement was totally without foundation.

Charter finally learned the real truth from Eva and confronted Belhaven with it. The latter, alive to the impossibility of the situation as it stood offered Rachel her complete freedom which she refused on the grounds of her disbelief in divorce. He then took the only means left in his power to accomplish the desired end.

A FRAGMENT OF ASH (Oct. 10).—The affair between Brooks and Jacyntha Carnforth had progressed to the point where Algy laid his claims before Lady Carnforth only to find that success in that particular direction was entirely dependent upon his making good with her Ladyship. Just how he was to accomplish this end was rather vague, but he made up his mind to try. The house party at Carnforth Hall was at its height when Sir Hickson Fipps appeared on the scene. Fipps was in rather deep water and desperate and a chance conversation concerning the relative display value of real and imitation jewelry gave him an idea which he immediately put into operation. It was nothing else than a plan to have a paste duplicate made of the famous Carnforth necklace and exchange it for the original. He purloined a photograph of Lady Carnforth, showing the necklace, and ordered the paste duplicate made. Endeavoring to secure a confederate, Fipps made love to Hortense. Though he escaped recognition, Lady Carnforth witnessed one of their meetings, which resulted in Hortense's discharge.

Fipps had one great peculiarity. He never smoked anything except a certain brand of cigarettes. He was so fastidious about it that everyone was aware of this idiosyncrasy, and young Brooks had remarked upon the peculiar ash made by the tobacco. In due time, the paste duplicate arrived. Fipps was surprised as he made the exchange in Lady Carnforth's boudoir, and was forced to make his escape, carrying the case containing the duplicate with him, expecting to have a chance to place it on the table again. Lady Carnforth, however, immediately noticed that it was gone. Fipps, being unable to find any other hiding place, dropped the case into a dry well. Though in possession of the genuine necklace, Fipps was now unable to do anything with it unless the duplicate was found. He hit upon the plan of writing a letter, signing the name of Hortense, telling them that the case was in the well. Young Brooks descended into the well, and recovered the case, but on opening it, was astounded to recognize a fragment of the peculiar ash made by Fipp's cigarette. The latter broke down completely upon being charged with the crime, and Brooks, judging the moment propitious, laid his suit before Lady Carnforth, and was accorded the great prize which he sought to win.

— —

ESSANAY.

THE FICKLENESS OF SWEEDIE (Oct. 5).—Henry Bigger, a short fat fellow, and Danny Slimson, short but slim, are rivals for the hand of Sweedie. One day while Danny is peeking in the window at Sweedie, he sees her reading a letter and immediately takes it for granted that it is from Henry. Instead, it is a notice from the landlord requesting her to pay her rent. Sweedie rushes out to find Henry and while she is gone Danny steals into the room. When Sweedie and Henry return, Danny slides into a hole in the mattress for a hiding place. Sweedie then sews up the mattress unaware that it contains a man. After it is all mended, Henry and Sweedie are horror-stricken when the mattress starts to move. They call the police and all give chase. At the station when Danny is extracted from the mattress Sweedie falls into his arms.

THE VERDICT (Oct. 6).—The remarkable display of modern photography along with the pretty settings in this photoplay, tend to make it one of the most extraordinary imaginable. The man meets and falls in love with a girl much younger than himself, and decides to cast off the woman with whom he had had a love affair. He goes to his old sweetheart and asks her to return his love letters. She does so on condition that he tell the new girl of their affair. He does not live up to his promise, but tells her that she is the first girl he has ever loved. In the meantime, he has lost his letters, and the new sweetheart, upon finding them, returns them to the owner. From this source she is advised to have nothing more to do with him unless she is convinced in her own mind that he is kneeling to her in spirit at all times. Upon meeting him the next time she is convinced of this, so all ends happily.

THE FABLE OF THE FAMILY THAT DID TOO MUCH FOR NELLIE (Oct. 7).—The Todd family had no success in finding a suitable cook, and after firing the thirteenth one that month, they went to an employment agency and secured the services of Nellie, the prize cook. Nellie was there like a duck when it came to cooking, and they didn't understand how they got along without her before. Everything went fine, and after each meal the entire family of ten would go out to the kitchen and jolly her up. When her birthday came they blew themselves right and bought her clothes spiffy enough for the Queen of England. Then Nellie began to make eyes at the men and within a week had suitors galore. One morning Mrs. Todd went downstairs and found a note from Nellie saying that she had gone away to marry the butcher. The family was then forced to go back to the Canal Boat Junk. Moral: Give them books to read.

WHEN SLIPPERY SLIM MET THE CHAMPION (Oct. 8).—Snakeville is all excitement. The world's champion pugilist is to arrive the next day and anybody who can stay three rounds with him is to receive $100. Slim is selected by his friends to try out the champion first, then, if he loses, the rest will try for the prize. The night of the encounter poor Slim is paralyzed with fright, and it is necessary to carry him into the ring. Then the fun starts. He is simply hammered into several different shapes, but manages to gain his feet each time before the count. Sophie, who is at the ringside nursing a toothache with a bottle of chloroform, suddenly has an idea. She slips Slim the bottle and he saturates his glove with it. In the next clinch, he holds the glove over the champion's mouth until he drops asleep. Slim is then declared the winner and carries home the "bacon."

BRONCHO BILLY AND THE GREASER (Oct. 10).—Broncho Billy, the mail carrier, ejects a greaser from the postoffice for pushing a girl out of his way. The halfbreed is thoroughly angered and swears revenge. Broncho then goes home, and on his way loses his mail bag. He does not miss it, so goes to bed that night unaware of his loss. The girl he protected at the postoffice finds the mail bag, and when she approaches Broncho's shack to return it she sees the greaser prowling about. She hastens to a dance hall, where she tells her friends of Broncho's danger, and she leads the way back to his shack, where they arrive just in time to save him from being stabbed while asleep.

THE REAL AGATHA (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 9.). Young Lord Vincent, who is known as Freddie, takes an automobile ride into the country with several of his friends. While Freddie and his older companion, Archibald Terhune, are inquiring as to the location of a certain town, the other two members of the party, as a joke, drive off and leave them. They wander to the castle of Lady Agatha, heiress to the Wykhoff millions. Here they learn that each suitor for the hand of Agatha is allowed to remain four weeks, and Miss Armistead, Agatha's guardian, thinking they are suitors, invites them to remain to dinner and shows them to a room.

There are six girls who pose as Agatha, and to make sure that the suitors are not marrying for money, the real Agatha is introduced as Miss Armistead's secretary and goes under the name of Miss Marsh. Archibald immediately starts to make love to all the girls, not giving the secretary a single thought, while Freddie is infatuated with Miss Marsh and insists upon paying her attention, much to the disgust of Archibald. At the end of the four weeks Archibald has selected the girl he loves and Freddie has picked none other than Miss Marsh, the secretary, regardless of the fact that she is a poor girl. When told the truth as to Miss Marsh's identity, Archibald is disgusted with himself for being so stupid, while Freddie takes Miss Marsh in his arms, happy that he placed love above everything.

VITAGRAPH.

FISHERMAN KATE (Oct. 5).—On Thursday, the 12th, Kate's home is a model of domestic felicity. That night, Hill, their trouble-making friend, arrives, and by his description of a glorious day's fishing, as proof of which he exhibits a fine string of fish, so fascinates Kate she insists that they take the sloop "Gazelle" next morning, Friday, the 13th, and try their luck. Bill is tickled to witness Dan's discomfiture at the thought of getting up at 6 o'clock next morning, but it is Dan's turn to laugh when it is discovered that the cat has eaten all the fish on Bill's string, which he had hung in the hall. Next morning they experience a great deal of trouble in getting abroad the boat and poor Dan, loaded down with bundles, furnishes much amusement for the other fishermen. After some practical jokes have been carried out among the party, during which Kate's roasted chicken falls into a pot of white paint and has to be thrown overboard, all quiets down. Suddenly Kate feels a tug at her line. With a shriek she jumps up and, grabbing her husband and two others, goes overboard, clothes and all. Then follows an exciting and heroic rescue, after which Kate proudly exhibits a four-inch baby fish as the cause of their ducking. She is obliged to wear a stout woman's suit of clothes, and her appearance causes boisterous laughter. Things go from bad to worse. Kate gets seasick and finally persuades the captain to start for home. There she wearily follows her husband up the village street, proudly ignoring the neighbors' comments on her outrageous attire. On reaching home, they are confronted by the calendar showing it is Friday, the 13th. Kate angrily tears it down, declaring they deserved all the bad luck it brought them.

HIS UNKNOWN GIRL (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 6).—After securing a commission in the army, Dick Carruthers meets and renews acquaintance with an old classmate, Lieutenant Arthur Mason. Later, Dick is knocked down by an automobile belonging to the Irvings, a wealthy family. He is taken to their home, and Mabel, the daughter, nurses him back to health. Major Walker, a suitor for Mabel's hand, becomes intensely jealous of Dick's presence. After his recovery, Dick leaves the Irving home deeply in love with his nurse. The army is ordered to the front and Dick goes with it. Major Walker, seeking Dick's death, orders his command to take a very dangerous position on the firing line. In a terrific battle, Dick receives a mortal wound and Walker, seeing the enemy is driving them back, turns coward. He tries to desert, but is shot down by Lieutenant Arthur, who brings up reinforcements and, by a gallant charge, defeats the enemy. Dick is found on the battlefield and before he dies gives the Lieutenant a photograph of the "unknown girl," who acted as his nurse. Mabel, now a member of the Red Cross, again meets Arthur when he is wounded and brought to the tent where she is on duty. When convalescent, he notices Mabel's resemblance to the girl of the photograph, shows her the picture and she asks him where he got it. He tells her the story and she reveals her identity. After his recovery, they are married and they never forgot the man who died without learning the identity of his "unknown" girl."

KILL OR CURE (Oct. 7).—Things certainly happened after young Pete confiscated the wash lady's clothesline to play bandit with. He becomes a bitter enemy of "Stingem" Charley, a traveling patent medicine man. Unnoticed, the youngster loops his lasso around the crowd and fastens it to Charley's wagon. A slap starts up the horse, spilling the people right and left, and the animal runs away. Pete picks up some of the bottles and goes home. There he empties the medicine onto the porch floor and fills the bottles with Tabasco Sauce. The runaway team is captured and, before Charley resumes his lecture, Pete stealthily puts the Tabasco bottles back in the wagon. Stingem sells one each to old Ezra, for his toothache; Hiram, who walks on crutches, and Silas, who has the gout and uses a wheel chair. All take a healthy swig of the Tabasco. Hiram, with his eyes bulging, drops his crutches and runs like mad, yelling "Fire!" Ezra and Silas give similarly startling exhibitions. The police and fire departments are called out. Asked where the fire is, Hiram gasps out, "Inside!" The firemen, in disgust, thrust him into a rain barrel. The cops, chasing Silas' runaway wheelchair and its occupant, plunge into the river. Both he and Hiram are rescued and blame Charley for the affair, with the result that a bottle of Tobasco is poured down the medicine man's throat. Pete gets his "medicine" in the shape of a good spanking when his mother sees the condition of the porch.

THE LOAN SHARK KING (Oct. 8).—Known in business as "The Loan Shark King," Hartman, a man without conscience, has one good trait in his nature—his love for Helen, his motherless daughter. She is not aware of the nature of her father's business and is very fond of him. For the first time in his life, Hartman is thwarted by his daughter when she refuses absolutely to marry Barbes, his favored suitor, because she is already in love with Henry Graham a young artist. Graham is forbidden the house, and then to Hartman's sorrow, Helen and her lover elope. Five years later, Helen and Graham, with their two children, are destitute. She falls sick and Graham desperately decides to borrow from the loan sharks. He selects the Aines Loan Company, one of Hartman's organizations. Working night and day, Graham undermines his health and, unable to meet his payments, the loan sharks attach his salary, with the result that he is discharged by his employers. Hounded is greater than ever

THE FAMINE IN IMPORTED M. P. CARBONS

You Must Protect Yourself

by sending a telegram stating size, kind and how many carbons you need for six months' to a year's supply. The Wise Ones have already stocked up.

I HAVE A FEW LEFT

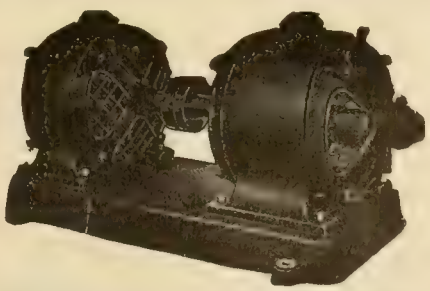
I am distributor of the new BAIRD Projector. Ask for free catalogue.

I distribute the wonderful "DRUMONA." It takes the place of your drummer and trapman and does more than any one man could ever do before, with separate instruments. It reproduces all sounds, drums and other effects, and just think, your piano player does the whole thing at no extra expense; write about it.

Distributor of the Celebrated Mirror Glass Screen and "Mirroroide" Curtain

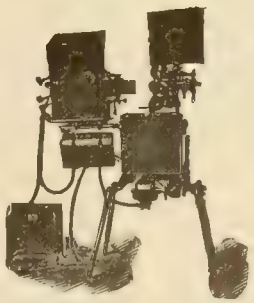
SIMPLEX

Distributor "BAIRD" and Motiograph M. P. Machines



HALLBERG A. C. to D. C. ECONOMIZER FOR ONE OR TWO LAMPS

Distributor Power's 6-A and Simplex M. P. Machines



POWER'S 6A

Factory Selling Headquarters for BAIRD, POWER'S, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 pages, costs you 25c. by mail

J. H. HALLBERG "THE HOUSE OF QUALITY" 36 East 23rd Street, New York

FLA. GA. ALA. MISS. LA.
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
315 RHODES BUILDING
ATLANTA, GA.
TENN. N. C. S. C. VA.

from one job to another, Graham is slowly crushed, body and soul, and dies. Helen goes to the loan office to beg for leniency, where her father, on his regular visit to the manager of the Aines Company, meets her and learns how his system has brought misery upon his own daughter. A reconciliation follows. Helen's heart is broken, however, and she dies, leaving her children in Hartman's care, never knowing that her own father was back of the remorseless system which had pursued herself and her husband, while he is left to dwell over the awful truth, and to use his utmost endeavors to make reparation for the past.

JOSIE'S LEGACY (Oct. 9).—At the Pleasant Valley Hotel, of which Mrs. Corbin is proprietor, Josie, the maid of all work, is in the midst of her labors, when the local telegraph operator receives a message saying Josie's aunt has died in Germany and left everything to her. He quickly spreads the news and three of the young swains of the town make desperate love to Josie before the agent can deliver the telegram. She thinks they have all gone insane, scoffs at their attentions, and sets them to work, churning and feeding the stock. Reginald, the swell city chap, is surrounded by an admiring bevy of girls when he hears the news. With one jump he clears the piazza rail and is off to Josie's side. She is flattered by his attentions and the two go off arm-in-arm. He has almost won her consent to their marriage when Josie is handed the message. With a shriek of joy, she rushes into the house and bursts in upon Mrs. Corbin with the announcement, "I'm an heiress. Loan me fifty dollars!" On seeing the telegram, the lady readily gives her the money with best wishes. Josie is soon surrounded by an admiring circle of suitors, but she ignores them all and sends a telegram to Rose, accused of being the cause of the whole affair, is arrested. Manning learns she is in trouble, and coming to the city, secures a lawyer for her. The Judge decides she may go free provided she marry Manning and leave the city. She agrees and they return to the country. Here, by loving kindness, Manning gradually wins her love, and within a year Folly is obliged to replace all the rose petals, even to a new bud emblematic of the birth of their child.

KALEM.

THE SLAVERY OF FOXICUS (Oct. 2).—Determined to win Ruthinus, daughter of Forbius, Foxicus dyes his skin and sells himself as a slave to his sweetheart's father. The lover later overhears Villainus, his wealthy rival, and Forbus plan a killing in Amalgamated Coffee stock.

While puffing a Turkish cigarette, Foxicus hits upon an idea. He acts upon the tip he has overheard and bucks the stock market. He breaks it, and incidentally, Villainus and Forbus. Foxicus later marries Ruthinus, while the baffled Villanius, who attempts to interfere, is thrown into a cactus bush.

THE LEGEND OF THE AMULET (Oct. 3).—A terrible plague threatens to wipe out a tribe of the cliff dwelling Indians. Moia, the chief's daughter, is stricken. Her sweetheart Kite, hears of a lost sacred amulet, the recovery of which would end the plague.

Led by a phantom chief, Kite finds the amulet after terrible hardship. Mojo, a treacherous rival, steals it while the brave is asleep. Warned by the phantom chief, however, Kite pursues. He regains the amulet after a desperate struggle in which Mojo is hurled from a cliff.

THE DANCER (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 5).—De Forrest, a millionaire, falls madly in love with Evelyn Wade, an interpreter of classic dances. Determined to win her at all hazards, the millionaire succeeds in having Evelyn's vaudeville contract broken. Her aged mother seriously ill, Evelyn, needing money, is in despair. Just at this time, De Forrest makes her a flattering offer to dance at a reception he is giving. Evelyn accepts and scores a triumph. She later becomes the millionaire's wife.

The social whirl goes to the dancer's head, causing her to forget her old mother. A year passes. Due to Evelyn's jealousy, De Forrest's love for her vanishes. Because she believes him in love with Helen Morris, an actress, Evelyn decides to return home. It is then she learns her mother has died in dire poverty. The realization of what her butterfly existence has brought about fills Evelyn with remorse. * * * A policeman patrolling the waterfront that evening, finds the dancer's hat, purse and gloves lying on the pier.

THE LOST MAIL SACK (Special—Two Parts Oct. 7). A piece of lumber projecting from the side of a freight car picks up the mail sack hanging from the crane at Bell Station. Two hoboes find the sack and rifle the contents. Morrison, postmaster at Bell, has been systematically robbing the mails and benefits by the mail sack's disappearance. Mary Gates, daughter of an engineer, supplies the Post Office inspectors with the first clue.

The detectives blunder, however, and arrest Billy, Mary's sweetheart. Chance leads them on the trail of the tramps. The hoboes are arrested after a desperate battle. Later, as the result of Mary's clever work, Morrison is brought to bay, while Billy wins his freedom.

THE TATTERED DUKE (Oct. 9).—Greasy Bill, waiter at the Golden Gulch hash emporium, finds a wallet belonging to the Duke of Tattenham Covers. Forthwith is born the idea to impersonate the Duke. As a member of nobility, Greasy Bill cuts a wide swath at a fashionable summer resort.

The bogus Duke meets Jean, daughter of Mrs. Newlyrich. The real Duke later visits the resort incog. He saves Jean from drowning and the two fall in love. They learn that Greasy Bill is planning to marry Jean's mother. To Bill's grief, they prevent the marriage and send him back to slinging hash.

FATE'S MIDNIGHT HOUR (Oct. 10).—A terrific flash of lightning awakens Mrs. Durand. The woman flees into the library. There she discovers her husband dead on the floor. Maria Milton, revolver in hand, stands over him.

Maria tells of how Durand, after inducing her seventeen-year-old sister Malissa, to elope, had cast the girl aside. Malissa returned home a year later to die. The blow killed their mother. Thirsting for revenge, Maria set out to hunt Durand down. "But God would not let me commit murder; Durand was struck by lightning

CALIFORNIA
802 SO. OLIVE STREET
LOS ANGELES
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
PANTAGES THEATRE BLDG
SAN FRANCISCO

her old friend, Hank, to meet her at the railroad station, adding that she is now an heiress. Reginald takes the same train as Josie, tracks her and Hank to the lawyer's, where he arrives in time to find them staring open-mouthed at two sobbing children. Josie weakly asks if that is all that Aunty left, and the lawyer answers, "Absolutely all!" Hank revives the fainting Josie while Reginald makes a quick sneak out the door.

THE ROSE AND THE THORN (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 10).—Richard Manning falls in love with Rose Winters, a heartless flirt. She soon tires of him and goes to the city, where she takes up a business course, while Folly, an allegorical figure, slowly picks off a petal from the rose he is holding in his hand, symbolical of the spirit of Rose Winters. Tom Blake, a young student of the business college, falls in love with her, and after squandering his class fees on dinners and theaters, is turned out of college. She flouts him and the rose loses another petal. The girl secures a position as stenographer for a broker. The broker's wife sees him kiss Rose, institutes divorce proceedings and the broker commits suicide. Folly exultingly snatches several petals from the rose. Her next position is in the office of a cafe manager. He invites her to lunch, she accepts and, as the waiter pours wine, the rose loses all its petals but one. Later, Blake, who has followed the downward path, sees the girl enter the cafe and makes a scene in which he scornfully denounces her. Her escort interferes and Blake stabs him. Blake is sent to jail, and

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE (Oct. 6).—Although each is already engaged, Bridget, Maggie and Mary fall in love with Mike, the new cop. As the result of their infatuation, the women engage in a battle royal. It takes the entire police force to lug them to jail—where they make the heart-breaking discovery that Mike is married and is the father of seven children.

HESANUT HUNTS WILD GAME (Oct. 6).—His adventures while chasing lions, tigers and cannibals fills this animated comedy cartoon with the richest sort of humor. Your patrons will vote this the best animated comedy cartoon they have ever seen.

before I could shoot." A moment later, Maria disappears into the storm.

LUBIN.

THE BELOVED ADVENTURER, NO. 4, AN AMERICAN HEIRESS (Oct. 5).—A year has passed since Lord Cecil risked his life and drew heavily upon his depleted fortune in "An Affair of Honor." His financial affairs are in very bad shape, his credit is exhausted, and his only remaining property, the ancestral family seat, Croftlaigh Manor, is heavily mortgaged. His creditors becoming insistent and the mortgagees threatening to foreclose, Lord Cecil resolves upon heroic measures, and gives his word to his creditors that he will marry an American heiress and settle their claims. He at once sails for America, where his famous name gains him a warm welcome in society. He is promptly taken under the wing of Mrs. Harris, wife of the millionaire peanut butter king, who is a social climber and wildly anxious to connect herself with a noble family. The only heir to the Harris millions is Mary, a pretty girl, and Lord Cecil promptly determines that she will quite do as the bride for whom he is in search.

Mrs. Harris permits Mary no voice whatever in the arrangements. Just before the date set for the international marriage, Lord Cecil discovers that the gentle Mary is breaking her heart over the prospect of parting forever from a youthful American named Tom, who is rich in love and hopes, but quite poor in cash assets. Tom loves Mary madly but agrees with her that their passion is quite hopeless. Lord Cecil's kind heart is touched; he quite forgets his own

TEXAS EXHIBITORS
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
DALLAS
TEX. OKLA. ARK. LA.

urgent needs and interests, and suggests the substitution of Tom for himself as groom at the approaching wedding. Mrs. Harris will not hear of such a thing, however, and Lord Cecil is forced to practically kidnap his promised bride and put her in the arms of the overjoyed, but hesitant, Tom, see that they are safely married and started for South America, where Tom has a new job. Not until he receives a cablegram voicing the disappointment and wrath of his creditors, does Lord Cecil think of the detail to his playing at providence—that he has thrown away a fortune of some five millions of dollars.

A HUNTING ABSURDITY (Oct. 6).—Old Heck is a born sportsman, he takes his trusty gun and still more trusty dog for a day's rabbit killing. The dog is anxious for the sport and suggests that some rabbits should soon appear. One does appear and Heck fires. The rabbit swallows the balls and spits them back at the dog and huntsman. Heck and the dog continue the chase, but fail to make an impression on bunny. He is too active and his thick fur coat is bullet proof. Finally, after having much fun with the sportsman, the rabbit disappears down his burrow. Heck and the dog follow down the hole in the ground and are never seen again.

WIFIE'S ATHLETIC MAMMA (Oct. 6).—It's bad enough to be henpecked, but when in addition you have a mother-in-law who can lick her weight in wildcats, it's worse. Peter Kingston is in that situation and when he hears that his wife's mamma is coming to town to open a gymnasium for young ladies, he lays his head on the table and weeps and doesn't notice that his head is in the oatmeal dish.

Ma comes close on the heels of her letter and soon has her school established. She makes an exception in favor of hubby and each morning she puts him through a course of training. Hubby wants to get even and when he sees a couple of mixed ale fighters in training he hires them to dress as girls and apply to Ma for instructions in boxing. The pugs look anything but lady-like in spite of the make-ups, and Ma smells a rat. When she sees hubby waiting on the front steps for the "murder" to begin she knows the rats name. She goes back to the gym, good and sore and walks into those unfortunate pugilists like the wrath to come. All the time hubby sits on the front steps and thinks the sounds are Ma's death knell. Then the pugs are turned loose and Ma goes for hubby. She takes him into the gym. The pugs give the alarm and the police come and take hubby home on a stretcher.

THE GIRL AT THE LOCK (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 7).—Harold Bond, a young artist of great promise, had, through the aid of John Fair, a millionaire manufacturer, gained distinction and was engaged to his patron's daughter, Geraldine. One day while proceeding to the Bond residence in a motor yacht, he encounters Elaine Strange, daughter of a deaf and dumb lock keeper, who assists him in his work and speaks for him when bargaining for passage through the locks. Harold at once becomes deeply attracted to the beautiful barefooted girl and believes that he has discovered in her the model for a masterpiece which he will call "The Girl of the Locks." Elaine soon mistakes Harold's artistic enthusiasm for a more serious sentiment and falls hopelessly in love with him.

Dan Strange, the father, is deeply opposed to an apparently hopeless attachment because she has promised to some day wed Steve Hart, a young boatman, big of frame and fiery in nature. But in spite of the careful watching of the father and lover, there are many secret sittings of artist and model. The masterpiece is finished and an exposition of it announced at the Bond home. Steve and Dan angrily forbid her to attend the reception; she persists in doing so and is locked in her room. After returning the engagement ring to her lover and declaring to her father that she will not long remain a prisoner, true to her vow, she creeps from her window at the dead of night, proceeds to the Bond mansion in a boat and is there given shelter and protection. But encouraged by the taunts of Jack Case, who is, himself in love with Geraldine Fair, the jealous fiancee cuts the picture into ribbons and drives Elaine away. This results in a breaking of the engagement between Harold and Geraldine and a second picture is painted and exhibited in spite of many encounters with the fiery Steve, in one which Harold nearly loses his life. But Elaine is again doomed to disappointment. Harold's long period of work without profit plunges him into debt and out of gratitude toward Mr. Fair, who releases his obligations, he again becomes engaged to Geraldine. When the wedding is announced, Elaine totters faintly to the church and falls unconscious as bride and groom appear in the door. She is taken to the Bond home where she is found to be in a dying condition and her father is summoned. He arrives just after her passing away and, in a frenzy of grief, bears her from the house to his boat, again carrying out the picture drawn by Tennyson, "The Dead, Steered by the Dump, Went Upward on the Flood."

IN OLD VIRGINIA (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 8).—When the Civil War commences, John Culver, scion of an old Virginia family, organizes from among the men of his neighborhood a company of infantry. Old Colonel Culver, himself too old to fight, turns his sword over to his son and bids him uphold the family's reputation. With the pride of his parents, the promise of his sweetheart, the tears, cheers and hopes of those who remain behind, John, at the head of his company, marches away to fight.

In the first battle John and his men are subjected to an ordeal too severe for any but seasoned veterans. Everything human in him revolts at the useless slaughter. In a moment of panic he feigns death in order to get out of it all. At night he locates the remnant of his command but learns that they believe him dead. He hears himself mourned as a hero, fighting to the last. To appear before them now would be to betray cowardice, so, heartbroken, he runs away. John resolves that to his people he must remain dead—it must never be known that a Culver showed the white feather. They must think that he died like a soldier. Enlisting in another division of the Confederate army under an assumed name he seeks death. But death does not come.

After the war John longs for one sight of those he loves. Greatly changed in appearance, he returns to the neighborhood of his home and, under cover of night, revisits the old scenes. He finds a monument dedicated in memory to the men who fought and died for a cause they believed in, and his own name is the most prominent. Through a window he sees his old father and mother and by their actions he knows they are talking fondly of him. He sees her who had been his promised wife, in the arms of a friend and learns that they are to be married. Peering through the window one night John gathers that his father is in trouble but cannot hear what is being said. Burning to know the cause of his parent's sorrow, he decides to entrust his secret with Old Tom, the darky butler. He learns that a money lender has cheated his father and that his parents are about to lose their home. Late that night he enters his home. After securing certain papers he goes to the office of the thieving Shylock and breaks in. The money lender, asleep in an adjoining room, hears him but John forces him to right the wrong he has done. The money lender attempts to recover the papers but, in the struggle which results, John kills him. Though John himself is mortally wounded, he dies with the knowledge that he has saved the old home for his parents who will never know how it happened for that same night, with only the moon as a witness, Old Tom buries "young Massa" and his secret.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER (Oct. 9).—Volma, the lighthouse keeper's daughter, and Glen Curtis, a sailor, are engaged to be married. Glen has one weakness, an appetite for liquor, but he has promised Volma that he will stop. Returning from a voyage he goes to see the girl with the odor of liquor on his breath. This precipitates a quarrel. Later Volma's father suffers a slight stroke of paralysis while in the tower and she goes in haste to the mainland to fetch a doctor. The only physician in the village has gone away for a week. Meanwhile Dr. Carlson, a retired physician, steams into port on his private yacht. He and Volma meet at the landing and her distraction leads him to offer his assistance and goes with her to attend her father. As he is leaving the lighthouse he is seen by Curtis, who has returned to try to make up the quarrel. Curtis jumps at the conclusion that he has a rival and accuses Volma, who takes quick advantage of the situation. Thinking that by making Clem jealous she may spur him to reformation she refrains from telling him who Carlson is. Curtis becames insanely jealous and broods over the loss of the girl. He learns that Carlson is a millionaire and the owner of a yacht and thinks that Volma was influenced by the prospect of wealth and position. She, on the other hand, has not the slightest suspicion of the insane passion she has aroused in Clem and only thinks that in a little while he will return to make up. Instead, Clem takes to drink and broods over his trouble. A sailor aboard the yacht quits and Clem learns that the captain is seeking a sailor for Carlson's crew, plans a scheme for revenge and ships on the yacht. Soon after the yacht sails Clem finds his opportunity. Carlson is alone on deck when Clem creeps up behind him and attacks him. A struggle follows, during which Carlson is thrown overboard. Clem becomes frightened of the consequences and deserts the ship in one of the small boats. Carlson in the water swims toward land, but soon becames exhausted. When his strength is nearly gone he reaches a buoy off the lighthouse to which he clings. In the lighthouse Volma sees a small object on the buoy and makes out the figure of a man. She goes to the rescue in a skiff and takes Carlson back to the lighthouse. Clem, having landed on a barren shore, is alone with his guilty conscience. He stands the mental anguish as long as he can and then decides to go back to the girl, confess his crime and give himself up. Returning to the lighthouse he finds her and confesses. Instead of being horrified she calms him and calls Dr. Carlson. A reconciliation follows.

WHEN THE HAM TURNED (Oct 10).—A. Hamo, tragedian, is chased out of town by the angry audience. After a long, weary walk he arrives at Slumberville, a town from which he had been chased before; but tired out and unable to walk farther, he lies down on a pile of straw to sleep. He is found by the chief of police and a detail of cops who beat him up and then throw him in jail.

After ten days he is released, beaten up again and kicked out of the station house. He returns later looking for revenge and finds the chief asleep outside the station house. Hamo sneaks up and steals the chief's club and gun, beats him up and forces him out into the woods where he ties him to a tree, takes off his uniform and disguises himself as the chief. Hamo then starts out and acts like a wild man. The village, believing Hamo to be the chief, complain to the mayor and he starts out to find that wayward official. Hamo, after cleaning out a saloon, returns to the woods, soaks the chief's clothes with whiskey, puts his uniform back on him and drags him away. The mayor, followed by a crowd, meet Hamo dragging the chief along the road. Smelling whiskey on the dead dazed chief, he lauds Hamo as a hero and makes him chief of police. Then Hamo vents his pent-up anger on the disgraced chief.

HIS FIRST CASE (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 1).—When—Leon Sedley, a young newspaper reporter, receives notice from the secretary of the treasury that he has been appointed a special agent to work in the customs service, the first person to whom he tells his good fortune is Irma Benton. Irma is far more deeply interested in Sedley than she is in Dick Dustin, whom her mother wants her to marry because of his wealth. Among other luxuries Dustin owns a fine steam yacht. Sedley's first consignment is to investigate large and frequent sales of an illicit drug which are made by an obscure drug store. He discovers that the drug is delivered to the store by a strange individual whom he shadows to an office, the lettering on the door of which identifies him as B. Detrich, an alleged pharmaceutical chemist. By watching the office, Sedley learns that it is the headquarters of a smuggling gang of which Dustin is the real head. His steam yacht is used as the means of getting shipments of the illicit drug past the customs inspectors. Ascertaining that Dustin and his confederates plan to visit an isolated cove along the coast at a certain time, Sedley determines to capture them with the evidence in their possession. Irma offers him the use of her auto and drives him overland to a point on the cliffs overlooking the smuggler's cave. Irma stays on the cliffs while Sedley goes below to await his opportunity to make the capture. His over-eagerness leads to his own capture by Dustin and his confederates, who take him aboard the yacht and head out toward sea. Irma, witnessing the capture from above, is distracted. She drives back to the port and there the sight of the gunboat "Paul Jones" lying in the harbor, suggests an appeal to the naval authorities. She visits the gunboat and tells the commander of Sedley's predicament. He gives the necessary orders for a pursuit. After a long, hard chase the yacht is overhauled and the smugglers captured. Sedley finds that his first case has won him a wife as well as honor.

THE GREATER LOVE (Oct. 2).—Esther Desries, of strong character and attractive personality, a settlement worker and volunteer nurse, meets Dr. John Strong, and soon finds that she has for him the one great love of her life. Strong's wife, Marion, is a thoughtless butterfly and without appreciating the gravity of her course, plans to elope with Thornton, an artist. Thornton, of weak character and emotional, is the father of Francis, a small child who has been injured in a street accident, and who has been attended by Strong and nursed by Esther. Thornton's redeeming trait is his kindheartedness and love for his child. Esther knows that Strong loves her, and upon learning of the proposed elopement, realizes that she has only to allow matters to take their course in order to eventually become Strong's wife. She finds, however, that she cannot allow her own happiness to be based on the shame of the man she loves and the grief of the child Francis, whom Marion has induced Thornton to abandon, as she, Marion, dislikes children. By appealing to Thornton's father-love, Esther succeeds in preventing the elopement, and by confessing to Marion her love for Strong, she rouses in the wife a jealous determination to deserve, win and retain the love of her husband. Esther at last feels that, by assuring the happiness of those she most loves (Strong and the child) she, too, will attain happiness.

ON CIRCUS DAY (Oct. 3).—The Sauerkraut Twins, fresh from the Vaterland, while strolling together, notice advertisements of a circus to appear in town. Having no money, but desirous of seeing said performance, they decide to beat their way in. Smith, one of the denizens of the village of Prettyville, decides to do likewise. Arriving at the circus grounds, all three see the show "NOT," but are thrown out by one of the city's bluecoated rough necks. Smith, by the use of much dexterity and speed, goes in on the run without the formality of purchasing a ticket. The Sauerkraut boys, unfortunately, take a stereotype route—going under the tent and are heaved by one of the human windmills employed by said circus. After many futile attempts, at last they are successful and vanish beneath a sea of canvas to reappear among the motley throng and view those attempting to break their necks by balancing apartment houses and standing on their eyebrows. Zit, a man-eating gorilla, becomes peeved. After trying to make a meal of the bars of his cage, is finally fed. Regaining his lost strength he escapes from his dungeon and appears as if by magic among the cheering throng. Exit throng. The gorilla, choosing the Sauerkraut Twins and Smith as desert after his meal, camps on their trail and incidentally much havoc was wrought among the pole-taxpayers of Prettyville. After routing the minions of the law in their own backyard, we leave it pursuing the contents of the police-blotter for friends and acquaintances names.

MELIES.

A CIRCUS ROMANCE (Sept. 29).—Having lost his clothes, an old bum wraps a tiger skin around him. He is mistaken for an escaped wild man and is taken to a nearby circus. There he becomes infatuated with the bearded lady and finally succeeds in winning her from the tatooed man by exposing the latter as a fake. They are accordingly married and we then get a glimpse of the next generation—five youngsters properly adorned with beards.

BLIND MARRIAGE (Oct. 1).—Several old maids apply at the Blind Marriage Agency for husbands. Skinny Pete, in search of a wife, does likewise. While he waits in the office, the women pike him off from an adjoining room. He goes to the highest bidder and is led, blindfolded, to the magistrate and married. When he discovers that his wife is no beauty, he faints and is taken to her apartments. There she mixes him a potion of Ambition, Imagination and Love and after downing that All Is Well Along the Potomac.

GEORGE KLEINE.

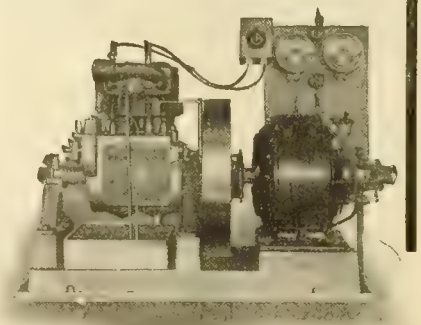
WHEN YOUTH MEETS YOUTH (Special—Two Parts—Cines—Sept. 15).—George Potter, a wealthy banker, disowns his only son Henry as the result of the boy's gambling escapades. Shortly afterward he meets Sylvia Gray, a young woman of great beauty and charm, and falls in love with her. She is fond of him, imagines herself really in love and promises to become his wife. Then she leaves for a short vacation in the South and there meets Henry, who is living under an assumed name. Ignorant that Sylvia is his father's fiancee, Henry falls in love with her and she returns his affection. A letter from Potter, saying that he is coming soon, awakens her to the seriousness of the situation and, loyal to her promise, she refuses to see Henry again. The boy is brokenhearted. An acquaintance, trying to console him, makes the remark that Sylvia is "not worth losing sleep over;" Henry resents the statement and, as both young men are hot-headed, a duel ensues. Potter arrives just in time to learn that his son has been badly wounded. The father rushes to the bedside of the son, who has received a sword thrust in the breast. He finds Sylvia there and learns the true state of affairs. Convinced that the girl's influence for good will be the making of his son, he renounces his own claim, and soon after Henry's recovery becomes the father-in-law of his former fiancee.

We Buy and Sell Second Hand Films and Moving Picture Machines

WESTERN FILM BROKERS

57 So. Wabash Avenue - Chicago, Ill.

What's the Use?



4 Kilowatt Direct-Connected Outfit

What's the use, Mr. Traveling Showman, in carting around several tons of antique engine and electrical apparatus for making electric current, when you can buy a

Brush Electric Lighting Set

Just sit down and write for our Catalogue. It tells the whole story, and what it tells is SO.

The Chas. A. Strelinger Co.

Box MP-2

Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

BIOGRAPH.

JUST A BIT OF LIFE (Sept. 21).—Piqued by her husband's apparent neglect, the wife of a college professor elopes with her admirer, deserting her little baby. On the same day, the professor's favorite pupil, a young woman, gets news of her father's death and leaves college. Her photograph, a parting gift, lies on the professor's table. The baby, now a five-year-old girl, pines for a mother's love, and, finding the picture one day, asks: "Is that my mamma?" To get rid of her, the professor says "Yes." Next day the little girl is taken by her nurse to a dressmaker recommended by the professor's secretary, and the child recognizes the original of the photograph, to her joy and that of her father.

THE FALL OF MUSCLE-BOUND HICKS (Sept. 24).—Harry's sweetheart becomes infatuated with Muscle-Bound Hicks, the pugilistic champion, so Harry decides to take boxing lessons and challenge Hicks. Harry discovers that a cheese, on which the manager is training his champion to make him strong, makes Hicks sick. On the night of the fight, when Harry is being chased all over the ring, his second observes one of the audience eating a cheese sandwich of the kind Hicks dislikes. They secure the cheese, daub it on Harry's gloves and Hicks quickly meets his finish. Then Harry's sweetheart tells him he is her hero.

THE PLUMBERS' PICNIC (Sept. 24).—Newbride refuses to allow his hired girl to go to the plumbers' picnic with Mr. Fitter, a plumber. A pipe bursts in Newbride's home and Fitter won't fix it until Newbride says he will let the hired girl go to the picnic; but there are some lively happenings before this situation comes to hand.

THE RING AND THE BOOK (Two Parts—Sept. 22).—Violante, wife of Pietro, a wealthy Italian of low rank, discovers that, by the terms of her husband's will, relatives may claim the estate unless she bears a child. She passes off a foundling as her daughter, and the girl Pompilia is beloved by her foster father. She is still a child when Violante, seeking to advance her own social standing, schemes to marry her to Count Guido, an adventurer, who, after the secret marriage, claims his bride and her dowry. Violante, seeing the entire estate in danger of passing out of her hands, discloses the secret of Pompilia's birth, and shows that she has no claim on the property.

Guido, enraged, bides his time in wreaking vengeance on his dowerless bride. Her distress under his cruelty arousing the pity of Caponsacchi, a canon, Guido forces Pompilia to write a letter to the prelate, asking his aid. He replies that he is a priest and she a wedded wife, but Guido destroys this letter and substitutes a declaration of passionate love from Caponsacchi.

The priest, determined to aid the unhappy wife, dons the dress of a cavalier and goes to her window at night. She flees with him to an inn, whither they are pursued by Guido and his miscreants. The tremendous situations which follow, ending in the execution of Guido and his band as murderers, are among the most dramatic ever conceived.

THE GOLD THIEF (Sept. 26).—Mysterious losses of gold dust in the workroom of a manufacturing jeweler lead to the arrest of a young clerk whose visit to a gambling house arouses the detective's suspicions. The shortages continuing, the detective suspects an accomplice, and in the course of his investigation chances to see an old workman stroking his beard. Following the man home, the detective sees his shadow on the blind as he combs out of his beard the gold dust he has stolen. Search of the premises reveals a bag of gold dust, and the thief is traced to the lair of his confederate, where both are arrested. The young man is promptly released, to the great joy of his faithful sweetheart, the stenographer.

Moving Picture Scenarios

We are in the market for one and two reel comedies and comedy dramas.

Submit in typewritten form to

J. C. BROWNELL

105 Lawrence Avenue, Dorchester, Mass.

HOLLAND FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

SOUTHERN EXHIBITORS

Do you like WESTERNS, COMEDIES and SENSATIONALS? Do you prefer a service that MAINTAINS the kind of films that EVERYBODY LIKES TO SEE?

Our service fills these requirements ABSOLUTELY. Commercial Film Service of the very best selection as to quality and condition.

North American Film Corporation, Inc.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

(We invite propositions for booking single and multiple reel subjects of positive merit, in the South and Southwest. We will have several active Exchanges in this territory before January 1st, 1915.)

IN CORRESPONDING WITH ANY OF OUR ADVERTISERS KINDLY MENTION THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

HER DOGGY (Sept. 25).—Harshly treated by her stepfather, a little girl lavishes her affections upon a mongrel. A doctor, summering near the farm, wishes to purchase a dog for vivisection and the girl's stepfather offers to sell her pet for five dollars. Panic-stricken, she runs away during the night, and is found next morning by the doctor's wife, fast asleep in a field with the dog for a pillow. Taken to the doctor's cottage, she cannot believe that no harm is intended to her doggy, and begs the vivisector to cut her up instead. Every lover of animals will hail this story as a masterpiece.

THE PEASANT'S LIE (Oct. 2).—Bribed by a jealous rival, the guardian of a young girl tells a lie which separates her from her humble lover and gives the rival an opportunity to press his suit for her hand. But the move brings into the girl's life another man, whom the schemer has cause to fear even more than her former suitor—for he, too, has wealth and manly graces. Each believes himself favored, but fate brings the truth to light, and the girl is placed out of their reach forever.

THE WHITE HAND SOCIETY (Sept. 28).—Mrs. Dough gets a letter from the White Hand, demanding $1,000 on pain of death; but instead of paying the money she calls out the policewomen and chases the White Handers who have kidnapped her husband, finally cornering them in the sea and capturing the ringleaders.

A FIRST CLASS COOK (Sept. 28).—George's friend Henry is coming to visit him, so he engages a cook at the employment agency. Henry has an ill adventure on the way; and when he arrives, poorly clad, George's wife mistakes him for the cook. The real culinary artist, ornately dressed, is received as the visitor, and many farcical situations ensue until George comes home and straightens things out.

THE NEW ROAD'S MASCOT (Oct. 3).—For his daughter's sake, a discharged workman yields to temptation and committs an act which brings consequences of such a nature that all his manhood is aroused and by strenuous efforts the danger which threatens is averted.

THE DERELICTS (Two Parts, Sept. 29).—Death before dishoner is the choice of a young factory girl, but she is saved from both by a young sea captain and carried into another life, in which she is happy until an old enemy reappears in the person of her former employer, whose business interests have brought him to the far corner of the world where the new Eden is. The strange circumstances of his coming, his discovery of the serpent in that island paradise, and the rapid series of events which culminate in the vengeance of the sea, form the second half of this dramatic story, not the least of whose charms is the variety of unusual and richly contrasted scenic effects.

SELIG.

AN EMBARRASSING PREDICAMENT (Oct. 2)—Billy Quill, a bashful bookkeeper, loves Marjorie Keyes, the pretty stenographer. Anatole, the French barber, is also in love with Marjorie, but he is not at all bashful and makes himself a pest by declaring his love for her at every opportunity. Marjorie reciprocates Billy's love, and gives him every opportunity to express his feelings and "pop" the question, but Billy lacks nerve to say the fatal words. One day Billy spurs himself to meet the issue and after obtaining a wedding ring and a license, presents himself before Marjorie with the full intention of taking the leap into matrimony. Marjorie is perfectly willing, but is interrupted by Anatole, which interruption is violently resented by Billy who ejects him with savage delight. Anatole swears revenge.

Unknown to each other, Billy and Marjorie visit adjoining bath-houses. Now is Anatole's opportunity to "get even," and he mixes up their garments, and places them in an embarrassing predicament. A series of comical incidents are pictured as a result of this mix-up, concluding with the impromptu marriage of the blushing and confused couple.

FOUR MINUTES LATE (Oct. 3).—Billy Garfield is a bright, young railroad engineer. He runs passenger train No. 6, and next to his locomotive, he loves Marie Shaw. They are engaged and their wedding day is set, but Jack Blake, Billy's fireman on the run, and a former suitor for Marie's hand, is jealous and plots to "fix" Billy. Blake is intimate with the details of the running of No. 6, and knows exactly where they must meet and pass No. 1, the Express. He decides to set back Billy's watch four minutes, just time enough to ditch the train, which mishap he thinks will put Billy out of the running, so that he can win Marie. Obtaining access to Billy's watch, he sets it back, and then awaits developments.

Blake's mind is troubled and he has visions of a frightful wreck. He would recall his act but it is too late. He hurries to the home of Marie, only to discover that she has gone as a passenger on the fated train. In his horror and remorse he prepares to kill himself, but is interrupted by the arrival of Billy and Marie. A mishap to the locomotive had set them on a siding and averted the accident.

THE MOVING PICTURE COWBOY (Special - Two Parts—Oct. 5).—Luke Barns obtains employment with a moving picture company as a cowboy and declares himself capable of performing any or all feats such as cowboys are supposed to perform. In the first picture he writes a letter to his uncle stating that the arduous duties in connection with picture making, have caused him to desire to take a vacation, which he will spend on his uncle's ranch. In his letter he indicates that he is the "real stuff" as a cowboy, which causes much amusement to the uncle and arrangements are made for a reception which will quickly prove out the pretentions of his boastful nephew. Luke arrives at the ranch dressed in gorgeous paraphernalia such as only stage cowboys can discover in the metropolitan shops. He is girded with brass studded belts, fluffy "chaps" and struts like a turkey-cock into the ranch where he is immediately introduced to the working cowboys, who suspend all operations in order to feast their eyes upon the gorgeous splendor of the new arrival.

Luke is not bashful in the least degree. He finds an audience to his liking and proceeds to entertain them immediately with the story of his thrilling "stunts." First, he describes the thrilling manner in which he pursued and tied a steer in record time. He describes this so vividly, that the hearers think that he is telling the truth. They can see in their minds' eye exactly how he did it. Next, he describes his adventures in sticking like a bur to the back of a fractious broncho. This they believe also. Then he describes in a thrilling way how he rode down a run-away steer and bull-dogged it by springing from the saddle, grabbing the steer, and throwing it to the ground. Then follows his narrative of a perilous pursuit of a train on horseback, and catching the rear car by leaping from the saddle to the steps of the freight car. He relates his rescue of the leading motion picture lady from a band of blood-thirsty stage Indians. He relates vividly a thrilling pursuit by "bad" men on horseback, and boastfully relates how quickly they turned "tail" and rode back to the mountains as soon as they discovered whom they were pursuing. He exhibits with pride a medal of doubtful antecedents, which he states was presented to him by his admiring co-workers in the motion picture studio. In fact, there is no work that day at the ranch, because the harrowing and exciting incidents related by the boastful Luke, have rendered everybody hors du combat.

After leaving the hero, Luke Barns, surrounded by an admiring audience, the pictures in the second reel, proceed to explain just what the boastful hero really did. But luckily for his peace of mind, the boys on the ranch are not supposed to know about this. All of the scenes shown in the first reel are reproduced, only the climax of each scene is entirely different. The boastful Luke has a most comical mishap at the conclusion of each attempted "stunt."

THE WAY OF THE REDMAN (Oct. 6)—The story is of a Redman, a civilized Indian, who takes into his home a wounded gambler, shot while escaping the sheriff. The gambler has no honor and wins the affections of Bounding Fawn, the Redman's pretty squaw. The Indian discovers the gambler's treachery, and throws him together with Bounding Fawn, out of the cabin.

The years pass. Bounding Fawn is cruelly slain by her drunken lover. The Redman goes to the rescue, but arrives too late. He makes a prisoner of the drunken gambler, and ties him to a stake for torture. The closing scene shows vividly the typical Indian revenge, which the Redman exacted, the forfeit being the life of the treacherous gambler.

THE REPARATION (Oct. 7)—Miss Abigail Herondine, and her younger sister, Miss Philippa, are the sole survivors of an ancient Southern family. They live in the old family mansion. Miss Abigail is a mature maid of thirty-five—stern and severe, while Philippa is a beautiful, blushing girl of twenty. David Graham, a weak and unreliable fellow, is visiting in the vicinity while avoding his creditors. He cannot resist making love to any woman he meets. Graham runs away with Philippa, after first having made love to Abigail. He deserts his young wife, who loses her mind in consequence, and is taken home to be cared for by Abigail. Graham joins the Confederate Army, deserts, and seeks refuge in the home of Abigail. He is disguised with a heavy beard, but Abigail recognizes him. She hides him from the searching soldiers, but intends to kill him herself with her

Draw the Crowd

The experience of managers has shown that nothing fills a house so continuously as a well-illuminated entrance. This may be obtained by the use of

Westinghouse Long-Burning Flame Carbon Arc Lamps

These lamps give the intense illumination of the flaming arc with a high efficiency and a burning life of over 100 hours per trim. For the same brilliancy, they cost less to operate and less for trimming. Either white or yellow light.

Send for Folder 4277

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
Dept IR
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities

'ECONOMIZE

Carbon Shortage Unprecedented. Eliminate the waste, burn your Carbons shorter and use up the stumps. The Carbons you now throw away will burn from one to two hours longer.

THE CARBON SAVER
Does it. Fits any Burner.
Made for ½, 9-16, 5-6 and ¾-inch size.

CARBONS
ADVANCE THEATRICAL EXCHANGE
173 3rd St., Milwaukee, Wis.

$1.00 Per Pair Prepaid

Save Time, Labor and Polish! Don't Polish Your Brass Rails, Poster Frames and Metal Work

Apply a coat of NEWMAN'S TRANSPARENT LACQUER. Positively prevents tarnishing and is easily applied with a brush (similar to varnishing) and keeps and preserves the metal at a bright, beautiful and lasting lustre for years; same as on a brass bed. Will stand lots of wear.
PRICE, per Pint (brush included)..... $2.50
Best money you ever invested!

NEWMAN LACQUER COMPANY
3346 Bonaparte Ave. Cincinnati, Ohio

Your negative developed, printed and titled complete
5c. per foot
Delivered within 12 hours
Titles 6c. per foot
GUNBY BROS., Inc., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

DON'T BE FOOLISH

And pay big prices for slides. This advertisement and 15c. will bring you sample of Announcement Player and Feature Announcement Slides. We furnish dandy slides at $2.00 per dozen.

NIAGARA SLIDE COMPANY, LOCKPORT, N. Y.

father's sword. Then his honor awakens—he surrenders to the soldiers and is shot as a deserter.

JIMMIE THE PORTER (Oct. 9)—Jimmie disguises himself as a negro porter on the private car of old man Duncan, the father of pretty Erma, his sweetheart. Duncan favors the suit of Griswold, whom he invites to take a trip. Erma helps Jimmie to carry out the ruse. Jimmie's false complexion leave a smear on pretty Erma's cheek and lips. Old man Duncan is scandalized, but forgives the young couple and they are married.

HER VICTORY ETERNAL (Oct. 10) In the heart of the society queen, Mrs. Tabor, there is little else but thoughts of her wonderful husband and her marvelous only son, Will. Her love for them fills her life entirely and is her sole reason for existence. The father and son vie with each other for her smiles and caresses like a pair of foolish lovers. Their happiness is complete.

Then the husband is killed in an accident, and the stricken wife is shocked to the verge of insanity, but the loved voice of her son brings her back from the brink of the grave. Will meets Dorothy and they become engaged. The frantic love of the mother renders her insanely jealous of her son's sweetheart. She tries to appear satisfied and pleased with their engagement, but in her own heart she cannot dissemble. Will is drowned just before the wedding day, and thus the mother won "her victory eternal." Her son was still hers alone—in death as in life.

GENERAL FILM CO.

HEARTS AND MASKS (Selig) (Three Parts—Oct. 1)—Galloping Dick, a clever thief, occupies fashionable bachelor apartments. He is invariably accompanied by William, who acts the part of valet and body-servant while in the apartments, and as an expert, faithful and clever accomplice in the robberies committed by Galloping Dick. One evening William sits in the apartment impatiently wating for the return of Dick, who arrives finally after a sucessful robbery and turns over to William some rich jewels which the latter places in a concealed safe built in the wall.

In the meantime, the robbery has been discovered and there is great agitation in the mansion where Mrs. Richwell has discovered her loss. Detective Haggerty is notified of the robbery and arrives on the scene. A cursory inquiry at once reveals to him that this is another job by Galloping Dick.

Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds, one of the wealthy patrons of art, has finished a last sitting for Miss Hawthorne, the clever and fascinating young miniature painter. She states that she is going to Europe, and therefore will pay for the completed miniature. While so doing, she accidentally drops from her purse an invitation to a masque ball at the Hunt Club. The invitation contains a playing card, the ten of hearts.

Dick Comstock, a young automobile salesman, decides at five o'clock that it is time to leave his place of business. His evening is open and he does not know what to do with himself. At the Hunt Club all arangements are being made for the ball. Detective Haggerty, believing that he is at last upon the trail of Galloping Dick, calls at the apartments which his deductions have designated as a lair of his prey, and obtaining entrance, awaits the return of the thief.

Miss Hawthorne and her uncle go to dinner at the Moquin Cafe, and it so happens that Dick Comstock is shown to a seat at the same table. The waiter brings him a newspaper, and he sees the announcement of the masque ball at the Hunt Club. He decides upon a lark, sends the waiter for a pack of cards and after shuffling and cutting draws the ten of hearts. Miss Hawthorne is deeply interested both in the handsome young automobile salesman and in his selection of a card. The three enter into conversation and Miss Hawthorne, after startling her uncle by explaining that she will attend the ball surreptitiously as Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds, goes to a costumer to select something to wear. Within the next half hour, Comstock goes to the same costumer and selects a suitable disguise to wear at the ball.

Galloping Dick enters his apartment and the waiting Detective covers the thief and William with his revolver and demands their surrender. They trick him into close quarters, seize and bind him and toss him into the closet. On his person is an invitation to attend the masque ball at the Hunt Club in order to guard the jewels, and enclosed with the letter of explanation and invitation, is a playing card, the ten of hearts. Galloping Dick abstracts this, and decides to seek a new hunting ground at the masque ball that night. William is to accompany him. Galloping Dick goes to the costumer and there meets Dick Comstock. The costumer stock. At the ball that evening he recognizes the blue domino.

All goes merrily at the ball. Galloping Dick succeeds in cleverly stealing a gorgeous diamond tiarra and a rope of exquisite pearls, which he passes to William through the door leading to the cellar. In a few moments there is wild consternation. The women proceed to announce their loss to Teddy Hamilton, the club manager, and he declares to the assembly that there is a thier among them. Bold Galloping Dick has pinned the detective badge of Haggerty to his waist-coat, ascends the platform, throws off his disguise, announces that he is Detective Haggerty and ends by saying that everyone present shall remain until they shall have been identified. Dick Comstock realizes that there will be an extra ten of hearts to be shown and does not desire to be caught. He confesses to the fascinating Miss Hawthorne that he is an imposter; whereupon she confesses that she also is an imposter. Hand in hand they run from room to room in an endeavor to escape from the house.

Comstock finds the way to the cellar and they hasten into the subterranean darkness hoping to find an exit leading outside. In the cellar they accidentally encounter William, who draws his revolver and "sticks them up." William compels Comstock to take a pair of wire cutters and remove a wire screen from the window and then makes his escape with the stolen jewels in his possession. The young couple stumble back up the stairs and flounder into the drawing room where they are immediately pounced upon by the local constabulary, the members of which have been summoned by Hamilton.

Detective Haggerty has at last escaped from the closet and makes all speed to the Hunt Club. Galloping Dick is located in the village inn by Haggerty, who has mobilized the village constabulary, and who enter upon the scene just as Galloping Dick is robbing young Comstock and Miss Hamilton, who have been released upon the recognition of Teddy Hamilton, an old friend. Haggerty arrests Galloping Dick and William, after a sharp encounter with revolvers. Galloping Dick, the gay society buccaneer, is marched away with a broken wrist, while Dick Comstock and Miss Hawthorne rapidly cement their friendship which immediately assumes the proportion of a love affair.

FRONTIER.

THE GREASER'S REVENGE (Oct. 1).—It was an accident that brought Dolly and Fred together, but it was not an accident that caused Jose, the half breed, to lose his job. When he attempted to make love to Dolly, the ranchman promptly discharged him.

Jose decided that walking papers were not to his liking. He stole Fred's horse. The ranchman, Fred and Dolly observed him, and, calling in several ranch hands, they gave chase.

Fred finally cornered Jose, but his gun becomes clogged. To escape from the greaser's bullets, Fred took refuge in a deserted mining shaft, hanging by a rope. Here Jose found him and cut the rope. But the earth gave way and Jose, too, fell to the bottom of the shaft, where, after a struggle, he was overpowered by Fred.

Dolly and the others hear Fred's calls for help. The two men are brought from the shaft and the story ends happily for Fred and Dolly.

WE HAVE
The Last 60 Days
SUPPLIED
"T. S. M. Quality" Brass Lobby Frames, Railings and Fixtures
FOR MORE THAN
50 New Theatres (Complete Equipment)
Remodeled Theatres
Re-Orders from Old Customers

No. 12

There is a reason

Quality and price counts. If you are "Dressing Up" the front of your theatre why not get our suggestions and prices?

The Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
318 Long Ave., N. W.,
New Address CLEVELAND, OHIO

BARR & BRUNSWIG That Classy Duo

Singing Semi-Classic, Popular, Yodle and Novelty Songs in Harmony
SEPT. 14-28, WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.
Engagements Wanted Throughout the South.
Booked by MISS AMY COX, Randolph Bldg., Memphis, Tenn.

Moving Picture Projectors and Cameras
All makes repaired
Ernemann Photo Kino Works
163 W. 48th St., New York

TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
General Office, Schenectady, N.Y. 4987

25% on Carbons
Saved by using THE ACME CARBON ECONOMIZER. Guaranteed to burn carbons down to three-quarters of an inch.
In ordering state size of carbons used and extreme opening of carbon clamps.
$2.00 per pair postpaid. Remit in P. O. or express money order.
W. F. HERZBERG,
Manhattan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

THE L.C.SMITH REWINDING SET
EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00
GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET.
L.C.SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N.Y.
PAT. PENDING
PAT. PENDING

We will rebuild your old machine just as good as new. If your machine needs repairing, we can do the work. We have every facility and use only GENUINE Parts. All work guaranteed. We carry a complete line of new machines and Supplies. Will sell for cash or on easy payments.
Send for catalog today.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
160 NO. FIFTH AVENUE, CHICAGO

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

IMP.

SHADOWS (Two Reels—Oct. 5).—The Imp star, King Baggott, plays ten different characters. Cut off from the world, with their comfortable home buried in picturesque garden of trees and flowers, William Clark and his wife live the lonely life of a couple who have known deep sorrow. Their only servant is a Chinaman. Year before their only son, a wayward, fun-loving boy, had left them. At the opening of the story this boy returns, like proverbial prodigal son of old, to enjoy the fatted calf. But in this case the father deems it a wiser course to send the boy on his way with enough money to start again in life.

The evening following the son's second departure from his father's house, a thief breaks in. He encounters the Chinese servant and assaults and robs him of his savings. Among the coins obtained are a few Chinese coppers. The old father, hearing the scuffle, starts for the kitchen. He is intercepted by the crook, who accidentally kills him. Shortly after Mrs. Clark discovers the awful tragedy and immediately notifies the police. King Baggott, the famous detective, is put on the case.

In search for a clue, King visits a tavern. He overhears a quarrel between the crook and his sweetheart; the latter throws the money he has given her in the crook's face. One of the coins rolls to where King is seated. Examination discloses it to be a Chinese coin.

In the meantime the son had been arrested, accused of the crime. Circumstantial evidence points strongly to him as the perpetrator. However, King believes the boy innocent. He visits the servant who identifies the coins, but is unable to give a description of the thief. King hurries back to the tavern in time to take up the trail of the crook. He follows to a lodging house. The crook's strange actions convince King of his guilt. From a nearby telephone he calls the police station and gives instruction to have plain clothes men sent to assist in the arrest of the murderer of Clark. On the arrival of the detectives, King breaks in the door. A terrific fight ensues; King pursues the crook up the stairs and onto the roof. Then follows a thrilling pistol duel. The crook is finally "winged" with a well-directed shot and falls over the roof casing t othe ground, several stories below. He lives long enough to clear the son of suspicion.

The story closes with the son leaving the jail in the arms of his aged mother and King showing the satisfaction of a deed well done.

As a closing feature to the play—one intended to convince the spectator of the fact that Mr. Baggott enacts every role—we have various short scenes showing the artist in the make-up of each character and removing the make-up as each scene fades into another.

RURAL ADVENTURES (Juvenile—Oct. 8).—Vacation comes for our Universal Boy. Being just a boy, he seeks the farm and naturally enough, he searches out a swimming pool as one of the first necessities of farm life. On arriving at the pool he finds the village boys have preceded him. Being told that the water is fine, he hastens to undress. While indulging, the boys take his clothes, substituting an old suit of their own. Matty is forced to start home in this adornment.

On the way home he is stopped by guards from the asylum who question him in regard to an escaped lunatic, a white-haired man who calls himself "Society Sam, the gentleman burglar." Our Universal Boy has no clue to offer, but later meets a man who answers the description of the guards. The fellow tells Matty who he is and urges Matty to assist him in a "haul." Matty ostensibly consents, seeing a chance to capture the man by strategy. They are to meet at the old mill at midnight.

All this arranged Matty hurries back and instructs farmer Horton to saddle him a pony. Matty rides to the asylum and acquaints the superintendent with his news. The guards are to come to the Horton farm at eleven that night. Matty meets the old man at the mill and brings him to the farm house. As the plan for robbery is about to be carried out the guards issue and make their capture. Matty has had his fun and has become a hero in the eyes of the village boys.

THE NEGLECTED WIFE (Universal Ike—Oct. 6).—Louise and Ray are newly married. At heart Ray is in love with Louise, though he is a bit of a flirt. Resentful, because of his neglect, Louise writes her parents that she is coming home. She learns that Ray is infatuated with his stenographer, and hires a detective to trail him. The sleuth disguises himself to look like Ray. Meanwhile the parents of Louise arrive on the scene. Her father also hires a detective who, in turn, disguises himself to look like Ray. Complications of a fast and furious nature ensue. The detectives are mistaken for Ray, and receive a severe drubbing at the hands of Louise and her parents.

A reconciliation concludes the story after Ray has been sufficiently punished.

ECLAIR.

THE SECRET TREATY (Two Reels—Oct. 7).—George Howard, secretary to one of America's officials responsible for the treaty between Great Britain and the United States, was a handsome fellow, well liked by his colleagues, but George Howard did not possess the most sturdy character in the world and when the opportunity presented itself to clean up a fortune by betraying the contents of this new treaty Howard took advantage of it.

Shortly after the disappearance of George Howard, it is discovered that the treaty already spoken of had been copied. Feeling that improper eyes might fall upon it, both governments concerned were highly agitated. John Steel, one of the cleverest of the United States secret service agents, was immediately placed on the case. Meanwhile Donna Inex, a spy in the diplomatic service of Mexico, has read of the theft of the important papers and realized that it would be a feather in her cap if she could obtain possession of same. Later she managed to make the acquaintance of our weak-willed young Secretary Howard. It is little trouble for her to learn where the treasured paper is hidden. She disguises herself as a scrubwoman to search it out. However, Howard surprises her in the act. Donna ostensibly joins with him. She pretends love for the fugitive and further entraps him in a note asking him to meet her in Tucson, Arizona, with the treaty.

Meanwhile Steel, the secret service agent of the United States, has closely followed the trail of Howard and the Mexican woman. Yet he has failed to locate the paper which is his real mission. The girl, Donna, joins her lover, Pedro, and as one of the members of a wagon train going to Tucson, she is able to avert suspicion. Howard wires her that he will join her on Wednesday with the treaty. Steel learns of the plan and at the proper moment makes his identity known and saves the young secretary from a lasting disgrace. The contempt of Donna stings young Howard into a realization as to the extent of his disloyalty. He determines to return to the United States to stand trial for his crime. The secret treaty is returned to the United States government with the assurance that no eyes but Steel's and Howard's has ever read its lines.

CUPID A VICTOR (Oct. 11).—Mildred, a charming young sculptress, is courted by a crowd of "Bohemians" who sponge on the hospitality of her studio. She enjoys their worthless and insincere tribute and cultivates their company to the exclusion of Bob, who really loves her for herself. She repulses him with the declaration that she is going to devote her life to her art. He, though he does not tell her that her statues are bad, at least refrains from adding to the fullsome praise. Mildred, piqued at the omission, treats him so harshly that Cupid takes a hand and bestows three dreams upon her.

In the first she sees herself when youth and beauty have vanished. Her cherished flock of flatterers have deserted her.

In the second she hears from the lips of her old sculpture master that she can never make a good statue; for "when a woman is young and charming, we flatter her, but an old maid hears the truth."

In the third dream she sees love desert her in the person of Mr. Bob and go philandering with that "horrid impressionistic girl." At last her silly heart is touched and Cupid sees a precious tear glistening upon the sleeper's cheek.

Off darts the little god to fetch back Bob. It takes some nudging, but Cupid finally succeeds in getting Mildred's humbled head on Bob's shoulder.

POWERS.

BE NEUTRAL (Sept. 25).—Two old men stand talking before a cottage. In the background two younger men bid their wives good-bye and start for work. Up the block, before a bank, a crowd stands gazing at a large map of the war zone, each discussing the situation according to his own views.

Later, in front of a factory, the two young men join other workers. Here an argument is going on, and the two young men take sides and enter the discussion. High words follow, which quickly lead to blows. The fight attracts the attention of a worker within the factory, who leaves his hot iron and gazes from the window at the fight below. Seeing his faction in trouble, the worker hurries to join the belligerents. The neglected hot iron seers its way into the garment beneath it, the result being a fire which soon gains headway.

The fighting men below surge from the factory alley into the street. A policeman, finding himself unable to cope with the mob, sends in a riot call. The reserves respond, and many in the mob are injured. Innocent spectators suffer and are injured. The fire department responds to an alarm sent from the burning factory, but its efforts are in vain and the factory is consumed.

The finale of the picture fades into a vision, in which the two old men, the innocent agitators, see the wives of the two young men as they stand by their husbands bemoaning the fact that a trifling argument resulted in such a catastrophe.

THE MAYOR'S MANICURE (Oct. 9).—The City Council and Mayor, much against the will of the citizens, have decided to pave certain streets, the names of which they are keeping secret. The Journal, anxious to get the list of streets, sends Eddie Ball, a young reporter fresh from college, to interview the Mayor. Eddie, wishing to impress the Mayor with his own importance, writes his name and "Reporter for the Journal" on a card which he sends in. To his chagrin the Mayor returns his card with the information that he will not see any reporters.

When Eddie informs the editor of his failure, the editor is furious and yet amused over Eddie's "greenness." Knowing that a list of the streets would be a scoop for the Journal, he sends Gail, the star reporter. While trying to plan some way to accomplish this, Gail goes to have her nails manicured.

At the crowded beauty shop, Gail answers the telephone for one of the manicurists and learns that the fastidious Mayor desires a manicurist to come to his office. Gail, realizing her opportunity, seizes it and, by trickery, succeeds and gets the scoop for her paper.

When the Mayor reads in the extra the entire list of streets he declares that he will thrash the man who turned traitor and gave out the information. Repairing to the office of the Journal he meets "the manicurist" of a few hours before and realizes what he himself has done.

He finds out, however, that the manicurist has other accomplishments than "filing nails."

To Our Readers, Advertisers, Subscribers, Exhibitors and Friends in the Industry:

We are optimists and believe this business is bigger and better than most people realize and we believe it will be still bigger and better.

KINDLY TURN TO PAGE 101 IN THIS ISSUE.

WHY SHOULD WE BE CROAKERS?

NESTOR.

THE OLD BELL-RINGER (Oct. 7).—Richard Stowe deserts his wife. Unable to support both their babe and herself, the wife leaves the child on the steps where the pious old Thomas Drake is bell-ringer and organ pumper.

The old man finds the baby girl and brings her up as his own child. When she reaches young womanhood, she is wooed by Henry Sterling, son of the old bell-ringer's dearest friend, Amos Sterling.

One day Richard Stowe returns, now affluent, and calls at the office of Amos Sterling, where he sees Henry and the girl. He makes friends with her and they learn to love each other. At last he interviews the old bell-ringer, intending to ask her hand in marriage. When he hears the truth from the old man's lips and reads the note the girl's foster father found pinned to the baby's dress, he recognizes his wife's handwriting. Grief-stricken, he tells the old man his story and departs, leaving a large check for the girl when she becomes the wife of Henry Sterling.

HE NEVER SAID A WORD (Oct. 9).—Dr. Browning, the attending physician at a deaf and dumb asylum, has a friend, Robert Deering, who is desirous of visiting him. Robert arrives on the night the inmates are giving their weekly entertainment. Bob learns the proper signs to ask the girls to dance. The doctor seats Bob in the first row between two inmates and the entertainment begins.

They can't make out why Bob doesn't enjoy it, and he, at last, gets up disgusted. However, the dance starts and Bob invites one of the dumb ladies to dance. Just then, her dumb escort arrives and takes her away. Bob is rather discouraged, but, seeing a pretty girl alone, approaches her and makes signs that he would like to dance. She accepts and, after the dance, Bob invites her to have some ice cream. On his way home he tells the doctor about the pretty girl. The next day Bob meets the girl and sits down on a bench to talk the sign language. The girl's uncle, who is the superintendent of the asylum, calls her. The uncle wants to know what she has been doing and she says: "I have met the nicest dummy you ever saw." Bob overhears this and runs out to explain that he is no dummy

STERLING.

A RURAL ROMANCE (August 24).—Billy is in love with Carmen, in spite of the fact that she is several years older and considerably larger than he. Carmen, on the other hand, admires Gordon, who is her ideal for a lover. Gordon experiences little difficulty in taking Carmen from Billy. As Billy watches her going with the other fellow he wishes he had a girl who would remain true.

Starting home he observes Olive and decides to make love to her. To win her he buys a rabbit and presents it to her. As they are talking together the rabbit escapes. The pair give chase; Billy follows it into a hole. He captures the animal all right, but finds himself unable to get out of the hole. Olive hears his cry for help and brings Gordon and Carmen, who are passing nearby. Gordon, with the aid of a rope, rescues Billy and the rabbit. Billy, in his pleasure at being free, forgets his hatred of Gordon and the four walk home happy.

THE BROKEN DOLL (Sept. 7).—Billy and Gordon are brothers, Carmen being Gordon's sweetheart. Gordon excuses himself from Carmen, as he has to milk the family cow. Billy happens along and makes fun of Gordon milking. This enrages Gordon and he squirts Billy in the eye.

On passing a water trough, he sees Olive trying to reach the pump. He assists her to get a drink and asks for her company home. On reaching a cross road they part. Gordon walks along the road, and hearing a yell and seeing a cloud of dust, runs up, thinking that a passing automobile has run down Olive. He finds it is her doll that has been hurt. He sits down beside her and tries to mend it.

Billy, in the meantime, decides to go back and find out where Olive lives. His jealous anger rises as he sees Gordon kiss her on the cheek. He runs and finds Carmen and shows her Gordon's perfidy. Carmen is heart-broken, and when she sees Gordon, snubs him. Billy gives him the same welcome. Mutual explanations ensue and all ends happily.

A SHOOTING MATCH (Two Parts—Sept. 24).—The locale of the story is laid around a trap shooting club, and while burlesquing the various incidents and manners that are common to the aristocratic shooting club and its members

Snitz and Hans are members of a trap shooting club. Snitz and Hans are rivals in love; each seeks the hand of pretty Emma. Emma is undecided which one she loves best and so finally, after many funny situations, proposes a shooting contest between the two men, the winner to secure her hand in marriage.

Snitz and Hans agree. They retire to secretly practice with their shotguns in preparation.

The day of the contest arrives. During the contest Hans, who is the best shot, runs far ahead in the scoring. Snitz conceives the idea of bribing Louie, who manages the shoot, to extract the shot from Hans' gun. This is done. Hans, thereafter, does not shoot a bird, while Snitz kills every one in sight. He beats Hans by one point.

In the meantime Emma becomes smitten with Louie. Louie demands payment from Snitz. Snitz is too busy with the girl, and so ignores him entirely. Louie becomes angry, and exposes the plot to Hans. Hans vows to kill Snitz, and with his shotgun he starts in pursuit. This is the signal for war between the factions, ending in a general fight among the contestants and many ridiculous incidents and situations.

MYER'S MISTAKE (Oct. 5).—Becausé Fanny, his sweetheart, has proven fickle, Myer determines to commit suicide. He is prevented by Arthur, his roommate. In the fight for possession of the revolver, they arouse the resentment of Count Gasco. On learning of Myer's trouble, the Count, however, forgives and suggests a plan.

Myer poses as dead. Fanny is informed and calls to see her dear departed. Both Arthur and the Count, unknown to each other, fall in love with Fanny. Arthur decides that with Myer out of the way, he can win her. Clamping the lid on the coffin, he starts a wild dash for the graveyard, while the Count makes love to Fanny in the kitchen. Dropping the coffin in the grave, Arthur covers it and dashes back to the house to find that fanny loves the Count. Realizing Myer must be dying, he rushes back to save him. Myer has succeeded in extracting himself from the grave, however, and is on the way to see the girl. He is wild with anger when he finds her in the arms of the Count, and starts back to the graveyard to end his life. There he finds Arthur, and accuses him of attempted murder. They start to fight and fall into the grave.

HYPNOTIC POWER (Oct. 8).—Snookee, to revenge himself on his hated rival, invokes the aid of the instructor in hypnotism. He uses his new-found powers with great success. He runs for the preacher and hastens the preparations for the wedding. All goes well until the hypnotist encounters the rival and releases him from the spell. The rival comes on the scene just as the minister is tying the knot for Snookee and the girl. Then real trouble starts with fast and furious fun in evidence every moment.

JOKER.

CRUEL, CRUEL WORLD (Oct. 10).—The widow and her only child, May, are in destitute circumstances. Outside their home winter rages. Old Myzer Lee has long coveted the widow's acres, and comes to foreclose. He is struck by the marvelous beauty of the fair May. He bargains with the widow: "Deliver your child to me, and I tear up the mortgage!" When things look bad, Joel, the young man who loves May, comes to her rescue and they hide in the snow.

Silas, the widow's husband, has overheard the proposed bargain. He has visions of a life of ease. But the widow's pleadings finally touch his heart.

The price of mutton soars fabulously. The widow sees a chance to raise money to settle the mortgage. She sends Silas to town with their two sheep. He sells them at an amazing figure, but he has been shadowed by the crafty Myzer Lee, who plans to rob Silas. The chance comes when Silas stops by the wayside, after a bracer, to sleep. With drunken cunningness, he first hides the money in a hole in the tree trunk.

Myzer Lee, who has not witnessed Silas' hiding of the money, now searches the sleeping man to no purpose. Enraged at being foiled, he kicks Silas. Silas reaches home and the widow is prostrated at the apparent loss of the money.

Myzer Lee and his hirelings capture May and Joel. Joel is bound fast to the self-same tree wherein Silas hid his roll. May manages to escape her captors and rushes home. Myzer Lee and his hirelings follow close on her heels and start to evict the widow and her family.

Joel, in his mighty struggles to escape, tears the tree up by its roots and with it still bound to his back, staggers to the rescue. Silas recognizes the tree bound to Joel, finds the money and saves the home.

THE BASEBALL FANS OF FANVILLE (Oct. 7).—Henry Peck is a howling, fanatical, baseball fan. Every afternoon sees him at the ball game. His wife has a decided aversion for everything pertaining to baseball. So has her mother. These two women decide to make him give up an afternoon to themselves by taking them to the matinee. The afternoon they choose is one on which the home team is scheduled to do big things. Peck rages. But the women are obdurate.

Red, Peck's office boy, is baseball mad, too, and schemes to get off to see the game. Peck sees through Red's little scheme and kicks him out of the office. Red, enraged, determines to get revenge on old Peck.

Rooter, another fan, calls on Peck and induces him to duck the matinee and sneak off to the ball game. The women have in the meanwhile arrived at the office. Peck and Rooter see them in time and when Red shows the women into the private office they find two men buried deep in a big business deal. Peck shows wife for you can now use up those short lower carbons which you formerly threw away.

Save Your Carbons

I have invented a simple, practical, low cost Carbon Saver. Get it and save money.

My Carbon Saver saves its cost many times over, as you can burn your carbons until they are

←THIS SHORT

SEND ME $2.00, and I will deliver a pair anywhere in the United States.

I still have a supply of imported Bio and Electra Carbons for sale at present market prices.

ASK ME NOW to send those Hommel Carbon Savers.

Ludwig Hommel & Co.
422 First Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

FILM MAKING OUTFITS

for Professional Film Work, for the Manufacturer, Traveler, Explorer, Scientist and Private. The well-known fool-proof Junior Camera, 200 feet capacity; Tripods, Tilts, Printers, Developing Outfits, Projectors, Lenses, Polishers, Measurers, Menders, Winders. Special Film Work. Quick, reliable repair.

Establ. 20 years. Largest Inst. in U. S.
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 Second Ave. New York

"Moving Picture Bryson"

Why Not Use SYSTEM in Your Business?

Hundreds of the best theatres in the country today are using THE THEATRE RECORD LEDGER SYSTEM and are getting results. Why not you? My proposition and promise to hustle right back your money if you don't find THE THEATRE RECORD LEDGER SYSTEM the greatest time saver besides absolutely accurate in every respect as to recording every possible receipt and disbursement—ought to be enough for your order. Don't you delay start your fall business off right. Send me $2.50 (plus 20c. for postage) and get a Business System in your business. J. V. BRYSON, The THEATRE RECORD LEDGER, 252 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis.

Frames for Sale

Suitable for lobby display, practically new.

Also have several slightly damaged—no reasonable offer refused.

226 West 42d Street
Second floor
Candler Theatre Building

how impossible it will be for him to take them to the matinee. Red, however, is wise, and advises the women to "stick around awhile," and hides them in the outer office. Then they behold the perfidy of Peck and Rooter. They follow Peck and Rooter to the ball game. There they pounce upon the horrified men. Red views the scene with satisfaction. Just at this point the home team makes a grand-stand play. The bleachers howl with glee. The two women catch the infection. Before they are aware of their own actions they are rooting like mad for the home team. When the game is over they are howling, fanatical baseball fans. Henry Peck is overjoyed.

BISON.

THE PHANTOM LIGHT (Two Parts—Oct. 13).—Star Eyes, daughter of Big Moon, a powerful chief, is loved by Deer Foot and Dark Cloud, sons of Lone Wolf, the Medicine Man. The rival lovers plead for the hand of Star Eyes. She favors Deer Foot, but succeeds in bringing the two young braves before her father that he may decide which shall marry her. The wise old chief has a kindly feeling for both the would-be sons-in-law, and puts them to a fair test to win his daughter. He sends both to "Old Witch Mountain," a towering cliff some distance from the village, with the promise that the one first to return with a deer shall have the hand of Star Eyes. Deer Foot is the first to kill a deer. Dark Cloud, realizing that he has lost, kills his brother and starts back to the village with the deer. Fa-No-Ma, an old witch has been a witness of the crime. She curses Dark Cloud, and tells him that the spirit of his brother shall ever haunt him. Dark Cloud disregards the warning of the old witch and stops to drink. The spirit of his brother meets him at the brink of the spring and prevents him. He reaches the village with the deer, and claims his prize. Star Eyes, in the meantime, has gone to the brook, where she sees a vision of Deer Foot entering with the deer. She hurries to the village, but finds Dark Cloud waiting to claim her. She resents her father's decision and tries to escape. She is captured and compelled to return to Dark Cloud.

Before the marriage, Dark Cloud goes in search of game and skins for a dowry. He raises his rifle to shoot a bear. It is immediately transformed into the spirit of his brother. After a similar experience with a wolf, a deer and a buffalo, he returns disheartened to the village, where he meets a rival chief, Eagle Eye, into whose body the spirit of his brother has entered. The two braves fight almost to the death. Dark Cloud's friends arrive in time to drive away the powerful Eagle Eye. Eagle Eye returns to his own tribe and incites them to attack Big Moon's people. A bloody battle takes place, in which Big Moon is killed. Star Eyes is captured by Eagle Eye. Then Dark Cloud escapes, although seriously wounded. Some time later, when in the woods, Dark Cloud meets Star Eyes and Eagle Eye. They have a papoose with them and seem happy. All Dark Cloud's hatred comes to the surface. He watches for an opportunity to kill Star Eye, and finally does kill her. Eagle Eye, while bending over the body of Star Eyes, is attacked by Dark Cloud and killed.

While Dark Cloud is exulting over his victory, the spirit of his brother arises from the body of Eagle Eye and embraces the spirit of Star Eyes. Dark Cloud becomes horror-stricken and is transformed into an immense rock. Ever after this rock bears the name of the "Phantom Rock."

REX.

AS THE WIND BLOWS (Sept. 27).—Anna Little is a stenographer in the office of William Wharton, a broker, who also employs her old grandfather as a clerk. The grandfather has an addiction to drink. Anna is secretly engaged to Tom Mason, a young civil engineer, who is at present engaged in the building of a railroad out West. Wharton does not know of this engagement, and one day he finds the old grandfather stealing money from his desk. The grandfather, thinking Wharton will send him to prison, appeals to the granddaughter to save him, and Wharton in a moment of weakness, thinking that he could make the girl love him, lets the old man think that he will send him to jail unless Anna will marry him. A vision of the poor, wrinkled old face behind the bars is too much for Anna and she consents.

Wharton, after they are married, notices that his wife is distant to him, but does not press his love, as he thinks to win her with kindness and consideration. He is unsuccessful, however, and Anna constantly thinks of Tom, to whom she has returned her tiny engagement ring with a brief note, saying that the engagement is off. She is seated in the garden of her home when Wharton slips up behind her and clasps a string of pearls around her neck. She pulls them from her violently and casts them on the ground, but after Wharton leaves she gathers them up. While seated in her sitting-room, gazing at the picture of Tom in his grading camp, Wharton suddenly enters and discovers that his wife loves another and he immediately decides to give her a chance to free herself. He makes a bargain with a notorious actress to play the part with him, and a scandal about the two is soon started.

Tom, in the interim, has returned to the city, successful, and is an onlooker at the trials and tribulations that confront his former sweetheart. Wharton even pretends drunkenness to shock his wife, and when she objects, he asks her why she doesn't get a divorce if she doesn't like it. Wharton, in order to fully disgust his wife, takes the actress to his own home and announces to his horror-stricken wife that the girl has come to visit them. The shock of the visit is too much for Anna, and she succumbs to the nervous breakdown. The housekeeper calls at the club in order to find the husband, but no one is there except Tom, who, after searching for Wharton, goes to the Wharton home. He sits up all night with his former sweetheart and keeps her delirium down. Wharton returns the next day, but as soon as he enters his wife's presence she raves again. In a while her health improves and Wharton decides to go away forever, so he leaves a note telling her the truth about his actions and that she may be happy with the man she loves. She awakens and finds the note, but in the interim the old grandfather, who has drunk himself to semi-consciousness, sets fire to his room. Wharton, who has just left the house, returns, rescues the old man and also carries his wife into the garden. She tugs feebly at a string around her neck and suspended thereto, in a little bag, is a string of broken pearls. Wharton then realizes that his wife loves him and him alone, and he takes her to his arms, while Tom, renouncing his hope, steals away.

A LAW UNTO HERSELF (Two Parts Oct. 8).—Andrea Dubois is preparing for her marriage. The hours she spends over her trousseau are long and pleasant. Edmond Rodger, her fiance, she esteems and honors as a gentleman. Rodgers was highly respected by all his friends; yet underneath there ran a streak of yellow. Rodger had wilfully coveted and realized the love of Elsie Levine, only to betray his love. In a touching scene Elsie searches out Rodger, confesses her condition, and urges him to fulfill his promise in marriage. Rodger responds by explaining his coming marriage to Andrea. Elsie returns home to confess the whole affair to her brother, Rupert. Rupert determines to avenge his sister's wrong.

Departing from the house he makes his way to the club and searches out the guilty man. He meets him in the private ante-room. The curtains are closed, a revolver drawn, there is a report—and when the club members rush in, Rodger lies dead. Rupert has escaped. The news is carried to Rodger's fiancee. It is at this time that she makes the oath of vengeance, which she endeavors for five years to fulfill. The first reel closes with the scene at the bank of the river. Elsie, the betrayed little girl, pauses by the shore. She drops her hat and gazes into the water as the picture fades.

At the opening of the second reel Rupert Levine, under the assumed name of Rupert Livingston, is met as an attache of a foreign legation. For five years he has managed to evade punishment for the killing of his sister's betrayer. About this time he receives an invitation to a reception given in honor of the French Ambassador. Here we are taken into the home of Andrea. We are shown a page from her diary, which reads, "Five years of search has revealed no trace of Edmond's assassin, but I will find him and hound him to his death." The night of the reception arrives and with it fate steps in and takes a hand. We are in a beautiful ballroom. Andrea is there. The host at her side presents her to Rupert, and as the hands clasp and the eyes meet, there is a glance of mutual attraction. The evening is hardly past before these two people, unaware of each other's identity, have experienced the quickening of love. Other meetings follow, and time finds love in the heart of Andrea for Rupert. It is at the time she realizes this that Rupert's identity is revealed to her. The shock of discovery plays havoc with her resolutions, and yet, there is her oath. She knows nothing outside of the fact that Rodger was killed by Rupert, and in turn, she plans an awful revenge. This is to poison herself, under conditions which would point to Rupert as being her murderer. With the sense ever present that something is all wrong, she carries this plan into execution, except for the quick wit of her maid, who substitutes a bottle of water for the poison.

When Rupert explains to her that she has sacrificed herself for the man who was untrue to her, and caused his sister's death, she was glad that it had happened as it did Our story ends with Andrea believing in a higher power than her own, looking forward to happier days with the man who was a man in word and deed.

GOLD SEAL.

THE TREY O' HEARTS (No. 10), STEEL RIBBONS (Two Parts—Sept. 6).—When the characters were left in the last installment of the "Trey o' Hearts" Trine's special was vanishing around the bend in the track. At the opening of the present installment Alan's light engine comes to a standstill in the Kansas prairie. The fireman and engineer balk at either going ahead or returning, as it is a single track section. Judith stands aside, outwardly indifferent, inwardly furious, now that Rose, her sister, is of the company Alan attempts to

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

Read What Josiah Pearce & Sons Say About Gentlemen:
Our Goods
Now that you have completed equipment in our new theatres here in New Orleans, and Houston, Texas, we want to take this means of expressing to you our appreciation of the manner in which we have done business with you, also as to the character of your goods. You have, without exception, filled our orders just as promptly as we could ever expect and probably quicker than we had anticipated, and the fact of your having supplied us with brass frames and various other equipment in our fifteen theatres, is evidence that we are pleased with your goods, for they are the most attractive, durable and practical that we have as yet found.
We wish you good luck in the prosecution of your work
Yours very truly JOSIAH PEARCE & SONS,
New Orleans, La.,
J E PEARCE

See the Name "NEWMAN" on all Frames
The Guarantee of Satisfaction.
Write for New 1914 Catalog
THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
NEW YORK 101 4th Ave. CINCINNATI 717 Sycamore St. CHICAGO 108 W. Lake St.
Established 1882.

SCENARIOS CRITICISED
By
MARY LOUISE FARLEY
Photoplaywright
607 West 136th Street, New York
In writing for particulars enclose stamps.

PRINTING and DEVELOPING FILM TITLES
Give us a trial. All work guaranteed.
Prompt service. Prices right.
If there is any event that you want photographed, we can furnish expert camera men.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE CO.
Phone, Central 2853, 5 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Floral Decorations For Theatre, Stage and Parades
Best selections from the markets of Europe and America
Botanical Decorating Co.
594 So. 5th Ave. CHICAGO
Prices the lowest ever offered for reliable goods

ALUMINOTYPES SAVE YOU MONEY
MADE FROM COARSE SCREEN NEWSPAPER HALFTONES JUST THE SAME AS ELECTROTYPES.
THE STANDARD ENGRAVING CO., INC. PHOTO-ENGRAVERS DESIGNERS ELECTROTYPERS
WM. HUFFMAN, Pres
143-145 WEST 40th STREET NEW YORK

bribe the engine crew—there is an argument followed by blows. When the fight is finished the engineer is a prisoner and the fireman lies at the side of the engine, insensible.

During this time, Marrophat, aboard Trine's special, is having no success in persuading the frightened crew to back up. By force he overcomes the crew and signals to back up. The special is upon Alan's party before they realize it. Jumping from the train Trine's men open fire; a furious gun fight results. Taking advantage of the natural features of the land, each party describes a circle; Alan and Rose reach the special. Barcus and Judith come up on the other side. One of the guards vainly attempts to keep them off. The brakeman, who has escaped, gives the signal and the special, now carrying Alan's party, also Trine, is again westbound at top speed. Trine's men, in the lone engine, give chase.

In the course of the day's run hell brews on the special. Alan, introduced to Trine, mocks him and orders him locked in the drawing room. Judith is the only one willing to attend her father. Through her jealousy for her sister, Rose, Judith is finally reconciled to her father. Judith at first, however, refuses to renew her vow of vengeance, but on observing Alan embracing Rose, she flies into a rage and is only prevented from hurling Rose from the train by Barcus. Later, Judith promises her father to carry out her vow of vengeance.

Alan, Rose and Barcus suspect and plan to lose Judith and Trine. The opportunity comes when the special is side-tracked at a water tank in New Mexico. The engine crew mutinies, uncouples the engine and leaves the Pullman stalled. Alan, knowing that Marrophat must be in pursuit, secures a hand-car. On this the three start off down the track. Later, a freight train passes and Judith, disguised as a man, jumps on with her father's blessing. Shortly after Marrophat in the lone engine discovers Trine's stalled pullman, couples it on and takes up the pursuit. The special passes the freight train on a siding and soon comes within sight of the hand-car. There ensues a wild dash through mountainous country—the hand-car flying like the wind on down grades and managing for a time to keep the lead because of curves. Coming to a spur, Alan throws the switch, Trine's special is shunted off and runs some miles before the trick is suspected.

This enables the freight to pass. When it overtakes the hand-car, Alan, Rose and Barcus flag it and climb aboard. Judith, secreted in the box-car, covertly watches this. As the freight starts on Judith jumps out and swings up between the caboose and the next car forward. Some miles farther on, the special, having backed up on the main track, again comes into view of the freight. Judith, standing on the top of the box-car, waves a signal. As the freight crosses a trestle, she climbs down and uncouples the caboose containing Alan's party. Startled to find the caboose blocking the trestle, the engineer of the special whistles and applies the breaks. But Marrophat jams a gun into the pit of his stomach and himself opens the throttle wide. Warned by the whistle of the danger Alan and Barcus pile out and help Rose down to the trestle. They lack time to make solid earth before the collision, so drop between the ties and hang by their arms. The picture fades out as Alan and Barcus climb back to the trestle and help Rose up.

VICTOR.

ROME (Sept. 21).—We have views of the Vatican, the home of the Pope and administrative headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church, St. Peter's Cathedral, the greatest church of them all; scenes of the Piazza Square, the site of Nero's Gardens, where that tyrant put thousands of Christians to death and the River Tiber, whence one can see the dome of St. Peter's and the Castle St. Angelo. We also see views of the arrival of travelers and their departure from hotels; sidewalk throngs on the Via del Corso, discussing war; Italian Infantry drilling on that most ancient of military roads, Appian Way, while traffic proceeds on the famous thoroughfare, which was built 2,226 years ago; the Colosseum, dedicated A. D. 80, by Titus, in a festival of 100 days, during which 9,000 animals were killed and 3,000 gladiators battled to the death. In this arena thousands of martyrs knelt while the crowds shouted "The Christians to the lions." Again, we have scenes of the modern Roman stadium, with Italians celebrating the Roman birthday, while the school children entertain. In these we have 7,500 spectators applauding these newer gladiators.

DISILLUSIONED (Oct. 5).—Jack Vernon, a successful attorney at law, after a particularly trying day with his clients, some of whom want divorces, and some of whom want immunity from law crimes they have committed, sits back in his chair and dreams of his childhood home. He sees himself as a boy, with his sweetheart of school days, and compares the little simple village with the city. After his dream, he makes a decision to give up his practice and go back to the village and lead a simple life with the God-fearing friends. He writes his mother to this effect, telling her he is tired of the city and its ways.

In the meantime, his schoolday sweetheart, Velma Benning, has been betrayed by Judge Cross's son, Bill, who, afraid to oppose his father's wishes, has refused to marry Velma. Three months later, Jack, having settled his affairs in the city, arrives at his boyhood home. Velma, convalescent in the hospital, asks for her baby, and is told that it is dead. Jack is traveling around the town, discovers there is quite a bit more sin there than he imagines.

Velma, coming home, is turned out by her father, and forced to seek employment in the small hotel; there Jack meets her, and upon speaking to her for the first time, is informed by Bill Cross of his affair with Velma. He is knocked down for his trouble. At church the next Sunday, Jack asks her to sit with him during service. Eventually Jack proposes to Velma and is accepted. He insists upon an immediate marriage—then tells his mother and now wife to pack their things, that he is going to take them both to the city, where people at least mind their own affairs.

THE MAN WHO WAS NEVER KISSED (Two Parts—Oct. 9).—Horace Plato, an employer, without fully realizing it, is in love with Florence Lloyd, his stenographer, and she in her turn loves him, yet she realizes that the winning of him in the way she desires will be a delicate and difficult matter. To enliven this situation, Charlie Denton, another wealthy young man, is also in love with Florence and urges his suit with persistency. Plato awakens to the danger in young Denton's suit, becomes jealous and determines upon a quixotic measure. He informs his stenographer that she must marry him immediately, explaining the while that they can occupy different apartments in his home and that they will demonstrate to the world at large that Plantonic love can be brought to a practical issue.

Florence, believing that once married to him she can win him over in a practical way, agrees. They are married. In the scenes that follow, with Plato endeavoring to make proselytes of his friends and servants and his pretty young wife exercising all her charms to inveigle him away from the doctrines of Plato, we have some of the most amusing and cleverly wrought situations in the play. His friends pretend conversion to escape argument and the servants to continue in their position. Shortly following the marriage, Horace and his wife receive an invitation to a house party at a hunting lodge in the mountains and social obligations demand that they accept it. They arrive at the lodge to be followed by numerous other guests. Before night comes on Horace is threatened with the necessity of occupying the same room with his wife. He is horrified, frightened and angry. He rushes out of the house, preferring to spend the night on the lawn rather than break his ideals. Florence is discouraged. It seems the last straw in the camel's back, and with the hope of winning her husband gone, she is on the verge of eloping with Denton. Horace learns of this and the knowledge brings a conflict of emotions never before experienced by the foolish young benedict. In the end he decided that anything is better than the loss of his wife, and when Florence at the last moment refuses to abide by the elopment plan and returns, he takes her to his arms with just the thoughts and feelings of a normal man over-riding all else. The conversion is complete. Platonic love is relegated to the scrap heap so far as this lineal descendant of the philosopher is concerned.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY (No. 135—Sept. 23).—Canadians off to War.—Great crowds gather at railroad station to give troops rousing send-off as they leave for the front—Saskatchewan, Canada.

French Colored Troops Honored.—President Poincare presents flag to colored regiment upon their departure—Paris, France.

Troops off to Front.—The rumble of heavy artillery mingles with the rattling of the caissons as they pass through Finsbury Square—London, England.

War Bulletins in Paris.—Immense gathering at bulletin boards to read latest reports from the front—France.

Boy Scouts Aid Allies.—First regiment of young soldiers whose services as Home Guards were offered by Sir Baden-Powell to His Majesty King George—London, England.

Cadets Honored.—King George presents war colors to battalion of Gentlemen Cadets who pass before His Majesty in grand review—Camberly, Aldershot, England.

Mexico's New Dictator.—General Carranza and his staff depart for Mexico City amid celebrations given in their honor—Durango, Mexico.

New Fleet Commander.—Guns boom as Admiral Fletcher takes command of Atlantic Fleet from Admiral Badger on board the flagship "Wyoming"—Brooklyn Navy Yard, N. Y. Subtitle, from left to right: Admirals Badger and Fletcher.

Publicity

is necessary

That means be up to date. Get an

Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register

Used and endorsed by thousands. It means everything to you to have proper equipment

Some new patrons

Apollo Theatre, New York
Savoy Theatre, New York
Miracle Theatre, New York
Casino Theatre, New York
Circle Theatre, New York
Herald Square Theatre, New York
Columbia Theatre, Detroit
Pasadena Theatre, Detroit
Reel Theatre, Cleveland
Nemo Theatre, Cleveland
Crown Theatre, Cleveland
Family Theatre, Cleveland
Regent Theatre, Pittsburgh
Grand Theatre, Altoona
Heuck's Opera House, Cincinnati
Coliseum Theatre, Pittsburgh
New Empire Theatre, Connellsville
Grand Theatre, Donora
Penn Theatre, Uniontown
Netzer & Stein, Pittsburgh
Winner Theatre, Pittsburgh
Lyric Theatre, McKees Rocks
Janice Theatre, Flushing, L. I.
Lyric Theatre, Dayton

Don't delay. Write for booklet to

Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Register Co.

1476 Broadway, New York

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has the CIRCULATION and its CIRCULATION PRODUCES RESULTS

LONG DISTANCE PHONES { RANDOLPH 2940 / RANDOLPH 2941 / RANDOLPH 2942 }

CABLE ADDRESS STEREOKINET

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY

GEORGE KLEINE, Pres.

INCORPORATED 1897

166 NORTH STATE STREET, CHICAGO

MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION ENGINEERS

EXCLUSIVE WHOLESALERS AND RETAILERS OF
EVERYTHING PERTAINING TO THE COMPLETE EQUIPPING OF MOTION PICTURE THEATRES
DISTRIBUTORS OF EVERY STANDARD MAKE OF MOTION PICTURE PROJECTORS

September 5,1914.

Mr. Jas. S. McQuade,
c/o Moving Picture World,
64 W. Randolph St.,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. McQuade:-

In your issue of August 8th, we carried a page advertisement, featuring our catalogue of Motion Picture Apparatus And Theatre Supplies. We repeated this in four subsequent issues with inquiries pouring in at the rate of 500 per week.

Such returns from a publication of 100,000 circulation would be considered very fair; from a trade paper they are extraordinary. Surely, they form a strong testimonial not only to the circulation of The World but the "readibility" of its columns as well.

Checking up our inquiries, we find a great majority from the "worth while" men of the trade, which in itself is an item of much importance in judging the returns of a campaign of this character.

We are delighted with our returns thus far and believe you will be pleased to hear of it.

Very truly yours,

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY.

Per G. O. Kleine

This is one of the Best we ever received but we have many more almost as good.

WHAT MORE NEED WE SAY?

Youthful Water Nymphs.—Four-year-old mermaid, youngest swimmer and diver in the United States, gives exhibition of skill—College Point, L. I. Sub-titles, An 8-year-old girl diver—Commodore Alfred Brown, champion long-distance swimmer of the of the world.

Harvard's Football Champions.—Strenuous training is given team to get them in highest order of development for this year's games—Cambridge, Mass.

Water Walking. — Inventor demonstrates latest mode of locomotion—Boston, Mass.

Spectacular Night Fire.—The destroying by flames of Insulated Wire Works causes pillar of fire to rise which lights up city for miles—Brooklyn, N. Y.

Chinese Students Arrive.—Chosen by competitive English examinations in Pekin ten Chinese girls the first to be educated from the $14,000,000 Boxer indemnity fund remitted by United States to China in 1908—New York City.

National Anthem Centennial Celebration.—Entire nation pays homage to Old Glory to commemorate writing "The Star-Spangled Banner"—Baltimore, Md. Sub-titles, 7,000 children form human flag—Secretary of State William J. Bryan makes patriotic speech.

Cartoons by the world famous caricaturist, Hy Mayer, of Puck.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.

MAJESTIC.

OUT OF THE AIR (Two Parts—Oct. 4).—The fireman is in love with his engineer's daughter and is accepted by her in his proposal of marriage. While the engineer is absent a tube blows out of the engine and the fireman quits his post and crouches beside the engine while the steam escapes. The engineer, coming up, jumps aboard, shuts off the steam and is painfully burned. For the first time he sees the fireman in his cowardly situation and berates him as a man unworthy a place in the cab. The engineer succeeds in having the fireman discharged for quitting his post.

The fireman visits the daughter with his troubles, but on his departure the arriving father explains the circumstances of the fireman's dismissal and advises the daughter to have nothing to do with a coward. Wandering aimlessly down the tracks the fireman comes to an aviator working on an aeroplane, and, making application, secures a job as mechanician.

The engineer's daughter and her little sister are playing about the railroad tracks chasing a dog when the former's foot is caught in a frog, and at first unsuspecting of their danger they play at releasing it. Down the line the father is aboard about to start out with a new fireman when the throttle is thrown open, and, jumping off with a spurt, the engine tosses the two into the ditch and races away.

Having no success in releasing the foot, the girls have become anxious and discover that a train is soon due. The little one runs to the nearby station and finding no one there makes use of her knowledge of telegraphy to wire for help to the adjoining station. The discharged fireman happens to be passing and catches the message. They tell him the particulars at the station and he races to the aeroplane and flies away toward the rescue.

A duel of speed ensues between the aeroplane and the runaway engine bearing down on the girl, who now fully realizes her danger. When the aeroplane finally catches the engine, the ex-fireman slides down a rope and swings into the cab, shuts off the engine and saves the girl. The father arrives later with others and extends his apologies and complete forgiveness of the man he had wrongfully branded a coward.

THE UNPAINTED PORTRAIT (Oct. 6).—Londell, a young artist, marries Marion Page, of whom he has painted a beautiful portrait. A year later, wearied of married bliss, he uses a passage abroad which has been given up by a friend of his, in order to study in Paris. Marion, realizing that he is ready to sacrifice both herself and her unborn baby to his art, goes home to her people, where she gives her life for the child. His daughter Claudia is grown to young womanhood when Londell returns, famous. Her wealthy guardian engages him to paint her portrait. He comes to confide in the gentle girl who arouses his deeper affections, and as she listens to his story, Claudia recognizes her own father, of whose career she has not been left ignorant. The next day, she dresses in the old-fashioned gown in which Londell first painted Marion, and slashing her own likeness on the easel, places the picture of her mother over it. When Londell comes, his slumbering conscience suffers a terrible awakening.

SANDS OF FATE (Two Parts—Oct. 11).—Arthur Lee, a society man, is in love with Helen Robinson, also of society, and James Holden, a wealthy mine owner from the West also is in the lists for her favor. At her father's country place, Lee is unhappy because of her popularity but is appeased when she finally accepts his proposal and ring. Holden interrupts and claims a moment's talk. Telling Lee to await her in a favorite nook of the verandah, she goes with Holden while Lee strolls in the garden to await her. After proposing, Holden leaves her and hastens to the nook, seating himself with his back to the French windows. Lee is near by in the garden finishing his smoke. He sees Holden in his chair, by the light of the latter's cigarette, and then sees Helen come from the lighted baalroom approach the chair and throw her arms about Holden, sit in his lap and kiss him. Lee turns away in despair and anger and leaves the grounds.

Holden passes Lee and realizes why Lee looks at him with anger, but deliberately remains silent. Lee leaves the house without seeing Helen again. The latter looks in vain for him and after some days, finally believes that Lee has left her and later accepts the attentions of Holden, and finally marries him. Lee goes West, and a year or so later is prospecting in the desert country. Holden and Helen are not particularly happy either, Helen because she still loves Lee and Holden because he knows he has won her under false pretenses and cannot win her love.

Some time later, Holden and his wife take a trip West to look over Holden's mining properties, which are not far from the desert country wherein Lee has been prospecting. After a while Lee returns to the mining town where Holden has his headquarters, and meets Helen for the first time since he left her. His anger against Holden knows no bounds when he has told Helen why he left without a word, and Helen, too, recriminates her husband, who admits the charge and is only sorry that it had not been a success, as he has not yet won her affection. He urges that he only kept quiet because he loved her but she despises him, while Lee, in desperation, plans revenge. He learns that Holden plans a ride across the desert alone to look over some other properties, and hires a Mexican to guide him on the wrong trail that leads to a wide, waterless waste, wherein Holden will probably die of thirst. The Mexican is to desert him by night.

The plan works but Helen, averse to being left alone, goes too, and Lee only finds it out when he calls to see her and finds she has accompanied her husband. He follows to rescue them, with water and food, and finds them still wandering, but safe. He, knowing the desert country, undertakes to guide them safely out, although it is a long way to go. With what water Holden has left and Lee's supply, there is just barely enough to get them safely across the desert. Realizing this, and also that he stands in the way of Lee and Helen's happiness, Holden pours some of his water into the sand, leaving just enough to take Lee and Helen out of the desert.

Leaving a note, telling what he has done and a brief will in Helen's favor, he leaves the camp in the night and wanders back over the trail into the desert again and by morning is far away. Lee and Helen find him gone in the morning and his note explaining his sacrifice. Their scarcity of water precludes their sacrificing themselves to find Holden again, and it would be useless anyway, so Lee and Helen find their way back to civilization alone and Holden's death is reported. A searching party find Holden's body, and Helen is free to marry Lee.

KAY BEE.

ONE OF THE DISCARD (Two Parts—Oct. 2).—Jack Denning, "The Man from the East," tiring of his dance hall queen, Flora, determines to return to his wife, when he receives a letter from an attorney telling him he is heir to a fortune. Flora is broken hearted, for she had given up her dance hall life to be with Jack. She asks for her John back again and determines to get even by fleecing every man she meets. Jack has returned to his wife in the east and through bad speculation loses his fortune. In the hope of getting another stake, Jack returns to the gold fields, where, after five years of hard work, he strikes it rich. He drops into the dance hall for a farewell drink before returning home, tells of his good fortune and is promptly singled out by the proprietor as an "easy mark." They proceed to get Jack stupidly drunk and send for Flora. His brain numbed by the liquor, Jack fails to recognize Flora, who, in turn, is deceived by his beard. While searching Jack, Flora finds a letter from his wife, telling him how glad she and the baby boy will be to have him back. The old love comes to Flora, she returns the money, puts Jack into a rig, drives him to the station and sends him home to his wife and baby.

KOMIC.

THE MILLION DOLLAR BRIDE (Oct. 4).—Henry is a high-class crook. He will stop at nothing. One day, walking through the park, he sees a newsboy. He knocks the boy down, confiscates his papers, and sits down on a bench to read. Presently, the following meets his eye: "Heiress Is Willed Another Fortune. Ethel Van Rocks to Get $1,000,000 the Day She Chooses Husband."

This is right in Henry's line, and he swears that Ethel Van Rocks shall be his. He steals a bouquet and starts for the heiress' mansion, where he is shown into the parlor and told to wait. When Miss Van Rocks makes her appearance, Henry suffers a shock. She is carried in the arms of her maid—and she is just eighteen months old. Nothing daunted, however, Henry fells the maid and escapes with Ethel. Disguising her in a long linen duster, a hat and a veil, he starts for the house of a minister of his acquaintance who is deaf and almost blind. The police, however, are now on the tracks of the kidnapper. Ethel drops her rattle, by which she is traced to the parsonage. There she is rescued and Henry is hauled off to jail.

AMERICAN.

A MODERN RIP VAN WINKLE (Two Parts Sept. 28).—An old man, serving a life term in a penitentiary, on account of good behavior has his sentence commuted. He is given his freedom, and furnished with a suit of clothes, five dollars in his pocket and a ticket to his native town, is sent back to the scenes of

Learn the Facts About the Late Model
Motiograph

Its Rock Steady and Flickerless Pictures are its pronounced features.

All parts are made in its own factory and the greatest of care is given each and every part, and the most vital parts are ground and hardened to insure accuracy and long life with small up-keep.

For sharp, bright pictures on a long throw, you cannot beat the MOTIOGRAPH.

These are MOTIOGRAPH FACTS. Think them over—it's to your benefit.

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., 564-572 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office, 21 E. 14th St., New York Western Office, 833 Market St., San Francisco

COSMOS FEATURES

"MADE IN AMERICA"

SEMI-MONTHLY PRODUCTIONS

Starting on October 15th

BEULAH POYNTER

In Her Own Successful Drama

LENA RIVERS

In Five Parts

A Play that has had over THREE THOUSAND performances.

By Public Demand MISS POYNTER played SEVENTEEN Performances in one week in St. Louis.

A Play that holds the Matinee record of the GREAT NORTHERN THEATRE OF CHICAGO.

Dramatic Critics throughout America acclaim Miss Poynter a star of the First Magnitude.

RESPONSIBLE STATE RIGHT BUYERS

WHO WANT TO SECURE PHOTOPLAYS OF UNUSUAL MERIT WILL DO WELL TO COMMUNICATE WITH US AT ONCE TO SECURE CONTRACTS FOR THEIR TERRITORY.

COSMOS FEATURE FILM CORPORATION

126-130 W. 46th Street, New York

twenty-five years before. The small place where he was brought up has become a thriving city. He sees for the first time an electric car, automobiles and locomotives. All his old friends are gone. Bewildered and helpless, he goes back to the prison and begs to be taken in. A home on a farm is found for him where he ends his days in peace.

BRONCHO.

THE BOSS OF THE EIGHTH (Two Parts—Oct. 7).—"Shorty" Cline collects graft from saloons and gambling resorts in the tenderloin for the political boss of the eighth ward, "Big Steve" Cassidy. On one occasion he rescues Molly Norton's stolen purse from "Buck" Hogan, leader of an East Side gang, thus incurring the gangster's enmity. When Cline leaves Cassidy's employ, determined to live honestly in the hope of some day winning Molly for his wife, Hogan and Cassidy frame up a plot and manage to get Cline sentenced to prison for three years. During a mutiny among the convicts, he saves the life of one of the prison guards, for which he is reprieved. He returns to New York. Cassidy soon after succumbs to heart disease, and "Shorty" and Molly are married.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 91 (Sept. 24). - Latest pictures from the seat of war. Australian troopers play war game. Japanese cruiser leaves Pacific waters for service off Kiao-Chau. The dreaded Turcos. French Minister of War Millerand inspects troops in Algeria. Holiday crowds make merry at Margate despite the war. Society women and royalty make supplies for the Red Cross. "Grenadier Guards," Major Trotter in command, leave London for the Continent. English artillery off for service at the front. French troops leave Paris for the German frontier. Governor Glynn attends State Fair at Syracuse, N. Y. Plainfield, N. J., holds first annual civic parade. New York City officials inspect new markets which were opened to lower war prices on food. National Star Spangled Banner Centennial is celebrated at Baltimore, Md.

And the Star Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave

DOMINO.

THE GAMEKEEPER'S DAUGHTER (Two Parts—Oct. 1).—The King's gamekeeper, unaware that the King has taken up his abode in the Hunting Lodge, goes on his daily rounds of the estate, leaving his daughter, Mary, alone at the gamekeeper's lodge. The King becomes lost from his captain, Coberly, and the huntsman. A storm comes and the King takes refuge in the gamekeeper's lodge. The gamekeeper returns to his lodge, finds his daughter in a struggle with the King and, not recognizing him, shoots. The gamekeeper is arrested and his daughter taken for the King's pleasure. Coberly, who admires the girl, frees her and takes her to his cottage to wait for him until he can free her father. The King's Jester follows Coberly and reports to the King that the girl has escaped. The King orders his men to go to the cottage and capture the girl, and, if necessary, kill her. The King's daughter, of whom he is very fond, is thrown from a runaway horse and takes refuge in the Coberly cottage after Mary has been taken to a ship leaving for the colonies. The two thugs who the King has hired to capture Mary, not knowing the Princess, captures her and kills her, taking her body in a sack to the King. The King, crazed with grief at the sight of his dead child, kills the Jester, thinking he has played him false. Coberly has freed Mary's father and the three make their escape to the colonies.

THE WHISKEY RUNNERS (Two Parts—Oct. 8.—Bill Jenks and his wife secretly violate the law by selling whiskey to the Indians, Joe Elk, one of Bill's spies and accomplices, warns him that the marshal's posse is on its way to arrest him, and Bill escapes, after hiding the liquor in a cave. Goldtooth divides the posse, and they trail Bill. The whiskey smuggler and Goldtooth meet, and a fierce fight ensues, in which the former knocks out his rival's gold tooth.

Three months later, Bill is joined by two other outlaws on the Texas-Oklahoma frontier. They plot to hold up the government paymaster on his quarterly trip to the Indian reservation. Their scheme leaks out, however, and the marshal surprises Bill and his gang. Bill is mortally wounded by Goldtooth, creeping home to his deserted cabin to die.

PRINCESS.

THE FINAL TEST (Sept. 25).—Jack Carr, a struggling young doctor, is in love with Mary Grey. She has become engaged to Jim Castle, a rich man, with a brutal streak in him, which, however, he has never displayed to Mary. Meanwhile, she meets Dr. Jack in connection with some charity case in which both are interested. She sees that most of his earnings go to help the sick among the poor, and admires him deeply. On the morning of her wedding day, Mary happens to see Castle strike down a woman. When she goes to her aid she finds Dr. Jack on the spot before her. Hailing a messanger boy, she sends back Castle's ring, and gives her promise to the man worthy of her love.

RELIANCE.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL, NO. 37 (Sept. 28).—Our Mutual Girl was face to face with the problem she had dreaded. On her breakfast tray lay a note from Mrs. Knickerbocker.

"Dear Margaret," it ran, "I am at Southampton for a few days. Before I return, you must make some arrangement about that little waif. I cannot let you keep the child. Indeed, you will have to choose between her and

"Your Auntie."

The first thing Margaret did was to indulge in a good cry. By the time she had eaten her dainty breakfast, she had an inspiration—she would motor up to Westchester and consult her friend, Edith. Edith and the family were going away in the morning on a month's trip. The house would be kept open, and why should not Margaret have the use of it? Then she could move Baby Lily there, and Lewis could turn nurse, and if Aunt Abbie could come on immediately from Maryland to act as chaperone—why, this would solve everything.

And so it was settled. Next day Our Mutual Girl shopped for Baby Lily and then took her to a photographer's. And there she, Aunt Sally and Edith's brother, Ned, who was in town and begged to help, spent an exciting three quarters of an hour. But perhaps you know what it means to get a baby's picture taken! Even after all three of Lily's devoted admirers had gone down on their hands and knees and "played bear," the photographer, who was one of the old-fashioned sort still employing the time-honored "little bird" trick, had great difficulty in catching Lily at her best.

Aunt Abbie came, and Margaret moved immediately to Edith's house. She was there only a day or two when one afternoon, as she was crossing the grounds, a mysterious woman appeared, thrusting a package into her hand, and then vanished as suddenly as she had come. By the note attached, Margaret learned that the stranger was Lily's mother. And the parcel contained an old-fashioned jewel, rare and valuable, which was her one legacy to her baby daughter.

Meanwhile, Our Mutual Girl's days passed blissfully. All was sweet content, with gentle Aunt Abbie, her beloved baby and faithful Lewis, in this beautiful country place. She had written to Mrs. Knickerbocker, telling her exactly how she had solved the dilemma, but had received no reply. Would this mean a break between them. For the first time in her life Margaret longed for independence. Why should she not keep her patrician aunt, who had been so good to her, for her friend always and yet persuade her to let her live her own life under the motherly protection of Aunt Abbie?

THE SHERIFF'S MASTER (Two Parts—Oct. 2).—Pete, the sheriff, is inflated with his own importance. But when his wife turns suffragette, he gets his deserts. To escape from her iron rule, he takes to his bed, feigning sickness. Miranda is aware of the ruse, and she and the doctor plot to punish the sheriff. He is forced to take the bitterest medicine imaginable and is gravely told that he has little hope for recovery. A friend of the sheriff's, who knows the joke from the doctor, comes to see Pete, who by this time really believes that he is frightfully ill. The friend tells him that his wife and the doctor are only bluffing him, and invites him to come and have a game of poker. The sheriff runs away to the saloon where he loses all his money, his pistols and his watch. Terrified at the thought of facing his wife, he persuades Red Steve, a notorious outlaw whom he meets, to exchange clothes with him and go home in his place.

Pete's wife falls upon the disguised outlaw and gives him a terrible beating. Then, when she discovers her mistake, she is overcome with horror lest the outlaw has killed her husband. She compels him to lead her to the spot where he last saw Pete. The latter has already enjoyed the situation from afar. He now lies down in the road and pretends to be half dead. Miranda beats the outlaw breathless, then, under her caresses, Pete slowly revives—never again to descend to such depths of masculine humiliation.

THE WIRELESS VOICE (Two parts—Oct. 3).—Hastings and his partner, Warren, on the perfection of their wireless telephone, go to John Manners, father of Hastings' sweetheart, for funds to finance the invention. Manners refuses aid and sends Sykes to break into the test station and make sketches of the machinery, meaning to steal the patent himself. Hastings, however, discovers Sykes at his work. After a fierce hand-to-hand combat the latter escapes with Manners in an automobile. Hastings contrives to get in touch with his partner by means of the new invention. He is stranded several miles away with a wireless telephone apparatus, on a road over which Manners and Sykes must pass. Warren succeeds in causing the arrest of the fugitives, and Manners, on his release, vows vengeance. He breaks into the test station and arranges a steel plate in such a way that whoever touches it will be electrocuted. Instead of Hastings, however, it is Mary, his daughter, who is first exposed to the danger. In his effort to turn off the current before it is too late, Manners, not knowing the right switch, tries them all. His own body deflects the current, bringing instant death.

THE BADGE OF OFFICE (Oct. 7).—The sheriff loses his office and a new sheriff steps in. The ex-sheriff now goes to the bad, drinking, etc., having no ambition. The toughs take advantage of his loss of ambition and heap indignities upon him and he makes no protests. He becomes acquainted with the new sheriff's little boy and they become fast friends.

One day a bad man seeks to kill the new sheriff and has him cornered. The new sheriff is unarmed and only a door stands between him and death. The little boy runs for the ex-sheriff, who comes to the rescue, but his courage and ambition being gone, he can put up no fight and the bad man brushes him contemptuously away.

The little boy now gives the ex-sheriff his father's badge with which he had been playing. The insignia of office brings back the lost courage and the ex-sheriff returns to the outlaw, and, with his old-time decision, overpowers and disarms him. The new sheriff makes his rescuer his deputy.

THE TARDY CANNON BALL (Two Parts—Oct. 10).—The agent on duty at the railway station in Dodd City is out of humor. He has just received a message that the Cannon Ball Express is two hours late, which necessitates his remaining on duty until the train leaves. A stranger enters, purchases a ticket and while waiting for the train, tries to strike up an acquaintance with the agent. The latter at first holds aloof, but when the stranger produces a flask and they have a drink, the agent thaws considerably, and the two are soon engaged in a game of casino.

The agent is a trifle excited over the late arrival of the train, but the stranger advises him not to become restless. The stranger then tells a story about two friends, Dink Gober and Floss Campbell, who started as sheep herders near Roswell, New Mexico. Dink and Floss were the best of friends. When they started in business they were very poor, but, by hard word and the practice of economy, they began to prosper. When the price of mutton went soaring, they became fairly well-to-do. The partners lived together, asking no other comradeship. If the partners ever did any cheating, they combined their efforts to cheat someone else and were always fair in their dealings to each other. As a memento of their friendship Floss gave Dink a plugged quarter as a keepsake and Dink presented his partner with a plugged nickel.

As fortune smiled on the partners, Dink became somewhat fastidious. He meets Jess, the pretty daughter of a neighboring rancher, who has recently moved into the district, and falls in love with her. He makes several visits to Jess' home, during which time he tells his partner that he is away on important business. Dink finally confides to his partner in regard to his love affair and Floss exerts himself to help Dink. Dink and Jess are married and, upon returning to the ranch, they find that the house had been carefully cleaned by Floss. The couple live at the ranch house and Floss moves to a nearby cabin, but takes his meals with Dink and his bride.

Jess at first is happy, but later becomes restless. Dink spends his time in drinking and attending his sheep. Dink becomes irritable, and one day returns home to find his wife missing. Floss is also missing. The plugged nickel that Dink had given Floss is lying on the table with

TO OUR ADVERTISERS: Our aim has ever been to give full value to all subscribers and advertisers. Kindly Refer to Page 101 in This Issue

At Liberty--HUGH HOFFMAN--Ad Shark
CARTOONIST AND MOTION PICTURE JOURNALIST

ENGAGEMENT SOLICITED AS MANAGER OF PUBLICITY WITH RESPONSIBLE MOTION PICTURE COMPANY

ADDRESS CARE MOVING PICTURE WORLD—NEW YORK

a note from Jess stating that she had left him. He destroys his supply of whiskey, sells his property and starts to hunt for his wife and bring her back. His funds are exhausted in his search and he works at various odd jobs to earn a living, but he determines to shoot Floss at sight. Dink meets a widow at a church where he drops in casually, because he has no other place to go. He becomes very friendly with the widow and soon begins to feel his enmity against Floss leaving him. She laughs at him when she sees his six-shooter and Dink feels foolish. He decides to follow one more clue in search for his former partner, however.

The stranger at this point tells the nervous appearing agent that Dink had found Jessie and learned that she had secured a divorce from Dink, married Floss and appeared to be very happy with her two children. The Cannon Ball Express is heard coming and the agent prepares to go outside the station. The stranger drops some coins on the floor of the station and, in picking them up, he fails to see a plugged quarter lying in one of the floor cracks. The agent returns it to him, however. The stranger gets on the Cannon Ball and, as it pulls out, he takes a plugged nickel from his pocket and hands it to the agent with the statement: "Here is your nickel, Floss."

BEAUTY.

CAUGHT IN A TIGHT PINCH (Sept. 22).—Henry and Sam are rivals for the hand of Bessie. The former invites her to go with him to a dance only to find that already she has promised to accompany Sam to the party. On the evening of the affair, Henry borrows some dancing shoes. They turn out to be too small, but as the stores are closed, he must either wear them or relinquish Bessie entirely to his rival. At the party he conceals his discomfort, and plucks up courage to ask Bessie to dance. But his shoes cause him such unspeakable agony that he is forced to retire. He takes himself out in the back yard to nurse his feet—and his troubles. Meanwhile, Sam steps on his partners' foot. She escapes, indignant and tearful, to the back yard, where she finds Henry, similarly afflicted. They console one another, and Henry pops the question. When Sam appears upon the scene, he finds he has lost out with Bessie forever.

FEATURE FILM STORIES

ECLECTIC.

THE PERILS OF PAULINE (Thirteenth Episode).—Three separate times in this episode has Pauline a narrow escape from death through the machinations of Owen. Some one sends the girl a magnificent basket of flowers and she is about to plunge her face into them to inhale their odor, when Harry sees a movement in the basket and strikes it from her hand just in time to save her from being bitten by an angry rattlesnake.

The very next day Pauline buys a race horse and is persuaded by Owen to ride it in a steeplechase. Owen's drugs the horse—it falls while flying along in the race and Pauline has another miraculous escape.

When she has recovered from the shock she and Harry leave for a house party at the McCallans in the Adirondacks. Owen's orders the gypsy chief to follow them. Pauline and Harry are individually enticed away from the rest of the party and are set upon by the gypsies and made prisoners. The band decides to kill the captives, but Harry breaks away from them, helps Pauline free herself and then in the confusion they escape. Hotly pursued by the gypsies they find themselves on a big cliff over a lake and all paths cut off by their pursuers. They make a thrilling jump of some seventy-five feet from the cliff into the water, swim to shore and are in safety.

THE BOND OF LOVE (Two Parts).—Bob Finch, an orphan who has been brought up by his uncle, has decided to go in for a professional career, and to complete his education enrolls at Chatham College. Eric, his cousin, who has fallen into bad habits, has rejected all offers of his father to send him to a University. On the eve of his departure for college, Bob regrets that Eric is not to accompany him, but promises Eric's sister with whom he is in love, that he will do everything in his power to persuade Eric to attend West Point. After Bob has been at Yale for some time, Eric comes to visit him. This visit is caused by the fact that Eric is to take his examinations and needs some tutoring assistance from Bob, as he is very backward in his studies.

Shortly after Eric's arrival in town he meets some strangers and is enticed by them into a game of chance, in which he loses considerable money. Bob enters at a crucial moment and persuades Eric to leave. Suddenly brought to his senses by a realization of what might have happened to him, Eric studies very hard for the examinations, but on the day of the test fearing that he will be unable to pass, he takes one of the text books into the examination room with him and cheats. Seeing the professor approaching he passes the book to Bob, who is caught with it. Remembering his promise to Eric's sister, Bob says nothing, takes all the blame, and is expelled from college. Breaking from all his former associates he goes out to make a name for himself. Being offered a position in a distant city he decides to see his cousin Cecelia before he leaves. Suffering from his uncle's displeasure, he arranges to meet his cousin at an hour when everyone is asleep. Eric in the meantime, having gone from bad to worse, decides to rob his father's house to secure money to pay his gambling debts. Breaking into the house he is found by Bob as he is in the act of robbing the safe. The commotion aroused brings his father down stairs. Eric accuses Bob of participating in the crime, but Cecelia finding that her love for Bob is greater than her love for her brother, tells all and forces a confession from Eric that it was his act which was the cause of Bob's leaving college. Bob's good name is cleared, while Eric suffers the penalty of his acts.

THE OTHER KID'S SISTER.—The little boy with the express wagon, drawing around the girl of his heart, is cut out by a new kid rejoicing in the possession of a fine new toy automobile. A kindly cop comes to him in his sorrow and buys him a child's policeman's outfit. In his new uniform he goes back and arrests his rival "for speeding" and quickly summons a court of children to act upon the case. The "speeder" is fined 25 cents, and the loss of his automobile for several days. With a heart full of grief he goes to his little sister and begs her intercession. With the wisdom of her sex she makes eyes at the "policeman" and "judge" and the court, reconvened, throws out the case "for lack of evidence."

WORLD FILM CORP.

THE DOLLAR MARK (Five Parts).—The mining district of Cobalt, Ontario, is the setting for the greater share of the picture, and there is careful attention paid to the scenes taken on board the millionaire's yacht, when Gresham is determined to get to his bank in time to prove to the clearing house committee that he is solvent and in so doing foils the Baylis attempt to take his mine away from him. It is not alone for the control of the mine that there is a struggle, but there is a girl in the story who is sought after by the two big men. Alice Chandler is worth the struggle. For a long time there seems little hope for Gresham, but the great moment comes when he is able to save Alice's life by carrying her to safety through a wild day, in which they both are at the mercy of the overflowing waters from a dam.

MOTHER (Four Parts).—The picture opens with a view of the sewing room in the Wetherill home. Ardath Wetherill is working, and her younger sister, Leonora, is chiefly engaged in conversation. William Howard Wetherill, eldest son, has married a stage person who is squeezing from him every dollar that may be exacted. Walter Thompson Wetherill, the next brother, has, without the knowledge of any one concerned, become engaged to Elizabeth Terhune, sister of the wife who led the elder brother from the dear old home. The family has a small estate, jointly handled by Mother Wetherill and John Rufus Chase, an elderly lawyer, who has an apparent affection for the mother.

James Bingham Wetherill and John Walton Wetherill, twins of typical small boy nature, make up the family. Harry Lake, a young man of high type, loves Ardath. Ardath tries to turn him over to her younger sister, not that she loves Lake any less, but that she loves the sister more. There is a humorous tangle over which girl Lake is to marry. He has kept his faith to the older girl, but the mother had been led to believe that when Lake asks for a personal interview he does it to ask for the hand of Leonora.

What Lake really wants is to tell her that her eldest son, who has been employed by the bank of which Lake's father is head, had embezzled $10,000 to keep up the whims of the wife and that he has brought a note, with the mother's forged endorsement to the firm to keep himself out of jail. The mother rises to the situation. She tells Lake that the signature is hers, fights the family lawyer over the proposition of making good on the declaration, irrespective of the fact that it threatens absolute poverty.

She ultimately gets the girls to consent to a retrenchment program. She sustains the family honor effectually, shows her mother love, and engages herself with the task of getting rid of the possible daughter-in-law, who threatens to come into the circle. There is where Elizabeth Terhune comes into the story. The mother has the son bring in his intended wife, and she tells her that the family is poor; that the son has no expectance. She urges that the flashy damsel marry her son; she pictures her cooking and rearing his children, and then has the pleasure of seeing her little plan win, when she is denounced by the girl along with her son.

The final scene shows the mother putting the two boys to bed. Master James and John Wetherill entertainingly read a dime novel until they hear her footsteps. Then they switch to the Bible and hide the novel. The home scene is perfectly familiar. It includes the return of the wayward older boys, which gives the mother back her entire flock, and leaves her watching a brood that is her only love and care.

HEPWORTH-AMERICAN.

DR. FENTON'S ORDEAL (Hepworth) (Two Parts).—Guy Fenton, a medical student, is addicted to gambling. After a long evening at the card-tables he finds himself absolutely at the end of his resources. He resolves to break into the house of Mr. Harding, who, by repute, is a rich man. Two days before Mr. Harding asked his nephew, Rupert, to spend a few weeks with him. Fenton manages to make his entry, and discovers a large sum of money. He hastens to retreat, when Rupert grapples with the intruder. Guy manages to escape. That evening Guy books a passage to America and departs.

Ten years pass. After the robbery Rupert and Sybil Harding make their home permanently with their uncle. Rupert, while experimenting in chemistry, is rendered totally blind. Guy Fenton as soon as he arrives in America devotes himself to his studies. The eyes have always been his specialty. He returns to the old country. In London he is introduced to Sybil Harding. In the end he is accepted as her future husband. When Sybil learns that her lover is an oculist she begs him to try and see if he can do something for her brother. Guy recognizes that his sweetheart's brother is none other than the man who so nearly captured him ten years before. The operation is duly performed. When the day comes for the bandages to be removed he writes Sybil a hurried line, saying that he has been unexpectedly called away on an urgent case, and that, therefore, the bandages must be removed by the nurse. On the removal of the bandages it is proved that the operation is a success. Rupert is shown the photograph of the man who is going to marry his hister, and to whom he owes his sight. In the meantime Guy has come to learn his fate.

There is a moment's hesitation, and then Rupert steps forward and grasps him by the hand. Smiling he looks straight into the other's eyes, and in a flash Guy realizes that he has been been permitted to atone.

"FOTOPLAYER"
the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
The American Photo Player Co.
Berkeley, California.

Kindly take a careful look at Page 101 in this issue.

RESULTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES!

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

MANAGER for picture house; live, up-to-date young man; desires position. Thoroughly capable; 6 years' experience; will positively improve your business. Can start immediately. Address B., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR.—Powers' latest standard machine; Hallberg economizer; seeks engagement. Fifteen dollars week. Pathe latest machine complete, guaranteed; will take fifty dollars. HARRY STOCKER, 11 West 34th St., Bayonne, N. J.

WANTED.—Position as operator. Have Connecticut license; two years' experience. Address MR. O. MARIO, Box 329, Torrington, Conn.

EXCHANGE MANAGER.—At liberty for Chicago territory. Would prefer representative position for responsible feature concern or will handle productions on brokerage basis. References exchanged. Address Exchange, c/o M. P. World, Chicago, Ill.

HIGH GRADE MAN.—Wants high grade position, 31 years old, 13 years in picture business, 3 years present position. Handle anything in film exchange or features. Also expert operator. Would accept management of theatre or road company. Highest references from people you know. Address E. H. S., c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR.—Experienced in best projection. Kinemacolor expert, to travel or permanent position in South or Southwest. Member I. A. T. S. E. Present employment two and one-half years. Address M. H., c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

EXPERIENCED.—Young lady pianist desires position in picture theatre. No vaudeville or orchestra. Virginia preferred. Miss Courtney, 1822 W. Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md.

YOUNG MAN.—With four years' experience as motion picture operator, wishes position. Martin Lengyel, P. O. Box 351, So. Norwalk, Conn.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR. — Wishes steady position. Six years' experience on all machines and spot lights. Also electrician. New York and Jersey license. Edward Rinchey, 161 West 15th St., N. Y. City.

YOUNG FRENCH GENTLEMAN.—Just arrived from Paris, thoroughly capable and experienced as moving picture stage director. Seeks suitable American connection. Personal interview desired. P. R., c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED.—Printer in small plant. Apply C. Luzenberg, Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, N. J.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

PARTNER WANTED.—Have complete traveling outfit. Auto and electric light. Travel south, west or near by. Hustling ability more necessary than money. Partner, c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FILM EXCHANGE.—For sale bargain. Si vende una exchange di films ottima affare per connazionale. Room 1212, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

THEATERS WANTED.

REPRESENTING BIG INTERESTS in the photoplay industry in the United States, we are desirous of obtaining a number of theaters now in operation or to be built, with seating capacity of 600 or over in the various cities of the country. Only grade A houses will be considered. SYDCO AMUSEMENT CO., 331 Madison Ave., New York City.

PICTURE THEATRES WANTED.—If you have one for sale in any section of the center west, write the Photoplay Investment Co., Muscatine, Iowa.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE.—Two picture houses, side by side. I have my own light plant, which runs both houses for $10 per month. Two machines in each house. Everything in A1 shape. Will sell both or one of them. Town of 8,000 population. C. C. HADDOX, Kenton, O.

FOR SALE.—First class moving picture theater in Central Pennsylvania, seating 500; fully equipped; two machines; only two theaters in town; population, 15,000. Doing profitable business, $75 to $100 a week. Address T. O., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

PICTURE THEATRE.—For sale in good Iowa city of 8,000. Finely located, specially built and completely equipped. Excellent patronage. Write the Photoplay Investment Co., Muscatine, Iowa.

THEATRE FOR SALE.—New theatre fully equipped in Connecticut town, population 19,000. Good lease with option. Rent only $75 month. Small expenses two competitors. $2,000 takes it as owner has other interests. Address George Lester, Gen. Del., Hartford, Conn.

FOR SALE.—Motion picture theatre, with inclined floor, stage isolated lighting plant, brick building, seating capacity 375, in town of about 1,500, doing excellent business; owner must go East. $10,000; cash $7,500, buyer to assume mortgage $2,500. If interested write Mgr. Banning Opera House, Banning, Cal.

FOR SALE.—Picture theatre, Newark, N. J., 650 seats clearing $75 weekly. Price, $3,500. No opposition. Address J. C. T., 681 S. 12th St., Newark, N. J.

FOR SALE.—Moving picture theatre, oldest in town. Running seven days week. Address Henry Burnstyn, 551 Spring St., W. Hoboken, N. J.

FOR SALE.—Moving picture theatre in town of 17,000, a money maker, own lighting plant, good reason for selling; first come first served; must be sold. Good lease and good location. Address S. W., c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE.—The lease and equipment of two first class vaudeville and picture theatres in Connecticut. About fifteen miles apart. Good leases. Each house doing business and fully equipped. One house seats 800. Price $4,500. Other seats 1,150, price $7,500. Don't write unless interested. Box 64, Shawomet Beach, R. I.

GOOD OPPORTUNITY.—For sale or rent high class moving picture theatre in city of 115,000, seating 700. Thickly populated location, no near competiton. Only live man with money need write. Owner in other business. F. C. Fox, 386 Hanover St., Bridgeport, Conn.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED.—Cameraphone films and records (cylinder) no cut outs, prefer new. Also B. C. Phonograph. Palmer, 411 W. Depot St., Knoxville, Tenn.

WANTED.—Second hand moving picture machines. Cheap for spot cash. Palmer, 411 W. Depot St., Knoxville, Tenn.

WILL BUY.—.07 Lubin model (if like new) or new parts for same. Barnard's Theatre, Millbrook, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES.—For one, three and six sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. The Newman Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, O. 101 4th Ave., N. Y.

AUDITORIUM SEATS FOR SALE—We have for sale, at an attractive price, 450 handsome auditorium seats, made by the American Seating Co., in every way as good as new, but offered for sale because our auditorium is to be converted into a gymnasium. These seats are tip-up seats, with hat-rack, solid seats and backs, numbered consecutively on arm and with row letters. Just the thing for a moving picture theater, both comfortable and sanitary. For further information address THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, Chillicothe, Ohio.

WRITE the Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo., for seats and moving picture machines of all kinds, as they always have some slightly used goods in stock for immediate shipment and sell them at bargain prices.

GET YOUR CHAIRS.—And theatre equipment at cut prices, used chairs 50 cents up, new chairs, $1 up. Tell me your wants, I can save you money. Jos. P. Redington, Scranton, Pa.

1914 SIMPLEX MACHINE.—Run month, guaranteed complete, screen, cable, trunks. Best bid. W. M. Alley, 487 Jackson Ave., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE.—Metal picture booth Illinois underwriters standard. Complete in every way. Y. M C. A., Alton, Ill.

FOR SALE.—Powers 6A machine complete, used a few weeks, perfect condition, $175. Edison type "B" used 4 months guaranteed $85. Standard No. 4 complete equipment, slightly used, $70. Rebuilt Edison Ex. models and Powers No. 5 of quality, $50 and up. We sell new machines and take old outfits in part payment. Stelzer Bros., 417 Broadway, Lincoln, Ill.

CURTAIN OPERATING EQUIPMENT.—Automatic, push button control from one or more points for direct or alternating current. W. Montelius Price Co., Seattle, Wash.

FOR SALE.—Rebuilt machines. Powers No. 6, $100. 1909 Motiograph, $90. 1911 Motiograph, $115. Edison Exhibtion, $65. Powers No. 5, $65. A1 condition. Guaranteed. Many others. Write for catalog and complete list supplies. Amusement Supply Co., 160-H North Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE.—Or will exchange for first quality opera chairs, Eberhard Schneider Junior Professional Camera No. 70. New used four times. Write for list of extras. Rip Van Winkle Film Co., Stamford in the Catskills, N. Y.

FILMS WANTED.

FEATURES WANTED.—Will handle on percentage. Capable and experienced management for Southern territory. A. W., c/o M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FILMS FOR SALE.—Singles, twos, threes and four reel subjects. Luna Feature Film Co., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE.—Splendid lot of good films $2 per reel up singly. In lots of hundred or more at slaughter prices. Palmer, 411 W. Depot St., Knoxville, Tenn.

FOR SALE.—Two hundred reels film with posters. $2.50 each and up. Also second hand machines. Bargain prices. Wichita Film & Supply Co., Wichita, Kans.

FOR SALE.—We have several good commercial reels for sale cheap, good condition. Address Independent Film and Supply Co., San Antonio, Tex.

FOR SALE.—New Copy of the Balkan War in three reels including heralds. Scenic Banner and plenty of paper. A very timely subject on the present European crisis. Price, $110, $25 with order. Balance, C. O. D. on inspection. Address M. H. Livingston, 609 Fairholm Ave., Peoria, Ill.

WALLA WALLA FRONTIER DAYS CELEBRATION.—In motion pictures, all the wonderful feats and interesting characters of this great western country, beautifully filmed exclusively by us, in three reels. Price, $195. Release Oct. 1. Open territory. H. C. Hauck, 309 Swetland Bldg., Portland, Ore.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED.—To locate E. C. Maloney, who has our two-reel South Pole film. Feature Film Co., St. Paul, Minn.

60 STYLE SIGNS for moving picture theaters. Samples mailed free. Cut prices. We pay express charges anywhere. JORDAN SHOW PRINT, 320 W. Superior St., Chicago, Ill.

WANTED.
10,000 Operators.
Send in your name for a Beautiful Two-Color Post Card. And keep posted on New Specialties pertaining to Moving Picture Machines.
Motion Picture Specialty & Repair Co.
326 Third Avenue Pittsburgh, Pa.

FILMS FOR SALE—$4 per Reel Up
One No. 6 S. H. Powers complete.....$125.00
Edison Exhibition Models, all complete $70.00 to 90.00
One Model B Edison, all complete..... 125.00
One Motiograph, all complete..... 90.00
100 10 or 12-in. cored ½ carbons...$5.00 per 100
ECONOMY FILM COMPANY
105 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairin
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US?
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176 N. State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

The ALCO FILM Corp.

The Dependable Program

COMPOSED OF THE PRODUCTS OF

All Star Feature Corporation

California Motion Picture Corporation

Popular Plays and Players Inc.

Favorite Players Film Company

Excelsior Feature Film Company

A Constant Parade of Superlative Photoplay Productions, first of which will be America's Leading Dramatic Star

MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE

in an original work by

Augustus Thomas

THE NIGHTINGALE

A magnificent five part Dramatic Romance, aptly fitted in every detail to the superb Star and cast. Release Date, Oct. 5.

Release Date, Oct. 12

The inimitable and artistic portrayer of Irish Character

ANDREW MACK

in

THE RAGGED EARL

A new and novel series of plots, counter plots and brilliant situations

5 Parts — 289 Scenes

COMING

The Screen's most popular Star

CARLYLE BLACKWELL

The Favorite Player
in his most attractive role in a fascinating play

THE KEY TO YESTERDAY

4 Acts — 500 Scenes

Arrange With the Distributor in Your Territory—Exchanges Throughout the Entire Country

LIST OF EXCHANGES

Alco Film Corporation of New England, 162 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.—For Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut.

Alco Film Exchange, 1331 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.—For New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania.

Alco Film Service, 512 Mallers Bldg., So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.—For Illinois and Indiana.

Alco Film Service, Temple Court, Minneapolis, Minn. For Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

Alco Film Service, of Missouri, New Grand Central Theatre, St. Louis, Mo. For Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska.

Alco Film Service, 327 St. Paul St., Baltimore, Md. For Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia.

Alco Film Service, 218 West 42nd Street, New York City.—For State of New York.

Alco Film Service, 212 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.—For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia.

Alco also controls the products of ATSCO

the creators of RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS, and all accessories

THE ALCO FILM CORPORATION

ALCO BUILDING — 218 West 42nd St., NEW YORK

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR THE EXHIBITOR.... 54
AMONG THE PICTURE THEATERS..... 46
ART OF EXHIBITION, THE..... 51

BLINKHORN GOES INTO RENTING..... 73
"BOOTLE'S BABY" (Edison)..... 39
BUILDING UNIVERSAL CITY..... 49

CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES... 84
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES. 86
CHICAGO LETTER 74
COMMENTS ON THE FILM (Licensed).... 63
COMMENTS ON THE FILM (Independent). 64

DE MILLE, WILLIAM C..... 48
"DOC" (Sawyer) 44
DOINGS AT LOS ANGELES..... 53
DRYEDA—NEW FEATURE COMPANY.... 69

EXHIBITORS' NEWS. 81

FACTS AND COMMENTS..... 35
FEATURE FILM STORIES.....106

"GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI, A" (World) 40
"GIRL AND THE STOWAWAY, THE" (Kalem) 43
GIBSON, MISS MARGARET..... 42
"GOD, MAN AND THE DEVIL" (Warner's) 47

HOPE-JONES, ROBERT, DEAD..... 72
HORSLEY IN LICENSED GROUP..... 71

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES..... 97
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES.....112
"IRELAND A NATION" (MacNamara)..... 67

LEWIS, EDGAR. 40
LICENSED FILM STORIES..... 90
LICENSED RELEASE DATES.....114

MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES.... 76
"MASTER FORCE, THE" (Kleine)..... 42
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR..... 68

NOTES OF THE TRADE..... 78

OBSERVATIONS BY MAN ABOUT TOWN.. 52
OHIO EXHIBITORS' MEET..... 68
O'NEIL, BARRY. 47
"PATCHWORK GIRL OF OZ, THE" (Oz).. 48
"PERILS OF PAULINE" (Eclectic)..... 43
PESTS OR HELPS..... 36
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE 56
"PRINCE OF INDIA, A" (Eclectic)..... 67
PROBLEMS OF FEATURE CONSTRUCTION. 37
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT..... 58

RAY, CHARLES. 53
"REAL AGATHA, THE" (Essanay)..... 38

SCREEN CLUB NOMINEES..... 73
"SUCH A LITTLE QUEEN" (Famous Players). 45
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)..... 90
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)... 97
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Features).....106

TAYLOR, WILLIAM D..... 44

WARNER'S CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY. 70
WISCONSIN ASSOCIATION MEETS..... 68

YOUNG, CLARA KIMBALL, ARTIST..... 41

TO ADVERTISERS.

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO..... 96
BELL & HOWELL..... 111
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO..... 119
CORCORAN, A. J..... 120
DETROIT ENGINE WKS..... 121
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO..... 119
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS..... 120
FULTON, E. E..... 120
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO..... 96
HALLBERG, J. H..... 91
HOKE, GEO. M., SUPPLY CO..... 107
LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE..... 116
MOTION PICTURE APPARATUS CO..... 118
PICTURE THEATER EQUIPMENT CO.... 89
L. C. SMITH & CO..... 96
STRELINGER, CHAS. A..... 94
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.. 95

CARBONS AND ACCESSORIES.
ADVANCE THEATRICAL EXCHANGE.... 95
CARBON ECONOMIZER CO..... 120
CHICAGO STAGE LIGHTING CO..... 119
HERZBERG, J. H..... 96
HOMMELL, LUDWIG & CO..... 98
K. & W. CARBON SAVER..... 117
SPECIAL UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO..... 113

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURE FILMS.
ALCO FILM CORP.....108-09
ALL STAR FEATURE CORP..... 20
BOSWORTH, INC. 14
BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION CO..... 21
CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CO..... 115
COSMOS FEATURE FILM CORP..... 103
ECLECTIC FILM CO..... 23
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO..... 12
GENERAL FEATURE FILM CO..... 121
LASKY, JESSE L., FEATURE PLAY CO.. 13
LIFE PHOTO FILM CORP..... 16
MASTERPIECE FILM MFG. CO..... 8
NIELSEN, F. O..... 111
OZ FILM MFG. CO..... 15
PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORP.....10-11
PLAYGOERS FILM CO..... 17
RENFAX MUSICAL MOTION PICTURE CO. 115
STRAND FILM CO..... 22
U. S. FEATURE FILM CO..... 111
WARNER'S FEATURES 18-19
WORLD FILM CORPORATION.....26-28

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
GUNDLACH MANHATTAN OPTICAL CO.. 113

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
BIOGRAPH. 85
EDISON, THOS. A., INC..... 32
ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO..... 6-7
KALEM CO. 34
KLEINE, GEO. 24-25
LUBIN MFG. CO.....30-31
PATHE. 29
SELIG-POLYSCOPE CO. 123
VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA..... 33

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
MAJESTIC MOTION PICTURE CO..... 122
NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CORP.... 3
THANHOUSER FILM CORP..... 2
UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO..... 4-5

MISCELLANEOUS.
AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING & CASH REGISTER CO. 100
BARR & BRUNSWIG..... 96
BOTANICAL DECORATING CO..... 99
CENTAUR FILM CO..... 113
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS. 107
EASTMAN KODAK CO..... 113
ECONOMY FILM CO..... 107
ERNEMANN PHOTO-KINO WORKS..... 96
FRAMES FOR SALE..... 98
GENERAL SPECIALTY CO.....107, 120
GUNBY BROTHERS. 95
HOFFMAN, H. F..... 105
HOLLAND FILM MFG. CO..... 94
INDUSTRIAL MOTION PICTURE CO..... 111
KRAUS MFG. CO..... 78
LEARS THEATER SUPPLY CO..... 121
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, THE.....101
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO..... 120
NATIONAL TICKET CO..... 112
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO..... 117
OLIVER TYPEWRITER CO..... 118
PREDDEY, W. G..... 116
SCENARIOS CRITICISED 99
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE CO..... 99
STANDARD ENGRAVING CO..... 99
STOCKTON'S SCRIPTWRITING SERVICE. 119
THEATRE RECORDS PUBLISHING CO... 98
TRIPLETT, J. M..... 116
WILLATT STUDIOS & LABORATORIES.. 9
WYANOAK PUBLISHING CO..... 117

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA MANUFACTURERS.
SCHNEIDER, EBERHARD 98

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER CO..... 106
DEAGAN, J. C..... 120
SEEBURG, J. P., PIANO CO..... 118
SINN, CLARENCE E..... 119

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO..... 121
ANDREWS, A. H., CO..... 121
BENNETT SEATING CO..... 121
HARDESTY MFG. CO..... 121
STEEL FURNITURE CO..... 121
WISCONSIN SEATING CO..... 121

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO..... 84
NEWMAN MFG. CO.....95, 99
THEATER SPECIALTY MFG. CO..... 96

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO..... 102
PRECISION MACHINE CO..... 87
PHANTASCOPE CO. 116
POWER, NICHOLAS CO..... 124

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
CRYSTAL-LIGHT SCREEN CO..... 117
DAY & NIGHT SCREEN CO..... 118
GENTER, J. H..... 111
INTERNATIONAL MOON SCREEN CO.... 117
MIRROR SCREEN CO..... 120

SONG AND ADVERTISING SLIDES.
ERKER BROS. 78
NIAGARA SLIDE CO..... 95
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO..... 116

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO..... 119

FILM EXCHANGES.
APEX FEATURE SERVICE..... 92
BRADENBURGH, G. W..... 117
CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO..... 120
GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO. 114
NORTH AMERICAN FILM CORP..... 94
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE.... 120
WESTERN FILM BROKERS..... 120

CIRCULATION ???
QUALITY CIRCULATION ???
See Page 101 This Issue. 'NUF SED.

MR. EXHIBITOR: Your Success Depends, Not Upon Promises, but Upon Actual Results Obtained

Some Screen Manufacturers Will Promise You Everything and Anything, BUT—Will They Guarantee to Keep Their Promises?

Will they guarantee their screen for five years against cracking, peeling, deteriorating—tarnishing or turning black?
Will they guarantee their screen is climate proof and can be washed with soap and water?
Will they guarantee perfect projection regardless of how close your seats are placed to the screen, or angle?
Will they guarantee perfect projection, without haze, glare or eye-strain?
Will they really guarantee the saving on Current Used?

We are Guided by Our Policy of Six Years to Under-claim Rather Than Over-claim. You Can Rest Assured That We Do Not Exaggerate or Misrepresent. Therefore Feel Secure in Accepting Our Representations at Their Full Worth.

WE GUARANTEE MIRROROIDE FOR FIVE YEARS TO SUBSTANTIATE EVERY CLAIM WE MAKE AS ABOVE. WILL THEY?

MIRROROIDE is the Only Rough or Matte Metalized Surface on Earth—Silver White, Silver Flesh, or Pale Gold. Send for Our Large FREE Samples. TEST, COMPARE with any Screen on Earth. MIRROROIDE IS THE WORLD'S BEST SCREEN—and We Will Back This Statement Up with $1,000.00 in Real Tests—Tests Open to the Public in General.

MIRROROIDE IS SOLD AT 36 1-9 CENTS THE SQUARE FOOT

Our Latest Pure White Glass Coating, Not Metallic, Ready Mixed, Ready to apply direct, at $10.00 per gallon. Fire and Waterproof and Guaranteed.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., NEWBURGH, N. Y. AGENCIES ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

The Bell & Howell Rewind

A Better Rewind at a Less Price. Ask your Exchange or Write the Makers.

The Bell & Howell Company,
1803 Larchmont Ave., Chicago, Ill.

NO WAR BOOST ON OUR PRICES

Regardless of the present European unpleasantness we continue to use all essential chemicals such as

METOL AND HYDROQUINONE

and consistently maintain standard prices for quality,

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

Send today for our price, quality and service guarantee

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE CO., 223-233 W. Erie St. CHICAGO

State Right Buyers Take Notice

COMING THE BIG ORIGINAL PRODUCTION COMING

FEATURING

GEORGE SONTAG

Of SONTAG AND EVANS, of California

In "THE FOLLY OF A LIFE OF CRIME"

U. S. Feature Film Company OROVILLE CALIFORNIA

F. O. NIELSEN, booking

"THE SPOILERS"

For the States of

OHIO, WISCONSIN, MICHIGAN, INDIANA and ILLINOIS

(EXCEPT COOK COUNTY)

WRITE OR WIRE

720 SCHILLER BLDG., CHICAGO

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.
Sept. 23—His Faith in Humanity (Drama)....
Sept. 25—The Taming of Sunnybrook Nell (Drama) .....
Sept. 28—A Modern Rip Van Winkle (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 30—The Ingrate (Two Parts—Drama)...
Oct. 5—Daphnia (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 7—Billy's Rival (Drama).....

BEAUTY.
Sept. 15—The Only Way (Drama).....
Sept. 22—Caught in a Tight Pinch (Comedy-Drama) .....
Sept. 29—The Legend of Black Rock (Drama).
Oct. 6—Nieda (Drama) .....

"101" BISON.
Sept. 19—The Higher Law (Two Parts—Drama)
Sept. 26—"Richelieu," (Four Parts—Drama)...
Oct. 3—Love and Baseball (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 10—The Phantom Light (Two Parts Drama) .....

BRONCHO.
Oct. 7—The Boss of the 8th (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 14 End of the Alley (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 21—Shorty and Sherlock Holmes (Two Parts—Drama) .....

CRYSTAL.
Sept. 22—East Lynn in Bugville (Comedy).....
Sept. 29—Charlie's Smoke (Comedy).....
—Belmont Butts In (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—Liferitis (Comedy) .....

DOMINO.
Oct. 8—The Whiskey Runners (Two Parts - Drama) .....
Oct. 15—Jimmy (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 22—The Power of the Angelus (Two Parts —Drama) .....
Oct. 29 Eric the Red's Wooing (Two Parts—Drama) .....

ECLAIR
Sept. 27—Fate's Finger (Drama).....
Sept. 30—Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold (Two Parts—Western Drama)
Oct. 4—The Man Who Came Back (Western Drama) .....
Oct. 7—The Secret Treaty (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 11—Cupid Victor (Comedy).....

FRONTIER.
Sept. 27—The Man in the Attic (Drama).....
Oct. 4—Four Days (Drama).....
Oct. 11—The Greaser's Revenge (Drama).....

GOLD SEAL.
Sept. 22—The Trey o' Hearts Series No. 8 (The Mock Rose) (Two Parts—Drama)..
Sept. 29—The Trey o' Hearts Series No. 9 (As the Crow Flies) (Two Parts)
Oct. 6—The Trey O' Hearts, Episode No. 10 (Steel Ribbons) (Two Parts—Drama)

IMP.
Sept. 28—The Dark Horse (Drama).....
Oct. 1—The Tenth Commandment (Three Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 5 Shadows (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 8 Universal Boy, in Rural Adventures (Juvenile Comedy).....

JOKER.
Oct. 3—In the Clutches of the Villain (Comedy) .....
—Barcalona, the Pearl of the Mediterranean (Educational) .....
Oct. 7—The Base Ball Fans of Fansville (Comedy) .....
Oct. 10—Cruel, Cruel World (Comedy).....

KAY BEE.
Sept. 25—The Death Mask (Two Parts—Dr.)..
Oct. 2—One of the Discard (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 9—The Sheriff of Muscatine (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 16—The Word of His People (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 23—The Spark Eternal (Two Parts—Drama)

KEYSTONE.
Sept. 19—Lover's Luck (Comedy).....
Sept. 21—He Loves the Ladies (Comedy).....
Sept. 24—The New Janitor (Comedy).....
Sept. 26—Fatty's Debut (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—Hard Cider (Comedy).....
Oct. 1—Killing of Horace (Comedy).....
Oct. 5—Their Ups and Downs (Comedy).....

KOMIC.
Sept. 20—Foiled Again (Comedy).....
Sept. 27—Bill Manages a Prize Fighter (No. 7) (Comedy) .....
Oct. 4—The Million Dollar Bride (Comedy)..
Oct. 11—Bill Spoils a Vacation (No. 8) (Comedy) .....

MAJESTIC.
Sept. 22—Meg of the Mines (Western—Drama).
Sept. 27—The Great God Fear (Two Parts—Comedy-Drama) .....
Sept. 29—The Right to Die (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 4—Out of the Air (Two Parts—Drama).
Oct. 6 The Unpainted Portrait (Drama).....
Oct. 11 The Sands of Fate (Two Parts—drama)

NESTOR.
Sept. 25—Fruits and Flowers (Comedy).....
Sept. 30—The White Wolf (Indian Drama)....
Oct. 2 Out of the Frying Pan (Comedy)....
Oct. 7—The Old Bell Ringer (Drama).....
Oct. 9—He Never Said a Word (Comedy).....

POWERS.
Sept. 25—Be Neutral (Educ.-Dr.).....
—Our Land of Gold (Educ.-Scenic)...
Oct. 2—The Actress (Drama).....
Oct. 9—The Mayor's Manicure (Comedy-Drama)

PRINCESS.
Sept. 18—The Master Hand (Drama).....
Sept. 25—The Final Test (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Balance of Power (Drama).....
Oct. 9—The One Who Cared (Drama).....

RELIANCE.
Sept. 28—Our Mutual Girl No. 37 (Topical)...
Sept. 30—Where the Mountains Meet (Western —Drama) .....
Oct. 2—The Sheriff's Master (Western—Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—The Wireless Voice (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 5—Our Mutual Girl, No. 38 (Topical).....
Oct. 7—The Badge of Office (Western—Drama).
Oct. 10 The Tardy Cannon Ball (Two Parts—Drama) .....

REX.
Sept. 27—As the Wind Blows (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 1—The Boob's Legacy (Comedy).....
Oct. 4—The Pipes of Pan (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct 8 A Law Unto Herself (Two Parts - Drama) .....
Oct. 11 Virtue Its Own Reward (Two Parts Drama) .....

ROYAL.
Sept. 19—The Horse Trader (Comedy).....
Sept. 26—Scarecrow (Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—Cousin Billy (Comedy) .....
Oct. 10 The Pet of the Petticoats (Comedy) .

STERLING.
Sept. 28—The Battle (Two Parts—Juvenile—Comedy)..
Oct. 1 (No Sterling Release this week).....
Oct. 5 Myers Mistake (Comedy) .....
Oct. 8 Hypnotic Power (Comedy).....

THANHOUSER.
Sept. 27—The Harvest of Regrets (Drama).....
Sept. 29—The Trail of the Lovelorn (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 4—A Dog's Love (Drama).....
Oct. 6—The Cripple (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 9—The Benevolence of Conductor 786 (Comedy) .....
Oct. 11 The Rescue (Drama) .....

UNIVERSAL IKE.
Sept. 22—The "Dear" Hunter (Comedy).....
Sept. 29—The Shack Next Door (Comedy)....
Oct. 6—Three of a Kind (Comedy).....

VICTOR.
Sept. 25—Elsie's Uncle (Two Parts—Comedy-Drama) .....
Sept. 28—The Proof of a Man (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Rock of Hope (Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 5 Disillusioned (Drama) .....
Oct. 9 The Man Who Was Never Kissed (Two Parts—Comedy-Drama) .....

FEATURES.

ALCO FILM CORP.
Oct. 5—The Nightingale (All Star—Five Parts Drama) .....
Oct. 12—The Ragged Earl (Popular Plays and Players—Drama) .....
Oct. 19 The Key to Yesterday (Favorite Players Four Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 26—Michael Strogoff (Popular Plays & Players—Five Parts—Drama) .....

APEX.
Sept.—Queen of the Counterfeiters (Four Parts —Drama) .....
Oct.—Called to the Front; or Europe at War (Three Parts—Drama) .....

BOSWORTH, INC.
Sept. 14—Burning Daylight.....
Oct. 1—The Pursuit of the Phantom (Drama)..

BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS CO.
Sept. 21—Will o' The Wisp (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 28—Fighting the World (Five Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 28 The Square Triangle (Three Parts Drama) .....

CALIFORNIA M. P. CORP.
September—Salomy Jane (Drama).....

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CO.
Oct. 1—Sealed Orders (Seven Parts—Drama)

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.
August—What a Woman Will Do (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Sept.—England's Menace (Three Parts—Drama)

COSMOS FEATURE FILM CORP.
Oct. 15—Lena Rivers (Drama) .....

ECLECTIC.
Sept.—Doubles Bring Troubles (Comedy).....
—Prairie Dogs (Educational).....
Oct.—When Honor Calls (Four Parts (Drama)
Oct.—Colonel Heezaliar, in the Wilderness (Comedy) .....
Oct.—The Colonel's Wife (Three Parts—Drama)
Oct.—War Stricken Louvain (Topical).....

FAMOUS PLAYERS.
Sept. 10—The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 21—Such a Little Queen (Five Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 5—Marta of the Lowlands (Five Parts—Drama) .....

FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO.
September—The King's Defence (Drama).....

GAUMONT.
August—War (Drama) .....

GEORGE KLEINE.
September—Spartacus (Eight Parts—Drama)..
September—Vendetta (Five Parts—Drama)...
Sept.—The Lion of Venice (Six Parts—Drama).

HECTOR FILM CORP.
Sept.—Born Again (Five Parts—Drama).....

HEPWORTH-AMERICAN.
August—The Girl from the Sky (Comedy Dr.)..
Aug. 29—The Chimes (Three Parts—Drama)..
—The Terror of the Air (Two Parts—Drama) .....
September—Creatures of Clay (Three Parts—Drama) .....

LASKY.
Sept. 7 The Virginian (Five Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 17—The Making of Bobby Burnit (Four Parts—Drama) .....

LIFE PHOTO FILM CORP.
September—Captain Swift (Five Parts—Drama).....

PLAYGOERS FILM CO.
Oct.—The Great Diamond Robbery (Six Parts—Drama) .....

PICTURE PLAYHOUSE FILM CO. INC.
Aug. 19—The Oath of a Viking (Three Parts).....
Aug. 26—The Film Detective (Four Parts).....
Sept. 5—The Mystery of the Poison Pool (Five Parts.. Drama) .....
Sept. 10—Desperado of Panama (Three Parts—Drama)
Sept. 17—Lure of the Yukon (Three Parts—Drama)..

RENOWNED PLAYERS.
Sept.—A Great Mistake (Five Parts—Drama).

SAWYER.
Sept.—Tyranny of the Mad Czar (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. Doc (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Oct.—Thirty Minutes in Melodrama (Two Parts —Comedy) .....
Oct.—The Factory Magdalen (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Oct.—The Volunteer Parson (Four Parts—Drama) .....
Oct.—The Detective Queen (Four Parts—Drama)

THE PREMIER FEATURE FILM CO., INC.
Sept.—Across the Pacific (Five Parts—Drama).
Sept.—The Dancer and the King (Five Parts—Drama) .....

WARNER'S FEATURES.
September—When We Were Young (Drama)...
September—The Arrow's Tongue (Drama)....
September—Alone in New York (Five Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. The Price of Crime (Three Parts—Drama) .....

WORLD FILM CORP.
Sept. 14—Protea II (Five Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 21 The Dollar Mark (Five Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 28—Mother (Four Parts -Drama) .....

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand $2.50
Twenty Thousand $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$5.50
Fifty Thousand $6.50
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

SPECIAL UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO.

406 East 149th St. New York, N. Y.

DEALERS IN

"BAIRD," "POWER'S," "SIMPLEX" & "STANDARD" MACHINES

We also buy and sell rebuilt machines of above makes, and always carry in stock a full line of all repair parts.

Motors, Economizers, Screens, and general supplies.

Write us for prices.

Reel Boxes: 4 Reel $4.50—5 Reel $5.00—and 6 Reel $5.50

Our Motion Picture Repair Department is in charge of competent experts only, and all our work is guaranteed.

We receive hundreds of letters like this:

Telephone Audubon 5048
Wm. A. Landau, Pres. S. G. Bock, Sec'y and Treas.
L. & B. AMUSEMENT CO., INC.
Lessees
HEIGHTS THEATRE
181st St. and Wadsworth Ave.

New York, Aug. 21, '14.

SPECIAL UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO., 406 East 149th St., New York.

Gentlemen: It affords us great pleasure to state that any work you have done for us, either motor or machine repairs, has given us perfect satisfaction, and we will be only too pleased to recommend your concern to our many friends in the exhibition business.

You may make use of our name as a recommendation of very careful and efficient service.

We wish you every success in your new quarters, and remain,

Very truly yours, THE L. & B. AMUSEMENT CO., INC.
Per S. B. Bock, Treas., Heights Theatre.

No matter how thrilling

a story one may read, interest is not sustained if poor type, poor paper and poor press work make hard work for the eyes. It's the same with motion pictures. A clear picture is as necessary as a good scenario.

Because the basic product is right, the clearest pictures are on "Eastman" film. Look for the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

TITLES

Our Title Department has been reorganized, elaborately equipped and placed under the direction of recognized experts.

Its highly perfected apparatus, linotype machine and job presses enable us to produce the most difficult title work in any language—artistically, accurately and quickly—and at lower prices than have ever yet been quoted.

Developing & Printing

Save money and insure the best results by entrusting your work to the largest and most complete commercial plant in America.

CENTAUR FILM COMPANY

Bayonne, N. J., and 1600 Broadway

Gundlach Projection Lenses Have Made a Reputation

They are now so well known we can refer you to almost any exhibitor, Film Exchange, dealer or manufacturer for an opinion about them and with certainty that every man who has seen results will tell you they are the best lenses made—absolutely the best.

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Pathe, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Geo. Kleine, Lubin, Columbus, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph.

Thursday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Columbus, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Lubin, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Sept. 19—Murphy and the Mermaids (Comedy).
—The Fire Chief's Bride (Comedy)...
Sept. 21—Just a Bit of Life (Drama).....
Sept. 22—The Ring and the Book (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 24—The Fall of Muscle-Bound Hicks (Comedy) .....
—The Plumber's Pick (Comedy).....
Sept. 25—Her Doggy (Comedy-Drama).....
Sept. 26—The Gold Thief (Drama).....
Sept. 28—A First Class Cook (Comedy).....
—The White Hand Society (Comedy)..
Sept. 29—The Derelicts (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 1—The Spirit of Jealousy (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Peasant's Lie (Drama).....
Oct. 3—The New Road's Mascot (Drama).....

EDISON.

Sept. 19—Jim's Vindication (Drama).....
Sept. 21—The Adventure of the Hasty Elopement (Ninth of Octavius—Amateur Detective Series—Comedy).....
Sept. 22—The Blue Coyote Cherry Crop (Drama).
Sept. 23—Post no Bills (Comedy).....
Sept. 25—Grand Opera in Rubeville (Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 26—Twins and Trouble (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—Love By the Pound (Tenth of the Wood B. Wedd Series)—(Comedy)
Sept. 29—The Mystery of the Glass Tubes (Eleventh of the Chronicles of Cleek Series—Drama) .....
Sept. 30—Buster Brown Gets the Worst of It (Comedy) .....
—In a Prohibition Town (Comedy)....
Oct. 2—The Poisoned Bit (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 3—A Transplanted Prairie Flower (Drama) .....
Oct. 5—Father's Beard (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—Greater Love Hath No Man (Drama)..
Oct. 7—Seth's Sweetheart (Comedy).....
Oct. 9—The Long Way (Special—Three Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 10—A Fragment of Ash (Drama).....

ESSANAY.

Sept. 19—Broncho Billy Butts In (Drama)....
Sept. 21—Sweedie's Skate (Comedy).....
Sept. 22—Love's Magnet (Drama).....
Sept. 23—The Fable of "One Samaritan Who Got Paralysis of the Helping Hand" (Comedy) .....
Sept. 24—Slippery Slim and the Green-Eyed Monster (Comedy).....
Sept. 25—A Splendid Dishonor (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 26—The Strategy of Broncho Billy's Sweetheart (Drama).....
Sept. 28—Sweedie's Clean-Up (Comedy).....
Sept. 29—White Lies (Drama).....
Sept. 30—The Fable of "The Adult Girl Who Got Busy" (Comedy).....
Oct. 1—Slippery Slim Gets Cured (Comedy)..
Oct. 2—Golf Champion "Chick" Evans Links With Sweedie (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—Broncho Billy Trapped (Western Drama) .....
Oct. 5—The Fickleness of Sweedie (Comedy)..
Oct. 6—The Verdict (Drama) .....
Oct. 7—The Fable of "The Family That Did Too Much For Nellie" (Comedy).....
Oct. 8—When Slippery Slim Met the Champion (Comedy) .....
Oct. 9—The Real Agatha (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 10—Broncho Billy and the Greaser (Drama)

KALEM.

Sept. 19—The Cub Reporter's Assignment (Drama) .....
Sept. 21—The Potter and the Clay (Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 22—The Green Rose (Drama).....
Sept. 23—The Vanishing Tribe (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 25—Jones' Wedding Day (Comedy).....
Sept. 26—Rory O'Moore (Drama).....
Sept. 28—The Viper (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 29—Grouch, the Engineer (Drama).....
Sept. 30—The Ex-Convict (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
—Food For the Dogs of War (Educational) .....
Oct. 2—The Slavery of Foxicus (Comedy)....
Oct. 3—The Legend of the Amulet (Drama)..
Oct. 5—The Dancer (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 6—For the Love of Mike (Comedy).....
—Hesanut Hunts Wild Game (Comedy)..
Oct. 7—The Lost Mail Sack (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 9—The Tattered Duke (Comedy).....
Oct. 10—Fate's Midnight Hour (Drama).....

GEORGE KLEINE.

Aug. 18—When the Beacon Failed (Cines Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Aug. 25—"To Forgive, Divine" (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 1—The Voice of Innocence (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 8—The Eyes of Genius (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 15—When Youth Meets Youth (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 22—The Master Force (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 29—A Shot From Ambush (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....

LUBIN.

Sept. 12—He Nearly Won Out (Comedy).....
—Too Many Aunts (Comedy).....
Sept. 14—Lord Cecil Intervenes (First of the "Beloved Adventurer" Series—Drama) .....
Sept. 15—Rastus Knew It Wasn't (Comedy)....
—She Made Herself Beautiful (Com.).
Sept. 16—The Twin Brothers Van Zandt (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 17—The Double Life (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 18—For Repairs (Drama).....
Sept. 19—Pins Are Lucky (Comedy).....
—The German Band (Comedy).....
Sept. 21—An Untarnished Shield (Second of the "Beloved Adventurer" Series—Drama) .....
Sept. 22—The Wise Detectives (Comedy).....
—A Six Foot Romance (Comedy).....
Sept. 23—Toys of Fate (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 24—The Triumph of Right (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 25—The Investment (Drama).....
Sept. 26—Did He Save Her (Comedy).....
Between One and Two (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—The Beloved Adventurer Series No. 3—An Affair of Honor (Drama)....
Sept. 29—Jinks and The Barber (Comedy).....
—Jealous James (Comedy).....
Sept. 30—His Brother Bill (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 1—His First Case (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 2—The Greater Love (Drama).....
Oct. 3—On Circus Day (Comedy).....
Oct. 5—The Beloved Adventurer No. 4—An American Heiress (Drama) .....
Oct. 6—Wife's Athletic Mamma (Comedy).....
—A Hunting Absurdity (Comedy) .....
Oct. 7—The Girl at the Lock (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 8—In Old Virginia (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 9—The Green-Eyed Monster (Drama).....
Oct. 10—When the Ham Turned (Comedy).....

COLUMBUS.

Sept. 15—The Tramp's Revenge (Comedy)....
Sept. 17—The Scab Waiter (Comedy).....
Sept. 22—The $1,000 Pants (Comedy).....
Sept. 24—How Clarence Got His (Comedy)....
Sept. 29—A Circus Romance (Comedy).....
Oct. 1—Blind Marriage (Comedy) .....

PATHE.

Aug. 10—Typical Russian Dances (Dancing)...
—A Rousing Reception (Comedy).....
Aug. 11—The Art of the Furrier (Vocational)..
—Iron and Steel Industry (Bombay) (Educational) .....
Aug. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 49 (News)....
Aug. 17—Dakar, the Principal Port of Senegal, French West Africa (Travel)..
—Military Trained Dogs, Belgium (Mil.)
Aug. 18—Cairo, the Capital of Egypt (Travel).
—Uriage and Vicinity (Scenic).....
Aug. 19—Pathe's Weekly, No. 50, 1914 (News).
Aug. 24—Pathe's Daily News, No. 53, 1914 (News) .....
Aug. 24—Edible Fishes of the English Channel (Ocean) .....
Aug. 25—Rapids and Falls at Trondjen (Travel)
—Picturesque France, Lower Brittany (Travel) .....
—From Havre to Buc by Hydro-Aeroplane (Color-Travel) .....
Aug. 26—Pathe's Daily News, No. 54, 1914 (News) .....

SELIG.

Sept. 19—At the Risk of His Life (Drama)....
Sept. 21—The Livid Flame (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 21—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 59 (News) .....
Sept. 22—For Love of Him (Drama).....
Sept. 23—A Just Punishment (Drama).....
Sept. 24—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 60 (News) .....
Sept. 25—You Never Can Tell (Comedy).....
Sept. 25—Who Got Stung (Comedy).....
Sept. 26—The Newsboy Tenor (Drama).....
Sept. 28—The Going of the White Swan (Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 28—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 61 (News) .....
Sept. 29—The Real Thing In Cowboys (Comedy-Drama) .....
Sept. 30—The Loyalty of Jumbo (Drama).....
Oct. 1—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 62 (News) .....
Oct. 2—An Embarrassing Predicament (Drama)
Oct. 3—Four Minutes Late (Drama).....
Oct. 5—The Moving Picture Cowboy (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 63 (News) .....
Oct. 6—The Way of the Redman (Drama) .....
Oct. 7—The Reparation (Drama).....
Oct. 8—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 64 (News) .....
Oct. 9—Jimmie the Porter (Comedy).....
—Doc Yak's Bottle (Cartoon).....
Oct. 10—Her Victory Eternal (Drama).....

VITAGRAPH.

Sept. 19—The Reward of Thrift (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 21—Fine Feathers Make Fine Birds (Drama) .....
Sept. 22—The Blood Ruby (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 23—A Double Error (Comedy) .....
Sept. 24—A Close Call (Drama).....
Sept. 25—A Horseshoe for Luck (Comedy).....
Sept. 26—Hearts and Diamonds (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Sept. 28—When the Gods Forgive (Drama)....
Sept. 29—Regan's Daughter (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 30—The Heart of Sonny Jim (Comedy-Drama) .....
Oct. 1—The Love of Pierre Larosse (Drama).
Oct. 2—Eats (Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—The Royal Wild West (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Oct. 5—Fisherman Kate (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—His Unknown Girl (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 7—Kill or Cure (Comedy).....
Oct. 8—The Loan Shark King (Drama).....
Oct. 9—Josie's Legacy (Comedy) .....
Oct. 10—The Rose and the Thorn (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....

Greater New York Film Rental Company

All Specials Supplied. Main Office: 126-132 West 46th Street. Depot: 116-118 East 14th Street, New York.

Licensed Film Supplied to Licensed Exhibitors :-: :-: :-: :-: :-: Write or Call for Particulars

REAL FEATURES

NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER
THE THREE MUSKETEERS
THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD
FATALITY AND MYSTERY
RAINEY'S HUNT
A PARADISE LOST
HARRY LAUDER
SEALED ORDERS

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM COMPANY

BREWSTER'S MILLIONS
A MESSAGE FROM MARS
MYSTERY OF THE FATAL PEARL
LIFE OF RICHARD WAGNER
VICTORY
THE SQUAW MAN
LOVE EVERLASTING
EAST LYNNE
THE DIVINE APPEAL

AND WE DO MORE THAN RENT YOU FILMS

Not all for all states—but some for each state.

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM COMPANY

Leaders in Filmdom's Progress

Schiller Building 64 West Randolph Street, Chicago

FILL YOUR EMPTY SEATS!

RENFAX MUSICAL

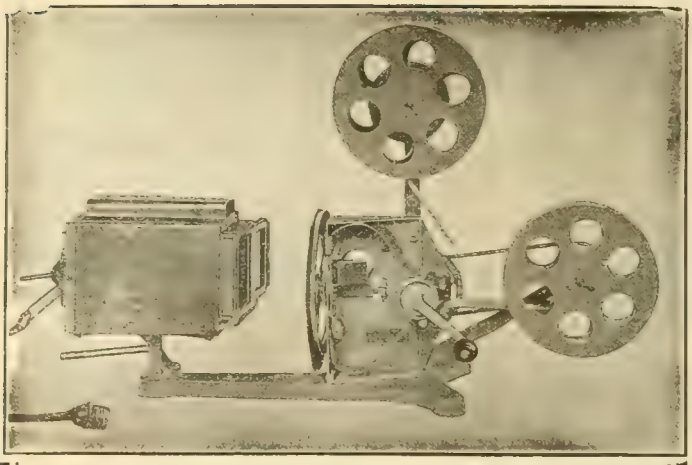
MOTION PICTURES

(NO SINGER REQUIRED)

The greatest permanent attraction ever offered picture houses.
Four releases weekly cost less than a singer.
Send for literature.

RENFAX FILM CO., Inc., 110 West 40th Street, New York

PHONE, BRYANT 7048



THE PHANTOSCOPE

is the Motion Picture Projecting Machine

which has been medaled by the famous Franklin Institute on the recommendation of some of the most eminent mechanical engineers of this country.

It is the logical projector for church, school, club or home use; for advertising, educational or entertainment purposes.

It takes standard motion picture film, film that is standard the world over.

It projects a bright, clear 8 ft. picture, taking current only from an incandescent lamp socket, or using an oxy-hydro generator where electric current is not obtainable.

It is absolutely safe. The lighting principle is such that the film may be left standing in the light indefinitely without danger of ignition. This permits study of any picture on the film.

Weighs but 20 lbs. in its carrying case and can be set up in a few minutes.

Its price is only $100.

Any order can be filled on the day of its receipt, whether it calls for one, twelve or a hundred Phantoscopes.

Responsible Agents Wanted

The Phantoscope Co.

30 Church Street, New York City

Do your condensers, Mr. Exhibitor, and Operator, talk for themselves like our famous Meniscus Bi-Convex Combination?

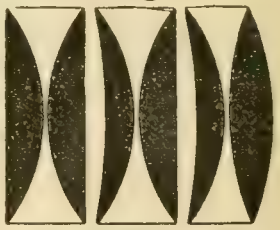
Just read what America's best inventors, machine manufacturers and expert operators say for our condensers. The price of the Meniscus Bi-convex condenser is $4.00 per set (20c. additional for postage). The sudden cutting off of European imports has caused us to discontinue all further jobbing and selling of Meniscus Bi-convex condensers in quantity lots. Our stock still contains several thousand pairs of condensers, but you must order quick.

Read what our regular mail brings us

"Enclosed find check for some more of those good Condensers. We don't see how we ever got along without them. Would not be without them for anything. R. Helbach & Son, Theatorium, Ardmore, Oklahoma."

"Please rush a set of Brightaday Curtain Emulsion. Just received the Meniscus Bi-convex Condensers. Just tried them out, and they are all the good you claim of them.—E. W. Nicholas, Palace Theatre, Lockhart, Tex."

"Your Meniscus Bi-convex Condensers received, and have given them a thorough try-out at one of the best houses in the city. In comparison with the average commercial condenser selling from 50c. to $1.00, they show a wonderful advantage, both as to the quality of the picture as well as quantity of light, while tried against the highest grade condensers they show still an improvement, insomuch as the spot seems to be much whiter at the edges, enabling a smaller spot to be used, therefore more light. We have demonstrated them before the Union here with favorable comment.—(Signed) W. G. Woods, Gen. Sales Agent, John D. Elbert, San Francisco, Cal."



GOOD — Two Plano — Fig. 1.
BETTER — One Meniscus One Plano — Fig. 2.
BEST — One Meniscus One Bi-Convex — Fig. 3.

"We have concluded to use your Meniscus Bi-convex Condensers as a standard for our machines, and on account of the anticipated shortage of these condensers wish you would enter our order for 100 each of the same combination. Will let you know at a later date just what our demand will be and then we should like to increase our order accordingly.—Optigraph Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill."

"Two years ago last January I purchased your Meniscus Bi-convex when you were just bringing them on the market. To my surprise the light was a revelation. I reduced my amperage from 40 to 32, still using the same condensers and have subjected them to all kinds of heat, cold and draughts, but they remain as good as ever.—(Signed) C. J. Shonka, Hopkins, Minn., Hopkins Theatre."

Remember, Meniscus Bi-Convex Condensers sell for $4.00 per set. Be sure and give us the exact distance of your throw and machine you use. All orders will receive prompt attention as long as the stock lasts.

THE LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE, Minneapolis, U. S. A.

NOW READY FOR DELIVERY

"Triplett's Loop Setter"

For Power's, Edison and Motiograph Machines. ALL MODELS.

Do away with operators' "Bugaboo" by installing "Triplett's Loop Setter" on your machine. Will reset the lower loop as fast as it hops off. Guarantee Satisfaction. Will send on approval. Write for circular. Price, $12.50, postage paid. Proposition open to dealers.

J. M. TRIPLETT 6 NORTH COLUMBIA ST. WENATCHEE, WASHINGTON

Note:—In ordering, state make and model of machine, whether belt or chain driven takeups, and whether straight or spiral gears on takeup drive pinion.

CONDENSER BREAKAGE STOPPED

by using the Preddey Mount; fits any lamp in a moment. Very simple and rugged. Pays for itself in a week. Lasts forever. Get circular. Positively stops breaking. Price $4.00. Used everywhere. Condenser expense ended.

W. G. PREDDEY

669 Haight St, San Francisco, Cal.

S. S.

MAKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and anyone can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact, they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address:

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

1733 West 9th Street Brooklyn, N. Y.

$1.00 CARBON $1.00

The K. & W. Guaranteed Carbon Saver

Guaranteed to save you ¾ of your waste carbon that you are now throwing away, and give you the best results possible. Approved and used by Mr. G. S. Benjamine, member of the Exhibitors' League of Maryland. Sent postpaid upon receipt of $1.00. (State what kind of arc used.)

Address

THE K. & W. MFG. CO.
1026 N. Appleton St., Baltimore, Md.

Pat. Appld. for

G. W. BRADENBURGH

802 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Phone: Walnut 534 Cable: BRADFILMS—PHILA.

TO EXCHANGES AND FILM TRADERS

The following subjects we have selected from a stock of 200 features. They are highly sensational, condition as new.

Name	Make	Length	Price	Adv. Sheets
Aviators' Enemy	Berlin	3250	$260*	1—3—6
Blindness of Innocence.....	Latium	5000	250	1—3—6†
Asta Nielsen Up to Her Tricks....	.....	5400	250	1—3—6
Asta Nielsen in Spanish Blood....	.....	4200	150	1—3—6
Asta Nielsen in Out of the Depths.	.....	2700	250*	1—3—6
For Another's Sin.....	Luna	3000	200	1—3—6
Mystery of the Death Head.....	.....	2750	150	1—3—6
Possessed of a Demon.....	Luna	4500	300	1—3—6

* New. † 2 styles.

Ordinary and Feature Films at Bargain Prices. Send for Lists. Keystone Comedies, Mary Pickford and Bunny Films a Specialty.

CRYSTAL-LIGHT SCREEN

For* Rear Projection. (Machine behind the screen)

Seamless. All sizes. Mounted on roller. Can be rolled and unrolled indefinitely. Flexible. Will not crack. This screen is non-reflective, free from eye strain and Translucent. Depth of perspective WONDERFUL. The following is one of many unsolicited testimonials.

"Your screen is simply WONDERFUL. I have never seen actual stereoscopic effects on the screen with moving pictures until I saw them on the CRYSTAL-LIGHT."

If you have the room, by all means put your booth behind the screen and enjoy the advantages. With a CRYSTAL-LIGHT Screen and rear projection, the results will not only astonish you, it will improve your business tremendously.

Crystal-Light Screen Company

411 West Depot Street KNOXVILLE, TENN.

HOLD ON!
DON'T SHOOT!!

But WIRE TO-DAY for a

"MOON SCREEN"

It will make your Theatre once more a brilliant center of attraction!

The "MOON SCREEN" produces a highly artistic lighting effect and cuts the cost of lighting in half.

For the next two months, prices have been reduced to a point where they bring the "MOON SCREEN" easily within the reach of all.

The International Moon Screen Co.

387 Grand Street, New York.

Attention, Exhibitors!!

We have mapped out the greatest advertising campaign for you that has ever been conceived.

CHEAP — BIG RETURNS

With our proposition you need fear no competitors.

We give territorial protection, so get signed up before your neighbor.

"First Come, First Served."

Not an experiment, but operating with wonderful success everywhere.

Send us card or letter for layout and details.

The Wyanoak Publishing Co.

136-146 WEST 52ND STREET
NEW YORK CITY

The Light Which Does Not Interfere With Projection

The day of the dark theatre has passed. This is due primarily to the perfection of the EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System. This system is neither an imitation nor a substitute. It is based on fundamental principles discovered by us and proven by long practice to be absolutely correct. It is the original indirect lighting.

Indirect Light does not interfere with the clearness of the picture. It has no glare, does not distract attention or cause headaches.

It lights the house evenly. It relieves eyestrain.

The Eye Comfort Lighting System is so good and so successful that it is imitated. But these imitations, which are offered you because they are "cheap," lack the powerful one-piece silvered mirror X-RAY EYE COMFORT reflectors which control and direct the light by their scientific design and evenly light the house. These are the most powerful reflectors made and require less current than any others.

Fill in the blank below and allow our engineers to lay out a plan for lighting your theatre. This won't cost you a cent and does not obligate you in any way. But it will tell you exactly how much EYE COMFORT LIGHTING for your theatre would cost.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium.....
Ceiling Height .....
Width of House .....
Height Under Balcony .....
Distance Rear Auditorium to Front of Balcony.....
Name .....

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO. Chicago: 229 W. Jackson Blvd. New York: 6 East 39th St.

RIGHT IS MIGHT!

AND THAT IS WHY

"THE PEERLESS" The Indoor Screen —THE DAY and NIGHT SCREEN— "THE PIONEER" The Outdoor Screen

"THE SCREEN WITHOUT A SEAM"

HAS BECOME THE STANDARD SCREEN OF THE WORLD—THAT IS WHY IT IS KNOWN AS

THE SCREEN OF QUALITY THE SCREEN DE LUXE

IT'S RIGHT. THERE'S NOTHING ABOUT IT TO CONCEAL—NOTHING TO EXPLAIN AWAY

WATCH FOR EARLY IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

DAY AND NIGHT SCREENS, Inc.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE 110 WEST 40th ST., N. Y. Telephone 7930 Bryant ARRANGE FOR TEST

Branch Offices and Distributing Centers at

PHILADELPHIA, NEW ORLEANS, ATLANTA, EL PASO, MEMPHIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, SAN FRANCISCO, WASHINGTON, LOS ANGELES, SEATTLE, PARIS, BERLIN, LONDON

WE ARE # HEADQUARTERS

For ALL IMPORTED QUALITY M. P. APPARATUS

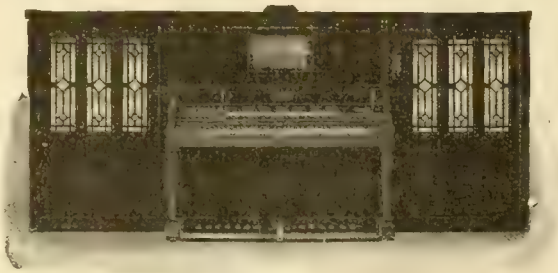
Pathe, Moy and Prestwich

MOTION CAMERAS, PRINTERS, PERFORATORS and TRIPODS

MOTION PICTURE APPARATUS CO., Inc. Stuyvesant 822 810 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

SEEBURG "MOTION PICTURE PLAYER"

It has solved one of the Big Problems of the Moving Picture Business.



Played either manually or automatically, it produces real music for the pictures.

"The Wonder of them all"

Get Complete Information on it by Addressing

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO., Manufacturers, 209 S. STATE STREET, Republic Building CHICAGO, ILL.

17 CENTS A DAY BUYS

The OLIVER Typewriter No. 7

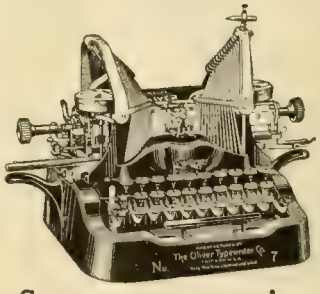
The Standard Visible Writer

Can you spend 17 cents a day to better advantage than in the purchase of this wonderful machine?

Write for Special Easy-Payment Proposition, or see the nearest Oliver Agent.

THE OLIVER TYPEWRITER CO.

310 Broadway, New York, N. Y.



Save your pennies and own

The OLIVER Typewriter

Stockton's Scriptwriting Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

REV. E. BOUDINOT STOCKTON, S.T.B.
161 So. Arlington Ave., East Orange, N. J.

Are You Tired

of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection

contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3

Piano, (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1941 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs.

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Ave. and Leo St., CHICAGO, ILL.

CARBONS FOR SALE

Pink Label Electra Cored	5/8	by 6	inch,	$5.00 per 100
Pink Label Electra Cored	5/8	by 7	inch,	5.50 per 100
Pink Label Electra Cored	5/8	by 9½	inch,	7.50 per 100
Pink Label Electra Cored	5/8	by 12	inch,	10.00 per 100
Pink Label Electra Solid	½	by 6	inch,	2.00 per 100
Pink Label Electra Solid	5/8	by 12	inch,	4.50 per 100
Blue Label Electra Cored	½	by 9½	inch,	6.00 per 100
Blue Label Electra Cored	½	by 12	inch,	7.50 per 100

Bio A Cored Carbons, 5/8 by 12 inch, $10.00 per 100
Arco A Cored Carbons 5/8 by 12 inch, $10.00 per 100

CHICAGO STAGE LIGHTING COMPANY

112 N. LA SALLE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(INCORPORATED)

Jobbers for Powers, Edison, Motiograph and Simplex

LARGEST LEADING SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

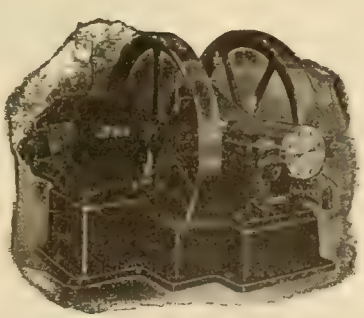
Mercury Arc Rectifier	Wagner Converters
Flame Arc Lamps	Brass and Wood Frames
Automatic Ticket Registers	Ticket Choppers
Exit Signs	Asbestos State Booths
Slide Ink	Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Carrying Cases	Fire Extinguishers
Tickets	Fire Boxes
Condensers	Carbons
Pianos	Cement
Chairs	Trap Drum Effects

MIRROR SCREENS

PROMPT SHIPMENTS BACKED BY A SOLID GUARANTEE

A Few Slightly Used Machines

N. W. corner 13th and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.



PUT in your own lighting plant and pay for it with your Central Station bills. A Foos generating set will produce current for less than 3 cents per kilowatt, and is more reliable than service from a Central Station.

Ask for Bulletin 98.

FOOS GAS ENGINE CO.
Springfield, Ohio.

SAVE 35%

ON YOUR

CARBONS

Don't Throw Money Away

BE WISE

Burn Your Carbon Stumps

WITH A

Pat. Applied for

Carbon Economizer

Will fit the jaws of any lamp. Gives highest conductivity, perfect contact and does not increase resistance. Mechanically correct and will last years.

A SET WILL PAY FOR ITSELF IN A FEW DAYS

Don't Wait Buy One Today

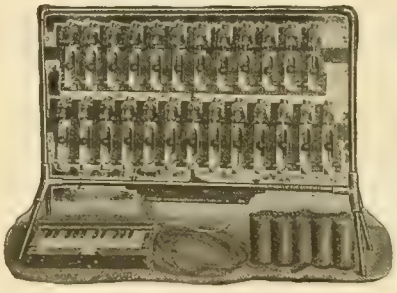
$1.25 Each — Sizes ½"-⅝"-¾" — $2.00 Upper & Lower Set

To insure prompt delivery send Draft, Money Order or Cash and we will send your order by prepaid parcel post.

THE CARBON ECONOMIZER CO.
757 West Onondaga St., Syracuse, N. Y.

DEAGAN UNAPHONE

FOR MOTION PICTURE THEATRES



EASY TO BUY
EASY TO PLAY
EASY TO CARRY
ALWAYS A HIT

Write for particulars,

J. C. DEAGAN,
Deagan Building,
1760 Berteau Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT
Moving Picture Machines, Films and Chairs
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE
440 S. Dearborn Chicago, Ill

From the Patrons View Point

What Causes People

to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable.

This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a to step down your current you are not getting best results.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARC

With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films.

It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments.

But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc

Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it.

We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why If you want a better light at ⅓ your present cost, send for it today. It's free.

FT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

C 5

WAR IS HELL

So is the shortage of carbons.
Burn up your short ends.

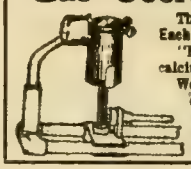
Send $1.50 for a pair of Webb's Carbon Extension Holders

Sent prepaid on receipt of price

MOTION PICTURE SPECIALTY AND REPAIR CO.
326 3d Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.

BE UP TO DATE
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 6 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

Gas Users — Attention!



The "Gull Pastil" doubles your light. Each (large size), $1.25; 6 for $6.75. "Fulco" adapter makes Pastil fit any calcium burner, $1.00 each.

We carry most complete line in stock of picture machines and supplies in America. E. E. FULTON, 153 W. Lake St., Chicago, Sole American distributors for "Gull Pastil."

GO INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

MAKE MONEY FAST!
BE YOUR OWN BOSS!
$30 TO $50 PER NIGHT CLEAR
No Experience Needed
We furnish you with machine, film, curtain and complete outfit ready to go to work with ON OUR EASY PAYMENT PLAN.
Write Now for Our Large FREE Catalogue.
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO.
Dept. M. P., Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago

BEST OF CAMERA MEN
Furnished for all Occasions
CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO.
4108-22 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Manufacturers of the Wonderful
REMBUSCH PATENTED GLASS MIRROR SCREEN

And all other kinds of Curtains for Moving Picture Projection, White Opaque, Glass Transparent Screens for Rear Projection, Goldcloth Fibre Screens, Mirrorcloth Fibre Screens, Seamless with Stretchers or Rollers.

Phone Seven-Eleven F. J. REMBUSCH, Pres.

MIRROR SCREEN COMPANY, INC.
SHELBYVILLE, INDIANA

The Glass Mirror Screen reflects the picture entirely by Diffuse Reflection. Send for my booklet explaining the philosophy of screens. You will learn something.

Nine different finishes. For wide or narrow houses.

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

AGENCIES:
H. S. Ansley,
1476 B'way, Long Acre Bldg.,
New York City.
'Phone 5619 Bryant
California Seating Company,
720 South Hill Street,
Los Angeles, Cal.
H. A. Johnson Seating Company,
1214½ Third Ave.,
Seattle, Wash.

THE WISCONSIN SEATING COMPANY
New London, Wis., U. S. A.

REAL QUALITY CHAIRS
FOR QUALITY REEL SHOWS

Ask for FREE booklet V-2 upholstered Veneer Seating V-3
If you are interested in Motion Picture Theatre Seating
send ground sketch and we will draft for you FREE seating plan showing the most economical arrangement of seating for your theatre.

American Seating Company
Display Rooms and Installation Service
14 E. Jackson Blvd., CHICAGO 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK
Boston, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Forty Other Large Cities

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON
HIGH Quality
LOW Price

Opera Chairs
immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.
Pittsburgh, 318 Bissell Blk.; Boston, 69 Pearl St.

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES
ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

CHAIRS
The A. H. Andrews Co.
115-117 So. Wabash Ave.
Chicago, Ill.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office
1472 Broadway, Long Acre Bldg.
Seattle Office
508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office
782 Mission St.

OPERA CHAIRS
Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING
BENNETT SEATING CO
537 West Market St.
LOUISVILLE, KY.

The "Standardized" Theatre Chairs
Do you want a life-saving chair?
Do you want a space-saving chair?
Do you want a sanitary chair?
Do you want a scientifically built, double standard chair?
We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US
The HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio

MOVING PICTURE ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT
Used and highly endorsed by the United States Army. Biggest Sensation in the Moving Picture World. Can be operated by a boy 10 years old. One customer writes:
"Plant running like a top and delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house. Costs us about one-tenth as much as public service. Also pumps water to all our buildings, 2,000 gallons per day."
Write today for Bulletin 101. It is a mighty interesting booklet.
(163) DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. 102, DETROIT, MICH., U. S. A.

BOOK NOW
"The Kaiser's Challenge"
(Two Reels)
For Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Iowa
"The Black Triangle" (Five Parts) For Illinois Only
GENERAL FEATURE FILM COMPANY
5 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago

Theatre Supplies
Such as seats of all kinds and all leading makes of moving picture machines, Iron Booths, Curtains, etc., always in stock for immediate shipment. Send us a list of your wants and see why we are the largest THEATRE SUPPLY concern in the west. Always have some slightly used chairs and picture machines on hand.

Lears Theatre Supply Co.
Sam Lears, Prop.
509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

MR. ADVERTISER MR. ADVERTISER MR. ADVERTISER
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD WILL TELL YOUR STORY TO THE PEOPLE IT OUGHT TO REACH

MUTUAL PROGRAM

THE MAJESTIC MOTION PICTURE CO.

In its two part Feature for release Sunday, Oct. 11

SANDS OF FATE

presents in the leading parts the favorite Majestic players

DOROTHY GISH

DOROTHY GISH and ROBERT HARRON

MAJESTIC TWO-PART FEATURES

And One Reel Regular Releases

are showing constant gains in popular favor. It has been our aim to make them if possible the most dependable one and two-reel pictures in any program, free from padding, superior in story and treatment and featuring leading players such as Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish and Dorothy Gish, so that exhibitors may feel assured of profitable box office results every time the word "Majestic" appears in their billing. The verdict of the public, as evidenced by the gratifying increase in the demand for Majestic releases, would seem to indicate that we are measurably succeeding.

THE MAJESTIC GUIDE FOR EXHIBITORS

(In which we try to tell only the truth about all Majestic releases)

HIS MOTHER'S TRUST (1 Reel) Release date Tuesday, Sept. 29—Not entirely up to standard of Majestic in detail of production but a strong story, featuring Robert Harron.

OUT OF THE AIR (2 Reels) Release date Sunday, Oct. 4—One of the most thrilling pictures we have ever seen. The hero drops from a flying aeroplane to a moving train, both going 60 miles an hour—a marvelous feat never before attempted.

THE UNPAINTED PORTRAIT (1 Reel) Release date Tuesday, Oct. 6—An exceedingly well-produced, strongly interesting society drama.

SANDS OF FATE (2 Reels) Release date Sunday, Oct. 11—Our candid opinion of this picture, featuring Dorothy Gish and Robert Harron, will be announced next week.

Studio:
4500 Sunset Blvd.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Majestic Motion Picture Co.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

Business Offices:
29 Union Sq. West,
New York City

Selig

Now Ready For You BIG SELIG FEATURES They're Winners

IN THREE REELS

Lithographed posters—one-sheets, three-sheets and six-sheets, in four brilliant colors; also SELIG HERALDS ready for use with each feature.

Order NOW from Special Feature Dept. General Film Co. Write or wire TODAY

HERE THEY ARE:

IN TUNE WITH THE WILD (Three Reels)
A great Selig Jungle-Zoo Special, featuring KATHLYN WILLIAMS
Written by E. A. MARTIN

CHIP, OF THE FLYING "U" (Three Reels)
A hilarious Western Comedy, featuring KATHLYN WILLIAMS
Written by B. M. BOWER

THE FIFTH MAN (Three Reels)
A spectacular Selig Jungle-Zoo Animal Picture, featuring BESSIE EYTON
Written by JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

Your favorite newspaper can get plates from the Western Newspaper Union for novelettes written from these pictures by KATHLYN WILLIAMS

HEARTS AND MASKS (Three Reels)
(Released October 1) A Sensational Selig Detective Drama, featuring KATHLYN WILLIAMS
Written by HAROLD MacGRATH

The Western Newspaper Union has plates for this complete novel written by HAROLD MacGRATH

GARRISON'S FINISH (Three Reels)
(Released October 15) A Great Selig Race Track Drama
Written by W. B. M. FERGUSON

All big Money Makers for Exhibitors

Wire or Write AT ONCE for BIG SELIG FEATURES

SELIG CURRENT RELEASES WEEK OF OCTOBER 5-10

RELEASED OCTOBER 5
The Moving Picture Cowboy
Two Reels
One of the most astonishing and clever acrobatic pictures ever made. TOM MIX performs the most astounding feats ever filmed.

RELEASED OCTOBER 5
The Hearst-Selig News Pictorial
One Reel

RELEASED OCTOBER 6
The Way of the Redman
One Reel
The duplicity of a white man moves an Indian to typical Redskin reprisals.

RELEASED OCTOBER 7
The Reparation
One Reel
A fascinating and thrilling Selig drama, picturing the story of an awakened honor.

RELEASED OCTOBER 8
The Hearst-Selig News Pictorial
One Reel

RELEASED OCTOBER 9
Jimmie, the Porter
Split Reel
A clever, Selig Farce-Comedy, full of laughs. On the same reel with Sidney Smith's latest motion picture cartoon, DOC YAK'S BOTTLE.

RELEASED OCTOBER 10
Her Victory Eternal
One Reel
This is a Selig tragedy, well played, with striking characters admirably portrayed. A tense story.

BIG WAR PICTURES DIRECT FROM BATTLEFIELDS

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL

First in War—First in Peace—First in Popularity
Released Mondays and Thursdays

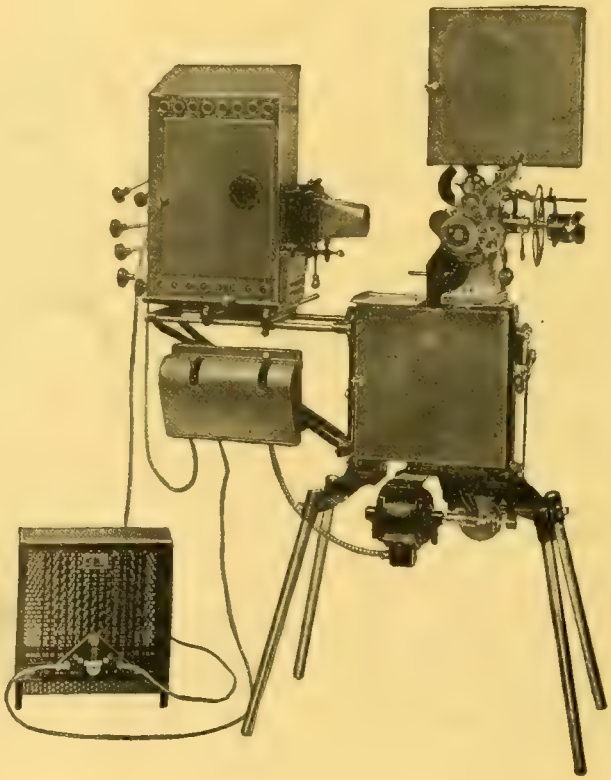
All Selig Releases through General Film Co.

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

General Offices: 20 East Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

PROSPERITY

THE ONLY WAY TO SUCCESS IS BY THE SATISFACTION ROUTE AND BY INSTALLING THE PERFECT MOTION PICTURE PROJECTING APPARATUS, POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6A, IN YOUR THEATRE, YOU SATISFY THE PUBLIC AND RETAIN THEIR PATRONAGE, WHICH IS ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL TO YOUR PROSPERITY



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 22, No. 2 October 10, 1914 Price 10 Cents

H E HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Other Man" (Essanay).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

Drawn Into the Quicksand

In episode No. 16 of The Million Dollar Mystery is a thrilling portrayal of an actual quicksand into which Flo La Badie falls. See this exciting scene. See this struggle between life and death. See the daring rescue by James Cruze.

This sensational episode indicates the reason for the tremendous popularity of The Million Dollar Mystery. Undoubtedly, this is the biggest success ever known in motion picture circles.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

Story by Harold MacGrath Scenario by Lloyd Lonergan

Thanhouser's Million Dollar Motion Picture Production

Episode No. 16 has just been released. A two-reel episode is released each week. The entire story is produced in 23 episodes. Bookings on all episodes are now being made.

Don't overlook this: $10,000.00 will be paid by the Thanhouser Film Corporation for the best 100-word solution of the mystery. For booking dates address

SYNDICATE FILM CORPORATION

71 W. 23rd Street, New York Room 411, 5 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago

or Syndicate Film Corporation Representative at Any Mutual Exchange in the United States and Canada

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Tuesday, Oct. 6. "The Cripple." (Two reels.) An exceptional drama featuring Nolan Gane, Lydia Mead, Arthur Bauer, Mrs. Fairbanks, E. C. Ward and Virginia Waite.

Friday, Oct. 9. "The Benevolence of Conductor 786." A one-reel drama illustrating the goodness of charity. The cast includes Riley Chamberlin, Helen Badgley (Thanhouse Kidlet), Marion and Madeline Fairbanks, Fan Bourke, Joe Sparks and J. S. Murray.

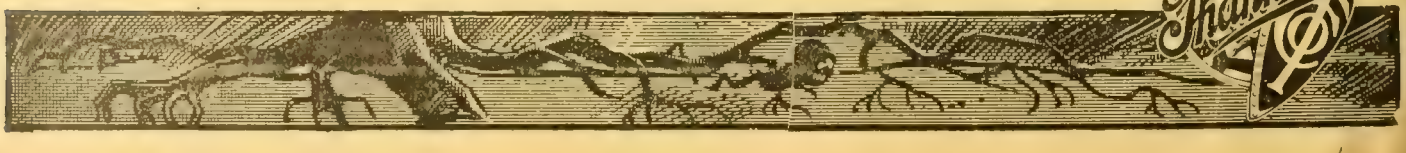
Sunday, Oct. 11. "The Rescue." One-reel drama featuring Mildred Hellar, Harry Benham and Mayre Hall.

48

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Head European Office, Thanhouser Films, Ltd., London, W. C., England

Regular Thanhouser Releases are distributed exclusively in the United States and Canada by the Mutual Film Corporation



PARAMOUNT
LASKY
PICTURES
JESSE L. LASKY
PRESENTS
THE EMINENT STAR & POPULAR FAVORITE
MR. ROBERT EDESON
IN A PICTURIZATION OF HIS FAMOUS STAGE SUCCESS
WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES
300 SCENES SUPERBLY SET WITH FAULTLESS ATTENTION TO DETAIL
5 ACTS OF EXTRAORDINARY DRAMATIC ACTION
RELEASED OCT. 12
JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY COMPANY
LONG ACRE THEATRE N. Y. C. W. 48TH STREET
JESSE L LASKY PRESIDENT
SAMUEL GOLDFISH TREAS. & GEN'L MANAGER
CECIL B. DE MILLE DIRECTOR GENERAL

It's Here!

The First of the Irresistible L-Ko Comedies

—Title — "LOVE AND SURGERY!" Two reels of it.

—Released Monday, Oct. 19. Very, very, VERY funny!

—Billie Ritchie shows that he is one of the best knock-about comedians in the world. He'll knock you out of your seat a-laughing! and it's not just the daring falls he takes that tickle your resistibilities. It's the genuine Comedy that is in him and which sparkles out of him onto the screen and into your laughter-loving heart.

—Pathe Lehrman, the creator of the L-KO comedies, himself appears in "LOVE AND SURGERY," and the funny work of Gertrude Selby and rotund Henry Bergman help to keep you convulsed. Order "LOVE AND SURGERY" now and then order every L-KO comedy as released.

—NOW, THEN, LET'S DROP L-KO FOR A MINUTE AND TAKE STOCK ON THOSE SEVEN FEATURES FOR THE WEEK OF OCTOBER 12. HERE'S THE DOPE: MONDAY, OCT. 12, "THE DREAMER," 2-REEL VICTOR, J. WARREN KERRIGAN; TUESDAY, OCT. 13, "TREY O' HEARTS," NO. 11, "PAINTED HILLS," CLEO MADISON AND GEORGE LARKIN; WEDNESDAY, OCT. 14, "THE SQUATTER," 3-REEL ECLAIR, EDNA PAYNE AND ROBERT FRAZER; THURSDAY, OCT. 15, "FUTILITY OF REVENGE," 2-REEL IMP, DOROTHY PHILLIPS AND ALEX GADEN; FRIDAY, OCT. 16, "THE PADRONE'S WARD," 2-REEL POWERS, EDNA MAISON; SATURDAY, OCT. 17, "MONSIEUR BLUEBEARD," 2-REEL BISON, MURDOCK MACQUARRIE; SUNDAY, OCT. 18, "KID REGAN'S HANDS," 2-REEL REX, ANNA LITTLE AND HERBERT RAWLINSON.

—And did you know "THE ANIMATED WEEKLY" is the only news weekly that is getting any live stuff pertinent to the present European conflict? See the nearest Universal exchange QUICK and have them run off some late issues.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE."

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CARL LAEMMLE, President

Boston!

The Phenomenal Growth of the Universal

—There are 49 moving picture theatres in Boston!

—Of this number 22 are being supplied with Universal service by the New England Universal Film Exchange's Boston office.

—NEARLY HALF OF ALL THE BOSTON THEATRES HAVE DECIDED THAT THE UNIVERSAL IS THE BEST. The other half divide their business among the General, the Mutual, Warners, the Famous Players and smaller feature exchanges.

—This condition is not peculiar to Boston alone. It exists all over the country. We're going to give you the facts and figures every week.

—Why, why, why, why, why, why is this the case?

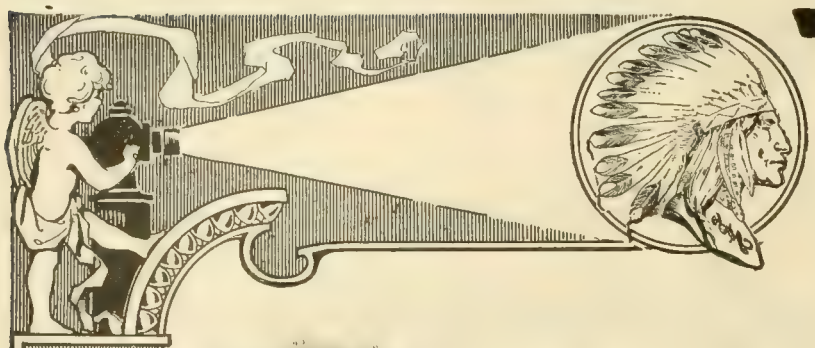
—Smash that question into your brain. Search out the answer. Don't be satisfied till you KNOW the truth. Is the Universal the cheapest service? NO. Does it bring the steadiest and greatest profits to exhibitors? Yes!! That's the answer and the truth—and the sooner you realize it the better for your future!

Watch for more facts next week!

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE."

600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CARL LAEMMLE, President



ESSANAY
Six – A

G. M. ANDERSON

Three Big Laughs

Three Big Thrills

MARGUERITE CLAYTON

Released Monday, October 12

"Sweedie Learns to Swim"

Another one of those screamingly funny comedies.

Released Tuesday, October 13

"Through Eyes of Love"

A romance containing more heart interest than any one-reel photoplay produced in years.

Released Wednesday, October 14

THE FABLE OF

"The Author and the Dear Public and the Plate of Mush"

By GEORGE ADE

In this George Ade has written one of the funniest of his "Fables in Slang" series.

Released Thursday, October 15

"Snakeville's Peace-Maker"

"Slippery Slim" and "Mustang Pete" again fight, but Sophie proves to be the dove of peace.

Released Friday, October 16

"The Other Man"

(In two Acts)

A stirring two-act drama from the pen of Maibeele Heikes Justice, one of the most famous short story writers in the country.

Released Saturday, October 17

"Broncho Billy Rewarded"

A dashing drama of the west, featuring G. M. ANDERSON

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

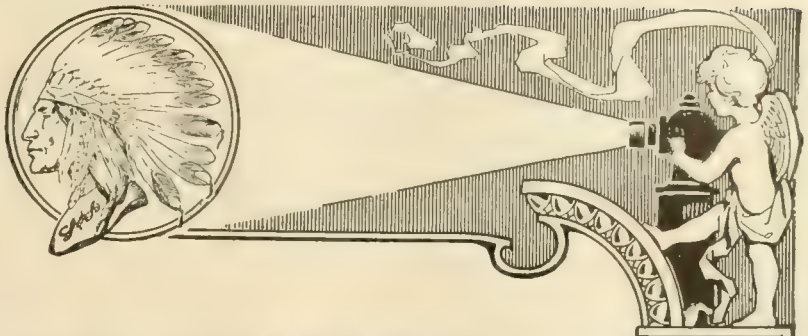
First to Standardize Photoplays

HELEN DUNBAR

ESSANAY FILM

Laboratory and Studios, 1333 Argyle St., Chicago. Downtown Offices 521 First

-Week



FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

IS PRESENTED IN

"In the Glare of the Lights"

AND

"THE PLUM TREE"

The man who was voted the world's most popular photoplayer is at his best in these two tremendous dramas, the first of ESSANAY'S prize mystery dramas. "The Plum Tree" (in 3 acts) was released Sept. 18. Exhibitors write that it is breaking all their records for them. "In the Glare of the Lights" (in 3 acts) is booked for release Oct. 17. IT IS ANOTHER WINNER. Both these thrilling plays are produced in conjunction with the complete short stories published in the October and November issues of THE LADIES' WORLD MAGAZINE. In each story a paragraph is missing. LARGE PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR THE BEST WRITTEN MISSING PARAGRAPH. FIVE MILLION READERS of the magazine will demand to see the film dramas in order to solve the mystery.

BOOK THEM NOW

Released through the feature department of the GENERAL FILM CO.

"One Wonderful Night"
(IN FOUR ACTS)
is "packing 'em in" all over the country. It is called "one wonderful picture." FEATURING FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN.

"Blood Will Tell"
(IN THREE ACTS)
The climax of romantic Colonial dramas. Critics call it "one of the best photoplays ever produced."

"The Good-for-Nothing"
(IN FOUR ACTS)
Features G. M. ANDERSON, the most picturesque of all photoplay stars. The drama is one of gripping intensity.

"Ambushed"
(IN THREE ACTS)
Another of those ESSANAY successes abounding in mystery and adventure which delight any audience.

Manufacturing Co.

N ational Bank Building. Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona.

NOW'S THE TIME to book the greatest spectacle and most gripping photoplay ever made in America

"THE WRATH OF THE GODS"

or The Destruction of Sakura-Jima

6 PARTS

PRODUCED BY
Thomas H. Ince

FEATURING THE Imperial Japanese Company

If for any reason bookings cannot be secured at any of the following exchanges, write or wire us instantly.

PACIFIC MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
1929 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

PACIFIC MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
164 Turk Street, San Francisco, Cal.

COLORADO FEATURE FILM CO.,
21 Iron Bldg., Denver, Colo.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
1413 Harney Street, Omaha, Neb.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
1807 Main Street, Dallas, Texas

MUTUAL FILM CORP. OF MISSOURI,
9th and Pine Streets, St. Louis, Mo.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
340 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
40½ Luckie Street, Atlanta, Ga.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
5 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
307 Enterprise Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
106 Prospect Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
420 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
902 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CONTINENTAL FEATURE FILM CO.,
1106 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
423 Ninth Street, Washington, D. C.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
71 West 23rd Street, New York City

WESTERN FILM EXCHANGE,
145 West 45th Street, New York City

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
154 St. Catherine St., W., Montreal, Canada

MUTUAL FILM EXCHANGE,
28 W. Lexington St., Baltimore, Md.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
272 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y.

MUTUAL FILM CO.,
17 Opera Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MUTUAL FILM CO.,
Willoughby Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

MUTUAL FILM CO.,
Empress Theatre Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

PACIFIC MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
738 South Olive Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
440 Temple Court, Minneapolis, Minn.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
25 Hudson Street, Oklahoma, Okla.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.,
14 McTyre Bldg., Salt Lake City, Utah

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CORP.

Longacre Building

42nd STREET, BROADWAY NEW YORK

KAY-BEE

KEYSTONE

BRONCHO

KAY-BEE

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Friday, Oct. 9—The Sheriff of Muscatine.

Friday, Oct. 16—The Word of His People.

Friday, Oct. 23—The Spark Eternal.

KEYSTONE

Three a Week

Monday, Oct. 5—Their Ups and Downs.

Thursday, Oct. 8—Hello Mabel.

Saturday, Oct. 10—Those Love Pangs.

Monday, Oct. 12—The Anglers.

The Keystone Co. in the very near future will release a multiple reel comedy every other week in addition to the regular releases.

BRONCHO

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Wednesday, Oct. 7—The Boss of the 8th.

Wednesday, Oct. 14—The End of the Galley.

Wednesday, Oct. 21—Shorty and Sherlock Holmes.

DOMINO

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Thursday, Oct. 8—The Whiskey Runners.

Thursday, Oct. 15—Jimmy.

Thursday, Oct. 22—The Power of the Angelus.

Thursday, Oct. 29—Eric the Red's Wooing.

Released Exclusively Through the Mutual Film Corporation

PENNANTS—Beautiful bright colored pennants of the four brands can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 35 cents for one, $1.25 for set of four.

PHOTOS—8 x 10 photos of our players can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 15 cents for one, 50 cents for set of four, $1.00 for set of eight.

Keystone Mabel in Four Poses 50 Cents

New York Motion Picture Corporation

FORTY-SECOND ST. and BROADWAY, Longacre Building, NEW YORK

BRONCHO

KEYSTONE

DOMINO

Crowded Houses — Playing to Standing Room only—at the Strand Theatre, New York City. Be sure you book the

Patchwork Girl of Oz

Released Through Paramount Program

Now Ready! Another Big Winner—A Wonderful Feature

The Magic Cloak of Oz

Produced under the personal direction of the author, L. FRANK BAUM. Five reels of pathos, comedy, magnificent scenes and brilliant photography. Write or wire for bookings at once.

His Majesty, the Scarecrow of Oz

The most spectacular and entertaining photo extravaganza yet produced. Just completed. Arrange your bookings.

The Last Egyptian

Now being produced. A wonderfully dramatic story, full of thrills love and adventure! Don't miss it.

"The Oz Film Company has made a debut which places it in a decidedly strategic position on the motion picture map," says the N. Y. Morning Telegraph.

IF YOU HAVE NOT YET BOOKED OZ FEATURES DO SO AT ONCE!

The Oz Film Manufacturing Co.

Studios and Laboratories: Santa Monica Blvd., Gower to Lodi Sts.

Los Angeles, California

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

DANIEL FROHMAN
Presents

The dainty, magnetic star,

MARGUERITE CLARK

In a bewitching characterization,

"WILDFLOWER"

By Mary Germaine

A tender tale of sweet innocence and eternal youth,

IN FOUR PARTS – RELEASED OCTOBER 15TH.

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM Co

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President,
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director EDWIN · S · PORTER, Technical Director
Executive Offices,
213-229 W. 26TH. STREET, NEW YORK.

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

MR. MAX FIGMAN
IN
"THE HOOSIER SCHOOLMASTER"
(5 REELS)
By-Edward Eggleston
To Be Released Soon
MASTERPIECE FILM
MFG. CO.
Los Angeles, Cal.
VAN NUYS BLDG.

THE PIONEER POSTER MAKERS OF THE WORLD

ESTABLISHED 1866

WORLD'S LARGEST

SAWYER INC.

FILM MART
1600 BROADWAY-NEW YORK

A. H. SAWYER
President and General Manager

SAWYER SHATTERS SUPERSTITION

FOR YEARS THE TRADE HAS SAID "IT CAN'T BE DONE"

BUT SAWYER HAS DONE IT

Beginning on Oct. 19th, the Dream of Filmdom Comes True

Seven One Reel Comedies Weekly

(BREVITY IS THE SOUL OF WIT)

The Public Want Comedies—Sawyer Has Them! Better Get Aboard the Sawyer Bandwagon Today!

THE GREATEST INDIAN ACTRESS OF THE MOVIES

PRINCESS MONA DARKFEATHER will appear in twelve two-reel features, to be released weekly. Remarkable company of actors assembled, directed by Frank Montgomery, who is also making for weekly release

Single Reel "MONTY COMEDIES," With Jane Keckley

THE SANTA BARBARA MOTION PICTURE CO. HAS PUT 1742 LAUGHS in

"THIRTY MINUTES OF MELODRAMA"

A Two-Reel Burlesque that goes the speed limit in turning out laughs. Burlesque on Old-Fashioned Melodrama that is a scream from start to finish—A novelty unexcelled.

DON'T FORGET THE OTHER "SANTA BARBARA"

"THE ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY"—FIVE REELS

WAR

IN EUROPE

Four Reels Authentic Films, Mainly of Austro-Servian Campaign, Actual Scenes, Battle of Shabatz, Red Cross Work, and Military Aeroplanes in Action. Also French Naval Bombardment Cataro, Austria. Absolutely genuine. Release Oct. 9th.

"KIDS OF THE MOVIES" — Another "Different" Two-Reel Comedy Coming Soon.

"AERIAL SCOUT" — Two-Reel Thriller on an International War Time Conspiracy.

"HERO OF THE NORTH" — Stirring Tale of the Northwest Mounted Police, in Two Reels.

"HEARTS UNITED"

A Four-Reel Drama by the Liberty Co. Romantic Story of the Conventional East and the Real Wild West.

A. H. SAWYER
President and General Manager

TWO SENSATIONS

JAPANESE AMERICAN FILM CO.

(Operated and Controlled by Japanese)

PRESENT THEIR FIRST PHOTODRAMA, IN THREE PARTS

"THE OATH OF THE SWORD"

PLAYED BY A MARVELLOUS AGGREGATION OF THE GREATEST JAPANESE ACTORS, WITH SCENIC SETTINGS SO SUMPTUOUS THAT THEIR MAGNIFICENCE BAFFLES DESCRIPTION—SOMETHING ABSOLUTELY NEW AT LAST!

SAWYER SAYS: "Never in my life have I seen such a wonderful three-reeler as this. 'The Oath of the Sword' is the Sensation of the Century. It has a real punch—it grips and thrills you. It is a masterpiece—Take my word for it."

(Signed) A. H. SAWYER.

THRILLING! VIVID! AWE-INSPIRING!

PHOENIX FILM COMPANY OF SAN RAFAEL, CAL.

Make their first bow to the public with the Great Five-Reeler

"THE SPIRIT OF THE CONQUEROR"

Or "THE NAPOLEON OF LABOR"

WITH FRANK NEWBURG FORMER STAR OF SELIG and VITAGRAPH AS THE LABOR LEADER

A Spectacular Labor Picture with Theme so Unusual and Powerful That It Takes Your Breath Away

Napoleon comes back to earth. In his second life he becomes the champion of organized labor, leading the forces of labor in their battle against capitalism and oppression. His masterly generalship leads them to victory—and without violence! A charming romance is woven into this unique drama.

A Play That Will Live For Years

STARTLING LOGICAL STUPENDOUS

WAR! WAR! WAR!

Here At Last Guaranteed Genuine

OR MONEY REFUNDED

THE FIRST AUTHENTIC FILM FROM THE FRONT

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY. SERIES NUMBER ONE

GERMAN INVASION —OF— BRUSSELS

THE ACTUAL ENTRY INTO BRUSSELS THE GERMAN OCCUPATION

ONE-SHEET POSTERS

400 FEET 10c. FOOT NET

WE WILL CONTINUE RELEASING ONE A WEEK

NUMBER TWO READY TO FOLLOW

TERMONDE IN RUINS

S. L. WARNER FILM CO.

WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING

London:
99A Charing Cross Road

110 West 40th St., NEW YORK
Telephone, Bryant 7183

RELEASED
OCTOBER FIFTH
THROUGH
ALCO FILM CORPORATION

The World's Favorite

ETHEL BARRYMORE

IN

THE NIGHTINGALE

A Five-part Motion Picture written for Miss Barrymore by Augustus Thomas

"The Nightingale" is a great picture.—N. Y. Clipper.
There is no gainsaying the delight of Miss Barrymore's performance or the general excellence of the production.—Dramatic Mirror.

IN PREPARATION

DIGBY BELL

IN

THE EDUCATION OF MR. PIPP

5 REELS

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
220 W. 42D ST., NEW YORK

STUDIOS AND LABORATORIES
FORT LEE, N. J.

GET IN LINE AND BOOK

ST. ELMO SIX PARTS

The best money-getting film of the year. Broke all box office records. A few of the many satisfied theatres that have played ST. ELMO for one week:

IN NEW YORK CITY

THE STRAND	Broadway	3,200 Seats
AUDUBON	Broadway	3,500 "
PROCTOR'S	Fifth Avenue	2,000 "
RIVERSIDE	Broadway	2,600 "
EMPRESS	181st Street	1,000 "
GARDEN	The Bronx	1,000 "
BEDFORD	Brooklyn	2,200 "
CORSE PAYTON'S LEE AVENUE	Brooklyn	1,800 "
HENDERSON'S	Coney Island	2,200 "

and 81 other houses in New York City

ST. ELMO, by Augusta Evans, the Best Photoplay of 1914.

ST. ELMO NOW RELEASED in all parts of America, wire, write or call on our nearest exchange for an open date.

ST. ELMO—A picture for men, women and children.

MORE SURE-FIRE ATTRACTIONS NOW BOOKING

WILL O' THE WISP.....4 Reels
FIGHTING THE WORLD.....5 Reels
THE SQUARE TRIANGLE.....3 Reels

SPECIAL—"LIFE'S SHOP WINDOW," by Victoria Cross, will be ready for booking October 20th.

We release 3 Features and 3 Single Reels weekly.
Also 3 big special productions every month.

EXCHANGES

NEW YORK, 130 West 46th St.
CHICAGO, Mallers Bldg.
CLEVELAND, Columbia Bldg.
PHILADELPHIA, 1333 Vine St.
DALLAS, 1907 Commerce St.
MINNEAPOLIS, Jewelers' Exchange Bldg.
ST. LOUIS, 3632 Olive St.
SAN FRANCISCO, 107 Golden Gate Ave.
PITTSBURGH, 121 4th Ave.
SYRACUSE, Eckel Theatre Bldg.
BOSTON, 10-12 Piedmont St.
KANSAS CITY, 928 Main St.
DENVER, Ideal Bldg.
SEATTLE, 1214 Third Ave.
INDIANAPOLIS
And Eleven Other Cities

The Box Office Attraction Co.

William Fox, President

Executive Offices: 130 West 46th Street, New York

WILLAT

Studios and Laboratories

Now Open for Business

LARGEST BEST EQUIPPED
NEWEST

STUDIOS to Rent
By the Day

Printing and Developing
For the Trade

Capacity, 1,500,000 Feet per Week

Inspection Invited

We cordially invite everyone interested in the Motion Picture industry to inspect the New Willat Studios and Laboratories. C. A. "Doc" Willat will be glad to show anyone over the entire plant (10 minutes' car ride from Fort Lee Ferry—130th Street).

Willat Studios and Laboratories
Inc.
Fort Lee, N. J.

COMING

POPULAR PROGRAM

A NEW HIGH-CLASS SERVICE

28 Reels Weekly 1-2-3 Reels

All Features

Comedy Dramatic

BRANDS

Jester, Comedy		Cee-O-Bee, Photoplay
Owl	"	Willat	"
Gaiety	"	Longacre	"
Luna	"	Niagara	"
Frolic	"	Palisade	"
"O.K."	"	Canyon	"
Pastime	"	Continental	"

Popular Photo Plays Corp.

911 Longacre Bldg., New York City

LENA RIVERS

READY FOR SHIPMENT

A WELL-KNOWN CAST
OF
MOVING PICTURE PERFORMERS
WITH

VIOLET HORNER

IN THE TITLE ROLE

CONSTITUTE
THIS SPLENDID PHOTOPLAY IN FIVE PARTS FROM THE FAMOUS BOOK
BY

MARY JANE HOLMES

A FULL LINE OF ADVERTISING MATTER

WIRE OR WRITE

110 W. 40th St. WHITMAN FEATURES CO. NEW YORK

"In the past I have agreed with Thomas Carlyle that silence and action seem contraries, but are often seen in operation. But in this instance I can hardly restrain myself from telling the motion picture world about our capturing 'THE SEATS OF THE MIGHTY.' I consider this picture the great American Masterpiece." LEWIS J. SELZNICK.

Two Mighty Forces Joined

The World Film Corporation

HAS THE HONOR OF ANNOUNCING THAT IT HAS ARRANGED WITH THE

Colonial Motion Picture Corporation

FOR THE PRODUCTION OF SIR GILBERT PARKER'S FAMOUS NOVEL

"The SEATS of the MIGHTY"

(CONTAINING 9,000 FEET OF THRILLS)

the greatest screen production ever undertaken in America. The result of unlimited capital and the best trained talent, presented by a superb company of Broadway stars, WITH LIONEL BARRYMORE, supported by Millicent Evans, Lois Meredith, Thomas Jefferson, Glen White, Clinton Preston, Harold Hartsell, Grace Leigh and Marjorie Bonner. Under the direction of T. Hayes Hunter.

"The Seats of the Mighty" is the most ambitious photo-play ever produced in America.

A SPECIAL RELEASE OF

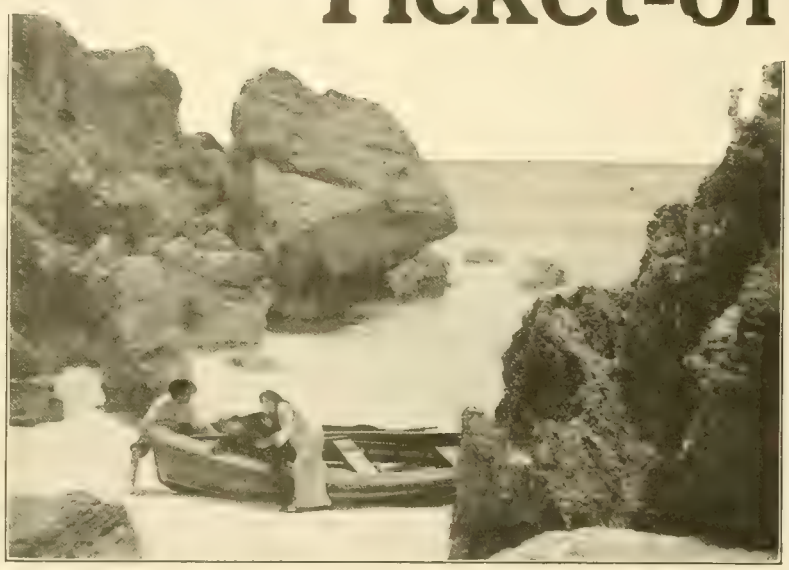
WORLD FILM CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, Vice-President and General Manager

130 WEST 46th ST., NEW YORK CITY

23 BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

The Ticket-of-Leave Man



Three-part Pathé-American-made drama, in which the villainies of a false friend lead the hero through countless adventures. Forgery leads to the convict colony and the ticket of leave. Bribery leads to a scuttled ship, a desert island, and a beautiful girl. Chivalry, courage and daring lead to a rescue and the re-establishment of justice. Three reels of thrills and snappy surprises lead to the enjoyment and applause of your patrons. Featuring Eleanor Woodruff. 1-3-6 sheet posters.

The King of the Air

A pulsing 3-part drama featuring a very remarkable aeroplane accident. The machine is actually seen to plunge with its aviator from a height of 200 feet and is smashed to splinters. The aviator, though he loses the $40,000 prize, wins a prize far more precious to him. Realism, sympathy and thrills. 1-3-6 sheet posters.

The Count That Took the Count

One-part Robbins-made American comedy. Father plans to have his daughter marry a count but he discounts the real count and fails to count in the inclinations of some other people. Real fun of this sort counts in the box-office.

The Perils of Pauline

Pauline enjoys every known form of publicity. She's written about, photographed, painted, sketched and set to music. She's imitated, talked about, placarded and advertised. Every time you show her at your theatre your theatre is advertised in the big papers.

PAULINE PLAYS TO CAPACITY HOUSES

ECLECTIC FEATURE FILM EXCHANGES FOR YOUR USE

Atlanta—61 Walton St.
Boston—3 Tremont Row
Chicago—5 So. Wabash Ave.
Cincinnati—217 E. 5th St.
Cleveland—622 Prospect Ave., S. E.
Dallas—Andrews Bldg.
Denver—Nassau Bldg.
Kansas City—928 Main St.
Los Angeles—114 E. 7th St.
Minneapolis—4th & Hennepin Sts.
New Orleans—910 Gravier St.
New York—115 E. 23rd St.
Omaha—1312 Farnam St.
Philadelphia—1235 Vine St.
Pittsburgh—715 Liberty Ave.
Portland—392 Burnside Ave.
Salt Lake City—68 South Main St.
San Francisco—67 Turk St.
Seattle—810 Third Ave.
St. Louis—3210 Locust St.
Syracuse—214 E. Fayette St.
Washington—7th and E Sts. N. W

ECLECTIC FILMS TRADE MARK PARIS-NEW YORK

THE ECLECTIC FILM COMPANY

110 West 20th Street, New York

"The Cream of American and European Studios"

ON LAND AND SEA

Motion Picture Battles

Motion picture exhibitors, no doubt, are a peace loving lot, yet some of these, we believe, have failed to realize that the maintenance of a photoplay-house is a perpetual battle. Once a month or once a week is not often enough to draw the crowds. You must do it every day—all the time; that's where helps. It fights on the side of the exhibitor and wins a daily triumph in the box-office.

The Pathé Daily News

The Pathé Daily News is based on the oldest, soundest principle of money-making—"Give the people what they want" and the people will pay for it. It is presented in every little perfection known to modern motion picture science. The freshest news obtainable, the news the people want and pay for, presented in the most interesting form known to man.

The Pathé Daily News (issued semi-weekly) may now be obtained through the Eclectic Feature Film Exchanges.

THE ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 WEST FORTIETH
NEW YORK CITY

"The Cream of American and European Studios"

COLUMBUS FILM

RELEASED THROUGH

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

EVERY TUESDAY

SINGLE OR SPLIT REEL COMEDY

SPECIAL FEATURE RELEASES

Monday, Oct. 19 THE RED CROSS NURSE—3 Reels

A THRILLING WAR STORY

Monday, Oct. 26—WHEN LIONS ESCAPE—3 Reels

EXCITING ANIMAL DRAMA

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

COLUMBUS FILM

110 West 40th Street, NEW YORK

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

Kalem Masterpiece Features

THE BAREFOOT BOY

An extraordinary Three-Act Drama featuring Marguerite Courtot, Tom Moore and Alice Hollister. The mother's discovery that her rival in love is none other than the daughter she had deserted in infancy, one of the big incidents.

The most stirring events in this story are shown on the 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

THE KING OF CHANCE

Marin Sais in a Three-Act Drama of the West. There's a great big heart-hold in the story of how Sands, the gambler, sacrifices his all to save the boy who has been ruined by Flo, the girl of the dance hall.

The 1, 3 and 6-Sheets will COMPEL attention

KIT, THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER

A Three-Act production of the late F. S. CHANFRAU'S famous drama. The steamboat fire and the duel between Kit and Bond are as real as life.

The most sensational events shown on 1, 3 and 6-Sheets

Wolfe, or The Conquest of Quebec

The bombardment of Quebec by the English fleet and the battle on the Plains of Abraham, among the events in this wonderful Five-Act production. Filmed at authentic locations in Canada.

Two 1-Sheet, two 3-Sheet, two 8-Sheet and one 24-Sheet Posters

THE DEATH SIGN AT HIGH NOON

A Three-act Western classic, featuring William H. West, Jane Wolfe, Marin Sais and Paul Hurst.

Attention-Attracting 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

THE BOER WAR

The part played by the British troops in the present titanic European struggle, makes this Five-Act Story of England's last great war of tremendous interest.

Two 1-Sheet, two 3-Sheet, two 8-Sheet and one 24-Sheet posters

A CELEBRATED CASE

Alice Joyce, Guy Coombs, Marguerite Courtot and Alice Hollister are featured in this Four-Act Story of an incident arising from the famous battle between England and France at Fontenoy.

1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters that will catch every eye

Francis Marion, "The Swamp Fox"

Marguerite Courtot and Guy Coombs in a Three-Act Story of the famous Revolutionary hero's battles against the British.

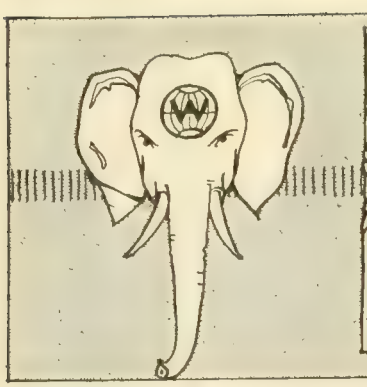
Striking scenes on the 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

THE OTHER HALF of the NOTE

An exciting Three-Act Drama based upon the Government's efforts to run down a daring band of smu[illegible]lers.

1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters that stand out

Released through General Film Masterpiece Service



SHUBERT FEATURES

WORLD FILM Exclusive

Lewis J. Selznick

$A 2 Ticket to a BROADWAY SUCCESS for 10¢

Thousands of people cheerfully pay $2 to $5 a seat to see a play staged by Shubert or Brady, acted by stars of the highest reputation.

In World Film features you offer silent plays of a calibre equalling the greatest successes of Broadway producers and stars for 10 cents.

That is why World features pack the best moving picture theatres to the last available inch. That is why they make money for exhibitors. That is the great reason for their wonderful success.

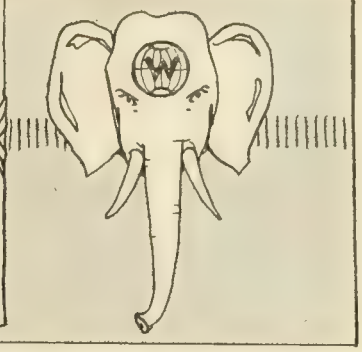
Not only do we offer you the plays, but also the advertising matter to back them up, the finest type of business producing posters, lobby displays, colored gravures and heralds that the field offers. Let our local exchange show you the present releases and the great features to come.

ATLANTA	MONTREAL
BOSTON	MINNEAPOLIS
BUFFALO	NEW YORK
CHICAGO	NEW ORLEANS
CLEVELAND	PHILADELPHIA
CINCINNATI	PITTSBURG
DETROIT	SEATTLE
DALLAS	ST. LOUIS
DENVER	SAN FRANCISCO
INDIANOPOLIS	SALT LAKE CITY
KANSAS CITY	TORONTO
LOS ANGELES	WASHINGTON

Home Office: 130 W. 46th St.
New York City

CORPORATION
Rights to all
Vice Pres & Genl. Mgr.

WILLIAM A. BRADY
PLAY CO., inc.
FEATURES



William A. Brady
—PRESENTS
ROBERT WARWICK
—IN—
The Man of the Hour
BY GEORGE BROADHURST
A dramatic exposition of political corruptness
5 ACTS Released October 12

A Shubert Feature
EDWIN DROOD
By Charles Dickens
WITH
TOM TERRIS
The Greatest Dickens Interpreter
5 ACTS Released October 19

TOM. WISE in Gentleman from Mississippi
by Tom. Wise & Harrison Rhodes
The Trials and Pleasures of a New Senator
A Brady Feature
5 ACTS RELEASED OCT. 5

The Naked Truth

(In Five Parts—5075 Feet)

FEATURING THE BEAUTIFUL LYDA BORELLI

In her latest and greatest success.

Says the New York World:
"Aside from the marvelous work of Lyda Borelli in the scenes that follow, the story is a film masterpiece. Its arrangement shows the hand of the master craftsman."

Says the New York Evening Sun:
"The Naked Truth," now playing at the New Candler, offers the finest piece of emotional acting I have ever seen!"

Says the New York Globe:
"The wonderful acting of Lyda Borelli was the sensation of the night. She held us in a vice-like grip."

"THE NAKED TRUTH" opened the doors of the New Candler Theatre, New York. Its reception by Dramatic Critics stamped it a modern masterpiece.

"THE NAKED TRUTH" is a story of a woman's love and her disillusionment. It's a story of infinite pathos and wonderfully strong appeal. You will like "THE NAKED TRUTH" and so will every man and woman in your patronage. If you have not already played it, you have missed a splendid money-maker. Arrange to play it now.

Phone or Write the Nearest Below Listed Kleine Branch Office

THE FOLLOWING GEORGE KLEINE ATTRACTIONS ARE BOOKING HEAVILY. SET A DATE NOW. PICK YOUR DULLEST DAY AND TRY THEM OUT. THEY'RE MONEY-MAKERS, EVERY ONE!

THE LION OF VENICE

A magnificent six-part subject. Made in Venice, Italy, by the Photo Drama Company. In six parts, 4,950 feet.

SPARTACUS

A mammoth spectacle employing thousands of people in the making. A twin sister to "Quo Vadis?" Contains the largest arena scenes in pictures. A story of ancient Rome. In six parts, 6,000 feet.

EUROPEAN ARMIES IN ACTION

Timely views of the great war! Contains scenes of German, French, English, Belgian, Austrian and Servian Troops in Action. A sure money-getter. In four parts, 3,500 feet.

GEORGE KLEINE

Chicago—166 N. State St.
Denver—405 Railroad Bldg.
Seattle—213 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
Dallas—238 Saner Bldg.
New York—226 W. 42nd St.
Minneapolis—210 Temple Court Bldg.
San Francisco—653 Pacific Bldg.
Toronto—76 Adelaide St. W.
Atlanta—43 Moore Bldg.
Pittsburgh—509 Lyceum Theatre Bldg.
Los Angeles—701 Majestic Theatre Bldg.
Boston—597 Washington St.

The Golden Beetle

IN FOUR PARTS

ESSENTIALLY A STORY OF ADVENTURE on the High Seas and in the Jungles of India—Four Reels of Thrills and excitement that will delight the man who loves sensational film.

A STORY FAIRLY BRISTLING WITH ACTION—Conspicuous for its tense moments, its spectacular battles with Jungle beasts and its clever, intricate but easily followed plot.

SURREY'S ADVENTURES IN THE DUNGEON BENEATH THE RUINED TEMPLE; his rescue from the grave; his message for help tied to the wings of a ferocious eagle; his battle with a Lion in the Jungle; his shipwreck and his final return to claim his legacy, are absorbing incidents in a story charged with unusual situations and exciting exploits.

Now Booking Through Special Feature Department of the General Film Co.

YOU CAN ALSO BOOK THE FOLLOWING KLEINE "SPECIAL FEATURES" THROUGH THE VARIOUS FEATURE DEPARTMENTS OF THE GENERAL FILM COMPANY. EACH IS A MASTER-WORK IN ITS OWN FIELD. EACH HAS BEEN PRODUCED WITH AN EYE TO ITS BOX-OFFICE POSSIBILITIES. IF YOU HAVE NOT PLAYED ALL OF THESE, GET IN TOUCH WITH THE GENERAL FILM OFFICE NEAREST YOU.

VENDETTA

From the Novel by Marie Corelli. Now playing to capacity business throughout the United States. Unquestionably the best five-part commercial subject ever released under the Kleine standard. In five parts, 5,071 feet.

OTHELLO

A photo-dramatic masterpiece made in Venice, Italy. Follows closely the Shakespearean version. The first serious attempt to preserve in film the beautiful drama of the master poet. In five parts, 4,215 feet.

THE SONG OF THE SOUL

A story featuring Francesca Bertini, beautiful in conception and execution. A modern heart-interest drama. In three parts, 2,319 feet.

(Full line of publicity matter for each attraction.)

GEORGE KLEINE

166 North State Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

LUBIN

"The Beloved Adventurer"

By Emmett Campbell Hall

Featuring

Arthur Johnson and Lottie Briscoe

PUBLISHED IN BOOK FORM

150,000 COPIES SOLD THE FIRST WEEK

HERALDS
for
"The Beloved Adventurer"
from Hennegan & Co.,
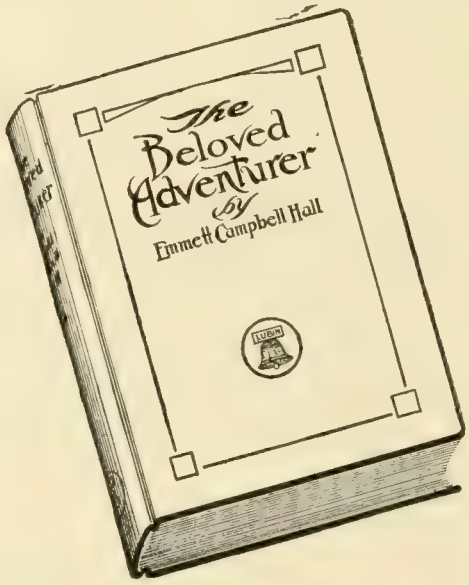
Cincinnati, Ohio.

POSTERS
from
the A. B. C. Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Released on the regular programme every Monday through the General Film Co.



1st of Series—
"Lord Cecil Intervenes"

2nd of Series—
"An Untarnished Shield"

3rd of Series—
"An Affair of Honor"

4th of Series—
"An American Heiress"

5th of Series—
"The Girl from the West"

A SERIES OF 15 SINGLE REEL DRAMATIC PHOTOPLAYS

RELEASED EACH MONDAY

THE FIRST OF THE SERIES WAS RELEASED MONDAY, SEPT. 14TH.

FIFTEEN CHAPTERS TO THE BOOK, EACH CHAPTER IN ITS REGULAR ORDER REPRESENTING A RELEASE. FULL CLOTH BINDING, WITH FIFTEEN FULL PAGE HALF-TONE ILLUSTRATIONS, INCLUDING AN AUTOGRAPHED FRONTISPIECE OF ARTHUR JOHNSON.

Single Copies, 25 cents; in lots of 25 or more, 15 cents each.

SECURE THESE BOOKS FROM THE GENERAL FILM CO. EXCHANGES

EXHIBITORS ARE URGED TO PLACE IMMEDIATE ORDERS AS THE EDITION IS LIMITED

Lubin Manufacturing Company

Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Office, 154 West Lake Street

LUBIN

THE PRODUCER OF MASTERPIECES

EVERY EXHIBITOR SHOULD BOOK THESE EXCEPTIONAL FEATURES. (Through the General Film Special Service.)

WILLIAM ELLIOTT (Late Star of "Madame X" Co.) in

SIX REELS — "THE FORTUNE HUNTER" — By WINCHELL SMITH

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

FIVE REELS — "THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR" — By J. HARTLEY MANNERS

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

SIX REELS — "THE WOLF" — By EUGENE WALTER

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

THREE REELS — "MARAH, THE PYTHONESS" — By CLAY M. GREENE

Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

READY FOR EARLY RELEASE

EVELYN NESBIT THAW

AND HER SON, RUSSELL WILLIAM THAW

IN

FIVE REELS — "THREADS OF DESTINY" — By WILLIAM H. CLIFFORD

Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

EDWIN ARDEN IN

FIVE REELS — "EAGLE'S NEST" — By EDWIN ARDEN

Produced by ROMAINE FIELDING

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

In Five-Reel Comedy Drama by LAWRENCE McCLOSKEY — Produced by GEORGE TERWILLIGER

IN PREPARATION

ROSE COGHLAN

and ETHEL CLAYTON in

SIX REELS — "THE SPORTING DUCHESS" — By CECIL RALEIGH

Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

SIX REGULAR RELEASES EACH WEEK

"THE BELOVED ADVENTURER," 4th of Series "AN AMERICAN HEIRESS." Drama. Monday, October 5th.
"A HUNTING ABSURDITY," "WIFIE'S ATHLETIC MAMMA." Split Reel Comedies. Tuesday, October 6th.
"THE GIRL AT THE LOCK."—Two Reel Drama. Wednesday, October 7th.
"IN OLD VIRGINIA."—Two Reel Drama. Thursday, October 8th.
"THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER."—Drama. Friday, October 9th.
"WHEN THE HAM TURNED." Comedy. Saturday, October 10th.

SPECIAL ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS

Lubin Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Office - - - 154 West Lake Street

EDISON

ON THE ISLE OF SARNE

A Comedy-Drama adapted from "The Picaroon" by H. B. Mariott Watson

Countess Dorothea was plunged into the depths of despair on learning that her uncle, the Duke, was determined upon her acceptance of Count Sigimund. She and her tutor were taken to the Isle of Sarne until she should submit. One day a yacht approached supposed to have on board the dreaded Sigimund; but instead it brought a stranger, Peter Seabrooke, with whom the Countess eventually fell in love and with whom she fled to England. Meanwhile, however, Seabrooke impersonated Sigimund so well that the Duke never suspected he was anyone else until the very last. An exciting well planned film.

In two parts. 2,000 feet. To be released Friday, Oct. 16th.

COMING EDISON RELEASES

Monday, October 12th	BUSTER BROWN'S EDUCATION	500 ft. Comedy
	GEORGE WASHINGTON JONES	500 ft. Comedy
Tuesday, October 13th	THE LETTER THAT NEVER CAME OUT	1,000 ft. Drama
Wednesday, October 14th	ANDY AND THE REDSKINS	1,000 ft. Comedy
Friday, October 16th	ON THE ISLE OF SARNE	2,000 ft. Comedy-Drama
Saturday, October 17th	THE CASE OF THE VANISHED BONDS	1,000 ft. Drama

TWO GREAT EDISON SUCCESSES

"THE LONG WAY," a three part reel just released. A masterpiece of dramatic production. Scenic and photographic effects are very beautiful. (Now ready.)

"MY FRIEND FROM INDIA," another masterpiece in which Walter E. Perkins is in the title role. To be obtained through the General Film Company's special releases. Full of laughs. (Now ready.)

Order Edison Posters of the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, direct.

TRADE MARK

Thomas A Edison

Thomas A. Edison, Inc.
239 Lakeside Ave., Orange, N. J.

Makers of Edison Kinetoscope, Model "D."

VITAGRAPH

"Fisherman Kate"

Comedy.....MONDAY, OCT. 5

She goes for a day's catch. She doesn't get as much fun out of it as the rest of us. She blames all her troubles on Thirteen. KATE PRICE in the lead.

"His Unknown Girl"

Military Drama in Two Parts.....TUESDAY, OCT. 6

He had met her but didn't know her. He never did know her until, on the battlefield, his dying companion gave him her photograph. Then he met her again and he knew she was the right one. An all star cast.

"Kill or Cure"

Vita-Laugh Comedy.....WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7

By imbibing one draught of it, everybody gets busy. What they do would fill a book. It's a riot of fun and all to the mustard. An all-star cast.

"The Loan Shark King"

Drama.....THURSDAY, OCT. 8

To fatten his own purse he unconsciously kills his own daughter. He spends the remainder of his days trying to make amends for the past. VAN DYKE BROOKE, NORMA TALMADGE and ANTONIO MORENO are the principals.

"Josie's Legacy"

Comedy.....FRIDAY, OCT. 9

She has suitors galore. "Friends" pay her court. When her legacy is published, she is left alone with it and Hank. BILLY QUIRK and JOSIE SADLER make things lively.

"The Rose and the Thorn"

Drama in Two Parts.....SATURDAY, OCT. 10

When the flirt is through with folly, thorns and unhappiness strew her path. Her husband, by his kindness and love, makes the rose bloom again. DARWIN KARR and NAOMI CHILDERS are the leads.

SIX A WEEK

"MIDST WOODLAND SHADOWS"
An Idyl .....Monday, October 12

"MAREEA, THE FOSTER MOTHER"
Two-Part Drama .....Tuesday, October 13

"THE PEACEMAKER"
Comedy .....Wednesday, October 14

"HIS DOMINANT PASSION"
Drama .....Thursday, October 15

"FATTY'S SWEETHEART"
Comedy .....Friday, October 16

"THE GIRL IN THE CASE"
Two-Part Drama .....Saturday, October 17

VITAGRAPH, ONE, THREE AND SIX-SHEET POSTERS

The Vitagraph Co. of America, E. 15th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

RELEASED

A MILLION BID	5 Parts
GOODNESS GRACIOUS	3 Parts
MR. BARNES OF N. Y.	6 Parts
LOVE, LUCK & GASOLENE	3 Parts
CAPTAIN ALVAREZ	6 Parts
SHADOWS OF THE PAST	3 Parts
BINGLES' MELODRAMA	3 Parts
MY OFFICIAL WIFE	5 Parts
UNCLE BILL	3 Parts
THE PAINTED WORLD	3 Parts
FLORIDA ENCHANTMENT	5 Parts

STATE RIGHTS STILL AVAILABLE FOR

THE CHRISTIAN

APPLY
VITAGRAPH-LIEBLER FEATURE FILM CO.
116 NASSAU ST., N. Y.

As Presented at the Vitagraph Theatre
New York City

PRODUCED BY THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

FOR TERMS AND PARTICULARS APPLY
GENERAL FILM CO.'S SPECIAL SERVICE
By Arrangement with Broadway Star Feature Co. (Inc.)

COMING

THE MOST SENSATIONAL FILM STORY SEEN ON BROADWAY
"413" BY DONALD I. BUCHANAN
PRODUCED BY RALPH INCE
A 3-PART DETECTIVE DRAMA WITH A THOUSAND THRILLS
TREMENDOUS CLIMAX IN THE Wreck of an Entire Train

THE MERRIEST OF MERRY COMEDIES IN 4000 LAUGHING FEET

"THE WIN(K)SOME WIDOW"

WITH CISSY FITZGERALD, HER FAMOUS WINK AND STAR CAST: WALLY VAN, L. ROGERS LYTTON, HUGHIE MACK, DONALD HALL, NICHOLAS DUNAEW, ALBERT ROCCARDI, EDWINA ROBBINS, OTHERS.

KALEM'S FIVE-A-WEEK

THE MAD MOUNTAINEER

Tom Moore in a Two-Act Drama of the Hills. Length, 1,800 Feet.

His jealous rage causes the mountaineer to hurl his rival over the cliff. Conscience drives the man mad. The outcome makes this one of the most absorbing stories you have ever shown.

(ON THE SAME REEL)

HESANUT BUYS AN AUTO

Kalem's animated comedy cartoon comedian buys himself an auto. The heaviest artillery couldn't equal the damage he causes while learning how to run it. Released Monday, October 19th. 1, 3 and 6-Sheets that Stand Out

A WISE RUBE

Cy's city cousin makes the mistake of his life when he tries to play the country boy for an easy mark. Cy not only bests him, but even steals his girl.

Released Tuesday, October 20th.

MICKY FLYNN'S ESCAPADE

The mixup is due to the counterfeit money Micky steals. It not only brings about his downfall, but also causes the arrest of a band of counterfeiters, a shoplifter and a "blind" beggar. A rip-roaring comedy.

Released Friday, October 23rd

The FALSE GUARDIAN

Alice Hollister in a Two-Act Drama

Just as his villainous scheme to spirit his victim to an insane asylum is about to be crowned with success, a terrible auto accident brings the scoundrel to justice.

Released Wednesday, October 21st. Strong scenes on 1, 3 and 6-Sheets.

THE DEMON OF THE RAILS

The wild battle between the lunatic and the engineer in the swaying cab of the speeding locomotive, will hold spectators a-quiver. Released Saturday, October 24th. Striking 1 and 3 Sheets.

Says Helen:—"No hazard is too great for me to take to save another's life!"

KALEM COMPANY, 235-9 W. 23d St., New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

WESTERN OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.
DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this Issue will be found on page 258.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, October 10, 1914.

Facts and Comments

IT WAS the writer's privilege and opportunity to attend a recent meeting of exhibitors called in a large Eastern city. The purpose of the meeting was to secure the co-operation of the exchanges in weeding out obnoxious competition. The exchange men had been invited to be present and they came promptly, representing all the organized groups of the producers of regular programs as well as the big concerns that specialize in feature service. The exhibitors in that particular city had been greatly annoyed by so-called "competitors" who insisted on showing from five to ten reels for five cents. They thought that the exchanges would be in a position to stop this evil by indirectly denying service through prohibitive rental prices While the exchange men present all agreed with the exhibitors in deploring such ruinous competition they pointed out that it was impossible to wipe out competition among the exchanges. It was finally decided that there was but one way of crowding out undesirable competition: Give them enough rope and they will hang themselves. There is no better remedy. One thing which greatly pleased the writer was the prevailing spirit of harmony and co-operation which characterized the meeting. The exhibitors were sympathetic in their attitude toward the exchange men, while the exchange men showed that they had made the exhibitors' troubles their own.

* * *

OLD experienced exhibitors have a simple method of telling whether the feature of their program is pleasing to the audience or not. The number of "lifts" is a good criterion. The "lift" refers to a patron raising or "lifting" his seat. While the film on the screen holds the proper interest of the spectator he will remain fast in his seat; sometimes too fast. Few patrons leave in the middle of the feature of the program unless it is decidedly poor.

* * *

IN another part of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD will be found an appeal by Samuel Wheeler, the state president of the organized exhibitors in Pennsylvania, to all the exhibitors in his state to "get together." We earnestly hope that the appeal will be read and heeded by every exhibitor in the Keystone State. The president deserves great credit for his zeal and energy in the cause of organization and we are glad to render all possible aid. Pennsylvania has an obnoxious censorship law obnoxiously enforced. It is the intention of the president to agitate for the repeal of this law.. The law found its way on the statute book in anything but a respectable manner and it ought be wiped out as speedily as possible. Other important matters, from a moving picture point of view, will occupy the coming Pennsylvania legislature. It is proposed to offer on behalf of the exhibitors and of all liberal minded men a modification of the present draconic Sunday laws. The measure to be introduced will not be revolutionary by any means; no wide-open Sunday is contemplated, but it is proposed to allow motion picture exhibitions on Sundays under restrictions similar to those in the laws of the New England states. Nothing can be done unless the exhibitors are solidly organized and in a position to impress the law-makers.

* * *

WHILE the proposed war-tax does not touch films as such, as we pointed out in the last issue, a tax on motion picture theatres will undoubtedly be imposed. The sentiment of the exhibitors throughout the country seems to be that while no one can blame the government for seeking to insure its revenue the tax on motion picture theatres seems too high. A flat or fixed tax does not seem equitable. A graduated tax depending either on the number of tickets sold or on the seating capacity of each theatre would seem to be more just and reasonable. There was but little chance for opposition among those likely to be affected by the tax, but an eleventh hour protest against the size of the tax has been sent to Washington by the president of the National Exhibitors' League.

* * *

WE WISH to thank our numerous correspondents who are sending us clippings from all parts of the country showing the new and friendly attitude of the press toward the motion picture. Editorial mention of the topic is very frequent and is with scarcely an exception favorable and intelligent. Editors and reporters have learned a lot about motion pictures in the last year or so. For this change the industry itself is responsible and may take due credit. We had to fight prejudice and self-interest and powerful theatrical influences, but in the end we have won out simply because we deserved to.

Strong Screen Subjects

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

WAR pictures will probably come in a flood. Those produced on this side of the Atlantic should be given thoughtful consideration in the scenario. What are men fighting about? It is not to be supposed that Europeans are risking their lives and property to such a great extent without a great cause. There is undoubtedly a principle involved on each side. Something is to be ultimately determined at a cost beyond present calculations. There is truth of tremendous proportions, truth comprehending many subordinate truths, behind the action and reaction now making world history, and therein lies the essence of strength of any visualization bearing on the present conflict. To use it as a means to the mushy end that John shall cling to the lips of Mary until the last scene is dissolved, insures nausea in the audience.

Producers of war plays may desire to offend no one, to preserve an innocuous neutrality of sentiment, but the way to stir good red blood in those who watch screen visualizations is to take a strong grip on the original endowment of a war drama and carry its purpose to the end regardless of obejctions from biased individuals. Men are going to war with their eyes wide open. They are quite aware of the advantages of peace. They are prepared to suffer, to die, maybe, for what is back in their hearts. What they feel and how they feel is the very life-blood of a war drama, whether it illustrates, or is merely founded on the clash of millions in battle array. What is it all about? That is what people want to know.

So far as racial questions are concerned, our people are generously inclined. Manly Americans and womanly Americans in all parts of the country grieve over the intense present agony and assured future sorrow of people now engaged in a life or death struggle throughout Europe. There are splendid human creatures in all of the armies, men of trained minds, men ready and able to contribute beauty to some finer civilization than has been realized. Our people know this and feel deeply concerned about the outcome, so there is no question of prejudice involved one way or the other, so far as the various nationalities are concerned, but that outcome is the big issue. How is it to be ultimately determined and regulated? What are the principles of morality, of equity, of government to be established by force?

We did not hesitate to use force to secure a right of self-government. We did not hesitate to use force in suppressing slavery. We are unalterably opposed to tyranny, especially as exercised when one individual has uncontrolled or unlimited authority over others. Are not our own loftiest ideals, our most cherished hopes at stake in this bitter contest? Why should we be afraid to assert those ideals, or insinuate them, in visualizing war stories? They offer the strongest and most vital screen subjects of the day, and, when presented effectively, with profound sincerity, they may offer a way out for those who seem to be in the dark just now as to what they are to achieve in the end. No matter if a play is seen by people of British, French, German, Austrian or Russian sympathies, this is a time to Americanize them all.

Our institutions are far from perfect, but they will probably improve with our general growth of intelligence and much that is good in them is being adopted by less progressive nations. Why should we not, all of us, including those now destroying one another, come into a better understanding through the right presentation of our principles and our aspirations, what we believe in now and what we hope to accomplish? It is to be hoped that producers of moving pictures will not impose the restraints of timidity upon any sincere and capable visualization of what is timely and true. The thing to be cautious about is the promulgation of falsehood, not the sensibilities of this or that American of European birth or immediate derivation.

A mere lull in hostilities may mean their eventual resumption with increased violence. The big question is that of lasting peace, closely connected with general enlightenment to the extent of eliminating local pride or mistaken patriotism. The modern drift is towards measuring a man by his actual works, rather than by ancestral achievement or individual peculiarities. It is becoming less and less a question of who you are and more a question of what you can do in service to yourself, your friends and humankind. The drift of successful screen plays is broadly humanizing now, and the strongest subjects tend to a reconciliation of individual differences. These groups of men in Europe merely reflect other groups in centuries gone by, ever clashing from lack of widespread and comprehensive knowledge that they are interdependable. The injury of one group reacts on all.

Not in war plays, not in peace pleas, but in general appreciation of what is behind our growth as individuals and as nations will be found great secrets of universal interest. There is a rich harvest, not in the study of mankind as a whole, but in going beneath the surface of this or that type and bringing his peculiarities to light. We are quite as much interested in what a screen hero is feeling and thinking as in what he is doing, but most screen heroes might as well be dummies for all that we know of them through characterization. They all look alike—most of them resemble young men in the clothing store ads.—and act alike. On that account, possibly, the villain is more interesting. We are not a string of translucent, beautifully round, perfectly matched pearls, we men.

"However we may strive for the general," says Goethe, "we always remain individuals," and I believe he also said that "the history of a man is his character." At any event, each of us possesses certain characteristics and lack certain others with a result of variation that is often puzzling and always fascinating. One of the strongest screen subjects, therefore, is man as we do not know him, or woman as we never dare hope to know her. Are those at war in the right? Are those of us in peace wronging them? Have they good reason and we unreason? Is there a purpose far beyond our comprehension in what is going on? Work it out in the screen story.

Tremendous readers of magazines and newspapers, Americans are most interested in those things on which a life of activity and progress depends—vital subjects, such as improvement in government, religion and society—but this does not mean that we should lose picturesque phases of other times. I was deeply amused to read a sober criticism of Roman society a thousand and a half years ago, because almost exactly those conditions existed during the decline of the Roman Empire which we are attempting to better at this moment. What a chance for delicate satire! There is always opportunity to present modern problems in ancient setting and with more subtlety than in guise of today, often with greater charm.

War Tax Arouses Theatrical Men

The United Managers' Protective Association, Comprising in Its Membership All Divisions of Amusement Purveyors, to Make Direct Appeal to Senators---Brylawski Writes Members of the Upper House.

THE United Managers' Protective Association, composed of representatives of the amusement interests of the United States and Canada, is moving every possible agency in its effort to upset the proposed annual tax of $100 on theaters, the bill covering which already having passed the House of Representatives. It is now before the Senate. It is to the members of this latter body that the United Managers are appealing for a reversal of the action of the House, which was jammed through under the party lash and without public hearing to the interests affected by the bill. Here are the essential features of the measure as passed by the popular branch of Congress:

Sixth. Proprietors of theatres, museums, and concert halls in cities having more than fifteen thousand population as shown by the last preceding United States census, shall pay $100. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, shall be regarded as a theater; Provided, That whenever any such edifice is under lease at the passage of this Act, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to said lease.

Eighth. Proprietors or agents of all other public exhibitions or shows for money not enumerated in this action shall pay $10; Provided, That a special tax paid in one state, territory, or the District of Columbia shall not exempt exhibitions from the tax in another state, territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be required for exhibitions within any one state, territory or the District of Columbia.

Perhaps it may be well right here to outline to those exhibitors who may not be familiar with the objects of the United Managers' Protective Association just what it proposes to do. The association has but recently entered the field. It has had predecessors, but somehow they have failed to achieve just what theatrical men most desired to accomplish. The present organization proclaims as one of its basic ideals that the interests of the regular, the legitimate, theater and the motion picture theater are identical. What materially concerns one concerns the other—in the little things as well as in the greater. A practical evidence of the community of interests is the fact that right now there is being organized a committee of prominent motion picture manufacturers to work in conjunction with the Board of Governors of the association. Later on these men will become full members of the board. The following have indicated their willingness to become governors of the association: P. J. Kennedy, president of the Biograph Company; Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players; P. A. Powers, president of Warner's Features; George Kleine, Harry R. Raver, president of the All Star Feature Corporation; C. H. Wilson, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc,; Jesse Lasky, William N. Selig, Siegmund Lubin, Carl Laemmle and Samuel Long. Together with Mr. Blackton this makes a motion picture board of twelve members.

The board of governors are A. L. Erlanger, Charles Frohman, David Belasco, William A. Brady, Al H. Woods, Martin Beck, Winthrop Ames, Sam H. Harris, Marcus Loew, John Cort, E. D. Stair, Alfred E. Aarons, Oscar Hammerstein, Harry G. Sommers, Daniel Frohman, William Fox, Sargent Aborn, Charles Burnham, Joseph Hart, Oliver Morosco, J. Stuart Blackton, Walter Vincent, George H. Nicolai, Albert Weis and Alf Hayman. Marc Klaw is president of the association, Lee Shubert first vice-president, E. F. Albee second vice-president, and Henry W. Savage third vice-president.

A World man had a talk with Ligon Johnson, general counsel of the association, in the executive offices in the New York Theater Building, on Tuesday. "This war tax of $100 on all theaters in towns of 15,000 and over is giving the members of this association the gravest concern," said Mr. Johnson. "We are taking active steps to upset the action of the House of Representatives—that is, we are bringing to bear on the Senators all possible influence to show them the evils that will flow to the theatrical industry if this measure is enacted into law.

"Just look at the situation: Here is a town, say, of 14,000. A theater in that small community seating 800 or a thousand persons will pay a tax of $10, as pointed out in Section 8, in spite of its admission price of 10, 20 or 30 cents or 50 cents. In a city of 15,000 we have a theater, a picture house, seating 200 and charging an admission of 5 cents. This house must pay a tax of $100. Right in our own city a little picture theater in one of the humbler sections must pay a tax of $100 just the same as the luxurious New Amsterdam. It is inequitable, to say the least, this idea of all houses paying a flat tax.

"The association aims to include in its membership all men connected with the amusement business. It recognizes that one of the big factors in the field is the motion picture theater, that legislation assailing it assails also directly or indirectly the regular theater. If there is to be censorship for pictures we realize it is only a question of time before there will be censorship for all. Then again the managers of one branch of the industry face the same problems on the labor side as do those of the other. For instance, there are the stage employes and the musicians. The interests of both divisions are uniform on all general questions.

"At the organization of the association there was a larger number of theatrical managers than motion picture representatives because the theater managers had had it made plain to them that an organization of this character was absolutely necessary. It is the intention of the association to have a national organization, with headquarters here, and also state locals. We aim to have close co-operation between the national and local organizations, to keep close watch on all proposed adverse legislation all over the country. We will have reports as to general conditions also.

"Now, referring again to the war tax, let me point out that but three businesses are singled out by the bill—stock brokers, pawn brokers, and theaters. It is not a graduated war tax on tickets or anything of that sort. It is a flat levy on the man who owns a theater or an amusement enterprise. It concerns every man who owns a picture house, and we appeal to the exhibitors to help us help them. The Senators hold the fate of this bill in their hands. We have asked for a hearing and have hopes that it will be granted. If it is we will send a committee to Washington, and we will present a strong case, urgent reasons why the theaters of the country should not be singled out in this measure. If Congress refuses to eliminate theaters it should in simple justice grant us a classification that will at least have the merit of less inequity than the proposed bill contained.

"The exhibitors can help in this matter—every picture house proprietor, no matter how small his business—and the smaller it is the harder the tax will hit him—can write to his Senator, he can appeal to his influential friends to write, setting forth the situation in his own case as he sees it. It is a time for fast, intelligent work.

"In taxing theaters Congress is taxing an educational institution, semi-educational, certainly. The war tax measure is not applied to luxuries—it does not touch yachts, which use the government highways; nor automobiles, which use the state highways; nor transportation lines, beverages, patent medicines, metals, coal, some of which industries derive their powers and privileges from the right of eminent domain. We have been sending out letters, like the following, for instance:

The Hon F. M. Simmons, Chairman, Finance Committee, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

This Association represents the theater and motion picture houses throughout the United States. These are the greatest sufferers through present financial conditions. A large percentage of houses now open are being operated at a loss and kept only open in hopes of decrease in loss that rent and fixed charges necessitate. Every house closed means making property for time being valueless, for theater buildings, like schools and churches, can be used but for one purpose. The theater and pictures are educational institutions, as through them the child of today knows more of history, customs and spirit of ancient times, of geography, scenery and peoples of foreign lands, of development of science and wonders of nature than did the adult of a decade ago. Existing conditions permit no added charges and the proposed bill would add practically an impossible burden to many theaters. Over three hundred thousand people are engaged in theaters and motion picture enterprises, and the proposed bill will cause many of them to join the army of unemployed. It is respectfully suggested that a uniform tax such as proposed on theaters generally would be most unfair under most favorable financial conditions and no more justified than making every person pay the same income tax regardless of his income. This Association respectfully asks to be heard on the bill.

UNITED MANAGERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

"Here is a copy of a letter we are sending out generally:

This association has secured the co-operation of all branches of organized labor connected with the theater and motion picture industry in its fight against the proposed war tax and formal protests have been wired to the Senate Committee by all these interests with requests for hearing before the committee.

It is important that every member of this organization wire or write his senator urging that he use his efforts against the proposed war tax on theaters (which includes the theater proper and motion picture theaters). I am herewith inclosing you copy of one of the letters that have gone to every senator at Washington. Please take up the matter with your own senator at once and use your influence to get others to do the same.

UNITED MANAGERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

New York, Sept. 29, 1914.

"The following telegrams have been forwarded by two of the trades unions affected by the proposed war tax:

Senator F. M. Simmons, Finance Committee, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

The proposed war tax on theaters and motion picture houses will not only be a heavy burden but interfere with the employment opportunities of many members of our organization, who, even now, are seriously affected by the general conditions caused by the European conflict. The Boston and Chicago Grand opera companies and Symphony Orchestras of some cities have discontinued and musicians of the highest type are thrown in competition with others, and our experience has proven that in times of financial stress the seventy thousand musicians of the Federation are the first to be affected by loss of employment.

F. CAROTHERS,
President American Federation of Musicians.

Sept. 26, 1914.

F. M. Simmons, Chairman Finance Committee, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

Our Alliance wishes to strongly protest against the proposed tax against regular and picture theaters. If passed, it will close many houses and organized labor will suffer as well as house managers.

CHARLES C. SHAY,
International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Sept. 26, 1914.

"We want, as I said before, the co-operation of the exhibitors," concluded Mr. Johnson. "They can do much. As to the association, the theatrical board of directors and the motion picture directors will be combined in one body on October 1. We have in our board many divisions of the amusement field. Some of these divisions do not among themselves always agree in business, but in this organization they are working for the general good of all. The association is too big, too comprehensive, to take cognizance of factional questions."

PITTSBURGH FILM MEN ACT.

At a mass meeting of the Motion Picture Protective Association of Pittsburgh A. J. Hanna, the secretary, was requested to write to the senators at Washington protesting against the charge of $100 for moving picture theaters classed as theaters, and offered the suggestion that houses up to 500 seats pay $10, from 501 to 900 $50, and from 901 up $100.

MR. BRYLAWSKI WRITES SENATORS.

Fulton Brylawski, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the District and executive committee member of the national organization, has written the following letter to every Senator in Congress:

Dear Sir—The Bill, H. R. 18891, "To increase the Internal Revenue and for Other Purposes," provides, among other things, in the sixth section thereof that > Proprietors of theaters, museums, and concert halls in cities having more than fifteen thousand population as shown by the last preceding United States census shall pay $100. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, shall be regarded as a theater.

As the National Vice-President of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, which includes in its membership thousands of motion picture theaters in all sections of the United States, and, as the Secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the District of Columbia, I respectfully beg to submit the following to your consideration:

The wording of the measure in its present form does not differentiate between theaters, excepting that theaters in towns of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants are not liable to this special tax. In a town of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants there are, in many instances, only several theaters, each of which may do a thriving business. In this city, for example, there are about ninety moving picture theaters, seating anywhere from one hundred and fifty to a thousand or more persons, and in addition thereto there are ten large theaters playing dramatic, operatic, vaudeville and burlesque attractions so that there is, in this city, one theater to every thirty-five hundred inhabitants.

The larger theaters, with their greater seating capacity and the higher prices, could, without feeling it a burden, easily pay the one-hundred-dollar tax intended to be levied by this proposed legislation, but the smaller theater—the little moving picture house, with only a few hundred seats, and where the admission charge is only five or ten cents—would not only feel such a tax burdensome in the extreme, but, in a great number of instances, would be compelled to go out of business. Judged by the popular idea of the enormous profits in the motion picture business, this statement may seem an exaggeration, but during the past year there were many moving picture theaters in this city that were compelled to go out of business because of their inability to cope with the larger theaters. During the month of November every theater in this city, large or small, must pay to the District of Columbia one hundred and five dollars for a license to operate during the coming year. Many of them will be hard pressed to realize this amount, and if compelled to pay an additional hundred dollars towards the Internal Revenue, I can state with great positiveness and certainty that a large number will be forced out of existence simply on this account.

It is not the purpose of this communication to endeavor to shirk the responsibility of defraying a part of this country's revenue, but simply to suggest a far more equitable manner in levying same, and as an example a sliding scale, like the following, would answer this purpose:

Theaters seating less than 300 might be taxed	$25
Theaters seating more than 300, and not exceeding 500	50
Theaters seating more than 500, and not exceeding 1,000	75
Theaters seating more than 1,000	100

I feel sure that if you will give the proper consideration to this letter you will, as a fair-minded man, see the force and equitableness of the argument herein advanced.

Sept. 26, 1914.

HEPWORTH'S NOT HURT BY WAR.

American Branch of the Big English Company Will Continue as Formerly to Sell in the Open Market.

"THE European conflict will have no ill effect on the product of the Hepworth company," said Mr. Parfrey, a director of the big English film manufacturing concern, this past week. Mr. Parfrey, who is vice-president of the Hepworth American company, was talking in the executive offices of the latter concern in the World's Tower Building. "On the contrary, we expect to have an increased sale of films," he said, "due partly of course to the shortage in the European supply. That is bound to benefit us. Are any of our employees going to the front? Oh, yes, quite a good number. A rather large contingent of our players have taken active service, but these have been replaced. Hepworth employees, actors and others, have banded together and formed the nucleus of a contingent and will go to the front together."

C. Parfrey.

When Albert Blinkhorn in England this summer tendered his resignation as president of the Hepworth American company on account of his determination to enter into the renting business, Mr. Parfrey was designated by the president of the Hepworth company to visit New York, look over market conditions and report accordingly to the home office. The result of Mr. Parfrey's investigations was the negotiation of a mutually satisfactory arrangement with Mr. Blinkhorn whereby the Blinkhorn Photoplays Corporation has agreed to take a large proportion of Hepworth, Florence Turner and Ivy Chase releases for the United States.

The Hepworth American company will continue as formerly to sell on the open market. The officers say there are a lot of good things coming along. The president of the American branch of Hepworth's is Cecil Hepworth. Willie Arthur is the treasurer of the company, and following the departure for home of Mr. Parfrey, within a few days, will be the executive head of the concern in the United States.

Associated with Mr. Arthur as sales and publicity manager will be John Wild. Mr. Wild has a wide knowledge of the American film market, having for a year been connected with the Gaumont company as sales manager.

BABY'S DISAPPEARANCE CAUSES EXCITEMENT.

Mrs. B. B. Barton, wife of one of the owners of the Isis Theater, Indianapolis, Ind., was recently mixed up in a baby disappearance at the theater which threw the picture entertainment into the shade. A mother left her infant asleep in a baby cab at the rear of the theater. The little one awakened and let out a wail, which the mother did not hear. Mrs. Barton picked it up and began walking up and down the aisles. Meanwhile the mother returned to the cab and found it empty. There were two or three shrieks and hysterical sobbing that brought the house up standing, with sunshine through the tears when Mrs. Barton restored the babe to its mother's arms and everything was explained.

Vitagraphers Have Narrow Escape

Several Players Overcome in Cold Water Are Rescued with Difficulty Following Wrecking of a Train.

By George Blaisdell.

THERE were real thrills for the spectators gathered in South River, N. J., on Sunday, September 27, to see a train wreck engineered for the benefit of the Vitagraph Company. A locomotive, tender and three cars were thrown from a trestle into a lake just as the efficient staff of the Flatbush studio had planned. It was all very exciting; but it was tame compared to what followed when the score of young players who were portraying the passengers started to swim a hundred or more feet from the wreck to the shore. The water was cold; the temperature of the air was below 60 degrees, the sun was overcast—a dull day all around. Two or three of the young women in their anxiety to get into the picture had said they could swim. Probably they could, for twenty or thirty feet in water of ordinary temperature; but when the chill struck in it was different.

The players were scattered at different points about the half submerged cars. At the signal from Ralph Ince, who was directing the scene for "The Juggernaut," a five-reel production, the players climbed down into the water and started for the sandy banks of the pond that in the picture will look like a river. Some of the actors in order to lend verisimility to the action were calling not very loudly for assistance. Earle Williams, who is playing a lead in the picture, jumped from the shore directly in front of the camera, ostensibly to swim to the aid of the heroine, a passenger. One of the players passed out of the scene to secure a rowboat, the better to facilitate the rescue. When Mr. Williams was about twenty feet from the shore the rowboat reached him—it was the only one on the small lake—and he took hold of the side. It was at that moment that Mr. Ince became convinced that one of the players really was in trouble. He stopped the camera, told Mr. Williams to let go his hold and come ashore and ordered the oarsman to go to the assistance of Mrs. Mary Green. Mr. Williams did not at first understand the situation and retained his hold, as he had been instructed just before. The oarsman, finding he could not make headway, promptly dropped his oars, dived overboard, and swam toward the struggling players. Then it was noted that Rose Dugan, swimming ashore to the opposite side of the triangular bit of water, was suffering from cramp. Miss Dugan had been injured recently in an automobile accident, and her arm went back on her. Then George Levenhaw seemed to be in distress.

The real thrills of the day. In the left foreground is Earle Williams. In the center of the picture will be seen three chilled and exhausted players being aided by their fellow-actors—real heroes now, stage work forgotten. On the extreme right center is another group. Near the empty boat will be seen the oarsman swimming to a distressed player. the ripples indicating his course.

In the meantime Mr. Williams had started to swim ashore. He is not a strong swimmer, and in the deep and spring-fed water he found difficulty in securing his natatorial balance —his clothes were heavy and his body would not come to a horizontal position. He was treading water. Although the World man was not thirty feet from him, he had no idea that Mr. Williams felt his time had come—the face of the swimmer did not for once reveal his thoughts. There were so many other happenings in that bit of water that the eye could not comprehend all of them simultaneously. Mr. Williams got ashore, the last few feet clinging on to a rope which had been thrown him. He was exhausted, but by no means unconscious, as one of the rather lurid newspaper accounts stated.

Mrs. Green was brought ashore by two of the men, who had a hard time keeping her head above water. Miss Dugan's rescuers also had great difficulty in supporting her. One of them remarked afterward that she had greatly assisted by keeping her head and trying not to handicap her helpers in any manner. One of the striking incidents in a situation that had more real thrills in it than numberless screen dramas rolled into one was the action of one unidentified young woman who from the middle of the pond calmly yet emphatically pointed out those of her fellow-players who were in distress. Part of the time she was treading water, circling around, and informing the men where to go. Her sang froid was still with her when she reached shore. When the players got out of the water they were hurried into the cars of a train standing by and furnished with stimulants and dry clothing.

Dynamiting the trestle as the locomotive neared the end of the structure.

A special train left New York at 10 o'clock in the morning for South River. It looked like a fine day, but Old Sol promptly went into eclipse just after the train arrived on the scene of action. If it was a dull day, the photographers found solace in the fact that such light as there was was steady. South River lies about a half dozen miles out of Perth Amboy. From the line of the Raritan River Railroad a spur had been erected on a trestle extending in a sharp curve 175 feet into a lake. The improvised structure ended abruptly some seventy-five feet from the shore.

Victor Smith, general manager of the Vitagraph Company, had charge of the proceedings of the day. Edward Wentworth directed the building of the trestle. Herman Rogers, for more than a score of years with Pain's Fireworks, and the head of the Vitagraph's destructive forces, planned the dynamiting that took place. Walter Arthur, head cameraman, directed the seven operators who were stationed at vantage points. Walter Ackerman, head property man, was all over the lot. Ralph Ince was the man of the day, however. He it was who in manner unruffled and in voice suited to the particular occasion guided operations. He used no megaphone, and he did not need one. He is a commander, a general, as well as a director.

Collapse of the end of the structure and the fall of the locomotive. Note the distance the locomotive jumped from the end of the crumbling timbers, indicating its speed; also showing why Cameraman Ross, in direct line, had reason to worry.

It was a little after 1 o'clock when Mr. Ince gave the signal for the train to start on its last journey. Engineer John McGuire and Fireman Bill Stockton had old No. 56, a former

Long Island Railroad locomotive, fixed up better than they knew, as events proved. It was intended that the train should come around the curve at a speed of fifteen miles an hour, so as to afford the operators an opportunity to "panoram" their cameras. The train came around at a fast clip, picking up speed at every foot. McGuire had opened up the throttle perhaps a bit too wide just before he ran back to the rear of his old-fashioned "goat" and leaped to the ground. Just as the train neared the end of the structure, and traveling a strong thirty miles an hour, the dynamite placed near the termination was exploded, the last thirty or forty feet of timbers swayed and the engine and the first two cars plunged into the water, about fifteen feet deep at that point.

The nose of the locomotive stopped within a few feet of Cameraman Arthur Ross, stationed on a small platform about fifteen feet in height. Mr. Ross was game. The hundreds of spectators lining the banks of the little lake believed the engine would strike his slender support and drag him down in the wreck. Mr. Ross continued to turn until the engine settled. He was drenched in the great volumes of spray thrown up by the plunging locomotive. He wiped off his lens, "panned" down and took pictures of the slowly dying snorts of No. 56. The second car of the train had telescoped into the first for a distance of a dozen feet. In spite of the fact that four windows of the side of the second car were paralleling the same number of the first but two of the eight panes involved were broken. The third car was suspended over the end of the trestle at an angle of 45 degrees. The front and rear trucks of the last car were loose and hanging by chains.

The position of the train as the wreck settled.

Mr. Rogers planted dynamite in the locomotive and the cameras were made ready to photograph the "boiler explosion." The blow-up was not over without incident other than what was prepared for. The crowds were pushed back. Then came the bringing down of the third car. With the report of a great gun the car swayed and fell into the water as the structure gave way. Splinters flew straight into the air for a distance of 150 feet. Shortly afterward followed the incidents described in the opening paragraphs.

Dynamiting the engine, which will appear on the screen as a "Boiler Explosion."

It was an all-around stirring day. Many Vitagraph directors and players journeyed over to Jersey to see the sights. Among these were George D. Baker, Wallie Van, Hughie Mack, Paul Scardon and Charles Eldridge, to the latter of whom the World man is under especial obligation for many courtesies. Albert E. Smith of the Vitagraph Triumvirate was present during a part of the day. He walked out on the trestle and minutely inspected the arrangements. Tefft Johnson, who on the following day was to supervise a second train wreck for a picture he is directing, also was actively engaged. Dick Leslie, head make-up man of the company, had charge of the commissariat. He was a much-sought man and a popular one. It should be stated right here that his popularity was deserved, for he took the best of care of the company's guests as well as the players, both those in actual distress and those who feared they might be.

The train started back to the city at 4 o'clock. It was at that hour that the vagrant sun came out in all its glory. Mr. Ince held many of his players in the little Jersey village, as it was his intention to take more scenes on the day following. Miss Anita Stewart, who is playing one of the leads in "The Juggernaut," did not enter the water on Sunday, but it was understood that she would do so on Monday.

One unslated happening furnished amusement for the throng. It was just as Mr. Ince was ready to give the signal to start the train. One of his assistants had discovered a small puppy of indeterminate breed on the far shore near Cameraman Ross' tower. Fearing that he would "butt into" the show the canine was chased away. For a few feet he ran along the pond's edge. Then he decided he wanted to get a star position near the director and plunged into the water. Straight across he laid his course while the throng, a moment before silently, tensely awaiting the whistles announcing the start, relieved pent-up feelings in laughter. "Leave him alone, everybody," said Mr. Ince; "he'll come ashore all right." The little fellow did just that. He took up a position near the director, and shiveringly watched the smash. Another incident that attracted comment was the arm of one of the dummies—there was one at each window in the train—projecting through a broken pane in the second car. In the third and last car a female figure was standing up as if imploring assistance.

As Samuel Spedon, publicity manager of the Vitagraph Company, the following day pasted up the many columns of straight stuff wreck story in the New York newspapers there spread over his face a smile like unto that of the smile on the face of the tiger.

KILLED BY FALLING BOOTH.

Temporary Employe of the American Seating Company Caught in Collapse of Nearly Finished Structure.

THROUGH the collapse of a projection booth in the nearly completed Palace Theater, a picture house at 5605 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn, on September 28, Charles Bagantee, an employe of the American Seating Company, was instantly killed. Bagantee lived within a block of the new theater, and had but an hour before applied for and received employment. The theater was to be opened on the following Saturday and work was being rushed.

Bagantee was at work under the projection booth, suspended ten feet above the floor, when without warning it crashed down, bringing with it the five men working inside. It had been attached to the front wall of the theater and two heavy chains had been stretched from its outer corners to two beams in the ceiling. It is believed the front wall and beams were not strong enough to hold it. Half of the wall and the two beams came down with the booth, and with them plaster and planks. An alarm was sent out for police and firemen and ambulances. Bagantee had been crushed to death. The five others were not seriously injured.

The damage to the theater was about $1,500. David Mayer, of 564 44th street, Brooklyn, is said to be the owner of the building, which was one story in height.

KLEINE OPENS NEW BOSTON OFFICE.

George Kleine has opened a new office in Boston, Mass., to handle his line of attractions throughout New England. The office will be in charge of R. W. Marston at 597 Washington street. Mr. Marston will have the entire list of Kleine attractions, including some recent releases which have not yet been shown in that territory. Mr. Marston is well-known in the film business and particularly in New England, having traveled among exhibitors in those states for some years.

After five months on Broadway, "Cabiria," the d'Annunzio photo-spectacle, ends its Broadway career on October 10. It has played continuously in New York since May 9, thus establishing a record for a production of this character. At the present time it is being offered at Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and other large cities.

Hugo Reisinger Dies in Germany

Well-Known Carbon Importer Passes Away in the Town of His Birth—Business to Continue as Usual.

THE death is announced of Hugo Reisinger, the well-known importer of Electra Pink Label Carbons, whose offices were at 11 Broadway. Mr. Reisinger was the first importer of carbons into the United States. It was about 1893 when the first invoice was received.

Mr. Reisinger's death occurred on September 26 in Langenschwalbach, near Wiesbaden, Germany, where he was born nearly 59 years ago. He left New York last April to serve as honorary commissioner to the Anglo-American Exposition to be held in London. He had been asked to aid in arranging the American art section. He was accompanied by his wife, formerly Miss Edmee Busch, daughter of the late Adolphus Busch of St. Louis, and her mother. Mr. Reisinger had been expected to return on October 11. He left two sons, Curt H. Reisinger and Walter F., the latter a student at Harvard University. The body will be brought to America. Mr.

The Late Hugo Reisinger.

Reisinger's business will be conducted in the future by C. A. Du Bosch and F. Dessin, who have for several years been in charge of Mr. Reisinger's commercial interests.

Hugo Reisinger had an international reputation as an art expert and connoisseur. He was the first to make a representative collection of modern American art for exhibit in Germany. It was in 1910 that he selected 200 American paintings and etchings for showing at the Prussian Royal Academy in Berlin and later in Munich. Mr. Reisinger paid all expenses in connection with this display abroad. In 1904 he was an honorary commissioner to Europe for the St. Louis Exposition. He arranged for the exhibit of German art for the German Government at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, at the Copley Society of Boston, and at the Art Institute at Chicago, in 1908-9.

Mr. Reisinger was graduated from the Royal Gymnasium, at Wiesbaden, Germany, in 1875. He engaged in the general importation of merchandise here in 1890, and became one of the largest firms in his line. He was a director of the Linde Air Products Company of New York and Buffalo and the Owens European Bottle Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Reisinger was elected an honorary fellow for life of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, vice-president of the Germanic Museum of Harvard, and the Germanistic Society here. Columbia conferred the degree of A. M. on him in 1910. He was Commander of the Order of the Prussian Crown, Commander Order of Merit with the Star of St. Michael, (Bavarian) privy councilor to the Prince Regent, Ludwig, of Bavaria, and was a member of these clubs: Lotos, National Arts, German, Railroad, Garden City Golf, Englewood Country, Automobile Club of America, and the Imperial Automobile Club of Berlin.

Strange Story from Tennessee

Report That Miss Florence Turner Is on Her Way to Take Up Work in Chattanooga Vigorously Denied Here.

THE statement in Chattanooga (Tenn.) newspapers that Miss Florence Turner is to appear in the pictures of a company being organized by Byron and Lester Park has aroused interest in the local offices of Hepworth's and the Blinkhorn Photoplays Corporation. Its accuracy is vigorously assailed by Director Parfrey of the Hepworth company and by Albert Blinkhorn. The Chattanooga News stated under date of September 15 that "Within two weeks Miss Turner will be in Chattanooga ready to begin the production of special feature photoplays." On September 19 the Moving Picture World received an inquiry in regard to the project of the Photoplay Library Corporation, stating that the promoters claimed to have secured the services of Miss Turner. Under date of September 28 a member of the Chamber of Comerce forwards a clipping from the Chattanooga Times, from which the following is taken:

"The exact personnel of the principals for the producing company has not yet been announced, owing to the inability of Mr. Park to get in touch with Miss Florence Turner, the former Vitagraph star, who has been in England at the head of her own company for some time. The operations of the Turner Company were suddenly cut short a few weeks ago by the breaking out of the European war, and she announced that she would return to America. Lester Park was in touch with Miss Turner by cable when he was in Chattanooga ten days ago, and practically came to terms with her. She is now en route to New York on the Lusitania, and a contract will be closed immediately on her arrival."

Albert Blinkhorn, former president of the Hepworth American Company and now the head of the Blinkhorn Photoplays Corporation, when seen by a World man was more than skeptical. Mr. Blinkhorn has, up to date, handled all the productions of the Turner Films, which is Miss Turner's own English company. "I met Miss Turer the latter part of July when I visited her studio in England," said Mr. Blinkhorn. "The popular player told me that she was very happy in her surroundings, that she had no intention of leaving England except perhaps for a visit to New York some time in the future. I do not believe there is anything in the report that she is going to Chattanooga."

Director Parfrey of the Hepworth Company, between which concern and Turner Films there is the closest business relations, is at present in New York. "I can't believe there is a word of truth in the story," said Mr. Parfrey. "If I did I would immediately cable to England. So far as concerns the war interfering with her production in England you can say that it is absolutely false. I know that she has been going right along with her work. Furthermore, if there were any possibility of her leaving England I would have been advised by cable. You may be sure there is nothing of truth in the report."

The Lusitania arrived in England from New York on September 29. Miss Turner was not on board on the previous trip, so it is fair to assume she could not have been "en route" at the time the statement alleged she was.

LEWIS GELENG RETURNS TO NEW YORK.

Lewis A. J. Geleng, after an absence of a year and a half from New York, has returned to the city and says he intends to remain for a while. Mr. Geleng for a good part of the time away has been in Pittsburgh and Cleveland, where he has been doing camera work on industrial and commercial pictures.

WARNING OUT AGAINST ONE R. E. MILLER.

Warning has been circulated among police officials and sheriffs in Illinois to be on the lookout for a man answering to the name of R. E. Miller, who proposes to instruct people in the moving picture business. He is said to advertise in local papers for assistants and to agree to get positions with moving picture producers at $5 a day as soon as they become proficient. He also is described as willing for a fee to instruct in the art of photoplay writing. Miller is said to be about 45 or 50 years of age.

The Alliance Program

Officers and Manufacturers in New Concern Tell of Their Plans—Andrew J. Cobe General Manager.

THE announcement of the Alliance Films Corporation will cause much surprise in film circles. This company is offering a new program of multiple reel features to be released weekly. George West, of West Brothers Knitting Company, Syracuse, New York, is the president, and Andrew J. Cobe is the vice-president and general manager. "The Alliance proposition is practically a co-operative one," said Mr. Cobe, "and brings the manufacturer very close to the exhibitor. It eliminates entirely the sale of state rights, and makes each manufacturer back up his own product.

Andrew J. Cobe.

"Under the state right plan a manufacturer necessarily hesitates in spending large amounts upon production, for there is no assured market. Furthermore, the manufacturer's sole idea is to dispose of the territory.

"With the Alliance plan the manufacturer cannot make any money unless his film can earn it, for his profits are entirely derived from a percentage of the bookings. None of the manufacturers are interested in the exchanges, and the Alliance cannot, therefore, be influenced to release a picture that is not of the highest grade.

"A rotating committee appointed by the exchanges passes upon the films, and the exchanges know in advance the quality of the films they will handle. The manufacturers affiliated with the Alliance Films Corporation have splendid organizations, and the photography, acting and direction will always be of the highest class. Only subjects of great drawing power are being selected for dramatization.

"We have not made an announcement of the exchanges handling the Alliance Program for the reason that actual contracts have not yet been signed with a few of them, but within a week all arrangements will have been concluded. When the list is published it will be seen that the names will include the highest class renters of the country. No statement will be made by the Alliance which is not an assured fact, backed by contracts duly signed and sealed.

"For the same reason we are not announcing the names of the other manufacturers who will be affiliated with us, and while negotiations have been concluded and we would be warranted in publishing such information the actual contracts have not yet been signed. There are many high class theaters who would gladly pay a fair price for big feature productions, but who have been unable to secure a dependable supply from week to week. These exhibitors know the great disappointment caused by booking a widely advertised feature and to discover that on the screen it is but a mediocre subject. Before the Alliance advertises the subject it will have been run off and passed upon by the exchanges who will handle it, and with the class of exchange men handling the Alliance Program there is no doubt that they know a good film when they see it.

"There is not an element of 'forced program' in our entire organization. Every manufacturer must continually strive for quality. A franchise in the Alliance does not mean that a producer who is fortunate enough to get in can turn out footage to carry out the terms of his contract, but he must produce real features. And our standard is high."

M. H. Blackwell, treasurer of the Favorite Players Film Co., Inc., was also highly pleased with the Alliance plan of operation, saying:

"Our policy is to produce films from well-known books. Our first release, 'The Key to Yesterday,' will explain clearly what we consider a good film. The Alliance plan gives us an interest in our films when they are being shown in the theaters, and you can rest assured that we are as anxious as anybody to make money and that we will leave no stone unturned to make such pictures as will make the exhibitor our friend."

William H. Wright, treasurer of the Excelsior Film Company, expressed his pleasure in being affiliated with the Alliance Films Corporation. He said:

"The Alliance and its methods of marketing the film strongly appeal to us. We have confidence in our organization and the plans we have laid for the future, and we feel sure that we will meet with great success. We shall specialize in popular books, with film stars. Our first release in the Alliance Program is 'The Path Forbidden,' by John B. Clymer, featuring Octavia Handworth. We believe this film will cause a sensation, as startling effects are produced. Miss Handworth plays the dual role of the twin sisters and is seen crossing from one side of the stage to the other, meeting herself, and handing various articles to herself. This work had to be timed to the thousandth part of a second, and I do not know of its having ever been successfully accomplished before. Our next release is 'When Fate Leads Trump,' another picturization of a well-known book. We have several other subjects completely finished and ready for release, which will be duly announced.

"The state right proposition does not appeal to me for the reason that we have gone to great expense in making our films, and we feel sure that they are going to be highly successful. We are more than willing to take a chance with the exhibitor, and can confidently promise superior film productions. This Alliance plan is not a get-rich-quick stock-jobbing proposition, and every man in it must earn the money he makes."

S. G. Lindeman, treasurer of the Select Photoplay Producing Company, Inc., commented on the Alliance announcement in the following manner:

"We are in hearty accord with the ideas of the Alliance Films Corporation, and are willing to put the test of our product up to the exhibitor. A man who sincerely desires to make good film cannot find a flaw in the arrangement. The Alliance will put out our first picture, 'At the Old Cross Roads,' from which we expect great results. Arthur C. Aiston, the owner of the play, sent it out on the road for fourteen consecutive seasons and it always played to tremendous business, repeatedly breaking box office records. Many people have pronounced our film version of this play much more powerful than the legitimate drama, as all detail is clearly shown. However, we will be satisfied if it does as well as the original play, and we feel sure that every moving picture house that shows this subject will be more than satisfied. We shall continue making well-known plays, and as far as possible will present the original stars. In 'At the Old Cross Roads' Miss Estha Williams has her original role of Parepe."

While the list of exchanges has not yet been made public, when the announcement is made it will be seen that P. P. Craft, the well-known film man, has secured franchises for three offices. Mr. Craft says that the Alliance plan is the fairest proposition he has ever encountered in the history of the film business, and is very enthusiastic. "I have dreamed many times of such a condition," said Mr. Craft, "but I never expected to find manufacturers broad-minded enough to enter into such an arrangement. As far as the exchanges are concerned, I think that any man securing a franchise should thank his lucky stars, and should be moved to work with might and main to make successful the finest proposition ever launched."

BATTLE TO DEATH IN TWENTY FEET OF WATER.

It was Herbert Brenon and Hobart Henley who at great risk dove into twenty feet of water where they put up one of the most unique and spectacular fights ever done for the screen. This forms one of the scenes for "In Self Defense," a two real drama produced by the Imp Company under the direction of Herbert Brenon, up in the wilds of Connecticut.

Hobart Henley, as the brother, pursues Mr. Brenon, who enacts the role of the villain, to avenge an attempted wrong on his sister. The chase leads on to a lake where the two canoes clash together. Mr. Henley is dragged into the water, and after a terrific struggle, finally succeeds in strangling his opponent. The remainder of the story concerns apprehension and trial of the brother and the love which the sister has for a detective.

Violet Mercereau is seen in the role of the sister. Billy Shay plays the detective, while William Welsh and Mrs. Walker are seen as the father and mother of the boy and girl.

"Rescue of Stefansson Survivors"

Wonderful Motion Picture of the Arctic, Including the Rescue of the Survivors of the Wrecked Stefansson Expedition at Wrangell Island, Soon to Be Placed on the Market.

THE Sunset Motion Picture Co., of San Francisco, of which M. E. Cory, the well-known San Francisco exhibitor is at the head, will place upon the market about December 1 what promises to be the greatest picture ever made of life in the frozen North. The Sunset's expedition sailed from Seattle April 11 on board the schooner "King & Winge," owned by the Hibbard-Swenson Co., well-known Alaskan and Siberian traders. The cameramen were Director Fred Leroy Granville, of Los Angeles, who in previous globe circling trips has established a reputation as one of the world's best natural history motion picture photographers, and assistant cameraman George Charles Zalibra, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has also turned the crank in many foreign countries, and immediately previous to the present Arctic trip was engaged in making pictures of the Mexican Revolution. A dark room was constructed aboard the vessel and complete equipment installed for developing the still pictures and test strips of the motion pictures. The equipment included two of the best motion picture cameras available and 50,000 feet of negative, three still cameras, and an enormous quantity of plates and films were also taken. The vessel was also equipped with small boats, motor driven, which enabled the cameramen to push their way into many inland streams.

Capt. Olaf Jacobson.

Over 14,000 miles have been covered and pictures have been made of every phase of animal life in the North. Some particularly wonderful polar bear, grizzly bear, walrus, seal, reindeer, and Siberian wolf pictures have been secured. Bird life has also been thoroughly covered. Particular attention has been paid to the life, habits, and customs of the natives. A comparison showing the difference between the natives under the American flag and under the Russian flag is vividly shown. The difference in the schools and the personal appearance speak volumes for the Stars and Stripes. Good pictures have been secured in Siberia of the Russian governor together with many scenes of his official and private life. The big dog sled race known as the Alaskan sweepstakes was also filmed. However, the chief feature of the picture is the rescue of the Steamer "Belvedere" and its crew, which was caught off Point Barrow last September and who have passed the entire year in the grip of the ice. After rescuing the "Belvedere" the "King & Winge" made several attempts to reach Wrangell Island to rescue the Stefansson survivors. At one time the "King & Winge" got stuck in the ice, breaking her propeller and rudder and for a time it looked as though she would share the fate of the Stefansson vessel, "The Karluck." However, the crew succeeded in putting on a new rudder and propeller and dynamiting through the ice to the open water. They finally succeeded in reaching Wrangell Island and in rescuing those of the Stefansson expedition who had not succumbed to the privations and hardships encountered since being marooned on the desolate frozen island.

King & Winge, the Rescue Ship.

The Whaler Belvedere in the Ice.

Upon the return trip to Nome the U. S. Revenue Cutter "Bear" was met and the survivors transferred to the "Bear," where they were given medical attention.

The exhibition of this great picture will be agreeably awaited by the entire world as great interest has been taken in the famous Stefansson expedition and efforts have been made by the United States, England, and Russia to rescue the Stefansson survivors with the aid of government vessels.

The Sunset Motion Picture Co.'s expedition is expected to return to San Francisco about the middle of October and Mr. Cory writes that he will probably be in New York about December 1 to arrange for marketing the picture.

Ralph E. Brooks Arrested in Richmond

Charged with Having Defrauded Women and Girls Out of Small Sums in Washington City.

Advertising himself as a director of motion pictures and desiring the assistance of a number of young women to take part in the making of Dixie motion picture plays, Ralph E. Brooks was recently arrested in Richmond, Va. Brooks was charged with being a fugitive from justice from Washington City, where it is alleged he defrauded a number of girls and women of small sums.

Brooks admitted to the Richmond police, it is said, that he had obtained money from four girls in Washington, but denied having taken any from the number of Richmond women who had called at his office. He said that his arrest had taken place before his plans could mature and that he would fight extradition.

SPITZER WITH WORLD FILM CORPORATION.

N. H. Spitzer has been placed in charge of the Kansas City, Mo. office of the World Film Corporation, succeeding R. L. White. Mr. Spitzer has been indentified with the film business for several years, and during that time has shown that he is capable of adapting himself to any phase of the business.

Several years ago he was the New York representative of the American Curtain and Supply Company, now the Alco, opening up that territory for them with the Radium Gold Fibre Screen. Later he was field man for Warner, under Mr. Berman. Then he joined the Lasky forces under Mr. Barnett and later was with "The Million Dollar Mystery."

NEW CALIFORNIA FILM COMPANY.

Announcement is made from Oroville, Butte County, Cal., that the United States Feature Film Company is immediately to begin the construction of permanent buildings in that city on a tract of twenty acres.

BUFFALO TIMES HOLDING PATHESCOPE CONTEST

The Buffalo Times is to award a Pathescope projector to the twelve schools receiving the greatest number of votes in a coupon round-up. It is designed so to arrange matters that the smaller schools will have a chance with the big ones.

James Gordon Back From Bermuda

Well-Known Director Compelled to Leave the Island as All of His Extras Were Ordered to the Front.

AFTER a stay of six months in Bermuda James Gordon has returned to New York bringing with him the members of the Victory company. Mr. Gordon's homecoming was due to the war indirectly, and directly to the fact that the second battalion of the Lincolnshire regiment, from which Mr. Gordon had selected his extras, had gone to the front. The island has been under martial law from the beginning of hostilities. Besides directing, Mr. Gordon has been playing strong leads in the five subjects he has produced. Miss Betty Harte is the leading woman of the company. E. A. Turner and Walter Fischer are the juveniles and Alfred Sidwell is the character man.

James Gordon.

On account of weather conditions Mr. Gordon was able to make but eighteen reels. These were divided as follows: "The Oath of a Viking," three reels, a story dealing with the Viking age; "The Next in Command," a three-part military tale of the Sudan, in which were employed 150 soldiers and 40 horses; "The Poisoned Pool," in five reels, now making a hit with exhibitors; "Mexico's Insult to the United States Flag," which starts out seriously but ends in comedy; "The Wildflower," the scenario of which was writen by Miss Harte and in which she is featured together with Mr. Gordon. These subjects are being released through the Picture Playhouse Film Company.

Mr. Gordon had been anxious to take a picture of the departing regiment, among the members of which he had many firm friends. He appealed to the Governor, pointing out the great value of the film from the educational as well as from the sentimental viewpoint. The Governor admitted that the picture would have great interest in England and the British colonies, but after having the matter under advisement for a few days said he was compelled to decline the application. When the regiment was marching down to the steamer Mr. Gordon drove to the pier. As the men of the two companies among which he had such fast friends passed him every hat came off with a cheery good-bye for the director. Mr. Gordon was deeply impressed by the parting, realizing that so many of the fine fellows might not get back from France. "It hit me hard," he said.

In the making of "The Poisoned Pool" Mr. Gordon used a fourteen-foot python, which he handled himself. He admitted it was a bit ticklish at first. He kept the snake in his room for two weeks before using it in the picture. It was the first snake, by the way, to enter Bermuda, so far as known, and Mr. Gordon had some trouble getting it by the authorities. He said the snake was powerless if held by the neck and tail—that then it could not constrict. In one scene Mr. Gordon had slated himself to climb a pole to get away from cannibals. As he started up, the snake was to be lowered until but a foot separated the man and the reptile, when the latter was to be shot through the head, presumably by a man in the distance, actually by an expert rifleman at fairly close quarters. "The snake was shot through the head all right," said Mr. Gordon. "We tumbled it into a bag and I took it home. The next morning I drove out into the woods with a cameraman and a negro who was to play a savage. We intended to make the scene following the shooting. I was to reach up and grab the snake and throw him down upon the cannibal under me. I dove into the bag for the snake, assuming of course it was dead. I pulled it out by the tail when suddenly I discovered more signs of life than I had at any previous time noted. The negro had never seen one before, and you may be sure the colored man was properly frightened. I finally managed to get a grip on Mr. Fourteen Feet and hold him down while the negro was trying to cut a forked stick. It was a long time before he was able to carry out his assignment, but eventually he brought back the fork. I made a sure job of the killing this time, you may be sure."

Philip Lonergan Has New Job

PHILIP LONERGAN, editor of scenarios (it should be "script editor") at Thanhouser Film Corporation, New Rochelle, has another honor thrust upon him. He is in charge of the entire production of the studio at the present time, and he is acceptably filling the position.

Y'see, Lloyd F. Lonergan, Chief of Production, has gone away out to the Coast upon business matters of great importance dealing with the Pan-American Exposition that breaks there in 1915, and during his indefinite absence Phil will have charge of the big New Rochelle studio. That means that in addition to writing scripts to take care of the Thanhouser "Three a Week," and the Princess weekly release, he has to devote the rest of his hours in the factory and studio. He must see that directors are kept busy by having sets erected on time; see that the studio manager has help enough to keep things moving; supervise the work of cutting negatives; watch the finished print run in the projection room and decide what to retain and what to omit; consult with the joining room overseer in relation to releases; help the cast director pick "types" for photoplays; give the right director the right script; eat (for men must dine); and then meet out-of-town people prominent in the film game and devote a certain portion of his day to entertaining them.

Philip Lonergan.

It will be readily seen that Philip has a cinch! Also he must commute to Brooklyn after his labors are over at the Thanhouser plant for the day, and hie himself northward in the morning so as to reach New Rochelle in time to hear the grass breathe. But it's all in a day's work to genial Phil. He feels that his "big" brother deserves a vacation away from the plant after writing 800 or more scripts in the past five years and putting over "The Million Dollar Mystery," and is content to work the 24 hours if it's necessary to keep the Thanhouser banner flying from the flagstaff.

PLAYERS TO ATTEND LEAGUE BALL.

More than forty acceptances have already been received from motion picture actors and actresses of the invitations extended by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the District of Columbia to attend the ball to be given by the League on Hallowe'en. In advertising this event each theater in Washington is this week using a slide bearing the following: "Your only opportunity to personally meet all your favorite photoplay stars at the grand ball and reception at Convention Hall, given under the auspices of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League." The Washington Star is devoting considerable space to this event and aiding the exhibitors to quite an extent. Among those announced as coming are Francis X. Bushman, Earle Williams, James Morrison, Lloyd Lonergan, Florence LaBadie, James Cruze, Arthur Johnson, Howard Mitchell, Hughie Mack, Wallie Van, Norma Phillips, Mary Fuller, James Daley, Clara Lambert, Ben Wilson, Marguerite Snow, Ralph Ince, Peter Lang, John Smiley, Joseph Smiley, Harry Morey, Flora Finch, Leah Baird, Florence Hackett, Justina Huff, Louise Huff, Mayme Kelso, Kate Price, Lillie Leslie, Dorothy Kelly, Mary Maurice, Norma Talmadge, Ethel Clayton, Romaine Fielding, Earl Metcalf, Edgar Jones, Lillian Walker, Anita Stewart, and a number of others.

BIG JACKSONVILLE HOUSE NEARING COMPLETION.

The Republic Theater of Jacksonville, Fla., is nearing completion. More than $40,000 is said to have been spent on its construction. There will be a seating capacity of 800, with an unobstructed view for all. Special attention has been given to the fireproof factors. The theater will be under the management of H. H. MacKirgan, who has given his personal supervision to the erection of the structure.

Detroit Universal Offices Renovated

Rapid Expansion of Business Under the Management of George Weeks—Night and Day Forces Employed.

EXTENSIVE alterations are being made to the quarters of the Detroit Universal Film Company, at Woodward and Larned streets, Detroit. This firm occupies the second, third and fourth floors of the building, and probably has the largest quarters of any film exchange in the city, despite the fact that it is not two years old. The business is under the management of George Weeks, who has more than doubled it since he took hold. Two men in the organization worthy of special mention are Bert Diener, conceded to be one of the best booking managers in the Middle West, and a pioneer in the motion picture business, and Joe Lingeman, who has charge of the mounting department.

Every floor occupied by the Universal offices is to be redecorated and renovated throughout. On the second floor are the general offices and reception room, while in the rear is a showroom for supplies. New cases have been ordered to show machine parts, and in the same room will be on exhibition such well-known picture machines as the Simplex, Power, Edison and Motiograph. On this floor are also a repair department and a desk for the inspectors of films. There are six inspectors during the day and four at night, each of whom has his individual motor to work with. On the third floor are the private offices of the booking, poster and projection departments. When the projection room is completed there will be seats for spectators and other conveniences. Every Universal reel is inspected at the office before it is booked. On the third floor is the mounting department. An average of five hundred large mounts of all kinds are produced each day, and all by hand. Mr. Lingeman, manager of this department, has two men to assist him. On account of their success, most of the theaters rent the mounts as they need them, and in this way the film company can use them a dozen times, thereby getting back the original cost and at the same time giving the theaters a beautiful big mount for very little money. The Detroit Universal company works a double crew in practically all departments, one during the day and the other at night, so that a customer can be taken care of at any hour out of the twenty-four.

The Detroit Universal Film Company is not a direct branch of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company of New York. It is composed of Detroit business men who control all of the capital stock. The company, however, is under contract to handle exclusively Universal films. The men behind the Detroit company include Frank Drew, Sam Levey, William Fitzgerald, Charles Wesch and George Weeks, who recently became a stockholder. The company is booking approximately seventy of the one hundred and twenty-five motion picture houses in Detroit and, in addition, has a large business through the state. George Weeks, manager of the Detroit Universal Film Company, returned September 21 from a week's business trip to New York City.

UNCOVERS COMPLICATED THEFT SYSTEM.

An international traffic in stolen moving picture films has been exposed by Detroit detectives, mention of which was recently made in the Moving Picture World. Thus far, however, no important arrests have been made. It seems that the stolen films have been passed to a "fence" on Congress street, Detroit, and then shipped to a Philadelphia exporting firm. Since the reports of thefts from film exchanges in Detroit, the police have been conducting a thorough investigation and believe they have uncovered the most complicated system of theft discovered here in months. The films were being passed out to ragpickers in waste paper which was being disposed of by the film companies. The ragpickers in turn carried them several doors away, delivered them to another man, who turned them over to a negro janitor and watchman in a building in Congress street West. He carried them to a Fort street West building, and from there they were delivered to another confederate, who turned them over to the real "fence" at a Congress street East address. This man is alleged to have shipped them to a Philadelphia company whose address has been found. From there they have been exported after changing the titles. Of late the General Film Company lost four films, the Wolverine Film Exchange three, and other exchanges have also reported thefts.

SOUTHERN STATES ELECTS OFFICERS.

At a reorganization recently of the Southern States Film Company of Oklahoma City, L. C. Cullison was elected president and general manager. The officers and stockholders mapped out a program of immediate activity.

INQUEST CLUB MEETS.

The Inquest Club had its first Fall meeting on Monday evening, September 21, at the Savoy, 34th street, west of Broadway, where twenty-three Inquesters studied a first run show made up of Biograph's "Just a Bit of Life" (drama); Edison's "The Adventure of the Hasty Elopement," the ninth of "Octavius"—Amateur Detective Series (comedy); Kalem's "The Potter and the Clay" (two part drama), and Vitagraph's "Fine Feathers Make Fine Birds." After the show the Inquest Club slide announced that the Inquesters would congregate in the lobby and at 9:20 old acquaintances were renewed and new ones made, but the "daddy of 'em all" —Epes Winthrop Sargent—was "lubinizing" at Jacksonville and had passed his mace to John William Kellette to keep "Doc" Reed, of Morristown; Rev. Dr. Stockton, of East Orange, and Miss Davis, of New York City, from talking about the war, as the club has decided to be neutral except to war upon bad photoplays. The program was taken up for discussion after a communication from Mr. Sargent was read, passing the temporary control of the club to Mr. Kellette, and advising the members of the condition of the market. Mr. Hirsch led the discussion on "Fine Feathers Make Fine Birds." The ladies found fault with the plot of the story, which had to do with a wife whose personal appearance had to be neglected for the care of her children, and because of her slovenly dress the husband sought the companionship of an actress who eventually sent the wife, dressed in fine feathers, to keep an appointment with her own husband. "Just a Bit of Life" was also badly handled in production and came in for a thorough discussion led by Doctor Stockton, who also led the discussion on "The Potter and the Clay." On the last one it was agreed to a unit that the unhappy ending was unnatural and that the author did not follow the interpretation of the verse in "Romans" anent the potter and the clay. The "Octavius" release was a good example of the "magazine story" that would not make a good photoplay, and it failed to get even a chuckle at the Savoy. Carl Louis Gregory spoke for a few minutes on "undersea" stories and invited the Inquesters to try writing plots that could be produced in the Williamson submersible tube. The next meeting will be on Monday evening, October 5, at the same time and place.

ANGRY CANADIAN SOLDIERS WRECK PICTURE TENT.

Enraged at a moving picture tent show owner for failing to change his program, Canadian soldiers at Valcartier Camp, Quebec, recently pulled the pegs supporting the canvas, pushed over the pole and set the tent on fire. Maybe the fire was not incendiary; it may have started from the overturning of one or more of the oil lamps which provided such light as the show may have needed. A perfectly good tent and all of its fixings were reduced to ashes, nevertheless, and, following the hasty automobile exit of the proprietor and his operator, there remained none to express regrets, if one may believe Canadian newspaper accounts.

Thirty-two thousand soldiers in camp at Valcartier have been awaiting orders to sail for the front in France. They have been impatient to "get busy." They turned to the motion picture entertainment as recreation. At first there was no complaint when the program was unchanged. Then mutterings were heard, and the provost police warned the picture proprietor, said to have been James Goldgrabber of the International Cinema Clearing House, of New York, that he must give the soldiers a fair deal. Evidently no attention was paid to the protest, for on the evening of the disturbance there were insistent demands from the soldiers for "money back." The claims were refused. Then things happened. The tent was jammed, and many were caught under the falling canvas, but no one was seriously hurt. The proprietor was able to get his two machines into the Y. M. C. A. tent before the flames started, and he departed.

BURNED BY PREMATURE EXPLOSION OF BOMB.

Frank Walton, assistant to J. Searle Dawley at the Dyreda studios in Yonkers, has been wearing elaborate bandages on his right hand, the result of a premature explosion of a bomb. Mr. Walton was working in a battle scene and held the missile all lighted to throw into the field of the camera. He held on to the bomb too long, and got a bad burn. The wound is healing finely.

B. E. CORNELL IN TOWN.

B. E. Cornell, a well-known exhibitor, whose theater is in Fayette street, Syracuse, was in New York last week. Mr. Cornell said business had been good all summer. Asked as to how organization matters stood in his section, he replied that there was "nothing doing."

Max Linder Reported Killed.

Berlin Dispatch Says Noted Pathe Star Comedian Met His Death in Battle of the Aisne.

A CABLE dispatch from Berlin by way of Rome reports the death of Max Linder. He is said to have been killed in the battle of the Aisne, which at the time of writing (October 1) is in its twentieth day. While Mr. Linder was serving with the French forces, in the first line reserve, it is not necessarily unusual that his death should be reported from the German capital, although, of course, had it come from a French source there would have been less liability of error. There is the hope on the part of his many friends that it may be a case of mistaken identity. Mr. Linder has always been known as a man absolutely fearless. The quality he has on numberless occasions displayed in his pictures easily may have contributed to his death on the field of battle.

Max Linder literally had made millions laugh. He was the first of the screen's great comedians, and he had maintained his position down to the present time. He was born forty-nine years ago, and his age at his death indicates that his entrance into active service in the French army was from choice, not from necessity.

Max Linder.

Linder as a boy of a dozen years old took a prize in declamation at school. His talents came to the attention of George Bargy, of the Comedie Francaise, and through his influence the lad was given a chance in the Varieties. He made good from the start. Before he was out of his teens he went to the Comedie Francaise. Here it was that Charles Pathe noted his work, and about ten years ago offered him work in the pictures. Mr. Pathe made Mr. Linder a proposition that would net him about $12,000 a year, which was accepted. Mr. Linder had been with Pathe Freres up to the time of his departure for the war.

Mr. Linder's income had steadily increased from the first. Two years ago he went to Russia on a picture-making tour, and his two months' stay netted him $600 a day. Last year he made another and similar visit to Russia, and his one month's work yielded him $24,000. His income had reached the point of $70,000 a year, making him the best-paid star in pictures; and it is doubtful if there are many who on the legitimate stage exceeded him in earning capacity. Mr. Linder used no scenario in his work of directing his own pictures. He had been especially valuable to his employers, because in the early days of picture-making he had taken all sorts of chances. If it were necessary for him to run an automobile and he had no knowledge of the machine a few lessons would suffice; he would be ready to enter a race. Recently he operated a hydroaeroplane after one day's instruction.

On the morning following the report of Mr. Linder's death telegrams were received at the offices of Pathe Freres from all over the country, testifying to the remarkable popularity of the man and the player. His friends will await the confirmation of the sad news, in the slim hope that a mistake has been made. There are few men in the zone of war who are so well known and whose death will be more regretted than will that of Max Linder.

PRESIDENT PEARCE WORKING ON TAX BILL.

President Marion S. Pearce, of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, has spent most of his time in Washington since the first hint that a tax on motion picture theaters was to be included in the bill now under discussion in the Capitol. He has been laboring incessantly to secure consideration of the objections of moving picture men to the provision of the bill as originally outlined.

When the measure was in course of preparation by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, the League was assured that no tax whatever on motion picture theaters would be included. Consequently it was a complete surprise to learn when the bill was reported out of committee that each motion picture theater in the country was to be burdened with a tax of $100, regardless of size or capacity.

While President Pearce expects to watch the progress of the bill and continue to look out for the interests of the League, he should be supported in this effort by every exhibitor throughout the country. The splendid response by the members of the League to the request for letters and telegrams to be sent to Senators and members of Congress has been of great assistance in convincing the legislators that the original bill was unfair and unjust. Exhibitors throughout the country will undoubtedly realize from this incident, as well as from others of a similar nature that have previously occurred, that co-operation through the membership of the League may be productive of benefits that cannot be measured.

PARIS NOTES.

EVERY form of economy is being effected by picture theater proprietors in Paris. Pianos take the place of orchestras. Only half the lights are turned on. No programmes are printed. Many showmen have dismissed their staff and are carrying on business aided by members of their families. I saw the proprietor of one well-known hall on his hands and knees scrubbing the entrance hall. His young son takes the tickets at the door and another of his kin is in charge of the box office.

* * *

When the French government went to Bordeaux and the banks of Paris closed, all those who were able decided to abandon the city, the transformation of which might be likened to a faded flower. On Friday, September 4, your correspondent accompanied by a St. Louis moving picture man, set off for Havre. We left the St. Lazare railroad station at 8.30 p. m. The train stopped at every station and between every station. We passed the weary hours by reading copies of New York newspapers and endeavoring to sleep on the hard board seats of the compartment. At Rouen we were told to change into another train. Shortly after leaving that station I and my friend from St. Louis decided to find some more rapid means of locomotion. Accordingly we got out at a little wayside station and took to the road. We had not walked far before we sighted an automobile van. "Say," said the St. Louis man, "guess we'll try and get aboard this machine." I was heartily in agreement and we succeeded in arresting the driver's attention. The automobile proved to be a hearse. But it traveled and the driver was going to Havre. So we climbed on top and on this gruesome vehicle eventually arrived in the very busy and warlike port of Havre. After inspecting the magnificent United States battleship Tennessee, we went over to the France and my friend inspected his cabin. The last I saw of him was on the quay at Havre. As the boat for Southampton steamed slowly out of the harbor he waved a little American flag and shouted to me "Long live the Picture World." From the time I left Paris it took me nearly two days to reach London. At Havre I found all the picture theaters closed. Most of them were being used by the military authorities as barracks and hospitals.

JOHN CHER.

Theo Wharton in Town

Ithaca Producer Relates Two Interesting Incidents in Connection With Making "A Prince of India."

THEODORE W. WHARTON, producer of Wharton, Inc., was at the Screen Club Saturday afternoon. A World man was inquiring about the sensational drop of a trolley car into a gorge, one of the dramatic incidents of Mr. Wharton's recent release of "A Prince of India."

"That car dropped 280 feet," said Mr. Wharton. "We had arranged with the railroad company to pull off the smash at 2 o'clock, as we believed at that time the light would be the best. Fifteen minutes before that hour we were behind. The employees of the railroad came out in force, and at ten minutes after 2 the car went over. The iron rail alongside the bridge had been removed and a wooden one put in its place, so that the car as it took the switch on the bit of spur would not fail to go through. Another fact in connection with the production of 'A Prince of India' that may be of public interest is that in the staged apartment of the Rajah there were $50,000 worth of furniture that had at one time been owned by a sure-enough rajah. It seems the Indian potentate, visiting in Paris, had brought some of his household goods with him. Taking a fancy to a lot of French furniture he had given his home belongings to his temporary private secretary. We heard that these tapestries were in Ithaca, and went gunning for them. We found the owner, and when we suggested we would be glad to rent the articles for use in the picture the owner was delighted. 'If you want to put them in a picture you are welcome to their use. If you will come with me to the storage warehouse you may select all you care for.' We took up the offer, you may be sure. Those tapestries were embroidered in gold.

"Ithaca certainly is a great place, and the citizens of the community cannot do enough for us. Their good-will is a tangible asset in our business. In fact, they look upon our company as their own. If there is a rainy day the business people worry about us. It is certainly a splendid town. In Cornell University there are students from all over the world, and we can get the services of men of almost any nationality in native garb. We never miss New York. If we need any extras we wire New York, the parties take the evening train and are in Ithaca in the morning. The only difference between the up-state city and Jersey City in that regard is the railroad fare."

Mr. Wharton was accompanied by his brother, Leopold D. Wharton.

British Notes

THE statement of a French doctor, which has been given prominence in the press recently, should effectually explode the dogmatic utterances of certain cinema cynics that moving pictures affect the eyesight. "I know of nothing better," says this medicus, "as a refreshing change to the eyesight than for a man to spend a couple of hours or so in the evening watching cinematograph pictures."

* * *

I have heard a rumor from the Lubin agency that Mr. Philip Rader is in France making a bold attempt to secure a series of real war pictures on behalf of the famous Philadelphia firm. According to this information the pictures will be taken from an aeroplane flying above the scenes of hostilities and the photographic work done by means of telephoto lenses. Mr. Rader was in London last week, but in view of the extreme restrictions imposed upon photographers by the Government the announcement is being regarded with a certain amount of skepticism.

* * *

The attitude of the picture-going public toward certain moving-picture theaters in the London district has been incited by a certain newspaper into a menacing one. Although controlled by German capital these theaters are managed, staffed and supplied locally so there is no useful or patriotic purpose served by an attempt to boycott them. Last week police protection had to be sought by the manager of one show to check the hostile advances of a gang of roughs.

* * *

Messrs. Pathe Freres have, owing to the recent threatened investment of Paris, temporarily transferred their headquarters to London, where most of the European business of the firm will be conducted. The arrangements have involved many staff changes, the London manager having gone to the New York office. Some of these may only be temporary appointments; nothing seems yet certain beyond the fact that the Pathe organization has suffered many great inconveniences.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Masterpiece Film Men

M. De La Parelle, Director, and Elliot J. Clawson, Scenario Writer for New Company.

ABOUT four years ago M. De La Parelle, director for the Masterpiece Film Manufacturing Co., came to the conclusion that the future in motion pictures was brighter than that along operatic or dramatic lines. Four years ago was the propituous moment for such a conclusion, he has since learned. For fifteen years he had been engaged in producing light and grand opera and dramatic subjects. He had produced all the Gilbert and Sullivan works and numerous other light and heavy subjects and there was little he did not know concerning the production of dramatic subjects for the stage. Then four years ago he put a soft pedal on his operatic work and began looking into the production end of motion pictures. The more he looked into the subject the better it looked to him, until finally he went home one day and announced to his wife that he was going into motion pictures and, furthermore, was going to begin at the bottom of the ladder.

M. De La Parelle.

Elliott J. Clawson.

She gave him the merry ha-ha and said he was crazy, but he has continued along in that same crazy line ever since. He knew the machinery of the stage, but he knew nothing about the machinery of motion pictures. He began writing scenarios, and before he graduated out of that work he had forty-two of his pictures produced. He wrote the scenarios for some of the biggest subjects ever produced on the Pacific Coast. He then associated himself with successful producers, and in another two years he had the mechanics of motion picture production at his finger tips. He was employed by the Kinemacolor, the Universal and the Majestic companies.

One thing that impressed him deeply was the hap-hazard business methods employed by some producing companies, and the first move he made when he began producing for himself was to associate himself with business men of the best standing and to produce pictures on a business basis. M. De La Parelle has just completed a five-reel version of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," by Edward Eggleston, in which Mr. Max Figman is featured in the title role. Those who have seen it say that for effective human interest, convincing plot development and good picture mechanics it has never been surpassed. A child is capable of criticising this work because it is one of the classics of American literature and the characters are known to all.

Mr. De La Parelle is now working on a five-reel version of "The Truth Wagon," a comedy-drama in which Mr. Figman scored one of his greatest hits. Mr. Figman is also being featured in this subject. He is supported by Lolita Robertson and a cast of well-known actors.

Elliott J. Clawson, formerly a scenario writer for the Universal company and for the past year publicity agent at the West Coast studios of that company, is associated with M. De La Parelle of the Masterpiece Films in the capacity of assistant producer. The company has just completed the production of a five-reel version of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," by Edward Eggleston, in which Mr. Max Figman is featured in the title role.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

FLORIDA LEAGUE CONVENTION.

A Successful Session Held at West Palm Beach—Officers Elected.

THE third annual convention of the Florida Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America was called to order by Vice President Kettler, of West Palm Beach, owing to the absence of President O. Griffith of Tampa, on Monday Sept. 14th at the Bijou Theater, West Palm Beach, with 14 members present. Several matters of vital importance, not only to exhibitors but to the patrons of the moving picture theatres throughout Florida, were discussed and several resolutions adopted. Letters of regret for non attendance from some 20 members were read and placed on file.

Applications were read from eight parties desiring to become members of the League and by the regular course procedures they were elected to membership. The meeting was then adjoined to 2 P. M.

In the afternoon after several matters of business had been taken care of and after speeches by Vice President Kettler, A. A. Tano and Louis Kalbfield nominations were declared in order for offices of the League for the ensuing year and the following were elected:

President Carl Kettler, Jr. of West Palm Beach; Vice President L. H. Kalbfield, Palatka, and Secretary and Treasurer A. H. LaBelle of Tampa, Fla. The followed directors were also elected—Carl Kettler Jr., Bijou Theatre; W. P. Beach, L. H. Kalbfield, Grand, Palatka; A. H. LaBelle, Grand Theater, Tampa, L. Halliman, Crystal, Fort Pierce; A. A. Tano, Dixie, Kissimmee: S. J. Harvey, Star, Milton, and A. A. Torres, Airdome Key West, and W. S. Moreland, Arcade, W. P. Beach was elected National vice president of the Florida Branch.

All the newly elected officers were immediately installed in office, and after appropriate speeches the meeting was adjoined to 10 A. M. Tuesday Sept. 15th.

At 10 A. M. Tuesday Sept. 15th the meeting was called to order and after some discussion A. A. Tano was elected Florida Organizer. Mr. Tano being a very good speaker, and being familiar with the work will canvas the entire state for the advancement of the League.

After further discussion of important matters the meeting was brought to a close by an apt and characteristic speech by President Carl Kettler, Jr.

The next convention will be held at Palatka where Mr. and Mrs. Kalbfield will entertain the exhibitors at a date to be set later.

The Florida State Branch has at present 35 members and has been in existence just one year.

The State Branch tendered a vote of thanks to President Kettler. The Board of Trade, and the citizens in general of West Palm Beach for their entertainment which began the moment they arrived and lasted until the last exhibitors was on board the train homeward bound. Besides being entertained every moment while not engaged in actual business, special features were pulled off at Gus' Baths and the Flagler Houseboat. Every one had the time of their lives.

Among the various film men present were F. S. Laubert of the World Film Corporation, Atlanta: Byron S. Bryan of the Electric Feature Film Exchange, Atlanta: Mr. Chivers of the Paramount Features, Atlanta, and W. C. Burget of the Universal, Tampa. Many features of the above companies were shown, to the enjoyment of all, at local theatres.

W. C. Burget had his M. P. camera with him and took a mile of film, which will be run in various Florida houses as soon as finished.

CALIFORNIA EXHIBITORS ACTIVE.

Extensive preparations have been made for the third annual convention of the California State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, to be held at San Francisco on October 6, 7, 8 and 9. Chairmen have been named for committees as follows: Sightseeing, Frank R. Macauley; dance, Ralph L. Marks; badges, etc., R. L. Marks; theater party, I. Oppenheimer; banquet, W. A. Cory; printing, C. L. Langley. Many of the exchanges and supply houses have arranged to have exhibits in the assembly hall of the Phelan Building, where the meeting will be held.

A request has been received by the Exhibitors' League of San Francisco from the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association for members to run slides in their theaters protesting against the passage of the proposed eight-hour law. The matter was laid upon the table until after the State convention, as this is one of the important subjects that is to be considered at this meeting.

Chief of Police David A. White and Peter Peshon, of the San Francisco police department and board of censorship, who have been waging war upon exhibitors for showing European war scenes, have been made defendants in a suit for damages brought by the Apex Film Company for interfering with the exhibition of the feature film "The Kaiser's Challenge." This film was seized when shown recently at the Silver Palace Theater and was held for about a week. Later it was run for two days without interference, but when preparations were being made to show it at another house the police again stepped in. A restraining order has been secured to prevent the police officials from interfering with the exhibition of any so-called war films belonging to this concern. The case will be pushed vigorously.

A committee consisting of J. C. Astredo, Miss Edith Hecht, Mrs. J. C. Levy and Mrs. M. L. Sweeney, recently appeared before the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of San Francisco and asked that a section be reserved in all theaters for unescorted women and children. No definite action was taken on the proposition. The committee represented the Juvenile Protective Association, an organization of local prominence.

T. A. CHURCH.

CENSORSHIP QUESTION DISCUSSED.

Exhibitors, Exchangemen and Censors Hold Spirited Meeting at Columbus—Cencors Recognize Needs.

FILM exchange men and exhibitors alike anticipate much less trouble on the censorship question now that the matter has been so thoroughly thrashed out at Columbus, Ohio. The meeting there last week was attended by over 100 exhibitors and representatives of the forty-odd exchanges doing business in the State, and the censors, with admirable judgment, recognized that the weight of opinion and of evidence as well was against them and promised certain much-needed reforms, including the following: Inspection of all pictures at the earliest possible moment, supplying exchanges with a list of the objectionable scenes eliminated with reasons for the objections of the censors, and the appointment of a grievance committee to represent the picture men and work in conjunction with the censors. This committee was at once agreed upon, and will consist of M. A. Neff, of Cincinnati; Dr. Alexander, of Dayton, and W. Mattox, of Columbus. It is hoped that better progress will be made hereafter, and that better feeling will exist all around.

A. M. Muller, manager of the Cincinnati branch of Warner's Features, has for some time been one of the most vigorous kickers against the slow methods of the censors. He declared that the use of a single projection machine for their use, when films were rolling in for inspection and O K at the rate of 150 a week, was ridiculous, for the reason that it limited the possible output of the censorship office too seriously. Mr. Muller stated recently that he had frequently found it necessary, since the censors began to get busy, to substitute pictures for exhibitors who had booked features on account of the delay of the censors and that exchanges supplying regular programs suffered even more.

CLEVELAND JUDGES OVERRULES CENSORSHIP ORDER.

Cincinnati exhibitors were notified last week by the police department, which was acting under instructions from Columbus, that pictures shown without the mark of the approval of the Ohio censors would not be permitted and, furthermore, that arrests might be expected if disregard of this warning occurred. Most of the pictures shown since have accordingly borne the yellow map of Ohio which is the censorship board's sign. The situation has been somewhat complicated, however, as far as the exhibitors are concerned, by the recent ruling of the municipal judge at Cleveland to the effect that if a film has in fact been approved by the censors the omission of the board's mark of approval does not subject the exhibitors to a penalty. The police are likely to act warily under this view of the law, as otherwise they may subject themselves to considerable trouble if an exhibitor arrested can show that his films, although not marked accordingly, were passed by the Ohio censors.

"The Beloved Adventurer"

A Clever Combination of Book and Pictures—Now Featured by the Lubin Company.

THE novel idea to publish a book of romance in fifteen chapters and make every chapter correspond to a single reel of pictures has found swift appreciation by exhibitors all over the country. The idea emanates from the Lubin studio. Lubin has published a novel, called "The Beloved Adventurer." The author is Emmett Campbell Hall. The book is quite readable; indeed, it has a distinct value as a piece of fiction quite apart from its connection with the series of photoplays which bear the same title, "The Beloved Adventurer." The style is entertaining, each chapter ending with a climax; and the interest is skilfully maintained until the supreme moment in the last chapter. The book contains over one hundred and fifty pages, is neatly printed and handsomely bound. It has proved very acceptable to motion picture patrons wherever the name of Arthur V. Johnson is known.

The hero of the book and the picture is Arthur Johnson, ably supported by Lottie Briscoe. In all his successful career, during which he has endeared himself to countless devotees of the screen, Johnson has never had a part which fitted him more perfectly than this role of Lord Cecil. "The Beloved Adventurer" is primarily a character study. It portrays the best type of an Englishman, who happens to belong to the nobility. Lord Cecil is manly, modest, full of sympathy for the weak and possessed of a true knight's special devotion to a maiden in distress. He shows himself capable of great self-sacrifice. He is as bashful as a schoolboy and as daring as a hero. Spartan in his resolve never to betray emotion no man has deeper and nobler sentiments that he. It is plain the actor is in love with his work and has become completely merged in the character he portrays with such signal success.

Having read the book with a good deal of interest the writer was anxious to see how the idea was worked out in the pictures and it may be said that the first three releases are surpassingly good. Though each story stands independently by itself there is a connecting thread which gives a rising interest to each new chapter on the screen. The plot, the settings, the photography, the support of the principal characters by the lesser figures in the cast show extraordinary quality. The Lubin Company is selling the book at what appears to be an impossible price—fifteen cents per copy. At such a price this charming novel is a bargain indeed and will be quickly appreciated by the public. Book and pictures of "The Beloved Adventurer" form a new departure in motion picture serials and will be a source of revenue to every exhibitor who is enterprising enough to recognize his opportunity. The advertising possibilities of this combined series of book and pictures are limitless. Properly handled "The Beloved Adventurer" will be a money-maker for every exhibitor and will add to the prestige of any house which uses the book and the pictures.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF THE TRADE.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 10, 1914.

Moving Picture World,
New York City, N. Y.

Gentlemen: The Moving Picture World is "The Encyclopedia Britannica" for all phases of the Moving Picture Business. Situated in a small city, we depend exclusively upon The Moving Picture World for all information, including supplies, repairs, programs and everything pertaining to the business.

Enclosed please find our check for a year's advance subscription.

Yours very truly,
MURPHY BROS.,

MAX FIGMAN IN "THE HOOSIER SCHOOLMASTER."

THE five-reel film adaptation of Edward Eggleston's novel, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," in which Max Figman is being featured and which is being produced by the Masterpiece Film Company, is nearing completion, according to the latest advices from the western studios of that company.

Max Figman.

This is Mr. Figman's third picture, and he is now well into the work. In the present production he plays the role of Ralph Hartsook, a bookish man, timid and retiring, who wanders into a frontier town of Indiana and is compelled to fight the whole community. The story is laid in 1831, and at that time grown men still attended the grammar schools. Thus the schoolmaster is called upon to manage pupils capable and anxious to lick the daylight out of him. The plot is compact, and closely drawn characterizations afford the best kind of comedy.

Mr. Figman is supported by Lolita Robertson, who plays the part of Hannah Thompson, a mere slip of a girl, a delicate, beautiful thing, who is bound out to work for a brutal farmer.

The producer is M. De La Parelle, formerly with the Kinemacolor and the Universal. He is assisted by Elliott J. Clawson, until recently with the Universal.

SCREEN CLUB POLITICS BOOMING.

The members of the Screen Club are taking a lively interest in the annual election of officers, which takes place on Saturday, October 3, at the clubhouse in West 47th street. The campaign centers chiefly, of course, on the candidates for president. From the ticket named by the regular nominating committee, President Baggot has withdrawn as a candidate to succeed himself, which action was forecasted a fortnight ago. He will be a candidate for the Board of Governors on the ticket headed by James Kirkwood. From the regular ticket other withdrawals are of J. Stuart Blackton for second vice-president, Samuel Spedon for corresponding secretary (Mr. Spedon remains a candidate for the board on the ticket headed by Billy Quirk), and Dave Wall for corresponding secretary. Mr. Wall has another year to serve on the Board of Governors. Besides the two named as candidates for president there is also Joseph Farnham. The friends of the three are making a strong canvass, and it is certain that the Screen Clubhouse will be visited late Saturday afternoon and early evening by a record number of members.

GARWOOD IN A SUIT OF MAIL.

Sydney Ayres, of the American studios, is producing a splendid photoplay in "Galahad of Twilight," a story of the woods. William Garwood takes the part of Dick, a young "Galahad," and in one scene the girl, played by Vivian Rich, dreams and Garwood is seen in a wonderful suit of armor, which was used in 1515, and which was loaned by the wealthy Mr. Cameron Rogers. Billy certainly makes a fine Knight. Release Oct. 26, 1914.

S. S. HUTCHINSON RETURNS FROM ABROAD.

President S. S. Hutchinson, of the American Film Mfg. Co., with his wife and two sons, Hobart and Winston, returned on the Olympic, Wednesday, Sept. 23. Mr. Hutchinson's experiences abroad were of a somewhat thrilling nature and sight of American soil caused a thrill of joy such as can be appreciated only by those who, after weeks of harrassing trials and tribulations, again come into their own rightful heritage.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

THE fall and winter season of 1914-15 is hardly a month old, yet there are distinct symptoms of anxiety on the part of theatrical managers. It is with justification that the motion picture people are included. They are, at last, in the theatrical columns. Indeed, more space is accorded the motion picture attractions in more publications than the so-called legitimate gets. Conditions "over the seas" are gradually exerting an influence upon the industrial conditions on this side to an extent that causes many to fear that eventually even the amusement world will join the commercial and other centers in a policy of retrenchment. For obvious reasons none of the regular theaters complain of disappointing business, but information from the inner circles shows that business is far from what it would have been had no European conflict developed. The picture business has the best of it, notably the larger houses conducted under modern methods. These houses, despite the claims of the regular managements, are holding all they had when the other houses were closed for the summer and are getting more from the people who have ended their sojourns in the country. A remarkable feature of the situation is that business keeps up so well at picture houses where the prices run as high as a dollar. Almost any night one may see in front of at least one big Broadway straight picture house a line of people extending a block in length from the box office—people waiting to get fifty-cent seats. "Can you beat it?" exclaimed an old timer. You seldom see at any of the regular theaters, at any time of the day or night, a line of more than twelve or fifteen people. It has been said by regular managers that this is no criterion, as the regular houses the sold in advance. Most people believe that the houses are only mortgaged to speculators and that the "advanced sale" is only a press agent scheme.

* * *

Whatever the true complexion of the situation may be, it is an indisputable truth that the regular theaters are feeling the effects of the financial stringency brought on by the policy of retrenchment which many large establishments have been forced to adopt either through loss of foreign trade or inability to secure needed materials by importation. This lost patronage has gone to the picture houses, but the high priced places are also beginning to feel the squeeze and unless the dove of peace soon commences to flutter over the Eastern horizon it is feared the big houses will be obliged to cut rates for a while. The manager of one of the most prominent and profitable picture theaters in the city says that if the European war is not ended within the next ninety days the larger picture houses will be forced to reduce prices, or the managements must be satisfied to break even until peace comes." "We do not depend upon the patronage the small houses get," he said. "We started our place to cater to and get the big money, and that is slowly, but surely, getting scarce. There is a decided falling off in the attendance of city people. The lines now forming at the box offices are in a large measure made up of visitors to the city. Evidently they have not yet felt in their home places the effects the large commercial centers are the first to feel, but when they do the box office lines will disappear. I look for that turn any day."

* * *

The manager of a prominent "legit" house said: "I guess you have the right dope. Most of us are smiling under the most adverse circumstances. The main trouble with us is that we had advanced so far before this war started that we could not withdraw and now we are plodding along in the hope that we may at least get back some of the investment made before war was declared. The outlook is not a bright one, and it becomes more discouraging when we hear that the motion picture people are getting nervous. They are in a position to outlive us for many obvious reasons."

A well-known theater agent said he was on the point of closing up his office, but could not decide upon something whereby he might keep afloat. In years of experience he has never known of a more demoralizing condition of affairs in the theatrical business. Last season he succeeded in counteracting the depression in the legitimate line by connecting with the motion picture interests and furnishing them with people on a commission basis, but now the studios have retrenched and there is hardly enough revenue from that source to pay office expenses. "What is the most heart-breaking," he said, "is that the season just opened promised to be the best we had for years. Even when the war broke out we all thought the harvest was ours because our exports would make money plentiful here. Now we find the reverse. Six months ago I was supplying nearly four hundred supers a day to various motion picture studios. The present demand is not two-thirds that number for a week."

* * *

Inquiry at the several motion picture studios shows that at most places all "big work" has been suspended for a while at least. This is especially the case where studios are producing several subjects each month. One manager said one reason for the curtailment was that there was a threatened shortage of film and chemicals and the companies were taking no chances on being caught with big productions on hand awaiting completion. Another reason is that there are too many products in the market for the American trade only and without a foreign outlet large and expensive productions must be suspended until foreign markets can be reached again. Another manager said the adverse effect of the European war upon domestic industrial conditions has made the film manufacturers extremely cautious. They feel that the reduction of working forces must eventually have a decided effect upon the motion picture houses, thereby affecting the film rentals."

* * *

An officer of one of the leading film producing companies said the suspension of foreign trade had hit the motion picture business harder than any other line. If all the ships in the world were put under United States registry the picture business would profit little by it, because the countries affording the best market are not in condition for proper distribution of the products. This being the case, the American producers are obliged to depend solely upon a comparatively limited market which is not sufficiently large to justify the outlay on productions that was being made before the European war started. "It is difficult to get some people to understand the situation from the producers' point of view," said the producer. "Some visitors at our plant remarked that it was strange we should be complaining when all our departments were working as usual. 'You must be making money,' said one of them, 'or your forces would not be working.' The truth is that we must work to maintain our prestige in the home market. The producing end must be maintained to keep up the releases, but not so with the mechanical end. Outsiders see only the studio work. With that going along as usual they cannot understand why we cannot get along as well as we did before the foreign markets were established. The answer is that the increased sales made possible by those markets opened the way for enlargement of our plants and increased outlay on our productions, and without those markets the motion picture business would not have been what it was. It is true that there are thousands of picture theaters in this country and Canada, whereas a few years ago there were only hundreds of nickelodeons. But in those days there were less than a dozen manufacturers of motion pictures and the plants and operating expenses were proportionately small. Today there are almost as many producers of films as there were film exchanges in the earlier days. This has made sharp competition—a kind of competition that has forced the producers to get and make the best and not reap a proportionate return. The result is that the producers have been obliged to be content with a small margin of profit in the home market and depend upon the foreign markets for the real profit."

* * *

When asked if he thought the Americans would have difficulty in re-establishing the foreign markets after peace is declared the manufacturer replied that the motion picture business of this country will have the quickest and greatest boom in the history of the business when hostilities cease. The American producers had a hard battle to gain recognition abroad, but during the last year or two made so much progress that in many of the foreign countries the American products excelled the home article in popularity. One advantage the Americans will have is that there will not be for some time after the war ends such an extensive interchange of motion pictures between some of the foreign countries as there was before war started. England, France, Germany and Italy were prominent in the producing field. Naturally subjects from England, France and Italy will not be popular in Germany or Austria-Hungary for some time; nor will the amusement seeking people of England, France, Russia and Italy be likely to accord much favor to the German products for a while. All the countries named are big motion picture fields and there will be splendid openings for additional markets in all of them for the film subjects made on this side.

Centaur Activities

David Horsley Opens Extension to Bayonne Plant—Equipment Modern in All Details.

IN OPENING the new wing of the Centaur Film Company building at Bayonne last Wednesday, David Horsley took his position as the head of one of the largest commercial motion picture plants in America. The Centaur buildings now cover a solid acre of ground, and are of the most modern and improved type, equipped throughout with new machinery. A trip through their labyrinthine windings amounts to almost a journey, and discloses twenty-one departments and an equipment that lacks no single deivce, little or big, that might be required for absolute completeness. There are, in fact, several new devices and improvements on older machine patents which were invented by Mr. Horsley, and which, for the most part, are to be found in no other plant in existence, although two or three of them have been placed upon the market and are now in general use.

The new carpenter shop, which is in charge of genial Jim Horsley, is capable of turning out any kind of a prop that can be made of wood or papier mache.

The tinting department, which the old and new room combined, modeled after a famous German laboratory, are most capacious, and some remarkable tone effects are now being obtained.

The perforation department has been doubled in size and re-equipped. It will handle vast quantities of film of any manufacture.

Harry Horsley is Superintendent of the laboratories and positive assembling departments, the last of which, with the new addition shown in the photograph, engages the constant services of sixty-one employes.

The shipping room now occupies new quarters and is one of the busiest in the plant—an excellent refutation of the "hard time talks" which has been heard so much since the war broke out in Europe.

The "old" part of the Centaur plant—which indeed is less than a year old—includes a colossal glass studio, equipped with a Cooper-Hewitt lighting system so that seven directors are able to work at one time night or day.

An outdoor studio, paint shop, machine shop, dozens of developing and printing rooms, laboratories, a title department equipped with a linotype machine and job presses, twelve drying drums in an air filtered room, fire and burglar proof film storage vaults, filtering and heating plants, property rooms, publicity department, directors' offices, Mr. Horsley's private office, etc., are included in the plant.

The entire Centaur plant has a capacity of one million and a quarter feet of film a week, and is comfortably busy at the present time with the seven one-reel comedies that David Horsley is turning out, and about one hundred and fifty thousand feet of positive and titles for outside concerns.

SAWYER HAS BURLESQUE MELODRAMA.

"Thirty Minutes of Melodrama," the second production of the Santa Barbara Motion Picture Company, shortly to be released through Sawyer, Inc., is one of the most novel two-reel comedies ever put out. The plot deals with an old fashioned traveling melodrama troupe, who strike the town of Hickville. It is a scream from start to finish—and a burlesque on the old-time troopers that should be heartily welcomed in every picture house able to secure it.

Particularly amusing are the company jealousies, displayed in scenes in the country hotel and in the theater dressing rooms. Next we see the audience watching the stage presentation "in three acts and eighteen scenes." Every device used in old fashioned melodrama is humorously exploited—the villain, the villainness, the hero, the heroine, the old rube, the young rubes and the rube girl are all there, not to mention the sheriff and a few other characters never absent from such a show. The hero saves the heroine from an untimely death in waves of waving canvas, from a bomb, and many, many other times from the villain's wiles. The great trouble with the film is the fact that the laugh you start in the first scene will be hard to stop for an hour after the picture is finished.

Perforating Department.

Machine Shop.

Tinting Room.

Assembling Department.

VIEWS OF BUSY WORKROOMS IN THE CENTAUR PLANT.

Moving Picture Educator

Conducted by the REV. W. H. JACKSON

EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF THE "UNDER WATER" PICTURES.

A FEW weeks ago when we noticed the deep-sea picture taking apparatus invented by the Williamson Bros., we promised our readers an account descriptive of the first series of pictures immediately they were exhibited. This series is now on exhibition at the Broadway Rose Gardens in New York, and we hasten to give a review of them. There is no doubt that this new development in kinematography is a wonderful one and full of educational possibilities; indeed, the under-water pictures are destined to be far more useful in the educational world than they can be in the entertainment courses only. The first films are surprisingly wonderful, new and extraordinary doors of opportunity are now being opened which will prove far-reaching in their extent.

The Construction of the Apparatus.

A wise beginning is shown in a detailed picture of the construction of the whole apparatus necessary for the under-water film taking. This method of familiarizing the audience is a most commendable one, as it gives an intelligent comprehension of all that is to follow, making it easier for them to understand much that would seem obscure and give rise to much questioning. This beginning cannot be too highly commended.

An Under Water Journey.

Jules Verne is vindicated at last. We are now taking a submarine voyage from Nassau to San Salvador, riding but a few feet from the bottom of the ocean, looking through the large thick glass window, the panorama is as entrancing as it is new. Over the "meadows," through coral reefs, marine gardens and miniature forests; thickly populated with all kinds of fishes for which the tropical parts of the Atlantic Ocean is famous. Twice we pass the sunken remains of vessels of bygone days, one supposed to be a blockade runner of civil war times, the sight of which not only brings wondrous memories, but more wondrous anticipations of future and greater possibilities in submarine journeys when the powers of which we are now witnessing the first infant efforts shall have grown to the natural proportions which all such inventions finally reach.

The Gardens of the Deep.

Where foliage is as richly colored as flowers; where plants seem almost to possess an animal sort of life; where coral, dwarf, giant, and of shapely designs sway to and fro in stately and majestic style; where fishes, large and small, resplendent in a riot of color that is at once as beautifully blended as it is appropriately distributed. There without doubt is one of nature's triumphs. Such shall we see when these wondrous films are produced in their natural colors. Meanwhile we are pleased with this first introduction to the splendors of the marine gardens, and begin again as students to learn new lessons which kinematography has so beautifully brought to our delighted attention.

Where Men Compete With Fishes.

The native divers of the West Indies are splendid fellows below water. On terra firma we are accustomed to seeing the ragged urchins of the street tumble and scramble for the pennies thrown to them from the passing cars. Out in Nassau they dive to the bottom of the ocean and scramble for them on the sandy bottom. Expert humanity is seen in these native divers; the triumph of man in the arts and sciences is found in the fact that they can be followed and photographed. As they dive, swim and delve for the prize they seek, little do they think of their extraordinary prowess, which thousands of more enlightened and favored fellow creatures would give much to emulate. These natives are men who can challenge the fishes in their own domain and defy them.

Fighting with Sharks.

The man-eating shark has no terrors for these divers. First casting in the carcass of a dead horse to attract the sharks, knife in mouth, they plunge in to do battle with the monsters, whose powerful tail and six rows of teeth threaten instant death. Man is the more expert, as with a stab he soon places his foe hors-de-combat; only to rope him and secure him above water, where he can turn parts of his body at least to some commercial advantage. It is only fair to say in this instance that the fatal conflict shown on the screen was not between a native diver and the shark; but rather between one of the Williamson brothers, who determined that such a fight should be depicted on the screen, himself undertook the task because of the failure of the native divers to allure their victim within the focus of the camera. Mr. Williamson will not know failure, and himself as expert as a native, finally succeeded in despatching a shark in the line of the camera so that this picture might be secured. Great credit is due him for this exploit in addition to his other triumphs.

The Sponge Industry.

When travelling through the marine gardens the growing sponge was one of the attractions; now they are given special attention. The sponge diggers use a long pole with a curved fork end, much after the manner of a lower New York Bay oyster dredger. By the aid of a glass reflector he can look into the water and intelligently select the growing sponge and drag it from its roots. The commercial value of the sponge increases from that moment. A staple native occupation, we follow it in its varied courses from sea to market and learn another lesson from a people who, living next to this particular ocean product, teach us its first commercial value, even though they themselves may be ignorant of its greatest good. The introduction of this industrial scene is most natural and timely.

About the Fishes.

During parts of the under-ocean journey there were times when we were surprised at the seeming lack of fishes; at other times they seemed very plentiful. Perhaps in the greater growth of coral and other plants there were not so many. Doubtless these waters are more famous for the beauty of the fishes than any other one condition. Particular care must be taken, however, to mention the fact that this first journey was not without a valuable discovery. A fish was photographed which seemed to present unusual traits, it has since been proved as the first of its kind ever seen by experts. For the time being, it has been designated as especially American because of the coincidence that it is striped with colors much after the style of the United States flag, while its head is not unfitting to take the place of the stars above the stripes; as, however, this new fish will now be exhibited all over the United States, no doubt it will eventually receive a name by common consent of the people.

The Educational Value.

Where is there a body of scholars to whom these films will not be a great and intelligent surprise and help. This series is without doubt one of the greatest triumphs of educational kinematography. Seldom was a new development of any science at once so perfect as this one has proved to be. It now only seems necessary to enlarge the capabilities of the apparatus to meet the enlarged conditions which the unlimited field of the ocean's expanse and depth present. True, the depths present the greatest difficulty, but it is possible that the shallow parts of the great oceans will for many ages present sufficient scope for as many generations as may yet want to benefit by these researches. Submarine life pictures are the greatest products of present-day educational kinematography.

EXHIBITORS AND EDUCATIONALS.

By The Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S. T. B.

THE other day we received a visit from a committee of ladies, and they were not the prim, tight lipped, bespectacled, militant kind either, but women of birth, breeding, intelligence, education and wealth, who are working as only really good women can for the betterment of the community in which they live. These women wanted to know what could be done to bring the picture shows in their town up to the standard they had reached a couple of years ago and from which they had sadly gone back. After talking over the matter with them we made a personal inspection of every picture theater in that town and had a talk with every theater manager and exhibitor. Without going into further particulars as to this case, here are some of the things we discovered that are of interest to every exhibitor in the country. As one of the ladies put it:

"Up to about a year ago the exhibitors used to have at stated periods or, from time to time, good pictures with a real educational value, and they took pains to tell the schools, churches and educated persons in town about them and invite them to see them. About two years ago they stopped inviting us, and when we went to the theaters uninvited we discovered the reason why. The pictures shown were mostly frivolous and trashy melodramas or comedies without point and witless, and often bordering on vulgarity."

The town has five theaters, two of which run licensed programs, one the Mutual program and one the Universal. The fourth runs a mixed vaudeville and picture show and the fifth runs a special feature program and keeps the same picture for several days, sometimes for a week or two weeks at a time. The character of the shows is good compared with the programs of other theaters today, but as the exhibitors themselves admitted to us, the criticism of the good ladies mentioned above was fair and just. They did not word it exactly that way, but what they said amounted to that, and the reasons they gave for the change in the character of their programs may be stated thus: On the one hand the educational stuff was tame and tiresome; and the kind of picture that people liked were pictures with a "punch." Two of the exhibitors added, "What's the use. Even if I wanted the 'highbrow' stuff I could not get it. The exchanges won't bother with it." We have something to say on this last point later on, but before going any further we would like to say something about

The Picture With a "Punch."

Every one of the five exhibitors that we talked to, and curiously enough two producers whose studios we visited last week and a director in one of them, have a wrong idea as to the meaning of the term "punch." In a way their idea of the term is funny and humorous, but there is enough of tragedy in it to make many of us wonder whether to laugh over the ludicrousness of it or to weep over the consequences. These persons all of them consider the "punch" of the picture lies in its melodramatic thrill, that raises your hair in suspense or horror. They were quite surprised when we suggested that "punch" meant a good deal more than that. That it meant the thing in the story that got a grip on people's hearts and made them realize that the story was a real life story, not necessarily that the story actually happened, but that the story was true to life and might actually have occurred and that the people were real flesh and blood people like the spectators themselves.

In connection with this, here is another way of looking at it.

The Woman Who Pays the Nickel.

A couple of weeks ago we were supplying for a clergyman who was suddenly called away from his parish. In the course of our work we came across a woman who has to work hard for every cent she gets. She has several young children and she does her best to give them as happy a childhood as she can. In talking with her she said this: "The children have a hard time enough of it as it is, and I used to think that the picture shows were a great blessing, but now I am not at all sure of it. I don't mind working hard to get the money for them to go, and it means squeezing to get the nickels for them. They used to come back and tell me of all the wonderful things they had seen, or how when they got big they were going to do so and so; and sometimes I would be able to earn an extra nickel and go with them and see for myself what they were so enthusiastic about. But now, all they say is, 'Gee, wasn't that great when the villain choked the life out of her,' or 'Did you get on to that stunt where the girl stole the aeroplane when she missed her train.'"

The Answer.

Notice that both the educated women and the uneducated mother are voicing the same complaint from different points of view. Both say, in effect, the shows are not what they were and they are not having the same effect for good that they used to have. There is a good deal of truth in the criticism and unless the evil is nipped in the bud there is going to be a lot of trouble. Intelligent persons are not going to keep on forever spending their money for something they believe to be worthless or bad, and this means the uneducated washerwomen who have the brains to see how the pictures affect their children just as much as it does the educated "highbrow" who thinks things out by logic. Until about two years ago the picture had to fight for recognition, but it won out because manufacturers, exchanges and exhibitors, big and little, campaigned earnestly and intelligently to prove what a good thing they had. But when they had done this they let the importance of the little man and the little show fade out before the vision of the enormous possibilities of the big things that could be done. And so not only has the little show suffered, but worst of all, everybody has now been taught that the little show can be better than it is if the people responsible for it choose to make it so.

One Exhibitor's Experience.

The following letter from Mrs. Helen Morrison-Lewis, the manager of the Hippodrome Theater, Zanesville, Ohio, shows what has and can be done and also points a very definite finger as to where a great deal of the blame for poor shows lies:

You ask me if I am running an educational program at present. I am not. As I have already said, I did orignate the educational program in this city and used it up until the middle of last December, when I was compelled to give up the work here because of ill health. The man who leased the theater eliminated the educational films and he kept the house only up until the middle of July. On July 17 I again took charge and since that time to the present day I have had more or less trouble with the film exchange. Just now I cannot get an educational program. That is my reason for not running one.

The General Film Company does not see fit to bother about its small houses, though the small houses are the ones who put the General where it is today. Their service, and others as well, is open to the highest bidder, and it is on that basis they do business. As soon as I can secure educational films I will have my program again.

At the time I came to this theater, the schools did not look at the picture house as they do today. Then they could see no such use as the educational field. I had been out of school only a short time, and because a number of the English classics that I had studied had been done in films, I thought I saw a chance to get to the school teachers direct. This is my home town and I knew many teachers personally, so I started by mailing them invitations to visit the theater when I had a picture I thought would interest them. They were well pleased, so I then set apart one day for an educational film. I then started a house program, made as a mailing booklet, and I mailed one every week to every teacher in the city.

Then one of my ushers was on a debate in school as to whether pictures were desirable or not. I helped him on his side, which, of course, was for the pictures. He won the debate and the debating team had a theater party here. This incident caused comment and people wondered, and in consequence came to see my program.

Again, it is the custom here for each graduating class in the high school to give something to the school and, owing to the interest I had succeeded in working up, one of the classes gave the school a projecting machine. One of the first installed in a school.

This is the kind of work that tells. And it is the kind of work that has got to be kept up or the boxoffice receipts are going to suffer and suffer badly. Today, the schools and the churches are installing projection machines by the dozen if not as one optimist says by the hundred. Direct competition between some of these social and moral institutions has already begun, and this will become widespread and very detrimental, especially to the small exhibitor unless the condition is met squarely and intelligently now. If these institutions cannot get the kind of shows they want in any other way they will get it for themselves and run in opposition to the theaters. But if the exhibitors run shows that these institutions can endorse and patronize they will be only too glad to co-operate and spend their money in other ways.

It Is Up to the Exhibitor.

It is really, however, up to the exhibitor rather than the manufacturers and exchanges. As long as the exhibitor is willing to take it easy and put up with anything that is handed out to him just so long will the exchanges and manufacturers give him the silly and pointless stuff because it is the easiest and cheapest to make. But if the exhibitor fights hard enough he can get what he wants in the end, because the manufacturers and exchanges are simply salesmen selling goods. Naturally they will try to persuade you to take the cheaper substitute that they claim is "just as good" and it is up to the customer to insist on having what he wants. How about it, Mr. Exhibitor? It is up to you.

GERMAN ARMY ENTERS BRUSSELS.

The Strand Film Company, which has been releasing war series each week, has just received four hundred feet of the most interesting scenes, showing the German army entering Brussels. This is the first authentic film taken of the German army since the start of hostilities. The war pictures shown in the Strand weekly and other weeklies up to date have been of either English, French or Belgian scenes.

The No. 5 Strand War Series, which was ready for delivery last Monday, not only included the picture of the German army in Brussels, but also showed the three British cruisers—Cressy, Aboukir and Hogue—which were sunk in the North Sea by five German submarines, with the loss of 1,500 officers and men.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Solemn Warning.

GEORGE E. CARPENTER owes us a letter. If we do not get it we'll find fault with Real Reels if only about the quality of the paper stock D'ye get that, Salt Lake?

How Would You Like It?

How would you like it if you had to run a line like this:

> After our two thousand copies were distribubted last week, we found it necessary to have an additional thousand printed. We want everybody to get a copy every week. If you are overlooked call us on the phone and we will send your copy to you.

We would like it first rate. There used to be a chap by the name of Wesley up there, but he seems to be dead. Up there is Gardner, Mass., and the house that ran the line was the Orpheum. We'll own up that we took the bunch of Orpheum Weeklies to read in the street car going home. There is a percentage of clip stuff, but the editor (we lost his name, but we'll print it if he sends it in again) is both a pen and scissors editor. A pen editor writes, a scissors editor clips. A good one clips only the best stuff. This man dodges the "greatest on earth" stuff and gets the readable paragraphs. And after you read and read with interest the publication, you are naturally going to favor that house. You think the house is clever if the editor is, and naturally you are mostly right. The good editor doesn't waste time with the other sort of house. The good one gets him. The one thing we object to is this:

> We now show six pictures at every change. We could show three times as many for one-third the price, but who would pay good money to see them?

If he knows that much, why not four really good reels?
Here is one of the good things:

?!?!?!?!?!?

> Some of these days we are going to give one of the really big film features a try at the Orpheum, just to see if some people are sincere when they ask for them. The kind of features we mean cannot be shown for ten cents, the prices would have to be double that amount at least, but say; they are worth it, believe us. About three weeks ago we paid one dollar railroad fare, ten cents car fare, and a little over a nickel for a lunch. After that it cost twenty-five cents for a pretty good seat. We went from South Framingham to Boston to see Mary Pickford in "Tess of the Storm Country" at the Olympia in Boston. It was worth every nickel spent. We went again to see "Brewster's Millions" and again to see "The Eagle's Mate." We can't go now, because it's too far away and we are too much interested in our job at the Orpheum, but we could bring these big things here if our patrons would support them.
>
> We would be delighted to hear from anybody who is interested in good things.

Somehow we hope that eventually——.
We have three programs left and if we do not get more by that time——. We do not conclude.

Some Rextra.

J. L. Shrode, of the Rex theater, Hopkinsville, Ky., sends in a little more than five pages of letter. It's a nice letter and if you'll wait a minute you can read it, too, but before we proceed to that part of the entertainment, we want to rear up and remark on one paragraph. He says "the worst trouble with the Rextra is finding the time to get out the copy." Then he sits down and writes four and a half more pages of chatty stuff. Of course that's not work, he's just writing a letter. Now if he would simply consider the Rextra as a letter to the patrons and write them a nice chatty letter, it would do more good than all the formal advertising he could think of, and it would not be work, for any man who can write a GOOD five page letter is a natural born writer and it is only when he makes a "job" of it that he thinks it's work.

Every now and then someone looks with awe into our fat face and wonders how we can do so much work in a given time. It's because we don't make work of it. When we pull out the advertising drawer we sit down to chat with you chaps. We're all interested in the same stuff; you've shot in some stuff to me and I'm writing back to you. Some of you put up pretty problems to study over, some of you try to stick me and some of you try to help, but we are all one ,when it comes to advertising, and so it's not work but a rather long letter, and so it's fun.

> Thanks for your comments on the Rextra, copies of which were sent you sometime ago. The letter I sent you was evidently lost. The "break" you pointed out was a grave one and got by from the fact that the euitor was out of town and there was no one to read proof. It is our intention to make the Rextra the best house organ in the country. If we have not got the brains to do it with, we want the help of others that have.

We are anxious to exchange programs with the other theaters in the country and will gladly mail any of them our program if they will be kind enough to do the same. (Exchange stamped envelope.—E. W. S.).

The worst trouble we have with our program is finding time to get out the copy. It is no small job.

Our efforts to give our people as much of the better class of photoplays has won for us a patronage that does not leave us for the first cheap show that comes along.

We have the misfortune (?—E. W. S.) to have for competitors a firm that believes in quantity rather than quality. They run from seven to eight reels per day at ten cents. We run four reels out of a daily program of seven received. We go over them in the morning and select the four best subjects, leaving out anything that will be harmful to the children. This kind of competition has not hurt our trade so much as it has the trade in general. It is no uncommon thing to hear a person say: I am sick and tired of pictures. We are firm believers in the higher type of photoplays at an advanced price of admission. We charge ten and twenty cents admission on Wednesday of each week. We buy the best we can find for that day and while we have some kicks we are fast gaining a hold with this class of entertainment.

We have long discarded the habit of showing pictures in separate sections. We run the multi-reels as one continuous reel, never allowing the "part one, etc.," to show. We have often been accused of only running three reels where we really had four. We never allow advertising slides to interrupt our performance, running these after each show when we have an intermission of two or three minutes.

The exhibitor has got to have respect for his product before he can expect to raise the picture business out of the rut. The success of the photoplay lies in catering to the best class of people. The day of the war drama, Indian shoot-ups and such are past here. In my opinion a great deal of credit is due the small town exhibitors for the uplift of the photoplay business. The large town exhibitors do not depend on the same people so much as the smaller cities do. This is bound to make a difference in the character of the exhibitor as a whole. When you have got to depend on the same people coming back every day you have a far different proposition from the man who depends on transient trade. To impress on your patrons that what you have for their entertainment is of a nature and wholesome enough for their every-day entertainment is harder than to show a flashy front to catch the eye of the passer-by. To be able to make your people believe that your place is THE place to go, a place where the entertainment is varied enough to not tire them, a place where they are sure of receiving the best treatment, where apologies cannot make up for poor projection requires the highest type of exhibitor. Why is it that the "big town" exhibitors do not try more of the "you're at home" stuff? Is it necessary that because they are running a theater in a large city that they should not be courteous? (No.—E. W. S.). A man is a man wherever he may be and a "thank you" sounds just as good in New York as in Hopkinsville. Our cashier is given strict instructions to thank every person when they buy a ticket. The door man thanks them again when he is handed their ticket. The ushers don't say "here's a seat" or "down front," but asks where you would like to sit and if there is not a vacant seat you are asked to kindly wait a moment to see if one cannot be found. I look on the man at the door as being one of our biggest assets. He is the man that I expect to have more tact, be more courteous and more polished than any of the ten employees we have in the theater. (He has to be.—E. W. S.).

A recent campaign on our part to get the country people to attend our theater resulted in the following advertising scheme:

> "All of the schools in the country issue grade cards to their pupils each month, showing their grading in the different studies, etc. These cards are given to the pupils, who take them home and show them to their parents. The parent signs them and they are returned to the teacher. I went to the school superintendent of the county and got permission to print our advertisement on the grade cards as follows: THE REX THEATER OF HOPKINSVILLE OFFERS YOU A FURTHER INCENTIVE TO STUDY. Any school pupil in Christian County getting an average grade of 70 per cent for the month will be given a pass to the Rex theater good for the entire month in which the per cent was given (or the next month?—E. W. S.). This offer is good for every month during the school term. Ask your teacher about it."

This ad cost us $9.00. I had 15,000 passes printed and arranged in pads of fifty and the county superintendent saw to it that each school had a supply of them. These passes read as follows:

"THIS TICKET when properly filled out and signed by your teacher will admit you to the REX THEATER free for one month beginning ——— and ending ———.

Name of pupil..... Average grade.....

Name of school..... Rural Route No.....

Name of Teacher.....

I wrote each teacher a personal letter, explaining the merits of the plan and told them that their superintendent approved of it. The total cost of the advertising was $15.00. I figured that no child from the country would come in town without some adult being with them as they are as a rule very timid. The adult would, of course, accompany the child to the theater and we would get their admission fee. In working out this plan I looked under the skin, as I believed, for results. A farmer is never quite at ease when in town. Things are more or less strange to him. Anything that will tend to make him more comfortable, more at home, will win his everlasting appreciation. If you get him in your theater once he will feel that that is the one place where he is acquainted and when he comes to town he will naturally go there. If you once get the trade of the country people you are sure to keep it if you treat them right.

They are very susceptible to courtesy and we make it a point to give them a hearty welcome.

As the school has just started I cannot give you the result of this plan but will do so later if you think well enough of it. I suppose I could go on and fill up every page you had with ideas that I consider good even if they are not new. But my consideration for you causes me to hesitate.

Maybe some time we'll be running a house and we won't be accused of running only three reels when we have four. Not one small bit of it. We'll first flash a slide that reads:

For the comfort and convenience of our patrons,
this two-reel
subject will be run without intermission.

Huh! (Business of yawning). It's just as easy! And we hope when we start in on management that the other fellow will run eight or ten reels. It's a kindly cuss that will not only hang himself but provide his own rope. The one man to be afraid of (if there is a decent clientele in town) is the man who runs as good a show as you do. That's the goat-getting man we're afraid of. And we would not allow straight advertising slides, but we would make a few remarks of our own on the screen. We would not be a nuisance, but we assuredly would talk a little when we had them where they simply had to listen with their eyes. And not shooting any rocks, we ran that school stuff two or three years ago and didn't some chap out West have to go without ice for two or three months because the ice man's son didn't win a pass? Yes!!!

Anything we can do to help the Rextra is as good as done. Some of you chaps with good programs send them along and that Brigham City genius with his free daily will please send two. We lately got another "break" in the Rextra, not because the Rextra is prone to breaks, but because its editor doesn't make PLAY of his work. Not meaning to throw bouquets in our own direction, if we had not made play of our work we would have had nervous prostration about eleven years ago.

Door Knobs, Too.

The Lehigh Orpheum, South Bethlehem, Pa., uses the same program as the Third Street theater, Easton, but Harold W. Heiberger sends in a O. K. special that he also uses. He says it's a bother to string door knobs, but when they are put out right they get the results. Nothing that gets results is a real bother, and while it is a blamed nuisance to string door knobs (ever try it yourself?) there is nothing that so surely gets into the house. The best way is to get hold of a bunch of small boys after school, get them to work and pay in Saturday matinee tickets. We like the Lehigh D. K. One reason why we do is the uniformity of the type used. It does not suggest that it was set by a soused two thirder in a tenth rate office. It is clean, and neat, and attractive. There is a lot of copy to the card, but it is possible to get the titles at a glance, and that is the real test of any "flash" adverising, "flash" being used in the sense of something that must be caught at a glance if it is to hold the attention at all. About the only suggestion is that the titles would stand out even better if a light face were used for a body type instead of full face. Make the title pull the attention and the rest will be read. If it were a job we were bossing we would use a light line italic for the body type, the prices in upright and make those titles loom up like a bunch of sore thumbs. They day and date each title. We wish that all advertisers did. They use a white card printed in blue, and when you get right down to it a deep blue is about the best, green and red are well enough, but they are noisy; black is harsh, brown (on a white card) is apt to be muddy, but the blue, if it is deep and good enough, always looks pronounced without being rowdyish.

Lissun! We wonder what the sister theater, the Third street, does outside the program. We've not seen. Wonder if they can take a hint!

A Filing Device.

J. T. Edmondson, of De Leon, Texas, wanders all through the woods between the time he starts to tell of his filing device and actually does so, but it's hard sense and worth reading. Get it yourself:

I have received lots of good points from the MOVING PICTURE WORLD and want to give you one in exchange—a filing device. The beauty of it is there is no expense. I go to the tailor shop and give the boss some complimentary tickets for an old sample book. It is of no use to him after the season is over and probably he would be glad to give it to me for nothing, but giving him a couple of tickets is good advertising for you make a booster of him. He has gotten rid of some junk he does not want AND he gets some tickets he does want, some passes to a good show. If your show is not a good one, make it so before you ask people to come. Go in and look at it yourself. Don't wait for others to tell you what is wrong. Go sit down and take a dose of your own medicine, then ask yourself if you would walk several blocks and pay ten cents to see the same stuff, when there might be something else to attract you. The man who brings you money has to figure the show, the counter attractions, muddy sidewalks or any one or more of a hundred possible distractions. Is your show good enough to get him in? Get double price for special features and be careful what you get. Don't buy a feature just from the label. I would rather have three good singles any time than most of the alleged features. But getting back to the filing device: Write the names of your different producing companies on slips and paste them so they project beyond the cover, first cutting out three out of every four pages. Now, when you receive special advertising, note it, get suggestions as to display and phrasing. Then put it in the proper place and keep it until you need it. Spread it out nicely, so it will carry well, and keep the book in order. The way to learn how to advertise is to watch how the others do it.

We take it by sample books are meant the large cloth style books that are large enough to carry a double page from this paper without folding. It is simply a substitute for a letter file, but Mr. Edmondson has found out what will best suit the purpose. The letter file is too small, an invoice book will not do because the pages are too thin to act as septums. The card pages of the tailor book serve the purpose exactly. Try it and you'll bless Mr. Edmondson, but make the tailor give you a large enough book. There are books and books, you know. The best book is the one with card leaves on which are pasted cloth samples.

De Subers Catchlines.

Here are some more of those welcome De Subers catchlines. Have you tried his giant rubber stamp yet?

Here's a hint.
Please at sight.
These beckon to you.
Our best is the best.
Helps to happiness.
Attractions abundant.
A show of excellence.
Planned for your pleasure.
The pick of the picture realm.
A show of pleasant surprises.
Wholesome pleasure—little cost.
Pictures and projection the best.
You're the loser is you don't see these.
A pleasure to you—satisfaction to us.
You see what you want at the ——.
Pictures that make the kiddies happy.
Popular pictures are what you see here.
We've got the ones you want to see.
Up to the highest point in photoplays.
Worth looking at and worth the price.
Our comedies have a scream in every scene.
Our program is selected to give variety.
Pictures that leave a favorable impression.

Satisfy at sight.
Equal to your ideas.
Fun that never fails.
Little price, big pleasure.
A defense from the "blues."
Seeing proves their superiority.
No chance for disappointment.
Join in the jollity. Go to the ———.
Always better than we promise.
Produced to promote pleasure.
The fountain-head of pleasure.
Avoid regret by seeing these—today.
Our program provides surprises every day.
We show pictures as you expect them to be.
Seeing the best means going to the ———.
Your judgment will say these are right.
Our pictures are what we claim them to be—the best.
The —— show the right pictures, and show the pictures right.
Pictures of exceptional quality and entrancing interest.

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

THEY have a funny scheme in the public schools of New York, and no doubt, elsewhere. They teach you how the word "cat" looks before you know that c-a-t spells cat, or before you even know the alphabet. Perhaps it is a good system, but we've worried along somehow, having learned to recite the alphabet first.

It seems to be the same way with photoplay. Just been talking to a lady. She wants to learn how to write plays so hard that she forgets her chiggers (being a Southern lady), but she wants to write plays; she doesn't want to study writing. And so this is what she turned out for a scene one, the last time she had a brainstorm.

James Smith comes into Henry's apartment and tells his nephew that he must marry Gladys Jones. Henry tells him that he intends to marry Muriel Brown. James grows very angry and tells Henry that unless he marries the girl of his choice, he will disinherit him. Henry tells him he will not do so. James pulls from his pocket his will and tears it in two. Then he repents and tells Henry he will not destroy it if he will marry Gladys. Henry says he will not, so James goes out to make a new will.

This is the first scene, mind you. We do not know James or Henry. We simply see a room. A man is sitting there. Another man comes in, speaks, tears up a paper, argues a little more and exits.

That's what gets on the screen from what had been written. There is nothing to show the relationship between the two men. We can, of course, gather that they are living in the same house, because neither is dressed for the street; we can see the argument, but we cannot know what it is about and the paper does not help because it might be a mortgage, a bill of sale or a summons to court in a breach of promise suit. Most men do not carry their wills on their persons to threaten their nephews with, so we do not guess that it is a will.

We have told the writer that when she writes that single scene in action we'll read the rest of the play, but if you send such stuff in to an editor, you do not get a second chance. He merely cusses a little and turns to people who can write.

Let us dissect the scene. The first essential is the establishment of the relationship. You cannot photograph the fact that Henry is living with his uncle instead of his father. Put that in a leader. You cannot photograph the fact that James wants him to marry Gladys. Put that in the leader. There is a threat of a destroyed will. That may be leader or insert. These facts, with the quarrel, are the essentials, and the facts are essential to the quarrel, the latter only the factor in the scene that is evident in action.

Now the question is, which of these facts are cut into the scene and which are straight leader? Evidently the relationship should be a straight leader. This might be.

"James Smith and his nephew, Henry."

But in spite of its common usage such a straight leader is clumsy. Get a better one.

James Smith tells his nephew he must marry Gladys Jones.

That doesn't sound so much as if it had been written by a schoolboy, and it tells two of the facts. The item about Gladys might have been made a cut in, but adding it to the silly stuff, it makes a smoother leader as well as taking it out of a scene. Then start with this leader, since this is needed. Now comes the other question. The matter of the will. This might be shown as an insert, a hand holding the will, but this means the preparation of a will to be torn up. It would be better as a leader, not alone on account of the trouble, but because it is more explicit. Then it is decided to have a straight and a cut-in leader. Now let's write it. The straight leader comes first, then the description of the scene and then the action. Here goes:

Leader—James Smith tells his nephew he must marry Gladys Jones.

Henry's apartment.—The sitting room of a fashionable young man. Henry on. James enters—excited—speaks to Henry—Henry shrugs shoulders—shakes heads in negative—James more excited—pounds on table—takes out paper—speaks—

Cut in—"Marry her or I'll disinherit you."

Back to scene—Henry laughs lazily—puffs smoke into James' face—James opens will—shows paragraph—points with finger—Henry not interested—James gets sore—tears paper in two—last appeal—Henry again shakes head—James tosses will into waste basket—leaves room—Henry takes will out of basket—fits parts together—laughs—puts will back in basket—takes photo from table—

On Screen.—Framed portrait f Muriel—Hand holding.

Back to Scene.—Henry blows kiss to Muriel—places frame back on table—smokes reflectively.

That's the same thing as was written in the first place, but now we know how to spell cat as well as what the word looks like. Knowing how to spell cat we can also spell act because we know what the letters are.

Any person who can write one scene can write a hundred, but surprisingly few persons really know how to write one scene, fewer still know when and how to write a leader and very few know when a leader is to be preferred to an insert and vice versa.

Got Some New Comedy?

Can you imagine a new style of comedy? The slapstick is getting worn out and comedy falls by trained acrobats are getting tiresome. Get a new style and get six or eight stories and you can sell every one of them and perhaps more, for you'll have your hand in it while the other fellows are learning out. This is a pretty large order, but you can't tell. Perhaps you'll be the one. Don't get too crazy, but see if you can't find a new line of thought to work along.

The Spirit.

Get into the right spirit toward your work. Do not approach it with the feeling that it is work. You can make play of almost any kind of work if you go at it right, and we know of few more pleasant things to do than to master photoplay and see a picture grow under the flashing type bars of your machine, and the harder the work the better play it is because then it gets out of the regular run of humdrum writing and presents the most interesting problems, the sort of problems that you should rejoice in. Have a thorough understanding that it is a matter of importance to be performed properly and promptly, but do not regard it as just work.

Wildcats.

Three letters this week suggest that the list of addresses supplied by the paper is incomplete. Some add that other lists give more names.

A footnote explains that only the names of those apt to take and pay for scripts are given. There are more names, lots of them. The trouble is that the three times we have violated the rule against giving names of wildcats we have gotten innocent authors into trouble. P. C. Hartigan was splendidly vouched for, yet some authors have not recovered their scripts. We have heard nothing of the Bartlett Company lately.

These companies start and perhaps for a time they pay for stuff, but eventually the time comes when they seek a market and do not find it. They cannot pay because they have no money and they lack the funds to return to the authors the scripts for which postage but not secretarial fees are enclosed.

It does not pay to go to the "wildcats." This department will not encourage the practice. Then if you get into trouble, on your own head be it.

And we make this standing offer. If any company going out of business will send the scripts to us, by express, we will pay the expressage, return such scripts as have postage and get into communication with the rest, this service being without any charge to either the company or the author.

Not At All.

Some correspondent takes a recent mention of the Photoplay Author's League in the wrong spirit. We referred to their mention of a page advertisement in the Mirror and asked who got the commission. The correspondent seems to think we were hinting that some individual member got the commission. Not a bit of it. We do not think a single man on the directorate would "knock down" the commission. We merely asked if they got it. They were entitled to it and would have had it if there is the proper business management. It was not a question of graft but of business sense or the lack of it. We do not like the league idea, but we do not for a moment question the honesty of its officers.

The Reason Why.

One of the hardest jobs in a job like this is always keeping your temper and we get a lot of mail that would coax all of the goats out of the pen if we did not know the ear tab. of the coaxer, but one of the requirements of a newspaper job is knowing the markers, and we've become reasonably adept in reading the marks.

We've just received the several hundredth letter asking how it is we keep at the presumptively unremunerative job of writing for the papers when we can get dazzling sums writing scripts. We would not answer this, perhaps, were it not that the fact that the man knows that newspaper work does not pay as well as the script writing game, argues that now and then he has his sane moments.

If the same person will put the kick out of his system he'll know that newspaper work makes the order of Melchisideck look foolish. Once a writer, you must keep on being a writer—God help you—and we stick where the writing is good. We make from $20 to $30 an hour writing scripts, the hours we can write, but we know we could not keep it up all day, and we know that we must have some organ that will let us get to the other fellow. We simply have to write for publication because we formed that habit and cannot get away from it and the paper we write for is one of the whitest in the world in its treatment of its employees and so naturally we stick, but apart from that it is the biggest motion picture organ in the world and we take a pride in working for the biggest.

We might make more money doing nothing but write scripts for all comers, but we've been in the editorial harness for so long that we can't get used to not writing and if we could get used to not writing we would not be happy and we would want to come back to the one office we have been in twenty-three years where we have never had to sprain our ankles jumping over the iron ball.

It probably cannot appeal to the last person who propounded this question nor to the many who have come before him, but there is, first, a pleasure in working in a decent connection and, second, we like to help others. We do not often reply to this "boob stuff," but now and then we want to shoot.

To the decent minded man there is a real pleasure in helping other people, and if helping other people does not seriously interfere with getting checks for scripts, it is a luxury we can afford. Any time we can write all the scripts used in this country, we are going to shut down the shop and write them all. Until then, we want to have the pleasure of helping the others to checks, and it is a real pleasure to look at the list of these we have helped to real position.

Now the eleven of you who were going to "pull" the old stuff this week, please lay off.

You.

You can get:

The Technique of the Photoplay.

The Leeds-Esenwein Writing the Photoplay.

William Lord Wright's The Motion Picture Story.

Albert Henry Phillips' The Plot of the Short Story.

You can get criticisms from half a dozen different sources, and yet if you cannot write a story, you can buy much literature and still be out of the running.

More important still, you can buy three times as many books and ten times as much criticism and yet if you are not willing to do your own work you'll waste all the time and money.

Given imagination, which comes from God, the rest lies wholly and utterly and entirely with you. You and you alone can write your stories, and all the help you can get from now to the time you are a million years old will not help you in the least.

The teachers can tell you things. The critics can tell you things. The editors can give you advice, but if you won't wriggle your brains to the point where you can know what they are trying to tell you it will help you no more than rubbing goose grease into the back of your wife's mother's first cousin's sister is going to help your gouty toe.

Of course you can hire a man to write your stories and take the checks, giving you the credit in return for an additional piece of money, but if you actually and truly want to be a real author you, and you alone can bring about that result. You can't go into a shop and buy a nickel's worth of authoring, and you can't buy ten dollars' worth or a thousand dollars' worth. If you are not willing to work and work hard, you can't pay a million dollars and write a decent story. There are no short cuts. The road to success lies between high walls with broken bottles set in the mortar at the top. You must keep on going and working and studying and practicing until the time you come into the green fields and the shady woods and all that. You cannot hire a man to carry you through, pickback, you must walk it on your own feet every step of the way. Reading books may teach you enough to go around a sharp stone instead of stepping on it, or jumping a mud puddle instead of sloshing through, but even then you must learn to be alert for the puddles and the stones, or you'll get wet feet and stone bruises anyhow.

There never was any walk in life so easy to the little man or big, or all that come in between, than photoplay. It is the chance for the man who can read Latin and the man who can't always read English if only they can read life and understand it and get it over on the screen through the medium of simple phrases, but the Latin scholar and the dub must each learn to work for himself if he hopes to get ahead and there is no taxicab service from the start to the selling point. Some walk faster than others, but all must walk and this means you just as it means the rest.

If Only.

Ten minutes ago we shot down the elevator chute a woman who wrote one play that ran for ten years and is still "in stock" and ten or more plays that ran more than a year each. She wants to write photoplays. And she said "of course I realize that this is a new branch of the work and I'll have to write a number to catch the trick."

Did you ever honestly say that to your soul? Did you ever seriously tell yourself that this was work and not a cinch? If a woman who has written a dozen or more royalty-bringing plays can, out of her own experience, realize that she must work as hard as a novice at first in a new game, what sort of a mental wonder are you that you do not have to go through the same experience?

And when you come to realize that hard work is necessary, not when you say that it is but when you realize it in your secret thoughts, then you're at least half way to success already.

Typewriters.

Don't be in a hurry to swap your own machine for a new one and some cash unless you can afford to have two or more machines. We are just breaking a third machine into the harness and any time we want to stop swearing, we come over to the old "mill" that has been ground down to our particular touch by more than six years of constant work. Get a new one when the old wears out, but look for a little trouble at the start, no matter what make you get.

You and Your Story.

Did you ever have anyone tell you that a certain happening would make a great motion picture play?

And did you ever try to make it so?

And did you ever fall down so hard you bumped your spine and jolted your teeth loose?

And did you ever sell it?

Very well, then. The answer is not to write stories that sit too close to home. You can't possibly do it. You were there, you know just what happened, and you can put nothing else down. You must write it as it is, not as it should be, and it will be a "true" story, but a worthless one.

Once, a long time since, we were second assistant faker on a Sunday supplement that was supposed to use up the cuts that had been run at least once by a sister publication. We used to get the proof press slips and try and use them up. And once on a time—the same time—we got a picture of eight very evidently French ladies in striped jerseys and a racing shell. So we went upstairs and remarked:

"For the love of Heaven, Roland, what is this?"

He fixed us with the cold and glassy eye and remarked:

"What in Hades do you care?"

So we went downstairs again (three flights and no elevator) and wrote a cute story about a ladies' eight on the Harlem that was going to challenge the freshman eight of Columbia College to a midnight rowing match, and a ladies' eight on the Harlem threatened a law suit because the pictures did not look like them, and anyhow they were not going to row Columbia.

The story was pure fake, but it fitted into the scheme of things a few thousand miles from where the photograph had been made. We knew there was a Harlem river. We knew there was a ladies' eight. We put them together and they fitted. But we knew there was a Harlem river. Don't forget that in your faking. If we had had them rowing up Riverside Drive, we should have been laughed at.

That is the difference between proper faking and writing of the things you know not of. If there was a Harlem river, there might have been a ladies' eight. If there was a ladies' eight, they might have rowed on the Harlem instead of the Seine. The faker who is clumsy would have faked both the Harlem and the ladies.

Getting around to what we want to say, it is merely this. Do not write of the things too close, or you are hampered by facts, and do not write of the things too far away, for here you are hampered by lack of facts, but write intelligibly of the things you know, giving them different locations, and not sticking to facts, and you are likely to win out.

If you write of the time you went down Main street to the postoffice, you can't go down Market street to the railroad station, and yet the things that happened to you going down Main street to the postoffice might be funnier if they had happened going down Market to the station. Be ready to change so that the story is not true, but possibly more interesting. That is what counts.

Sizing Them Up.

Two letters come in the same mail. One argues that the rejection slip is an incentive. The other remarks that the rejection slip is an incentive to crime. "If I can't write," complains the author, "the Editor should tell me so."

Ye-ah!

The editor should sit down and tell the author in a long letter that his stuff was "punk," that his ideas were "junk" and his efforts to sell "bunk." And maybe a year and seven-eighths later that same writer might be one of the six best sellers with a simply terrible hatred for a particular editor and the company he represents.

Long before the editor gets to be an editor he has gone through the other stages. He has climbed out of the mass of his own rejection slips and has slid into the seats of the mighty. He knows, what all good fellows know, that the novice of today—IF he doesn't keep on acting like a novice—may be the star of tomorrow or next year or the year after, and he isn't lining up in the dub class by giving free literary advice that may be based on bad judgment, so he sends back the script and a nice rejection slip that says they'll be glad to see more, and only the absolute ass falls for the printed junk, and you can't cure the ass, anyway, by telling him his stuff is bad.

No editor can tell what a correspondent may do. He may guess, but with no certainty that his guess is right. He is not set there to drive the beginner from the field. He is set there to get the best stuff he can for the concern that employs him. When he does that he is performing his duty, and duty calls for nothing else.

He is quick to see and help merit, but he cannot see the promise behind the boob, and so he does not take a chance that a man utterly is a boob and try to kill him. He is hired as an editor, not a fool killer. Some day he may need the scripts of the very man he is now turning down, and he knows it. Very lately a chap reminded us of a set of stuff we bought for a magazine fifteen years ago. It was almost junk save for the idea, but "fixed up" it looked pretty good.

"Know who that is?" asked the ex-boss. We shook our head. He named a name now nationally famous; a man who never gets less than $500 and usually kicks for the four figures, and yet, fifteen years ago he was glad to get $20 and $25 for stuff that had to be fixed up, and he still follows the fortunes of the editor who made him a writer. Suppose that editor had thrown rocks at him. Some editors would have done so.

And the photoplay field is even less certain than the fiction field, because in this end it is action and idea rather than literary finish that makes the sale.

It is not for the editor to tell you whether or not you are of no account. It is for you to find out.

Sizing It Up.

When you see stuff on the screen and say, "I can write better than that," remember you may be right, but will your stuff look any better after it has been mangled by (1) Poor acting. (2) A director who "fixes things up." (3) The Cutting room?

Until you know these three factors, DO NOT BRAG. Truly pride goeth before a fall

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until such articles have been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two or three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending 4 cents, stamps (less than actual cost) will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

The first seventy-four questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form. They may be obtained by remitting 25 cents, money, or stamps, to the editor. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy. You may be surprised at the number of questions you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 53.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Permission to use the contributor's name must accompany each answer, otherwise only the name of the city will be used. Theater managers looking for high-class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

Could you use ordinary copper wire for resistance rheostat coils to cut down the voltage for a projection lamp? If you say yes, then give us full data for such a rheostat. Explain how light is produced in an incandescent globe—why the filament gets incandescent, and why it always gets just so hot and no hotter.

Roll of Honor.

The Roll of Honor on Question No. 47 consists of the following: Joseph H. L. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; Harry T. Dobson, Toronto, Canada; L. C. La Grow, Albany, New York; L. L. Minges, Lestershire, New York; A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington; W. J. Neff, Reno, Nevada; Harry A. Meyer, Paducah, Kentucky; J. J. Roberts, Nashville, Tennessee; Geoffrey Jefferson, Ypsilanti, Michigan; Walter B. Marshall, Providence, Rhode Island; John Solar, Watertown, New York; W. T. Adams, New Orleans, Louisiana; Jos. L. Edelen, Chicago, Illinois; Bryon Stokes, Weatherford, Texas; Gordon Thornburg, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Hugh J. Schuck, Iowa Falls, Iowa.

I have selected the reply of Brother Solar for publication, supplemented by the reply of Brother Adams, because the latter takes cognizance of the fact that the value of the mill foot of resistance depends upon the material from which the wire is made—a very important item, indeed; also while Friend Solar's reply contains valuable data, it don't answer the actual question as completely as does the reply by Adams.

Reply to Question No. 47.

By JOHN SOLAR, Watertown, N. Y.

The Question:

What is the mill foot standard of resistance, and how is it used in measuring the resistance of wire? Using the mill foot standard, what is the total resistance of a circuit of No. 6 wire, the total length of both wires being 156 feet. Show us how you obtain the answer:

The Reply:

The "mill foot" is the standard unit for measuring the resistance of a conductor. It is a wire (Made from the material being measured. Ed.), one mill in diameter and one foot long. It (Commercial copper. Ed.) has a resistance of 9.59 International ohms at a temperature of 0 degrees centigrade. In the United States copper wire is usually designated by Brown Sharp, or American, gauge, commonly called the "B & S" gauge. The rule by which the size of wire increase by the B & S standard is very simple. If we take any B & S gauge number as a basis of comparison, then by adding three thereto we obtain the number of the wire having nearly one-half the sectional area and twice the resistance. To illustrate: A number 7 wire will have the same sectional area as two No. 10 wires, or four No. 13 wires, etc.; similarly, by substracting three from any gauge number we obtain the gauge number of a wire having nearly twice the sectional area. A little study will convince one that the ratio between the area of each wire and the next smaller or larger is equal to the cubic foot of 2, or 1.26, since in order to obtain the size of a wire twice the area of a given wire, we must multiply the area of the given wire three times, therefore the cube of the ratio must be equal to 2. The ratio between the resistance of any wire in the B & S gauge and that of the resistance of the next higher number is as 1 to 1.26, and the ratio between the resistance of any wire in the B & S gauge, and that of the next lower number is as 1.26 to 1. A wire three sizes smaller than a given wire will have a resistance twice as great, and a wire three sizes larger will have a resistance one-half as great as the given wire.

The following is a simple method of measuring the approximate resistance of a (Copper. Ed.) conductor. No. 10 B & S wire is very close to 1/10 of an inch (.10189 of an inch) in diameter, and the resistance of 1,000 feet of this wire is very nearly one ohm (.9972 of an ohm). To illustrate: 1,000 feet of No. 13 wire would have a resistance of 2 ohms (2.084. Ed.) and 1,000 feet of No. 16 wire a resistance of 4 ohms (4.179. Ed.); 1,000 feet of No. 7 wire would have a resistance of .5 of an ohm (.519. Ed.); No. 4 would have a resistance of .25 (.259. Ed), and No. 1 has .125 of an ohm. For intermediate numbers use the ratio of 1.26. For more accurate measurement of resistance the Text Book tables should be used.

The resistance of a circuit of No. 6 wire 156 feet in length, by the above method, would work out as follows: (Brother Solar made an error here, but one for which he is entirely excusable, since the question itself would admit of two constructions. What I meant was a circuit 156 feet long, which would make 312 feet of wire. However, the error does not alter the correctness of his reply. It was simply a misunderstanding. Ed.). The resistance of No. 10 wire is 1 ohm per 1,000 feet (1.040. Ed.). Three sizes larger, or, No. 7, would be one-half as much. or, .5 of an ohm, and, this divided by 1.26=.3968 ohms, which is the resistance of 1,000 feet of No. 6 wire (my table gives resistance of 1,000 feet of No. 6 wire as .411, however, there is but an infinitesimal difference between .3968 and .411. Ed.) and .3968÷1,000=.0003968, the resistance of one foot, and .0003968×156=.00619008 of an ohm; which is the approximate resistance of 156 feet of No. 6 copper wire.

[Brother Solar's method is very interesting and, so far as the editor is concerned, it is new; but it appears to work out with approximate correctness, and under some conditions a knowledge of this method would prove of large value. One does not always have a wire table when one needs it, and by using this method, which is simple and easily retained in mind, one can work out the approximate resistance of any circuit on the spur of the moment. Provided he knows the resistance of 1,000 feet of any B & S number of wire.—Ed.]

Reply to Question No. 47.

By W. T. ADAMS, New Orleans, La.

The mill foot standard of resistance varies according to the metal the conductor is composed of, as well as the temperature of the metal. The standard mill foot of resistance for commercial copper is a copper wire 1 foot in length by .001 of an inch in diameter, when the same is at 75 degrees Fahr. There is a slight difference in the resistance of such a wire as quoted by different text books, but 10.8 ohms is almost invariably accepted as the mill foot value when used commercially to calculate resistance of electric circuits.

Following is the value of the mill foot resistance for some of the various metals, when the same are at 68 degrees Fahr. At 68 degrees Fahr. a wire, made of silver, 1 foot in length and .001 (1 mill) of an inch in diameter would have 9.84 ohms resistance; if made of aluminum, 17.21; of zinc, 36.69; of platinum, 59.02; of iron, 63.35; of German silver, 128.29; of mercury, 586.24. Using 10.8 as the mill foot standard at 75 degrees Fahr, a copper wire 156 feet long would at that temperature have a resistance of .0642 ohms. We obtain this result as follows: No. 6 wire is 162 mills in diameter. Now, if we multiply the resistance of a mill foot by the number of feet of wire in a circuit, we will have the resistance of a wire of that length which is .001 of an inch (1 mill) in diameter. In other words, we first multiply the resistance of one mill foot by the number of feet of wire in the circuit, and then, since this gives the resistance of one wire .001 of an inch, the wire in question, in this instance a No. 6, will be equal to 26,244 such wires, since it has an aera of 26,244 circular mills, we therefore aivide the result obtained as above by 26,244, which gives us the resistance of 156 feet of No. 6 wire. In figures it works out as follows: $\frac{10.8\times156}{162\times162}=\frac{1684.8}{26244}$ .0642 of an ohm as the resistance of 156 feet of No. 6 wire.

If iron were used instead of copper the total resistance would be .376 ohms, as follows: $\frac{63.35\cdot156}{162\cdot162}=\frac{9882.6}{26244}$ .376 of an ohm.

[I have not checked up the figures in these replies—that is to say, I have not checked up the correctness of the multiplication, division, etc., but the methods given are right. Also, I have not looked up the mill foot of resistance for the different metals, as quoted by Brother Adams; I also assume they are correct. I might add, all the replies that reached the Roll of Honor are very good.—Ed.]

Sorry, But I Cannot Do It.

From a small town in Maine comes the following:

> I ask your aid in securing a position in a good theater which demands high-class work. I perfectly understand that you do not make a practice of placing men who are not able to place themselves. However, I have just recovered from appendicitis and am out all around. Have been operating four years and have worked at electric wiring in the day time during that time. Have studied hard, and everything pertaining to the business, and I cannot begin to tell you how much the department has helped me, as it has helped thousands of others. Although projection is fair in this and surrounding towns, the so-called managers will not pay more than $15 a week, and we are obliged to work at bill posting, janitor work and other things in order to draw even that.

Now here is a man, who, judging by the letter he writes, deserves help, but I cannot assist him. I placed a lot of men a couple of years ago and, almost to a man, they fell down flat. You see when a manager asks me for a man he does it because he figures that I will only recommend a high-class man, and then, if the man does not deliver perfect results on the screen, the manager is disgusted and blames me. I cannot afford to be called names just for being accommodating. If any one can give this man a trial I will be glad to send his address. That is all I can do in the matter.

That State Law.

I wish to very pointedly call the attention of the various unions in New York State to the fact that concessions will have to be made all around if you want a state license law. I think the up-state locals ought, by all means, to concede the apprenticeship clause, to which they now object, because it is a mighty good proposition, and one which is very badly needed. The apprenticeship clause does not mean that the operator is compelled to take on an apprentice whether he wants to or not. It simply means that before the novice can receive a license he must serve an apprenticeship, and, gentlemen, how any operator can object to a proposition of that kind I am free to say is utterly beyond my comprehension. I also think that the up-state locals, and the New York local as well, will have to come to the conclusion that one examining board will have to do the examining for the entire state. I think, however, that the law could be so drawn, and should be so drawn, that the board would hold sittings in more than one place, say in two or three points in the state, one of them being, of course, New York City, since there are as many, or more operators here than there are in all the rest of the state combined. The New York sitting ought to take in a surrounding territory of considerable extent, and the other points should be located as nearly as possible geographically central with the remaining territory. You might as well make up your minds, gentlemen, that you cannot get a state law which will provide a license which will be good all over the state by having local examining boards in all the different cities. I think also, as I have before said, that, under the conditions, it would be extremely unwise to provide for only one class of license. I do not believe it would be either right, just, or common sense to expect the man running the projector of a little show in a town of one thousand to be compelled to pass such an examination as would be given the man seeking a license to operate in the larger cities, and if this were done it would simply result, I think, in closing a lot of village theaters, thus depriving hundreds of communities of all chance to enjoy moving pictures.

The besetting sin of operators is the same as the besetting sin of chauffeurs, and all others who are bucking the bread line in this "vale of sin and sorrer." Spelled out in good, plain English it is pure, unadulterated selfishness, though usually it is dignified by the term of "self-protection." The operator in New York City seeks to protect himself, and he don't care a plugged nickel about the wishes or rights of the "other fellow" out in Buffalo, Albany, Binghamton, or Niagara Falls. On the other hand the operator out in Buffalo, Albany, Binghamton, or Niagara Falls, takes precisely the same position, not only with relation to New York City, but with relation to other towns. In other words, each one is simply seeking to get all he can, utterly regardless of the interests of his neighbor. This is, of course, only natural under existing conditions. I am not blaming anybody. It is the logical sequence of our root-hog-or-die, the-devil-take-the-hindmost system of doing things. However, in this matter of a state law the operators of New York City, Albany, Buffalo, Binghamton, Niagara Falls, and the balance of the towns will have to make up their minds that none of them are going to get exactly what they want in a state law, or, for that matter, anywhere near what they want, but, if they get together and talk the thing over reasonably and sensibly, making concessions to each other, a law can be framed, and I believe can be passed, too, which will be far in advance of what we now have; therefore, gentlemen, lay aside, at least, for the moment, your near-sighted spectacles, and try and look at the thing, not entirely from your local viewpoint, but from a broad point of view which will include the entire Empire State, and all the operators therein.

Guil Pastil.

C. E. Lindall, Bar Harbor, Maine, who is the importer of Guil Pastil, forwards the following to the department.

> Have received many inquiries as to how the war would effect the supply of guil pastils. Am sorry to say that the factory is probably shut down. I sent an order, with remittance, which same probably arrived a day or two after war was declared, and I have had no answer. My large size pastils are almost all gone, but luckily I got in a large order of the dollar kind in July, enough probably to last until Christmas. As they only cost me the regular rate, I will not take advantage of the situation and charge more for them, but will sell them, while the stock holds out, at the old price. However, I will not sell more than five to any one person. Here's hoping that the war will be short and that those possessing the secret formula for making the guil pastil won't get killed.

To the latter sentence of which doubtless the users of guil pastil will say a hearty-wholesouled amen. It is certainly very fair of Brother Lindall to not raise the price, now that he has a "corner" on the article. Very few would, I think, be that moderate.

Condensing Lenses.

S. Arkin, New York City, contributes the following exceedingly interesting article and data. Mr. Arkin, who is a licensed optometrist, meaning an optician, has evidently taken a great deal of pains with this article and it is entitled to serious consideraton. Mr. Arkin did all this voluntarily and is entitled to the thanks of operators all over the country for the labor he has put in, and the interest he has shown in trying to clear up what is one of the most difficult problems we have to contend with. He writes as follows:

> Having had the difficulties confronting motion picture operators in determining the size of picture and the selecting of proper lenses and condensers to project a given picture at a given distance brought to my attention, I determined to investigate the matter, and very quickly discovered that writers on cinematography seem not to have mastered the subject of projection. At least some of their figures certainly indicate a large lack of knowledge on the subject of projectional optics. Fig. 1 is taken from a handbook of Kinematography, published in London. This diagram shows a meniscus lens of long focal length to have a shorter focus than a double convex lens approximately twice its optical strength, which is, on the face of it, impossible. What actually takes place in an arrangement of this sort is illustrated in Fig. 2. In order to bring the rays parallel the meniscus in Figs. 1 and 2 would have to be somewhere in the neighborhood of a 4-inch lens. Now a 4-inch lens would be impractical, because of the excessive spherical aberration which would result; particularly this is true when using a meniscus lens. There are several things involved here. A 4-inch meniscus would, on its convex side, having approximately the same curvature as a 2-inch piano, but due to the fact that the concave side is negative, the convex side must have enough greater curvature to neutralize the curvature of the negative in order to obtain a given focal length. You will readily see from the foregoing that such enormous curvature would be necessary on the convex side that excessive aberration would result, and a 4-inch lens is therefore not at all practical.

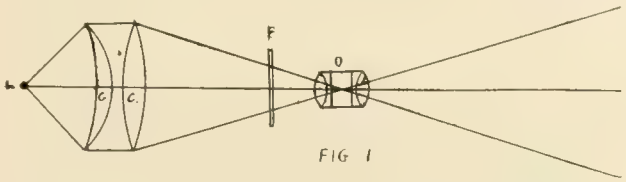

FIG 1

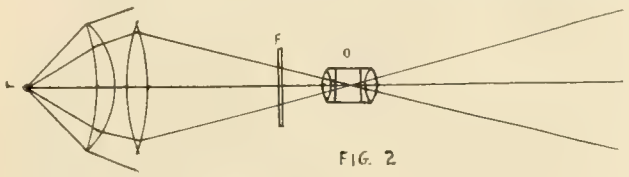

FIG. 2

Studying Fig. 2 you will observe that any way you work it there is bound to be a heavy loss of light, since if the arc be pulled back far enough to cause the meniscus to bring the rays parallel, then it will, in effect, amount to the same thing, since, while you stop the loss of light between the two lenses, you will have more than made up the loss by moving the arc a greater distance from the surface of the lens. Remember that the amount of light cast upon any surface, in this instance a circle approximately 4¼ inches in diameter, decreases inversely as the square of the distance from the light source so that the instant you start to move the arc back from the lens you begin to lose light very rapidly.

I have selected this figure because the lenses are in the reverse order. They should have been placed so that the lens with the shorter focus would be next to the light, and the one with the longer focus next the picture.

American authors have not apparently mastered the subject of projection any better than have their foreign brothers. Their rules are not rigid, but complicated. There is no rational rule for the determining of the size of picture best adapted for a given auditorium, and the lenses are selected by trial, with result that there is no harmony between the film lens and the stereopticon lens. Considering all this I have worked out a table designed to give the size of picture for a given house, and the ratio of focal length of the film lens to the stereopticon lens, so that both lenses will be the same distance from the condenser. I will illustrate, by several examples, the method by which the table was prepared, so that anybody with a knowledge of plain arithmetic will be able to follow the system and work out other cases having different conditions.

I will now give the formula for finding the equivalent focus of any two lenses of which the focal length is known. This will be found very useful in selecting condensing lenses.

Let f_1 and f_2 represent two lenses, of any focal length, and F2 equal the equivalent focus when they are placed in combination with each other. Then:

$$\frac{1}{f_1} + \frac{1}{f_2} = \frac{1}{F_2}, \text{ or, } \frac{f_1 \times f_2}{f_1 + f_2} = F_2.$$

For example: let the focal length of lens f_1 be 6 inches and that of lens f_2 be 12 inches, then substituting figures for these symbols we would have

$$\frac{1}{6}+\frac{1}{12}=\frac{3}{12}=\frac{1}{F_3}=\frac{1}{4}, \text{ hence } F_3=4.$$

Also $$\frac{6\times 12}{6+12}=\frac{72}{18}=4.$$

Now, gentlemen, the "also" part of it is all the average operator can understand. The $\frac{1}{6}+\frac{1}{12}=\frac{3}{12}$ etc., with the result of 4, is perfectly correct, but it involves reciprocals, 4 being the reciprocal of ¼, and one not accustomed to the use of higher mathematics would understand that proposition. (Mr. Arkin only gives it for the benefit of those who can understand, and I guess there won't be very many. The formula serves the same purpose, and is perfectly understandable to the average man.—Ed.).

$$\frac{6\times 12}{6+12}=\frac{72}{18}=4$$

And now let us consider the size of the picture. If you were to consider the front seats only, then the size of picure should be the same, no matter how long the auditorium might be; if the rear seats only should be considered, then the size of the picture would necessarily be proportional to the length of the house. But considering only the front and only the rear seats is inconsistent and not practical. The picture size must increase in a certain ratio with the length of the house. After careful investigation I have determined to my own satisfaction that the area of the picture should increase directly with the length of the house, and the linear dimensions should increase as the square root of the length of the house, this rule being predicated on the width of the house never exceeding 60 per cent of its length.

Considering 20 feet to be the shortest length of house practical to use, it should have a picture six feet wide, the height of which will be 4.40 feet. For an 80-foot house the linear dimensions are double, because the square root of 4 is 2. For a 180-foot house the linear dimensions are three times that of the 20-foot house, because 20 divided into 180 gives 9 and the square root of 9 is 3. The area of the picture increases with the length, therefore the illuminant necessary for an 80-foot house will be four times as great as that for a 20-foot house, or, in other words, the necessary power of the illuminant would be directly in proportion to the length of the house not because the length, as such, cuts any figure, but because the picture size or area increases with the length of house, instead of "throw," because the operating roof will not necessarily be located at the rear end of the house.

Size of the aperture. In order to have uniform pictures, both still and animated, the proportional size of the lantern slide mat ought to be identical with, and a multiple of that of the film aperture. The stereopticon slide can be made about three and a half times as large as the film aperture when a 4½-inch condenser is used. Following this out we would have the width of the motion picture aperture $\frac{15}{16}\times 3.5=\frac{105}{32}$ and the height of the motion picture aperture $\frac{11}{16}\times 3.5=\frac{77}{32}$, and, therefore theoretically the stereopticon slide mat should be $\frac{105}{32}\times\frac{77}{32}$, but allowing 3/32 of an inch for displacement we can make the lantern slide mat $\frac{108}{32}\cdot\frac{80}{32}$ or, 3 6/16 inches × 2½ inches.

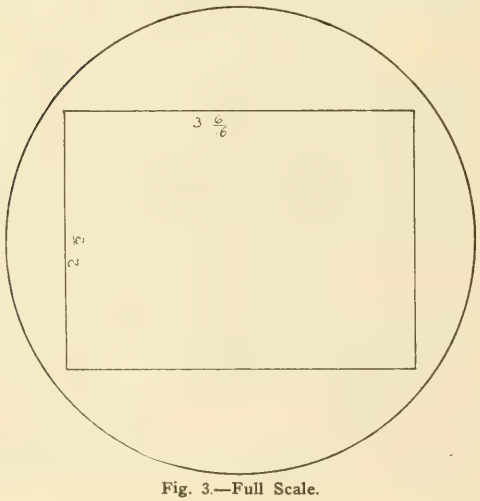

Fig. 3.—Full Scale.

For the purpose of ease of calculation, however, 3¼ inches should be taken as the width of the slide mat in order to allow for slight movement of the mat.

Figure 3 shows a mat of this size in an ordinary 4½ condensing lens. And now let us take up the focal length of the stereopticon lens. Let F be the focal length, S the width of the slide mat, L the length or distance from the lens to the picture and D the width of the picture, then by similar triangles (Similar triangles mean triangles of which all the angles are identical.—Ed.), as shown in Fig. 4, F : S :: L : D, hence, $F=\frac{S\,L}{D}$.

Example: When L equals 20 feet $F=\frac{3.25\cdot(20\times 12)}{(6\times 12)}=10.8$ inches. (In the last fraction the 12 in the numerator and the denominator merely serves to reduce the feet to inches. The result would be the same if the fraction simply read $\frac{3.25\times 20}{6}$.—Ed.).

How to find the focal length of the right film lens to match the stereopticon lens is told in the foregoing problem. We will let F1 be the film lens, then by similar triangles (See definition of triangles given before.—Ed.) we have F : F_1 :: 3.5 : 1.

$$\frac{F_1=F\times 1}{3.5}\text{ or, }\frac{10.8\times 1}{3.5}=\frac{10.8}{3.5}=3+$$ inches. It must be remembered that F_1 must be subtracted from F. In other words, the focal length of the film lens must be subtracted from the focal length of the stereopticon lens in order to ascertain the distance between the film and the condenser. In this case it is 10.8 — 3. = 7.8 inches. In any case $F_1=\frac{2F}{7}$, and the distance of the film from the lantern slide is $\frac{5F}{7}$.

Focal length of the condensers.—This is the most difficult problem the operator has to contend with. I will try to make the matter as plain as I may. The function of the first condenser (the condenser nearest the light) is to refract the diverging rays of the arc and pass them along to the second lens in parallel lines. The function of the second lens is to converge the parallel rays and bring them to a point at the center of the objective lens. The nearer the first condenser is to the arc the more light will be received—also the more heat. The minimum distance a condenser can be placed in ordinary practical projection practice, owing to the heat, is from 3½ to 4 inches from the arc to the center of the first lens of the condenser. Let f_1 equal the focus of the first condenser lens and f_2 the focus of the second condenser lens. If we could get a good 4-inch lens f_1 would be 4 inches and f_2 would equal F of the lantern slide (Fig. 4), but as we cannot get a good 4-inch lens of 4½ diameter, we have to find another combination which should be $\frac{1}{f_1}+\frac{1}{f_2}=\frac{1}{X}+\frac{1}{F}$. In this case X equals the distance from the arc to the center of the first lens. See Fig. 4. In this case $\frac{1}{X}=\frac{1}{4}$. An examination of this equation will show you that the equivalent focus of the two members is the same. For example: Let F, as in the previous case, be 10.8 inches and f_1 be 5.5, then we have $\frac{1}{4}+\frac{1}{10.8}=.3423$. In the above equation $\frac{1}{f_1}=\frac{1}{5.5}=.1818$, and taking the sum of the last half of the equation, .3423, and subtracting from it the sum of the first equation, .1818, we have $.1605=\frac{1}{f_3}$. The reciprocal of .1605 is found by dividing $\frac{1}{.1605}$; it is 6:23, so that f_3 equals 6.23 inches, which is the focal length of condenser No. 2. In this case I have followed and explained every step shown in determining the focal length of the lenses for a 20-foot throw, the results of which will be found in the second line of the table. I will now work out the complete set, as shown in table, for a house 120 feet long where the throw is from the back of the house. $\frac{120}{20}=6$. The square root of 6 is 2.45. As before stated, width of picture necessary for a 20-foot house is 6 feet, therefore dividing 120, the length of the present house, by 20 and extracting the square root of the result, 6, gives us 2.45, which is the number of times 6 the width of the 6-foot picture should be for a 120-foot house, or, $6 \times \frac{2.45}{11} = 14.7$, and the height of the picture will be $14.7 \times \frac{16}{16} = 10.8$ feet. F of the lantern slide (Fig. 4) equals $\frac{3.25 \times 120}{14.7} = 26.5$. The lens distance from film to condenser equals 26.5 — 7.5 = 19 inches. F_1, the film lens, equals $\frac{26.5 \times 2}{7} - 7.57$. Focal length of condenser equals $\frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{26.5} = .2877$. When $f_1 = 5.5$, $\frac{1}{f_1} = .1818$, so that subtracting .1818 from .2877 we find that $\frac{1}{f_2} = .1059$, the reciprocal of which is 9.44, which is the focal length of f_2, the second condenser lens.

The former two examples were for regular cases when the operating room is at the rear of the house, and the figures are the same as those shown in the table. I simply worked them out to show how the table was prepared. I will now give two examples where the operating room is located midway of the auditorium, or at least, not at its rear.

Case 1. Let the length of the auditorium be 120 feet and the length of L (the throw), Fig. 4, 80 feet. The size of the picture for a 120-foot house is, as shown, 14.7 × 10.8. F then would equal 3.25, the width of the slide mat, multiplied by 80, the length of the throw, divided by 14.7 equals 17.7. F then equals 17.7. F_1 then equals $\frac{2F}{7}$, or 5.05. From 17.7, the distance, (F Fig. 4), we now subtract 5, the same being F_1 (Fig. 4), which leaves us 12.7 as the distance from the condenser to the film. $\frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{17.7} = .3065$. Condenser f_1 equals 5.5 inches and $\frac{1}{5.5} = .1818$; subtracting .1818 from .3065 we have .1247, the reciprocal of which is 8.02, the focal length of condenser f_2.

Case 2. Let the length of the house be 200 feet and the throw 120 feet. $\frac{200}{20} = 10$. The square root of 10 = 3.16, therefore at 200 feet the picture should be 3.16 times the six-foot base of the picture and 6 × 3.16 = 18.96 as the width of the picture, or, in other words, 19 feet.

$F = \frac{3.25 \times 120}{19} = 20.5$. $F = \frac{20.5 \times 2}{7} = 5.9$.

The distance from film to condenser equals 20.5 — 5.9 = 14.6 inches.

¼ + 1/20.5 = .2987, and .2987 — .1818 = .1169, the reciprocal of which is 8.55, so that condenser F_2 must have a focal length of 8.55.

Length of house, or throw when the booth is at the rear of the house.	Width of picture.	Height of picture.	F—Focal length of the stereopticon lens.	F_1—Focal length of the film lens.	Distance from film to condenser.	$\frac{1}{x} = \frac{1}{F} + \frac{1}{f_1} + \frac{1}{f_2} + \frac{1}{F_3}$	F_3—equivalent focus of F_1 and f_2 the two condensers.	Focal length of f_1, or condenser No. 1.	Focal length of f_2 or condenser No. 2.
	(Ft.)	(Ft.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)	(Ins.)
10	4.24	3.11	7¾	2¼	5½	.38055	2.6278	5.0	5½
20	6.00	4.40	10¾	3	7¾	.34231	2.9213	5½	6¼
30	7.35	5.39	13¼	3¾	9½	.32537	3.0735	5½	7
40	8.48	6.22	15½	4½	11	.31527	3.1720	5½	7½
50	9.44	6.96	17¼	5	12¼	.30838	3.2428	5½	8
60	10.39	7.62	18¾	5¼	13½	.30329	3.2972	5½	8¼
70	11.22	8.23	20¼	5¾	14½	.29934	3.3407	5½	8½
80	12.00	8.80	21¾	6¼	15½	.29615	3.3767	5½	8¾
90	12.73	9.33	23	6½	16½	.29352	3.4070	5½	9
100	13.42	9.84	24¼	7	17¼	.29128	3.4331	5½	9¼
110	14.08	10.32	25½	7¼	18¼	.28956	3.4559	5½	9¼
120	14.70	10.78	26½	7½	19	.28768	3.4760	5½	9½
130	15.30	11.22	27¾	8	19¾	.28621	3.4940	5½	9½
140	15.88	11.65	28¾	8¼	20½	.28489	3.5102	5½	9¾
150	16.43	12.05	29¾	8½	21¼	.28371	3.5247	5½	9¾
160	16.96	12.44	30½	8¾	21¾	.28264	3.5381	5½	10
170	17.50	12.83	31½	9	22½	.28166	3.5501	5½	10
180	18.00	13.20	32½	9¼	23¼	.28077	3.5616	5½	10
190	18.50	13.56	33½	9½	24	.27995	3.5721	5½	10
200	19.00	13.92	34¼	9¾	24½	.27919	3.5818	5½	10½

The above table is self-explanatory, and I would very much like to have operators test out these lens combinations wherever possible and report their findings, remembering, however, that this will not be applicable to the stereopticon side of the machine except where a stereopticon mat of the proportions indicated be used.

I cannot agree altogether with Brother Arkin on the size of the picture, because there are quite a number of equations which enter, the main ones being the wide range of width of auditoriums as compared to the length. However, Brother Arkin is the first one to bring up this subject in anything like an intelligent form, and therefore his views will no doubt prove to be of interest. I have myself to some extent collaborated with Friend Arkin in the compilation of the writing matter in this article, he supplying the technical end of it, and myself the "language." In some places I have had the honor to sit down on him when he advanced propositions which, technically correct, would not work in practice.

As the article was first submitted Brother Arkin had committed the same crime that all opticians commit in compiling matter which, though very plain to the optician, would have been Greek to the operator, except in such instances as Brothers James, Griffith, La Grow and a few others. I am myself trying to master this exceedingly difficult matter, and I can tell you, gentlemen, it is no small task. Now let us hear from you as to your views on this matter.

Let me add that the reciprocal of a number is found by dividing 1 by the number or fraction. For instance, the reciprocal of 5 is 1 divided 5 equals 1/5.

I Don't Either.

Theodore Grottke, Jr., Spring Valley, New York, contributes an answer to Question 46, and says:

> I have just completed a one year's apprenticeship in operating room, studying hard all the time. I do not understand how anybody expects to learn operating in a school in a few weeks.

Neither do I, Brother Grottke, neither do I.

A Suggestion.

A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington, writes:

> With regard to placing fans in vent pipes, since one of the most serious objections thereto is that it might not be running at the time fire occurred, I would suggest that it could be so arranged that an auxiliary switch would be automatically closed with the closing of the wall shutters, and thus start the fan, if it were not already running. One objection to the fan suggests itself to me, viz.: that the flames going up the pipe would be liable to quickly destroy the insulation of the windings of the fan motor, whereupon it would, of course, promptly stop, thus forming an obstacle to the free egress of the flames and smoke.

Yes, Brother Stewart, I had these things in my mind when I objected to the fan. Your first suggestion is a good one, but the stopping of fans through the burning of the insulation is likely to occur, but, nevertheless, after careful consideration I have concluded that Mr. Atkinson's plan is the best.

This Is Better.

Not long ago I spoke of the work of Mrs. Webbe, manager of the Goodwin theater, Newark, New Jersey. I said she was a real manager, and also mentioned the difficulties she was having in securing high class projection. I wrote the Newark Local, calling their attention to the fact that Mrs. Webbe wanted good work and was willing to pay away above the scale in order to get it; I suggested to the local that it was up to their distinguished body to provide Mrs. Webbe with a high class man, even though it was necessary to send to some other city to get one, not meaning to intimate that the local could not supply the kind of man required. I am informed that, while the local did not have the courtesy to reply to my letter, still it did, after considerable delay, supply Mrs. Webbe with another man.

Coming back from Ampere, N. J., one morning I dropped in at the Goodwin, went up to the operating room before the operator had arrived. I found the lenses in wretched condition, and called Mrs. Webbe's attention to the matter. I fully intended to land on Mr. Operator good and plenty. However, the aforesaid operator, Edward Wiggers, made a satisfactory explanation of the condition of the lenses, and Mrs. Webbe informs me that Mr. Wiggers is now doing fine work; that he is carrying out all my suggestions, including using the opera glasses to focus, watching the pictures, and delivering high class results on the screen.

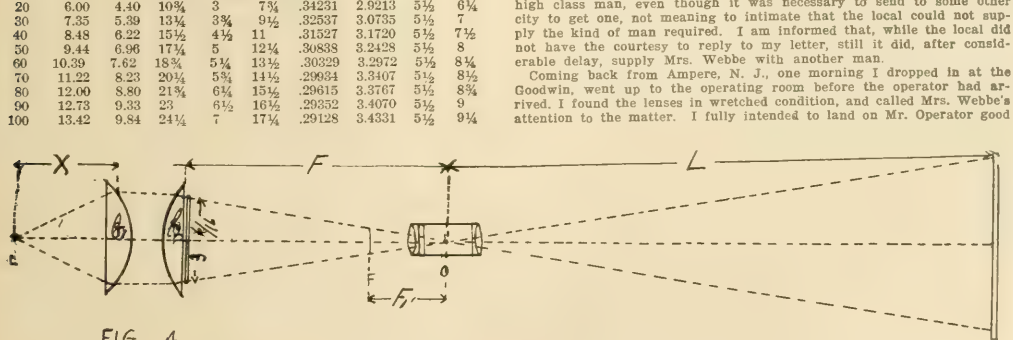

FIG. 4

¼ SCALE

I am indeed glad to know this, and I hope Brother Wiggers will maintain the reputation he is now establishing. If he can satisfy Mrs. Webbe it is evidence to me that he is delivering high class projection—projection which is a credit to himself, to the theater, and to the Newark Local Union to which he belongs.

He evidently is not doing what the operator of a Newark theater was doing a few days ago when I dropped in on him unexpectedly. He did not recognize me, and there he stood with his back to the observation port, turning the crank with one finger. Understand me: he did not have hold of the crank at all, but just stood there with his back toward the observation port and one finger stuck out with which he was pushing the crank around. What do you think of that for "high class" work? If I was the manager of that theater and came into the operating room and found my operator with his back to the picture flirting the crank around with one finger he'd get out quick. I have no patience with such work. It is not fair to the manager, and it is a disgrace to the union. It spells shadows on the screen, bad timing of speed, and bad everything else. My compliments to Brother Wiggers; if he keeps up his present lick he won't need to worry about the union scale, because he'll draw more than the union scale, and considerable more, too. Incidentally, Mrs. Webbe is branching out and will soon be manager of another large house.

Gas Outfit.

James K. Mills, Amherst, Massachusetts, writes:

I notice that occasionally you have inquiries in regard to the use of a gas outfit, and that you do not seem to be able to answer satisfactorily from lack of experience in handling them. I have had the experience, and after a good deal of experimenting and expenditure, have been able to get what are generally considered unusually satisfactory results, and perhaps these may be of value to others. No one should start with the idea that it is a cheap way to project pictures. If you want good results, and you can get good results, everything must be of the best.

The Picture.—I do not advise a picture larger than 8 feet. Up to this size a good, bright one can be put on the screen if the films are not too dense.

The Generator.—Take, for example, the Model B. Fill the cage with all the oxone it will hold, the saturator with the best ether; that having only 4 per cent alcohol is the best, but cannot always be obtained. After the generator is charged and put together fill the water tank with water up to within about two inches of the top. Have a small pitcher of water by you and as it goes down in the tank add enough to keep up the level. The oxone that is left after the run can be taken out and put in one of the cans to use again. Fill the saturator after each run and clean it out, and dry out the packing once a week at least. See that all connections are tight, and clean out the tubes and valves each day.

In the Lamp House.—Have a calcium jet that mixes the gases thoroughly. In my experience the Dynamic, for sale by T. H. McAllister, excels all others. Two tips come with this; use the smaller one. Use hard limes, bringing them up to within about an eighth of an inch of the tip of the jet, turning them frequently, but not far. Clean out the tip after each run, and the mixer frequently. Use first quality condensers of as short focus as possible as they will enable you to get your light nearer to the condenser in the lamp house, and the film outside.

The Machine.—I have tried the Edison, the Powers and the Motiograph only: the latter with the inside shutter gives decidedly the best results. Keep the machine clean and well oiled.

The Screen.—The best I have found was made by using heavy sheeting. Give it a heavy coat of sizing made from white fish glue, then when dry, paint over with a thick coat of white alabastine. If it is desired to use the outfit on the road it is better to dissolve about a quarter of a cake of common yellow soap in each bucketful of water that is used to mix the sizing and alabastine. Carry it on a roller and not folded. Keep clean.

The Film.—If you are buying your film, other considerations being equal, give the preference to those that are not too dense. If it is coming from an exchange you will, of course, have to take what is sent. Do not attempt a long throw.

We are very much obliged to Brother Mills for his information concerning gas, and commend it to the serious consideration of gas users. I have myself had a limited experience in handling gas, but it was a long time ago, also, as I said, it was limited, therefore I do not feel competent to give authoritative advice on that particular subject.

Wants a Roll of Honor Man.

Geoffrey Jefferson, Ypsilanti, Michigan, submits reply to question 46 and says:

Perhaps my reply should not be used, because I am not a really truly operator, but a college man who has run a Powers Six A for some time, and is able to get a very good picture on the screen. Am going to buy a theater within a month or so, and am learning all I can about projection, though I expect to have an operator. Now that I know something of projection myself I shall be in position to require results. I believe a manager should be able to intelligently criticize the work of his operator. I intend to answer your questions, which, by the way, seem to be an excellent thing, and I am going to try to get one of those Roll of Honor men for my operator when the time comes. Do you think I can buy a high class engine and generator for supplying projection current for $500. I do not see how a theater owner, manager or operator who is onto his job can get along without the Moving Picture World.

The brother is entirely correct, and he is taking the right course. I long ago took the position that a manager ought to be able to intelligently criticize the work of his operator, and I see no reason to change that view. I am not very well posted on the cost of electric light outfits, but I believe you can get a fairly good one for about $500, though not one as large as I would myself want.

Swelled Heads.

Marshall Miller, Waterville, Kansas, propounds the following:

We have a new theater with a seating capacity of 350 in this little town of 1,000, and we have all had to reinforce our hats with metal bands to keep them from expanding unduly, the aforesaid swelling being due to compliments traveling people have paid us. I will not say anything about our projection, being the operator myself, except that it is an improvement on what I have seen around here, and that it is still going to improve. We have in view a 6½ k. w. dynamo direct connected to a steam engine and maybe you can give us advice as to the desirabilities of a plant of that kind.

We are running a show three nights a week, no matinees, and sometimes pay as much as $20 a month for juice. We want to run matinees, and, not having a day service, the central station demands $3.00 an hour to run the plant, that being in addition to the current registered by the meter. It would not take many matinees at $7.00 to pay for a power plant. Another reason for suggesting steam is that our building was just erected and we have not installed our heating plant. The idea is to put in a boiler large enough to run an engine and to use the exhaust steam to heat the building. The building has a flue 8x8 inches. Would that be large enough? What size boiler would it require? I have purchased all the books you have recommended but Hawkins', and I'll be ready for Mr. Hawkins as soon as I get the other three pretty well in my head.

In my judgment, Brother Miller, your scheme is a good one, provided you can get fuel reasonably cheap. You would, of course, use soft coal, and by buying a car load at a time I would suppose you could get it pretty cheap. Look very carefully into the fuel item because that will be the main operating expense of the proposition. As to the size of the engine, it will depend on the amount of current you are going to use and the voltage of your generator. Figure out your amperage carefully—that is, the maximum amperage you will use at any one time—and multiply this by the voltage, which will give you the wattage consumption. Divide this result by 746 and that will be the horse power, but inasmuch as your engine and generator will, combined, not have an efficiency of over 60 or 65 per cent, you should add one-half to the horsepower as indicated by the wattage. Suppose you find that you will consume wattage which equals 8 h.p., then you should have not less than a 12 h.p., and I would myself prefer a 15 h.p. engine. The 15 h.p. engine would cost a little more to install but it would, in the long run, be cheaper. You will, of course, get a boiler rated to supply the horsepower engine you purchase. I would not get a direct connected engine and generator for a plant of this kind, since a high speed steam engine is not a good proposition from any point of view. As to the flue, I hardly think one 8x8 would be large enough. In fact I am quite sure it would not; however, you could probably very easily run a metal pipe up on the outside wall of the building.

And now as to the voltage of the generator. Inasmuch as your power ought to be generated very cheaply, I believe, in this case, I would put in a 110 volt generator, so that you could switch over to city current without any trouble, in case of emergency. Of course, that would mean considerable waste of the projection current; in fact, more than half the energy generated for the projection circuit would be wasted in the rheostat. You could put in a 70 volt generator, and that would largely eliminate the waste, but you would have to install resistance in order to cut over to the city line in case of emergency, and you would have to get 70 volt fan motors, lamps, etc., and they are not quite as easy to obtain as the 110 volt variety. Also with 70 volt incandescent lamps you would have to maintain very steady voltage, because they won't stand much fluctuation. That, however, should be easy, since you ought to require a written guarantee that the engine governor will not allow a speed variation of more than 3 per cent. You will want considerable excess in engine power because using the exhaust steam for heating will, I think, cause 3 to 5 pounds back pressure.

OPERATORS Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS

420 Pages Illustrated

By F. H. Richardson

$2.50 Each Postage Paid will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years.

Address all orders and remittances to

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

PATHE'S WEEKLY No. 60 (Pathe), September 16.—Among the features of this number are views of an unusual acrobatic stunt by a Russian, an exceptionally good close-up view of Colonel Roosevelt speaking in Louisiana, the dedication of the monument to Barbara Frietchie, a German ship being towed into the harbor of Yarmouth, England; marching of French territorials through the streets of Paris, a fine picture of the Czar inspecting the graduates of Livadia Military Academy, and the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner," with a fine parade of the army and navy, an address by Secretary Bryan, and a great flag formed by school children.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 61 (September 21).We have here a good picture of Sir Lionel Carden, the talking and talked of retiring British Minister to Mexico; views of Paris fashions, showing that one French industry at least continues business; the dedication at Baltimore of the monument to Commodore Armistead; cheering of President Carranza at Mexico City by an immense throng, an unusual picture; and views of Belgian infantry, artillery and aviators in maneuvers.

THE GREEN ROSE (Kalem), September 22.—In this picture play produced by Kenean Buel, featuring Alice Joyce, the plot develops that Kathlyn, the ward of an elderly scientist, very nearly loses her life through a rose, which her guardian, coveting her fortune, poisons with anacide. His housekeeper becomes a victim, but the girl is rescued by his young assistant and an authoress guest. The scientist, in the end, becomes a victim to the rose himself. Interesting, but lacks conviction.

THE BLUE COYOTE CHERRY CROP (Edison), September 22.—This picture has been reviewed at length by Louis Reeves Harrison in the Moving Picture World and can be found on page 1516, issue of September 12, 1914.

THE $1,000 PANTS (Melies), September 22.—This picture has been reviewed at length by Hanford C. Judson in the Moving Picture World and can be found on page 1623, issue of Sept. 19, 1914.

LOVE'S MAGNET (Essanay), September 22.—Adapted from a story in the Munsey Magazine. The old story of the sweet young country girl, forsaking her home and lover for a hypnotic actor, in the city. The best that can be said for this release is, that it is so illogical that it is absolutely funny.

FOR LOVE OF HIM (Selig), September 22.—A picture drama of the stage, which shows carelessness in the settings and general direction. There is little in the plot that is convincing and the acting seems to be lackadaisical. The purchase of sulphuric acid at a corner drug store is depicted carelessly, as it cannot be obtained without a physician's prescription. The scene wherein it is used by a jealous woman and the manner in which it is used is ridiculous.

THE WISE DETECTIVE (Lubin), September 22.—A comedy picture play by E. W. Sargent, directed by C. W. Ritchey. The leading characters are in the hands of Harry Lorrane and Mae Hotley. This comedy is greeted with many laughs and is blessed with an ingenuous plot. There is much boisterousness. On the same reel with "A Six-Foot Romance."

A SIX-FOOT ROMANCE (Lubin), September 22.—On the same reel with "The Wise Detective." A picture play the plot of which contains the elements of comedy, but unhappily it is spoiled by the direction and overacting.

POST NO BILLS (Edison) September 23.—A Mark Swan comedy which involves the love affairs of a handsome billposter (just as if there ever was such an animal), but Arthur Housman proved it right there. Gladys Hulette, Harry Gripp and a good supporting cast make of this offering a superior laugh producer. C. Jay Williams, the director, has worked out the author's ideas and situations in an admirable manner.

THE FABLE OF ONE SAMARITAN WHO GOT PARALYSIS OF THE HELPING HAND (Essanay), September 23.—One of George Ade's comedies, illustrating how a man who believes in doing good to others gets it in the neck at the finale. He is a success at helping hoboes, but when he butts in to patch up a lovers' quarrel, after indulging in a scrap with the male part of the duo, he changes his mind in regard to the "Do Good Stuff." Moral: Cast Your Bread Upon the Waters and It Will Come Back to You as Sponge Cake.

A JUST PUNISHMENT (Selig), September 23.—A young man who has promoted a bogus mining stock scheme to obtain money to gratify the demands of an extravagant wife has a wealthy uncle, who to save him from exposure buys up the entire stock. The nephew is urged on by the conscienceless wife and they both attempt to get rid of the uncle in various ways, so that they may inherit his property. Suspicious, he foils their schemes, disinherits them and rescues from their neglect their beautiful little child. An interesting offering.

A DOUBLE ERROR (Vitagraph), September 23.—This comedy, by Faye Neill, Theodore Marston director, makes an instantaneous laughing hit with the audience. A sister and brother are taken for "newlyweds," and to help along with what they consider a joke they involve themselves in all kinds of trouble. However, they meet another brother and sister and cupid gets in his work. The double joke ends after considerable embarrassment to the deceivers in a double engagement. It is well acted with James Morrison, Dorothy Kelly, Lillian Burns and George Cooper in the leading parts.

THE FALL OF MUSCLE-BOUND HICKS (Biograph), September 24.—In this comedy a prize fight occurs between a "has-been"champion and an amateur, who are egged on to a bout to decide who will win the maiden they both love. Cheese seems to have been the strongest factor and assists the amateur to win and also win the "gel." On the same reel with "The Plumber's Picnic."

THE PLUMBER'S PICNIC (Biograph), September 24.—On the same reel with "The Fall of Muscle-bound Hicks." This comedy smacks of one released recently in which the same idea is used but with a different plot. A water pipe bursts in a grouch's house which floods it—who has refused to let his hired girl attend the plumber's picnic. Her plumber sweetheart refuses to turn off the water unless he consents to the girl's going with him.

SLIPPERY SLIM AND THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER (Essanay), September 24.—This is another comedy in which Slippery Slim and Mustang Pete are mixed up in a strenuous contest for the love of Sophie Clutts, in which the green-eyed monster successfully stings Slim and Pete. Old man Clutts butts in and is kept busy chasing first one and then the other. Slim finally wins out. Very laughable.

HOW CLARENCE GOT HIS (Melies), September 24.—A would-be lady-killer persists in distributing his attentions amongst several whom he attracts. Everything goes all right until he gets his wires crossed, then two of his fair victims learn of his peccadillos and proceed to teach him a lesson. To escape he jumps out of a window into the arms of an old maid, who, realizing her good fortune, steals him.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 60 (Selig), September 24.—The following interesting events are shown: A tremendous meeting of Boston people in the interests of peace; the American liner St. Louis in the United States Merchant Marine is the first to fly the American flag; the Harvard football squad in practice; Admiral Badger, hero of Vera Cruz, and Admiral Fletcher in conference; scenes at the California City Grape Festival; the Belgian army blocks roadway to stop Germans; King Albert of Belgium visits Termonde; crack Scotch Regiment marching in London, etc.

A CLOSE CALL (Vitagraph), September 24.—This melodramatic offering is not up to the usual Vitagraph standard. While Lillian Walker and Frank O'Neil labor hard in their roles, their endeavors fail to overcome the shortcomings in plot and direction. The robbery and the hiding of the gold under the floor of the cabin both fail to convince. The brutal manner of the robber in handling the inmates of the cabin, a mother and her child, while evidently intended to create thrills, produce a reverse feeling—that of repugnance.

HER DOGGY (Biograph), September 25.—Lovers of animals will be pleased with this visualization which shows the steadfast affection of a dog for his little mistress, who lavishes her love upon him. A harsh step-father determines to sell the dog for the purpose of vivisection. There is quite a little heart interest in this offering and touching incident, where the little girl runs away with the dog to save him and is discovered by the vivisector's wife and taken to the physician's cottage; she begs to take the dog's place.

JONES' WEDDING DAY (Kalem), September 25.—A John Brennan farce comedy. There is a good deal of wholesome comedy in the make-up of this picture play as regards situations and acting. Irwin Dare is the author and it was directed by Albert W. Hale. Jeannette Hoffman and Ira Sears ably support Mr. Brennan in the leading roles. It is a case of mixed-up bridegrooms, but eventually everything is straightened out in a laughable manner.

THE INVESTMENT (Lubin), September 25.—Adapted for the photoplay by George Terwilliger from Clarence B. Kelland's story, "You Never Can Tell," and produced by L. B. Carleton. This is an entertaining story from the fact that it is original in nature and reversal in construction to other love stories; the pair of lovers being old Grandpa Papkin and Auntie Purvis. Despite the objections raised by all of their younger relatives, the old couple win out in their love affairs, and also financially. The picture is well produced and acted.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL (Selig), September 25.—A clumsy boy obtains a position as a grocery clerk, but he proves to be such a boob and makes so many mistakes that he is discharged without ceremony. Finally he obtains an engagement for a tryout with a film company as a motion picture actor. His natural clumsiness creates so much comedy that he gets in "regular" and in no time becomes a star comedian. On the same reel with "Who Got Stung."

WHO GOT STUNG (Selig), September 25.—On the same reel with "You Never Can Tell." A practical joker attempts to put one over on some of his friends through an advertisement. It works but the wrong way.

A HORSESHOE—FOR LUCK (Vitagraph), September 25.—A pretentious comedy, written by Charles Brown and produced by Sidney Drew, who plays the leading role, that of a father who finds a horseshoe, which he picks up for good luck. Everything comes his way—that is not good. After innumerable mishaps he throws it away; his son gets it and it proves a "lucky hit" with him. An old idea well worked out. A regular laugh producer.

THE GOLD THIEF (Biograph), September 26.—It seems as though the limit must be reached in this picture, in introducing novelties, when a man steals a bag of gold dust with his beard; not only that, but causes the arrest of a beardless young clerk who is suspected of the crime. However, a suspicious detective discovers the guilty beard and straightens affairs out in a professional way.

TWINS AND TROUBLE (Edison), September 26.—An intense rivalry existing between two sets of grandparents over a pair of twins causes an immense amount of trouble, for not only the twins' parents but their friends and all those concerned, including two old soldiers and a policeman. J. Edward Hungerford is the author of the comedy and Charles M. Seay is the director. Herbert Prior and Bliss Milford are the suffering couple. A large and able cast supports them. A good domestic comedy.

THE STRATEGY OF BRONCHO BILLY'S SWEETHEART (Essanay), September 26.—A western drama which contains a number of scenes of a thrilling nature. A girl by her quick wit saves Broncho Billy from a gang of outlaws, after she has put them on his track thinking that he has shot her father. There is some beautiful scenery in this picture and some clever riding.

RORY O'MORE (Kalem), September 26.—A re-issue of Kalem's famous story of the Irish patriot and produced in Ireland. Several years ago this film created a sensation, at that time, and numerous requests have poured in upon the producers urging that this great story be re-issued. It was finally decided to accede to the demands. Jack J. Clark, Gene Gauntier, Arthur Donaldson and Robert G. Vignola are the principals in the cast. The story is closely adhered to.

THE NEWSBOY TENOR (Selig), September 26.—A young widow, imagining that it would hurt her chances with her wealthy fiance, keeps her son's existence a secret. After their marriage the son is supposed to have perished in a fire. However he has escaped and is known as the newsboy tenor. The husband admires his singing and invites him to his office, where his mother recognizes him and confesses. A very pretty story.

DID HE SAVE HER? (Lubin), September 26.—Written and produced by Frank C. Griffin. A case of deception practiced by a young lover on his sweetheart's auntie. He makes her believe that he saved her from drowning to gain her permission to marry her niece. On the same reel with "Between One and Two."

BETWEEN ONE AND TWO (Lubin), September 26.—A sleepy head and a night owl are room mates and always scrapping. The night owl causes the other a whole lot of trouble, eventually being instrumental in the landing of him into the arms of an old maid. On the same reel with "Did He Save Her?"

A FIRST-CLASS COOK (Biograph), Sept. 28.—There is considerable comedy in this picturepiay, based on a case of mistaken identity, on the part of a wife, whose husband expects a guest and has engaged a cook. The wife takes the cook for the guest and the guest for the cook and the mix-up is very laughable, until the husband comes home and straightens things out. On the same reel with "The White-Hand Society."

THE WHITE-HAND SOCIETY (Biograph), Sept. 28.—On the same reel with "A First Class Cook." In this comedy the sexes are reversed and Mrs. Doe is threatened, through a letter from the White-Hand, demanding $1,000 on pain of death. She calls out the policewomen, recovers her kidnapped husband and captures the ring leader. A novel release.

LOVE BY THE POUND (Edison), Sept. 28.—The tenth of the Wood B. Wedd's sentimental experiences, by Mark Swan and directed by C. Jay Williams. When Wood B. Wedd was informed that Mirandy's uncle was to give her her weight in gold when married, he proposed and was accepted, for he knew she weighed 300 pounds. This offer was changed to include Mirandy's husband and he had to weigh at least 200 pounds. He failed in his strenuous attempts to put on the proper amount of weight, and Mirandy married the grocery man.

SWEEDIE'S CLEAN-UP (Essanay), Sept. 28.—A slap stick comedy, in which "Sweedie" eventually cleans up the entire police department. This offering creates spontaneous and hearty laughter. Sweedie's father is the owner of a grocery store and also plays checkers; Sweedie taking care of the trade. The scene where the old man, interested in a checker game, does not notice that burglars carry away the entire stock, including the chairs occupied by the players. Sweedie appears and inaugurates a grand chase, capturing the thieves.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 61 (Selig), Sept. 28.—Principal among the many interesting scenes shown: Peace Conference meeting at the Greek theater, California; the skill of Miss Rosenthall, the girl golfer; several models displaying broadcloth costumes as the latest favorite fabric for street wear; "Buy a Bale of Cotton Movement," in various parts of the South, showing cotton bales being sold at auction. War scenes: Great Britain helps Belgian refugees; German soldiers marching down the streets of Brussels, also how field kitchens are utilized, etc.

WHEN THE GODS FORGIVE (Vitagraph), Sept. 28.—A trapper, whose besetting fault is drink, weds the daughter of an Indian chief. Later he abuses her. The wife's people learn of his behavior and determine to burn him at the stake, when he is saved by his wife, who is providentially assisted by a down-pour of rain, quelching the fire. The Indians look upon this as an intervention of their gods. Jim is impressed and becomes a model husband and protector.

Licensed Specials.

THE RING AND THE BOOK (Biograph), September 22.—A special two-part costume picture play, wherein the heroine is unmercifully persecuted by a black-bearded swashbuckler, who seems to dominate everything and everybody; he even threatens his father and mother with his rapier. He is finally foiled in his nefariousness by a young priest, who dons a cavalier's costume and rescues the girl; he then testifies before a tribunal against the villain, bringing him to justice, and is himself absolved by the church.

THE BLOOD RUBY (Vitagraph), September 22.—A special feature in two parts; the development of the plot holds the interest and the story moves along in a pleasing manner, thanks to W. A. Tremayne, author, and Maurice Costello and Robert Gaillord. Mr. Costello plays the part of an innocent man, whom two crooks try to implicate in the purloining of an almost priceless gem. In the finale scenes the jewel is recovered and their intended victim is exonerated in the eyes of his child and his steadfast friends. The photography deserves special mention.

THE VANISHING TRIBE (Kalem), September 23.—A two-act picturization by Frank E. Montgomery of an ancient Indian legend, featuring Princess Mona Darkfeather. This picture contains many beautiful scenes of forest and prairie, the latter showing a wonderful scope of country, splendidly photographed. The story of the plot is that of the usual Indian productions, filled with jealousy, treachery, etc. There is a pursuit in which rival tribes figure, the pursued suddenly vanishing from sight.

THE TOYS OF FATE (Lubin), September 23.—A two-part picture of strong interest. It is also well acted and photographed. By a peculiar trick of fate a man adopts the daughter of one whom he has wronged. Years later the latter is about to kill him when the sight of the brooch which he recognizes as his daughter's stays his hand. There is considerable of the melodrama in the plot and some very intense scenes are shown, especially clashes during a strike. Deserving mention is the scene where the father crosses the canyon on a rope to inform the boss of the conditions existing at the works.

THE TRIUMPH OF RIGHT (Lubin), September 24.—A special two-part picture play telling the story of speculations made by bankers, which has resulted in bringing the bank on the verge of insolvency. There is quite an interesting love story involved between the secretary of the bank and the president of the bank's daughter. A number of scenes occur which border on the absurd, while strenuous action obtains, the entire production seems to lack convincing qualities.

GRAND OPERA IN RUBEVILLE (Edison), September 25.—This two-part picture play was reviewed at length in the Moving Picture World by Louis Reeves Harrison, and can be found on page 1348, issue of September 5, 1914.

A SPLENDID DISHONOR (Essanay), September 25.—A special two-part picture play which is peculiar in its make-up, the development of which contains scenes that while such possibilities might occur in every day life, they are highly improbable. An insane physician is the cause of all the trouble. In some places in this picture the interest and suspense maintains, but at certain moments both lose their grasp upon the spectators. Self-sacrifice is strained to the limit.

HEARTS AND DIAMONDS (Vitagraph), September 26.—Special feature picture play in two parts by Eugene Mullin and produced by George D. Baker. John Bunny and Flora Finch are the leading fun makers. Bunny gets in wrong by representing himself to be a bachelor, when he is a widower, trying to make a favorable impression on Flora. He is blessed with two daughters, who have two suitors whom Bunny dislikes, and they get him into all sorts of trouble and keep him busy trying to extricate himself. It is funny to see Bunny play baseball, but he drives out a homer and wins the game. It creates great laughter.

THE VIPER (Kalem), Sept. 28.—This two-part picturepiay was reviewed at length in the Moving Picture World by Hanford C. Judson and can be found on page 1622, issue of Sept. 19, 1914.

THE GOING OF THE WHITE SWAN (Selig), Sept. 28.—A two-part picturepiay, written by Gilbert Parker, with the scenes laid in the Northwest snow country. Bessie Eyton and Wheeler Oakman, in the leading parts, who do excellent work, which requires much strenuousness and endurance. They are supported by an excellent cast, and the photography of the many forest snow scenes is excellently done. Much of heart interest is involved in the scenes. This release is worth the viewing.

Independent

THE FINAL TEST (Princess), September 25.—A simple, conventional story of a doctor with humanitarian instincts finally winning a bride over an impossible brute. The fact that the girl cared for or could care for a man of the stamp of the latter did not seem to make her exactly a prize or give the story a convincing flavor.

THE SCARECROW (Royal), September 26.—In this comedy number the maiden lady must marry on her thirty-fifth birthday to gain a fortune. The young man marries her while intoxicated and next morning makes his escape. He takes the place of a scarecrow in the field. This has some amusement in it but never becomes extremely funny.

BILL MANAGES A PRIZEFIGHTER (Komic), September 27.—No. 7 in the series of Eddie Dillon's popular Bill stories. Fay Tincher as the stenographer continues her amusing caricature. Mr. Dillon himself takes the part of a pug not always successful. Tammany Young and a good supporting cast contribute to the fun.

THE HARVEST OF REGRETS (Thanhouser), September 27.—The extravagant young city fellow leaves his city mistress to go West and marry the daughter of his father's friend. The adventuress follows and exposes their old relationship. The young man afterward saves the girl from the attack of another man and thus wins forgiveness. This is handled with only a fair degree of strength.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL NO. 37 (Reliance), Sept. 28.—The feature of this subject is the taking of the baby's picture by a prominent photographer, showing as it does some of the means employed to make the little ones smile when they are inclined to tears. The number is not up to the average.

THE LEGEND OF BLACK ROCK (Beauty), September 29.—Margarita Fischer has the lead in this story, which fails to rise above the ordinary.

HIS MOTHER'S TRUST (Majestic), Sept. 29.—Donald Crisp directs this story, which is hardly satisfactory from the moral side. A boy, who has served time as the result of getting into bad company, tells his mother on his release that he will walk a straight path. He takes part in a robbery of a man who had befriended him and together with his accomplice is killed. So, too, is the benefactor. By a shifting of the revolvers as he is dying the youngster makes it appear that he was killed in the defense of the house owner. The mother is given a good home with the daughter of the murdered man. Robert Harron plays the boy, and his work and that of the other players is good, but the picture fails as entertainment.

THE SHACK NEXT DOOR (Universal Ike), September 29.—The young lover takes an option on a lot next to his sweetheart's home and builds a shack on it. He rents this to an Italian and his family in order to get a large price from the girl's father. This is well-pictured and demonstrates another way of putting it over on the reluctant old man.

THE INGRATE (American), September 30.—As entertainment the picture is nil. The central figure is a brutal sot; his only remotely commendable act is accidentally falling over a cliff when drunk and killing himself.

IN THE CLUTCHES OF THE VILLAIN (Joker), October 3.—A low comedy number giving a fairly entertaining burlesque of a melodrama. Max Asher appears as Schultz. He saves the girl from the toils of the villainous collector; the latter dives from a high bridge. Some of the scenes toward the last were far from inviting. This is only fair as a whole.

THE BOOB'S LEGACY (Rex), October 1.—An excellent comedy number with Robert Leonard in his familiar "rube" character. He sells the farm and comes to the city to find his girl. This is a laughing success all the way through. Ella Hall and Harry Carter also add to the fun of the piece. The photography is good and the production as a whole is a desirable one.

COUSIN BILLY (Royal), October 3.—In this number Louis Simon impersonates a country youth visiting city relatives. His advent causes considerable amusement, but there should have been more plot to the story to hold up the interest. The characterization was good and the photography attractive.

THE MAN WHO CAME BACK (Eclair), October 4.—Joe Ryan appears in this number as a former Westerner who goes back to the plains and palms himself off as a tenderfoot. He makes the most of several opportunities to display his skill as a horseman. Several scenes are taken at a Frontier Day contest, where he carries off first prize. Some good Western action and humor in this.

DISILLUSIONED (Victor), October 5.—Jack, a successful attorney in the city, thinks back to his school days and his village sweetheart. He returns home and finds another man has wronged her and cast her off. In spite of this he marries her. This is not the most convincing type of plot but it contains good sentiment. Warren Kerrigan and Vera Sisson make the most of their opportunity in this and are aided by good photography.

THEIR UPS AND DOWNS (Keystone), October 5.—The adventures of the flirtatious Fatty and his sweetheart will serve to amuse the multitudes very much. The girl's ride with the balloons in her hand was a capital feature and their predicament in the telegraph wires was funny also. A particularly good number of the nonsensical type.

LIFERITIS (Crystal), October 6.—In this comedy number the old professor invents an elixir of life and infuses human action into a scarecrow. The photography is good and the scenes, which follow the old style eccentric comedy, are fairly amusing.

THE BASEBALL FANS OF FANVILLE (Joker), Oct. 7.—A comedy number featuring Wm. Franey as a married man who wants to go to a ball game. His wife and mother-in-law insist on a matinee. The husband sneaks away and the office boy takes his female relatives in pursuit. This is quite a pleasing baseball yarn and the plot is better than the average. The photography is also good.

UNIVERSAL BOY IN RURAL ADVENTURES (Imp), Oct. 8.—Another of The Universal Boy series, featuring Matty on a trip to the country. He rides a pony, goes swimming with the boys and discovers an escaped lunatic, whom he aids in capturing. This is quite an entertaining number, though not overly strong in plot.

HYPNOTIC POWER (Sterling), Oct. 8.—Ford Sterling appears in his usual eccentric characterization. Jealousy of a rival leads him to study hypnotism. He makes the rival jump in the lake. All goes well until the professor of hypnotism shows up. This contains a lot of amusing nonsense and is quite pleasing.

THE GREASER'S REVENGE (Frontier), Oct. 11.—The Greaser loves the ranch girl, who reprimands him with a slap on the cheek. He turns villain and steals the hero's horse. In the chase the hero's gun goes back on him and he is forced to descend into dry well to get away from the murderous Greaser. The struggle in the well was realistic and the number is quite successful in its way. The photography is good.

CUPID VICTOR (Eclair), October 11.—Mildred Bright plays the part of a young sculptress, whose work has been greatly flattered, though it is really crude. She hesitates between her art and married life. A small lad appears as cupid throughout the picture. The story has an allegorical touch and in the end love wins. A pleasing offering.

Independent Specials

THE GREAT GOD FEAR (Majestic), September 27.—A two-reel story of the Canadian woods, with Robert Harron and Mae Marsh as the lovers. He and his "bunkie" are suspected of having contracted leprosy from a traveling woodsman. Panic ensues in two lumber camps as a result. But the girl stands by the hero and succeeds in saving him from the bully and the excited men. The story is not a powerful one, but has certain unusual qualities. The girl makes the most of her part and this carries the interest along quite well.

A MODERN RIP VAN WINKLE (American), September 28.—This two-reel subject at no time arouses any particular degree of interest. A man who has spent twenty-five years in prison as the result of a saloon brawl—and in which his action did not seem to be especially culpable—is paroled. Conditions are so changed in his former neighborhood the man returns to the prison and asks to be taken back. Crowds of grinning bystanders on several occasions fail to add to the illusion. In one instance there is a cutback to a scene that had not been shown previously. The first reel is taken up with the introduction; it could have been made much shorter.

THE TRAIL OF THE LOVELORN (Thanhouser), September 29.—A two-reel photoplay dealing with the efforts of the postal service officials to round up two get-rich-quick fellows, who are promoting a fake matrimonial agency. The photography is rather uneven and the story, while quite interesting, does not work up very strongly. The most interesting feature was the manner in which the girl photographed one of the crooks while he was asleep, this leading to his identification later. The capture of the crooks lacked the suspense it should have, and the suggested love affair at the last seemed absurd, as the young official had scarcely noticed the girl before.

SHADOWS (Imp), October 5.—King Baggot in this two-reel number portrays all of the ten characters that appear. Double exposure and in one instance triple exposure photography are employed in a most interesting way, so that two and three characters appear on the screen at the same time in several scenes. George Edwards Hall has constructed an entertaining plot of the melodramatic type to exploit these various impersonations. An elderly merchant is murdered and the crime traced by a detective. At no time in the course of the story does the interest flag. In the entire story Mr. Baggot impersonates the mother, the son, the uncle, the merchant, a Chinese servant, the villain, a woman of the half world, the jailer, the policeman and the detective. An unusual offering.

STEEL RIBBONS (Gold Seal), October 6.—This tenth episode of the Trey o' Hearts series is an exciting railroad number. It begins with Alan's rescue of the girls on the engine from Trine's special. Marrophat learns this quickly and the special is turned back. Judith, jealous of Alan's attentions to Rose, dresses in man's clothes and boards a freight train. Even a handcar is requisitioned to keep things going. The main incident comes at the very last of the second reel, where a caboose is literally smashed to pieces on a high trestle by the engine of the special. This has some thrills in it.

THE MAN WHO WAS NEVER KISSED (Victor), October 9.—An amusing two-reel story which verges strongly on the "spicy" without giving actual offense. Matt Moore appears as Horace Plato, the studious young professor who marries Flo. They follow his theory that the only true love is pure love, devoid of passions. At the house party they are expected to occupy the same room, but he sleeps on a bench outside. In the course of the story they learn to love each other in a less ethereal way. This is a commendable offering of the smart, breezy type.

HIS FATHER'S SON (Victor), October 12.—A two-reel number in which Warren Kerrigan doubles, playing both father and son. The story concerns a woman who left her husband, thinking he had tired of her. Her son grows up and when he learns the story goes to wreak revenge on his father. This he does by ruining him in the financial market. Later the father is forgiven, as he had never found the note left by the wife in the old clock when she abandoned him. This story is well constructed and holds the attention closely. Mr. Kerrigan does some effective work in the double role.

THE END OF THE ALLEY (Broncho), October 14.—In the first reel of this two-reel Western offering, the adventuress tricks Shores, a wealthy young miner. He becomes embittered and in later years carries out a diabolical revenge by blowing the woman and her husband up in his mine. The actual explosion is not pictured, but strongly suggested. This is not a cheerful subject and has a sordid tone throughout. It is, however, well photographed and strongly acted throughout.

JIMMY (Domino), October 15.—A strong, sympathetic boy story, produced by Ince and Spencer. Jimmy, the young newsboy, has a sister suffering from hip disease. The way in which the youth holds up the visiting surgeon, so that he almost misses his steamer, in order to treat the girl, makes a picture narrative of strong appeal. The action in the second reel, showing the great surgeon at work on his patients, could hardly be improved upon. This works up fine suspense and has a strong human touch. A strong offering.

THE WORD OF HIS PEOPLE (Kaybee), October 16.—This two-reel offering, produced by Ince and Sullivan, proves an absorbing Western narrative. It puts new interest into the Indian fighting and other familiar action. The plot contains an unusually high motive and the manner in which young Drake forfeits his life to save the girl and keep "the word of the house of Scranton" is dramatic and appealing. All of the scenes are well pictured and the plot, while complicated, is at all times clear, and the suspense well maintained. A strong Western story.

THE SECOND DOOR LEFT (Eclectic).—This three-reel German comedy is essentially Continental in spirit. There are rollicking, even roistering, scenes and some laughs. The names of the characters are taken literally from the German, as, for instance, Oscar Died-rich, and the Mousetail sisters; there are the burlesque queens, the Powderpuff sisters, Miss Lovealittle and Miss Lovealot. The picture is well staged and photographed. The subject may appeal to the more worldly and hardly will to the more sedate.

THE KING OF THE AIR (Eclectic).—This three-reel production of the French Pathe studio is notable above its other factors for its unusual photography. In these days this is saying much. There is a strong cast, containing the two leaders of the French stock company, Rene Alexandre and Gabrielle Robinne. Even in the presence of these two the work of M. Magnier as the father of the young man who would marry the daughter of the woman who foolishly lost her money in speculation stands out. It is a remarkably finished performance. An incident of the picture is the sensational fall and wrecking of an aeroplane in close view of the camera. It was a bit of realism that fitted in with the story and materially added to the dramatic value. "The King of the Air" is a strong production.

IN SOAK (Eclectic).—This is rather broad comedy. The main action devolves about the effort of a wife through subterfuge to accept a present of jewelry from her lover without arousing the suspicions of her husband. The idea is conceived of pawning the baubles and telling her husband the wife found the ticket. The husband redeems the pledge, but bestows the more valuable on his stenographer, and this, of course, starts trouble, ending when three of the four land in a park lake for a ducking. The exhibitor may judge for himself.

Mme. Kalich in "Marta of the Lowlands"

MME. BERTHA KALICH, the distinguished emotional actress, makes her first appearance before the motion picture public in the Famous Players Film Company's five-part production of her foremost dramatic success, "Marta of the Lowlands," released on the Paramount program October 5. The play, with its tense and tragic character, was written by the eminent Spanish dramatist, Angel Guimera. Besides its attractive dramatic qualities, it has the added value of being a transcript from the literature and life of an unfamiliar people — the peasantry of the province of Catalonia, Spain, and it is full of the poetry and color which permeate the emotions and the very existence of mountain people, while providing Mme. Kalich with an admirable vehicle for emotional and racial characterization.

Mme. Bertha Kalich.

After her supreme triumphs in "Monna Vanna" and "The Kreutzer Sonata," much is expected of the noted actress in the film production of "Marta," and much is forthcoming. Stately, gifted, with a p a l l i d, distinguished beauty, Mme. Kalich makes Marta a patient sufferer, a tragic figure indeed, as she bravely endures all the cruelties and indignities that are thrust upon her by the ruthless "master."

It will be remembered that the entire cast were sent to Cuba for the exteriors of this production, where the tropical glades furnished an atmosphere appropriate to the action. Supporting Mme. Kalich are Wellington A. Playter, who suggests with commendable effect the awkwardness and ingenuousness of Manelich, the shepherd; Hal Clarendon, an ideal Sebastian, cruel, haughty and fiercely passionate, and Lillian Kalich in the sweetly pathetic role of Muri.

SENATOR PENROSE CAMPAIGNING WITH PICTURES.

Moving pictures are being used in one of the most important political campaigns in the state of Pennsylvania. A reel showing Senator Penrose, the aspirant for re-election to the United States Senate, in familiar poses, addressing workingmen and walking through the corridors of the Capitol at Washington, are being exhibited in various parts of the state. This is the first time that moving pictures have been used in Pennsylvania in a senatorial fight, this being due in a large measure to the new law requiring direct election of Senators. However many houses because of their non-partisan views are refusing to exhibit the reel.

How Pupils Learn "Products"

Geography Pupils' Sing-Song Yields to Industrial Museum Then Industrial Films.

By Frank H. Madison.

WHEN we were back in the sixth grade of the village schools we studied geography by the memorizing process. After we had learned to recite in a sing-song manner, "Holland is bounded on the North by the North Sea 'n on the South by Belgium 'n on the east by——" the principal products were attacked in the same fashion. About the only facts that stuck in our young minds were the interesting discovery that most of our toys and dolls came from Germany and a fascinating sort of an announcement made by the geographer that some of the South American countries did a big business in "hides, horns and jerked beef." The rhythmic statement moved us to find out the mysterious nature of the "jerked" beef and how and why it was "jerked."

Just about the time that we were proud members of the first high school class what was called the geographical reader was introduced. This told in story form the customs of all the races, took the younger pupils in their oddly assorted fields and allowed them to peep into the factories which made the different nations distinctive.

The next step in education was the industrial museum. When we went back home for a visit, the principal of the village school, a former schoolmate, showed us the exhibit cases that lined the walls. Flour manufacturers, pencil makers, oil refiners, cereal compounders, chocolate factories and all sorts of industries furnished free attractive glass-covered cases. Each case contained a number of interesting specimens, showing the gradual development from the raw product into the finished article which the children saw daily in their homes. Here was something with which to study geography. A pupil who saw the cocoa bean wanted to know where it grew. At the state universities this idea had been broadened. As early as 1907 the University of Illinois at Urbana had a very extensive industrial museum equipped with a lantern for showing industrial slides.

It is apparent that the time is coming when the next advance—the use of the moving picture machine—for implanting the "products" idea in the minds will be more widely spread than the industrial museum idea. There are plenty of industrial pictures now in the regular releases but the story-coated advertisement is going to find its way into the class-room. The International Harvester Company's agricultural extension department, under the direction of P. G. Holden, one of the foremost agricultural authorities of the country, already has begun work along this line. This concern has done pioneer work in the matter of using moving pictures to teach agriculture. Every place that there was a gathering of farmers—at farm institute meetings, at state and county fairs—it has had its projecting apparatus and if necessary its black tent. After interesting the grown-folk it is going after the children. Advertisements are being placed in educational publications calling attention to its lantern slides, its charts and its three Industrialogs—"Dawn of Plenty," "Dawn of Commerce" and "Dawn of Power." There is a minimum of advertising in these films; their interest practically obliterates the sense that the watcher is being exploited. Many other industries will, in time, furnish the schools with geography aids with the same object: "To teach in terms of the child's life, the steps in the man's life-work and to link the school, the home and the community in study, work and recreation."

T. M. S. PEOPLE IN NEW FACTORY.

The Theater Specialty Manufacturing Co., extensive manufacturers of poster and photograph frames and accessories for the theater, in Cleveland, have recently moved into a new factory at 318 Long avenue, N. W., which has been ideally equipped for the handling of their constantly growing volume of business.

The factory building is devoted exclusively to the manufacture of the firm's product and every known device in the way of modern machinery has been provided with the result that the company is now in a position to give even prompter delivery to customers than was possible in the past.

The Theater Specialty Manufacturing Co. have waged an aggressive selling campaign, constantly emphasizing certain points of superiority, dealing with quality, which they claim for their products and the growth of their business within the past few months has convinced them that "T. M. S. Quality," as they designate it, is winning.

"Daphnia"

A Two-Part American Production Directed by Thomas Ricketts.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THE story of "Daphnia," a two reel subject by the American, possesses originality and arouses strong interest. The opening and closing scenes are laid in the mountains of Kentucky, and they include many delightful views that fit in well with the picturesque beauties of that wild rugged country.

Director Thomas Ricketts has filmed the story well and his use of double exposure, at several points in the telling, contributes to the impressiveness of the pictured narrative.

This story has nothing to do with the customary illicit whiskey still; it centers on a counterfeiting gang in the mountains, of which John Mathews and James Goodwin are the leaders. Julia Mathews, an attractive mountain girl, is the only daughter of the elder man and the object of sincere devotion to the younger.

Scene from "Daphnia" (American).

George Baxter, a member of the United States Secret Service, is assigned to run down the band. He arrives in the neighborhood in the guise of a tourist, and succeeds in winning the love of Julia and in deceiving her as to his true character. Through her he becomes acquinted with the secrets of the counterfeiters, and summons other members of the department to assist him in arresting the lawbreakers.

Scene from "Daphnia" (American).

Julia sees her father, her former lover and their associates handcuffed and led away to prison. Brokenhearted, she asks Baxter why he, who has confessed his love for her, has committed such a crime. Heartlessly he informs her that his profession of love was only a sham, used to get evidence against her father and his accomplices. Then she denounces him and spurns his offer of aid.

Ten years pass and John Mathews and James Goodwin are again free men. Before leaving the prison a guard gives them a card on which in a woman's handwriting, they were asked to call on Daphnia at the Saxon Club, St. Louis. They call, and discover in Daphnia Julia Mathews, now the owner of a fashionable gambling resort. Her father denounces her and he and Goodwin return to their mountain home.

About this time Daphnia discovers that one of the players is using counterfeit bills, and through an employe discovers that George Baxter Jr., is the guilty one. She remembers that the George Baxter, who had broken her life ten years before, had referred to this son. She phones the secret service official at his office and informs him of the circulation of counterfeit notes in her establishment. Baxter calls on her to ascertain particulars and to arrange plans for the capture of the offender. Daphnia, whom Baxter fails to recognize, does not reveal the name of the culprit.

Next evening young Baxter again passes spurious bills and is arrested. On the command of Baxter, Sr., the prisoner is brought before him. He recognizes his only son and, as he orders him taken to prison, falls helplessly in a chair. In the midst of the shock he recognizes in Daphnia the Julia Mathews whom he had trodden under his brutal feet years before, and his cup is made full.

In the meantime the scenes around the old home of John Mathews and James Goodwin remind them every hour of the absent Julia. So heartsick do they grow over her absence, they can no longer endure it, and they set out for St. Louis to bring her back. Soon afterward Julia and Goodwin become man and wife.

As the mountain girl and the rich owner of the Saxon Club, Miss Greenwood shows fine versatility. George Baxter is characterized very forcibly by George Field. The scene in the Saxon Club is most impressive, where the broken man, in the midst of his despair, sees the hand of Heaven in his punishment. The remaining characters are well sustained by Ed Coxen, John Steppling and King Clark.

The release date is October 5.

COSMOS BI-WEEKLY PRODUCTIONS.

"Made in America," a label we are so anxious to see conspicuously displayed on the bulk of the merchandise of the world will make its appearance on a new brand of feature film on October 15th, when the Cosmos Feature Film Corporation releases the first of its bi-weekly American-made productions.

A notable point in the announced plans of the company is the selection of subjects. The first release will be an elaborate photoplay version of Buelah Poynter's dramatization of the extremely successful American play, "Lena Rivers," in which Miss Poynter is featured in the title role, the part she played in the stage production, that has made box office records. This will be followed by "The Little Girl That He Forgot," "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," "A Thief in the Night" and other successful dramatic works of Buelah Poynter's, all of which have been secured by the Cosmos Company; also many successful plays and novels, which contain a strong human interest appeal. When possible, it is their intention to secure the services of the author or dramatist to assist in the film production and feature the same star that created the character on the stage.

It was in keeping with this plan that in contracting for Miss Poynter's works, it was stipulated that she give her personal services and advice in the making of the photoplays, a condition Miss Poynter, enthusiastic in the art of photoplays, eagerly agreed to.

With the advent of the Cosmos' bi-weekly productions, the film industry will have added to it a regular brand of features, which, backed by the insight into the needs of the market held by this company, should do credit to the label "Made in America."

CELEBRATED PLAYERS BUSY.

Alfred Hamburger, president of the Celebrated Players Film Company, accompanied by Felix F. Feist, its general manager, spent the past week in New York buying feature pictures for the weekly release program recently launched by the Celebrated Players Film Company of Chicago, through its middle west territory. A string of newspapers throughout the Chicago territory will carry a serial story of each of these releases operating in conjunction with the local theatres playing the Celebrated program of weekly features, and this unusual publicity will greatly strengthen their drawing power. Big publicity and big features is to be the slogan of the Celebrated Players Film Company for the coming year.

"The Nightingale"

A Five-Act Feature Written by Augustus Thomas, with Ethel Barrymore in the Title Role—An All-Star Production.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CAST.

Isola Franti, "The Nightingale"....Ethel Barrymore
Tony Franti, her father.....William Courtleigh, Jr.
Andrea Franti, her brother.....Frank Andrews
Charles Marden, a young banker.....Conway Tearle
Nathan Marden, his father.....Charles Stevenson
"Red" Galvin, a gang leader.....Irving Brooks
David Mantz, musical educator.....Mario Majeroni
Jean de Resni, vocal instructor.....Phillip Hahn
Mrs. Belmore, a society leader.....Ida Darling

THE debut of Miss Barrymore in a screen play, "The Nightingale," devised especially for her by Augustus Thomas, is an event even in this era of events, and the general impression among members of a critical group gathered at the first presentation was favorable to the positive merits of the production. The play was received with close attention, and comments indicate that the All Star Corporation will enjoy a success beyond their natural and fond expectations. My own offhand impression was that "The Nightingale" afforded Miss Barrymore a wide range of opportunity and that she scored without qualification from beginning to end. I was as little acquainted with her work on the stage as any spectator present, and I was fully prepared to weigh her merits from a motion-picture point of view, irrespective of her high standing among interpreters of stage plays.

Scene from "The Nightingale" (All Star).

Scene from "The Nightingale" (All Star).

Without the slightest prejudice in her favor, unless it be that which men instinctively accord the right sort of women in public life, I became gradually charmed by her performance. She seems to be one of those all-too-rare and altogether-delightful spirits who possess an emotional temperament under the control of a cultivated mind. Her quiet good sense seems to have freed her from trammels of form and tradition, to which so many stage performers are subject, and her intelligence, more than any magnetism of personality, caused all that she did to fit more appropriately into the playwright's general design.

Miss Barrymore holds the eye every moment she is in the scene, and not because she is of this or that type, not because she responds to a romantic ideal. She reaches the mind quite as much as she does the heart with an infinity of fine character delineation, and with a homespun unaffectedness that makes one glad that she is ours. The effects she achieves appear to be drawn from simple materials—it is flashed upon us at unexpected moments that she has a rare insight into the human heart—and she has a still rarer quality of communicating by delicate methods her many fleeting shades of thought and emotion.

It became evident as the story progressed, as she was gradually transformed from a street singer, the offspring of commonplace parentage, the creature of commonplace environment, into a veritable artist of grand opera, that she ceased to play a part and released her natural self. It would be impossible for a woman of Isola's origin and surroundings to acquire in a very short period of time such exquisite refinements of movement and motive as were evidenced in her advanced condition. Isola Franti vanished and Ethel Barrymore appeared in her place, but the transformation was not a mistake. There was no conversion of sentiment, no material change of mere wholesome sweetness of one role to that of another—Miss Barrymore lost nothing in blindly ignoring Isola. She abandoned mimicry for a natural sunshine of hope and faith that entirely compensated.

The pervading spirit of the story is that of fine womanhood, one that rises by nobility, tenderness and self-abnegation instead of by force and assertion. Ethel smiles very much as Isola smiles, even to smell the flowers or see the sunshine—it is simply glorious for such a strong, healthy and sweet nature to live. Mr. Thomas makes a dangerous experiment in dropping one line of interest, that leading up through an artistic career to marriage, and taking up melodramatic happenings that break in on the security of well-earned happiness midst home and family. Our curiosity has been satisfied, our anticipations have been realized, and, according to theorists, the play is over. Mr. Thomas says: No. He agrees with Thackeray, as well as with many who have noticed what is going on around them, that a great deal may happen after a hero and heroine are married.

According to those gentlemen who are criticising screen plays for no other apparent reason than filling so much space every week with ad-seeking bouquets to the producers, "The Nightingale" may be reckoned without structural flaw, whereas it is really a reckless piece of work. When a lady and a gentleman have been wrongly suspected or falsely accused, or through hair-raising adventures, and they have landed safely in each other's arms, the proper thing for them to do is to kiss and dissolve. It has, however, occurred to Mr. Thomas that this osculatory relation may not be continued in perpetuity. As William Makepeace Thackeray wrote a continuation to Ivanhoe, so Mr. Thomas carries his story across the danger line into "What happened to Isolde when all seemed well." With a spirit of choice that is all his own and a subtle tact of omission that has its charm of individuality, Mr. Thomas has disregarded the conventional.

Thus we have both player and playwright in opposition to what is expected of them by captious gentlemen fond of airing their opinions in critical reviews. To avoid being hoisted by my own petard, I will not opine. I will prophesy "The Nightingale" will be a record-breaker in sales of the All-Star Company.

BIG FIVE CENT HOUSE.

The new moving picture theater which will be opened at the corner of Jane and Pembroke streets, Bridgeport, Conn., on or about October 7, will undoubtedly be well patronized by the residents of that city. A. L. Ackermann, manager of the new house, recently announced that inasmuch as the majority of the inhabitants of Bridgeport, especially those in that locality in which the house is situated, are working on half time only, he will run a big five-cent show in a big theater. In this decision of Mr. Ackermann there is a touch of sympathy, especially when it is known that all the other picture theaters in Bridgeport are either charging or going to charge 10 cents. The name of the new house is the Pembroke, and it is, according to the manager, the only picture house seating 1,800 in Bridgeport. Mr. Ackermann is a man of experience, and the house should be a paying proposition with him at the helm.

"The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere"

A Two-Part Edison Illustration of Longfellow's Famous Poem—Produced by Charles Brabin.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CAST.

Paul Revere.....Augustus Phillips
His Friend.....Carlton King
General Gage.....Harry Linson
Lieutenant Henry.....Yale Benner
Lieutenant Graves.....Richard Tucker
John Hancock.....Saul Harrison

DIRECTOR BRABIN has taken infinite pains in "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" to give it appropriate atmosphere and historical value. He has aimed at presenting a living picture of an event contributing to American release from the rule of force now being attempted in Europe, and has done so with artistic completeness of composition and an exhaustive use of all materials to be found where the dash for freedom occurred. The story is told with great accuracy.

Scene from "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" (Edison).

"Listen, my children, and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
On the eighteenth of April, in seventy-five;
Hardly a man is now alive
Who remembers that famous day and year."

The story opens at the headquarters of General Gage, who instructs two bewigged young officers to locate a barn near Concord where a group of combative natives of the soil have accumulated munitions of war. The two lieutenants remove their beautiful wigs and otherwise disguise themselves for the dangerous mission. They discover the hiding place and report accordingly to General Gage and he orders troops, 800 men, according to history, under Colonel Barrett and Major Buttrick, to seize the military stores. Meanwhile the Sons of Liberty were alert, and Paul Revere discovered a suspicious movement of British troops.

"He said to his friend, 'If the British march
By land or sea, from the tower tonight
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch
Of the North Church tower as a signal light,—
And I on the opposite shore will be,
Ready to ride and spread the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm,
For the country-folk to be up and to arm."

Paul rowed to the Charlestown shore, with muffled oar, "just as the moon rose over the bay," passing a British man-o'-war, the Somerset, as she lay at anchor, while his friend wandered and watched in the streets until he discovered that the Sons of Liberty were justified in their suspicions.

"Then he climber to the tower of the church;
Up the wooden stairs, with stealthy tread,
To the belfry-chamber overhead,
And startled the pigeons from their perch."

The tower of the Old North Church, in Boston, from which the signal lanterns were shown, is used in the visualization. Paul Revere, waiting on the other shore, holding ready a spirited horse, watching hour after hour, finally sees the gleam of light in the tower, springs into the saddle and dashes away.

"A hurry of hoofs in a village street,
A shape in the moonlight, a bulk in the dark,
And beneath, from the pebbles, in passing, a spark
Struck out by a steed flying fearless and fleet;
That was all! And yet, through the gloom and the light,
The fate of a nation was riding that night;
And the spark struck out by that steed, in his flight,
Kindled the land into flame with its heat."

Brabin has made the right sort of an effort to get at facts, in order to adequately treat his interesting subject, but his British troops are too obviously few in number and too spotlessly clean after their long march. Where it is impossible for a director to get a large number of men for military effects, it is part of his art to conceal their limitations by the point of view, else he may belittle the action. The Edison company has been strong in historical plays, and a little additional attention to the co-ordination of all elements will be greatly appreciated by people in front and augment a play's value where it takes the place of eloquent narrative.

Scene from "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" (Edison).

The story of Paul Revere presents a man in relation to his epoch and will undoubtedly be popular as a screen presentation wherever it is shown in this country, for he is endeared to us from childhood. Nor do we forget that 300 of our farmers routed 800 British regulars on this occasion—more than the Germans can do.

"So through the night rode Paul Revere;
And so through the night went his cry of alarm
To every Middlesex village and farm,—
A voice in the darkness, a knock at the door,
And a word that shall echo forevermore!
Through all our history, to the last,
In the hour of darkness and peril and need,
The people will waken and listen to hear
The hurrying hoof-beats of that steed,
And the midnight message of Paul Revere."

GETTING THE CHILDREN TO SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Juvenile patronage of moving picture houses in Rock Island, Ill., may suffer slightly as the Central Presbyterian Church has gone into the moving picture business. There is no intention of competing with local exhibitors, it is announced, but on the other hand it is stated that the step was taken "to supply a need that at present does not receive proper attention." Shows will be given every Friday night and each pupil of the Sunday school who is regular in his or her Sunday attendance will be given a ticket for the picture show that week. The pastor and the superintendent of the school will be responsible for the class of films shown, which will include clean comedies, religious, historic, scenic and industrial subjects and in fact anything that can be termed educational. A canvass of the Sunday school showed that the children attended picture shows on an average twice a week.

"Kitty Cobb"

Warner's to Release James Montgomery Flagg's Heroine in a Four-part Pictureplay.

Reviewed by Harry W. DeLong.

THE celebrated newspaper illustrator, Mr. Flagg, is universally known wherever magazines and newspapers circulate and his charming creations, "Kitty Cobb," were originally produced in a series of drawings for the New York Sunday World, but the artist imbued her with such a winsome personality and created such startling adventures, in which she figured, that they were syndicated to a large number of the big Sunday newspapers all over the country; and everywhere were received with the utmost cordiality. Later the series of drawings were issued in the form of a handsome book, copies of which adorn numberless library tables as souvenirs. Her admirers, will no doubt, be delighted to see her in motion pictures. A four-part production, recently made, faithfully depicts "The Adventures of Kitty Cobb" and will be released on October 5th, by Warner's Features, Inc. It really deserves mention for excellence of production, photographically, and shows realistically the home life of the dainty country girl; her trying experiences in the city and the romantic outcome of her tribulations in a graphic manner.

Scene from "Kitty Cobb" (Warner's).

Miss Marian Swayne, who essays the role of Kitty, is typical of the heroine. Mr. Flagg selected her for the part himself, and personally supervised the production, and the others in the cast were selected not only for acting ability but representatives of the characters as drawn in the sketches. The story is not only interesting, but it contains many intense and thrilling scenes in the development of the plot, which starts off in a somewhat conventional way on the farm but develops quickly into rapid action.

Scene from "Kitty Cobb" (Warner's).

A young man given to mechanics, has invented and made plans valuable to fortifications, and a foreign agent, with the assistance of a "gang," strenuously attempts to obtain them for his country. Kitty meets the young inventor at their home, near Fort Schuyler, and his description of New York determines her to try her fortune in the city. She has her first adventure in her own home, however, attempting to inform the fort the presence of spies. Her adventures in the city are numerous; bordering on strong melodramatic qualities.

A redeeming feature of the picture is noticeable in the elimination of suggestive or corrupt motives. Not a fault can be found with it in this respect—it is clean. Jack Hopkins as the inventor, Howard Missimer, as the spy; Ida Darling and Maggie Weston most ably support the star. Every detail in the making of the picture shows care and attention.

Harold Lockwood

HAROLD LOCKWOOD, who was playing opposite Mary Pickford with the Famous Players in Los Angeles, and is now playing with that company in New York, was born in New York, where he received his education.

His parents had outlined a college and a business career, but Harold had the one idea ahead—the stage—and owns that while he was good at winning medals for running, swimming and other sports, he did not make great headway with his studies, but he did take the honors when it came to recitations and oratory.

Harold Lockwood.

He was placed in a business, but spent most of his time in or around the theaters and eventually went on in the chorus of the "Broken Idol" and took the eye of the manager, who helped him to a better position. Thereafter success soon came, and Lockwood appeared in a number of musical comedies and danced and sang his way into popular favor. Later he appeared with Edward N. Hoyt in a vaudeville act and for a long period played stock in different parts of the country. It is curious that he made his motion picture debut under the direction of Edwin S. Porter, under whom he is now acting, at this time Porter was with the Rex company. Following this Lockwood had engagements with Nestor, Bronco, Kay Bee and one and a half years with Seligs, playing leads all the time.

Harold Lockwood loves his work and is much interested in sports of all kinds, and particularly trotting horses and swimming. He did some splendid work recently in "Hearts Adrift," "Tess of the Storm Country" and "The County Chairman."

Standing within a quarter of an inch of six feet and possessed of a good carriage and an unfair share of good looks as well as histrionic ability, Harold Lockwood means to get to the very top of his profession, and he has everything in his favor.

FORD'S MOTION PICTURE DEPARTMENT EXPANDS.

The success of the moving picture department of the Ford Motor Company, especially since establishing the Ford-Detroit Weekly, has been so much greater than expected that the present quarters are entirely inadequate. As a consequence, Manager Jewett of this department is practically doubling the size of it as well as duplicating the equipment, which will enable him to increase the capacity 100 per cent. At present this department is producing from ten to fifteen thousand feet per week. The films are not only shown in Detroit, but are in demand in every other section of Michigan.

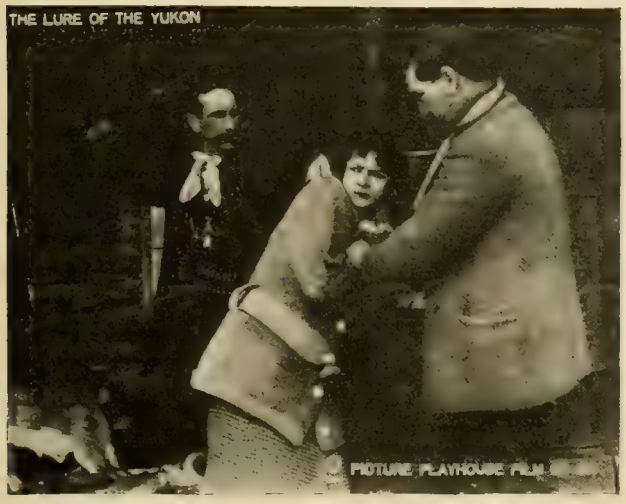
"The Lure of the Yukon"

Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc., Presents an Alaskan Photoplay Subject of Interest.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE spell of the Alaskan winter pervades this three-reel subject, which abounds in snow scenes. The atmosphere of the production is its strong feature. The photography in the first reel is of about average quality, and that in the remaining two reels is all that could be desired.

This is a vigorous, out-of-door story throughout and holds the attention firmly. The narrative concerns two brothers who are first seen working in a shaft mine. They strike it rich and determine to head for Dawson City and thence to the States.



Scene from "The Lure of the Yukon" (Playhouse).

Upon the arrival at Dawson the young men stop at a rough resort. One of them plays at the games a little and the proprietor and his pal discover he has gold upon him. The proprietor has a pretty young daughter, named Lou, with whom Bill, the more venturesome of the brothers, falls in love.

Bill goes with Lou to her father's cabin, and it is agreed that she shall go with him to the States. A light is to be placed in the window as a signal. But the girl's father and his companion intercept the scheme. The brothers go and are pursued by the pair, who succeed in tying them with ropes and making away with the bags of gold. These scenes in the second reel are full of good atmosphere—the dog team, the heavy fields of snow, the fall over the cliff and the lassoing and tying of the young men. Considerable suspense is aroused as the plot progresses; it is comparatively simple, but at the same time effective.

Scene from "The Lure of the Yukon" (Playhouse).

The predicament of the young men is a precarious one until the girl, who has been locked in the cabin, escapes and takes up the trail. She reaches them and cuts the ropes, saving them from what would have been certain death.

Bill fractured his ankle in a fall, and the younger brother and the girl convey him on the sledge to the headquarters of the territory police. Their story is told, and the police send out two of their number to round up the escaping men. This leads up to another exciting series of events, which consume a greater part of the third reel. One of the gamblers is shot and killed. The other, the girl's father, escapes, but is shown dying in the snow. The two brothers then start on their journey to civilization, carrying the girl with them.

The cast used in producing this story is a proficient one, Edward S. Wier and Walter Wier playing the brothers and Queenie Martell appearing as the girl.

John B. Clymer

JOHN B. CLYMER, who came into the advertising and sales end of the film business when features began to blossom, and who has stayed in it in the thick of things subsequently, is looking for the best job he can find or enough small accounts to make a day's work seven days a week. The smaller companies whose volume of work doesn't require the services of a fast-working, experienced man for all his time is now his field.

John B. Clymer.

For the last year Clymer has been with the Exclusive Supply Corporation, handling its publicity, also that of Great Northern Special, Films Lloyds, Film Releases of America, United Keanograph and other companies at odd times. He also handled sales for some of these accounts.

Harry R. Raver was responsible for Clymer leaving the New York Herald to go to Gaumont, from whence he later went to Itala, there to assist Mr. Raver. Under such heads as Herbert Blache, Joseph R. Miles and Harry R. Raver he learned the business about which no ones knows anything—films. He learned how to design posters that made people go "in" whether they wanted to or not; he wrote advertisements that told interesting facts in bold, terse, smashing English; he sold features where features weren't wanted; he wrote comedy subtitles that people laughed at.

Unlike some of his contemporaries he isn't sure whether he is going to be with some "big combination in a responsible position," or whether he will doctor film and work for a number of little fellows at his present office at 220 West 42nd street, New York City. He will also represent out-of-town manufacturers.

MARY FULLER A PROLIFIC WRITER.

Probably no girl upon the screen accomplishes as much work in the same length of time as Mary Fuller, a Universal star. Besides playing the central figure in all the plays produced by her director, Walter Edwin, Miss Fuller manages to write three or four photoplays every month and several exhaustive articles. Many of the photoplays she writes are done by her own company, while the articles are for the various motion picture magazines.

In the current issue of the Green Book, there is an article of considerable length, typed by herself on her own machine entitled "Advice To Movie Struck Girls." There is another one in the current issue of the photoplay illustrated by picture Miss Fuller took herself entitled "How I Spent My Summer's Vacation." Incidentally Miss Fuller spent her summer's vacation in the mountains of Pennsylvania doing several roles for forthcoming Universal features. Miss Fuller is a sturdant apostle of work.

CHICAGO LETTER

BY JAS. S. McQUADE

Wm. N. Selig Returns to Chicago.

WM. N. SELIG, who left New York July 18th for Europe, returned by the steamship Olympic to the same city, on Wednesday, Sept. 23rd, and arrived in Chicago Saturday, Sept. 26th.

Mr. Selig's experiences in Europe have evidently had a salutary, physical effect, as he has reduced weight by about 15 pounds, and looks healthy and as hard as nails. It is not the purpose of this article to enter into the details of Mr. Selig's experiences, which would fill a small book—very readable at that. The article will be confined rather to the business aspect of the trade as it at present exists in Europe, and to Mr. Selig's activities on behalf of his own business.

Mr. Selig got into Paris the day before the war started, and stayed there for three weeks. This time was occupied in looking after the prints of subjects which were being made in the Eclipse plant. He then returned to London, where he stayed nearly a week, when he again visited Paris to secure valuable negatives of various subjects that were stored in the Eclipse vaults. All this he succeeded in accomplishing, although advised by many friends not to risk visiting Paris the second time.

All the Selig printing is now done in the London plant of Eclipse, which has been practically removed from Paris, much of the machinery having been taken over to the British metropolis.

When Mr. Selig left Paris after his last visit—that was on Sept. 7th—there were about three moving picture houses open on the Boulevard, and several in the Montmartre district. These theaters were doing a fair business, as the Parisians sought relief from the dreadful monotony imposed by the war. It was sought to form theatrical companies of all the actors left in Paris after the war draft had been made, and of the actresses in the city, in order to open up some of the big theaters, and provide much-needed amusement.

In the United Kingdom, Mr. Selig states that picture theaters seemed to be doing splendidly. The place of the Continental product has been taken by subjects of English and American manufacture. Quite a lot of the American product now brought to the English market is entirely unsuitable at the present time, Mr. Selig states. Lengthy subjects are practically off the market, there being no demand for any subject that runs over three reels.

London is practically normal, and there are not any such indications of a war in progress as can be seen in the streets either of New York or Chicago, where great crowds can be found in front of bulletin boards and war maps.

Topical subjects are being furnished in abundance by the English manufacturers and the present state of the public mind craves for pictures that have something to do with the war.

When the war broke out many manufacturers and manufacturers' representatives announced that cash with order was required from the buyers of films, from that time on, in nearly all cases. The Selig Polyscope Co. was one of those which made an exception, short time being allowed for payments, and a discount when payments were made within the time allotted.

The demand for the American product has been largely increased since the war opened, and it is being well met by American manufacturers, Mr. Selig says.

Mr. Selig advises me that no pictures showing actual warfare have been taken by cameramen on either side of the firing line since the war opened, for the very good reason that they are not permitted to accompany the armies or to go to the front. The French and English forces positively prohibit all war correspondents and cameramen from accompanying them.

Chicago Ventilation Ordinance Case.

A recent weekly bulletin issued by the Chicago Health Department conveys the news that the city has been awarded the decision by the Chancery Court for enforcing the ventilation ordinance in moving picture theaters. This litigation has now occupied over a year.

The case was that of the Washington Theater, at 4320 Cottage Grove avenue, owned by C. C. Whalen. Air samples were taken in the theater on Sept. 22, 1913, by inspectors from the Health Department. The theater was closed, when the management refused to provide the ventilating equipment demanded. Mr. Whalen, backed by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, secured an injunction restraining the city from enforcing the ordinance until its validity was decided upon.

The decision was handed down Tuesday, Sept. 22, by Chancery Court Judge Wing. Attorney Horner for the defense was given until Oct. 3 to file an answer. Before the case is finally decided, it may be drawn out for a period of years, as, if the decision is unfavorable, an appeal can be made by the defense to a higher court.

Foreign Demand for Bell & Howell Product.

Inquiries from abroad continue to reach the Bell & Howell Company, in spite of the disturbed conditions due to the war. Letters have been received during the past three weeks from Russia, England and Central America. Among the inquiries are motion picture manufacturers, exhibitors and dealers in motion picture machinery.

This company has not sought foreign orders because its facilities have been taxed to the utmost in an effort to meet the domestic demand for its machines. The company has done no distinctively foreign advertising, although the Moving Picture World has, of course, carried its announcements abroad. For that reason the company is inclined to regard it as significant that there should be a foreign demand for its product at this time. None of its foreign correspondents seem to regard the war as likely to interfere with their business. These letters are of interest, principally because the men who write them do not seem to look upon the war as a factor likely to affect seriously the picture business.

Corrected Cast for Big Suffrage Production.

In the issue of Sept. 26, I referred to the suffrage photoplay subject now under way at Selig's Chicago studio, and gave in part, as then known, the list of principals in the cast. The corrected list is as follows:

Olive Wyndham, Little Theater, New York, leading woman; John Charles, formerly under the management of Wm. A. Brady and Henry B. Harris, and associated with Louis Mann and Helen Ware on the dramatic stage, leading man; Katherine Kaelred, a woman lawyer; Carl Gardner, a judge; Katherine Henry, a persecuted working woman; Mabel Eaton, an anti-suffragist; Grace Dermond, in the allegorical part of Equal Suffrage; Harry Kenneth, as Abraham Lincoln; Frank Weed, formerly of Selig's eastern company, a lawyer; Sydney Booth, at present playing lead in "The Yellow Ticket," at Powers' Theater, this city, the Lieutenant-Governor; Francis Lenz, a workingman; Walter Roberts, an old man; Clara Smith, an ardent suffragist, and Marguerite Collier, in the allegorical part of Justice, etc., etc.

The title of the production has not yet been announced.

Mr. Wilson, of Ohio Censor Board, Explains.

W. R. Wilson, of the Ohio Censor Board, writes under date of Sept. 24, with reference to an article in my letter in the issue of Sept. 26, under the heading, "Peculiar Pruning by Ohio Censors." He writes from the misunderstanding that "someone has put one over on me."

Not at all, friend Wilson. My data was based on a dispatch from Cleveland, which appeared in several Chicago newspapers. Whether Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League, had anything to do with the dispatch is another matter. "The facts are as follows," writes Mr. Wilson:

> The drinking and gambling scenes (in "Ten Nights in a Barroom") were left intact, except one long scene without any particular action, which was cut down to 20 feet. There were no other eliminations except two murders. These were taken care of by cutting out the actual act of murder, which consisted of about one foot of film in each case. This is the plain truth plainly stated.
>
> According to the newspapers, Wayne B. Wheeler threatened us with dire proceedings, but so far has taken no action. We are not to be intimidated by the Anti-Saloon League or any other league, and view every film on its merits. If Mr. Wheeler made the statement that you attribute to him, "That all the punches have been taken out of the film," and that these punches consist of murdering old men in cold blood, I think you will agree that such punches do not help the motion picture business.

Scarcity of Chemicals Attributed to Patent Laws.

At an address delivered at a meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce, in the Hotel La Salle, last week, Edward Gudeman, a consulting engineer, scored American patent laws and attributed to them the present dearth of chemicals formerly imported from Europe. Mr. Gudeman, in part, spoke as follows:

> American chemists have the ability and brains to manufacture in this country every one of the chemical substances that we now import, but we are not in a position to do so, as our government so restricts us as to actually prohibit us. Our patent laws, copyright and trademark requirements and our internal revenue act stand in the way. Most European countries require that a patent be actually operated and used to hold its validity, and in some cases that a reasonable amount of the patented product be produced in the country in which the patent is granted.

Franc E. Gardner, of the Gardner-Barada Chemical Company, suggested three ways in which American manufacturers and chemists can prove equal to the emergency created by the war. First, by the utilization of natural resources from beginning to end; second, by the utilization of by-products, and third, by the discovery of substitutes for the natural products of which America has no supply.

Regarding War Tax on Picture Theaters.

Representative James McAndrews, of Chicago, is doing good work for the small exhibitors just now. Last week Mr. McAndrews called on the Senate Committee, in Washington, D. C., and showed that the levying of the $100 war tax on moving picture theaters, irrespective of seating capacity, would work a hardship on the small houses. He tried to get an exemption for the owners of small theaters in Chicago, or at least a reduction.

Representative McAndrews' presentation of the subject to the committee was as follows: "Is it fair to the small theaters of the Chicago west side, which have a capacity of only 200, and give only three shows a day, to make them pay the same tax as the large theaters in the downtown district, which charge double the price of admission, have anywhere from four to six times the capacity and operate all day and all night? The small owners consider themselves lucky if they clear $10 a day, while the profits of the large houses in the loop district run up into the hundreds. I think an exemption should be made for moving picture theaters having a capacity of fewer than 500, or at least an equalization of the tax so that the small houses will not have to pay the same amount as the larger ones."

Death of a Biograph Favorite.

Miss Flora Foster, known as one of the Biograph "Kids," died Monday, Sept. 21st, of heart failure, at her father's home in this city. Miss Foster had been ailing for a number of months, and her father, Mr. C. Foster, proprietor of the Lexington Theater here, made a hurried trip to New York last week to bring her home.

Miss Flora Foster and her sister—the former known the world over as "Billy"—played with the Biograph Company for a period of five years. She then joined the Thanhouser Company, appearing in one of its first productions, "David Copperfield," taking the leading part of Little David.

Miss Foster was sixteen years old. She was born in Boston, Mass.

Chicago Film Brevities.

C. Lang Cobb, Jr., of the Ramo Co., made a short stay in the city last week. He called at the World office and stated that he was making an inspecting tour of Ramo offices in the Middle West.

* * *

Alfred Hamburger, president of the Celebrated Players Film Co., accompanied by Felix F. Feist, general manager, spent most of last week in New York buying feature pictures for their weekly release programs furnished throughout the Middle West. A syndicate of newspapers throughout this section will handle a story of each of the releases, operating in conjunction with the local theaters at which the features are shown. Big features and wide publicity is announced as the slogan of the Celebrated Players Film Co. for the coming season.

* * *

Patrick Keys and Mrs. Margaret Hayden, of this city, were brought before Judge Rafferty one day last week, on charges of having sold moving picture theaters they did not own. Miss Margaret Swanson, a school teacher, charges that the accused represented they owned the Palace Theater, and that she paid them $500 before learning that they had no connection with the theater. Harry Cressman, another complainant, charged the defendants with attempting to sell him the "White Front" Theater. We, in Chicago, are not much surprised at these cases, seeing that even the Masonic Temple was sold for a song, several times over, to credulous people who were ready to part with their money in sight of a good bargain!

DICK EDMONDSON COMING TO NEW YORK.

R. S. Edmondson, proprietor of the American Film Releases, 19 Cecil Court, Charing Cross Road, London, sailed for America on September 26 on the Campania. The nature of his visit is to consummate negotiations with several leading American manufacturers to represent them in Great Britain and on the continent.

New Columbus Brand

Melies Pictures Under a New Name With Joe Levering and Marian Swayne in Leading Parts.

JOSEPH LEVERING, who has been identified with the production of Melies Comedies, is now directing the new comedies, under the brand name of "Columbus Films" which are to be released through the General Film Company; the first production of this new comer is scheduled for October 6 and bears the mystifying title "What Would You Do?"

Miss Marian Swayne, the former star of James Montgomery Flagg's famous "Adventures of Kitty Cobb," produced in pictures by the Colonial people, will be Mr. Levering's star for the new Columbus films.

Columbus Films will release two cracking good comedies each Tuesday and one or two special features each fortnight. Mr. Levering and Miss Swayne are not new in the motion picture world, having appeared in leading roles in many features of various producing companies, most recently in "The Line Up at Police Headquarters." They were featured in most of the Solax and Blache productions. Prior to this, we recall Levering's connection with the Pathe stock for a year or more.

Joseph Levering.

Marian Swayne.

Miss Swayne spent last season as leading ingenue with the Orpheum Players, Philadelphia. She is a natural, clever little lady, of whom much more will be heard as the Columbus Films grow in popularity.

The supporting company Mr. Levering has assembled at the Gaumont Studio includes such well-known players as Arthur Hill, last two seasons with "A Good Little Devil"; Phin Nares, formerly with the Pathe and Edison companies, Mary Baker, Jules Cluzzetti and Harry Mack. The company will shortly leave for California to occupy their new winter studio, now nearing completion.

Pell Mitchell, the popular publicity man, will remain in New York shouting out the "Good Ones" as they come along.

WORLD FILM OPENS NEW DEPARTMENT.

The World Film Corporation has determined to get up printing that will have a different note than that usually found in lithograph paper. It has secured the exclusive services of W. N. Wilson, the famous magazine illustrator and poster expert. General Manager Selznick is determined that the printing used by the World Film Corporation in advertising its releases shall be the finest available, and no expense will be spared upon this new department of which Mr. Wilson is to be the head.

Mr. Wilson has studied in England, Paris and Berlin, and was for many years a poster expert for the largest lithographing establishment in England. He himself is a specialist in the German poster style and has a wonderful sense of grouping and of contrast. Several of Mr. Wilson's animal paintings have been exhibited in European salons.

This is a distinct step forward in the development of the poster in this connection with the advertisement of moving pictures, but it is in keeping with the progressive policy of the World Film Corporation.

Doings at Los Angeles

PEOPLE of this city, being located so near to the open sea, and who have seen warships near shore, have shown much apprehension when moving picture war scenes were put on, thinking a battle was in progress between some big German vessel and a Japanese cruiser. Rumors went wild, and talk was loud when the Mutual pulled off an afternoon of fighting. The next morning the local papers carried stories of supposed carnage off the "beautiful California coast; placid waters turned to crimson, and so on." But at the same time, no wreckage was washed ashore.

* * *

At the canyon studio of the Broncho there is great activity. Reginald Barker is producing "The Dago" in eight reels. This week he is in Los Angeles using the Plaza and three small streets in the Italian quarter. Nearly the whole company has been pressed into service for this film. Robert Edeson has come and gone, having just completed "On the Night Stage." W. S. Hart, another star, is on his way to New York, following Edeson, after finishing his picture, "The Two-Gun Man." This, by the way, is one of the strongest Western pictures Mr. Ince has ever turned out of the coast studio. George Beban, who was well known in "At the Sign of the Rose," in which he played with Anna Held, is here now to do the title part in "The Dago." Arthur Maude, who directed the Loftus Features players, is now here for a limited stay.

* * *

Clune's Exclusive Theatre building has been placed on the map by the moving of W. H. Clune's general offices, the Clune Theatre Company and the publicity and advertising departments to the third floor at 547 South Broadway.

* * *

Poor Anna Little, who has been so ill for some time is being welcomed once more at the Universal studios. She put in an appearance this week.

* * *

John Nickolaus, who had charge of the Universal laboratories, has been sent to comand the eastern plant, and his place has gone to Billy Foster, who has been in this work for some time. Before Mr. Nickolaus departed his friends of the darkroom presented him with an elk tooth charm.

* * *

In the thirteenth installment of "The Trey O'Hearts" George Larkin is going to ride a motorcycle off a cliff, while traveling at a high speed. He says that if he comes out all right in this hoodoo installment he will be able to continue to the finish. The Lucas company is just starting this picture.

* * *

Because Oscar Apfel could not engage a part of the Barnum shows for the Lasky production of "The Rose in the Ring" he will lease a large lot, collect circus equipment, and start a circus of his own. The big parade was done in Santa Ana, the cameraman and players going by auto. Theodore Roberts is being featured in this picture.

* * *

Clune's Amusement Newspaper will throw its hat into the ring and come up with the first issue in several days. The publication is to be operated by W. H. Clune, the well known theatre man of the South. We now have two papers here, the Photoplayers Weekly being in its second month.

* * *

The Industries Educational Film studio is being rapidly finished, and the ninth and top floors of the big building are daily taking on the look of a real studio. The roof is being converted into a beautiful garden. Production starts about October 1.

* * *

Ford Sterling did a hypnotic scene recently, and Friday the professor put a cat under the influence for a close-up scene. Ford did the eye work, and when the cut-ins of the cat's eyes came, Cameraman Harris balked, but finally went ahead, and the 250 feet of film all showed two big wild circles, in which were grinding two similar cameramen, the back ground being the stage in the rear. The eyes of the feline reflected the scene as a mirror, and only the outside edges of the eyes were to be seen. About five feet was used.

* * *

A real autopsy, with a deputy from the coroner's office, several policemen and a doctor put atmosphere into a scene for "The Wrong Prescription," which is a mutual drama telling how a young medico nearly wrecks his life, thinking he gave an overdose of strychnine to a patient who died.

* * *

The Palace theatre on Moneta avenue suffered a loss of a number of orchestra instruments when the place was entered by robbers last week. There was no money there, so they took the brass and silver instruments.

* * *

O. E. Goebel, president of the St. Louis Motion Picture company, has arrived at the western studio, in Santa Paula, where he is looking over the plant. Joseph J. Franz is directing another company here. Only western dramas will be produced. The scenario bureau notifies writers that the company is buying only one reel western dramas and no comedies.

* * *

"The first time he doubled he was successful," is what Manager Bernstein of the Universal said about J. W. Kerrigan, who played the father and the son in "His Father's Son." In the role of the father, Jack is admirable, and the people who know Jack well, are even mystified by the resemblance yet the vast difference in the characters.

* * *

The Lasky company has acquired a 4,000-acre ranch in the great San Fernando valley on which they have built a large two-story Spanish casa which is to be used in "The Rose of the Rancho" which has just been started. The new ground is to be used for big scenes and where a large location is needed. A stock farm is to be maintained on the ranch. It is planned to use 500 people in the story. There will be 150 people transported through Southern California for the mission scenes. The studio will be used for the largest scene ever set up, the whole stage and ground space being utilized.

* * *

Several new faces will be seen in coming Frontier releases. A letter from Santa Paula advises that the following people have joined that aggregation: Jay Morley, who was with the Broncho and other companies; Lillian Christy, formerly of Vitagraph and Kalem; John Jones, a character man of reputation, and Edythe Sterling, who has returned to her first love, after an extended vacation of half a year.

* * *

Thomas H. Ince is still busy improving the big studio in the mountains. A garage is now complete, which houses fifteen machines, the big truck, and a machine shop. A Dutch city has been erected on a hillside. It was used in "The Mills of the Gods," written by Ince and directed by Jay Hunt, being a story of the Dutch. Several small canyons will be added to the accessible locations when new roads are finished. Lillian Langdon, who has been a character woman at the Universal, has signed with the New York and is now at work here.

* * *

Frank J. Baum, son of the man who has put the first fairy stories on the screen, is to return some time early in October from New York, where he has been working on the eastern end of the Oz company releases. A tin city was constructed on the lot by the studio, to be used in one of the big fairy stories. "His Majesty the Scarecrow" has been completed, and the players will start next on "The Last Egyptian," from the pen of Mr. Baum. This is a romantic drama, and will be quite a change from the first two releases. Vivian Reed, whose head appears as the trade mark of Oz films, is Quovo the Minstrel in the Magic Cloak, and has made a success in that part. Mr. Baum has arranged a role for her in the Scarecrow, that of Princess Gloria. Violet Macmillan is hardly recognizable in this picture. She plays the part of a small boy. Mildred Harris is Buttonbright, a boy, and she is charming in this role.

* * *

Otto Meyer, who is the Sheriff at the Frontier, has been reduced to a deputy by the arrival of a small son, Otto, Jr.

CLARKE IRVINE.

San Francisco Happenings

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the California Motion Picture Corporation will be held on September 29 at the offices of the concern at 356 Pine street, when officers and directors for the ensuing year will be elected. Alex E. Beyfuss, general manager, is expected home from a business trip to New York before the annual meeting.

* * *

A mysterious explosion occurred in the Elite Theater, conducted by H. Levin at 3290 Sacramento street, on September 12, and it has not been decided as yet whether this was caused by gas or by a bomb placed in the house by an enemy. The interior of the house was badly wrecked, many seats being broken, the doors blown off and pieces of the floor driven into the ceiling. There was no basement under the structure and it is not believed that the explosion could have been caused by gas. The building is owned by M. Garber.

* * *

J. W. Allen, who for the past year has had general charge of the Seattle, Spokane and Portland offices of Warner's Features, Inc., has been appointed district manager of the Coast territory and now has supervision over the San Francisco and Los Angeles offices, in addition to the three in the Northwest. He has been spending the past six weeks in Los Angeles, but has now come to San Francisco and established headquarters. A. L. Johnson, formerly of Seattle, Wash., and well known on the Coast, has been appointed manager of the Los Angeles branch.

* * *

Fred Balshofer, of the Sterling brand, was in town this week from Los Angeles on matters connected with the Patents Company suit. He was accompanied by his attorney, George Graham.

* * *

James Keane will leave for the East within a few days with his wonderful production "Money."

* * *

W. P. Muir, of Baker & Muir, who are accused of having defrauded a large number of local exchange men and theater owners in this territory during the past few weeks, has been arrested on the complaint of George Kleine's, and his case has been set for an early hearing.

* * *

Frank L. Hudson, who recently returned from a short business trip to Salt Lake City and Denver, states that while in the latter city he met W. R. Scates, the Eclectic Film Company's representative in the Middle West, who makes his headquarters at Chicago, as well as T. Y. Henry, traveling auditor of the Mutual Film Corporation, who was on his way to the Coast, and Louis Marcus of the Notable Features Company of Salt Lake City. Sam Bernfield, formerly manager of the Boston office of the Eclectic Film Company, has succeeded Max Graff as manager of the Salt Lake City branch and Mr. Graff has been appointed special territorial representative.

* * *

The schooner King & Winge, under charter of the Sunset Motion Picture Company of this city, has succeeded in reaching Wrangell Island and rescuing the survivors of the Karluk, the wrecked ship of the Steffansson expedition. The rescue was filmed by Fred Granville, camera man, who went north with the expedition. T. A. CHURCH.

JAP FILMS BY JAP ACTORS.

The Japanese American Film Co., which will market its product through Sawyer, Inc., has as its first production a three reel feature called "The Oath of the Sword." The company is managed entirely by Japanese business men, and most of the leading parts are played by Japanese actors. The theme of the film is the love of a young Jap for a beautiful girl of his own nation. He is sent away by his government to study and at college become a great favorite. Upon his return to Japan, he finds that his sweetheart has in the meantime married a young American, who has left a wife and child in America. The ensuing dramatic scenes are most thrilling, and include a new handling of the Japanese custom of hara-kiri.

A. H. Sawyer has made the personal statement that this is the greatest three reeler he has ever seen, and that he thinks it will make a furore when it is released. It is taken amid beautiful natural scenery, with real Japanese settings, and a sumptuousness of production seldom approached. The cast assembled includes many of the most famous players of Japan.

"DAD AND THE GIRLS."

The "Beauty" Stock Company of the American Santa Barbara Studios is producing a one-reel comedy written by Frank Cooley, assistant director of the company. There are many funny situations in which the father, who has an eye for beauty, finds himself. He strongly opposes the idea of his son marrying a stenographer. In the end the son and the girl prove too much for him and he gives his consent to the marriage. The story is well told and is expected to prove quite a success. It will be released Tuesday, Oct. 20.

Robert Warwick

IN a varied career, in which Robert Warwick has been an opera singer, stock actor and musical comedy principal as well as leading man to Frances Starr, Mr. Warwick added another novel twist by playing the leading male role in the picturizations of "The Dollar Mark" and "The Man of the Hour," World Film Corporation releases.

Robert Warwick.

A Native Son of the Golden West, Robert Warwick is really Robert Bien, and when he decided to become an opera singer he thought it best to become known as Warwick, and through all the vicissitudes of his career he has remained a Warwick. He did go to Europe to study and would have been one of the singers at the Metropolitan Opera House now had his voice not given out. When that happened he decided it would be best to go on the stage and act. William A. Brady, always on the lookout for ability plus youth and a charming presence, quickly signed Mr. Warwick to play a leading role in "The Dollar Mark," which was the companion play to the other Broadhurst success, "The Man of the Hour." He did prove to Broadway he had "the goods," and from then on Fame has smiled on him. He was tempted to appear in "The Balkan Princess," to play opposite Louise Gunning, and in that light opera he was as much a favorite as he was in the legitimate work. He was also under the management of John Cort when the coast manager produced "Miss Princess" with Lina Abarbanell in the title role. He has reached his goal—he is playing under David Belasco's management. There is a sentimental reason for that. Both Mr. Warwick and Mr. Belasco are natives of San Francisco, and if you have ever met a Native Son, you will understand why Robert Warwick feels as he does toward David Belasco.

DOCTOR FOOLED BY FAKE ACCIDENT.

Donald Mackenzie, who made such a big hit as the pirate in "The Perils of Pauline" and has for some time been assisting Chief Director Gasnier of Pathe, is directing the 15th, 16th and 17th episodes of "Pauline." Mr. Gasnier feels that the genial Scotchman is as good a director as he is actor.

Mr. Mackenzie tells a good one that happened while he was working on the 15th episode of "The Perils of Pauline." He was staging an automobile accident on a country road near Metuchen and had everything going finely. Crane Wilbur and Pearl White had just run their car into the fence to escape the overturned auto and two "lifeless" men in the road; the cameraman was grinding away from the roadside when into the picture came thundering another car. It stopped, a man hopped out with a little bag in his hand and dashed to the side of the prostrate men. Mackenzie gasped and then howled "Have a heart! Please get out of my picture!" The man's jaw fell. "What" said he, "I'm a physician; Isn't this an accident?" Mackenzie explained and then everybody had a good laugh. "Well" said the doctor as he drove away, "this is realism run riot!"

FIRST NEGATIVE OUT OF GERMANY ARRIVES.

A refugee brought to the Universal office the first scenes taken in and around Berlin showing some good close-ups of Commander-in-Chief Von Kessel and Commissioner of Police Von Jagow; typical scenes of the grenadier guards in front of the Berlin Imperial Palace; and scenes of cannon drawn by cossack horses captured from the Belgians, French and Russians. These are all of them wonderful scenes, and our staff cameraman who marched to the front with the troops procured these scenes at great risk. To be shown in coming issues of the Animated Weekly.

"Katana, the Oath of the Sword"

An Unusually Refreshing Story of Japanese Life Portrayed by Real Japanese.—Sawyer Release.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

THIS picture, made by the Japanese-American Film Company, in three reels, is a typical Japanese story hinging on the sacred sword that in every Japanese household descends to the eldest daughter who, on receiving it, takes the oath, known as "Katana" or "The Oath of the Sword," that she will avenge any unfaithfulness on her part by making the sword the instrument of her death. According to Japanese notions this, of course, leads to the unhappy ending of the story; but the story is so well developed and the national viewpoint is so well and attractively delineated that we lose sight of the tragedy in our interest in a foreign people and their ideals and accept the end when it comes as the only logical and natural thing for them. Another delightfully refreshing thing about the picture is that we have a love story told naturally and perfectly without there being a kiss or embrace between a man and a woman in any scene.

Scene from "Katana" (Sawyer).

The scene opens in Japan, where Masao and Hisa grow up, sweethearts from childhood and become engaged to marry just before Masao leaves to study in America. Here he becomes a university athlete and at a reception is introduced to Deane, captain of a Pacific tramp steamer, who, in turn, introduces him to his wife. Meanwhile Hisa's father has died and she has taken the oath of the sword, and later, when Deane's ship is wrecked on the Japanese coast, she rescues him from drowning, and not knowing he is married, falls in love with him and becomes unfaithful to her promise to Masao. Deane, who is a thorough-going scoundrel, marries her according to Japanese customs and settles down in Japan. Then Masao returns, recognizes Deane, discloses the fact that he has a wife in California, and follows Deane, who has fled, kills him and returns to find that Hisa has fulfilled the oath of the sword and avenged herself and her unfaithfulness to Masao by committing harakiri.

Scene from "Katana" (Sawyer).

Apparently, the story is the least important part of the picture. It is merely the vehicle through which we get glimpses of the inner life and modes of thought of the Japanese and around which has been built up an extremely attractive and fascinating portrayal of Japanese manners and customs, their home life, their fisheries, their betrothal and marriage ceremonies, and lastly, their peculiar code of honor, as the dying father bequeathes the sword to his eldest daughter, and the family records and traditions to his eldest son. According to Anglo-Saxon ideas the story leaves much to be desired, but as a portrayal of Japanese life and thought, the picture is an educational of distinct and unique value.

Vivian Martin

VIVIAN MARTIN, one of the fascinating ingenues of the stage, has been signed by the Peerless Feature Producing Company to star in a forthcoming release based on Owen Davis' play, "The Wishing Ring." This story was the vehicle Marguerite Clark used in making her entrance into the field of the legitimate theater. "The Wishing Ring" is one of three plays that Owen Davis has written for which the Peerless Company has secured the motion picture rights. The two others are "Lola," in which Clara Kimball Young is to be starred, and "A Marked Woman," in which Barbara Tennant is to play the title role. All these features are to be released through the World Film Corporation.

Vivian Martin.

At present Miss Martin is with Lew Fields' Company in "The High Cost of Loving" at the Republic Theater. Her charming personality has been felt for several years on the stage since she made her debut with Charles Warner in "Drink." Later she was seen with Andrew Mack and as "Peter Pan" in the children's company that Charles Frohman assembled to present the Barrie masterpiece. She then joined the William H. Crane company, appearing in George Ade's "Father and the Boys." Later she was seen in "The Only Son" with Wallace Eddinger.

Her recent appearances have been in the two farces, "Officer 666" and "Stop Thief." During the past season, Miss Martin appeared in the supporting company of Alexander Carlisle in "The Marriage Game." During the past summer, she was a member of the company that presented the Hattons' comedy, "The Call of Youth," in Chicago.

MURRAY BACK ON THE JOB.

Fully restored to health after a vacation of a couple of months, and as brown as a berry, though some thirty pounds less in weight, George H. Murray has resumed his duties with The Morgan Lithograph Company as New York Representative with offices in The Times Building. Few men appreciate publicity more so than Murray and his retirement on account of a strenuous campaign for an extended vacation gave rumor that he would seek other connections, but being a past master in the art of press stunts he allowed the rumor to go uncontradicted only waiting for the opportunity to show he has always been very much alive with The Morgan Company and now more so than ever.

Murray is one of the few men who have graduated from the circus and theatrical field for commercial activities who has been a genuine success and his business for The Morgan Company has been considered marvelous. That he will not only hold, but speed his gait is a foregone conclusion. This announcement will end the persistent rumor that Mr. Murray would leave The Morgan Lithograph Company to act as General Business Manager for Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, a position he has filled on several occasions.

L. Frank Baum

Famous Author and Dramatist Who Has Proved a Successful Director of Motion Pictures.

L. FRANK BAUM, the president and general manager of the Oz Film Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles, is famous the world over for his quaint books and the extraordinary characters he has invented.

Mr. Baum was born in New York state in 1856, and has been in the public eye nearly all his life. In 1880, at the age of twenty-four, he was starring in his own musical play, "The Maid of Arran." A number of other plays which he wrote and acted in followed in rapid succession. Leaving the stage, Mr. Baum soon took to writing fairy stories and books for young people. Perhaps the most famous of these books was the "Wizard of Oz," which was dramatized and produced at the Grand Opera House, Chicago. His latest extravaganza was the "Tik Tok Man of Oz," produced by Oliver Morosco at the Majestic Theater, Los Angeles, in 1913.

L. Frank Baum.

Mr. Baum has written and published twenty-six successful books; of the number are more successful children's books than are credited to any other author. Of these, the ten Oz books have sold over four million copies during the last six years. They are translated in nearly all languages and have almost as large a sale in Great Britain and Germany as in this country.

Believing that there was a field for a new line of motion picture plays, Mr. Baum organized the Oz Film Manufacturing Company last spring. The first production was "The Patchwork Girl of Oz," a photo-extravaganza full of genuine comedy, quaint characters and pretty girls. This was quickly snapped up by the Paramount and released September 28. The work is all done under Mr. Baum's personal direction and supervision, and he has shown a capacity for making just as successful motion pictures as he did books and musical shows.

Although in his fifty-ninth year, Mr. Baum looks barely fifty and is as strong and energetic as a man much younger. He is busy at the plant in Hollywood every day from 7:30 o'clock in the morning, seldom stopping for lunch, and often working until 10 or 11 o'clock at night.

His second picture is "The Magic Cloak of Oz," which will soon be released, and the third, "His Majesty, the Scarecrow," has just been completed. The Oz film company is now engaged in producing a strong drama, "The Last Egyptian," from one of Mr. Baum's scenarios, a picture that will show the man's great versatility.

"THE LONG ARM OF THE LAW"—I. S. P. CO.

So long as we have evil-doers we must have detectives to catch them. The eternal struggle between the breakers of the law and its enforcers has always been and probably will be a most inexhaustible source of the type of adventure that tingled our nerves in adolescence and stirs even the sluggish blood of age.

"The Long Arm of the Law," suggesting the E. Phillips Oppenheim type of hero, an amateur detective who essays the part of thief-catcher just for the very joy of conflict, is chock-a-block with involved situation. Dramatically well constructed, its proportion of suspense, motive and the other theatrical ingredients, makes it worthy of four reels time of entertainment for the most critical eyes and the most discriminating minds behind them.

Not a psychological drama, vexing us with morbid expedition into sex problems, its appeal is intrinsically healthy and virile. It is feature for the man who wants to forget that tomorrow he has to pay the rent and for the woman who would, for a time, be blissfully forgetful that her dishes at home are yet to be washed.

Myrtle Stedman

MYRTLE STEDMAN was born in Chicago and was educated there. She studied elocution and voice culture and being possessed of a beautiful voice, was trained for the operatic stage, and made her first appearance at the age of twelve, giving a solo dance with the Whitney Opera Company in Chicago. Later the family moved to Black Hawk, Colorado, where Miss Stedman's father became interested in mining and the family still possess a big log house in the mountains there.

Myrtle Stedman.

Returning to Chicago she again joined the Whitney Opera Company as prima donna and went on the road with them singing in opera, comic opera and musical comedy and later toured on the concert platform.

Miss Stedman first joined the Selig Polyscope Company working under Otis Turner and remained with them for four years playing leads. She then joined the Hobart Bosworth Inc. and has since been taking leads in the Jack London stories. Jack London and Hobart Bosworth both declared that she was "just the type" for his heroine.

Myrtle Stedman is fair and has a wonderfully expressive pair of blue eyes. She loves her work and attacks it earnestly. She is fond of sports and the open.

WORLD FILM SECURES "THE SEATS OF THE MIGHTY."

Lewis J. Selznick, vice-president and general manager of the World Film Corporation, announces that his company has secured the motion picture version of the Sir Gilbert Parker novel "The Seats of the Mighty," upon which T. Hayes Hunter has been at work for six months. The result has been nine thousand feet of thrills, and as one authority who has seen the picture described it, "The most ambitious photoplay ever produced in America."

Lionel Barrymore, brother of the famous Ethel Barrymore, and a distinguished member of that famous acting family, is featured in this picture and he has been surrounded by a cast of Broadway stars. In the company are such famous names as Millicent Evans, Lois Meredith, Thomas Jefferson, Glen White, Clinton Preston, Harold Hartsell, Grace Leigh and Marjorie Bonner. All of these stars have been seen and are being seen in Broadway productions.

General Manager Selznick says that "The Seats of the Mighty" is to be a special release and the date is to be announced shortly.

ROTHAPFEL TO LEAVE THE STRAND.

Samuel L. Rothapfel, manager of the Strand Theater of New York, whose able direction has made that house the greatest picture theater in this country, has tendered his resignation. When asked to make a statement regarding his action Mr. Rothapfel declined to discuss the matter for publication at this time, but said that he would have something to say within a few days, intimating that there was something bigger and better than the Strand in contemplation.

MANCHESTER'S BUBBLE BURSTS.

The much-advertised educational picture scheme which was being promoted by the Duke of Manchester has gone up in smoke, apparently. Recently the lavishly-furnished offices of the company on 34th street, New York, were dismantled by creditors, and all efforts to locate the Duke have been unsuccessful. It is believed that the collapse of the scheme was caused by the death of C. J. Hite, who is credited with having financed it up to the time of his death.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

ANDREW MACK IN "THE RAGGED EARL."

The second release of the Alco Film Corporation will be Andrew Mack in "The Ragged Earl" on Monday, October 12th. "The Ragged Earl" is the best of Mr. Mack's many stage successes and will prove equally as popular on the screen. The story of the Emerald Isle was produced by the Popular Plays and Players Company, who spared no expense in the production and who adhered to the atmosphere in the most minute detail of the picture. The two hundred and eighty-nine scenes are typical of the Irish country and to one who has visited Ireland the different views are recognizable. This is Mr. Mack's first appearance in motion pictures, and judging by the demand for him as a picture star it will be the beginning of a series of pictures from many of the successes of this favorite portrayer of Irish types on the legitimate stage.

Scene from "The Ragged Earl" (Alco).

This little story is laid around County Kildare, Ireland, showing the Earl's castle and that of his neighbor's, Sir Henry Hardcastle. The grounds of the estate of Sir Henry's are also shown in the picture and it is in these that most of the action occurs. The stealing away of the stepdaughters of Sir Henry Hardcastle, one disguised as a boy; the pursuit by the flunkies, and the battle between them and the Earl of Kildare, are all shown in the picture as well as the duel between Sir Henry and the Earl. The little old church characteristic of those found in the north of Ireland and the marriage of Sir Henry's eldest daughter to the Earl who is disguised as Lord Wilbrook, the wealthy old rogue and the choice of Sir Henry; the expose of the Earl and the disappointment of his Lordship and Sir Henry, make a fitting climax to a most interesting picture.

The artistic qualities of this production is beyond reproach and is in keeping with the standard of photoplays to be released through the Alco Film Corporation.

ALCO ESTABLISHED IN NORTHWEST.

The Alco Film Corporation has made good connections in the Northwest through having established exchanges in San Francisco for the states of California, Nevada, and Arizona. This office will be under the supervision of Sol Lesser, who does not need an introduction to the exhibitors in that territory. Mr. Lesser is considered one of the best-known exchange men on the Pacific Coast.

Another alliance that is of importance to the moving picture men of the Coast is the Alco offices, established in Portland, Oregon; Seattle and Spokane, Wash., and Butte, Mont. These offices are operated as the Alco Film Exchange and have as their heads Messrs. Grombacher and Baily. These two exchange men have signed with Alco for all their releases and have informed the new concern that they have booked up a great many houses in their territory.

"THE OTHER MAN" (Essanay).

A modern problem play is embodied in the two-act Essanay drama "The Other Man," which features Francis X. Bushman, who is supported by Lillian Drew, Lester Cuneo, Thomas Commerford and John Cossar.

The play opens with Mildred Braddon, now the wife of Frederick Braddon, millionaire, who is called to the telephone in her home. She hears a well remembered voice over the wires. It is that of her first husband, Harry Ross, whom she divorced but who has returned from the wilderness and insists that he see her.

She tries to refuse, but that afternoon he calls. He is admitted by Bleeker, the old faithful butler. Once in his presence all the old love for him returns, particularly when Mildred makes known that her father, now dead, was the prime instigator in divorcing her from her first husband. Ross learns how Stephen Ten Broek, her father, was pressed for money and how Frederick Braddon, the millionaire, came to his aid. His reward was the daughter. Ross tells her how he has spent the four years away in the north woods. He is determined that he cannot live without her. She admits her love for him as never died and decides to go away with him that night.

Bleeker, the faithful butler, has seen and understood. As Mildred, suitcase in hand, attempts to steal from the house, she finds Bleeker in the hallway—with her little baby. The situation changes—it is the other tremendous situation, older than death, stronger than life.

While Ross waits in the hotel for Mildred, Bleeker appears. Ross is given a little envelope. It contains a letter, also a locket and picture of Mildred's little boy. Ross understands, and, a broken man, leaves.

This production is booked for release Friday, October 16.

SAWYER WITH TWO NEW COMPANIES.

Two important producers have been added to the list of Sawyer, Inc. during the past week. Both of them are California firms—the Japanese American Film Co. operating from San Francisco, and the Phoenix Film Co. from San Rafael. Both have turned over their first productions to Sawyer Inc., and both of these "first attempts" are features worthy of notice.

"The Oath of the Sword" is the title of the first Jap production—all the principal characters are Japanese, and played by eminent Jap actors. Over half of the scenes are laid in Japan, and most of the others in the grounds of the University of California. It is very thrilling, an entirely new handling of the Japanese custom of "Katana," better known as Hara-kiri. Taking the oath of the sword, a person swears to kill himself with it if his honor is violated. The dramatic circumstances of this picture make its release an event to be anticipated in filmdom.

"The Fight for Right" is the Phoenix initial offering, and its theme is so novel and startling that it will surely be a remarkable success. Its topic is the labor problem, but the romantic love story in it of course supplies the "heart-interest."

"Hearts United" is the first liberty film to come through Sawyer. It is a four reel drama dealing with the love of a conventional Easterner in the wilder west.

Many calls are being made for "Doc"—the Eleanor Gates story from the Saturday Evening Post that is making such a hit wherever it is shown. "The Envoy Extraordinary" is also in great demand.

Edwin Bower Hesser is getting the Sawyer Co-Operative Publicity Department on a business basis. Mr. Hesser has been out of the film line for the past two years, but was well known as the general press representative for the Kinemacolor Co. during the first two years of its existence. He handled the "Coronation" and "Durbar" publicity campaigns. Since then he has been independently producing grand opera, and running attractions in a number of theatres in Eastern Canada. He is still the managing director of the Maritime Booking Association of Halifax. He is putting the Sawyer publicity department in such shape that the local problems may be handled by trained publicity men.

"AN AMERICAN HEIRESS" (Lubin).

This is another dramatic episode in Emmet Campbell Hall's interesting narrative of the adventures of the good Lord Cecil and No. 4 of the series of "The Beloved Adventurer." Depleted fortune demands a heroic effort to save his estate from foreclosure of the mortgage and Cecil promises his creditors that he will marry an heiress. With this intent he goes to America and is warmly welcomed by the family of a peanut butter king, with millions. The beautiful daughter and only child is quickly offered and Cecil is satisfied that she will quite do until he discovers that the girl is deeply in love with a poor, but worthy young American. Cecil's heart goes out to the young couple and seeing no other way to avoid the pressure put upon the girl he resolves to abduct her. This he does and safely places her in the arms of her lover, thus making two lives happy, while he returns penniless, back to face the inevitable loss of his beloved Croftlaigh. In this Arthur Johnson again excels in powerful acting.

Scene from "An American Heiress" (Lubin).

MAKING "THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO."

Work at the Lasky studios is progressing on several of the Belasco plays, first of which will be "The Rose of the Rancho" in which Bessie Barriscale and Theodore Roberts will handle the principal roles.

Cecil B. De Mille and a company of twenty one players journeyed to Old Monterey, California, last week where the Lasky executive staff had arranged for the temporary use of the ancient Spanish Custom House and a famous land mark, The Padre's Garden, which is a typical and reminiscent remembrance of the Latin period of the Pacific coast.

Scene from "The Rose of the Rancho" (Lasky).

In addition to the two places mentioned Mr. De Mille has obtained permission from the managers of the estate, of the use, for the making of the picture, of the entire enormous Castro Rancheo grounds, comprising many acres of wonderful historic grounds and containing the fast crumbling remains of one of the oldest missions in California.

At San Juan Mr. De Mille is having built a replica of the Castro Ranch house which will be destroyed during the making of The Rose of The Rancho.

The Lasky company also leased a five-hundred-acre tract of land from the United States government which gives them also the right to a densely wooded tract of over two thousand acres and which contains several magnificent scenic spots. The tract is at the foot of the San Fernando mountains, twenty one miles from the studio at Hollywood. There are over a million dollars' worth of historic properties on the tract which the Lasky concern are bonded to protect.

De Mille returned two weeks ago from a trip to Aguas Calientes and Nogales, Mexico, whither he went to obtain certain atmospheric details for use in "The Rose of The Rancho." Mr. Roberts and Miss Barriscale accompanied the director.

Oscar Apfel is at Mohave, California, with another coterie of Lasky players taking the big mining scenes in "The Man From Home." Charles Richman and eighteen other Lasky players are with Apfel.

"WHAT WOULD YOU DO?" (Columbus).

Mrs. Keen leaves her first born in the care of her nephew and his friend while she attends the Mothers' Club meeting. Baby does not enjoy the men's society, although they bring practically everything in the house to entertain her. Not being successful in stopping her crying, they decide to put her in a basket on the porch with a note to the father of the baby that the mother has left her happy home. Father discovers babe and letter and, thinking his wife has deserted him, gives the child and a tip to an unfortunate woman who is a little the worse for liquor. The mother returns from her meeting and, asking for her proud infant, is informed that no one knows anything about it. She becomes distracted, and realizing they have gone too far with their joke the nephew and friend insert an advertisement in the paper which brings basketfuls of babies but not the right one. The father decides to go hunting for his heir and runs into several babies on his porch. Not stopping to examine, he picks up the nearest basket and rushes to his wife. They lift back the covering and find a pair of little babies, only black as the ace of spades. A policeman wins the reward by arresting the unsteady lady and, recognizing the baby, returns it to the distracted mother.

Scene from "What Would You Do?" (Columbus).

BERT ADLER WITH UNIVERSAL.

After almost five years of service with Thanhouser, starting as the concern's first publicity manager, and winding up as special representative of the late C. J. Hite, Bert Adler has gone to the Universal. He has been engaged for "special work" of an undisclosed nature, under the direction of Joe Brandt, the acting general manager. For the present, Mr. Adler will act as company reviewer of the brands constituting the Universal Program.

"THE PURSUIT OF PHANTOM" (Bosworth).

In "The Pursuit of Phantom," an original drama in five reels by Hobart Bosworth, of Bosworth, Inc., of Los Angeles, released through Paramount Program, October 1, Mr. Bosworth has written a story of unusual dramatic strength and charm, and with a universal appeal. Suggested by the paradox, "What I had I lost; what I lost I kept; what I spent I have," it tells of the opposite paths taken by two young men in their pursuit of happiness. One is an artist, superbly interpreted by Mr. Bosworth, and one is a rich man greedy for money and power, brilliantly played by Courtenay Foote. The artist, thinking he has lost happiness through the action of the rich man, finds that he has kept it in the love of an elfin child of nature, who brings to him all his life great happiness and peace. The rich man, coveting a beautiful woman because of the ornament she would be to his house, and coveting money and power because of the envy they would arouse in others, finds in the end that he has failed in the pursuit of happiness and youth where the artist has succeeded. By his ruthlessness, however, he nearly brings disaster upon the artist's family and alienates his own son, who, in the later scenes of the play, has grown to young manhood. The theme affords extraordinary opportunities for highly dramatic contrasts and suspense, of which Mr. Bosworth has availed himself to the full. He drives home his theme in a climax of great intensity, and concludes with an allegory which contains some wonderful photographic effects, and makes an ineffaceable impression. The play sparkles with humor, and is set amid scenes of unusual scenic beauty. Underlying the highly dramatic story and swift action is a vein of delicate fantasy and deep feeling.

Scene from "The Pursuit of Phantom" (Bosworth).

KLEINE BRANCHES VS. SPECIAL FEATURE RELEASES.

That a good deal of confusion exists in the mind of the average exhibitor as to what pictures are being handled through the Special Feature Department of the General Film Company and those booking direct through the various Kleine Offices, is evidenced by the misdirected letters received by both institutions. The Special Feature Department of the General Film Company is handling "Anne Boleyn," "A Kingdom at Stake," "Othello," "The Secret of the Ring," "The Song of the Soul," "Vendetta" and "The Golden Beetle." Inquiries for those pictures should be addressed to the General Film Company. The various Kleine Offices are handling "Quo Vadis?" "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Between Savage and Tiger," "Spartacus," "The Lion of Venice," "European Armies in Action" and a number of two, three and four-reel special releases.

FIRE MARSHAL AFTER PICTURE MEN.

Final notices have been sent by the fire marshal to those delinquent picture theater managers of Detroit, Mich., who have failed to comply with the state law recently upheld by the Supreme Court, providing that all picture theaters must be examined twice each year by the fire marshals. There are 128 moving picture theaters in Detroit, and all but 25 have observed the law. For such an examination each picture house has to pay an annual fee of $10. If the theater meets with the requirements of the fire marshal's office a license from the state to operate is granted.

BOSWORTH BANQUET TO NEWSPAPER MEN.

In order to spread the gospel of the better kind of motion pictures and to interest Philadelphia newspaper critics who handle "legit" reviews, Bosworth, Inc., through Carl H. Pierce, gave a banquet at the Hotel Adelphia, Philadelphia, on Wednesday evening, September 23.

The banquet was a success, as everyone present can attest. The prediction was freely made that before another year rolls around half, if not all, of the Philadelphia dailies will have motion picture sections. At present there is only one paper which carries film news, the Evening Telegraph.

Present also was J. Louis Breitinger, the chief censor of motion pictures of Pennsylvania. He proved himself to be "one of the boys" and outlined how he is trying to systematize the work of his office so as to cause the film men as little inconvenience as possible.

Other guests were W. Barron Lewis, city editor of the Press; Howard Dieck, dramatic editor of the Record; Howard Bonte, dramatic editor of the Public Ledger; Harry Knapp, dramatic editor of the Inquirer; Steve Talbot, Billboard; F. V. Armato, motion picture editor Evening Telegraph; A. D. Ferris, dramatic editor Evening Telegraph; B. Diamond, dramatic editor North American, and William E. Smith, Famous Players Exchange, handling Paramount Program.

"ON THE BATTLE LINE."

Captain Pemberton, an English army officer, together with a couple of troopers and a friend, are cut off, surrounded and attacked by a detachment of the enemy's horsemen. Hastily taking refuge behind a natural barricade, they fight heroically against overwhelming odds. One of the soldiers manages to ride through the hostile lines and get away, soon returning with a squadron of British cavalry. A sharp engagement follows, in which the squadron routs the bloodthirsty Arabs who have surrounded Pemberton and his party. This is the series of scenes which gives its name to George Kleine's two-part feature "On the Battle Line," scheduled for release through the General Film Company, Tuesday, October 13, 1914.

Scene from "On the Battle Line" (Kleine).

"On the Battle Line," is a story that thrills and points a moral. It tells how a young Londoner, branded as a coward at home because he refuses to fight a duel, goes to Africa and proves his metal on the firing line. Besides being tensely dramatic from the first subtitle to the last frame of film this subject offers a splendid example of the superiority of moral courage over physical bravery. Those who have seen advance showings of the film declare that it is one of the best two-part subjects ever released under the Kleine banner.

"SIGN OF THE CROSS" PRAISED IN ENGLAND.

The screen version of Wilson Barrett's "The Sign of the Cross," which was recently filmed by the Famous Players, with William Farnum in the role of Marcus the Roman, and which has just been released in Great Britain in order to fill bookings obtained as far in advance as last spring, has received unusual praise from all the English trade periodicals and leading film authorities. The subject is scheduled as a forthcoming production on the Famous Players program.

ABRAMS DISCOVERS LINCOLN.

A hurried trip to Blandford, Mass., by Charles (Feature) Abrams last week, resulted in the discovery of the cause of the mysterious disappearance of E. K. Lincoln from the surface of the motion picture map.

Not idling, resting on the laurels gained as leading man in "The Littlest Rebel" and long previous honors accruing in his work at the Vitagraph Studio, Lincoln has been maturing plans for a new producing company to be called the E. K. Lincoln Players.

Ed. Lincoln "Working" Amid the Beauties of Nature.

With his associates he has been working on and almost completed a one, two and three-reel production, whose titles and specific character are yet unannounced.

Through his New York representative, Mr. Lincoln has been diligently searching for a site for a studio within a short distance from New York, and also through the dramatic and literary fields for books and plays worthy of motion picture presentation.

"THIRTY MINUTES IN MELODRAMA."

"Thirty Minutes in Melodrama," the second production of the Santa Barbara Motion Picture Company, shortly to be released through Sawyer, Inc., is one of the most novel two reel comedies ever put out. The plot deals with an old fashioned traveling melodrama troupe which strikes the town of Hickville. It is a scream from start to finish—a burlesque on the old time troopers that should be heartily welcomed in every picture house able to secure it.

Scene from "Thirty Minutes in Melodrama" (Sawyer).

Particularly amusing are the company jealousies, displayed in scenes in the country hotel, and in the theater dressing rooms. Next we see the audience watching the stage presentation "in three acts and eighteen scenes." Every device used in old fashioned melodrama is humorously exploited—the villain, the villainess, the hero, the heroine, the old rube, the young rube and the rube girl are all there not to mention the sheriff and a few other characters never absent from such a show. The hero saves the heroine from an untimely death in waves of waving canvas, from a bomb, and many, many other times from the villain's wiles. The great trouble with the film is the fact that the laugh you start in the first scene will be hard to stop after the picture is finished.

H. STANLEY.

A PECULIARITY about H. Stanley, one of the leading players with the Western Eclair Company at Tucson, Arizona, is that he refuses to divulge his first name and is generally known by his initial "H." Aside from this Mr. Stanley is completely normal in every way and is conceded to be one of the most virile and capable picture players working in western films today. He has to his credit an experience of three years with the Vitagraph Company of America, during which time he played many parts. Starting as a lowly extra, he worked up to a place in the stock company. He left them to appear in Kalem productions and after a brief stay at their New York Studio was engaged for a character role in one of A. H. Woods' productions. During a space of almost two years Mr. Stanley played parts with various companies under Mr. Wood's direction and also points with pride to a stock engagement with Corse Payton, undoubtedly one of the best known stock players in the world.

Since "joining out" with the Western Eclair players at their studio in Tucson, he has done some really remarkable portrayals of western characters. One which has added greatly to his popularity is that of the "Cisco Kid" in "The Caballero's Way," a three-reel production from the late O. Henry's story. He is young, good looking and ambitious, and is greatly in love with the western life and his work as a picture player.

AISTON SUES MOHAWK FILM CO.

Through his attorney, Paul D. Cravath, Arthur C. Aiston has entered suit against the Mohawk Film Co., of The Times Building, for a sum of money stipulated in a contract which was to be paid in lieu of production of "Tennessee's Pardner" on or before a certain date.

The first picture of the Mohawk Film Co., "Hearts of Oak," was given a showing at the American Theater and afterwards bought on a percentage basis by the Paramount Picture Corporation.

Although the time limit on the "Tennessee's Pardner" contract expired June 5, 1914, suit was not entered until a few days ago, as the plaintiff, Arthur C. Aiston, waited to give the Mohawk Film Co. plenty of time to make good the contract. On being advised that no more productions would be made by the Mohawk, Mr. Aiston immediately entered suit.

In all probability, "Tennessee's Pardner" will now be picturized by the Select Photo Play Producing Co., which recently finished "At the Old Cross Roads," another of Arthur C. Aiston's popular plays.

SHANNON FIFE AT HOME ON VACATION.

Shannon Fife, one of the staff writers of the Lubin studio, writes to a friend on the World that he is down in Dallas, Texas, on his semi-annual visit to his mother, "fattening up on cornbread, molasses and bacon." Singular how some men find pleasure in tantalizing the poor workmen.

EDGAR LEWIS JOINS BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS CO.

Edgar Lewis, who was the producing director of "The Littlest Rebel," "Captain Swift" and "Northern Lights," has been engaged by the Box Office Attractions Company to produce Henri Bernstein's "The Thief."

"KID REGAN'S HANDS" (Rex).

Do you suppose you could refrain from striking the man who insulted the woman you loved if you knew it would injure your chances for a successful future? Or do you think you would cast discretion to the winds and obey the impulse to thrash the imposter? Perhaps you would be far-sighted enough to abide your time and await your opportunity to give the culprit his just deserts. It takes wonderful self-control and a great amount of will power to stand idly by and see the woman you love insulted, fully realizing that you could crush your victim if you raised your hand to strike. But if you also knew that you might in some way place yourself in a position to jeopardize your future and weaken your chances to marry the girl of your choice you would undoubtedly fight one of the hardest battles of conscience ever put up to a man.

Scene from "Kid Regan's Hands" (Rex).

"Kid Regan's Hands" is a masterpiece of its kind. Although dealing with the life of an aspirant for the middleweight championship, it is handled in a delicate fashion. Herbert Rawlinson, who plays Kid Regan, has the stature and build ideally suited for the part, and his acting is undoubtedly worthy of the highest praise. He is true to type and shows that he made a profound study of the pugilistic art of self-defense prior to his enacting the part of Kid Regan.

Anna Little is seen in the principal female role. Otis Turner is the director of the play. It will be released October 18.

FARREN IN HOSPITAL.

John J. Farren, secretary of the Rochester Theater Company, operators of the Victoria Theater, Rochester, N. Y., of which he is the manager, recently underwent an operation for spinal trouble at St. Mary's hospital, Rochester. The latest reports show that Mr. Farren is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances. This is a rather old ailment that has again returned. Some time ago Mr. Farren was operated upon for the same disorder at his home, which operation evidently did not prove entirely effective. During Mr. Farren's illness the destinies of the Victoria has been left in the hands of William J. Melarkey, assistant manager.

HUSTLE AT BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTION.

Four companies are engaged on the pretentious productions for The Box Office Attraction Company's program. These productions are adaptations from well-known novels and plays. It is the intention of the organization to release three features a week and three elaborate features a month and single reel comedies to fill in. Offices in all the large cities have been opened as follows: Cleveland, Boston, Syracuse, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City, Dallas, San Francisco, Denver, Minneapolis, Chicago and Seattle. Eleven more branches are now in the process of organization. The twelve that are now in full operation are managed by experts who have a thorough knowledge of local conditions. The same atmosphere of hustle which made all the William Fox enterprises what they are characterizes this gigantic movement.

CLAIRE WHITNEY WITH BOX OFFICE.

CLAIRE WHITNEY has recently been engaged by The Box Office Attraction Company to play leads in the feature productions to be released under the Fox Feature Brand. The first production in which she will make her appearance is "Life's Shop Window." Miss Whitney is not new to picture audiences. She started her career in the "movies" some three years ago with the Pathe Freres. She has also played many parts in the All-Star Vitagraph and Biograph Companies.

Claire Whitney.

Just previous to her engagement by The Box Office Attraction Company, she was leading woman for the Solax, and appeared with distinction in such productions as "The Lure," "Beneath the Czar," "Fighting Death" and "The Dream Woman" and several others. Miss Whitney has also had considerable stage experience. For two years she was on the road with George M. Cohan's Company in "The Little Blonde Lady." She has played in stock in New York as well as Boston, Chicago and San Francisco. Miss Whitney can play a varied line of parts, and her favorite is emotional roles.

In talking about her connection with The Box Office Attraction Company, she said, "I am happy to be among the Fox forces. I am sure that with the big plans that their directors have in view that I will be given a splendid opportunity for the display of what ability I have. My first part in 'Life's Shop Window' I have been wanting to play for a good many years and getting this part is really the realization of my aspirations."

"CUPID VICTOR" (Eclair).

An absolutely unique and artistic production released by the Eclair Film Co., Inc., on Sunday, October 11, is "Cupid Victor." This one reel fantasy features a cute little girl, named Ann-Eve Mansfield, supported by Mildred Bright and Scene from "Cupid Victor" (Eclair).

Stanley Walpole. There has been much written of child artists, but little Miss Mansfield is really a gifted juvenile actress, and her repression and facial expressions are something to marvel at for one of her years. The cast includes many Eclair artists, and the story tells of a stone cupid which suddenly comes to life and unites two stubborn lovers.

SANTA FE RAILROAD BOOSTING CALIFORNIA.

Further to interest Easterners and others in the attractions of California the Santa Fe Railroad is now engaged in taking a series of motion pictures in the Exposition State.

Notes of the Trade

MORE room has been the cry heard in Philadelphia offices of the World Film Corporation and the cry has been answered by General Manager Selznick's securing two floors for that branch, at 1314 Vine street. Manager Beilhoff is going to increase his staff to handle the overflow of business caused by the Shubert and Brady features, because the Philadelphia staff have been at work day and night to keep up with the business. The new offices are to be the finest in Philadelphia devoted to motion pictures.

* * *

Being hoisted from a swiftly moving motorboat on to a hydroaeroplane while traveling at full speed over the Pacific, is the experience of Signe Auen in the political story, "On the Wings of Love," just produced by W. Christie Cabanne of the Majestic-Mutual forces. A thrilling race between a motorboat and the hydroaeroplane is shown in the production.

* * *

"Down by the Sea," is a one-reel sea story from the American studios, under direction of Thomas Ricketts. Winnifred Greenwood plays the lead and "Chick" Morrison plays opposite as the brutal fisherman. Scheduled for release Wednesday, Oct. 14, 1914.

* * *

Max Figman has returned to Los Angeles from San Francisco, where he played to packed houses in "The Old Curiosity Shop." He will begin work immediately with the Masterpiece Film Manufacturing Company, and will play the title role in Edward Eggleston's "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." Lolita Robertson will play the principal female role.

* * *

In a scene for the Edison multiple, "The Pines of Lory," Marc MacDermott had a desperate struggle against a strong tide in rescuing Miriam Nesbitt from the waters of Rye Beach. Although a powerful swimmer, MacDermott's strength was almost exhausted when the shore was reached.

* * *

Hunter Bennett, assistant manager of the World Film Corporation, is spending the week in Chicago, looking over the doings in that office, and will return by way of Detroit and Cleveland, stopping a day in each town to visit the local managers of the World Film Corporation there.

* * *

Dorothy Gish is featured in "Back to the Kitchen," a Majestic-Mutual comedy, produced by Jack O'Brien at the Mutual studios in Los Angeles.

* * *

It is hard to imagine anything greater in the way of a treat for motion picture patrons than a Universal serial written by Louis Joseph Vance (author of the "Trey o' Hearts" series) and produced under the direction of Jacques Jaccard, with Jack Kerrigan in the title role, supported by a cast of such well-known stars as Vera Sisson, George Periolat and M. B. Robbins.

"Terrance O'Rourke, Soldier of Fortune," is the title of the story, and while it will appear as a series of twenty-odd adventures, it is a complete story in itself.

* * *

Thomas Commerford, the versatile character man with the Essanay company, delights in working in plays with a moral, and will appear shortly in "Whatsoever a Woman Soweth," which is a story of two souls that emerge from the depths.

* * *

Contracts have been closed by Harry C. Drum, general Western representative of the World Film Corporation, to place all the Shubert and Brady releases of that firm with the Princess theater, Denver, and the contract calls for the similar services for the remaining Princess houses in Colorado and Utah.

* * *

"Out of the Deputy's Hands" is the title of a Western melodrama produced by (Sheriff) Arthur Mackley at the Reliance and Majestic-Mutual studios in Los Angeles. The sheriff and his prisoner work side by side to keep the town from being destroyed by a flood.

* * *

There is a scene constructed at the Imp studio which should attract unusual attention for its elaborateness and perfection of detail when it appears in the two-reel weird Imp melodrama, "The Three Men Who Knew." This play, under the direction of Frank Crane, is just being completed. Mr. Crane also enacts the new role with Dorothy Phillips appearing in the only female role in the play. Stuart Paton is the author, assisting Mr. Crane in its direction.

* * *

Francis X. Bushman, who plays the leading role in Essanay's three-reel production, "In the Glare of the Lights," has had many fights during his career as a motion picture actor, but he claims the struggle with Lester Cuneo in front of the blasting furnace, at the South Chicago steel mills, is the fiercest he has yet experienced. Great chances were taken in staging this fight, as a single misstep by either of the actors would have resulted most disastrously.

* * *

H. G. Segal, manager of the New York Exchange, World Film Corporation, and his assistant, Jerome Sobel, were present at the opening of the Strand theater, White Plains, New York, Friday night, September 25. The opening attraction was Margaret Anglin, presenting her revival of "Lady Windermere's Fan." The Strand theater is to be the home of the Shubert and Brady features in White Plains.

* * *

A series of cartoons by A. B. Frost, the famous artist, in the Century Magazine furnishes the basis of the plot for "Dizzy Joe's Career," produced by Eddie Dillon of the Komic-Mutual Company at the Reliance and Majestic-Mutual studios in Los Angeles.

* * *

A royal reception was given to Robert Brower of the Edison company last week by his screen admirers at Hartford, Conn. When the fans had learned that Mr. Brower was stopping at his brother's home in Hartford, they called at the house in large numbers to behold in real life the grand old man of the Edison films.

* * *

Aside from the cheering reports from the various special feature departments of the General Film Company, the Kleine branch offices throughout the country report numerous requests for "Vendetta."

* * *

Joseph F. Partridge, special representative of the World Film Corporation, is making an extended trip on behalf of the company's interests throughout Western Canada. He will go as far as Vancouver on this tour.

* * *

"Paid with Interest" is the title of a two-reel heart interest Majestic-Mutual drama, featuring Mae Marsh and directed by Donald Crisp. Wire tapping is one of the features of the production. Robert Harron takes a prominent part.

* * *

A highly interesting drama done by the Imp company, while in Connecticut, is "Peg of the Wilds." It will soon be released on the Universal program.

* * *

In the Edison film, "Two's Company," Bliss Milford and William Wadsworth had a few exciting moments while making an ascent in a balloon. When a lofty altitude had been reached the craft became so unmanageable that the combined skill and labor of the occupants were required in order to effect a safe return to terra firma.

* * *

"In "The Real Agatha," a two-reel production to be released shortly by the Essanay company, Richard C. Travers, who plays the leading male part, saved two of the extra girls from drowning during a scene in which the young women are precipitated into the water from a capsized canoe. Mr. Travers said he did not become alarmed until he was bringing the second girl to shore, when he was not acting but really struggling to save two lives.

* * *

Joseph Klein has been appointed manager of the Detroit branch of the World Film Corporation. He comes to Detroit from Atlanta, Ga., where he has been connected with the Warner Features. Prior to joining the motion picture forces, Mr. Klein was associated with his brother Arthur in booking star vaudeville acts. When Gus Edwards produced "School Days" he chose Mr. Klein as his business manager.

* * *

Dorothy Gish is featured in "Sands of Fate," a strong two-reel Majestic-Mutual drama produced by Donald Crisp at the Mutual (Los Angeles) studios. Robert Harron, R. A. Walsh and Cora Drew are principals in the cast.

* * *

The Panama-Pacific Exposition Committee of New York City has arranged with the Vitagraph Company of America to take a series of comprehensive pictures of Greater New York for exhibition purposes at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco, scheduled to open February 7 and to close December 4, 1915. The taking of these pictures has been entrusted to Tefft Johnson, the Vitagraph director, and he is now actively engaged in securing them. Many of the scenes which he has taken are deftly interwoven with a novel story of the experiences of "Sonny Jim" (Bobby Connelly), who visits the city with his father and mother. These will be released in the regular service, aside from the Panama Exposition exhibit, at which all the many interesting points and features of the metropolis will be shown.

* * *

Grace Goodall, who will be remembered for the tremendous success she scored as the "head waitress" in the Cohan and Harris production, "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," is now being featured by the Edison company as "Fantasma," in the well-known play of that name successfully produced by the Hanlon Brothers on the legitimate stage.

* * *

"Jailbirds," a "Flying A" two reeler, is not a pleasing title, but the two-reel story is one which will be found to bear the specifications of a feature in every respect. The dramatic action is well sustained and the photographic quality is excellent. William Garwood and Vivian Rich play opposite, with Jack Richardson as the villain and Louise Lester and Harry Von Meter in character parts. Scheduled for release October 12, 1914.

* * *

Donald Crisp has produced "The Availing Prayer" at the Reliance and Majestic-Mutual studios, featuring Dorothy Gish in the production. R. A. Walsh and Spottiswoode Aitken are the other principals in the cast. The scenario was written by Richard Barker Shelton.

* * *

Hughie Mack, one of the comedians of the Vitagraph company, is writing a book on "How I Became a Comedian," and the opening sentence is indicative of the humorous possibilities of the forthcoming publication. "I was born in New York City and my grandfather, when informed of the happy event, said, 'That's funny;' so you see I have been a comedian from my birth." Hughie gives incidents bearing on the cause of his adopting his present calling through his newsboy days, the time he devoted to the undertaking business, taking care to explain that it was during this period of his existence he took on several hundred pounds of fat because he had nothing else to do.

* * *

The New York Eastern Reformatory at Napanock, N. Y., has purchased a Powers' Cameragraph No. 6-A motion picture projecting machine through the Picture Theatre Equipment Company of New York City.

* * *

"Nieda" (Beauty), in which Margarita Fischer is appearing as a child of the rocky waste, contains only three characters. It is a splendidly drawn little tragedy. Most of the scenes were taken beyond San Marcus Pass, at a high altitude, and make a notable picture. Excellent silhouettes on the sky-line prevail. Release, October 6, 1914.

Frederick Richard Sullivan, director of the new serial, "Zudora," and Daniel Carson Goodman, its creator, evidently believe in the unsuperstitiousness of the figure "13." They began taking exterior scenes in which Harry Benham, Jimmy Cruze and Marguerite Snow appear, with scene number 13.

* * *

"The Locked Door," which is to be released as one of the Vitagraph features, will have points of great interest to all municipalities throughout the world. It is a picture that brings out most decidedly the violation of our fire laws, to the destruction of life and property, and introduces a remedy that will set people thinking and acting for the betterment of mankind. The strong cast of Vitagraph players who assume the principal characters in this play is supplemented and aided by the most prominent officials of the Fire and Police Departments of Greater New York.

* * *

In order to secure the best possible atmosphere for his picture depicting the stages from wealth to poverty, John H. Collins, the Edison director, made a personal canvass of the lodging houses along the Bowery and engaged the services of four of the best types of human derelicts. The men were overjoyed with their work and ate heartily of the meals prepared for them by the Edison chef.

* * *

At the Fine Arts theater, Annette Kellermann as "Neptune's Daughter," the nude Diana of the Sea, comes to the world of morals to kill the king of men but falls in love with him, amid scenes of spectacular loveliness. This film masterpiece of the world is now in its twentieth week and will continue indefinitely.

* * *

Howell Hansel, director of "The Million Dollar Mystery" in Episode 18 has the largest ballroom set ever put on at the Thanhouser studio. It had several hundred characters in costume and all Saturday was "ballroom" day. It will be the most spectacular of the "Mystery" episodes.

* * *

The flora of Southern California is thought to be beautiful by some people, but it all depends from what angle you happen to see it. M. De La Parelle is producing a five-reel version of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," in which Max Figman is being featured. The story is laid in Indiana. The director found many available locations, but of every ten nine were useless, because of the beautiful pepper, eucalyptus and palm trees in the background. These trees would not look especially convincing in an Indiana story.

* * *

Sally Crute, the Edison leading lady, has recently returned from her summer home at Sound Beach to the Endicott Hotel. In a dancing contest held at the hotel last week, Miss Crute was awarded the first prize—a silver cup—with her initials engraved thereon.

* * *

"Cabiria," the world's greatest photo-spectacle, enters its fourth big week at the Ziegfeld theater and has now a record of eighteen weeks in Chicago. Film producers admit that Chicago is the most generous city in the country to big photo productions, and will eventually be the moving picture center of the United States for profitable exhibition.

* * *

W. Eugene Moore is producing a single reel dealing with Westchester County Fair scenes, written by Lloyd F. Lonergan with Miss Heller in the star part. It will be called "Mr. Cindrella."

* * *

The Masterpiece Film Manufacturing Company believes that there is a big market for legitimate, up-to-date comedy-dramas, not slap-stick or farce comedies but the plain straight article. They announce that they will make a year's program of ten subjects.

* * *

It was never known that May Abbey was an advocate of the manly art until she donned the gloves with William Wadsworth in the Edison comedy, "Wood B. Wedd and the Microbes." After Wadsworth had been floored three times, the signal from Director Ransom to cease was music to his ears.

* * *

Captain Wilbert Melville manager of the Lubin Los Angeles studio, is spending a pleasant vacation at the home plant, Philadelphia. This is the first visit the captain has made here in over a year and he has received a royal welcome.

* * *

The Paramount Film Corporation of Philadelphia, Pa., has purchased a Powers' Cameragraph No. 6-A motion picture projecting machine through L. M. Swaab of that city.

* * *

We understand that litigation in regard to the Luna-Lite screen patents has just been settled and that a company has been formed to control the name and material with headquarters in Richmond, Ind.

* * *

Lillian Christy, who has played leads with Kalem and Vitagraph, is now a member of the Frontier Company, at Santa Paula, Cal.

* * *

Ruth Hartman, formerly of the Vitagraph and Kalem Companies, has been engaged by The Favorite Players Film Company to play leads, opposite Carlyle Blackwell, in his production of Richard Harding Davis' famous story, "The Man Who Could Not Lose," which was adapted by Robert A. Dillon. Miss Hartman has had considerable experience in posing for motion pictures and was on the high road to fame, when she was taken seriously ill and had to retire from active work for some time, on this account.

* * *

Isadore Bernstein, general manager of the West Coast Universal Studios, has just finished a story, "Foundlings of Father Time," which will undoubtedly set him as high in the ranks of scenario writers as his active efficiency has set him in the ranks of business men.

Edwin August, producer of Eaco Films, last week took motion pictures of the entire August family. Edwin August appeared and directed this August feaure, in which each member of the family played leading parts.

* * *

Louis Machat, manager of the World Film Corporation Boston branch, was in the company's general offices early last week, going over the plans for his territory. Another live visitor was Manager G. Beihoff, of the Philadelphia offices.

* * *

In Lee Willard, G. M. Anderson has a very valuable and versatile person for the western Essanay productions, and one whose work has won him praise.

* * *

Dolly Larkin, who has been with Frontier for the past six months as leading woman, has closed with that company.

* * *

Manager Arthur S. Hyman of the Atlanta branch of the World Film Corporation is getting theatre bookings in his district for the special release "America" which is now to be handled by the World Film Corporation instead of by the Shuberts who were the original distributors of the feature.

* * *

"Human Hearts," the famous old melodrama, by Hal Reid, is to be rejuvenated, transformed and adapted for a two reel photoplay, in which the Imp Star, King Baggott, is to be featured.

* * *

Another Frontier company has been created, and will also produce Western dramas. Jos. J. Franz is the director.

* * *

George Kleine's "Vendetta" which was released through the special feature department of the General Film Co., September 1, is coming in for heavy advertising on the part of exhibitors.

Picture Theatres Projected

HAVANA, ILL.—Dr. L. G. Pullen will erect a $15,000 moving picture theater in this town.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—C. E. Graham is having plans prepared for moving picture theater, 50 by 80 feet, to cost $20,000.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—William M. Butterfield, 142 Sagamore street, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected in this city by local business interests.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—C. R. Zacharis will erect a one-story moving picture theater to cost $1,000.

NORWOOD, O.—Edward and Harry Hart, 427 Central avenue, are having plans prepared for a one and two-story theater building, with seating capacity for about 1,000 persons and to cost $100,000.

STEELTON, PA.—R. M. Frey will build a two-story brick moving picture theatre, 40 by 120 feet, to cost $30,000.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Royal Southern Amusement Company will build a one-story addition to their theater building, 100 by 125 feet, to cost $50,000.

SHAWANO, WIS.—George Nagle is planning to build a two-story moving picture theater, 40 by 110 feet, to cost $15,000.

GRAND RAPIDS, WIS.—W. F. Finzel, manager of the Gem theater, is having plans prepared for a new theater building, 40 by 120 feet.

LONGBEACH, CAL.—Markwell Brothers are having plans prepared for an eight-story theater, store and office building, to cost about $350,000. A site has been selected on the corner of Pine street and Ocean avenue.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Eastern Amusement Co. will build an addition to their moving picture theater, to cost about $3,000.

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Plaza Theater Co., J. E. Bryant, manager, have awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater, 60 by 125 feet.

COGGON, IA.—M. J. Bouthell has obtained the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 44 by 90 feet, to cost $6,000.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Royal Amusement Co., 43 Pleasant street, are having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, to cost $15,000.

BOSTON, MASS.—C. H. Blackall, 20 Beacon street, is preparing plans for a four-story theater building 45 by 168 feet.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—Dr. J. Lowney, 589 North Main street, is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, to cost $15,000.

HIGHLAND PARK, MICH.—Smith & Kohner, 302 Free Press building, are preparing plans for a two-story theater building, 40 by 90 feet. There will be two stores on the ground floor. A dance hall will occupy the second floor.

OMAHA, NEB.—C. W. Wigington, 220 South 13th street, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater and drug store, 40 by 60 feet, to cost $4,500.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—C. F. Long, 1 Montgomery street, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 50 by 90 feet, to cost $10,000.

TROY, N. Y.—Jasper Battragla, 379 Second street, will shortly build a one-story moving picture theater, 50 by 70 feet, to cost $7,500.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Ellis Wolff, 301 Oxford street, will build an addition to his moving picture theater, 35 by 55 feet, one-story, to cost $5,000.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Sonn Brothers, 149 Church street, are having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater, 100 by 100 feet, to cost $35,000.

SHELBY, O.—Caster & Stanbaugh are having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, 30 by 150 feet, to cost $15,000.

MONONGAHELA, PA.—Ideal Theater Company will expend about $1,500 in remodeling their moving picture theater.

Exhibitors News

Interesting Information Concerning Moving Picture Men Gathered By Moving Picture World Correspondents Everywhere.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THERE is a little more stir noticeable in the moving picture business of the National Capital and the exhibitors are beginning to feel a little more confident. The past summer has been a hard one and those who "broke even" consider themselves exceptionally lucky. The near approach of fall is putting vim into everything and, although no one is experiencing "capacity houses," box office receipts have taken a decided jump upward. The various exchanges are reporting increased business, especially in the booking of high-priced features.

In speaking of features, it was for a long time thought that better prices could be obtained here through the showing of high grade productions, but after the inability of Tom Moore, a premier show man, to get away with twenty-five and fifty-cent prices at the beautiful Strand theater, the exhibitors have come to the conclusion that Washington is decidedly a five and ten-cent town. For the past week or more the subject of price has been discussed freely by the exhibitors, for this is a serious matter with them. In the first place, the moving picture business was started in Washington as a cheap amusement and the people will not pay more than the original cost of admission. Some of the houses are running bargain shows, giving as high as seven pictures for five cents; others, showing four reels, it is said, will give six and even seven tickets for twenty-five cents. The "Country Store" proposition is also condemned, as is the giving of any other inducement which means a distribution of profits. The wiser ones say that those who are going to these extremes are gradually killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, and suggest that those whose actions approach the movements of a drowning man grasping at a straw would do better if they would but improve the quality of their pictures and music.

C. L. Worthington, of the Eclectic Film Company, has announced that he will hereafter give an exhibition of releases in the exhibition room maintained by his company at the corner of Seventh and E streets, Northwest, each Tuesday and Friday afternoon at two o'clock, and a cordial invitation is being extended to all exhibitors in this territory to avail themselves of this opportunity to see their offerings. This new exhibition room is proving a very popular place.

J. B. Hales, of the Crystal theater, Goldsboro, N. C., was a visitor here last week.

The "Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement was the subject of a "take" when two cameras were focussed on Speaker Clark, of the House of Representatives, Congressman Johnson, of South Carolina, Miss Genevieve Clark, Miss Lucy Burleson, and Miss Callie Hoke Smith, as they walked out upon the east steps of the Capitol on the occasion of the receipt by the young women of three belts of cotton cloth made in the district of Congressman Johnson. Each of the young women were attired in cotton dresses. The cotton goods is to be used in the making of gowns to be exhibited at the cotton fashions show at the New Willard Hotel, Oct. 7 and 8.

"The Perils of Pauline" are being given additional publicity in this city by the singing of the new piece, "Poor Pauline," in the vaudeville houses on this circuit. The song, the words of which were written by Charles McCarron, relate the experiences of "Pauline" in a very sympathetic manner. This serial is meeting with considerable favor in Maryland, Virginia and such part of West Virginia as is included in the territory of the local office of the Eclectic Film Company.

The Kalorama Film Company, of this city, report the production of two comedies. Jack Rogerson assumed the leading comedy role, with Miss Mary Randolph playing opposite him in an eccentric comedy character.

The moving picture theater recently opened at 1402 Fourteenth street, Northwest, is to be named the Elite theater. This house is under the management of C. W. Madert. Its capacity is 350, with a large space at the rear enclosed within brass rails for the accommodation of many more patrons. The walls are French gray in color and the ceiling is of white art metal, and from this latter six chain-hung lights are suspended. These are of a high power and give a light almost equivalent to daylight and one can read a newspaper in any part of the house with ease. These lights are inclosed in blue-green tinted globes which soften the rays to such an extent that they do not interfere with the projection. Although but 24 feet wide, the house has a depth of 156 feet. The fact that the ceiling of the rear half of the theater is considerably higher than at the front has given the opportunity of building the operator's booth within about fifty feet of the screen, thus escaping the longer throw. The ventilation is good and there are three single and one double exits and one double entrance. Considerable attention is being paid to the pictures shown, most of them being early runs, and Mr. Madert reports a very satisfactory business.

The Odeon theater, on Church near Fourteenth street, Northwest, has been reopened under the management of H. H. Elliott. This is a very handsome neighborhood theater, attractively decorated in ancient Greek design. This house is equipped for both moving pictures and vaudeville, having a good-sized stage and two dressing rooms for the accommodation of the "stars." There are also two retiring rooms for the patrons. In the center of the ceiling is a six-foot ventilator enclosed within a circle of electric lights. The house is very high studded, the distance from the ceiling to the floor being more than thirty feet. The house is equipped with a large hot water system for winter service and in the summer a dozen or more fans are kept in motion. The operator's station is equipped with a Powers and an Edison machine and an electric rewinder. A piano with mandolin and drum attachments is a new feature here. The entrance to this theater is very attractive and, like the interior, is fashioned after an ancient Greek theater. The center of the front is arched while the space on either side is paneled. The ticket office is built out in pergola style with round gilded top and over this as well as the entire front there has been placed a large number of small electric lights.

The Arcade theater, which is now operated by Young & Crandall and which is under the management of the latter, is soon to undergo quite a change, for the partition which now separates it from the public hallway of the Arcade Building is to be pushed back and one hundred additional seats will then be put in. A number of other improvements are also to be made at this time.

M. J. Freeman has assumed the management of the Royal theater, at 3036 Fourteenth street, Northwest, and has had that house repainted and redecorated. A 36-inch exhaust fan has been put in, and a new Edison machine and a piano has been added to the equipment. Mr. Freeman is an old hand in the moving picture business, having operated the Eagle theater in High Point, N. C., for three years and the Star theater in Rock Hill, S. C., for two years and for several years he toured the south with a portable airdome. He is also connected with the New theater in Brunswick, Md., at the present time.

R. J. Reynolds, manager of the New Albany theater, Brooklyn, N. Y., spent several days in this city last week, making his headquarters at the Elite theater.

LINZ

NORTHWESTERN NEW YORK.

THE Hall Theater Corporation has been formed in Buffalo, with a capital of $2,000. The incorporators are Robert H. Tifft, Martin J. Nieman and Walter C. Newcomb, all of that city.

John A. McNamara has become press agent for the Club theater, Rochester, N. Y.

The new Regent moving picture theater, Main and Utica streets, Buffalo, has been opened. Henry Marcus is director of the Symphony orchestra of that house. A description of the Regent will be given later.

Miss Mary O'Connor, president of the Teachers' Educational League of Buffalo, recently referred to moving pictures at a meeting of that organization. Miss O'Connor attended the last convention of the National Educational Association at St. Paul. She told her Buffalo associates that at the convention the use of moving pictures in the schools was advocated.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Buffalo will hold regular meetings during the coming season. Questions dealing with the improvement of the moving picture business in that city will be discussed.

Edward L. Hyman has been in charge of the Strand moving picture theater, Buffalo, during the absence of Manager Edel in New York.

KENTUCKY.

BUSINESS with the Louisville exhibitors is better just now than it has ever been known to be at this season. The regular play houses are beginning to open, but high class features at ten cents are very popular with the public. Announcements have been made during the week of half a dozen new picture houses to be put into operation in the next four or five months. The business is increasing steadily and several new film manufacturing concerns are coming into the field throughout the South.

Work on remodeling the Empire theater at Shelby and Market streets, Louisville, is coming along rapidly, and the house will be ready to be opened in a few days. A temporary curtain was hung while the big mirror screen was being moved back and the shows have gone ahead uninterrupted. Business has been good in spite of the fact that the house was torn up, and the Sunday crowds have been extra large.

Adam Spahn, a well-known local politician and member of the last Kentucky Legislature, and Fred Sneidon, of the S. & P. Film Supply Company, have formed an agreement whereby the old stone fire engine house at Preston and Jefferson streets, Louisville, will be remodeled into a motion picture house for colored people. The house will be known as the Lincoln theater. It will be opened in about two weeks, and the admission price will be set at ten cents.

Announcement has been made that the Masonic theater, Louisville, which operates burlesque during the week and motion pictures on Sunday, will lower tae admission prices on Sunday from twenty-five cents to five cents and run from 1 o'clock to 11 o'clock. The performance will run straight through without showing duplicate reels.

Joe Hebert, Louisville manager of the Warner Feature Film Company, has purchased the Jefferson theater, of Jeffersonville, Ind., and will open it in about ten days in opposition to Switow's Dream theater. The house has been closed for some time past, but under the new management ought to go well. Mr. Hebert will continue as manager of the Warner office, and will show the Warner films in the new house.

William Bryant, of Pleasureville, Ky., motored into Louisville last week to call on some of the local supply houses. Mr. Bryant is operating a house at Pleasureville and is considering opening two more houses in towns near his home. He is a prominent merchant and banker as well as an exhibitor.

The big multiple reel production, "The Trey o' Hearts," is being shown at the Novelty, Empire, Hippodrome theater, and Sun of Louisville. The feature has taken remarkably well. "The Million Dollar Mystery" is another big continued feature which has brought patrons back to the theaters week after week.

September 12 was the closing date for practically all of the airdomes and the few that ran later are now closed. The season was the best the airdomes have ever experienced, due, in part, to the extremely hot early summer.

William Tapp, who has been an operator at the Majestic theater, Louisville, since that house was opened in Louisville several years ago, has made arrangements to remodel the old Market house, at Eighteenth and Market streets, and open a picture show and dance hall. The picture house will have a seating capacity of 800 and will be known as the "Empress." The admission price will be five cents, as the theater is situated in a factory district. Two machines will be put in operation.

L. J. Dittmar, president of the Majestic Amusement Company, Louisville, an officer in the Kentucky Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, and interested in several local show houses, has announced that a new motion picture house will be constructed in the Arcadia Building at Fourth and Broadway. The Arcadia is a large dance hall on the second floor, with stores underneath and the motion picture house will occupy space now used as store rooms and run to the roof. A part of the dance hall promenade will be used, but the dance floor will not be cut into. When completed the house will have a seating capacity of 1,500 on the first floor and balcony. Work will start October 1. The Fourth street entrance to the dance hall will be closed and tae Broadway entrance used thereafter. The two amusements will be handled in conjunction with each other. The new theater will probably be known as the "Arcadia" and will be operated by the Central Amusement Company.

Less Thurman, stage manager at B. F. Keith's theater, Louisville, is remodeling a building at Shelby and Mason streets for a picture show. The house will be operated as a five-cent attraction, and will run in opposition to the East Broadway theater.

E. J. Wiseman, of Harrodsburg, Ky., left last week for the East to make arrangements for new scenery for his one-night stand. He reports that the motion picture business this summer has been exceptionally good and he is more than satisfied with conditions.

W. W. Early, proprietor of the New Grand, of Eminence, is planning a new theater at Newcastle, Ky., four miles from his present theater. Mr. Early's country home is midway between the two towns and with the aid of his motor car it will be comparatively easy to handle both houses at once. The new house will have a seating capacity of 400.

William Salyer, manager of the Star theater of Carrollton, Ky., has leased the new Richmond Opera House and has plans for remode..ng the Star theater. He left early this week for Chicago to secure new equipment and additional bookings for the two show houses.

E. S. Hahn, of Tyrone, Ky., an employee of the Kentucky Distilleries &. Warehouse Company, has completed and opened "The Tyrone," which has a seating capacity of 300. The new house is doing nicely and Mr. Hahn is very much pleased with his venture.

Charles E. Bottom, manager of the Perryville theater, of Perryville, Ky., has purchased the entire stock of his partners in the concern and is now sole owner. He is operating the house Saturday and Wednesday nights, giving a matinee performance on Saturdays.

H. G. Ward, manager of the Enterprise theater, of Campbellsburg, Ky., is busy just now making several minor alterations and painting and redecorating. Business has been good this year in spite of the drouth in the early summer and a number of revival meetings during the latter part of the summer. These revivals put the motion picture business out of commission while they were on, and the house was closed for two nights.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

KANSAS

OTTO FEESS of Parsons, Kansas, is tearing down one of his theaters and replacing it by a larger one. The new house will be modern, and will be one of the finest in that section of the country. It will seat about 1,200.

Sandford Loomis, at Emporia, Kansas, has opened his new theater. As a matter of fact this theater is the old one made over, but there has been so much work done on it and so many changes made that it can, in all truthfulness, be called a new theater. It has a beautiful stucco front; it is entirely remodeled and enlarged on the interior, and will now seat over 1,000.

The opera house at Parsons, Kansas, has resumed its shows, after remodeling and redecorating. It is using a Mutual program and expects to do a good business this fall and winter.

Bob Holmes, at Emporia, Kansas, has just completed a new $30,000 theater, which will give its opening show soon.

The Royal theater, at Hiawatha, Kansas, is now running a matinee every Saturday, and expects to continue doing so all winter. The management tried this last winter and found it a paying proposition. It was found that many of the farmers' wives coming to town had to go home in time to prepare supper for their husbands, and since they could not see the evening show they were glad to take time to go to the matinee.

The old Majestic theater at Topeka, Kansas, has been converted into a moving picture theater and is now called the "Hip." L. M. and Roy Crawford are the owners. The manager of the theater will be Jack Wilson of Topeka.

The Civic Welfare League at Galena, Kansas, is making an effort to secure the use of the .. ms owned by the State which show the causes and effects of tuberculosis. These films, if secured, will be shown to the citizens free of charge and will be accompanied by a lecture dealing with tuberculosis from every angle.

Frank A. Davis, an exponent of good roads, and secretary of the Indiana Good Roads Association, while taking a trip to Raton, N. M., made moving pictures of the interesting points on the road. These pictures he exhibited in some Kansas houses on his return, and says that the venture was quite profitable. The money will be used for the construction of better roads in Indiana.

C. I. Howell and L. H. Sawyer of Wichita are negotiating for filming the Kaffir Corn Carnival at Eldorado next month.

Harry Wolf and G. S. Girard have bought from F. P. Lindsey the Star theater on East Sixth street, Topeka. They have changed its name to the U-N-O. They have set the admission price at five cents and will show four reels. Children under 10 years of age, accompanied by their parents, will be admitted free, it is announced.

The Empress theater at Wichita has opened in its new dress; matinees are given daily with two shows at night. The house offers five acts of vaudeville and four reels of moving pictures. The prices are 5c and 10c for matinees, and 10c, 15c and 20c for the evening shows.

The Aurora theater, Topeka, gave a baby matinee during the State fair. Every woman accompanied by a baby under three years of age was admitted free. This feature was put on because of the baby show, which was an important adjunct of the State fair, bringing many mothers from out of town with their contesting offspring. The house was crowded, of course, and the mothers enjoyed the show undisturbed by any fear that the babies were disturbing the actors.

The Isis theater at Hutchinson is getting considerable advertising from the Gazette, which is giving tickets to this theater as a prize to the person who finds his name concealed in want ads. Everybody in Hutchinson is reading the want ads with the hope of getting six free admissions to the Isis.

BROWN.

SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST.

GEORGE H. WALKER, owner of the Hancock Opera House at Austin, Tex., is the lessee of the New Exchange theater at Temple, Tex., which was erected last year at an expenditure of $40,000. Many road shows have been booked but "Neptune's Daughter" is among the early attractions, indicating that some pictures will be played.

Slides showing how to prevent accidents will be run in moving picture houses in San Antonio, Tex., as a part of the campaign by the Safety First Committee of the San Antonio Traction Company.

The Palmetto Film Company of Columbia, S. C., has been granted a charter with a capital stock of $5,000 to engage in the production, sale and rental of moving picture films. The incorporators are George Rucker and E. Harvey Hand.

S. J. Callaway, probation officer at Fort Worth, Tex., has endorsed the three-reel feature, "Saved by the Juvenile Court," featuring Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Colo., and predicts that the bookings in the Texas territory will help that state to get some needed juvenile legislation.

The Grand theater at Atlanta, Ga., after twenty weeks of operation reduced its prices to 10 cents for the best seats in the afternoon (ladies and children 5 cents) and at night 10 cents for the entire orchestra and five cents for the balcony.

Charles Mumford has purchased the Palace theater at Kiefer, Okla., from M. Frong and will operate it as a vaudeville and moving picture show.

H. C. Wiley has opened a moving picture show at Sayre, Okla.

Miss Lea BeaVert has sold her interest in the BeaVert moving picture theater at Durant, Okla., to W. C. Rose. The new name of the house will be a coined word, "Wilro."

"The Human Shield, or the Great Penitentiary Delivery," produced by Hot Springs talent in local settings had a big run at the Royal theater in Hot Springs.

The Palace theater at Little Rock, Ark., was given over for a Sunday performance by the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the benefit of the Red Cross Society. The film, "Pilgrim's Progress," was accompanied by a sacred concert. A free will offering was taken at the door.

L. F. Martin has sold the Jewel theater and Airdome at Coweta, Okla., to A. R. Leftewich, who has been managing them for the last three months.

The Jefferson theater at St. Augustine, Fla., has been re-opened under the management of E. R. Groff and his father. The house has been greatly improved. A new policy has been adopted which will make the theater exclusively for white persons.

A Florida Booster car, which began an invasion of the North the middle of September, carries moving picture films which it will loan to local moving picture houses. These show agricultural scenes in Florida.

Manager W. J. Lytle of the new Empire theater at San Antonio, Tex., which will be opened about the middle of November, has signed a contract to use Paramount Pictures in the house. The theater, which will seat 1,820 persons, will be one of the most attractive in the Lone Star State.

Kloeber & Thomas have installed a new $5,300 electrically operated pipe organ in the Hippodrome theater at Miami, Fla.

R. G. Burkhardt has been appointed manager of the New Bijou theater at West Palm Beach, Fla.

The moving picture of the national Rotary Club convention which was held at Houston, Texas, was shown at the Carter Roof in Houston.

George Owens has been appointed local manager of the Princess theater at Hot Springs, Ark., which opened September 21. The house is running four acts of vaudeville and from two to three reels of feature pictures. A new Simplex and a Powers 6-A machine have been installed.

Houston, Tex., parties have been at Orange, Texas, with a view to opening a moving picture house in that city.

Moving pictures of the highway between Amarillo and San Antonio, Texas, which is a part of the Puget Sound to the Gulf Highway, have been sent on a fourteen-day tour of the towns in Texas.

A number of schools in Houston, Texas, are planning to install moving picture machines for use in instruction the coming term.

H. M. Mason of Kansas City has been appointed manager of the moving picture show at Pawnee, Okla., which is owned by Mrs. Hughes.

L. B. Long is the new manager of the Gem theater at Perry, Okla.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

MISSOURI.

THE Bijou theater at Brookfield has been substantially improved by the building of a more up-to-date front, and the addition of an electric arc. Its patrons were given quite a treat on the opening night, September 13.

The Blake theater at Webb City, Mo., opened September 19. I. L. Davis has taken a lease for five years on the building. Mr. Davis is an experienced theater man, having been for three years general manager of the Tri-State Amusement Company at Elmira, New York. The Tri-State operated a string of theaters through the Eastern and Central part of New York State, and Mr. Davis expects to build up such a circuit in Missouri.

The new Hippodrome, formerly the Grand Opera House, at Carthage, Mo., was opened for the season September 6. The show is running vaudeville and pictures and is managed by H. E. Ulrich of Kansas City, Mo.

The People's theater at Springfield, Mo., was opened September 5, under the management of the Consolidated Booking offices at Kansas City, Mo. Vaudeville and photoplays will compose the offerings of the new house, and it will be managed by William P. Duff.

The Delphus theater at Carthage, Mo., has found a way to boost the receipts for their Monday matinee. They have made arrangements with most of the merchants of Carthage to give one ticket to the Delphus with each twenty-five cent purchase. The tickets, of course, are supplied to the merchants at a discount, but at the same time a good profit is made on the afternoon show.

The Star theater at Hannibal, Mo., is giving coupons with each entrance ticket. On October 3 the boy or girl having the most coupons gets a small automobile.

The Happy Hour theater at Springfield, Mo., is certainly advertising "The Trey o' Hearts" to the limit. On each day before the film is shown they run a full page advertisement in the Springfield Republican.

The Airdome at Nevada, Mo., made a hit with pictures of local interest, home persons in the cast, which had been made by the Nugget Motion Picture Company of Joplin. The program on this occasion was a largely home show, including the Shriners' parade at Joplin, scenes on the White River dam, in the Carthage quarries and of mines around Joplin; and International Dry Farming pictures from Tulsa, Okla.

BROWN.

MICHIGAN.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S moving pictures when shown at the Fuller theater in Kalamazoo, were under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association of that city. This practice has been followed for a number of years.

A children's prize singing contest was a recent feature attraction at the Lyric theater at Calumet. In order not to interfere with school work it was held on Friday night.

Newsboys of the Chronicle on their annual outing day were the guests of Manager A. C. Knapp at a picture and vaudeville show at the Empress theater.

The Apollo theater at Holland was given over to the Modern Woodmen of America and the Royal Neighbors of America for a benefit performance for a motorman who was injured in an interurban railway accident.

Henry Tuttle has re-equipped the Delmont theater at Cheboygan.

The Chamber of Commerce at Jackson proposes to have its boosting film, "A Race for a Bride," censored and then sent on a tour of 182 cities of more than 5,000 population.

F. Tennyson Neely, who gave his nine reels of pictures and also some slides on "The Havoc of War" at the Washington theater in Bay City, offered free admission to clergymen, school teachers, physicians and unemployed newsboys.

It is reported that White Pine, a mining camp in Ontonagon county where 150 men are employed, may have a picture show giving two exhibitions a week.

A. E. Bridges of Maple Ridge has awarded the contract for the construction of a two-story 40x60 opera house and dance hall at Maple Ridge to be completed this fall.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE California Development Board has purchased a Motiograph projection machine and has installed the apparatus in its lecture room in the Ferry Building. Industrial films will be shown twice daily without charge, in connection with illustrated lectures. During the present week pictures taken in the oil fields have been featured. Several of the counties of the State that have headquarters in the Ferry Building are also presenting free lectures illustrated with moving pictures.

The Bell theater in the Mission District, which recently closed, is now being operated on Saturdays and Sundays by H. Matthews, who conducted the house at one time.

Fred W. Voight, manager of the Theater Fresno, Fresno, Cal., was in San Francisco recently and stated that this playhouse, which has been remodeled and redecorated, would be opened on October 3. It will be given over largely to vaudeville and moving pictures.

James T. Turner, of the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, is very optimistic over the motion picture outlook in the San Francisco territory, and well he can be since all records for attendance at the popular T. & D. houses were broken during August, and September promises to show even a more wonderful gain. The gain in attendance at the Tivoli has been very marked of late, capacity houses now being the rule, where they were the exception a few months ago. The Berkeley house cannot properly care for the crowds that wish to see the big features booked by this circuit and the new theater now being completed is badly needed. "Despite the sanguinary conflict which is rending the nations of Europe and demoralizing the business machinery of the world at large," says Mr. Turner, "the motion picture business of the United States seems to be particularly favored with fortune. The entire Turner & Dahnken Circuit is directly affected by alliance between the World Film Corporation and the Schubert Theatrical Company. At our theaters will be shown the great plays controlled by the Schuberts with the actors who have scored heaviest in the leading roles appearing on the screen."

Irving Ackerman has closed a contract with D. J. and Sidney Grauman for Paramount service for the Republic and Majestic theaters.

Nick Turner, who conducts the Majestic theater at Chico, Cal., was a recent visitor here and arranged a long list of bookings.

George Chamberlain of the Independent Film Exchange, recently made a hurried business trip to his old home at Portland, Ore., and saw many friends in the business there.

The National Screen Advertising Company has been incorporated here by M. Swim, W. W. Moore and G. S. McEvers.

The Edison theater on Powell street has been making a number of improvements in its operating room of late, including the installation of two Powers' Cameragraphs No. 6-A.

C. L. Langley, of the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, returned home this week from an enjoyable trip to Los Angeles and environs, accompanied by his wife. The trip was made for the purpose of visiting the studios there and securing ideas that might be of value in conducting the T. & D. Circuit. He visited the Universal, Selig and Mutual studios and spent some time with D. W. Griffith, who was doing some great work on "The Clansman" at the time.

The Pageant Film Company, 75 Sutter street, will shortly release the feature, "San Francisco —Pageant of a Wonder City." The film, which is now being made, will be completed early in October. It will consist of five reels and will show in pageantry the discovery and development of San Francisco. The opening scene portrays Don Gaspar de Portola leaving the Mission of San Diego on an exploring expedition. Then follow some incidents of his trip, his discovery of the Golden Gate, the return to San Diego and his appearance before the viceroy of Spain, the appointment of Captain Anza to colonize the newly discovered land, the journey of Anza and Father Junipero Serra, the arrival at the site of San Francisco and the beginnings of the city. In succession follow incidents of the early Spanish rule, the coming of the Anglo-Saxon, the discovery of gold, the killing of John King of William, the formation of the Vigilance Committee, the city before the fire of 1906, the fire, the rebuilding of the city and scenes of present-day life. Around these main incidents a picturesque and dramatic story has been built. Local exhibitors are taking a keen interest in the forthcoming release as it promises to be an educational film of unusual value to Westerners.

Architects Rousseau & Rousseau are preparing plans for a moving picture theater to be erected on Van Ness avenue, near Sacramento street. The new house will have a seating capacity of 1,500 persons.

The Canadian Building on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is in a completed form. A number of moving picture halls have been fitted up in it.

The Unique Amusements Company has been incorporated here with a capital of $15,000, by J. A. Mueller, L. Kaufmann, C. A. Sweigert and H. L. Schmalz.

The lobby of the Portola theater on Market street is being redecorated and other improvements made at this popular moving picture house.

Charles Klopot of Los Angeles stopped off here for a while this week on his way to Seattle, Wash.

Sol Lesser, president of the Golden Gate Film Exchange, Inc., will leave for New York shortly on a business trip, and will visit the Seattle and Portland branches on the way.

J. Tripp, who came to this city recently with "The Escape," has gone to Los Angeles to take charge of the Clune Film Exchange.

J. A. Costello, who manages the Star theater, San Rafael, Cal., makes frequent visits to this city to select features. Business at that house is keeping up well, despite the fact that summer vacations are at an end and many business men are returning to San Francisco for the winter.

Rex W. Midgely, who recently opened the Franklin theater at Oakland, Cal., with George Kleine's "Spartacus," has made arrangements to show one of the following attractions for four nights each week at this house: "Antony and Cleopatra," "Last Days of Pompeii," "For Napoleon and France," "Between Savage and Tiger," "Quo Vadis?" "Lion of Venice," and "The Naked Truth."

The Electric Airdome at Madera, Cal., has been closed for the season.

A. H. Burton will open a new moving picture house at Lemoore, Cal., at an early date.

Mrs. May Pettengill, who conducts two houses at Eureka, Cal., was in San Francisco recently and stated that she plans to open a new theater at Arcata shortly.

J. M. French, formerly of Sisson, Cal., is preparing to open a moving picture theater at Patterson.

The Princess theater, Oakland, Cal., is now being conducted by C. M. Purington, formerly of Turlock.

The Star Amusement Company has opened the Star theater at Benicia, Cal.

The Ben Lomond theater at Ben Lomond, Cal., has been closed for the season by F. Fitch.

Owing to the war in Europe the Standard Oil Company has laid off fourteen hundred men at its refinery at Richmond, Cal., and several moving picture houses there have closed. The Turner & Dahnken house is running as usual, however.

F. H. Wilson of Mercer Falls, Cal., has purchased an Edison projection machine.

A new Motiograph machine has been installed in the Bakersfield Opera House, Bakersfield, Cal.

The Christian Church at Gilroy, Cal., has purchased a Motiograph of the latest type.

The Santa Fe theater, 5623 Grove street, Oakland, Cal., has been sold by Arthur Stone, who has conducted it for some time.

The Liberty Theater Company, headed by Victor S. Challen, is constructing a moving picture theater on South Market street, San Jose, Cal., and will make a specialty of showing educational films.

The United States Feature Film Company has awarded a contract for the erection of a studio at Oroville, Cal. The structure will cost about $15,000 when completed.

CHURCH.

WISCONSIN.

THE Palace Theater Company of Grand Rapids has been incorporated with a capital stock of $12,000. The incorporators are R. A. McDonald, W. H. Fintzel, Fred Bossert, S. L. Brooks, A. L. Ridgman, G. M. Hilland and E. W. Kroll.

Dean Bernard I. Bell of St. Paul's Cathedral at Fond du Lac has let the contract for the installation of motion picture equipment in one of the halls of the cathedral group of buildings. Moving picture shows will be given on alternate Saturdays without charge. Arrangements have been made to have lectures furnished by the extension department of the University of Wisconsin in connection with the photoplays.

The Strand moving picture theater in Green Bay, to be opened about the first of November by W. L. Fursman and R. L. Thacher of Madison, will be a duplicate of the new Varsity, which they recently opened at Madison. The design for the two houses was made by Edward Tough, architect for the new Wisconsin State Historical Library. George Forbes, who formerly was with Lyman H. Howe, is in charge of the operation at the Madison house.

Business with one-night theatrical attractions in Wisconsin has not been good. Gossip in theatrical circles give a night's receipts for various attractions at $15 and $17. Some of the more pretentious musical attractions are playing $110 or $165, which is not a profitable figure with the scenery and large companies carried. Some of the companies presenting plays adapted from novels are hitting around the $75 mark, it is reported. As a result of this condition it is predicted that still more opera houses in this State will go over to moving pictures. At Neenah a number of attractions for the Neenah theater were canceled, and there is strong talk of that house welcoming the photoplay, although it would leave the field without a home for theatrical attractions.

The moving pictures made in Wausa were shown at the Majestic theater in that city for a week.

The addition to the Liberty theater at Vliet and Twenty-seventh streets in Milwaukee will be of concrete blocks. It will be 24x120 feet and will cost about $18,000. The new electrical work will amount to about $1,300.

The Saxe Brothers Amusement Company of Milwaukee has taken over the Burke theater on Market Square at Kenosha. The lease was made to Otto Streissguth of Milwaukee, who is connected with the Saxe enterprises. William Meyer, who has been manager, remains in charge.

J. R. McDonald, owner of the Majestic moving picture theater in Barron, has purchased a site at La Salle and Fourth streets in that city and will erect a modern photoplay house.

The Bijou theater at Appleton is using a catch line somewhat akin to that of the Chicago Herald—"Easy to see and worth seeing."

The Magee Opera House at Evansville had a ticket-selling contest in connection with the exhibition of "One Wonderful Night." To the boys and girls who made the largest sales of tickets were given 25, 15 and 10 tickets, respectively.

Pupils of the public schools at Hayward have been asked to contribute twenty cents each for the purchase of moving picture equipment. Pictures will be shown in conjunction with the extension department of the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

NEBRASKA.

POLICE officials in the middle west have been notified to be on the lookout for two men, who, posing as instructors in moving picture operation, have defrauded persons at Binghamton, N. Y. They would charge $10, in advance, for three weeks instruction and skip before the classes began.

H. A. Luckey has opened a moving picture show at Gothenburg, Neb.

O. A. Harrison, of Harrisburg, Neb., has traded his moving picture equipment for a store. B. A. Holland, the new owner, will go on the road with the outfit.

Elmer E. Gailey has sold his moving picture equipment at Lyons, Neb., to S. L. Pinkley, manager of the Burt County Telephone Company at that place who will operate a show.

Mrs. J. A. Wentworth has reopened her moving picture show at the opera house in Ord.

The editor of "We," a commercial paper in Omaha, blames the vaudeville stage for the popularity of the moving picture. "Every year the acts at the vaudeville theaters approach closer to the artistic idea of the altogether," he says. Referring to an act seen recently in an Omaha house he continues: "The act in question if it were a scene in a moving picture would fail by a thousand miles of getting by the most liberal board of censors who ever passed upon a film. Yet such rot as this is featured in our 'high class' vaudeville houses. It is not wondered that the movies are fast putting the 'high class' houses out of business."

C. E. McIntosh has installed projection apparatus in the opera house at Newman Grove, which he has leased, and will give moving picture shows.

Roy King and William Deines have leased the opera house at Superior from John Frey.

The new moving picture house which will be operated in Weeping Water by H. R. Reed and L. W. Whitaker will be known as the Magnet theater.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Hoppen of Kearney are now operating the Empress theater at North Platte.

The Joy theater at Florence has been reopened by John Lyon, who will operate it as a moving picture house.

William Harsin has leased the Harsin Opera House at Lyons to J. Walsh.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

ENDION METHODIST CHURCH at Duluth, Minn., has been using moving pictures in connection with its Sunday evening vesper services.

The Industrial Education Society has a cameraman at work in the rural districts near Montesano, Wash., taking pictures of the schools.

O. C. Smith will erect a new moving picture house on the county property on Court street at Dallas, Ore. A special lighting system will be installed.

Contract for the brick construction work on the new Alhambra theater at Ogden, Utah, has been awarded and the project will be rushed. The new house will cost about $16,000.

The Huntleys at Winona, Minn., are putting out a series of war slides which are rented to houses in the Northwest.

The Lyric theater at Melrose, Minn., gave a special matinee of "Hiawatha" for the school children.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

(Continued on page 216.)

Calendar of Licensed Releases

Current Releases

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Borrowed Cook (Drama).
EDISON—Father's Beard (Comedy).
ESSANAY—The Fickleness of Sweedie (Comedy).
KALEM—The Dancer (Special—Two parts—Drama).
LUBIN—The Beloved Adventurer, No. 4, "An American Heiress" (Drama).
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 65, 1914 (News).
SELIG—The Moving Picture Cowboy (Special Two parts—Comedy).
—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 63 (News).
VITAGRAPH—Fisherman Kate (Comedy).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Gwendolin (Special—Two parts—Drama).
CINES—The Wrecked Special (Special—Two parts—Drama).
COLUMBUS—What Would You Do? (Comedy).
EDISON—Greater Love Hath No Man (Drama).
ESSANAY—The Verdict (Drama).
KALEM—For the Love of Mike (Comedy).
—Hesanut Hunts Wild Game (Comedy).
LUBIN—Wife's Athletic Mamma (Comedy).
—A Hunting Absurdity (Comedy).
SELIG—The Way of the Redman (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—His Unknown Girl (Special—Two parts—Drama).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

EDISON—Seth's Sweetheart (Comedy).
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Family That Did Too Much for Nellie" (Comedy).
KALEM—The Lost Mail Sack (Special—Two parts—Drama).
LUBIN—The Girl at the Lock (Special—Two parts—Drama).
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News (No. 66, 1914) (News).
SELIG—The Reparation (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Kill or Cure (Comedy).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Their Little Drudge (Drama).
COLUMBUS—The New Apprentice (Comedy).
—Kissing Germ (Comedy).
ESSANAY—When Slippery Slim Met the Champion (Comedy).
LUBIN—In Old Virginia (Special—Two parts—Drama).
SELIG—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 64 (News).
VITAGRAPH—The Loan Shark King (Drama).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—They Were College Boys (Comedy).
—The Man Hunters (Comedy).
EDISON—The Long Way (Special—Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—The Real Agatha (Special—Two parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Tattered Duke (Comedy).
LUBIN—The Green-Eyed Monster (Drama).
SELIG—Jimmie the Porter (Comedy).
—Doc Yak's Bottle (Cartoon).
VITAGRAPH—Josie's Legacy (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Mis Mother's Home (Drama).
EDISON—A Fragment of Ash (Drama).
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy and the Greaser (Drama).
KALEM—Fate's Midnight Hour (Drama).
LUBIN—When the Ham Turned (Comedy).
SELIG—Her Victory Eternal (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Rose and the Thorn (Special—Two parts—Drama).

Advance Releases

MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Guiding Fate (Drama).
EDISON—Buster Brown's Education (Comedy).
—George Washington Jones (Comedy).
ESSANAY—Sweedie Learns to Swim (Comedy).
KALEM—The Girl and the Stowaway (Special—Two parts—Comedy).
LUBIN—The Beloved Adventurer, No. 5, "The Girl from the West" (Drama).
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 67, 1914 (News).
SELIG—The Dream Girl (Special—Two parts—Drama).
—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 65 (News).
VITAGRAPH—Midst Woodland Shadows (Drama).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The Iron Master (Special—Two parts—Drama).
CINES—On the Battle Line (Special—Two parts—Drama).
COLUMBUS—Why Skunkville Went Dry (Comedy).
EDISON—The Letter That Never Came Out (Drama).
ESSANAY—Through Eyes of Love (Drama).
KALEM—Percy Pimpernickel—Soubrette (Comedy).
LUBIN—Swami Sam (Comedy).
—Neighborly Neighbors (Comedy).
SELIG—The Mexican (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Mareea, the Foster Mother (Special—Two parts—Drama).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1914.

EDISON—Andy and the Redskins (Eleventh of the "Andy" Series) (Comedy).
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Author and the Dear Public and the Plate of Mush (Comedy).
KALEM—Seed and the Harvest (Special—Two parts—Drama).
LUBIN—The Bond of Womanhood (Special—Two parts—Drama).
PATHE—Pathe's Daily News, No. 68, 1914 (News).
SELIG—The Mysterious Beauty (Comedy—Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Peacemaker (Comedy).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—The First Law (Drama).
COLUMBUS—(Title Not Yet Announced).
ESSANAY—Snakeville's Peacemaker (Comedy).
LUBIN—The Imposter (Special—Two parts—Drama).
SELIG—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, No. 66 (News).
VITAGRAPH—His Dominant Passion (Drama).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Peg o' the Wild-Wood (Drama).
EDISON—On the Isle of Sarne (Special—Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
ESSANAY—The Other Man (Special—Two parts—Drama).
KALEM—Si's Wonderful Mineral Spring (Comedy).
LUBIN—The Long Lane (Drama).
SELIG—The Man-Hater (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Fatty's Sweetheart (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1914.

BIOGRAPH—Meeting Mr. Jones (Comedy).
—Our Home-Made Army (Comedy).
EDISON—The Case of the Vanished Bonds (Drama)
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy Rewarded (Drama).
KALEM—From Peril to Peril (Drama).
LUBIN—The Smuggler's Daughter (Comedy).
SELIG—The Woman of It (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Girl in the Case (Special—Two parts—Drama).

THE COST OF SONG SLIDE SERVICE IS SO SMALL COMPARED WITH THE RESULTS, THAT THE PATRONS OF MOVING PICTURE THEATRES APPRECIATE SONG SLIDES. WRITE TO US ABOUT SERVICE. AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO., FIRST NATIONAL BANK BLDG., CHICAGO.

Calendar of Quality Releases

A PROGRAM OF QUALITY

For Your

PROGRAM HEADLINERS

BIOGRAPH -- KLAW & ERLANGER

Three Reel Productions

For Each Tuesday

THE TWO REEL BIOGRAPH

For Each

Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday

A ONE REEL BIOGRAPH

BIOGRAPH QUALITY

Calendar of Independent Releases

Mutual Film Corporation

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1914.

KOMIC—The Million Dollar Bride (Comedy).
MAJESTIC—Out of the Air (Two parts—Drama).
THANHOUSER—A Dog's Love (Drama).

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

AMERICAN—Daphnia (Two parts—Drama).
KEYSTONE—Their Ups and Downs (Comedy).
RELIANCE—Our Mutual Girl No. 38 (Topical).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

BEAUTY—Nieda (Drama).
MAJESTIC—The Unpainted Portrait (Drama).
THANHOUSER—The Cripple (Two Parts—Drama).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

AMERICAN—Billy's Rival (Drama).
BRONCHO—The Boss of the 8th (Two parts—Drama).
RELIANCE—The Badge of Office (Western—Drama).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

DOMINO—The Whiskey Runners (Two parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—Hello, Mabel (Comedy).
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 93 (News).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

KAY-BEE—The Sheriff of Muscatine (Two parts—Drama).
PRINCESS—The One Who Cared (Drama).
THANHOUSER—The Benevolence of Conductor 786 (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

KEYSTONE—Their Love Pangs (Comedy).
RELIANCE—The Tardy Cannon Ball (Two parts—Drama).
ROYAL—The Pet of the Petticoats (Comedy).

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1914.

KOMIC—Bill Spoils a Vacation (No. 8) (Comedy).
MAJESTIC—The Sands of Fate (Two parts—Drama).
THANHOUSER—The Rescue (Drama).

MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1914.

AMERICAN—Jail Birds (Two parts—Society—Drama).
KEYSTONE—The Anglers (Comedy).
RELIANCE—Our Mutual Girl, No. 39 (Topical).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1914.

BEAUTY—Winsomé Winnie (Comedy—Drama).
MAJESTIC—The Warning (Comedy—Drama).
THANHOUSER—The Diamond of Disaster (Two parts—Drama).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1914.

AMERICAN—Down by the Sea (Drama).
BRONCHO—End of the Galley (Two parts—Drama).
RELIANCE—Bad Man Mason (Western—Drama).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914.

DOMINO—Jimmy (Two parts—Drama).
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Yet Announced).
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 94 (News).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1914.

KAY-BEE—The Word of His People (Two parts—Drama).
PRINCESS—The Touch of a Little Hand (Drama).
MAJESTIC—Back to the Kitchen (Comedy—Drama).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1914.

KEYSTONE—(Title Not Yet Announced).
RELIANCE—The Revenue Officer's Deputy (Two parts—Western—Drama).
ROYAL—(Title Not Yet Announced).

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1914.

ECLAIR—The Man Who Came Back (Western Drama).
FRONTIER—Four Days (Drama).
REX—The Pipes of Pan (Two parts—Drama).

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1914.

IMP—Shadows (Two parts—Drama).
STERLING—Myers' Mistake (Comedy).
VICTOR—Disillusioned (Drama).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1914.

CRYSTAL—Liferitis (Comedy).
GOLD SEAL—The Trey o' Hearts, Episode No. 10 (Steel Ribbons—Two parts—Drama).
UNIVERSAL IKE—The Neglected Wife (Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 135 (News).
ECLAIR—The Line Rider (Two parts—Western—Drama).
JOKER—The Base Ball Fans of Fansville (Comedy).
NESTOR—The Old Bell Ringer (Drama).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

IMP—Universal Boy in "Rural Adventures" (Juvenile—Drama).
REX—A Law Unto Herself (Two parts—Drama).
STERLING—Hypnotic Power (Comedy).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1914.

NESTOR—He Never Said a Word (Comedy).
POWERS—The Mayor's Manicure (Comedy—Drama).
VICTOR—The Woman Who Won (Two parts—Drama).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

"101" BISON—The Phantom Light (Two parts—Drama).
JOKER—Cruel, Cruel World (Comedy).

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1914.

ECLAIR—Cupid Victor (Comedy).
FRONTIER—Dolly's Deliverance (Drama).
REX—Virtue Its Own Reward (Two parts—Drama).

MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1914.

IMP—Mary's Convert (Drama).
STERLING—The Close Call (Juvenile—Comedy).
VICTOR—His Father's Son (Two parts—Drama).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1914.

CRYSTAL—Oh, You Gypsy Girl (Comedy).
—Some Collectors (Comedy).
GOLD SEAL—Trey o' Hearts, Episode No. 11, "The Painted Hills" (Two parts—Drama).
UNIVERSAL IKE—Mary Green's Husband (Comedy).
—An Education Picture on Same Reel.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1914.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 136 (News).
ECLAIR—The Squatter (Three parts—Western—Drama).
JOKER—On Again Off Again, Finnigan (Comedy).
NESTOR—(No Release This Week).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914.

IMP—The Futility of Revenge (Two parts—Drama).
REX—Her Life's Story (Drama).
STERLING—Heinie's Outing (Comedy).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1914.

NESTOR—The Way of Life (Drama).
POWERS—The Padrone's Ward (Two parts—Drama).
VICTOR—The Funny Mr. Dingle (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1914.

"101" BISON—Monsieur Bluebeard (Two parts—Drama).
JOKER—Across the Court (Comedy).

Simplex

A Reel Machine

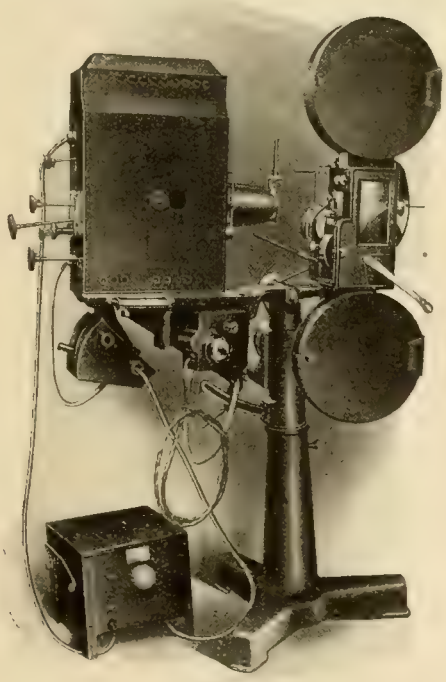
In material, workmanship, mechanical principles and projection.

Used by the world's largest and most successful theatres and ninety per cent. of the film manufacturers and importers.



DISTINGUISHING FEATURES:

Shutter adjustable while machine is in operation.
Absolutely fire and dustproof.
Silent in operation.
Rotary framing device.
All shafts ground perfectly true.
All steel and grey iron gears.
Removable film trap guide.
Projecting lens always centered with aperture plate.
Focused from the rear of mechanism.
Takeup driven from main driving shaft.
Fire shutter operated by centrifugal governor.
Heavy, adjustable pedestal.
Adjustable condenser mount.

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

Correspondence

(Continued from page 211.)

ILLINOIS.

THE Yale theater at Carbondale was one of the few Illinois houses to observe the centennial of the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." A large American flag was dropped on the screen and the song was sung by William Hays, a local vocalist.

C. E. Ward, manager of the Central Opera House at Fairbury, gave an exhibition of the moving pictures made at the Fairbury fair. They were very satisfactory to his patrons.

The Family theater at Dixon has added vaudeville to its moving picture bills.

A new brick building to replace the Fette structure on Main street in Havana will be occupied by a moving picture show to be operated by John F. Deckard and Dick Diamond Deckard has been in the grain business, and Diamond in the confectionery business. Both are progressive.

Thomas Prosser has reopened the Star moving picture theater at St. David and will give nightly shows.

The Green River Amusement Company of Amboy has taken a five-year lease on the Gunning Building at that place and will operate a moving picture show. A three-reel show will be given seven nights a week, and it is probable that Saturday matinees will be inaugurated. This is the same concern that has been operating a picture show three time a week at the Amboy opera house in winter and at the local park in summer. The building is being remodeled and will have new equipment throughout, including the latest model Motiograph. J. C. MacKinnon is interested in the project.

"From Molten Steel to Automobile," the films of the Maxwell Automobile Company, were shown at the Auditorium theater in Galesburg to the dealers and car users of the Military Tract.

Edward Hoffman of Chicago has purchased the Lyric moving picture theater on East Wilson street in Batavia from William Truesdell and has assumed charge of the house.

Unless building work is halted the new Colonial theater, R. C. Schroeder, manager, in Galesburg will be opened about November 1. Lafe Weinberg expects to have his new house in Galesburg ready for business about Thanksgiving.

H. D. Ederington has purchased a half interest in the moving picture show at New Haven.

J. E. Boyd is doing a good business with the moving picture show which he has opened in Dongola.

The Orpheum at Aurora is one of the Illinois houses which is featuring the Renfax Musical Motion Pictures.

The moving pictures taken at the head camp meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America at Toledo, O., were a part of the entertainment at the big M. W. A. picnic at Danville. It is not possible to have all the crack drill teams at all the picnics and the order took this method of demonstrating the efficiency of the different teams. The principal use of the pictures, however, is to show the excellent work done at the tuberculosis sanitarium at Colorado Springs, Col., which is maintained by the lodge. The pictures are shown free on the streets.

The Lyric theater at Winchester was closed for a week because a company of comedians were in town .

"We have all the comforts of home and then some," advertises the Hippodrome theater at Alton.

Vaudeville is not particularly attractive to the theater-going public of East St. Louis, insinuates the announcement of the new management of the Majestic theater. "The Home of Movies Only" will be its slogan. The reopening was made with "The Million Dollar Mystery." Six reels of pictures will be shown for five and ten cents.

The Princess theater at Bushnell is calling the attention of its patrons to the fact that although prices in other lines have gone up it is still showing the same high class pictures at the same admission.

Dreamland, the new moving picture house on the North Side at Alton, has been opened.

The Gem theater at Lincoln is giving away a tea set each week.

"The best projected pictures in the city," is the claim of the new Majestic theater at Paris. "Our music alone is worth the admission," is the assurance of Shoaff's Opera House.

An Illinois picture of interest: "A Trip Up the Mississippi River," including scenes at the famous Piasa Chautauqua, proved a good attraction at the Yale theater in Carbondale.

Chris Taylor, manager of Dreamland theater at Kewanee, is one of the leading boosters for the big Home-Coming to be held in Kewanee in October. The event is expected to bring good business to the moving picture houses.

As an inducement to get women of Jacksonville to attend its fall opening, a dry goods store in that city offered all the women who called free tickets to all the moving picture shows in Jacksonville.

Theatrical attractions are being played frequently at the Apollo theater in Princeton and the picture shows for those nights are canceled.

Manager Shaffer has reopened the Lyric theater at Sycamore, which was closed during the run of a chautauqua and another amusement concern.

The Reddish Airdom at Jerseyville was leased for six days for a chautauqua. The Stephenson Airdome also was closed during the time the assembly was held.

Dreamland theater at Canton showed the moving pictures of the Modern Woodmen of America drill teams taken at Toledo, O. The Canton team had a prominent place in the exercises.

"Judith of Bethulia," the Biograph masterpiece, has been played again in Springfield. The Lyric did a big business at the last return of the popular film.

Promoters of a new picture show in Normal are said to have options on the old Normal rink building on Broadway and the garage building on East Beauford street.

Free moving picture shows in connection with band concerts were continued at Minier into the fall season. The merchants are pleased with the plan.

A moving picture show has been opened in Atherton's Hall at Lafayette. A four-reel show will be given each Saturday evening.

The Comer Talking Motion Picure Company of Chicago has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 to manufacture, lease, operate and deal in sound reproducing apparatus, motion picture projectors, films, etc. The incorporators are John J. Comer, Frank Mayer and Guy Van Schoick.

Moving picures of the children's playgrounds at Rockford, which were taken for one of the houses there, will be shown as an educational exhibit at the annual Illinois State Conference of Charities and Correction at LaSalle.

The Austen Amusement Company of Chicago has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,500. The incorporators are M. J. Mintz, Florence Hutcherson and Morris G. Leonard.

Piper & Morrison have sold the Majesic theater at Danville to C. V. Miller, former manager of the Lyric theater. The new owner has renovated and remodeled the house.

Springfield was the first city in the United States to be given a comprehensive survey by the Russell Sage Foundation of New York. Criticism of its schools and everything relating to the public welfare was made by the investigators. An exhibition will be held November 21 to December 2, when the public will be informed of the good and bad points of its city. Moving pictures will be used throughout the ten days to educate the visitors on welfare matters.

Although the balcony was not completed the new Play House theater was opened on time at Staunton by A. Katz. J. H. Lager of Litchfield is the local manager. Announcement is made that occasionally a good clean act of vaudeville will be run in connection with the photoplay program.

Samuel Edwards has opened the Palace theater at Staunton. Mrs. Martin Knapp will be cashier for the house.

The village board at Maywood decided not to grant the request of Manager Rich of the new moving picture house under construction at Fifth avenue and Lake street that he be allowed to space his seats at 28 inches. The ordinances call for 32 inches of room.

Lawrence Watkins of Petersburg has leased the Elite theater in that city. A new Powers' machine has been installed. Watkins is a musician with more than a local reputation and should be able to give a good musical program in connection with the pictures.

Manager Schaffer of the Lyric theater at Sycamore was host to the members of the Women's Relief Corps, a patriotic organization, at a matinee performance.

Moving pictures of the Centenniel Celebration at Belleville were made.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

INDIANA.

THE Garrick, now owned by J. M. Rhodes and A. C. Zaring, who bought out the interest of the Hyde Park Amusement Company, is running to a good business. The new owners, who are the president and secretary respectively of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, expect to find the house a good money maker, though the old management was involved in financial difficulties that forced them to sell out. The house is probably the handsomest in Indianapolis.

Brownie Austin, Versailles, has completed his theater, and declares it is one of the most up-to-date picture theaters in the state.

The Colonial, Lebanon, will move into the picture show auditorium made a part of the new Rural Loan Association building. The Colonial will be running in the new location before October 1.

The Nickelo theater, recently opened in Sunman, is receiving a heavy patronage.

Menlo Moore's new theater in Mitchell has been opened. The first attraction was "The Trey 'o Hearts." Every night and Saturday matinee is the house program. The house is credited with being beautifully finished inside, and with a most attractive exterior.

The Animated Film Company of Cincinnati took motion pictures of Vevay, on its busiest day, and Manager Cotton could not get them all into the Lyric when the film was shown.

The New Fairy is the name of Albert Metzger's new house at Knox. Motion pictures will be made a part of every vaudeville entertainment. Occasionally plays are booked at the house, but its policy will be vaudeville. Lots of speechmaking featured the opening.

The Welborn Department Store, Brazil, showed the new fashions in a series of films for which they rented the Star theater one night and admitted every one free.

The Laporte fair was filmed and shown at the Phoenix theater, Laporte, attracting record breaking crowds.

L. W. Sabric has opened a new theater at 3450 Guthrie avenue, Indiana Harbor. Morris Brenmen is in charge. Manager Brenmen says that his house stands alone in its appointments and the fact that it places the comfort of patrons above everything else. The house is fireproof, and has been pronounced by the State Fire Marshal one of the best he ever inspected. The charge is ten cents and part of each program will be vaudeville. The house has been named the Liberty.

Webster True opened a picture theater in Bush's building, Campbellsburg.

Kokomo's Prosperity Exposition was filmed and reproduced at the Ideal theater, Kokomo. Seeing itself evidently interested Kokomo as the Ideal had all the business it could handle, many patrons remaining to see the film over again, and then returning the next day for another look.

Switou's New Grand theater, Albany, is using an attractive line of advertising in the local papers, a line that is odd enough to be worth copying. The copy is handled like news matter "heads" for it being news heads, and a line drawing of the exterior of the house, illustrates the text. Manager David Beard is responsible, and the idea of running theater advertising as "news" ought to commend itself to those not afraid of being lost without a screaming headline.

The Zenith Motion Picture Company, Chicago, has made arrangements to film Elkhart, Ind.

The Gayety Airdome has been closed for the season at Rensselaer, and the Princess theater was opened. The house is owned by Perry and John Horton. The Princess has been thoroughly renovated and decorated, and a Deagan musical electrical outfit installed.

The owners of the Gem theater, Albion, have added a new stucco front and an up-to-date plateglass ticket seller cage. Manager Walters feels that he has one of the best houses in the state.

The Peru-Kokomo rub contest of the baseball season was filmed by the Ideal Company of Kokomo, and was shown to big crowds in the theaters of both cities.

The Kokomo exhibitors got together and signed an agreement some time ago to cut out frills in the way of singing and vaudeville. Recently they got together again. This time the family parties are hit. Now no child over five years is admitted free. Only the children in arms or under five can deadhead in.

Harvey M. Porter, manager of the Empress theater, Ft. Wayne, Ind., had a birthday party, and a "movie" of the party was taken by T. S. Henderson. The party was given on the stage of the Empress theater. Mr. Porter was twenty-two, and celebrated the event by inviting the attaches of the theater, some personal friends and some visiting players. The party was a great success, including the film, which was shown at the Empress a few days later. Mr. Porter was presented with a handsome traveling bag by his guests.

The Zenith Motion Picture Company is now preparing to "film" Muncie, Ind.

The Joy theater, Cloverdale, Ind., has gone on winter schedule, and is now putting on two shows every night. Manager Sinclair also announces that he will have an amateur night once a week.

George Weaver, Auburn, Ind., is getting a location opposite the Empire ready to move into at the earliest possible date. The Empire has been unable to house the crowds for some time, and Manager Weaver has been giving his best effort to the question of getting some equally as good location where he would have more room. The house will be well equipped and capable of seating 300. Weaver is supervising the remodeling in person, occasionally getting into the game with hammer and nails.

The Isis, Winamac, has added musical comedy acts, sandwiched between films, and is charging 15 cents.

Harry G. Sommers and George H. Hines, owners of the Auditorium, South Bend, Ind., are running their advertising in ornamental borders and playing it strong that they are running quality pictures. The advertising layout certainly makes a quality showing.

The LaBelle, South Bend, Ind., has been opened. It is owned by the Surprise Theater Company and cost $40,000. It is fireproof throughout and has a seating capacity of 800. A large Kimball pipe organ has been installed. The interior finish is in mahogany and walnut and the walls are of rough sand cement tinted in tan and tobacco shades. The floor is concrete, and the seats are walnut and upholstered. The lower floor seats 500 and the balcony 300. The space between seats is 31 inches, making roomy seating capacity, and the exits are wide, so that the house can be quickly emptied and the outgoing crowd need not push back those leaving. There are eighteen exits that can be used in emergency. There are retiring rooms for women on the first floor and a drinking fountain in the lobby at the rear. A retiring room for men is in the rear of the balcony. The lighting and heating system is thoroughly up to date. Large cup lamps containing five-candlepower lights suspend from the ceiling, and three of these lights burn throughout every exhibition and all lights are on during intermissions. The stairways to the balcony are carpeted with cork, and as much trouble has been taken to make the place silent as if it was intended to give speaking performances instead of noise-proof entertainment. The operating booth is of steel and is equipped with two Power machines, 1914 models. The program includes Paramount pictures.

Harry Swartz will open a moving picture show in Auburn, Ind., soon. The space leased was formerly used for a plumbing shop and Mr. Swartz is spending a goodly sum upon it in order to get it into attractive shape as a theater.

As we go to the mail box word comes that the Zenith Motion Picture Company is about to film Richmond, Ind. W. M. McGee is a busy man.

R. L. JENNE

DETROIT.

MARY PICKFORD has again demonstrated her ability as a drawing card and the further fact that she has many hundreds of admirers in our beautiful city. Her latest success, "Such a Little Queen," played an engagement at the Washington theater the week of Sept. 20 and the result was the biggest business since the house has been playing to pictures. There is hardly a downtown theater that is not showing Mary Pickford Biograph pictures at least once or twice a week.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee, which has in charge the first convention of motor truck manufacturers and dealers, it was announced that one of the features of the convention will be a 5,000-foot film of motion pictures, demonstrating motor trucks in manoeuvers of the United States army. The convention meets in Detroit the early part of October.

Deputies of the state fire marshal's department will begin an investigation starting Oct. 1 of more than 150 complaints filed by the Michigan Fire Prevention Association against as many Detroit business houses, manufacturers, theaters, residents, etc. The charges range from bad electric wiring to the storing of rubbish. The complaints were received on Sept. 23 by Thomas C. Schafer, who is directing the campaign against the motion picture houses in Detroit that are not equipped with all appliances required by the state law.

When the Michigan Federation of Labor met last week in Lansing, Mich., a number of resolutions were adopted urging the passage of amendments to the workmen's compensation law. Among the changes were that victims of occupational diseases be allowed compensation just as are victims of industrial accidents; that payments to injured employes commence eight days after disablement and not 15 days afterwards, as at present; that insurance adjusters, before they be permitted to work in Michigan, pass an examination before the industrial accident commission; that the attorney-general's department be required to represent injured employes in the event that their cases may be appealed from the industrial accident commission to the supreme court.

Charles R. Hagedorn, manager of the National theater, has placed an order for an eight-cylinder car which, with a number of special added features, will cost him a trifle over $2,000. It was only eighteen months ago that Charlie was satisfied to use the street car wherever he went, but since then he is absolutely lost unless he has a car. All summer he has been driving about in a two-passenger car, but he will sell this as soon as his new machine is delivered, which will have seating capacity for five.

At the council meeting Sept. 22 a resolution was adopted giving permission to the Moore-Wiggins Co. to place signs in front of the Temple theater reserving space for automobiles of patrons.

The Jefferson theater at 2424 Jefferson avenue, corner Fairview, was opened Sept. 12, after extensive remodeling and alterations. The house is under the management of George Cusick, formerly assistant manager at the National. A program is issued each week showing what pictures will appear each day of the ensuing week. The features are briefly described. On the back of the program for the week of Sept. 21 appeared this announcement: "It is indeed encouraging to us to have such a hearty response in patronage the first week. We said last week that we would be some time in finding out what pictures you like best, and we are learning every day." The Jefferson is one of a chain of houses operated by the Calvert Theater Co., of which David King is president, Lester Levey vice-president and Charles R. Hagedorn secretary.

A program similar to that of the Jefferson theater, just mentioned, is also issued weekly by the Calvert theater, which house is under the management of Lester Levey. On the back of the Sept. 21 program, Mr. Levey printed a six-verse poem called "Doggone, But It Makes You Sore," which he composed himself. The poem has to do with a married couple who have twins the first year of their married life and another pair the second year. It is humorous throughout.

Starting with Sept. 28 the Palace theater changed its scale of admission prices from 10, 15 and 20 cents to straight ten cents for any seat, matinee or evening. Instead of an opening and closing picture, in addition to the vaudeville, it is now giving six acts with a comedy picture for the closing and eliminating the opening picture. The General Film Co. is supplying this house with its pictures.

Negotiations have about been completed for a new moving picture theater in Wyandotte, which is an hour's ride from Detroit by trolley. Detroit men have obtained a lease on the Biddle avenue property, and it is expected that work will be started by the middle of October. The plan is to build the theater proper in the rear of stores which now occupy the front, to be connected with a narrow passage entrance, on Biddle avenue.

Commissioned by the postal authorities at Washington to act as stage manager in the production of a moving picture, Postmaster William J. Nagel of Detroit is getting the settings ready for Oct. 5. The scene to be filmed is that of delivering mail to the freight boats that pass up and down the Detroit river. It will be used by one of the big moving picture companies in one of their productions.

C. W. Graham, who is manager of the Addison theater in Woodward, reports an excellent business. This house, which is owned by C. E. Pudrith, who also built it, is one of the prettiest in the city. It has a seating capacity for 600. Prices are 10 and 15 cents; there are three shows daily, one in the afternoon and two at night, performances being continuous on Sundays and holidays. Feature productions are shown every Monday and Friday. The Addison is getting a big automobile trade.

SMITH.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LOUIS SITNEK, proprietor of the Lyric theater, Uniontown, Pa., closed down the house last week to remodel and enlarge. He will rush the improvements in order to be able to reopen about the first of October. An enlarged screen 12x16 feet will be installed; two new Simplex machines will be put in and a complete ventilation system will be put in. The capacity of the house will be increased from 450 to 600.

The Luna theater, Mt. Union, Pa., has been taken over by H. S. Chambers.

Among the exhibitors who started the publication of a weekly program this week are the Grand theater, West Newton, Pa., and the New Rex theater, 657 Preble avenue, Northside, Pittsburgh. They are using the latest idea in programs by the Mayer Publishing and Printing Company, and are nicely filled up with ads of local merchants.

The Feature Film & Calcium Light Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., has taken the agency for another home projector. It is called the Animagraph and uses full 1,000-feet reels of film. It is portable and can be made up in five minutes anywhere, is substantially made, uses an ordinary electric lamp socket and sells at a reasonable price. The mechanism employs the principle of the gyroscope, insuring absolute rigidity and steadiness of image.

Mayer Silverman, of the Liberty Film Renting Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., has issued a warning to some pirates who have been showing the "Last Days of Pompeii" in this territory. The Liberty Film Renting Company owns the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia rights and it will be protected to the full extent of the law.

Jacob Silverman, of the Pastime theater, Altoona, Pa., a brother to Mayer Silverman of the Liberty Film Renting Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., was in Pittsburgh recently and states that he is making extensive improvements to his house, an entirely new front being put in. His house has a capacity of 500 and is one of the well paying houses in Altoona.

H. D. Ansell, manager of the Lyric theater, Uniontown, Pa., closed down the house last week for remodeling and enlarging. Two hundred more seats will be added, making a capacity of 800. The ceiling will be raised and forty boxes, each one having eight seats, arranged around the rear of the auditorium will be installed to be used on the reserved seat plan. Mr. Ansell, who is also the owner of the Victoria, in the same city, says box parties will become the rage when the Lyric reopens on the first of October.

Shaffer & Remensnyder, owners of the Victoria theater, Springgarden avenue and Chestnut street, Northside, Pittsburgh, Pa., recently took over the Winner theater on East Ohio street, Northside, and are making a success of the place. A. M. Remensnyder looks after the Winner.

Clark & Rowland's new Homewood house will be called "The Belmar." It will not likely open before the fifteenth of October, and the "Regent," in East Liberty, will probably be opened about the same time.

An extra program of moving pictures was shown at the Irwin Opera House Friday, September 18, for the benefit of the Woman's Relief Corps.

A new moving picture theater was opened last week in Springdale, Pa., by John Avolitis, of Verona, Pa. This building is one of the most handsome as well as the most substantial moving picture houses in the valley. The building is made of re-enforced concrete and is as near fireproof as it is possible to make it. It has been crowded to capacity each night since the opening. The building was erected, and is owned by J. E. Stevens, of Springdale.

Messrs. Leavitt and Schagrin of Youngstown, Pa., opened the new Market street theater in that town last week. The new theater was erected by J. C. Leavitt and Max Schagrin, who is a brother of Joe Schagrin, formerly manager of the Grand Opera House and the Park theater in Youngstown. The building has cost about $40,000, according to Mr. Schagrin.

MANLEY.

PHILADELPHIA.

MEN prominent in the motion picture industry of Philadelphia and representatives of local newspapers were present at a banquet tendered by Jack London (by proxy) at the Hotel Adelphia on September 23. The various speakers were introduced by Carl H. Pierce, special representative of Bosworth, Inc., which is producing Mr. London's photo-dramatizations. Addresses were made by J. Louis Breitinger, of the State Board of Censorship; William E. Smith, president of the Famous Players' exchange, and others familiar with the subject. A closer relationship between the newspapers and film exchanges was strongly advocated.

George W. Miller, fire chief of Reading, Pa., made his semi-annual fire inspection trip of the twenty-five or more houses in Reading, and found to the satisfaction of the motion picture people that everything was in excellent order.

After being closed down for several months past the Eldorado, a moving picture house at Plainfield, N. J., was opened again on October 1 under entirely new management. The new schedule will be two shows of an evening and a continuous performance all day Saturday.

Plans and specifications are being prepared by the Hoffman company, architects, for a one-story theater building to be erected at Conshohocken, Pa., for the Electric Theater Supply Company, Philadelphia. The new theater will have a seating capacity of 1,000.

The Ai-Bee Amusement Company, of Newark, N. J., filed papers for a charter at Trenton for a corporation to be known by that name. The capital stock is $5,000. The incorporators are Ida Nusbaum, Carrie Nusbaum, Rachel Lippmann, of Newark.

Stacy, Reeves & Co., Philadelphia contractors, have the contract for converting the store at 1529-31 Market street into a motion picture theater for Frank De Long. The work will also include the erection of an addition, 42x112 feet, in the rear.

The Royal Theater Company of New York was granted a Delaware charter on September 17, with a capital stock of $200,000. The principal incorporator is S. A. Anderson of New York.

The Seiberling Moving Picture theater, of Allentown, is having a steam heating plant installed. The theater is located on Tilghman street below Penn.

The Y. M. C. A. of Plainfield, N. J., is embarking upon a series of motion picture exhibitions. There will be three shows each day.

A $15,000 fire in the town of Conshohocken furnished the scene for a picture by the Liberty Moving Picture Company, whose plant is located at Norristown. The operators and actors took advantage of the fire, and in attempting to act as a fireman one of the actors was struck by a falling beam and severely injured.

The large theater at Seventh and Annin streets, this city, formerly owned by Francis E. Hennessy, has been conveyed to Fannie L. Lemish, subject to a mortgage of $20,000. The theater stands on a plot of ground 86 by 58 feet.

The Locust, Philadelphia's newest photoplay-house, is meeting with success from a particularly desirable patronage. The theater is equipped with a Kimball organ, costing $15,000.

Charles Thropp, general manager of the Nixon-Nirdlinger theaters, has made his home in Queen Lane Manor, Germantown. He has recently signed contracts for the exclusive showing of Shubert and Brady productions for the Coliseum at Sixtieth and Market streets.

An interesting decision has been given in the case of the injunction proceeding brought by Dr. John H. Boger, whose address is next door to the site upon which a moving picture theater is being erected, against Jacob C. Kahn and Joseph Greenberg, owners of the theater. It was shown that it is impossible for a court to judge whether a moving picture theater in course of erection will prove a nuisance after its completion. The owners of the theater, however, do so at their own risk, as if it should prove a nuisance thereafter it can be discontinued by order of the court.

Formerly of the Cosmos Features, Philip Adler is now with the World Film Corporation, in this city.

The releases of the Sawyer Films, of New York, have been contracted for by the Ford Feature Film exchange, at 1126 Vine street, and will be released at the rate of one a week until further notice.

A banquet was tendered at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on October 1 to Carl H. Pierce, representative of the Bosworth Company features in this city. Stanley Mastbaum, well known in motion picture circles here, tendered the banquet.

With a capital stock of $100,000 the Foreign Film Corporation of Philadelphia has been incorporated and will deal in state rights on foreign productions.

Under the management of George Clark, the Alco Exchange has opened headquarters at 1331 Vine street. CONGDON.

IOWA.

REPRESENTATIVE citizens of Washington are co-operating with the management of the Star theater at that city in endeavoring to solve the problem of the moving picture and the child. The Star has started a Thursday matinee, beginning after school, with special programs for the children. A signed statement was issued to the parents of the city declaring that, from the standpoint of the parent, the work of the National Board of Censorship was inadequate and that carefully selected films would be shown at the Star. It was signed by the mayor, the superintendent of schools and other prominent residents on the committee. The committee also points out the Chicago and San Francisco censorships as successes.

E. T. Quirk is now sole owner of the Electric theater at Vail, having purchased the interest of E. D. Sheridan.

John T. Cummings had bad luck with the opening of the new Empress theater at Cherokee. He had worked far into the nights in order to be ready for a Saturday night opening. In addition he had booked a real film attraction—"Home Sweet Home." Through a misunderstanding the order was not entered at the Omaha exchange in time to get the films through. The exchange made a great effort to rush into the breach by sending a man with a motorcycle to Onawa but he failed to make the cross-country run in time to catch the crowds which waited. He did not arrive until 11.05. The house was opened on Monday.

Mrs. S. J. Brown and son, Ralph, of Neola, have opened a moving picture show at Shelby. It will be operated in connection with the Phoenix theater at Neola.

The Fairfield theater at Fairfield which has been closed for two months is open again.

The contract for making the moving pictures to be shown at the Iowa state building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco has been awarded to the Animated Producing Company of Sioux City. This company will not only do the camera work, filming state charitable and educational institutions and industrial and agricultural scenes, but will have charge of the projection at the fair. George O. Van Camp is manager of the company.

C. G. Fisher is now conducting the Iris theater at Hamburg. L. O. Brewer, who recently purchased it, having returned to Dumont.

W. L. Harper has opened the moving picture show in his new brick theater building at Rhodes.

The Lyric theater at Boone has installed a new $5,000 Wurlitzer Photoplayer.

Manager O. E. Babb, who has assumed charge of the Gem theater at Burlington and will operate it as a moving picture house, has adopted a policy of admitting free at Monday afternoon and evening performances ladies who are accompanied by gentlemen.

The Bijou theater at Mason City has been remodeled and redecorated.

A special show of the Maxwell company's automobile factory films was given at the Isis theater in Sioux City. One hundred and fifty dealers from various parts of the State were present.

The film, "Convict Life in the Ohio Penitentiary," which is being shown in Iowa, is advertised as "positively" the only moving pictures taken behind prison walls. The "Life of Joliet (Ill.) Prison" films which are being exhibited in other Middle Western States besides Illinois are authentic, having the endorsement of Warden E. M. Allen. They were taken at the request of the prisoners after the warden had vetoed such a plan. The convicts wanted the public to appreciate the humanitarian work done by the Illinois warden.

W. L. Harper of Rhodes is contemplating giving moving picture shows at Melbourne.

The old Waverly Savings Bank Building at Waverly has been sold to Senator Fred P. Hagemann of that city who will convert it into a moving picture theater. Besides other alterations an addition fifty-eight feet long will be made. A. W. McIntosh, an experienced showman of Waterloo, has taken a lease on the house for a number of years.

The Greater Iowa Commission has decided that its moving picture show at the San Francisco Exposition will be run fourteen hours a day. The theater in the State building will have a seating capacity of 550.

Jermain Bucklen has sold his interest in the moving picture show at Marble Rock to W. Boone.

F. C. Knee's new moving picture show at Independence will be known as the Allerton.

Rev. J. T. A. Flanagan, pastor of the Sacred Heart Cathedral at Davenport, has decided that the new Sacred Heart parochial school in that city will be equipped for moving picture shows to be given under the auspices of the men's club and the women's societies of the church. MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

CINCINNATI.

CLAY E. BREHM, manager of the World Feature Film Company's Cincinnati exchange, made a trip out in the State last week, taking in Columbus and Dayton, on business.

The use of motion pictures in higher education in Cincinnati promised some time ago at the university is now an actuality, a booth of the most approved type equipped with projection machinery having been erected in one of the auditoriums, by means of which a special course of lectures will be illustrated by moving pictures. A special bulletin devoted to this course has been issued, and has aroused much interest among the students. Francis Holley, of Boston, is announced as the man to whom the university is indebted for the opportunity to make this start toward the most modern form of education, as he has established an exchange supplied with films of an educational nature. The films will be used in two ways at the University of Cincinnati—in illustrating a definite course of lectures, and in providing material for educational programs of a general nature, which, with good music, are expected to prove very attractive to the student body.

The Lubin theater, which has the first run in Cincinnati of the group of feature productions issued under the general name of Paramount Pictures, has issued a very attractive and inexpensive little program in the shape of a folded card which gives information concerning the theater such as the morning, afternoon and evening hours of beginning exhibitions and the like, and lists coming attractions in the order of their appearance for the next three months. The program gives the date of the attraction, the maker, the name of the play, and the star featured, and suggests that it be kept for future reference. The car-cards used by the theater employ the same plan, save that lack of space makes it necessary to list attractions only for two or three weeks in advance.

The Gem City Amusement Company, organized recently in Dayton, O., by a number of business men of that city, including Harry Rott, Henry Osterfeld, George Matt, Victor Frei and Wenzel Rott, is the new owner of the Royal motion picture theater, at 16 East Fifth street, formerly owned and operated by the Fetterly estate. The company plans to run the house with the best features obtainable, hoping to make it one of the most popular in the city.

The usefulness of motion pictures as an advertising medium is fully realized by not a few manufacturers, automobile concerns among them, as evidenced recently in Marion, O., by the exhibition at the Family, under the auspices of the local Maxwell dealer, of films showing performances of the Maxwell car under unique and trying conditions, as well as the processes of manufacturing the car. The theater was used afternoon and evening of one day for this purpose, tickets being issued free of charge by the dealer, and full houses were the natural result.

A real "movie romance" interested Cincinnati people considerably last week as one of the figures in it, E. H. Pendleton, is a well-known figure in local society as well as being prominent as an automobile dealer. While attending the races in Lexington, Ky., young Pendleton met and married Elizabeth Bettie Gray, star in the production of "His Last Dollar," in which the Lexington race track and some of the horses and jockeys engaged in the race meeting there were utilized. It is intimated that Pendleton and Miss Gray had met before, and that his trip to Lexington was more to see her than to observe the horses in action. It is not known whether Miss Gray will continue her career as a film actress as the young couple have not yet returned to Cincinnati. CASEY.

FOREIGN NOTES.

INDIA.

(Consul James Oliver Laing, Karachi.)

Cinematograph Situation in Karachi.

ONLY one cinematograph establishment is in operation in Karachi. It is in a substantial stone building to which a second story and corrugated iron roof are being added. Two performances are given daily, both in the evening. The performance is long and the admission to a reserved seat is 2 rupees (65 cents.)

A feature in films which should be avoided in this market is objectionable comment on or portrayal of religious subjects. Mohammedans, Hindus, and other religious sects are keen to see any apparent slur and to resent it.

The Karachi establishment referred to was recently sued by Mohammedans on account of a film used decipting a scene in the life of a prophet. The Mohammedans alleged that their Prophet and their religion had been insulted. The court dismissed the suit, as no proof existed that the manager of the house had had any intention to insult anyone. The film was merely a fanciful representation of a supposed incident in Oriental life. Offense was nevertheless unintentionally given and the case dragged on for several days. Religious films for this part of India should be carefully scrutinized.

CANADA.

(Consul General R. E. Mansfield, Vancouver, British Columbia.)

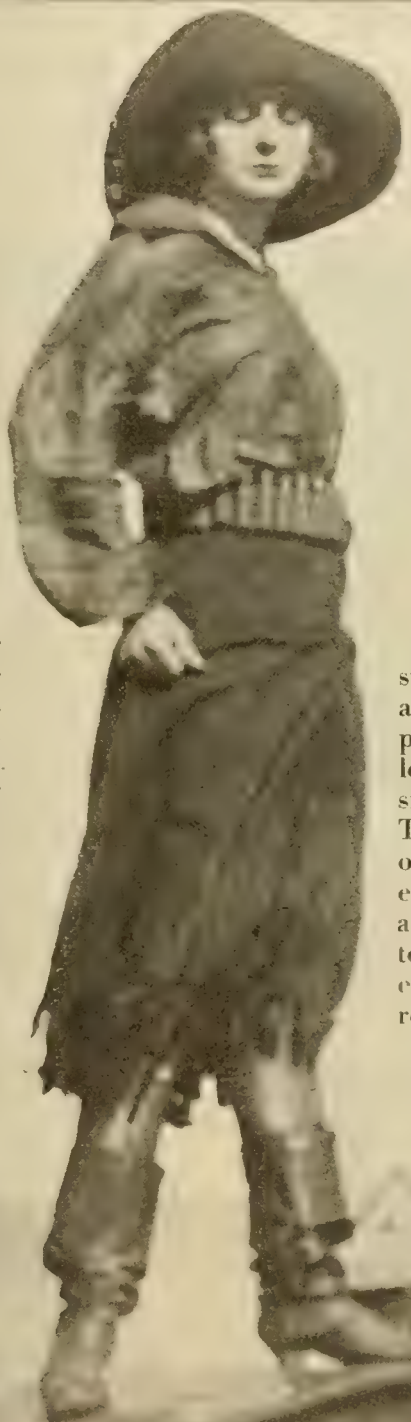
Moving Pictures of Great Sawmill

THE Canadian Western Lumber Co., of New Westminster, British Columbia, which operates one of the largest sawmills on the continent, has had moving picture films made of the various units of the plant, which has a capacity of 400,000 feet of lumber and 1,000,000 shingles daily, and an auxiliary door factory, with a capacity of 1,000 doors a day. The films, which reproduce realistic views of the various units of the great plant, including the logging and cutting of huge trees into lumber and shingles, will be placed on the regular circuits for the movies in Canada, the United States, and Europe, giving to the lumber industry in this province a wide range of advertising and directing the attention of people all over the world to the great national resources of British Columbia.

(Special lists of moving picture theaters furnished by the consuls who submitted the foregoing reports may be had from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and its branches.)

Bound Volume No. 20
APRIL TO JUNE, 1914
Now ready for delivery. Price $1.50
Expressage or postage extra
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Dauntless, daring, romantic is Bess of The BLAZING SEA



The story of a light-house keeper in league with dynamite smugglers. There are furious flames and terrific explosions—and the light-house with its tiny island is wiped from the face of the waters. Through the story runs the romance of the light-house keeper's sister and a secret service agent. Hair-breadth escapes—daring rescues—treachery—love. A picture that has rapid action in every scene.

"The Blazing Sea" is in three stirring parts. It is finely acted, and splendidly staged, and the photography is of unusual excellence. The flames and explosions are remarkably realistic. The whole story is out-of-the-ordinary in character and the effects secured in its production are decidedly impressive. Write to your nearest Warner's exchange for full information regarding this picture.

WARNER'S FEATURES, Inc., New York

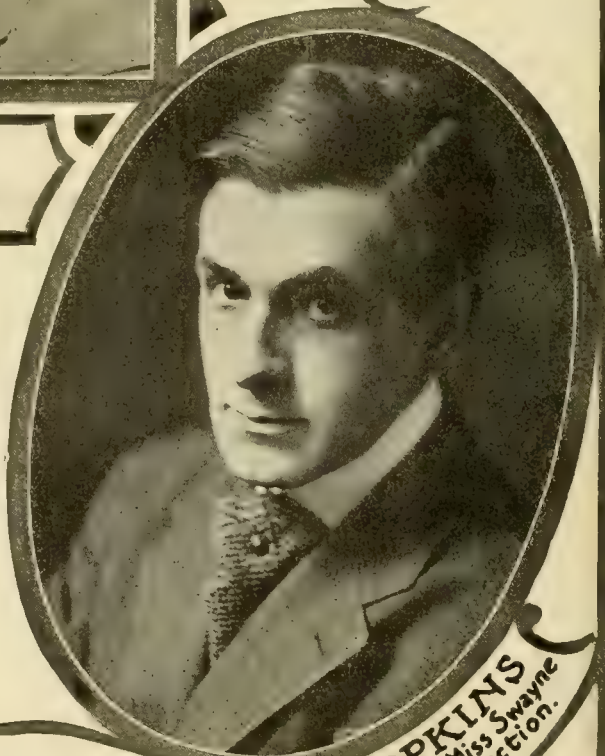
The ADVENTURES

A great spectacular presentation of James Montgomery Flagg's world-famous series of drawings

JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG

The distinguished American Artist whose genius created Kitty Cobb and her startling adventures.

MISS MARIAN SWAYNE
Whose charming and refined impersonation of Kitty makes this the most delightful picture ever produced.



JACK HOPKINS
Whose clever and brilliant support of Miss Swayne contributes to the picture's artistic perfection.

WARNER'S FEATURES, Inc., New York

of KITTY COBB

A wonderful story splendidly produced by a star cast of celebrated motion picture artistes

THIS is something big! You know Kitty Cobb, of course. Everybody does. East, West, North and South her fame has spread. She is today the most popular character ever produced by an artist's brush.

James Montgomery Flagg, one of America's foremost illustrators, created Kitty Cobb in a series of great drawings for the New York Sunday World. Such a tremendous hit did she make that other big Sunday newspapers clamored for her. So Kitty—sweet, winsome, sunny and brave—was syndicated for the benefit of the whole country, and her startling adventures and charming romance thrilled and delighted an audience that mounted high into the millions.

Now we have Kitty brought to life—a refreshing, fascinating four-part film which pictures Flagg's famous heroine and her exploits with superb realism. It is truly a marvelous production. Miss Marian Swayne, the pretty, vivacious little lady who plays the role of Kitty, is exactly suited to it. She gets your sympathies. You laugh with her and cry with her. Your blood boils when she struggles with the kidnappers, and your heart rejoices when love triumphs.

A full line of striking advertising matter, from a display card to a 24-sheet stand in seven colors. Book this great four-part feature now. Write your nearest Warner's Exchange for full particulars of this release.

It is a wonderful picture with a powerful appeal.

WARNER'S FEATURES, Inc., New York

THE interest taken by Exhibitors in the Complete Service offered by Warner's Features, Inc., is unprecedented. The idea of a 21-reel Weekly Program plus big Features plus powerful Specials has scored a hit. Advance bookings have been heavy —and they are still coming in. For particulars write to your nearest Warner's Exchange.

Warner's Features, Inc.
New York

LICENSED FILM STORIES

VITAGRAPH

MID WOODLAND SHADOWS (Oct. 12).—Dancing through the forest surrounding a lake far up in the mountains, Anita of the Forest, a beautiful child of nature, sees two campers on the opposite shore. Frightened, she runs away. The following day she suddenly comes face to face with Earle, one of the campers, and he falls in love at first sight. They gaze at each other a brief moment, then her shyness causes her to dash into the dense woods and hide. She meets Herbert, the other camper, who attempts to seize her, but she quickly eludes him and goes to her only friend and confidante, an old minister. She tells him of the two strangers, and he warns her against Herbert. Earle and the forest girl meet again, and she introduces him to the old minister, who approves of the young man. Later, they confess their love, and Earle places a ring on her finger; then, for the first time, a man's lips touch hers. Shortly afterwards, the girl is caught by Herbert, who attempts to force his undesirable attentions upon her. Just then the minister appears, and warns the fellow to keep away from the girl. When Herbert learns Earle is engaged to Anita, he endeavors to persuade him to renounce her, telling him of the aspirations he is leaving behind for the sake of an unsopnisticated girl. Anita overhears them and sorrowfully hands her ring to Earle. He tenderly replaces it and tells Herbert he intends to marry Anita and that their friendship is at an end. The two men part company and Earle and his bride-to-be go to the old minister, where, amidst the beautiful woodland bowers, they are made man and wife.

MAREEA, THE FOSTER-MOTHER (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 13).—Strong-minded and big-hearted, Mareea, the half-breed, cares tenderly for Jess, the widow, and Benny, the child, of her dead lover. Jess is of a childish nature, easily led, and when Brady, a dance-hall loafer, flatters her and dilates upon the life of ease which he could secure for her if she will run away with him she listens as though hypnotized. Despite Mareea's older and wiser counsel, the girl finally yields to the rascal's pleading and goes away with him. Mareea has been distrustful of Brady from the first moment, and at once follows them, leaving Benny in the care of a kindly neighbor. She traces the couple to a dance-hall on the outskirts of the town. There, with the help of a kindly longshoreman, Mareea's quick wit and bravery save the girl from a life of bondage although Jess loses her life in the fracas. Sadly they wend their way homeward with the body of Jess, to be greeted by little Benny. The neighbor tells the longshoreman of Mareea's lifelong sacrifice and devotion, and he is greatly impressed with her superior character and womanliness. Sometime later, they meet again, and he asks Mareea to become his wife. Looking straight into his eyes, Mareea accepts him, and as a reward for her long sacrifice finds happiness in the love of a good husband and little Benny.

THE PEACEMAKER (Oct. 14).—Jack Strong and Minnie Lee are sweethearts. He is called out of town on business and meets his friend Clover, who requests him to act as escort to the chaperone of a supper party which he is giving in honor of his fiancee, an actress. Jack accepts with very bad grace, and some kind friend informs Minnie that Jack Strong was seen at a popular cafe with a chum and two actresses. When he returns, Minnie gives him no chance to explain the incident and a bitter quarrel follows. Jack goes to his old friend, Lund, a retired artist, with his troubles and the latter, in the role of peacemaker, invites them both—unknown to each other—to an afternoon tea. Leighton and Kitty, another young couple, are also invited. By prearranged plan, Leighton bestows particular attention upon Minnie, while Kitty proves a charming listener to all Jack has to say. Noting the growing jealousy between Minnie and Jack, Lund smiles to himself. Later, Jack is angrily telling Lund of the heartache the "green-eyed monster" is causing him, when they see Minnie coming. Jack hides in an alcove. Minnie sobs out her troubles to the kindly old gentleman, but obstinately refuses to make up with Jack. Lund then shows her a letter from Glover explaining the whole affair. She is very humble, and fearing she has lost Jack forever, bursts out crying again. Lund then beckons to Jack, who gently takes Minnie in his arms. A happy reconciliation follows between the lovers. Leighton and Kitty join them, while Lund, with a smile of content, lights his pipe and dreams of the days when he was young and in love.

HIS DOMINANT PASSION (Oct. 15).—Dominated by an overpowering desire for wealth, John Brack, a small town financier, moves, with his wife, to New York, where he feels there is a better field for his talents. At first he is successful, but afterwards meets with reverses in Wall Street and goes to his friend, Henry Van Ess, for financial aid. The latter refuses a loan on the plea that his money is tied up in unset stones. The sight of the stones is too much for Breck in his need, and he grabs the box. In the struggle with Van Ess, the latter is choked into insensibility and the lamp overturned. The house is set afire and Breck escapes with the box, which he hides near a peculiarly shaped tree in the woods. Van Ess is rescued from the burning house, and before lapsing into insensibility, manages to gasp out the name, "John Breck." Breck is apprehended and taken into custody. At his trial, nothing comes out about the theft, for Van Ess's memory is gone, but Breck gets twenty years for assault and arson. During his incarceration, Breck constantly dreams of what he will do with his hidden wealth, when his sentence expires. When he has been in prison two years, his wife dies of a broken heart. At the expiration of his term, filled with anticipation, he goes to the hiding place and digs up his jewels, which he takes at once to a jeweler's to be appraised. He is stunned to learn they are only paste. Maddened by disappointment and blasted hopes, he wanders back to the old town where his wife and child are buried. There, casting himself down on his wife's grave, he dies.

FATTY'S SWEETHEART (Oct. 16).—On their way to enjoy a quiet little picnic lunch, Fatty and Lucy, his sweetheart, meet Zeb, Fatty's friend. He asks to go too, but Fatty says "nothing doing." Beside a lake, they sit down, and Fatty, after lunch, falls asleep. Lucy is peeved and when a young city chap waves to her from a canoe, she smiles back. Soon she and the stranger are paddling across the lake to the opposite shore. Zeb comes up, calls Fatty's attention to what is going on and they rush around the lake to pounce on the city chap. He proves more than a match for them, however, and the two friends get a ducking in the lake. Later, they overhear him invite Lucy to go auto-riding and Zeb suggests that he hold up the auto, and Fatty, who is to hitch on behind the car, can appear at the right moment and do the hero act, thus winning back his girl. Hiram, the sheriff, sees the conspirators and believes them to be real bandits. He ties Fatty to the automobile with a long rope, then goes after Zeb. Lucy and her escort get in and drive off, and poor Fatty is yanked along the muddy road at an alarming rate. Suddenly the car stops and Fatty hears a gruff voice command "Hands Up!" Not knowing that Hiram had captured Zeb and the gruff voice emanates from "Dany Hayes," a real bandit, Fatty rushes forward and overpowers the fellow. The city chap, badly scared, runs until he meets the officers who are after "Dany." He brings them back and the robber is arrested. Fatty, on learning he has captured a real bandit, swells out his chest, while Lucy shyly takes his arm. With scornful looks at the crestfallen city chap, they walk off and later see Hiram, in his mistaken zeal, driving poor handcuffed Zeb ahead of him on the way to the lockup.

THE GIRL IN THE CASE (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 17).—To cover their losses, Haney, a bank president, and Grieg, his vice-president, who have been gambling with the bank's money, plot to compromise Harry Mackay, the cashier. One night, Mackay becomes intoxicated. Next morning he is dazed and stupid. Haney sends for him and Grieg slips a package of the bank's money into the cashier's coat. An hour later, the shortage is "discovered," Harry arrested and the money found in his possession. To everyone's surprise, Haney forgives Harry and dismisses the charge. Grieg and Haney then plan a big haul. They invite Harry to dinner that evening, get him intoxicated and force him to take the remaining funds in the bank's vaults and place them in a large packing case in an adjoining yard. Ethel, the president's stenographer, Harry's sweetheart, in a peculiar way, learns what is going on and unnoticed, succeeds in transferring the money to a refuse can nearby. She then gets into the case and closes the lid. The case is carted away to Haney's home. Harry, sobered up, realizes all that has transpired. Going to Haney's house, he denounces him, but is overpowered, bound and gagged by Haney and Grieg. Ethel gets out of the case in time to call the police before she is discovered. The police nab the rascals and hustle them off to jail, while "The girl in the case" later becomes Harry's wife.

KALEM.

THE GIRL AND THE STOWAWAY (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 12).—The family estates heavily mortgaged, Lord Richie endeavors to arrange a match between his son, George, and Adele, daughter of an American millionaire. George, however, refuses to meet Adele. To his father's horror, George announces his intention of working his way to America.

The boy later becomes a stowaway aboard the same vessel which carries Adele and her family back to the United States. George sees a deckhand steal Adele's purse. He comes to her rescue. Each is ignorant of the other's identity.

Adele learns that George is a stowaway. Later, the Englishman's hiding place is discovered and he is compelled to work on deck. He and Adele fall in love with each other. Just before the vessel reaches port, Adele is thrown overboard by the seaman who had been baffled in his attempt to steal her purse. George leaps to the rescue. The deckhand is arrested. George's identity is later revealed and he wins Adele's hand.

PERCY PIMPERNICKEL SOUBRETTE (Oct. 13).—It is the year 1950. Woman rules the roost. Bess, the wild scion of the Rocks family, elopes with Percy Pimpernickel, a beautiful he-soubrette. Horror-stricken, Mrs. Rocks turns the couple into the cruel, cruel world. Poverty makes a brute of Bess. Poor Percy is later compelled to flee with their chee-ild. His plight is discovered by the Rocks. Stricken with remorse the parents make amends and all ends well.

SEED AND THE HARVEST (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 14).—His weak-willed mother and the son Fred, whom she has spoiled, are the mill-stones around Dan's neck. Ida, who loves him, determines to save him from their influence. The girl is assistant district attorney. Fred is arrested as a cocaine vender. When Dan comes to plead for him, Ida opens his eyes to the realization that Fred is only reaping the harvest of the seed of viciousness he has sowed. The mother also realizes the part she has played in bringing about her son's downfall. Ida weds Dan, while the heart-broken mother vows to bring about Fred's regeneration.

SI'S WONDERFUL MINERAL SPRING (Oct. 16).—Si and Hiram are deadly rivals. Both love Helen. A dispute over the ownership of a spring is won by Si. In revenge, Hiram dumps a load of rotten eggs into the water. But, alas! the terrific odor and the awful taste of the spring leads people to believe it possesses medicinal properties. And to Hiram's dismay, Si not only makes a fortune but also wins Helen.

FROM PERIL TO PERIL (Oct. 17).—Spot and Crackers make a prisoner of Helen, who surprises them in the act of burglarizing her father's safe. The girl succeeds in giving the alarm and her sweetheart, Charlie, comes to the rescue. The yeggmen flee. Helen and Charlie pursue on a motorcycle. The two arrive at a jack-knife bridge ahead of the crooks. Spot and Crackers leap off the high bridge into the river. Undaunted, Helen plunges after them. Due to her daring work, the crooks are brought to bay.

EDISON.

BUSTER BROWN'S EDUCATION (Oct. 12).—There is hardly any doubt that Buster's real middle name must have been "Trouble," for, in learning of his mother's decision to advertise for a tutor, he immediately called Mary Jane and the faithful Tige into consultation and all three repaired to a paint store where they laid in a supply of paint and brushes and proceeded to concoct a sign which was destined to have dire results for them all. "Wanted, a Tutor to Tute Two Tots, etc," was the way the sign started off. Buster and his companions placed the sign in a prominent position on the lawn and awaited results. They came quickly in the person of Algernon Cadwallader, who entered the house to make further inquiries.

His reception was somewhat exciting and it was quite evident that he had heard of Buster before, for on learning that he was supposed to teach Buster Brown, he made a hurried exit. assisted materially by Tige and the Goat. Buster's glee was shortlived. Herr Professor von Blitzen made his appearance in answer to Mrs. Brown's advertisement and proceeded to take command of the situation. Undaunted by the fierce manner of the little German, Buster and Tige tried some of their regular tactics only to find that Herr Professor was thoroughly capable of taking care of himself. Tige beats a hasty retreat from the schoolroom, followed by Von Blitzen. The goat enters into the conflict and is very roughly handled, to his great surprise. Buster is thoroughly spanked.

GEORGE WASHINGTON JONES (Oct. 12). George Washington Jones, attracted by the ad of a spiritualist medium, decided to try a glimpse into the future. He called on Svengali and was so thoroughly frightened by a number of ghosts that he rushed from the house as though a legion of devils were after him. The first man he met was a sausage peddler, clad in white duck clothing. Jones thought him a ghost and ran all the harder, knocking people right and left. He next rushed into a house to escape his imaginary pursuer and

(Continued on page 228.)

State Right Buyers

We Have a Sure Money Maker

CAPT. F. E. KLEINSCHMIDT'S ARCTIC HUNT

Eighteen thousand feet condensed to about 6500 feet

Native and animal life in the north. A revelation of life and affairs in the frigid zone that has never been equalled. An intimate close range study of the animal life, including Moose, Caribou, Sea Lion, Polar Bear, Great Kodiak Bear, Walrus and Millions of birds on their rookeries. Glaciers in action. Icebergs, the size of twenty-story buildings, precipitated headlong into the sea.

Chance to secure the bargain of a lifetime in Exclusive State Rights

Offering Fine Territory at Temptingly Low Prices

New York Zoological Society
CHAIRMAN OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE
11 WALL STREET

Jan. 14, 1914.

Captain F. A. Kleinschmidt,
98 Morningside Ave., City.

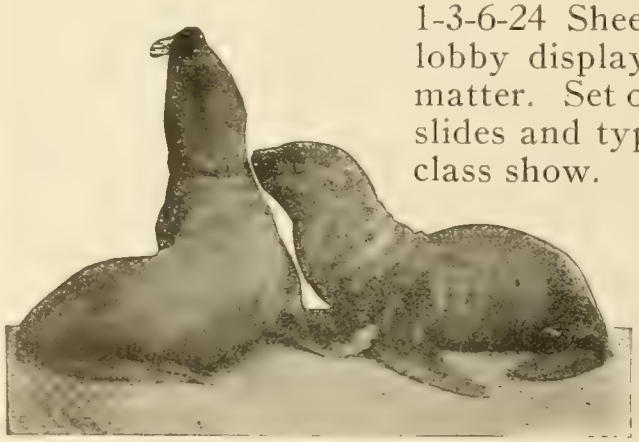
Dear Captain Kleinschmidt:-

I desire to extend the thanks of the New York Zoological Society to you for the use of your slides and motion pictures, and for your very interesting exposition on the subjects shown. Please accept my congratulations on your very successful and interesting exhibit.

In accordance with your understanding with Dr. Hornaday, I have directed that a check for $100.- be sent you.

Sincerely yours,

Chairman



1-3-6-24 Sheet Lithographs. Large Photos for lobby display. Heralds, Electros and publicity matter. Set of 40 beautifully colored stereopticon slides and typewritten lecture if desired for high class show.

Arctic Film Co.

Suite 1209

220 West 42d Street, New York

Phone Bryant 3559

The Aviator Spy
IF YOU WANT TO BE A SUCCESS YOU MUST BE UP TO DATE. DO NOT FAIL TO GET BUSY ON THIS BIG SENSATIONAL MID-AIR DRAMA, DIRECTLY BEARING ON THE GREAT WAR NOW ON IN EUROPE
3 PARTS
HUGH HOFFMAN

A BRAND NEW LIST OF FEATURES

THE LOSS OF THE BIRKENHEAD — Naval Disaster — 4 Parts
THE WOMAN HE WRONGED—A Drama of Love and Hate—4 Parts
THE FIENDS OF HELL—Extraordinary Underworld Story—4 Parts

APEX FILM CO.

145 West 45th Street—NEW YORK—P. P. Craft, Manager
European Office—H. Winik, 35 Little Newport St., London

THE PRODUCTIONS OF

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM COMPANY
In association with Daniel Frohman, Chas. Frohman, Henry W. Savage

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.
Associated with David Belasco The Liebler Company

BOSWORTH, INC.
Producers of Jack London's Fiction Classics

CONSTITUTE

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT MANUFACTURERS PARAMOUNT DISTRIBUTORS PARAMOUNT Exhibitors throughout the United States

Are cooperating for the universal betterment of the Motion Picture Industry. Their united, persistent effort means—

A system of reimbursing the manufacturer that encourages the production of better pictures, better methods of distribution and better theatres.

Resulting in—

Greater confidence of the public.
Increased patronage of the best people.
Higher prices of admission and
Permanent, satisfactory business for all Paramount Affiliations.

WRITE YOUR NEAREST EXCHANGE FOR INFORMATION

Watch for next week's announcement of the second quarter's releases.

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures Corporation

110 West 40th St., New York

Remember the Huge Success of "The Great Python Robbery"?

"THE LONG ARM OF THE LAW"

(THE DETECTIVE TRIUMPHS)

SURPASSES IT IN

Nerve-Quickening Excitement and Dare-Devil Action

We Stake Our Judgment Upon Its Being

The Best Detective Photoplay of the Season

You Couldn't Cut an Inch of Its Four Reels
Without Cutting

STRONG, VITAL, POWERFUL PLOT!

SOME TERRITORY REMAINS OPEN ON

"Where Is Coletti?" "Held For Ransom"

"The Master of Death" "The Sacrifice of Pauline"

THE I. S. P. CO.

220 West 42d Street New York City

(Continued from Page 225)

found himself in the midst of a wedding party. Thinking the bride was a ghost, fresh fear gave him wings, and he rushed out of the place.

He no sooner reached the street when he was confronted by a "white wings" street sweeper. Jones let out a yell, and, racing down the street, rushed into a bakery shop, only to meet a baker, all clad in white, and in the tussle which followed, the baker threw him into a big flour bin, and closing down the lid, rushed out to get a policeman. In a few moments Jones emerged completely covered with flour, and again took up his wild rush for home with the crowd following him. Plunging into his house, who should he see but his own wife sitting at the table, clad in white night-gown and cap. Thinking that she was another ghost, he was paralyzed, but the final blow came when he caught sight of his own flour-covered face in the mirror. This was too much for him and he collapsed in a heap just as the crowd rushed in and burst into roars of laughter at sight of the couple.

THE LETTER THAT NEVER CAME OUT (Oct. 13).—When Betty Harrington, after setting her cap for John Forrest, the rising young politician, was forced to sit quietly by and witness the conquest of her rival, she vowed everlasting vengeance against Maud Starrett. Womanlike, her first move was a contradictory one, for, in a fit of pique, she married Will Harn for whom she cared nothing. Learning of this, Forrest wrote Harn a letter of congratulation, saying that he, likewise, would be receiving a similar reward very shortly. Mrs. Harn received the note, but failed to show it to her husband. She was perfectly furious and set about perfecting a plan to break up the engagement of Forrest and Miss Starrett. A few nights later, she so arranged matters that she and Forrest were seen by Miss Starrett in a somewhat compromising attitude, the direct result of which was a complete break between the pair.

Five years later, Forrest and Harn were political opponents. An article appeared in the paper comparing the two men. Harn's record as a grafter was brought up, while Forrest's clean record was commented upon. Recollecting the contents of Forrest's congratulatory letter at the time of her marriage, Mrs. Harn decided to send it to the "Morning Record," feeling sure that the editor would use it in an effort to cast a slur on Forrest's reputation. She hurriedly scribbled a note saying that the enclosed note would open people's eyes to Forrest's true character. The note, bearing Forrest's signature, was so worded that it was perfectly easy to think that he, as well as Harn, had received some sort of graft in the past.

Carling discovered that the editor was puzzled about the authenticity of the handwriting and had called in a handwritig expert, in order to be sure of his ground before publishing it. In order to offset this, Carling thought out a scheme that would further complicate matters. He prevailed upon Miss Starrett to write several letters, duplicating Forrest's writing and deliberately "planted" them where the editor would find them. The editor submitted them and the other letters to the expert and the uncertainty was such that he dared not risk the publication of the Forrest letter. Forrest was elected to the governorship, and it was in an interview with Carling that he learned of Miss Starrett's part in the game. Leaving the reporter standing in his office, Forrest rushed off to his former fiancee's home when tardy explanations quickly brought about a reconciliation.

I Say,

to you exhibitors who have not provided yourselves with a year's supply of Imported M. P. Carbons, you will be sorry, because before long, there will be no Imported Carbons at any price. You had better wire in for prices and state your requirements.

I have on exhibition the wonderful "BAIRD" Projector, the latest M. P. machine. My last sale was to F. T. Montgomery, the Moving Picture Man of the South. He came—He saw—He was conquered by the "BAIRD." Send for free catalog. I am distributor.

Send for free circular of the "HALLBERG" A.C. to D.C. Economizer, which is made for and used by all of the better Exhibitors where a swell picture is demanded. Write about it.

ANDY AND THE REDSKINS (Eleventh of the Andy Series—Oct. 14).—When Andy and Lanky came upon a flaming poster showing Indians and scouts, Andy was in the seventh heaven of delight. As luck would have it, they met a fakir further down the street, and as he was dressed up in all the regalia of a Western scout, Andy became interested. The fakir's stories of the number of Indians he had killed held Andy enthralled, and on his return to the messenger service offices, he indulged in several very realistic day dreams which set the office in a turmoil. Pay day arrived, and on collecting his wages, Andy informed Lanky that he was going West to kill Indians. Lanky tried to laugh him out of such a notion, but Andy took it in the wrong way, and stalked out of the office highly indignant.

Going to an army store, he purchased a complete outfit and set out to find the West. A friendly policeman directed him to the Wild West Show and Andy started in by shooting the chief. The cowboys and Indians all gathered around him and for a while Andy had visions of the stake. The chief, however, looked upon the whole thing as a joke and turned Andy over to his little daughter, telling her to take him into the show. In the meantime, Lanky had spread the news, and right in the midst of the show, as Andy was surrounded by his new-found friends, his mother's advent on the scene put a stop to his further adventures. Poor Andy was dragged home in disgrace and was given a chance to think over his sins behind locked doors.

ON THE ISLE OF SARNE (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 10).—Countess Dorothea was plunged into the depths of despair on learning, through her tutor, that her uncle, the Duke, was so set upon her acceptance of Count Sigismund's suit that she was to be taken to the Isle of Sarne and kept there under the watchful eye of the Baroness until she saw things in the proper light. Rebellion being out of the question, Dorothea was forced to submit, but she managed to have her tutor accompany them, hoping thereby to be able to frustrate her uncle's plans. The party arrived on the island, and Dorothea lived in daily fear of the arrival of Count Sigismund. At last, one day her tutor announced the arrival of a yacht. All waited the landing of the expected suitor with varying emotions.

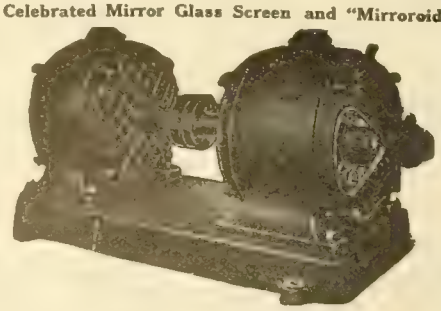
Entirely without realizing it, the tutor was at fault, as the boat he had sighted belonged to Peter Seabrooke, who was forced to put into port as his provisions were exhausted. Much to Seabrook's astonishment, he was met at the dock and escorted to the castle with signal honors. Being presented to the Baroness and Dorothea, he was at a loss to understand the former's attitude until he learned of the plot from Dorothea and finally consented to carry out the deception, as the Baroness, never having met Count Sigismund, was completely fooled concerning Seabrooke's identity, and thought him to be the real Sigismund. The intimate association of the young couple had its effect, and when the real Count Sigismund's yacht was sighted, Seabrooke set about seriously to frustrate the plans. Boarding the yacht, he managed to lead Count Sigismund to a deserted part of the island, where he left him securely fastened to a tree, and returned to the island to carry out his own plan.

He was in the midst of an explanation to Dorothea when the Count arrived at the castle, having been released by his own men. He attacked Seabrooke furiously but was forced to retreat as Dorothea came to the rescue with the fire hose. On learning that the Duke had arrived, Seabrooke, realizing that the game was

Distributor of the Celebrated Mirror Glass Screen and "Mirroroide" Curtain

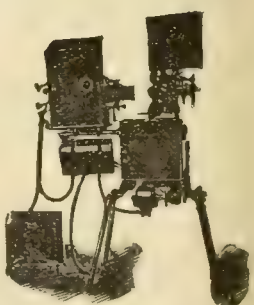
SIMPLEX

Distributor "BAIRD" and Motiograph M. P. Machines



HALLBERG A. C. to D. C. ECONOMIZER FOR ONE OR TWO LAMPS

Distributor Power's 6-A and Simplex M. P. Machines



POWER'S 6A

Factory Selling Headquarters for BAIRD, POWER'S, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 pages, costs you 25c. by mail

J. H. HALLBERG "THE HOUSE OF QUALITY" 36 East 23rd Street, New York

MAKE MONEY!

Short Term Leases for City, County or State

Mr. EXHIBITOR!---Become an EXCHANGE MAN for These Features:

LINA CAVALIERI THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS BEAUTY

in "MANON LESCAUT"

The Six Part Feature that the New York Critics unanimously proclaimed to be the most beautiful and appealing product of the year.

SIX CAPACITY WEEKS—REPUBLIC THEATRE, NEW YORK

THE MOST THRILLING OF ALL DETECTIVE PLAYS

"THE GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY"

With WALLACE EDDINGER, GAIL KANE, CHAS. J. ROSS, ELITA PROCTOR OTIS, and an entire Star Cast.

6 PARTS---52 CONSECUTIVE DAYS at the LOEW NEW YORK THEATRES---6 PARTS

Mr. Exhibitor—Become an Exchange man and make money—you know what these features are worth to you—They are worth as much to anyone in your territory—As a Try-out Lease your City, County or State for One Month with privilege of renewal, and add to your income in your own line of business.
Complete line of 5 and 6 Color Printing, Heralds, Cuts, Press Matter, Photos, etc., for both features.

PLAYGOERS FILM COMPANY

Phone, Bryant 874-875 LYRIC THEATRE BUILDING 213 W. 42d St., N. Y.

FLA. GA. ALA. MISS. LA.
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
315 RHODES BUILDING
ATLANTA, GA.
TENN. N. C. S. C. VA.

up, hastily declared his love for Dorothea and prevailed upon her to fly with him to England, where they could be married and safe from the despotism of the Duke.

THE CASE OF THE VANISHED BONDS (Oct. 17).—Felix Boyd had just returned from a successful criminal chase and was taking a bit of well earned rest when he was called into a bond robbery case which had all of the earmarks of genius. On arriving at the offices of Curry, Gale and Fiske, the latter told him of the mysterious loss of the bonds and Benson was called in to give the details. After carefully questioning him, it developed that he had come straight from the bank, carrying the bonds in a hand bag, and had only stopped once, that being when he met Wyckoff in front of the Howard building. With nothing but this slender clue to work on, Boyd made an appointment to meet Coleman and placed him on Wyckoff's trail, and then, disguising himself as a Jew peddler, he visited the Howard building before which Benson had met Wyckoff.

There he found Gorman, but could get nothing out of him. Hoping to make Wyckoff betray himself, he looked him up and put a direct question concerning Benson, but Wyckoff was as cool as a cucumber and betrayed no surprise of any kind. Convinced that he was on a live trail, Boyd decided to try a ruse. He informed Coleman of his plan and told him to disguise himself as a working man, and he then arranged to get a squad of policemen. Entering the building with the policemen, he sent them in different directions, while he entered the office alone.

Telling Gorman that the police were in the building looking for a gang of crooks, he watched his expression on hearing the news. At that very moment, Coleman passed the door with the police in pursuit. Boyd rushed to the door but tiptoed back in time to see Gorman go over to the corner and raise a loose board and take out a bundle of papers. Stepping forward, Boyd demanded the papers, but Gorman drew a revolver and fired at him point blank. Before either could act, Coleman appeared at the door, and taking in the situation, at a glance fired, dropping Gorman in his tracks. After showing Coleman how the thieves had arranged the sliding slab in order to remove the bonds from Benson's bag, Boyd took the papers to Fiske's office and made it perfectly plain that Benson was in no way to blame for the robbery, much to the old clerk's delight.

SELIG.

THE DREAM GIRL (Special Two Parts—Oct. 12).—Seward, an artist, not for bread and butter alone, but for the love of the art, has visions of a beautiful face which haunts his dreams. His mind so dwells upon this beautiful creation of his imagination, that he becomes firmly convinced that the girl of his dreams is an actual being of flesh and blood. The portrait impressed upon his memory is so distinct that he spends his leisure hours in reproducing the lovely features on canvas.

One day, Captain Sparks, an old-time friend of Seward whose business is that of a contraband smuggler, arrives from one of his filibustering expeditions and calls to see Seward. They make the occasion one for renewing old friendships and discussing their adventures. After dinner Seward takes the Captain to his studio and unveils the portrait of the girl of his dreams. The Captain is all excitement. He declares that he knows the girl; that instead of being a dream girl, she is an actual person, and he proceeds to tell with vivid description, of how he had seen the girl kidnapped by a party of ruffians and taken out to sea in a boat. The very sword that he has brought to his friend, Seward, as a souvenir, was one left behind by the party of kidnappers when the Captain bravely tried to save the girl from them. The Captain's description is so vivid, that Seward makes up his mind to accompany the Captain on his return trip into the tropics with the hope of finding some trace of this most mysterious and most attractive girl.

The trip is undertaken. They sail for the port of Caint Marc, in Haiti, and after a few days of fruitless search, Captain Sparks suddenly espies one of the men whom he identifies readily as one of the kidnappers with whom he had struggled when they took the girl away.

Seward tells the Captain that he will keep an eye on this fellow and follow him. He promises to return as soon as he has located the hiding place of the ruffian. Seward trails him to the palatial residence of the Costillos, reputed to be one of the wealthiest families on the island. Through the window, Seward observes the transfer of money from Costillo to the ruffian, the scene indicating that some desperate project is afoot and that great interests are at stake.

The ruffian, upon leaving the house, makes his way to the seashore where he clambers aboard a sloop, which he prepares to get under way. Seward throws off his coat, plunges into the water and catching hold of a ring-bolt in the stern of the craft, permits himself to be towed by the little vessel out to sea. He has been most careful to conceal himself from the bearded, piratical looking fellow, who would, from appearances, kill him without the slightest compunction should the occasion or necessity arise.

Seward is dragged through the water behind the boat, until the shores of a small-jungle-covered island are reached. Just before the sloop runs aground, Seward lets go his hold and swims into the shelter of a cluster of projecting cliffs from which he observes the ruffian make fast an anchor line ashore and start for the interior of the island. Cautiously following, they quickly approach a small log cabin hidden amid the trees, and the ruffian, apparently at home, takes a key from his pocket, opens the door and enters. Seward investigates and notes a small barred window through which he can see the interior. One glance suffices to show him that the girl of his dreams is a prisoner in the lonely cabin. He can overhear enough of their conversation to know that the girl is wildly demanding her liberty, while the villain scoffingly jeers at her distress. The ruffian enters an adjoining room and closes the door. Whereupon, Seward quickly makes his presence known to the prisoner, who welcomes him as a possible deliverer. It does not take him long to convince her that she can rely upon him implicitly. During their subdued conversation, the sharp ears of the bearded man overhear voices and he surprises them at the window. Dashing outside, he enters into a hand-to-hand struggle with Seward and is getting the best of the battle, when Dolores, the prisoner, finding the door open, runs outside carrying in her hand the revolver which Seward had accidentally dropped through the window when discovered by the bearded man. A moment's cessation of the violent struggle between the two men when the bearded man raises his arm to plunge his knife into the prostrate foe, furnishes the opportunity for Dolores to save the life of her deliverer. One shot from the revolver, and the huge, burly form of the ruffian crumples over and he lies fatally wounded. Believing himself to be fatally wounded, the ruffian confesses that the Costillos had bribed him to kill Dolores, so that they could obtain her fortune, but that he had saved her life and made her a prisoner after accepting $10,000 from the Costillos for committing the supposed murder.

The return to the mainland is quickly accomplished in the dead ruffian's boat. Dolores goes aboard Captain Sparks' schooner where explanations are made. A report of the matter is made to the local officials and Seward and Sparks accompany Dolores with the police officers to the Costillo home. The guilty ones cannot deny their crime. Handcuffs are clasped upon the wrists of Costillo and his wife and the officers drag them away. Dolores happily receives her two new friends in her own home.

Seward exhibits the picture of his "dream girl," and tells the story to Dolores. He is already her hero, and her heart is already won. At last he has found the girl of his dreams.

THE MEXICAN (Oct. 13).—A Mexican leaves his wife and family with hunger staring them in the face to get a job on the "Rocking Chair" Ranch, so that he can supply them with life's necessities. Mexicans are not popular at the ranch and the new man is bullied and persecuted until he tries to kill his foreman, whereupon he is kicked out. He plans to burn the ranch buildings out of revenge. While the crew is away riding herd, the Mexican steals back to the ranch and arranges for the conflagration.

The foreman's baby daughter is bitten by a rattlesnake and the frantic mother forgets the hostility of the Mexican in her anxiety. His innate manhood causes the Mexican to forget his revenge and ride for the doctor on the fastest horse on the ranch. Seeing him ride madly past, the foreman shoots him for a horse thief. The Mexican brings the doctor, the baby is saved, his courage is rewarded and his family is saved from starvation.

THE MYSTERIOUS BEAUTY (Oct. 14).—Harold Heath, a wealthy young clubman, has too much time on his hands. He falls asleep in a chair at his club and dreams of a beautiful girl. He awakens to see her counterpart walking past the club window. He declares that she is the ideal of his fancy and starts off in pursuit of her in order to find out who she is. The first time he loses her, but he sees her again and follows, determined not to lose

TEXAS EXHIBITORS
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
DALLAS
TEX. OKLA. ARK. LA.

CALIFORNIA
802 SO. OLIVE STREET
LOS ANGELES
APEX
FEATURE SERVICE
PANTAGES THEATRE BLDG
SAN FRANCISCO

her this time. Then he has a series of adventures and complications, including a dentist-shop where he loses a tooth, a cafe where he impersonates a waiter, the kidnapping by him of a trolley car and many other incidents, all of which create laughs and offer a most amusing entertainment.

Then he discovers that the girl is a confidence woman and the police take her to jail. He is disconsolate and declares that his heart will never again be misled. He turns around, sees another pretty girl, and follows her.

THE MAN HATER (Oct. 16).—Flora, the man-hater, despises everything that wears trousers. She is a vinegary old maid with a sour disposition and a hatred of mankind. Her lovely young niece, Betty, has a sweetheart, Billy, but Flora catches them at it and belabors Billy with her parasol until he flees, leaving Betty in tears. Flora has a brother on a Western ranch. His foreman is a woman hater, and thinks all females are "pizen." The brother writes for Flora to visit him on the ranch for a month, and sends the angry woman-hater to haul her from the station. With her pet dog, cat and parrot, Flora arrives at the station trimmed like a Christmas tree. She lays down the law to the woman-hater.

A band of drunken Indians stop them on the road to hold them up, but the valor of the woman-hater, together with the strategy of the man-hater, force the Indians to flee in terror. Flora binds up the scratches and bruises of the woman-hater, and it does not take them long to find out that love is the best thing after all. Flora telegraphs Betty and her sweetheart her permission to wed.

THE WOMAN OF IT (Oct. 17).—A most unusual picture, portraying the adventures of a woman, a man, and a brute in a vision of the primitive. The woman is on the seashore with her sweetheart and a rough boat-man. She falls into a dream-doze and has a vision of the three of them wrecked on a desert island. The man is courageous, but has no knowledge of the practical things. The brute saves their lives because he knows how to do things. They revert back to the primitive in their mode of life, and the brute wins the woman, in the vision, from her gentlemanly sweetheart. A passing ship sees their signal and sends a boat ashore for them. The brute has so won the affections of the woman, in the vision, that they hide in the tropical jungle and refuse to be rescued. They prefer to remain in the primitive without the conventionalities of civilization.

LUBIN.

THE BELOVED ADVENTURER, NO. 5, THE GIRL FROM THE WEST (Oct. 12).—Lord Cecil, through his impulsive kindness in having surrendered to her humble lover the American heiress to whom he had become engaged, now finds himself in a deplorable financial condition, and as a last expedient sells what is left of his family jewels, thereby raising the sum of $25,000. This becomes known to Monte Carson, a professional swindler from the West, who has come East to hunt "big game." He has with him Betty, a charming young girl, whom he unofficially adopted when a child, and whom he finds very useful in his schemes. Betty half suspects the crookedness of Carson's deals, and rebels at the parts she called on to play, and it is only by playing on her feelings of gratitude and obligation that Carson is able to induce her co-operation.

Carson frames up a deal, using Betty as a decoy, whereby Lord Cecil is relieved of his $25,000, receiving in return therefore the entire capital stock of the "Golden Hope" mine, which, he is later informed, is an entirely worthless hole in the ground. Carson and the girl return to the West, but Betty cannot forget the gentle and kindly Englishman on whose honest nature they so basely played. Nor can Lord Cecil, even after he realizes that he has been victimized, think in any way but tenderly of the appealing little girl. With the loss of the money derived from the sale of his jewels, Lord Cecil's last asset vanishes—he is left without funds or credit, and the knowledge that the mortgages upon his ancestral home will soon be foreclosed.

NEIGHBORLY NEIGHBORS (Oct. 13).—Smith, Jones and Brown are neighbors; Smith and his wife return from a fishing trip, tired and hungry. They decide to have a hurry-up lunch of crackers and sardines. Unexpected visitors arrive and display every symptom of a long stay. The Smiths are short of provisions and Smith decides to rob the kitchen of neighbor Brown. He cleans out Brown's pantry, and returns with the plunder. Brown and his wife return from a trip to town tired and hungry. They discover the loss of their provisions and then visitors arrive at their house also. Brown resolves to rob Smith's kitchen and succeeds in stealing his own food back. Smith decides to borrow some ice from neighbor Jones. The same idea occurs to Brown and they meet in Jones' kitchen. An argument ensues, which attracts the attention of the police and Smith and Brown are both escorted to the station. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Brown, becoming alarmed at the long absence of their husbands decide to investigate. They meet at Jones' back porch and an officer tells of the arrest. The women run to the station and denounce the sergeant. In the meantime Jones returns and, enjoying a smoke in his den when the Police Sergeant phones him. Jones hastens to the station and squares matters then invites the entire party to his house for supper. The visitors at Smith's and Brown's houses get disgusted and leave, but the Smith and Brown families enjoy a jolly evening with their bachelor neighbor Jones.

SWAMI SAM (Oct. 13).—The Chief of Smithville telegraphs the Riverside police to please arrest Sam Johnson calling himself Swami Sam on a charge of forgery. The telegram rather embarrasses the force for they are too stupid to know how to grant and they have to take up a collection to pay for the telegram. The chief details two of his men to arrest Sam, who is running a fortune telling parlor. Sam hypnotizes the two men and persuades one that he is the other one's prisoner. This gets the chief sore, and the whole force start out to arrest Sam. Percy, a perfect little lady, wants to make the arrest single handed, and the others are very willing to see him do so; but when Percy sees the two guns that Sam is fondling, he makes a round trip of it and they all go in. Sam opens fire and they don't stop running until they get back to the station. The chief sends this telegram to Smithville: "If you want Sam, come and get him. We can't." Then Mattie, a colored laundress walks in with Sam and prefers a charge of assault with intent to kill. The chief hustles out after the boy and catches him in time to rub out the last two words. Then they all go back to the station where Percy puts the final affront on Sam by hanging on his chest a sign "To Be Called For."

THE BOND OF WOMANHOOD (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 14).—Nell Rogers, wife of a wealthy broker, leaves him because of his affairs with other women. She sets out one morning, leaving without Rogers' knowledge, as he lays in a drunken stupor. She intends to visit relatives in a nearby city, but her auto is wrecked and a limb is broken. She is found by Mary Jenks, a poorly-clad girl-wife of a rough fisherman. Mary, with the aid of "Granny" Wilkes, carries Nell to Mary's shack. Mary has just been through a case parallel to that of Nell. Her husband is a brute and he has left in a rage to go to his drinking companions.

During the weeks of illness that Mary nurses the "lady from the city," a bond of sympathy springs up between the two women. Nell, on the other hand, is grateful for the devotion bestowed upon her. As friendship ripens, the women exchange confidences. About this time a babe is born to Nell. One day Nell, from the cabin window, sees an auto containing her husband and some care-free women pass along the road, and she realizes that her husband is unchanged. On the same day Mary's husband, Jenks, calls at the cabin with his brutal threats directed toward Mary. Then there develops the bond of womanhood. Each wife, unknown to the other, resolves to seek the offending husband and cause a reconciliation. Mary secretly sets out on foot to see Rogers. She reaches the mansion exhausted. There she finds him in the midst of a lawn party given to his friends. Undaunted, she seeks Rogers in the midst of the merrymaking, and, in spite of the derisive laughter of the folk, she delivers her simple sermon. She describes Nell's mental and physical suffering so vehemently, and scores Rogers so unmercifully that he wilts under her volleys of indignation. Soon Mary has persuaded him to return to the forest hut and go back to Nell.

In the meantime Nell has performed a similar mission by seeking out Jenks in a river hut. Although his drunken threats intimidate her at first, she scores him so tellingly for his abuse of Mary that she conquers the brute in him and leaves him repentant. Humiliated, embarrased and ashamed, Rogers sets out for the hut. Here he is reconciled with Nell over the cradle in which the tiny body of their infant rests. Nell pleads with the forest girl to return with them. Mary, realizing her helplessness, is about to yield when Jenks appears in the doorway, ready to receive Mary's foregiveness. The city man and his wife leave with the baby. Jenks turns to Mary with the first show of tenderness he has ever exhibited and announces his intention to make amends.

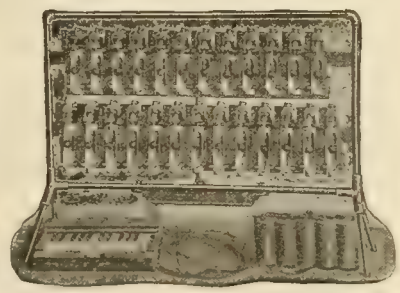
THE IMPOSTOR (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 15).—Harry, youngest son of Lord Medvale of England, deeply resents his father's harshness, following a foolish prank and the boy's expulsion from college, and leaves home, and does not communicate with his family. Eight years later, Harry's mother, having lost her husband and her other children is filled with an increasing longing for her boy, who, if living, is now Lord Medvale. One who shares her longing is Mary, a Medvale ward and an heiress, who, though scarcely more than a child when Harry went away, had, unknown to him, enshrined him in her girlish heart.

The mother calls to her aid Horace Cadby, a lawyer, who has been able to maintain an ex-

(Continued on page 237.)

MENGER & RING
304 W. 42nd Street NEW YORK
Telephone, Bryant 6621

DEAGAN UNAPHONE
FOR MOTION PICTURE THEATRES



EASY TO BUY
EASY TO PLAY
EASY TO CARRY
ALWAYS A HIT
Write for particulars,
J. C. DEAGAN,
Deagan Building,
1760 Berteau Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT
Moving Picture Machines, Films and Chairs
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE
440 S. Dearborn Chicago, Ill.

SCENARIOS CRITICISED
By
MARY LOUISE FARLEY
Photoplaywright
607 West 136th Street, New York
In writing for particulars enclose stamps.

ALLIANCE

A COMBINATION OF THE WORLD'S GREAT DIRECT-TO-EXHIBITOR CO-OPERATIVE BOOK THEATERS AN ABSOLUTELY DEPEN SECURE BIG FEATURES FOR 52 WE

The Exhibitor is the sole arbiter of the manufacturer's success, because his profit is derived solely from the popularity of the film. Each unit is independent of the other, obviating a forced program, and absolutely eliminating all element of chance in the quality of the releases.

Each Manufacturer stands by himself, receiving a percentage of the bookings. The better picture he makes the more benefit he will derive. This is a tremendous incentive for rivalry in the race for quality.

The Alliance Films Corporation is not interested in the exchanges nor the manufacturing companies. The manufacturing companies are not interested in the exchanges.

POWERFUL SUBJECTS

Date	Title of Film	Producer	Star
Oct. 12	THE KEY TO YESTERDAY	Favorite Players	Carlyle Blackwell
Oct. 19	THE PATH FORBIDDEN	Excelsior	Octavia Handworth
Oct. 26	AT THE OLD CROSS ROADS	Select	Estha Williams
Nov. 2	(To be announced)
Nov. 9	(To be announced)

PRODUCED BY MASTERS IN

FAVORITE PLAYERS FILM CO., Inc.
EXCELSIOR FEATURE FILM CO., Inc.

Next Week's Announcement, Giving a List of Exchanges Handling

ALLIANCE FILMS CORPORATION,

PROGRAM

EST FEATURE PHOTOPLAY PRODUCERS IN A ING PLAN WHICH INSURES TO THE BETTER DABLE SOURCE FROM WHICH TO EKS OF THE YEAR.

Every Subject must be submitted to the exchanges before it is placed in the ALLIANCE PROGRAM, and an unbiased and uninfluenced committee judicially passes upon the drawing power of the film, the photography and acting.

The confidence of the manufacturer in his ability to produce the greatest films in the world, and his determination to do so, is apparent; otherwise these producers would not be willing to enter into such an arrangement. This statement is not made for mere publicity purposes, but is an actual, bona fide fact. There are many agreeable surprises in store for the exhibitor who will watch for ALLIANCE ANNOUNCEMENTS, but it must not be forgotten that every producer affiliated with the ALLIANCE FILMS CORPORATION must agree to the conditions hereinabove stated.

FOR EARLY RELEASE

Date	Title of Film	Producer	Star
Nov. 16	THE MAN WHO COULD NOT LOSE	Favorite Players	Carlyle Blackwell
Nov. 23	THE SHADOW	Excelsior	Octavia Handworth
Nov. 30	(To be announced)
Dec. 7	AN UNFINISHED STORY	Favorite Players	Carlyle Blackwell
Dec. 14	WHEN FATE LEADS TRUMP	Excelsior	Octavia Handworth

THE ART OF FILM MAKING

SELECT PHOTOPLAY PRODUCING CO., Inc.
AND OTHER MANUFACTURERS TO BE ANNOUNCED

the Alliance Program Will Disclose Many Surprises. Watch for it.

Leavitt Bldg., 11th Floor 126 W. 46th St., New York City

ALLIANCE PROGRAM

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

The Excelsior Feature Film Co., Inc., will release all its subjects through the Alliance Films Corporation, beginning with

"THE PATH FORBIDDEN"

Dramatized from the book by John B. Hymer, in five parts. An intensely human interest production, wonderfully acted, with the peerless star of the silent drama, in the leading role, supported by GORDON DE MAINE, WILLIAM A. WILLIAMS, JOHN B. HYMER, and a large cast.

OCTAVIA HANDWORTH

MARVELOUS SCENES

are presented, in exquisite photography, which will cause audiences to sit spellbound in wonder and amazement. Through trick work and double exposure, Miss Handworth, playing the dual role of the twin sisters, is actually seen shaking hands with herself, and handing to, and taking from, herself, various articles, both figures being photographed close to the camera. This work has been pronounced by experts the most intricate ever attempted, and this is the first time in the history of motion pictures that the feat has been accomplished.

Released October 19

EXCELSIOR FEATURE FILM CO., INC.

110 West 40th St. Suite 1002 NEW YORK CITY

Harry Handworth, Pres. Arthur Rosenbach, Sales Mgr. Wm. H. Wright, Treas.

ALLIANCE PROGRAM

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Select Photoplay Producing Co., Inc., will release all its feature films through the Alliance Films Corporation. The first subject is:

"AT THE OLD CROSS ROADS"

Released October 26, in Five Reels, Featuring

MISS ESTHA WILLIAMS

in her original role of Parepa, supported by Mrs. Stuart Robson, Arthur Morrison, Miss Rae Ford, Master Martin, and a large cast.

This play has been shown for fourteen consecutive seasons by Arthur C. Aiston, covering every state in the Union, and has repeatedly broken box office receipts in high class legitimate theatres. It is probably the best known play in America, and its tremendous heart appeal is thoroughly known.

MANY BIG SCENES

The Burning of the Bridge
The Uprising of the Blacks and the Ensuing Battle
The Battle at the Old Cross Roads
The Sensational Court Room Scene

Scenario written and produced by Frank L. Dear

SELECT FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO., INC.

S. G. LINDEMAN, Treasurer

71 West 23rd Street NEW YORK CITY

ALLIANCE PROGRAM

NOTICE TO THE TRADE

The productions of the Favorite Players Film Co., Inc., will be released exclusively through the Alliance Films Corporation. Our first subject in the Alliance Program will be

"THE KEY TO YESTERDAY"

A strong, stirring, four-part feature of exceptional merit, picturized from the book by Charles Neville Buck (scenario by Robert A. Dillon)

Featuring CARLYLE BLACKWELL in the leading role, supported by J. FRANCIS DILLON, MISS EDNA MAYO, JOHN J. SHEEHAN, JOHN PRESCOTT, GYPSY ABBOTT

AND ONE HUNDRED OTHERS

Released October 12

FAVORITE PLAYERS FILM CO., INC.

M. H. BLACKWELL, Treasurer

110 West 40th St. Suite 1002 NEW YORK CITY

(Continued from page 231.)

cellent reputation, though really a crook of the meanest type. Cadby gets a trace of Harry in the United States, but his search is abruptly ended by the news of the sinking of a boat on which Harry was mate, and of Harry's supposed drowning. Cadby is about to return to England when he encounters a young man who very closely resembles the photographs of Harry he has brought with him. Cadby conceives the idea of taking the stranger to England and passing him off as Harry Medvale, and this scheme he cautiously proposes, telling the young man that, besides the title of Lord Medvale he may come into a large fortune by marrying the girl. They go to England, and Harry's identity is not questioned, he is joyously received by the old mother, and with shy happiness by Mary. His heart responds to the girl's love, and they are soon engaged.

Cadby demands his share of the profits and when he is coldly refused, declares he will expose the impostor, who will lose title, fortune and girl, and serve a prison term. Cadby is in no danger, he can pretend to have been deceived. However, Cadby's greed prompts him to steal a large sum of money, he intending to fix this crime on the other man when he exposes him as an impostor. The theft is witnessed by Giles, an old family servant. When Cadby does denounce Harry, Giles steps forward and declares that the true Harry Medvale will have a peculiar scar on his arm; the baring of Harry's arm discloses this familiar scar to all. Cadby is staggered by the astounding realization that he has brought back the true Harry Medvale. He attempts to escape, realizing that he will now be unable to accuse Harry of the robbery, but is charged with that crime by Giles, and given over to the police. Harry has at no time denied his true identity, and the pit into which Cadby has fallen has been entirely of his own digging. The old mother finds happiness in contemplating the happiness of Harry and Mary.

THE LONG LANE (Oct. 16).—John Black and Ray Meers, partners in a mountain homestead, are in love with Ruth Grier. Her aged father favors Ray, but the girl loves John, and, unable to let him know of her preference, she smuggles a note into his pocket. Before he finds it he and Ray quarrel on the edge of a cliff and Ray throws John over. He falls with a broken leg into the canyon beside the opening of an abandoned mine shaft. Ray, going to seek his body, finds only his hat and believes the body went down the shaft. Visiting Ruth, he tells her that John decided suddenly to go East, and has left the country. With John out of the way, Ray and Ruth's father work on her. Finally her father on his death bed obtains her promise that she will marry Ray.

Meanwhile John has been sheltered and nursed back to health by strangers in the valley below. When he is convalescent he finds the note and hurries back to the mountains but arrives just after the wedding. He does not enlighten the girl but finds a way to meet Ray, and, telling him of his escape, warns him that unless he treats Ruth kindly he will have him to reckon with. Then he leaves the country.

Returning seven years later he takes possession of a deserted cabin in the mountains. Meanwhile Ray and Ruth have a little daughter. Ray has taken to drink and abuses his wife. One day in a drunken rage Ray drives Ruth and the child from their home. Wandering far from home, Ruth falls exhausted. The child goes for help and reaches John's hut. He goes with the child and carries Ruth to his cabin. His hair has grown long and he wears a full beard and, although he recognizes Ruth at once, she does not know him. He wrings from her her pitiful story and becomes enraged. First shaving his beard so that he will not be disguised, he goes in search of Ray and meets him on the trail along the precipice at the same spot where, seven years before, Ray had made an attempt on his life. Brought face to face with John, Ray becomes terrified and in his fright draws backward. His foot slips on the edge of the trail, and in an instant he is dashed to his death. John, satisfying himself that Ray is beyond help, goes back to Ruth. With his beard removed she recognizes him then, remembering that she must go back to her drunken husband, she breaks down and sobs in John's arms. He comforts her and tells her sadly why she will never have to return to Ray.

THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER (Oct. 17).—Hans Schmidt is warned that unless he arrests the notorious cheese smugglers there will be a vacancy in the Revenue Department. Hans gets on the scene, but unfortunately he is betrayed by a sneeze, for he is addicted to the habit of taking snuff. He is captured and led off to the lair of the smugglers, where he is condemned to the awful death of being fed to death on limburger. But Hans has won the heart of Gwendolyn, the chief smuggler's daughter, and she arrives in time to save his life with an emetic. Hans rushes off and arranges with the local police to make the arrests, but remembering the debt he owes to the fair Gwendolyn, he runs on ahead to tell them they are coming and the smugglers beat a retreat, while Hans and Gwendolyn stroll off in their love dream to the riverside. It looks bad for the smugglers but a runner arrives with a wire for Hans. Congress has placed cheese on the free list and it is no longer a crime to smuggle cheese, so Hans and the gracious Gwendolyn are free to get married.

SAVE 35%
ON YOUR CARBONS
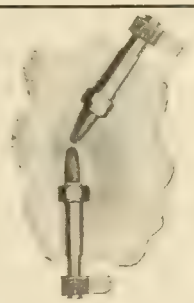
Burn your stumps with a
Carbon Economizer
Mechanically Correct!



Pat. Applied for

Fits any lamp, gives perfect contact and conductivity, screw does not come in contact with carbon and will not weld to body of economizer, will burn upper or lower carbon from 6 inches to ¾ of an inch, is simple, practical, will last years with perfect results, and pay for itself in a few days.

$1.25 Each — Sizes ½"-⅝"-¾" — $2.00 Upper & Lower Set

Sent postpaid upon receipt of draft, money order or cash.

THE CARBON ECONOMIZER CO.
757 West Onondaga St., Syracuse, N. Y.

T S M QUALITY

No. 30
OUR SPECIALTY IS IN
BRASS { Theatre Lobby Frames Railings and Fixtures

We have just completed equipping the following new theatres:

Utopia Theatre, Painesville, Ohio
Market Street Theatre, Youngstown, Ohio
New Columbia Theatre, Alliance, Ohio
Bijou Theatre, Orange, N. J.
Sugg Theatre, Chickasha, Okla.
Library Theatre, Warren, Pa.
Crown Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio
Reel Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.
Standard Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio

and we can refer you to hundreds more. We are busy filling orders.

T. S. M. Quality and service is what you want. Get our prices and suggestions before you place your orders.

The Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
318 LONG AVE., CLEVELAND, OHIO

ECONOMIZE

Carbon Shortage Unprecedented. Eliminate the waste, burn your Carbons shorter and use up the stumps. The Carbons you now throw away will burn from one to two hours longer.

THE CARBON SAVER
Does it. Fits any Burner.
Made for ½, 9-16, 5-6 and ¾-inch size.

CARBONS

$1.00 Per Pair Prepaid

ADVANCE THEATRICAL EXCHANGE
173 3rd St., Milwaukee, Wis.

FILMS FOR SALE—$4 per Reel Up

One No. 6 S. H. Powers complete.....$125.00
Edison Exhibition Models, all complete $70.00 to 90.00
One Model B Edison, all complete..... 125.00
One Motiograph, all complete..... 90.00
100 10 or 12-in. cored ½ carbons...$5.00 per 100

ECONOMY FILM COMPANY
105 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

ESSANAY.

SWEEDIE LEARNS TO SWIM (Oct. 12).—Sweedie, the cook, decides that it would be nice to learn to swim, so goes to a "dry land" swimming class for instruction. She is thrown out of the class after fighting with several of the members and goes home, where she fills the bath tub with water and proceeds to learn to swim. After the water is knee deep in the room, she also practices a little fancy diving. By this time the plaster has begun to fall on the floor below, where a card game is going on. The members of the family rush upstairs and find Sweedie having the time of her life. A riot call is sent in to the police, and when they arrive they find Sweedie holding off the entire family with a club. They all then chase her out of the house and finally capture her in the lake.

THROUGH EYES OF LOVE (Oct. 13).—Bessie Morris, a daughter of the rich, has grown tired of the lazy life which she is forced to live and longs to get out in the world and do some good. Her father, who believes in letting his daughter think and decide for herself, suggests that she pay a visit to his old nurse, Widow Hobbs. She is delighted at this suggestion and leaves for the village the following day. Here she meets Samuel Jenkins, a rural lawyer, who pays her great attention. Their friendship finally grows into love and she promises to marry him as soon as he is able to support her. Shortly after she goes back to the city, not revealing to him her wealth or social standing. Six months later finds Samuel in the city. Through the help of Mr. Morris he has secured a good start in business, and much to the disgust of Mrs. Morris, they plan for the wedding.

THE FABLE OF THE AUTHOR AND THE DEAR PUBLIC AND THE PLATE OF MUSH (Oct. 14).—Ernest Coppie, an author, was trying to grind out something that could be sold for enough coin to buy himself a good square meal. He dashed off some sentimental guff called "When Willie Came to Say Good-Night," and it was punk. He threw it in the waste basket but when his friend came in he discovered it and set out to sell it. He finally found a magazine editor who gave him a check for $500, and it was like picking money off a bush. The author, who was an old bachelor and a kid hater, was tickled to death to get the dough, but when letters came in congratulating him on his excellent poem and sympathizing with him, he was bored to death. Mr. Coppie found a Chinaman at last who had not heard the pathetic poem, so he nabbed him for a companion and retired to the northern woods, where he hoped never to hear of his literary efforts again. Moral: When the nation weeps, the Johnstown flood isn't a marker.

SNAKEVILLE'S PEACE MAKER (Oct. 15).—Mustang Pete receives a letter from his daughter, Sophie, who is away at boarding school, asking permission to bring some girls home with her to spend their vacation. Mustang flatly refuses. That afternoon he and Slippery Slim have a fight over a checker game, and to get "square" Slim advertises the fact that he will pay his ranch hands double the salary that Mustang will pay. As a result Slim gets all of Mustang's helpers. Mustang then writes to Sophie and tells her to bring home the girls if she cares to. The girls arrive the following day and Mustang has an abundance of help, all of Slim's helpers deserting him. Slim finally "sopts" Sophie, and to be near her he himself applies for a job on Mustang's ranch. He is employed and the feud ends.

BRONCHO BILLY REWARDED (Oct. 17).—Broncho Billy, the town good-for-nothing, makes his headquarters at the saloon, where he makes a few cents each day by sweeping out the place. One morning the hotel proprietor, the general store keeper and the chairman of the town board, upon going to their places of business, find that they have been robbed. Immediately a reward of $500 is offered for the bandit's capture. Broncho asks to be made a deputy sheriff but is refused, so goes after the outlaw alone. He goes up into the mountains and takes with him a bandit's equipment, including a "fake" note saying that a reward is offered for his capture. The real bandit comes upon him and finds the note. He takes him to the sheriff, thinking he will get the reward, but instead falls into a trap. Broncho gets the money and buys himself a ranch.

THE OTHER MAN (Special—Two Parts—Oct. 16).—Mildred Braddon, wife of Frederick Braddon, millionaire, is called to the telephone in her home. She hears a well-remembered voice over the wires. It is that of her first husband, Harry Ross, whom she divorced but who has returned from the wilderness and insists that he see her.

She tries to refuse, but that afternoon he calls. He is admitted by Bleeker, the old faithful butler. Once in his presence all the old love for him returns, particularly when Mildred makes known that her father, now dead, was the prime instigator in divorcing her from her first husband. Ross learns how Stephen Ten Broek, her father, was pressed for money and how Frederick Braddon, the millionaire, came to his aid. His reward was the daughter. Ross tells how he has spent the four years away in the north woods. He is determined that he cannot live without her. She admits her love for him has never died and decides to go away with him that night.

Bleeker, the faithful butler, has seen and understood. As Mildred, suit-case in hand, attempts to steal from the house, she finds Bleeker in the hallway—with her little baby. The situation changes—it is the other tremendous situation, older than death, stronger than life. While Ross waits in the hotel for Mildred, Bleeker appears. Ross is given a litle envelope. It contains a letter, also a locket and a picture of Mildred's little boy. Ross understands and, a broken man, leaves.

COLUMBUS.

"WHAT WOULD YOU DO?" (Oct. 6).—Mrs. Keen leaves her first born in the care of her nephew and his friend while she attends a mothers' meeting. Baby does not enjoy the men's society although they bring practically everything in the house to entertain her. Not being successful in stopping her crying they decide to put her in a basket on the porch with a note to the father of the baby that the mother has left her happy home. Father discovers babe and letter and thinking his wife has deserted him gives the child and a tip to an unfortunate woman who is a little the worse for liquor.

The mother returns from her meeting and asking for her infant is informed that no one knows anything about it. She becomes distracted and, realizing they have gone too far with their joke, the nephew and friend insert an advertisement in the paper which brings baskets full of babies but not the right one. The father decides to go hunting for his heir and runs into several babies on his porch. Not stopping to examine he picks up the nearest basket and rushes to his wife. They lift back the covering and find a pair of little babies, only black as the ace of spades. A policeman wins the reward by arresting the unsteady lady and, recognizing the baby, returns it to the distracted mother.

THE NEW APPRENTICE (Oct. 8).—A. Needle, the tailor, hires a boy to make himself handy around the shop. Needle's assistant teases the boy and very often Needle does too. The boy is sent for a glass of beer and decides to play a joke on his boss, so after drinking half of the glass he fills it up again with water The assistant thinks this a fine joke, but Needle does not, so fires him. A customer calls to have a masquerade costume of a monkey fixed. Needle tries it on. The boy buttoning it up for him realizes he cannot get out of it without assistance so runs out and locks the door. Needle gets frantic and goes to the street via the window in the hopes of someone aiding him to get out of the costume. Instead, the people are scared and amused and finally Needle takes refuge in a tree. The Fire Department is called and bring Needle down with the hose. He is then undressed and is made the laughing stock of the town. The boy that caused the commotion is having a fine laugh until Needle spys him and then he gets his.

KISSING GERM (Oct. 8).—A professor discovers a concoction that will make anything and anybody kiss. His man servant is warned not to take any but he does and starting with the professor he kisses everything he meets, even to push-cart peddlers, old maids and horses.

WHY SKUNKVILLE WENT DRY (Oct. 13).—The "White Ribbons" and "Anti-Saloon Leagues" may well profit by the ruse planned by a little rural wife. The corner saloon held the nightly attention of three bibulous friends, to the utter disgust and anger of the wives.

At length, their patience exhausted, they meet to devise a method of reform. One of them fortunately recalls the visionary reptiles that usually surround those who over-indulge in strong drink; coincidentally she knows a dealer in stuffed snakes.

The action of the women is prompt, and surprising are the results. Their recreant husbands fall easy prey to the illusions, in several amusing situations. The reform is far reaching, in that it brings the entire village, including two backsliding deacons and the entire police force into the fold.

Please Tell Them You Saw it in
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
When Answering Advertisements

Will Sell Michigan Rights on following features:

"Hiawatha"
"Les Miserables"

Will also sell the following films:

"Enoch Arden," "David Copperfield," "Judgment of Solomon," "Xmas Carol." Must be sold within next thirty days. Write Geo. W. Trendle, Trustee, Estate Benjamin Fay Mills, Bankrupt, 1706 Dime Bank Building, Detroit, Mich.

FILM MAKING OUTFITS

for Professional Film Work, for the Manufacturer, Traveler, Explorer, Scientist and Private. The well-known fool-proof Junior Camera, 200 feet capacity; Tripods, Tilts, Printers, Developing Outfits, Projectors, Lenses, Polishers, Measurers, Menders, Winders. Special Film Work. Quick, reliable repair.

Establ. 20 years. Largest Inst. in U. S.
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 Second Ave. New York

When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairin
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US?
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176 N. State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill

THE CATALOGUE OF BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
contains much that is valuable about electric lighting in general, and moving picture work in particular. Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

Moving Picture Projectors and Cameras
All makes repaired
Ernemann Photo Kino Works
163 W. 48th St., New York

PRINTING and DEVELOPING FILM TITLES
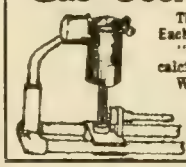
Give us a trial. All work guaranteed. Prompt service. Prices right.
If there is any event that you want photographed, we can furnish expert camera men.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE CO.
Phone, Central 2853, 5 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Gas Users — Attention!



The "Gull Pastil" doubles your light. Each (large size), $1.25; 6 for $6.75. "Fulco" adapter makes Pastil fit any calcium burner, $1.00 each.
We carry most complete line in stock of picture machines and supplies in America. E. E. FULTON, 152 W Lake St., Chicago, Sole American distributors for "Gull Pastil"

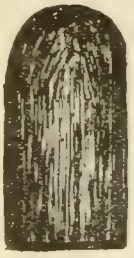
We Buy and Sell Second Hand Films and Moving Picture Machines
WESTERN FILM BROKERS
57 So. Wabash Avenue - Chicago, Ill.

GO INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

MAKE MONEY FAST! BE YOUR OWN BOSS!
$30 TO $50 PER NIGHT CLEAR
No Experience Needed
We furnish you with machine, film, curtain and complete outfit ready to go to work with ON OUR EASY PAYMENT PLAN. Write Now for Our Large FREE Catalogue.
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO.
Dept. M. P., Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago

Save Your Carbons

for you can now use up those short lower carbons which you formerly threw away.



I have invented a simple, practical, low cost Carbon Saver. Get it and save money.

My Carbon Saver saves its cost many times over, as you can burn your carbons until they are

←THIS SHORT

SEND ME $2.00, and I will deliver a pair anywhere in the United States.

I still have a supply of imported Bio and Electra Carbons for sale AT PRICES LOWER THAN ANYBODY.

ASK ME NOW to send those Hommel Carbon Savers.

Ludwig Hommel & Co.
Complete Theatre Equipments
422 First Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

BE UP TO DATE
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 6 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
Moving Picture World

Oldest, most reliable trade paper, covering every department. Has the largest direct circulation. The recognized representative paper of the Moving Picture Art.

Domestic $3.00 per Year
Canada $3.50 per Year
Foreign $4.00 per Year

17 Madison Ave., New York City.

Cosmofotofilm Co

"Where the Real Features Come From"

THE LONDON FILM COMPANY'S

Great Naval Drama

"England's Menace"

London Film Co. Trade Mark

The Greatest Money-Maker of the Season

Exhibitors! Attention!

London Film Co. Trade Mark

For Bookings, Address:

NEW ENGLAND—American Feature Film Co., 162 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

GREATER NEW YORK AND NORTHERN NEW JERSEY — Greene's Feature Photoplays, World's Tower Bldg., New York.

EASTERN PA., SOUTHERN N. J., DELAWARE, MARYLAND AND D. C. — Tri-State Star Feature Co., 119 S. 4th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WESTERN PA., WEST VA.—Liberty Film Renting Co., 105 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

OHIO, INDIANA AND KENTUCKY—Empress Feature Film Co., Merchants' Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

MICHIGAN—Progressive Film & Equipment Co., 97 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

ILLINOIS AND S. WISCONSIN—General Feature Film Co., 5 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MINNESOTA, N. WISCONSIN, IOWA, N. AND S. DAKOTA — Famous Players Star Feature Film Service, Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

OREGON, WASH'N, IDAHO—Film Supply Co., 385½ Alder St., Portland, Ore.

DOMINION OF CANADA—All-Features, Ltd., 56 King St., W., Toronto, Ont.

For information regarding Territory not included above and our next release

"ENGLAND EXPECTS"

(Based on Nelson's famous signal at the Battle of Trafalgar)

"England expects that every man this day will do his duty"

Address:

Cosmofotofilm Co

World's Tower Building

110-112 West 40th Street, New York

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

IMP.

FUTILITY OF REVENGE (Two Parts—Oct. 5).—At the opening of the story we have Richard Dent leading a double life. To his wife and little daughter he is an honest man, a good husband and father. In the quiet of the night he is the enemy of society, a crook. When his wife and babe sleep, he hies himself out to follow the dictates of a distorted moral standard. Of an evening we find him entering the house of the judge. He piles up the stolen property and is about to leave when the master of the house interrupts. There is a quick dash; but the judge has seen his face.

The next day we are carried into Richard Dent's home. Dent is concerned lest he be apprehended—he sees through the window detectives watching the house. In that moment he confesses his guilt to his wife. Though horror-stricken the wife responds by forcing him to the couch with the admonition to say he has been sick. The detectives are admitted. The wife meets them and gives every assurance that her husband has been at home for the past two days. Her lies are about to succeed in their purpose, the detectives are about to depart, when in runs her little girl carrying some of the jewels which the father had hidden in the closet.

Dent is given fifteen years. His wife, as an accessory to the crime, is given five years in prison. Dent pleads for her in vain. Later, when he learns that his wife has died of a broken heart, he swears an unholy revenge upon the Judge who has done the sentencing.

Sixteen years elapse. Judge Powers' son, Walter has been causing the old man worry; he refuses to settle down to business. Dent, who has now been freed, returns to the home town and lays his plans to hurt the Judge by ruining his boy. About this time, Dent has a peculiar encounter in one of the public squares. A girl attempts to pick his pocket. He takes the girl home, instead of handing her over to the police, learns that she is known as "Flashy Nell," a petty thief, and arranges to use her as an accomplice in the carrying out of his scheme. In a scene, stirring in every essential, in a cabaret, Nell makes the acquaintance of the Judge's son and brings about the introduction of Dent. Later, Walter, his son, is invited to the home of Dent to play cards. It is only a question of time until Walter is heavily indebted to Dent. Dent, on the other hand, demands payment and threatens exposure.

The Judge refuses the demand for money from his son and the son in turn steals from him. At night he confesses his guilt to Nell who, realizing that she loves him, urges him to return the stolen money. Here a horrible sight awaits him. In the front of his father's safe the butler lies dead. Walter is accused. Nell seeks the intercession of Dent in vain. She defies Dent and assures the Judge that she has committed the crime. The trial of the Judge's son is commenced. Nell takes the stand. Her real name is asked. Dent, crushed at the thought that he has used his own daughter, whom he did not know, as a tool, confesses that he is the murderer and in that moment he cries, "I know the futility of revenge." As an epilogue we have Walter and Nell commencing life anew together.

ECLAIR.

THE SQUATTER (Three Parts—Oct. 14).—Bill Wade in his position as manager of Elias Wilcox's "Double U" ranch finds opportunity for graft. Thus when Roger Latham arrives from the East to sort of look over the ground, Bill is displeased. Howbeit, he does not know that Roger is his employer's nephew and heir. Shortly after Roger's arrival, Wade, against orders, attempts to serve notice of ejection on Jim Grey, a squatter of the valley. Grey answers this by shooting a hole through the paper. Wade retreats, discomfitted, and sends Roger to serve the paper. To his surprise Roger not only serves the paper, but makes friends with his daughter Molly. Roger, in the meantime, watches the foreman and soon discovers evidence of graft.

Pretending a reconciliation with Grey, Wade glibly informs him that Roger is already married. The old man, knowing that Roger is courting his daughter, takes down his rifle and follows the young couple into the desert. Watching his opportunity, he shoots Roger down. Luckily, Brother Anselm, a friar from San Paulo, comes across Roger's body. Retracing his steps he carries the body back to the mission. Molly knows nothing of this, having separated from her lover prior to the shooting.

Wade learns of the shooting and telegraphs Wilcox that Roger has stolen the payroll and disappeared. Wilcox hurries to Silvador and in an interview with Molly enlightens him as to his nephew's love affair. Grey, on the other hand, learns that Wade lied and that Roger was free to marry his daughter, Fearful, he hurries to the scene of the shooting, where he finds a rosary, and interpreting its presence correctly, he hastens to the mission, where he finds Roger on the road to recovery. Wade, who has been discharged and is now a desperado, learns of this and plans revenge upon his rival. Enlisting two half-breed accomplices, he rides into the desert to intercept the returning travelers, but as fate would have it, Brother Anselm accompanies the party to perform an important ceremony when the ranch is reached. It is the Father's presence which awes the desperadoes and frustrates their plot. As he holds the rosary up the desperadoes kneel, begging forgiveness.

The story ends with the wedding of Roger and Molly, and as for the "Double U" Ranch, Wilcox presents it to his nephew, Roger, as his wedding present.

THE QUARREL (Oct. 18).—Lon Anderson's wife was his beast of burden. Yet in his rough way he loved her. But life had dealt hardly with them both. When the easy-mannered McCann, the settlement loafer, offered to assist her in chopping the firewood, Anderson's wife was so completely amazed at the unwonted gallantry that she accepted. This innocent circumstances was the beginning of the husband's jealousy. One Saturday night he picked a quarrel with McCann at a saloon. He was carried home with a fractured leg.

When the fever set in Anderson grew morose. His distorted imagination was prone to magnify the affair of McCann. To have a disabled man thrown upon her hands, which were already fully occupied with the care of a sick child, did not improve the wife's good temper. She reproached him. An angry word flashed from the fevered man's lips. "You can go to your friend McCann!" Her brain awhirl with indignation, Lon Anderson's wife stumbled along the road towards the disreputable dance-hall where McCann "hung out." She would avenge the insult. She found McCann and almost threw herself into his arms with the cry, "I'm your gal, McCann, if you'll take me!" Just then an abandoned wretch came from the dance-hall and sat down on the bench with her baby crying. As she ministered to the little one's needs the sodden face seemed transformed to a semblance of loveliness. Anderson's wife, seeing the age-old miracle, thought of her own sick child at home and none but a disabled man to tend it! She broke from McCann and fled. When she reached the cabin, her arm hanging limp from the shot which the frustrated beast had fired, she found her man joining the little one's hands in prayer.

JOKER.

ON AGAIN—OFF AGAIN—FINNEGAN (Oct. 14).—Sergeant Kelly meets Patrolman Finnegan, a new man on the force, and tells him above all else he must keep tramps and hobos off his beat. Finnegan sallies forth. At the first corner he spies a hobo about to sneak a bottle of milk from an areaway. Finegan makes a rush. The hobo disappears; turning, he sees him standing several feet away. He gives chase and as he rounds the corner, he finds the hobo about to "swipe" a bottle of milk from a baby carriage. Again the hobo disappears. Further down the street, he bumps into a portly gentleman. As the brave Finnegan proceeds to disentangle him from the hobo, the latter is suddenly swept from view. The hobo now stands on a grocery barrel a few feet away. They take up the chase. Again the hobo is swept from view, to appear some feet away, laughing and jeering at his pursuers. The grocer and a nurse maid join the chase up a hill. Finnegan takes the lead, making a flying leap at the hobo, who has stumbled and fallen and is next discovered on the tail board of a delivery wagon, racing away. Finnegan commands a passing auto and they all jump in. The auto soon passes the wagon. As Finnegan jumps the hobo is not there, but in the auto beside the chauffeur. The fat man, the nurse maid, the grocer and the chauffeur make a concerted dive for the hobo—who as quickly vanishes. This time he is seen on a motorcycle. The auto turns and gives chase. The motorcycle circles the delivery wagon a few laps, and Finegan throws his club at the hobo, knocking him off the cycle. This wild chase continues with many laughable incidents resulting. Finnegan finds the hobo finally in his sweetheart's garden, where she is kneeling at his feet in an adorable pose. In his rage, he makes a leap to throttle the hobo only to find himself choking his sweetheart's father, who gives the suitor a sound beating.

Finnegan awakes standing beside a lamp post, where the roundsman is giving him a "dressing-down" for falling asleep at his post.

ACROSS THE COURT (Oct. 17).—Miss Prime waited long for Shultz to propose. At last he sends her a note wherein he writes of his love in ardent words. He sends this note across the court, via the clothes line. The old maid receives it and hastens to write a return message of aceptance.

Shultz waits in nervous expectancy. His eyes are suddenly attracted to a beautiful young girl, Mandy, who is seated in another window across the court. She is a dream. With Miss Prime, she cannot be compared. Shultz decides to forget about her. He makes love to Mandy and finds that she returns his affections. Miss Prime is torn with jealousy. When Shultz and Mandy return from their honeymoon, she swears to be avenged. She warns Shultz of her intentions. Shultz is filled with alarm. He sends Mandy away and awaits the coming of the terrible old maid.

Second-story Steve enters Shultz's room. The latter hides, terrified, in a closet. Meanwhile Miss Prime, coming furious and determined, meets an old beau, Blitz, the cop. Her dire purpose is forgotten in her new catch. But Shultz, hiding, does not know this. Mandy returns home. She runs into Steve and, terrified, rushes for the police. Shultz hears and thinks Steve has scared away the old maid. He comes from his hiding place and suitably rewards the flabbergasted burglar. Mandy returns with Blitz, the cop and Miss Prime, but Shultz aids Steve to escape. At sight of the old maid, Shultz thinks the end has come. He is greatly surprised and relieved when Miss Prime turns up her nose at him.

GOLD SEAL.

TREY O' HEARTS—The Painted Hills—No. 11 (Two Parts—Oct. 13).—Following their narrow escape from the train wreck on the bridge, Alan, Rose and Barcus scurry off and lose themselves from the sight of those aboard Trine's special. In this they are aided by the fall of night. Meantime the freight train crew discover the loss of the caboose. There is a stop at a telegraph station to report and receive instructions. Here the presence of Judith aboard the train is discovered; she is booted off into the night, passing, in her man's clothing, as a tramp.

Alan, Rose and Barcus emerge from the gulley onto a wagon road. With the hope of securing horses, they hail a horseman named Hopi Jim, a half-breed, cattle-rustler and general bad man. He is riding north to hold up the California limited. Hopi directs the party to Mesa, a typical western frontier town. Arriving here, Alan purchases three saddle horses and a trail outfit. They take lodgings in a hotel.

When Trine's special arrives at the telegraph station the engine is uncoupled; the Pulman is left. Judith comes aboard and goes into conference with her father and Marrophat. While this is going on Hopi Jim approaches and proceeds to hold up the party. Trine manages to secure his services as a guide in the proposed pursuit of Alan, Rose and Barcus. Judith expects to head this expedition, but her dislike for Marrophat causes her to hesitate. However, Hopi secures horses for the party and Judith is brought into the plan. Incidentally, Hopi informs Trine of his meeting with Alan and his companions and of their intentions of visiting Mesa. Trine's party direct their march in this direction. While all this is developing, Hopi has been casting longing eyes toward Judith. Judith, to exasperate Marrophat, encourages the half-breed.

It is the cool of the dawn when Trine and his party arrive at Mesa. Alan hears them coming and rouses Barcus and Rose. They steal down the back stairs and escape on their mounts. When Judith, Marrophat, Hopi and Texas, the latter a friend of Hopi's, break in the door, they find they have drawn a blank. Rushing out, they mount their horses and give chase. As Alan's party enter the foothills Rose's horse stumbles and falls; Rose is thrown to the ground. Alan, following behind, catches her from the ground and lifts her to his saddle without stopping. Judith's party, having gained on their victims, open fire. This is returned. Hopi's horse is dropped and his friend, Texas, is shot from his saddle. The pursuers naturally pause. Alan, Rose and Barcus turn into a canyon and escape.

Hopi, after he has secured another horse, suggests a short cut and a method to annihilate the fugitives. He leads them through the mountains to a trail which overhangs the trail which Alan and his party are following. At the appropriate moment a boulder is to be rolled down on the fugitives. But Judith can't see Alan crushed to death; her love overrides all and she manages to warn Alan before it is too late. Alan, Rose and Barcus make a detour and go on. Judith, in the meantime, parts company definitely from Marrophat and rides on alone. Hopi Jim, after relieving Marrophat of his valuables, pursues Judith. Marrophat returns afoot to Mesa to await Trine in his motor car.

Alan, Rose and Barcus, by dint of forced marches, penetrate the mountains to the desert beyond. Judith's trail has paralleled that of the fugitives, but on higher ground. About daylight Hopi comes up with Judith and attempts to kiss her. There is a terrific struggle. Alan

PLAY THESE AND PROFIT=

Our List of "REAL" Features

NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER
THE THREE MUSKETEERS
THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD
FATALITY AND MYSTERY
RAINEY'S HUNT
A PARADISE LOST
HARRY LAUDER
SEALED ORDERS

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM COMPANY

BREWSTER'S MILLIONS
A MESSAGE FROM MARS
MYSTERY OF THE FATAL PEARL
LIFE OF RICHARD WAGNER
VICTORY
THE SQUAW MAN
LOVE EVERLASTING
EAST LYNNE
THE DIVINE APPEAL

AND WE DO MORE THAN RENT YOU FILMS

Not all for all states—but some for each state.

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM COMPANY

Leaders in Filmdom's Progress

Schiller Building 64 West Randolph Street, Chicago

RENFAX

Wideawake managers use them.

MUSICAL

No singer required.

MOTION

Four weekly releases. Small cost.

PICTURES

Scenario contest open only to Renfax users. A big money-getter.

RENFAX FILM CO., INC., 110 West 40th St., New York, N. Y.

sees it from below and recognizes Judith. Awaiting his chance Alan shoots and brings Hopi down. However, Hopi has tied Judith to her horse; the horse bolts with Judith unable to prevent. Alan telling his companions what has happened follows. The race leads into the desert. Judith is finally released and falls exhausted. Her horse, a trained beast, fills the canteen from a nearby water hole and returns.

Alan continues the search, though heat and thirst almost overcome him. Toward nightfall a sand-storm comes up. Alan dismounts to find shelter; he wanders on until he suddenly stumbles upon Judith, sheltered with her horse behind an outcrop of rock. Finding her thus, alive, strong and able to care for herself after all the torments he has endured to rescue her, almost unhinges his reason. He strikes aside the hand she offers and blunders again into the dust storm. Judith follows, pleading. In the end, blinded by dust, Alan stumbles and falls over the brink of a deep arroyo; Judith climbs down and drags him, unconscious, to shelter. She holds his head in her lap while she endeavors to revive him with the contents of the canteen as the picture fades out.

STERLING.

THE CLOSE CALL (Oct. 12).—Olive and her sweetheart leave school. Olive's mother, giving her some bread and jam, makes her mind the baby on the porch. Her sweetheart comes for her. They go away and leave the baby. They play around the corner and the baby creeps away. She makes the acquaintance of a bull dog and creeps on toward a cliff on top of which she sits and plays. The mother, now anxious, discovers that the baby is missing. She arouses the neighbors to help her look for the child.

The dog meantime decides he wants some jam. He runs on to the baby, and she now follows him off to the base of a tree. After feeding him with more jam she falls asleep. The mother, finding the shoe which the baby left on top of the cliff, imagines she has fallen over. The neighbors help her climb down the cliff. After a series of mishaps, they discover the child HEINIE'S OUTING (Oct. 15).—Jim, a gangster, asks Lena to attend the Dutch picnic with him. It so happens the gang, holding forth in Lena's neighborhood, are at outs with Jim; he has stolen their "crap" money. When they observe him asking Lena they rush off to tell Heinie, who is also smitten with Lena. Heinie rushes to the scene to start trouble with Jim. Result—he is knocked down. Lena resents the brutality of Jim and promises to accompany Heinie to the picnic.

On the following day Heinie and Lena start for the picnic grounds. As they are about to enter, Heinie discovers that his hands need washing. Excusing himself and leaving the money with Lena, he makes for the river. Meantime, Jim, on his way to the grounds, is hit by a croquet ball. He pursues a man in a checkered suit as the guilty party. The chase fails. Jim returns, meets Lena and enters into a conversation.

Heinie, while washing, falls in. Looking for something dry to put on, he finds a checkered suit left by someone in bathing. He puts it on and starts back. As he approaches Jim and Lena he hears him declare he will kill every man wearing a checkered suit. Heinie takes refuge behind a tree. Jim catches sight of him and commences firing. There is great excitement; the ambulance is called in. Then Jim runs out of bullets. Heinie, by this time, discovers two revolvers in the pocket of the checkered suit and commences shooting. A chase follows with Heinie coming forth as the hero of the day

CRYSTAL.

O! YOU GYPSY GIRL (Oct. 13). Vivian and her beau have their fortunes told by two gypsies, a man and girl, whom they meet while walking through the woods. For a lark they change clothes with the gypsies. Vivian and her beau mount their horses and start for home. The sheriff, who has been looking for the gypsies, arrest them for horse stealing, sees Vivian and her friend. He and his posse pursue. After many exciting adventures they are captured and put into jail. Vivian and her beau plead innocent. It is of no avail until Vivian's father makes explanations.

UNIVERSAL IKE.

MARY GREEN'S HUSBAND (Oct. 13).—Mary Green works in a railroad restaurant. Here she becomes acquainted with a traveling salesman, who misses his train because a group of capitalists get in his way at the ticket window. Going to the telegraph office to send a message, he picks up a telegram left by the capitalists which states that a valuable mine belongs to Mary Green, who does not realize its worth.

Gradually an attachment develops between the salesman and Mary. He feels that he must marry her to save her from the scheming capitalists. Meantime, she has received a deposit of $500 and is told to call at a certain hour and place to sign papers relating to the property. In the interim she and the traveling salesman marry and she arrives to sign the papers, but finds that she cannot do so without her husband's consent.

REX.

HER LIFE STORY (Oct. 15).—Charlotta, born of lowly parents, is adopted by the nobleman, Don Valasquez, and is raised on his estates to young womanhood. Her constant companion is the old Don's son. The children grow to love each other. At the age of eighteen the son is sent to the court of the King. The girl realizes that Don Valasquez will never approve of a match between them.

Six years elapse. The son returns with his young wife, a woman of Northern Spain, and a little son. All the old love springs up in Carlotta's heart; a bitter hatred for the wife and child obsesses her. The child follows her, shortly after their arrival, into an upper room. He toddles to the casement where red roses are growing and climbing on the sill attempts to reach them. In doing so he drops one of his satin shoes. A second later, he wavers. Carlotta sees his danger; hate possesses her and she hesitates. The child falls and is killed.

They bury the child away in the north among his kinsfolk. Later hatred gives place in the heart of Carlotta to repentance, and she desires to be near the grave of the boy. To accomplish this, she joins a nunnery, where from her cell windows she can see the grave.

Thirteen years pass. Carlotta tells sister Agnes the story of her crime. She recounts how, on each night of the anniversary of the boy's death, his spirit appears to her, a cross of blood on his forehead. This date is the anniversary and as the midnight bells toll the vision of the child appears. He holds out his hands to her and she recognizes in him the Christ child. Realizing his forgiveness, she sinks prostrate, saying, "the cross has blotted out my sin."

KID REGAN'S HANDS (Two Parts—Sept. 20). The story opens in the training camp of Kid Regan, a prize fighter who has aspirations for the middleweight championship. He is scheduled to meet Sailor Brown, the holder of the title, who is of the type of prize fighters commonly called a "pug." Sailor Brown inclined to consider Kid Regan an easy mark, neglects his training. He is backed by J. Felton Whitney, a typical sport, who is attracted to Mrs. Johnson, a sales clerk in a large dry goods store. Mrs. Johnson is a young widow with a son about five years old. The floorwalker is a friend of the sport Whitney and by means of bribing, attempts to bring the two together. Mrs. Johnson, realizing the sport's ulterior motives, naturally repulses him.

Kid Regan, under the guidance of his trainer and friend, Bill Sweaney, adheres to his training religiously. It is during one of his daily runs in the country that he sees Whitney, half intoxicated, with a girl in his car, run over a boy. The victim was Mrs. Johnson's son, George. Whitney attempts to run away after hitting the boy. Kid Regan seeks to interfere, but his trainer restrains him with the words, "You must take care of your hands, Kid. You'll need them in the fight." The "Kid" takes the boy to the hospital and there meets Mrs. Johnson. He becomes enamored of her and she invites him to visit her home. It is after this that Whitney attempts again to foister his attentions on the pretty widow. The "Kid" rebukes him, though failing to strike because of his hands. The widow's son, convalescing, becomes attached to the "Kid."

The fight is about to take place when Whitney relaizes that his man, Sailor Brown, is unfit. He decides that he must "fix" the situation, as he has a large sum of money at stake. "Bud," a dope fiend, is hired to dope the sponge used by the "Kid" to rinse his mouth. Little George, who has been taken to the dressing room as a mascot, finds the sponge and would play with it. But Sweaney, a careful trainer, decides that this same sponge would be unfit for his charge. Accordingly he throws it away, using a new one instead.

(Continued on page 246.)

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

NOW IS THE TIME to fix up your lobby. Throw out those unsightly old wood frames and invest in neat, attractive BRASS FRAMES. You will be surprised how quickly your investment will return to you.

Be sure the name "NEWMAN" appears on all frames the guarantee of satisfaction.

Write for new 1914 Catalog.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK CINCINNATI CHICAGO
101 4th Ave. 717 Sycamore St. 108 W. Lake St.
Established 1882.

BOOK
"The Strand War Series"
Illinois rights owned by
General Feature Film Co.
5 South Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO

COMPENS ARC
That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our BOOKLET 15018
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA
733

MONEY TALKS
You can make it talk a good deal louder if you buy our slides. Any Edison Feature Announcement slide from photos, furnished by the Company for 10c. Player or Announcement slides, $1.75 per dozen. Why pay $1.50 for 6? Sample slide for 15c and this advertisement. Why pay more?
NIAGARA SLIDE COMPANY, Lockport, N. Y.

Your negative developed, printed and titled complete
5c. per foot
Delivered within 12 hours
Titles 6c. per foot
GUNBY BROS., Inc., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

PARAMOUNT PARAMOUNT

The WM. L. SHERRY FEATURE FILM CO., In
130 W. 46th Street, NEW YORK CITY
Controlling the New York State Rights to the productions of
The Famous Players Film Co.
The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co. Bosworth, Inc.
Comprising

Paramount Pictures

EXHIBITORS:

Mr. Wm. L. Sherry is now making a complete tour of the state, closing territory for the Paramount Program.

"The Best Pictures for The Best People in The Best Houses"

PARAMOUNT PARAMOUNT

MR. PRODUCER:

YOU CAN SHARE THE RENTAL PROFITS WITH THE EXCHANGES IF YOU RELEASE THROUGH US!

A great renting organization now doing an exceptional business in Agencies all over America, and with world-wide connections, will print and market your film on the most equitable basis ever offered a producer who can deliver the goods!

IF YOU CAN PRODUCE—INVESTIGATE THIS OFFER!
FINEST STUDIO IN AMERICA AT YOUR DISPOSITION.

M. W. B., care Moving Picture World, New York City

ALCO

THE SUPERB PRODUCTS OF

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

POPULAR PLAYS AND PLAYERS COMPANY

B. A. ROLFE PHOTO PLAY COMPANY

TIFFANY MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

The World's Most Artistic Productions Distributed on the Most Equitable Basis with a View to Our Exhibitors' Supremacy

BEGINNING WITH

The Stage's Most Successful and Important Star

MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE

IN

"THE NIGHTINGALE"

A Brilliantly Vivid and Vividly Brilliant Dramatic MASTERPIECE IN FIVE PARTS

BY

AUGUSTUS THOMAS

RELEASED OCTOBER 5

SECOND RELEASE OCTOBER 12

ANDREW MACK

IN

"THE RAGGED EARL"

ALCO FILM

ALCO BUILDING, 218 WEST

OUR POLICY

To produce the best

To spare no pains to aid the exhibitor

To live and let live

To achieve the heights of artistry to which no other man aspires

To offer a needy market, a stimulating grade of plays that will set a new standard

LIST OF EXCHANGES

For Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut—

Alco Film Corporation of New England, 162 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

For New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—

Alco Film Exchange, 1331 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

For Illinois and Indiana—

Alco Film Service, 512 Mallers Bldg., 5 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

For Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota—.

Alco Film Service, Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

For Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska—

Alco Film Service of Missouri, New Grand Central Theatre, St. Louis, Mo.

For Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia—

Alco Film Service, 327 St. Paul St., Baltimore, Md.

For State of New York—

Alco Film Service, 218 West 42nd St., New York City, N. Y.

For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia—

Alco Film Service, 212 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

For Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon—

Alco Film Service, 1214 Third Ave., Seattle, Wash.
Alco Film Service, 911 Trent Ave., Spokane, Wash.
Alco Film Service, 710 Northwestern Bank Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Alco Film Service, 27 W. Park St., Butte, Mont.

For California, Nevada and Arizona—

Saul Lesser, Alco Film Service, 234 Eddy St., San Francisco, Cal.

If ALCO PICTURES can be Improved, ATSCO "Original" Gold Fibre Screens will do it

The pictures need it. Thousands of theatres improved their program by the "Alco" way, now let "ATSCO" improve your projection.

CORPORATION

42ND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Continued from page 242)

the night takes place. On account of the Kids' excellent training he knocks out Sailor Brown in four rounds. After the fight is over Bill and 'Kid' enter their dressing room and find Lud attempting to escape through the window. The 'Kid,' who has been successful, sees through the plot and attempts to thrash Bud, when Whitney enters. Enraged at Bud, he gives away the secret and Kid Regan, as there is no cause for delay, now soundly thrashes him.

Later the 'Kid' takes George home to his mother. They are followed by Bill, who has an armful of toys. Naturally, it was pre-arranged that should Kid be successful, the widow would be his to have and to hold regardless of his bruised and bandaged hands.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 134 (Sept. 30).—Coney Island's Mardi Gras. The world's most noted amusement resort closes its prosperous season in carnival splendor. New York.

Disastrous Railroad Wreck.—Seven killed and thirty hurt when Alabama Great Southern Limited ran through an open switch into a freight car. Livingston, Ala.

Back to Nature—Boston artist returns after accomplishing self set feat of atavism, having with bare hands wrested a living from the forests of Siskiyous—Portland, Ore.

Largest Seagoing Ferry. The "Henry M Flagler," built to carry thirty freight cars from Key West, Florida, to Havana, Cuba, a distance of 96 miles, launched in Philadelphia, Pa.

Booming Deeper Waterways.—State and city officials welcome to Perth Amboy, N. J., delegates touring Atlantic Coast states in effort to procure deeper waterways. Sub-title, from left to right: Gov. Fielder of New Jersey and Gov. Miller of Delaware.

New-Crowned King of Commerce.—Booming of cannon and cheering of thousands mark most important event in shipping history when the stars and stripes replace the British flag on the "Cartago," first English ship to change her registry—New Orleans, La.

Athletes Pay Tribute—Thousands of athletes line funeral route of James E. Sullivan, America's foremost amateur athletic promoter—New York City.

California's Birthday Fete.—More than 50,000 natives of the Golden West celebrate the admission of California into the Union in 1850. Vallejo, Cal.

England.—Royal horse guards in grand review before His Majesty King George in front of Whitehall. London, England.

Canadian Troops Off.—Royal Canadian Dragoons pass in review before the Duke of Connaught upon their departure to reinforce England' army—Valcartier Camp, Quebec, Canada.

Germany's First Prizes of War.—French, Russian and Belgian cannon captured in battle drawn before the Palace by cossack horses—Berlin, Germany. Sub-title. His Excellency Colonel-General Von Kessel, commander-in-chief of Berlin and Province of Bradenburg conversing with Police Commissioner Von Jagow.

Royal Fusiliers of London.—New battalion composed of young men employed in the city is welcomed by Lord Roberts before their departure for training quarters, Temple Gardens, London, England. Sub-titles, Inspection by Lord Roberts; Farewell address.

Cartoons by the world famous caricaturist, Hy. Mayer, of Puck.

101 BISON.

LOVE AND BASEBALL (Two Parts—Oct. 3).—Christy Mathewson is engaged to Lillian Terry, daughter of Edward Terry, a rich merchant. The father favors the match, but dislikes the way Christie fools away his time playing baseball. Jack Prescott, the rejected suitor, tells Terry that if ever he lets Christy marry his daughter he will regret. At the instigation of his daughter, Terry makes Christy an offer to come into his office to work for the sum of $25 per week. Christy, against his own inclination, accepts the offer. This does not suit Prescott, who does all in his power to have Christy fired. In the office we are introduced to Otto, a baseball fiend, who is never happier than when arguing with his fellow clerks or in demonstrating to them the way in which various players pitch the ball. He and Christy soon become fast friends.

Christy still continues playing baseball with an amateur team. On one occasion he leaves his sweetheart, telling her he has a business engagement. Prescott, meantime, meets Lillian on her way home. Christy is caught in the lie. Christy gives his word he will not play again.

Otto, one day, is having a heated argument with his pals, and is trying to show them how a certain pitcher won his game. Christy is asked for his decision. He gets a baseball and as he throws it the door opens and Terry, with a rich client, enters. The ball strikes the rich client. Terry fires Christy. Christy, that evening, writes to Lil to the effect that he never was cut out for office work, and that he was going out into the world to find a career himself. He asks her to wait for him, which she promises to do. Later he is discovered by Jack North and the scout. North is the manager of a big league team. He makes him an offer, which Christy accepts.

A year passes. The boys at the office learn that their old pal, Christy, may get a chance to show his worth that day at the ball grounds. They all fake telegrams saying that their grandmothers are dead. Terry, who knows himself what is in the wind, sympathizes and gives them the day off. He then 'phones Lillian. On the way to the game they meet Prescott, who accompanies them.

At the Polo Grounds we have the regulation scenes of the different players warming up—this includes Tesreau, Marquard, Mathewson, etc. Later—end of eighth inning score tied, four to four—the manager of the team decides to give Christy his chance. He takes out the man who has been pitching and sends Christy in. Christy is so nervous that he can scarcely hold the ball, but as he looks toward the grandstand, he sees Lil watching him eagerly. His nerve returns, and pitching a wonderful game, he shuts out the opposing team. Lillian sends a note to him to call at the house that evening. When he arrives there he finds that Lil's father has become a baseball enthusiast. Lil finds it difficult to get Christy alone, as Terry wants him to demonstrate the game and how he won it.

Prescott has to sit and listen to all this, and to his disgust, Terry tells Christy that he can marry Lil whenever he likes.

MONSIEUR BLUEBEARD (Two Parts—Oct. 17).—Upon a strongly fortified island dwells the Seigneur D'Yvry, commonly known as Monsieur Bluebeard. This man openly defies God, King Louis and the world in general. Aside from this, Bluebeard preys upon the maidens of his small domain, especially such as leave the altar as newly wedded wives. Louis XI. has been patient with the vagaries of Bluebeard, hoping that some day he may win him over to better ways. To this end Louis sends Oliver le Dain to Bluebeard. Oliver's reception is anything but flattering. He returns to Louis, having barely escaped with his life. Whereon, Louis goes into a violent rage. Deep in thought, his mind reverts to Francois Villon as the instrument whereby Bluebeard may be humbled.

Villon is summoned before the irate king, who orders him to proceed to the D'Yvry stronghold and cut Bluebeard's claws. Before starting for Castle D'Yvry, however, the crafty Villon takes into his confidence one Petrara, a magician of the period. It is well known that Bluebeard is a devotee to the practice of "black art." Working in the mines of Bluebeard are many men of a peculiar race, the Lhetta. The local priest has succeeded in converting these monsters to a belief in a Higher Being, the good man ruling them with kindness instead of fear.

Villon and Petrara arrive at Castle D'Yvry at a time when the community is greatly wrought up over the action of Bluebeard's elder son, Tankred, who has bidden the newly wedded wife of young Carca present herself at the castle. Villon is quick to seize upon this incident. He interviews the priest. Between them they hatch a plot whereby the Lhetta will be permitted to wreak their vengeance upon Bluebeard and his two sons.

At a barbecue which is held in the castle courtyard, and to which the villagers and the Lhetta are bidden, the signal being the ringing of the castle bell, the rebellion takes place. Bluebeard, trapped in a tower room by Villon and Petrara hears the battle raging below. Wrenching loose the bars of the window, he climbs out upon a narrow cornice. Here he is seen by the maddened Carca, who lets fly a bolt from the cross. The Seigneur's death follows his two sons meeting a similar fate.

The wily Villon then determines to play a joke upon Louis XI. He dresses himself in the clothing of Bluebeard and returns to court. Here he is seen by the nerve-shaken Oliver le Dain, who loses no time in informing Louis that they are besieged by Bluebeard. Villon is shown into the presence of the king, who quickly orders the arrest of the visitor. Whereupon Villon discloses his identity, much to the annoyance of the frightened Oliver. Louis XI. appreciates the poet's joke and the incident ends happily.

VICTOR.

THE ROCK OF HOPE (Two Parts—Oct. 2).—When the play opens we are introduced to one John Grey, who is affianced to a wholesome, pretty girl, Alice. Alice is sick with an ailment of the throat, which demands a technical operation. Dr. Grey is to accomplish it. At this point we meet Dr. Ralph Nevis, Dr. Grey's rival for the hand of Alice, and a member of Grey's club. On the day of the operation, young Dr. Grey calls at the club, where circumstances bring about a meeting with his rival. Nevis, knowing of the contemplated operation, and knowing Grey's love for drink, cleverly manages to induce Grey to become intoxicated. He leaves him in a stupor, and visiting Alice's father, successfully urges the father to allow him to perform the operation, explaining, the while, Dr. Grey's condition.

Later, Dr. Grey, recovering, rushes to his fiancee's home, only to learn that his rival has performed the operation with success. Alice and her father, deceived by the smooth tongue of Nevis, denounces Grey and refuses him further admittance to the house.

Desperate over the turn in his love affair, despondent because of his weakness, Dr. Grey departs from the city to bury himself in a small fishing village, there to forget his drink. And for a time he does forget, but in the forgetting his health becomes undermined, and he becomes, as it were, a moral wreck.

The time comes, however, when young Grey stands upon the rocks overlooking the sea. It is the moment of contemplation, and in that moment his eye falls upon a large flat rock, bearing a faded cross and the word "Hope" painted there in memory of a ship that had gone down years before. The word "Hope" stimulates some spark of manhood that had lain dormant in the heart of this young fellow. It is the beginning of his reformation. As time passes he again takes up his practice, determined to at least be of some good in this fishing village.

In the meantmie Ralph and Alice, who are now married, determine to visit this fishing village for an outing, unaware that Grey has taken up his residence there. Dr. Grey discovers their presence when he is called to attend Nevis, who has injured himself. His hatred for the man battles against his realization of duty. But duty wins and he brings Nevis around. Alice and Grey meet at the "Rock of Hope," where Grey has been in the habit of going. Explanations follow. Yet the girl and man can see no way out of the trouble. Later Grey meets Nevis and is barely prevented from killing him for his villainy. Nevis' fate, however, is sealed—he accidentally falls over the cliff to his death. Satisfied that vengeance has been accomplished by a higher power than his, Grey worships at the rock, and here Alice finds him, with hope in her heart for better and happier days to come.

HIS FATHER'S SON (Two Parts—Oct. 12).—Cal, with his mother lives on a small sheep ranch, and is by no means wealthy. Cal is known as a dreamer throughout the countryside. His mother is a pathetic little thing who it would seem harbored some secret sorrow.

Cal is sent one evening by his mother for coffee. Cal rides to the village store, arriving just in time to interfere with a crowd of drunken cowboys having sport at the expense of an old, well-known Indian who has been wounded by the cowboys. Cal takes him home. The Indian is attended to and fed. That evening Cal becomes sufficiently impressed with his mother's moroseness that he inquires relative to her past life. Incidentally he has seen her gazing upon an old photograph. The inscription on the photograph tells him that it is his father. Quite reluctantly his mother tells him her story.

Twenty years previously she married the boy's father. He was a Westerner and wealthy but was unsatisfied with the West. Soon after the marriage he sold out and went East. It was not long before he was a power in the business world. Then came society and his wife failed to accustom herself to the city. Her husband grew ashamed of her. Shortly after the baby was born life became unbearable. Taking her baby, she decided to leave for the West. She first wrote a note saying if he ever desired her, he might find her waiting. This note he never answered. With what money she had the mother bought the ranch which she now has. At the conclusion of the story Cal swears vengeance on his father. The old Indian dies, leaving Cal a piece of parchment describing the location of a valuable vein of gold. This vein makes Cal a rich man.

Next we find him with his mother in the East. He has searched out his father's presence and acquaints himself with his business methods. Cal goes into the market and in a scene that is rife with excitement, forces his father to the wall. This done, Cal confronts his father with his mother and explains. The father denies having received the mother's note. They return to the home of the father and discover the note where it had been placed years before. Reconciliation follows and Cal has the satisfaction of seeing his mother happy.

When Writing to Advertisers
Kindly Mention
MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

M.P. Cameras

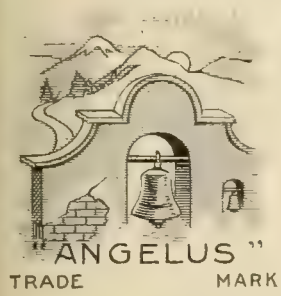
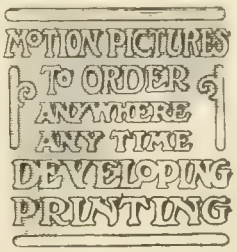
"Angelus" Equipment now used and endorsed by leading film manufacturers in the United States and abroad



Tripods

Printers

Meters



and Complete

Studio

Equipment

CARL E. FR. STERNLOV

217 East Washington Street
Los Angeles, California, U. S. A.

Catalogue on request. (Agents wanted)

FOUR BIG WINNERS

FOR STATE RIGHT BUYERS

"A MOTHER'S HEART" FOUR REELS

A story that will get "close home" wherever it is told on the screen. Featuring that sterling photoplay actor, ROBERT VAUGHN and Miss MAUD HALL MACY.

FOUR REELS "A WOMAN WHO DID"

Exciting but entirely consistent incidents of love and adventure welded into a photoplay that approaches the perfect screen entertainment.

On the Trail of the Dock Rats

Introducing typical and picturesque characters of New York City Underworld life in a strong melodramatic portrayal.

The Serpent of the Slums

Compelling in its interest—and timely in the warning against ever present dangers which it presents.

POSTERS, HERALDS AND PUBLICITY MATTER WHICH WILL HELP YOU GET THE BUSINESS.
TELL US ABOUT YOUR TERRITORY AND WE WILL QUOTE YOU OUR TERMS

K & S FEATURE FILM CO.

145 West 45th Street Room 1102. NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL FILM CORP.

KAY BEE.

THE SHERIFF AT MUSCATINE (Two Parts—Oct. 9).—Bill Eagan, a young bandit, holds up the stage coach and robs the passengers of all their valuables. A reward of $500 is offered for Bill, dead or alive. Shortly after the hold-up, Bill calls at the Muscatine Post Office for a letter which is advertised for him. Bill covers the postmaster with his pistol and the letter is delivered to him. Bill then starts back to the hills and is pursued by the sheriff and his posse. He is captured and is about to be lynched when he asks as a last request that the sheriff read to him the letter he has just received from the Muscatine postoffice. The sheriff complies with Bill's request. The letter, which is from Bill's mother, says she is coming to see him. Just then the stage drives in and Bill's mother is one of the passengers. She sees Bill and hurries to him with outstretched arms. The sheriff pities her, as she is a sweet-faced woman. He tells the mother that Bill has just been made sheriff of the town, and pins his own badge on Bill. Bill's mother thanks the sheriff and the villagers. She is then shown to the best room in the hotel, with Bill in the room next her. After the sheriff and villagers leave Bill and his mother, the mother takes off her wig and make-up and proves to be Bill's pal, a young cowgirl. That night she and Bill escape from the hotel and rob the bank and the postoffice. They get away. The next morning the sheriff discovers how he has been tricked by Bill.

BRONCHO.

THE END OF THE GALLEY (Two Parts—Oct. 14).—Shores is a miner, wealthy, young and yet a confirmed woman-hater. He is impervious to the attractions of the local dance hall girls. However when the fascinating adventures made Maude Dunbar and her husband come to the settlement he falls in love with Maude. She, scheming to get the property of the young miner, leads him to believe Dunbar is her brother and engages herself in marriage to Shores. He, thoroughly under her influence, sells his mine and the day before the marriage gives Maude a check for $30,000, the proceeds of the sale. She and her husband leave during the night. When Shores arrives at the hotel next day he discovers her perfidy, and his mind receives a terrible shock.

Years afterwards Maude Dunbar and her husband are conducting a mining office in Denver. Dunbar, advised of the rich leads in the district along the river, sets out with his wife, Maude, and arrives at the same town where Shores, now bereft of his reason and terribly changed, has located himself. Shores has made a rich find in a mine which he has dug near the river. A recognition takes place on the part of Shores and he lays a scheme of revenge against the Dunbars. He represents the richness of his find and Dunbar and his wife go out to examine the mine with a view to its purchase. Previously he had planted dynamite in it. At the opportune moment, having imprisoned the two in the mine, he sets the dynamite off and the river coming into the mine, drowns the Dunbars, while outside Shores laughs in utter insanity.

DOMINO.

THE WHISKEY RUNNERS (Two Parts—Oct. 8).—Bill Jenks and his wife secretly violate the law by selling whiskey to the Indians. Joe Elk, one of Bill's spies and accomplices, warns Bill that the posse from the marshal's office is on the way to arrest him. Bill escapes to the hills, after hiding the liquor in a cave. Gold Tooth divides the posse to search for Bill's trail. He and Gold Tooth meet and a fierce fight ensues, in which Bill knocks out Gold Tooth's gold tooth.

Three months later Bill is joined by two other desperadoes in a small settlement on the Texas-Oklahoma frontier. The trio plans to hold up the government paymaster on his quarterly trip to the nearby Indian reservation. The proprietor of the tavern overhears the plans and informs the U. S. marshal. The marshal and a posse come to the tavern to arrest Bill and his gang. There is a fight in which Bill's companions are killed. Bill escapes to his home, where he dies, having been wounded in the fight.

KOMIC.

DIZZY JOE'S CAREER (Oct. 18).—Dizzy Joe, a tramp, is walking along a dusty road and rests by the way behind a stone wall. While Joe is asleep, a negro wagon driver from a hospital drives up and deposits on the ground a good suit of clothes from the body of a man who died of smallpox, intending to burn them. Having no match he goes away to procure one, and leaves the clothes in a heap on the ground. While he has gone, Joe awakes and sees the good clothes on the ground. It doesn't take him long to change.

Dressing behind the fence he throws his ragged old duds over and leaves them in a pile in place of the others. The negro returns and exclaims in surprise at the rags lying there: "Mah goodness, but smallpox made dem clothes fall apart mighty fast!" Joe hears this and can't get those new clothes off his person fast enough to suit him. He rushes into a lake, shedding clothes at every jump, and there he stays over night. In the morning he ventures out and makes himself a garment out of cornstalks. He is discovered in the thicket by a circus freak manager and hired as a wild man. At the circus his advent causes a sensation, he being the only man there, and he falls in love with the bearded lady, finally winning her away from the manager and marrying her. A year later the couple are presented with a bearded baby daughter.

BILL SPOILS A VACATION (Bill No. 8—Oct. 11).—Bill's boss decides to give Ethel a vacation. To show his appreciation for her faithful attention to business he stakes her to forty "megs." Ethel immediately starts off with the forty to show Newport what life really is. She is not long winning a millionaire widower, who quickly proposes—she accepts and goes forth to wire the boss, Hadley, that she is tired of his dictation and henceforth will have no more of it. Hadley becomes frantic on receiving the message and hustles Bill off to locate Ethel and bring her back.

Bill locates her just as she is about to dine and he, feeling the pangs of hunger creeping over him, decides to butt in on the big feed. Alas! Bill "spills the beans" as usual; the millionaire decides that Ethel is not the one to choose for a life partner. He excuses himself for a few moments and decides not to return. The waiter must have his check, and Bill, being broke, the big haul comes on Ethel, who has to separate herself from thirty-eight of the big forty. After paying the check she decides that Bill and the office are more attractive to her than Newport and the "Four Hundred."

MAJESTIC.

BACK TO THE KITCHEN (Oct. 16).—The ranchman's daughter is in love with Jack of the Rancho and becomes engaged to him, but pa comes on their lovemaking and rudely separates them. Following an idea which he worked on during a visit to New York, pa writes to a Frenchman, a lawyer there, and tells him he will marry his daughter to a count the lawyer will provide. The lawyer accordingly looks up an Italian cook, decks him out with a red sash, etc., and sends him West for the easy money.

The cook of the ranch meanwhile has developed the matrimonial germ and successively but not successfully makes proposals of marriage to the wagoner, the hay-pitcher and the milker on the ranch. She is refused with threats of bodily harm in each case and gives up. The bogus count arrives. Father compels his daughter to accept him but at the moment when the wedding is about to be carried out, Jack arrives with a letter which he has found, incriminating the count as a counterfeit. They decide to marry the count to the cook to keep her contented on the ranch and after a dash which they round up, the count is made fast to the cook and he is put back on his old job in the kitchen, while Madam Cook sits by superintending the work in luxurious ease.

RELIANCE.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL (No. 38—Oct. 5).—Margaret spent an idyllic day shopping with Aunt Abbie. All the wonderful gowns, negligees and luxurious wraps that her niece bought for her were chosen with such perfect taste, and were made in such beautiful, soft, becoming colors and materials, that she felt like an elderly Cinderella. When they reached home in Westchester, Margaret ran to find Baby Lily and told the cherub that she will have a party.

She persuaded Lily to sit on the sofa while she dashed off a score of notes to children in the neighborhood. Then she ran to the telephone and ordered goodies and toys and treasures enough for a whole Christmas. The party was the very next day. Baby Lily proved herself a perfect hostess and Margaret was proud of her.

It was the day after that, that Our Mutual Girl went to a tea at the Hamiltons'. Just as she started she was reminded of the jewel Lily's mother brought. It was too valuable to risk leaving in the house, and she decided to slip it in her lace dansant bag; and then go round to the bank with it after the tea.

She had scarcely reached the scene of the festivities, when somebody noticed an antique pin which their hostess was wearing. Miss Hamilton took it off, and it traveled from hand to hand among the admiring guests. When it came to Margaret, she was startled to find that it was an exact replica of the one she had in her bag. She stepped aside a moment to compare the two. Why should Miss Hamilton have a jewel the counterpart of Lily's mother's?

In the course of its passage among the score or more of guests, the pin was lost for a moment, and in the excitement of locating it, one of the girls turned her handbag wrong-side-out and suggested that everybody else do the same, in case some absent-minded member might have tucked it away unconsciously. Our Mutual Girl was in a quandary. But her quick wits came to her rescue. Drawing herself up haughtily, she said:

"I think this is all utterly absurd! I, for one refuse to open my bag. I scorn the imputation, and I bid you good afternoon."

Of course they ran after her and brought her back with a thousand apologies, and in the general commotion, the mislaid pin was discovered. Then Miss Hamilton told its story—which was decidedly romantic, it being the companion stone to one possessed by a cousin who had eloped with a chauffeur, and had never since been heard from. Margaret, painfully excited, though hiding her emotions, could not fail to recognize the clue to the family of Baby Lily.

The following evening Our Mutual Girl might have been seen in Miss Hamilton's boudoir, searching her bureau, dresser and chiffonier before she brought to light the companion stone. The day before, while comparing them, she had exchanged the two pins. She knew she had by the different initials marked on the back. She could not have gone openly to her friend about it, as this would have been to expose the identity of Baby Lily. Hardly had she made the matter right when, opening the door, she found herself looking into the muzzle of a double barrelled shotgun.

"Hands up!" commanded a very determined looking young man, nowise daunted to find his "burglar" a beautiful young girl. Our Mutual Girl had no choice but to obey.

BAD-MAN MASON (Oct.14).—Jeremy Dexter, sheriff of Sherman County, notifies Lanky Mason, the bad man, to leave town. Mason had become involved in a shooting scrape the night before, and shot a Mexican. The sheriff tells Lanky that although he remembers that Lanky had saved his little daughter's life by swimming through a torrent during a flood and pulling the girl out of the swollen stream; that Lanky by heroic work during a time when the smelter caught fire had saved the town from being destroyed, it was imperative for the good of the town that Lanky leave. Lanky worships at a distance, a young woman school teacher who recently came out of the east to teach in the town. The sheriff escorts Lanky to the county border line and bids him farewell.

Lanky goes to Sonora, the adjoining town, and stations himself at a faro table in a gambling house. A young tenderfoot sits at the table, drinks and loses all his money. The tenderfoot is broke and is trying to pawn his cuff links, when Lanky takes charge of him and leads him away. The tenderfoot confided in Lanky that he is a college man, recently inherited $600, and came West to claim his sweetheart, the school teacher whom Lanky worships.

Lanky tries to straighten out the tenderfoot and he then starts to escort the Easterner to the school teacher's home. As they near the adjoining town on horseback, Lanky is shot from ambush. When he regains consciousness he finds himself in bad in the school teacher's home, with the sheriff sitting by his side. The sheriff informs Lanky that he was shot by a brother of the Mexican whom Lanky shot during the brawl. The sheriff advises Lanky further that the school teacher had sent the tenderfoot back East as unworthy of her. The sheriff adds that when the school teacher found that Lanky was injured she insisted that he be brought to her home, where she nursed him. The sheriff states further that inasmuch as the brother of the Mexican whom Lanky shot had tried to murder him (Lanky), the authorities decided that the bad man could return home. The sheriff leaves the room and the school teacher enters and smiles down at Lanky.

THE REVENUE OFFICER'S DEPUTY (Two Parts—Oct. 17).—Jason, the revenue officer, receives word that Mexican whiskey is being made in his district and is told to hire a deputy to keep strict watch. Clark, a village youth, is in love with Ruth, Jason's daughter, and they ask the old man to appoint him deputy so they can be married, but Jason has seen the boy abused by the town bad man and doubts his courage. Collins, one of the townsmen, is hired and with Jason goes into the hills to watch Bruner, a mountaineer, who is making the mescal. Jason searches Bruner's cabin and the latter hidden in the hills, fires upon him and seriously wounds him. Taking the officer back to town, Collins resigns and again Clark asks for the position but is again refused. Determined to leave the town, Clark bids Ruth goodby and rides away. After several weeks of roving he secures employment on a ranch and a letter from Ruth reaches him, telling him that her father is threatened with the loss of his position for his failure to catch the whiskey maker. She begs him to return, hoping he can now secure the position as deputy because Jason's wound is still unhealed. Leaving the ranch, Clark starts home and stopping

Cosmos Features

STATE RIGHT BUYERS

HAVE YOU ARRANGED FOR YOUR TERRITORY?

THE STAR

The Play

"Lena Rivers"

IN FIVE PARTS

The Time

Released Oct. 15

BEULAH POYNTER

Cosmos Feature Film Corporation

126-130 WEST 46th STREET, NEW YORK

OVER 8,000 MIRROROIDE SCREENS IN USE

MR. EXHIBITOR: Your Success Depends, Not Upon Promises, but Upon Actual Results Obtained

Some Screen Manufacturers Will Promise You Everything and Anything, BUT—Will They Guarantee to Keep Their Promises?

Will they guarantee their screen for five years against cracking, peeling, deteriorating—tarnishing or turning black?
Will they guarantee their screen is climate proof and can be washed with soap and water?
Will they guarantee perfect projection regardless of how close your seats are placed to the screen, or angle?
Will they guarantee perfect projection, without haze, glare or eye-strain?
Will they really guarantee the saving on Current Used?

We are Guided by Our Policy of Six Years to Under-claim Rather Than Over-claim. You Can Rest Assured That We Do Not Exaggerate or Misrepresent. Therefore Feel Secure in Accepting Our Representations at Their Full Worth.

WE GUARANTEE MIRROROIDE FOR FIVE YEARS TO SUBSTANTIATE EVERY CLAIM WE MAKE AS ABOVE. WILL THEY?

MIRROROIDE is the Only Rough or Matte Metalized Surface on Earth—Silver White, Silver Flesh, or Pale Gold. Send for Our Large FREE Samples. TEST, COMPARE with any Screen on Earth. MIRROROIDE IS THE WORLD'S BEST SCREEN—and We Will Back This Statement Up with $1,000.00 in Real Tests—Tests Open to the Public in General.

MIRROROIDE IS SOLD AT 36 1-9 CENTS THE SQUARE FOOT

Our Latest Pure White Glass Coating, Not Metallic, Ready Mixed, Ready to apply direct, at $10.00 per gallon. Fire and Waterproof and Guaranteed.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., NEWBURGH, N. Y. AGENCIES ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES in a nearby town, engages in a card game with Bruner, unaware, of course, of his identity.

Luck goes against the whiskey maker and he places some cards in Clark's boot and accuses him of cheating. Keeping the boy covered with his gun Bruner takes the money and rides away. Clark, unarmed, is refused a gun by the loiterers in the gambling hall, but taking one from a sleeping cowboy he starts in pursuit to force Bruner to retract the accusation. Not knowing that he is followed Bruner turns into the shack where the mescal is made and Clark sees him and is convinced that he is the whiskey maker. Hoping to save Jason's position for him, he dismisses the personal quarrel with Bruner and rides on into the town where he meets Ruth and tells her of his discovery. The girl pins the deputy's badge on him and giving him the guns tells him to go out and bring in the whiskey maker. Clark rides away and after taking Bruner prisoner is set on by the men from the shack, but taking refuge among the rocks holds them off. Ruth, worried at his failure to return, tells her father and they go in search. Clark, wounded and unconscious, is found beside Bruner, who is securely bound. The doctor assures Jason of the boy's recovery and the old man makes Clark retain the badge and become his deputy.

THANHOUSER.

THE TRAIL OF THE LOVE-LORN (Two Parts—Sept. 29).—Tom and Joe, two mail order crooks, are put out of business by Jack, a postal inspector for Uncle Sam. Arriving in a small town, they are attracted by the beauty of May Morris, and manage to secure board and lodging in her father's house. They then steal a photograph of May to use as an advertisement in a matrimonial paper, and thus make some easy money. The scheme works, and in addition to impassioned letters money and jewelry pours in. It happens that Frank, who sends a necklace which is intercepted by the crooks, not hearing from May, complains to Jack. He gets on the case, and through May, with whom he has long been in love, manages to track down the crooks. He also saves the girl from implication in their crime and from the "third degree." Soon after, Jack and May are married.

THE CRIPPLE (Two Parts—Oct. 6).—Will Jameson has been crippled from boyhood. He bears his affliction bravely until he falls in love with Ruth Stevens. He often is a guest at Judge Stevens' home, and one evening, feeling that he cannot longer endure the merriment among the other young folks in which he may take no active part, he goes to find the Judge and excuses himself on the pretext that he has promised to be home early. Meanwhile, an ex-convict whom the Judge formerly sentenced has entered the house meaning to avenge himself. Will reaches the library barely in time to save the Judge's life. In his struggle with the convict, however, his leg is broken. An eminent surgeon discovers that the operation which must be performed will cure Will of the old trouble. The young man induces him to keep this a secret from the Stevens family. Later, Will returns and proposes to Ruth, who realizes that she loves him.

THE RESCUE (Oct. 11).—Alice thinks the world of her brother Harry who always has been her companion in all her out-of-door sports. When he falls in love with Ann Sinclair, she becomes intensely jealous. Harry partly wins her over, but when he tries to affect a reconciliation between the two girls, Ann is obstinate. One day at the beach Ann is caught out in a launch which gets on fire. From the shore Alice sees her danger. As there is no one within call, and the engineer of the boat, panic-stricken has deserted Ann, she jumps into the water and puts her reputation for swimming to good account. Harry arrives just in time to pull the two exhausted girls into his speed boat. And then he has the happiness of seeing his sister and sweetheart kiss and pledge friendship.

THE DIAMOND OF DISASTER (Oct. 13—Two parts). A famous diamond, which has caused death and dishonor to a Rajah and his captain, is given by a dying Hindoo to an Englishman. The Englishman, Davis, learns the story of the fatal gem from a native fakir, or wise man, but will not permit himself to be alarmed by superstitious tales. Not long after, he goes away, leaving his wife and baby in the care of a trusted Hindoo servant. However, the servant has seen the diamond, and loyalty giving way before greed, he plots with a bandit chieftain to rob the Englishman of the gem. The diamond is found, and the two Indians quarrel for its possession. In the struggle, a lamp falls into a barrel of gunpowder, blowing up the house. The Englishman who has turned back sees the building fall, but reaches the place in time to rescue his wife and child. The servant and the bandits are found dead. Then Davis takes the precious stone and hurls it into the sea.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY No. 92 (Oct. 1).—Latest pictures from the seat of war. England's defenders take the oath before the Lord Mayor at the Tower of London. Miners of Durham leave peaceful pursuits to answer Gen. Kitchener's call to arms. Dependents of soldiers at war are fed at Newcastle. Sentries guard German prisoners of war at Dorchester prison. Lord Roberts, England's fighting general, reviews new battalion of the Royal Fusiliers. First contingent of British wounded returns to London from the front. Funeral of Gen. Grierson at Glasgow. British Red Cross Society prepares for service at the front. British troops entraining. Alsatians enrolling in Paris. A German cruiser passing through the Kiel Canal.

Belgium sends representatives to the United States to protest against German atrocities.

Ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Spain and China sign treaties of peace with the United States at Washington, D. C.

S. S. "Pectan" running German blockade off San Francisco Bay.

Larchmont Yacht Club holds annual regatta on Long Island Sound.

Twenty thousand Pythians parade Chicago streets at Golden Jubilee of the Order.

Perth Amboy, N. J., entertains many notables at 7th annual convention of Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

Jas. E. Sullivan, noted sportsman and A. A. U. official, dies in New York.

BEAUTY.

THE LEGEND OF BLACK ROCK (Sept. 29). One morning after a big storm at sea, Joe Thornton, a young fisherman, finds a half-drowned girl lying on Black Rock. He carries her home to his mother who revives her. She cannot understand a word of English, but keeps repeating over and over her own name in the Spanish tongue—"Carmelita." Thornton teaches her to speak as he does, growing every day fonder of her, but thinking of her always as a charming child, a younger sister. Meanwhile, Thornton has been engaged to Mona, who presently returns to the fishing village. Carmelita follows the lovers to their rendezvous, and in a fit of insane jealousy, tries to stab the American girl. Thornton saves his sweetheart and deals sternly with Carmelita, by no means realizing the depth of her passion for him. On their wedding night the young fisherman and his bride take ship for San Francisco. A lonely figure on Black Rock watches the vessel out of sight. The next morning the Spanish girl has disappeared.

AMERICAN.

DAPHNIA (Two Parts—Oct. 5).—George Baxter, a United States secret service man, manages to convict John Mathews and James Goodwin for counterfeiting, through misusing the love and confidence of Mathew's daughter, Julia. Ten years pass. On their release from prison, Mathew and Goodwin are summoned to visit a famous gambling resort in St. Louis, and in "Daphnia," the woman who runs it they recognize Julia. Bitterly blaming her for the past they denounce her and return to the Southern hills. Daphnia, counting her money, finds a counterfeit bill. She finds out that it has been passed by a certain George Baxter, Jr., the son of the man who was the beginning of all her unhappiness. She summons the United States inspector and when he sees his own son he is heartbroken. Julia reveals her identity, and tells him that at last the old account is squared.

BILLY'S RIVAL (Oct. 7).—The ceremony that wedded Billy Manning to Mary was just over and the festivities were at their height when the bride was shocked to learn the evident displeasure her husband experienced at the presence of the children who had kindly acted as flower girl and ring bearer. There was no doubt Billy was much devoted to his wife and the two were exquisitely happy with each other, but Billy wasn't home all the time. For eight hours each day the husband had his office to look after and these were exceedingly lonesome hours for Mary, until one day the flat next door was rented by another young couple, with a little baby. The infant was sickly and Mary frequently took the child to her own flat and cared for it. One afternoon Billy returned earlier than usual and upon entering the apartment heard his wife uttering words of endearment and showering kisses upon some one. Billy's jealousy was immediately aroused and he had blood in his eye when he forced entrance to his wife's room.

The little rival proved a surprise, but the incident touched a responsive chord in Billy's heart and husband and wife were more firmly united in love and kindness toward each other.

PRINCESS.

THE BALANCE OF POWER (Oct. 2).—The president of a large manufacturing company dies, and in his will asks his son to take his place at the head of the corporation. The executor of the will is the vice-president of the concern, who young Davis discovers, is scheming to get control of the company and become president himself. The balance of power is held by Ruben Sampson, to whom Davis appeals. But Sampson, who has had a long standing feud with the older Davis, will not come to the rescue. Then Ruth steps in. At the risk of her own life she shows Sampson what the Davis blood is good for, and the old man gives her brother his support in the election.

FEATURE FILM STORIES

WHARTON, INC.

A PRINCE OF INDIA (Four Parts)—An Indian rajah determines to give the prince, his son, the advantages of an American university education, and brings him to the United States. Arriving at the university town, they stop at the hotel there and are immediately besieged by the reporters who scent a good story, especially as it is reported that the rajah brings with him one of the famous jewels of the world, a magnificent diamond. Among the reporters is a young man on his first assignment who at once makes friends with the prince.

In the meantime Nell Reardon, the "badger queen," is approached by Moreland, a "gentleman" crook, and threatened with exposure if she does not aid him to obtain possession of the rajah's jewel. She promises her aid and as a first step registers at the same hotel as the rajah, under the alias of the "Countess Mirska." Billy is assigned to interview her. The prince is struck with the woman's charms and persuades Billy to introduce him. At the instigation of Moreland, the woman persuades the prince to show her the diamond. Fearing his father's displeasure the young man secretly takes the jewel from the strong box.

Seeing their opportunity, Moreland, and Harley, his "pal," invite the prince to have some refreshments at the hotel cafe and the prince asks to have Billy included in the party. The jewel is passed around and admired. By accident, and while no one is looking, it falls from the case and lodges in the cuff of the reporter's trousers. Later, while in his own room, he discovers it and immediately runs back to the hotel to return it to the prince. Unable to find him, he decides to stay at the hotel for the night, takes a room and throws himself upon the bed, fully clothed. The anxiety of his responsibility preys upon his mind so that his slumbers are disturbed and his rest is a nightmare.

In the meantime the prince discovers the loss, tells the crooks of it and they search the cafe together. The crooks secretly believe each other guilty, but when they tax one another with the crime they mutually prove their innocence. Without saying anything to each other they visit the reporter's home and search his room. Finding one another in the room their mutual distrust deepens. Billy's distraught mind causes him to talk in his sleep and while doing so he drops the jewel over the hotel balcony. It falls at the feet of the prince, but he does not enjoy its possession long. Harley, who has been spying upon him, knocks him out and escapes with the diamond. The further vicissitudes of the diamond are intensely interesting and lead up to the superb climax where the prince recovers it and sees the baffled crook, Moreland, go over the bridge into the ravine below in the trolley car in which he has tried to escape.

PICTURE PLAYHOUSE FILM CO.

THE LURE OF THE YUKON (Three Parts). The hardships and perils of a winter on the Yukon cannot kill the love of home and family firmly implanted in the hearts of the two brothers who have suffered all the dangers of that Arctic climate to win the fortune that, by lucky chance, comes within their grasp as the long winter breaks, and they prepare to start, by dog sledge, back to the States by way of Dawson City.

In Dawson they wander into a dance hall, and the proprietor, noting their well filled bag of gold dust, induces his daughter, Lou, to try to steal it; but for the first time in her life her heart is touched with tenderness by the avowal of love at first sight by Walter Weir, one of the brothers, and she agrees to accompany the boys back to their mother in Vermont.

She sets a signal in the window of her cabin, but her father overhears the plan and spoils it. The boys prepare to leave Dawson City, and after they have successfully negotiated one of the greatest dangers of the Chilcoot Pass, that of dropping down an almost perpendicular hundred-foot cliff, dog team and all, they are waylaid by the vengeful gambler, lassoed and left to perish in the biting

The Honest Screen for the Honest Exhibitor

THE SCREEN OF QUALITY — THE SCREEN DE LUXE

"THE PEERLESS" The Indoor Screen —THE DAY and NIGHT SCREEN— "THE PIONEER" The Outdoor Screen

"THE SCREEN WITHOUT A SEAM"

SEND FOR CATALOGUE — ARRANGE FOR TEST

DAY AND NIGHT SCREENS, Inc.

110 WEST 40th ST., N. Y. — Telephone 7930 Bryant

Branch Offices and Distributing Centers at PHILADELPHIA, NEW ORLEANS, ATLANTA, EL PASO, MEMPHIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, SAN FRANCISCO, WASHINGTON, LOS ANGELES, SEATTLE, PARIS, BERLIN, LONDON

PATHE
Motion Picture
CAMERAS
Studio and Outdoor Compact Model

Austin Edward's Raw Film Stock

TRIPODS
PRINTERS
PERFORATORS

Special quotations cheerfully furnished on chemicals in quantities. Send for catalog.

G. GENNERT
24 East 13th St., New York

GIVE AWAY FREE

to your patrons a photo player's post card and make your dull nights equal to your big nights. Every empty seat that you played to can never be made up. This scheme is sure to fill 'em.

Semi-Photo Post Cards, $3.00 per thousand; formerly sold for $4.00. Over 400 different players.

Hand Colored Post Cards
For the better class of Souvenirs, 60 of the most popular players, all factions, $10.00 per thousand.

Photo Post Cards
For hand coloring. NOTE: The Public buy cards from stationers and color them. It's a new fad—60 Popular Players $5.00 per thousand

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, Association and Independent, 400 different names, 20 cents each.

LARGE PICTURE, semi-photo, glazed finish, size 11 x 14, $1 per doz.; 43 prominent players.

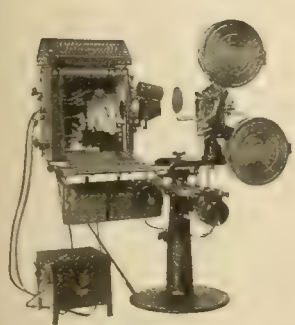
LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x14. Prominent players, $2.00 per set of 12.

Photographs for lobby display of the two and three-reel features of all of the Mutual multiple reels—set of 6, $1.00. Always ready 10 days ahead of release.

Special 22 x 28 Hand Colored Pictures of 42 Favorites. 75 Cents Each. Framed $2.50 Each.

Kraus Mfg. Co., 14 East 17th St., New York
Middle West Office—Lyric Theatre Bldg., Dayton, O.

Send for Catalogue of over 400 players and samples free. Write us giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.



The MOTIOGRAPH Installed In Your Booth

Will Save You Time, Worry and Expense

THERE'S A REASON

It's the Best for Projection and upkeep

Ask the thousands using the late model Motiograph

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., 564-572 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office, 21 E. 14th St., New York — Western Office, 833 Market St., San Francisco

Arctic cold. Lou rescues them in the nick of time, and with the aid of the Yukon Police Patrol the boys start a hundred-mile pursuit to regain their stolen fortune.

The Yukon police, after a standup battle with the cornered murderers, succeed in killing one of them by a lucky shot, and the other is left to the same cruel fate that he had so nearly accomplished upon the brothers, while Lou and the brothers start on their journey back to civilization.

SYNDICATE FILM CORPORATION

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY (Episode 14 Reels 27 and 28).—While Florence and Jimmy Norton pursue their idyllic courtship, lulled to a false sense of security by the apparent inactivity of the conspirators, Braine and the others plan a desperate coup. It is nothing less than effort to place Florence and the old butler under the ban of Uncle Sam's secret service. With them out of the way, the conspirators reason, it will be a comparatively simple matter to search the Hargreaves' mansion from top to bottom, thus learning once for all whether the treasure is located within its walls.

In pursuance of this plan Jackson and some of the gang break into the house at dead of night and hide a bundle of counterfeit bills behind the tapestry on the wall of the library. Old Jones hearing the crooks in the house, fires at them, but they make good their escape, having successfully accomplished their mission. The next day Braine, in the writing room of a New York hotel, sends an anonymous note to the chief of the secret service, telling him that the Hargreaves' house is the haunt of a gang of counterfeiters, whose product is "passed" by Florence and Norton. A considerable amount of the "queer," writes Braine, is concealed behind the tapestry in the library. It happens that a few minutes after Braine has gone, Jimmy Norton enters the hotel writing room and sits down in the identical place just vacated by the other. By accident his eye catches Florence's name on the blotter, which the chief conspirator has just used, and holding it up to a mirror, Norton speedily deciphers the message. Instantly the whole scheme is apparent to him. Hastening back to the house he shows Jones the betraying blotter and the two soon find the counterfeits behind the tapestry, replacing them with an equal amount of genuine bills. That done, Norton sets out for the headquarters of the secret service, being assured of a hearing by the chief through his newspaper connections.

Soon after his arrival he is closeted with the head of Uncle Sam's sleuths and to him he tells his suspicions. The veteran sleuth nods his head understandingly as Norton tells him of the activities of the conspirators, the object of their latest plot and the probability that they are engaged in gigantic counterfeiting operations. When Norton has finished, his auditor outlines a plan, which he believes will thwart the conspirators and which may result in the capture of the whole band. Then he calls in two of his men and directs them to go with Norton to the Hargreaves' mansion, where they are to install a dictograph. The chief's plan is simple. It is to make a false arrest of Florence and her companion and old Jones, while the two men with Norton wait in the house to see what the conspirators try to do. By means of the dictograph they hope to get evidence which will convict the whole band. Yet like many of the best laid plans this one fails to achieve its object.

With the two secret service men Norton goes to the Hargreaves' house and acquaints Florence with the ruse they intend playing. The dictograph is installed and the men sit down to await events. Not long afterward a number of other secret service men arrive and search the house, finding the money which Norton and Jones had hidden behind the tapestry. Jackson, posing as a newspaperman, is with them and he chuckles inwardly as he sees how well the conspirators' scheme is working. After a few formal inquiries the secret service men place Florence and Jones under arrest and take them, outwardly protesting, to headquarters.

As soon as they are gone, the conspirators, who have been watching the house closely, make haste to enter it, whereupon they commence a thorough search for the treasure. Every possible place where it might be concealed comes in for their scrutiny, but they find no trace of it. All the while, in an upper room, Norton and the two sleuths are keeping a close watch on their movements by means of the dictograph. They hear the conspirators laugh among themselves at the ruse which has left the house open for their search. They hear, too, of the counterfeiting plant which the gang are operating. Just as they are ready to capture the crooks, however, one of the latter by the merest chance learns of the officers' presence and gives the alarm.

But the sleuths are not to be balked so easily. Norton springs to the telephone and calls police headquarters. A few hurried directions and he, with the two secret service men, sets out for the meeting place of the conspirators. There they meet the police reserves who had been sent in answer to Norton's telephone call. With these reinforcements they seek to gain entrance to the conspirators' secret meeting room. Battering down the door they enter, just in time to see the last conspirator disappearing through a trap door in the far corner of the room. The police hurry pellmell after them, but too late to effect their capture.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY (Episode Fifteen Reels Twenty-nine and Thirty).—After the narrow escape of the conspirators, for a time Braine and the others remain under cover. Their determination to gain possession of the missing treasure did not waver. Braine soon develops a new scheme. While Norton is in town attending to his duties, Florence receives a telephone message from the gang. "Norton is seriously injured," she is told over the wire. "Come to the Queen Hotel at once." And the girl, calling for her companion Susan to accompany her, readily falls into the trap.

Meanwhile a desperate struggle has been going on at the Hargreave garage, where Florence's chauffeur has been attacked by Braine and one of the conspirators. He puts up a game fight, but is overpowered and one of his attackers, disguised in the chauffeur's hat, duster and goggles, drives the car to the Hargreave mansion to take Florence on her mission of rescue. Without suspicion, Florence and her companion step nimbly into the machine and direct the pseudo chauffeur to hasten to the Queen Hotel. They have not gone far, when the auto stops near the waterside, and another of the conspirators drag Florence out. He threatens to disfigure both the girls if any outcry is made, and compels Florence to go with him to the wharf, where a speedy motorboat, already engaged, is awaiting them. Cowering with terror, Susan sees Florence placed aboard the craft, which at once speeds away. Meanwhile, Braine, who has awaited his opportunity on the grounds of the Hargreave mansion, slips a note under the door, rings the bell and hastens away. Old Jones answering the ring finds this message:

"The girl is now in our power. Nothing can save her except the surrender of the treasure before midnight tonight.

(Signed) "THE BLACK HUNDRED."

At once the venerable butler sends for Norton, who arrives post haste on learning of Florence's peril. Both are considering what is best to be done, when the telephone rings. It is Susan, miles away, who has hurried across fields, through briars and brambles, to tell of Florence's danger.

"They put her on a—fast motorboat," she gasps breathlessly, "at the foot of—Storey street."

Norton waits to hear no more and he is soon speeding in his runabout to the river. There he looks around for some speedy boat. There is none. But a fast hydroplane is on the beach, with only a mechanic on guard. To him Norton tells his urgent need, a few bills pass between them, and in a twinkling, the reporter is off in the hydroplane in the wake of Florence and her captors.

From the merest speck in the distance, the motor-boat, as the speedy hydroplane overhauls it, soon assumes its normal size. Flying low Norton calls on Florence to jump, although the craft is going at the rate of forty miles an hour. She, with every confidence in his word, leaps behind the speeding boat. A minute later, the hydroplane has alighted on the surface, she is taken in, and the rescuer and rescued are off like an arrow.

Meanwhile, old Jones has been having his troubles. Two of the gang have entered the house and under threat of death have given him fifteen minutes to divulge the hiding place of the treasure. The old servant, anxious to gain time, writes a hurried note to Norton, telling him the two men are in the house, and throws it out upon the driveway. That done, after all other subterfuges to gain time, Jones shows the thugs, how by pressing a secret spring on the wall beside a picture of the vanished Hargreave, the portrait slides up disclosing a hidden panel. Touching another spring the panel discloses a space in the wall, apparently the hiding place of the missing million. While the conspirators stare in surprise and delight, Jones thrusts his hand into the aperture and brings forth—not the treasure but a loaded revolver with which he covers the precious pair. As he does so he hears Norton's whistle and knows that he has got his message. Norton, who has been helping Florence homeward, rushes into the house, while she runs for aid.

The reporter's entrance is the signal for a desperate struggle, for the two crooks have nearly overpowered old Jones. The battle is soon over for the arrival of the police brought by Florence ends the fray. Both men are made prisoners and once more Florence and the treasure are safe.

LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.

THE MAKING OF BOBBY BURNIT (Four Parts).—Bobby Burnit, by his father's will, inherits $300,000, which the will stipulates he must invest. Having had no business experience, Bobby is at a loss how to proceed until his sweetheart, Agnes Elliston, persuades him to take over the John Burnit stores. Sam Stone, a schemer and dishonest promoter, learns of Bobby's inheritance and through the connivance of Bobby's lawyer, sells him the Bright Light power plant.

Silas Trimmer, owner of the Trimmer stores, has long cherished a desire to gain control of the Burnit stores and induces Bobby to consolidate the two corporations. Immediately the consolidation occurs, Trimmer issues new stock and gains control of the enterprise. Biff Bates, an old pal of Bobby's overhears Stone's plan to wreck the Bright Light and only by taking matters in his own hands is he able to frustrate Stone.

Stone and Trimmer combine to rob Bobby, but Johnston, a trusted clerk of Bobby's father, secures the aid of the Daily Bulletin and the following day the Bulletin prints a story of the doings of the two crooks. Bobby plans with Biff Bates to pick a quarrel with Trimmer's son. Biff pretends to be fatally injured and the younger Trimmer sells his stock to Bobby to prevent his being exposed as the murderer of Bates.

Agnes overhears a plot between Stone and the men and warns Bobby. Bobby rescues Agnes, secures control of the stores, causes the arrest of the bribed politicians. Agnes then delivers a letter to Bobby, written by his father before his death. It read: "I knew you'd come out all right. Stop proposing and marry her;" and he did.

WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES (Five Parts).—Little "How," an Indian boy, following the uprising of the Indians, is adopted by Col. Lander and taken to Col. Lander's home. Little Bessie Rowland, about the same age, is also adopted by Col. Lander, Bessie's parents having been killed in the uprising. Bessie and "How" grow up together and at the age of fifteen "How" is sent to school and makes rapid headway in the white man's mode of civilization and education. Graduation time comes and Col. Lander and Bess visit "How" and are met there by Craig, Col. Lander's nephew.

Craig showers so much attention on Bess that "How" becomes jealous. At the graduation dance, Craig proposes to Bess and is refused, while "How" proposes and is accepted. They all start for Buffalo Butte Ranch at Cayote City. "How" displays his courage by cowing a bully. Later Craig, who has learned of the engagement of Bess and "How," attacks "How" but gets the worst of it.

Arriving at the ranch Craig brings on a violent scene with Col. Lander with the result that the Colonel has an attack of heart failure and dies. Col. Lander wills all to Craig and Bess. Craig orders "How" from the ranch.

"How" buys a cabin and land and he and Bess are married. "How" then goes on a long trip and, returning unexpectedly, discovers Bess and Craig in each other's embrace. "How" says, "I give you your freedom," and rushes out into the hills to fight it out alone. He leaves a note for Bess telling her she can have the house and acres. A year later, Craig and Bess are married. In the meantime "How" has discovered oil on the property he gave Bess and follows the Craigs to New York. Bess discovers that Craig is unfaithful and witnesses his being humiliated by "How."

After many difficulties "How" convinces Bess that her property is worth a fortune and prevails upon her to return West, meantime keeping Craig a prisoner all night to give Bess a long start. A few weeks elapse and "How" receives a telegram from Bess asking him to come West, immediately. He does.

Craig follows them West and attacks Bess and endeavors to steal the deed to the property. "How" arrives just in the nick of time and disposes of Craig, and shortly thereafter Bess and "How" are married again.

ECLECTIC.

THE MONEY LENDER (Four Parts).—Zamirsky, a gentleman of Cracow, Austrian Poland, wastes his patrimony and being in urgent need of funds goes to the money lender, Isaak Lewi, to whom he has had recourse in the past. Entering the money lender's apartment, he sees for the first time Rebecca, Isaak's daughter, and she makes a deep impression on him. Isaak advances to him the money asked for and the young man goes his way, first, however, having made an appointment with Rebecca to meet him next day.

The two meet, and the love which the Gentile has excited in the fair Jewess takes complete mastery of her. Her little sister, worried by Rebecca's prolonged absence from the house, suspects the truth and begs her to cease her folly at once and for all. The Sabbath night of the Jews comes, and while at their orthodox dinner Zamirsky enters, breaking in on the ceremony, and pleads with Isaak for more money. The money lender refuses to do any business on the Sababth and Zamirsky leaves the house disappointed in his wishes. Shortly afterward the Rabbi calls. He tells Rebecca that he has heard rumors of her conduct with the Gentile and warns her to stop before it is too late.

Rebecca takes from her father's safe her dowry and hurries with it to the man she loves. He takes it and then persuades her to elope with him. Isaak, bowed with grief at his daughter's waywardness, seeks solace in dispensing charity to the poor of his race. On the Day of Atonement while in the Synagogue, Isaak, utterly beside himself with his sorrows, blasphemes Jehovah and is carried from the edifice overcome. Later, realizing the enormity of his blasphemy, he performs penance by doubling his charities.

In the meantime Zamirsky has returned to his evil ways and with gambling and dissipation becomes more and more estranged from the girl who sacrificed her all for him. Rebecca is broken-hearted at Zamirsky's conduct and goes back to her old home. Aided by the supplications of her sister, she begs her father for forgiveness and shelter. The unbending old man, however, spurns her and sees the daughter, who was once the light of his life, die before him of a broken heart. Over the body of the unfortunate girl, with faltering voice, he pronounces the sacred words prescribed by his religion.

WHILE FIRE RAGED (Five Parts).—Wallace Summers, first mate on his father's steamship Jupiter, is engaged to Ethel Richards, who is residing in France with her father. On a trip abroad while the Jupiter is in port, Wallace takes a trip to Paris to visit his fiancee and her father. While there he attends a performance at a concert hall and is much impressed with the charms of the world famous dancer, Gaby de Rose. Attending the concert hall again and again, he finally makes an appointment to meet Gaby and falls desperately in love with her. On a suceeding trip to France he visits Gaby in her dressing rooom at the theater, where he discovers several passionate love notes, evidently written by other suitors. These notes arouse terrible jealousy in Wallace's breast, resulting in a break with Gaby. Gaby is offered a very good engagement on the American continent, and seeing a way to bring about a reconciliation with Wallace, decides to go to America on his father's vessel, the Jupiter. On the voyage she becomes reconciled to Wallace. In mid-ocean a fire breaks out in the hold of the Jupiter and in order to allay the passengers' fears, Wallace persuades Gaby to perform one of her famous dances in the salon, thus preventing the passengers discovering that the vessel is on fire. After the fire is put out, Gaby is given the heartfelt gratitude of the captain and the passengers.

Captain Summers, in the meantime, has had a message from Ethel saying she fears Wallace's affection for her has waned. Seeing the state of affairs the captain appeals to Gaby, who leaves the ship at the first port, deciding never to see Wallace again. Stricken with remorse and finally brought to a realization of the pain and suffering which he is causing his former sweetheart, Wallace decides to let Gaby go, and returns to his old affection for Ethel.

PICTURESQUE ZUERCY (France). Lovers of the beautiful in nature will find plenty to interest them in this fine scenic. Here we see a charming old world countryside with quiet fields of waving grain, lofty cliffs and the placid waters of winding streams. Here also are old-time castles, perched on the top of almost inaccessible crags. One might almost expect to see trains of knights in glittering armor and fluttering pennons emerge from the ponderous moss grown gates. The modern work-a-day world seems far removed from this quiet corner of France.

A STUDY OF BIRDS.—Here are to be seen a number of birds of moor and woodland caught by the camera in the intimate phases of their timid lives. Orioles, woodpeckers and others, are all shown close to the camera. A very interesting nature educational that will please.

THE PAWN OF FORTUNE (Five Parts).—It is an unfortunate day for John Hadley when he protects Doris Jackson from the unwelcome advances of the boss's son, for it results in his discharge. It is doubly unfortunate as Hadley is a married man with an infant daughter, Janet. Not satisfied with discharging Hadley, the vengeful boss succeeds in preventing him from securing other employment. Matters go from bad to worse until at last starvation stares the little family in the face. Driven at last to desperation, Hadley finds himself at the docks where the waters of the swiftly flowing river seems to suggest a way out of his difficulties. Plunging blindly off the end of the pier, he lands in a rowboat which at that moment comes from under the pier. In it are three river pirates who think that Hadley is spying on them. They capture him and take him to a nearby yacht which is owned by J. Harvey Hall, the leader of a band of crooks, who demands that Hadley join them. Upon his refusal, Hadley is set adrift near the South African coast to prevent him from "peaching." He is captured by a band of Mayas on the Santos Islands and is doomed to die. They bedeck him with precious jewels and prepare to offer him up as a living sacrifice to their gods. Watching his chance he makes a break and succeeds in escaping. He attracts the attention of an exploring party and returns to civilization. He realizes a large sum by selling the jewels and institutes a search for his wife and child. By chance he locates his wife in a hospital where she has been taken when found exhausted in the street. His daughter, however, cannot be found, she having been adopted by Hall, who finds her on his doorstep.

Eighteen years elapse. Janet has become an inventive genius and perfects a safe opening device. One night, Hall, who has concealed his real identity from her, persuades Janet to try to open a jeweler's safe, pretending that it belongs to a friend. She succeeds in opening it, but the police have been tipped off and raid the office where Hall and his pals are gathered. Hall is killed, but Janet escapes. Grief-stricken by the revelation of Hall's true character, she returns home where she learns that he is not her father. Detective Baggett arrives too late to intercept her. He searches the house and finds a record of Janet's adoption by Hall. Hadley advertises for news of his long lost daughter.. The detective, reading the advertisement, thinks he has a clew in the papers which he found and starts a search for Janet. Baggett picks up her trail, which leads to Hadley's home. Meeting Hadley and his wife outside, they enter and see Janet, who, by a strange coincidence, has taken a position as governess to the Hadley's adopted daughter, in front of the safe endeavoring to open it. As the doors of the safe swing open they rush forward only to see Janet reach in and take out a small kitten which had been locked in by Hadley's adopted daughter. Recognizing the detective, Janet attempts to escape but is held by him. Great is the surprise when he produces the secret papers and proves to the Hadleys that their governess was in reality their long lost daughter.

BLACK RODERICK (Two Parts).—Away back in the Highlands far removed from the path of every day life, Donald, the headkeeper of Lord Cameron's estate, lives with his daughter, Jessie, a beautiful young girl entirely unacquainted with men of the world. On a fateful day Donald is summoned by Lord Cameron to take Lord Sterling, his future son-in-law, for a hunting trip over the estate. In the course of his trip they stop at Donald's house where Lord Sterling is much struck with Jessie's charms and innocent manner. Poachers, the chief of whom is Black Roderick, have been raiding the estate of Lord Cameron and Donald and his keepers have been prosecuting a vigorous search for them. Taking advantage of Donald's absence from home, Lord Sterling calls very frequently to see Jessie. One day he loses control of himself and embraces her. Donald, who has been searching the woods, comes across Black Roderick and upbraids him for his part in the poaching. Black Roderick, who has noticed for some time the relations between Jessie and Lord Sterling, arouses Donald's anger by telling him what has gone on and catching sight of the lovers strolling through the woods, he points them out to Donald. Donald rushes to the spot and upbraids Lord Sterling, whom he threatens with severe punishment. Donald even goes so far as to complain to Lord Cameron, denouncing Lord Sterling in the strongest terms.

That afternoon Donald accidentally comes across Black Roderick in the act of carrying away a deer which he has just shot. Rushing upon Roderick he attempts to capture him, but is arrested and at the trial Black Roderick Lord Sterling, who has been strolling through the woods, hears the shot and finds Donald apparently lifeless. As he is bending over the old man two of the keepers rush up and accuse him of the murder. Donald is removed to Lord Cameron's home where the physician finds a spark of life still in the body. Lord Sterling is arrested and at the trial Black Roderick appears and swears that he saw Lord Sterling fire the shot. As is the custom in the Highlands, the court is held in the library of Lord Cameron's house. Donald, upstairs in bed, revives and on asking what the excitement is about is told the facts. He immediately demands to be taken to the court room, and in spite of protests, appears before the Magistrate and accuses Black Roderick of poaching and of firing the shot which wounded him. Black Roderick escapes during the excitement, but is finally run down and captured.

PARAMOUNT.

THE PURSUIT OF THE PHANTOM (Bosworth—Five Parts).—Richard Alden, an artist, goes to Laguna, California, to paint the beautiful cliffs and shore which make this village one of the most talked-of-places in Southern California. There he meets a young lady from the city, and their acquaintance soon ripens into love. For a while all goes well, and the little, elfin sprite, a waif of the beach, who unknown to them, watches them from day to day and weaves the dreams of romance and fairyland about them, sees nothing but happiness. Soon, however, comes a young millionaire, and choosing between love and worldly ambition the young lady sails away with the millionaire, both questing for happiness along the paths of wealth and power. Broken-hearted the artist feels that his pursuit of happiness has been in vain. How the little waif of the beach, budding into womanhood, shows him the true path, and how in later years the son of the rich man and the daughter of the artist bring the two men together again in a stirring revelation of what life has meant to each of them, is told in the latter part of this play.

THE TYPHOON (N. Y. Motion Picture Corp.—Five Parts).—Tokoramo has been sent to Paris by his country to secure the plans of the French military forces. His work is interfered with by the visits to his office of Helene, a chorus girl with whom he has fallen in love. Helene has heartlessly thrown over her fiance Bernisky for the new and interesting Jap, and meanwhile Toko's countrymen in Paris have been informed by their spy of Helene's visits.

Tokoramo endeavors to keep Helene from coming because he is working day and night; but to no avail. She continues to visit his apartments against his wishes, and one day while there her rejected sweetheart forces his way past the servant into Toko's room. Toko quickly hides Helene behind a curtain, where she listens to her own denunciation and exposure from the lips of the man she has so lightly deserted. When Bernisky departs, Toko brings Helene from her hiding-place and bids her go forever, but she pleads passionately to remain. Toko will not listen and demands that she leave at once. Helene starts, and Toko, realizing how much he cares for her, calls her back. Then she refuses to stay, and in vehement denunciation tells him she will go back to Bernisky and laughs at him—calls him a "yellow rat" and bids him return to his yellow country from whence he came. This enrages Toko, and he strangles Helene to death and leaves her lying lifeless on his bed.

The remainder of the story shows graphically how Toko's countrymen rally for their country. Toko must do his work—one of them must plead guilty. This lot is chosen by Hironari, a mere boy, who is finally guillotined. In the end and as Toko has completed his work, he too dies, and the valuable papers are burned to escape detection just as the police are breaking into the apartment. The scene shows the vain sacrifice that has been made by the Japanese for the sake of Nippon."

MARTIN EDEN (Bosworth).—From a hard-won leadership of a hoodlum gang in Oakland, Cal., from a beach-comber's life in the South Seas, and from the inferno of the stoke-hole, Martin Eden, an unlearned sailor, wins his way to fame and fortune. But it is not until great odds have been conquered and much has been sacrified that the goal is reached. And then it is too late. The odds are ridicule, poverty and lack of education. The great sacrifice—love.

A chance meeting, in his hoodlum days, with Arthur Morse, a college man, proves the turning point of his life, for through him he meets Arthur's sister Ruth. This means the opening of a new world, and in the remaining reels of the play we see Martin's indomitable spirit and the development of his career.

He makes two picturesque friends. One is Russ Brissenden, a poet, who encourages Martin when he sorely needs it, though his taking the latter to the Socialists' meeting had unfortunate results for the cub reporter as well as for Martin. The other is Maria, his warm-hearted Portuguese landlady, whose wildest flight of imagination, "shoe all da roun' for da kids", Martin later is happily able to gratify.

A third figure comes now and then into Martin's life; beautiful, wistful Lizzie Connelly, who loves him and whom he pities but cannot love. As in so many lives, matters are at their lowest ebb before the tide turns. Martin is penniless and without food or warmth. He has had only one sale of a manuscript in the many months of unceasing endeavor. Brissenden is dead. Ruth, losing all faith, has broken their engagement and refuses to see him.

Then comes the sudden sweep of success, with publishers clamoring for his work and fame and wealth in his hand. But the tension that sustained him during his days of poverty and struggle breaks. Even Love, in the person of the repentant Ruth, knocks at his door in vain, and he sails for the South Seas, to find again, if he may, his old-time zest for life.

SUCH A LITTLE QUEEN (Five Parts).—The play deals with kings and queens of toy kingdoms and the trials which beset them in both the hard field of politics and the imaginative realm of romance. Anna Victoria, Queen of Herzegovina, exiled by reasons of political dissension, finds refuge in America. Stephen, the Debonair, King of Bosina, has also been dethroned, and also comes to America. As may be suspected, they are deeply in love, and their troubles spring from the political exigency which forbids their marriage. Both are penniless, and Anna drifts into a small flat in Harlem, while King Stephen goes to a cheap hotel. The deposed queen, seen in the kitchen of the flat, peeling potatoes, cooking chops, exploring the ice-box and learning the tricks of the dumbwaiter, provides many of the humorous moments of the film.

Of course, there can only be one result of the pressure of poverty. Both the king and queen are forced to go to work. Anna becomes a translator; Stephen a clerk. Their employer is Adolph Lauman, a millionaire meat-packer, who represents the American idea of the uselessness of thrones and all such regal nonsense. He takes particular pains to announce to the world that business alone counts with him; but before long his point of view changes he is willing to compromise. He believes his daughter has aspirations to shine in European society, and he conceives the notion of marrying her to the king, and then using his dollars and his hard-headed American business methods to win back the kingdom of Bosina for Stephen. The situation is both comic and pathetic, but Lauman's intentions are halted because the king is faithful to Anna, and moreover, the daughter is in love with a young American.

Anna returns from her stuffy Harlem flat to the glamour of a throne; Stephen is called back to Bosnia, and we are left with the promise that the sound of wedding bells will soon make the two little kingdoms one.

BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION CO.

THE AWAKENING (Three Parts—Balboa).—Herbert Randolph, son of a well-to-do country clergyman, becomes engaged to Matilda Rankin, prim, homely, prudish young woman of his home town. He has proposed to her more to gratify his parents than because of any real love for her. His ambition is to be an author. He finishes his first novel and carries the manuscript to the city to a publisher. The editor of the publishing house to which he first submits it turns it back, telling him that his characters lack reality and naturalness, and calling special attention to a passage in which he portrays the lover experiencing his first thrill of love by kissing the heroine on the forehead, which is the limit of Herbert's own experience.

Jane Conway, a reader in the publisher's office, has seen Herbert and becomes interested in him, believing that he has talent. She takes it upon herself to call upon him and offers to assist him in revising his novel, and he very gratefully accepts her assistance. She learns of his engagement to Matilda, sees her picture, and realizes not only that Herbert does not love her, but that with such a woman for a wife he can never hope to succeed in a literary career. Matilda and her mother come to the city, and Jane determines for Herbert's sake to break the engagement. Jane has an apartment below that of Herbert's in the same house, and while he is out one evening with Matilda and her mother, she gets into his room and places cards, chips, wine bottles and a pair of her gloves and slippers about the room. Herbert brings Matilda and her mother back to his apartment for some refreshments, after their evening's outing, and the two woman discover the suspicious evidence of a gay life that Jane has placed in the room. The two prim women are shocked.

Matilda, ignoring Herbert's protestations of innocence, gives him back his ring and she and her mother depart in great indignation. Jane, who has been watching the scene outside the French window, falls into the room. Herbert accuses her of the plot, and she admits it, much to Herbert's amazement. Later she comes back for her things, finds him on the couch, and kisses him, and runs out. Herbert has been sensibly falling in love with Jane and this kiss in his sleep awakens him to the full realization of his feelings, and under this inspiration he revises his story and does it so well that it is promptly accepted. Jane in the meantime, fearing that she has gone too far and that she has offended Herbert, makes it a point to avoid meeting him, not realizing that he has fallen in love with her as she has with him. When he receives the letter from the publisher telling him of his acceptance of his manuscript, he takes it to Jane to thank her for her share in the good luck. He finds her asleep in a chair, and kisses her, thus revealing to her his love for her.

SEEDS OF JEALOUSY (Three Parts).—Hardin, a young banker, entertains his rich friends with an elaborate lawn party. During the festivities they hear the strains of the street singers music from over the garden wall; they call the players in, a performance is given. Harding is infatuated with the youngest Italian dancer; he serves them with refreshments, attending to the girl himself. They leave.

Some time later, while riding in a taxi, he sees the street dancers again performing upon the street; he mingles with the crowd watching them. He takes out a card and writes upon it. When the young girl comes with her tambourine he drops the note into it and disappears into the crowd. The note asks for a meeting in his garden that evening. She goes to him; he makes love to her, and she takes it as an insult but he asks her to marry him. They marry.

Six months later he gives a big ball in her honor. She has ordered an exquisite gown to represent Night. He pleads with her to put on the street singer's dress. She does so. At the ball she sees him kiss a masked blonde. She plans revenge, changes her mind and rushes sobbing upstairs to her boudoir. She packs her things and leaves while the ball is still in progress. She sails to London and meets a band of street singers on the street. She joins them. Later a grand opera manager passes, and is struck by her beautiful voice. He gives her his card. The next day she goes to his office and signs the contract offered her.

Four years later as a great diva she gives a concert in America. The young banker attends the concert and recognizes her. She leaves the stage trembling. Hardin comes to her dressing room and pleads for her to return. She refuses haughtily. She regrets the decision, however, and hastily dons a simple gown. Next scenes shows the evening in the garden. Hardin sits bowed upon a seat among the flowers. Louisiana comes to him. They are reconciled. She takes her wedding ring from a chain around her neck. He puts it on her finger and kisses her.

RAMO.

THE WAR OF WARS, OR THE FRANCO-GERMAN INVASION OF 1914.—Near the Southeastern border of France, stands a fine old French mansion which is known for miles around as the Chauteau de Grandpre. Here lives the last of the family—Hugo de Grandpre, a young French officer, and his two beautiful sisters, Yvonne and Babiole. The beauty of Yvonne, the elder sister, is so widely famed among the neighbors that even Bobeche, the village innkeeper, whose wife, Marie, was Yvonne's foster sister, has ventured to conceive a passion for the high-born girl. The village lies directly in the line of German invasion; the Chauteau de Grandpre is the first place which the German invaders occupy. War is declared. German officers seize the Chauteau. Among them is a wild young lieutenant, Eric von Rodek, known in his mess as "The Babe." An untutored cub, he proceeds to play frantic tricks in the country house, breaking the family statuary, shooting out the eyes of the family portraits, insulting the priest of the family, and inviting a bevy of dancing-girls to sup at the family dining-table. Yvonne de Grandpre takes him sternly to task. She throws a glass of wine in his face. He determines to have revenge on her. He finds her in the village inn at a moment when Bobeche, the innkeeper, is in the wine cellar, and he attacks her violently. But Eric, though wild, is not bad at heart. He listens to Yvonne's appeal and spares her. He leaves her fainting. Bobeche, coming from the wine cellar, sees his chance. The innkeeper, in turn, is about to assail the unconscious girl. Eric returns in time to prevent the assault. He struggles with Bobeche, stabs him, throws him dead at Yvonne's feet and goes. The discovery of the murder raises a turmoil. The villagers make complaint to General von Brandenburg, commanding the German forces. The General institutes an inquiry. Eric is accused. Eric admits that he killed the innkeeper. Fearing to compromise Yvonne, he refuses to say why he did it. Yvonne, standing in a curtained gallery, with her sister Babiole, and with Marie, wife of Bobeche, her foster-sister, overhears his confession. She believes that Eric actually carried out his original purpose and that Bobeche died in defence of her. Yvonne makes up her mind to take the law into her own hands. Yvonne draws a knife and stabs Eric. Then she relents. Eric is not dead. Unknown to her fierce brother Hugo, Yvonne nurses Eric back to life. Eric rejoins his regiment. To him, as atonement for his misdeeds, is allotted the dangerous and possibly fatal task of blowing up one of the frontier bridges. Yvonne's love is now so great that she has grown reckless of her family and her country. Hugo, her brother, learns what she has done. He has her dragged before a court-martial. He incites the court to condemn her to death. She is on the point of being executed when Eric returns in force. Yvonne is saved. Eric and Yvonne await the hour when the restoration of peace shall bring them together, and time shall obliterate the memory of "The War of Wars" and the terrible events of 1914.

GENERAL FILM CO.

IN THE GLARE OF THE LIGHTS (Essanay—Three Parts).—Glen Duval, a worker in the steel mills, desires to become an actor. In the same mill with him is Joe Brandigan, who is insanely jealous of Glen because of the fact that Joe's sweetheart, Martha Stedman, appears to like young Duval too much. However, Glen does not care for Martha otherwise than as a friend. One morning on his way to work Glen finds the unconscious form of Wanda Dawson, the actress, by the railroad tracks. Later developments explain that Wanda left her train which had broken down to gather flowers by the road. The train departed without her and she wandered alone all night, at last falling exhausted by the track. Glen takes her home, where he and his aunt, Edith, revive her.

That evening when Glen returns from the mill, he tells Wanda of his ambitions for the stage. She likes his appearance very much and encourages him. Wanda's manager then appears and engages Glen as an actor. On the stage, Glen falls in love with Wanda, but is afraid to declare his love because his position is so much below her's. After a time Glen's chance comes. He had understudied Bland, the star. One evening Bland is unable to appear. The manager seized upon Glen as a last resort. Glen's work is a great success. Bland, in the meantime, proposes that Wanda become his leading lady in a new play he is to produce. She listens, realizing that now is her chance to become famous. She accedes to his suggestion and, just as Glen enters the room to tell her of his love, Bland takes her in his arms. Glen denounces both her and the stage and returns home heartbroken.

Back in the steel mills Joe Brandigan has become foreman. He has not succeeded in overcoming his jealousy of Glen, although he gives the latter a job. The job is not an easy one, however, for Joe drives Glen at every opportunity. Glen stands for the hazing, but at last resentment of it all surges in him and he determines to demand an explanation. The two men meet in the glare of the big blazing furnace. Joe tells Glen of his jealousy, and the latter, momentarily crazed, springs upon his tormentor. A terrific battle ensues in front of the furnaces. Glen gets the best of Joe and is about to hurl the unconscious man into the burning pit when Joe's little son enters. Glen sees the child and realizes that he is about to commit a terrible crime. He drops the unconscious form of Joe and takes the little child in his arms. Wanda comes to the town, meets Glen, and a reconciliation is effected.

THE RED CROSS NURSE (Columbus—Three Parts—Oct. 19).—Yvette de Breuil, an orphan, receives a legacy amounting to $5,000 from the estate of her father. With this money she takes up aviation. At the aviation school she meets and finally becomes engaged to Serge Daniloff, the son of the commanding officer of the Servian army. The young officer writes his father that he is engaged to the beautiful young French aviatress and instead of receiving his father's congratulations, he is told that a Servian officer can marry none but a Servian girl, and furthermore as Turkey and Servia have declared war he must join his regiment at once. Yvette in order to be as near her fiancee as possible, enlists in the Red Cross Society and starts immediately for the front.

Pietro, General Daniloff's trusted servant, is a Turkish spy and having overheard the Servian army's plans starts to inform the Turkish authorities. He is successful and is entrusted to take a message containing the information he has stolen to the commander of the Turkish outposts. While on this perilous mission he is shot by a Servian outpost and taken to the field hospital, where Yvette is detailed to attend to his wounds. In his delirium he mentions the fact that he has an important paper which must be delivered to the Turkish commander. Yvette, realizing he is not a Turk, believes he must be a spy, so searches his clothing. She discovers a letter containing the positions of the Servian army as well as one ordering all Turkish troops to assist the bearer of this letter in every way. She knows what it would mean to her lover and his father should the Turkish commander receive this document, so putting it in the sleeve of her uniform she starts for the Servian lines. She is captured by a Turkish outpost who brings her before their commander. He takes no chances and has her put in prison as a spy. Her guard, happy in the thought that the prisoner is only a woman, is not overcautious. She realizes this and upon one of his visits she throws her cape over his head and escapes, only to be discovered by the sentries, who demand her to stop, but thinking only of her lover, she vaults from a high bridge into a river, swims ashore and going to the cavalry stable steals an officer's horse.

Well on her way, she meets a small body of Turkish cavalry who pursue her. One of them overtakes her and in the fight to unseat her, both she and the soldier are thrown from their horses. The soldier is killed, but she is merely stunned and keeping her nerve, puts on the dead soldier's uniform, thereby escaping the rest of the squad who were in the chase. Yvette decides the safest way to deliver the message is by aeroplane so she goes to the Turkish aviation camp where she produces the letter from the Turkish general stating the bearer of the letter is to receive all possible assistance from the Turkish troops. She is immediately given an aeroplane and when about to land within the Servian lines is taken for a Turkish officer and fired upon. She is saved from being injured due to the machine being protected by armor. Yvette is taken before General Daniloff and when his son recognizes her, he is ready to take her in his arms, but the old general orders him to "attention." Upon learning what she has accomplished the general takes her in his own arms and is very willing that his son marry such a brave girl as she has proved herself to be, even though she is not a Servian.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

OPERATOR.—Powers' latest standard machine; Hallberg economizer; seeks engagement. Fifteen dollars week. Pathe latest machine complete, guaranteed; will take fifty dollars. HARRY STOCKER, 11 West 34th St., Bayonne, N. J.

EXCHANGE MANAGER.—At liberty for Chicago territory. Would prefer representative position for responsible feature concern or will handle productions on brokerage basis. References exchanged. Address Exchange, c/o M. P. World, Chicago, Ill.

CAMERAMAN, with own camera wants position to make local events and help around theater. Address B. V., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

VAUDEVILLE AND PICTURE PIANIST.—At liberty; expert. Best of references; ticket. PAUL RAYNOL, Gen. Delivery, Waterloo, Iowa.

CAMERAMAN.—Expert photographer (sixth year), understanding own laboratory work, wishes to make immediate connection with responsible firm or one just starting. First class offers only considered. J. J. P., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

THEATER MANAGER desires position. Held last position four years. Eight years of expeperience. Best of reference. Will go anywhere. Address O. K., care Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

HELP WANTED.

SALESMAN.—Good proposition for man with wide acquaintance among producers. One who can influence film printing and developing for first class laboratory. Address MANUFACTURER, care Moving Picture World, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

WANTED.—Live manager, well recommended, with one or two thousand cash, for partnership. Good mid-western town, ten thousand population. Sure money maker. A. C., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

MOVING PICTURE SUPPLY AGENTS can secure a large income without risk. A highly profitable article, indispensable for all moving picture theaters. No previous experience required. Information furnished free of charge by A. Z., care Moving Pic. World, N. Y. City.

THEATERS WANTED.

REPRESENTING BIG INTERESTS in the photoplay industry in the United States, we are desirous of obtaining a number of theaters now in operation or to be built, with seating capacity of 600 or over in the various cities of the country. Only grade A houses will be considered. SYDCO AMUSEMENT CO., 331 Madison Ave., New York City.

WANTED.—Picture show in Illinois or Iowa. Must seat over 500. Address C. C., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

THEATERS WANTED.—Do you want to sell your theater? Write us, giving full invoice and your lowest cash price, also terms with one-half to two-thirds down. We can sell your place in a hurry if it is right. We have buyers for theaters in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and Nebraska. Unique Amusement Supply Co., Over 117 First Avenue, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

WANTED.—To lease picture theater in town of two to five thousand population. Box 509, Oxford, North Carolina.

TO LEASE.—Man and wife with nine years' experience desire to lease a good picture theater. Any city considered, but theater must have capacity of 300 or more. Or will equip opera house for pictures at their expense if opportunity is good. Gilt edge references. Agents save stamps. J. C. WOODWORTH, Ishpeming, Michigan.

WANTED.—To rent or lease theater 500 or more seats. State all first letter. PHOTO, 15 E. State St., Trenton, New Jersey.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE.—First class moving picture theater in Central Pennsylvania, seating 500; fully equipped; two machines; only two theaters in town; population, 15,000. Doing profitable business, $75 to $100 a week. Address T. O., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

THEATRE FOR SALE.—New theatre fully equipped in Connecticut town, population 19,000. Good lease with option. Rent only $75 month. Small expenses two competitors. $2,000 takes it as owner has other interests. Address George Lester, Gen. Del., Hartford, Conn.

FOR SALE at cost, fully and best equipped moving picture theater. Six months old and adjoining building; capacity about 800; doing good business. Will not rent. Chance of a lifetime if you have real big money. Owner going West. Add. Roman Theater, Pittston, Pa.

THEATER.—300 seats, family patronage in growing Chicago neighborhood. Clearing $75 a week; no competition; good lease; $5,000. Open to rigid investigation. P. S., 428 So. Harvey Ave., Oak Park, Ill.

THEATER.—400 seats; only colored house in a city of 18,000. All new equipment; a bargain. Address J. W. T., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE.—One picture show in town of 8,000, seating 300; have own electric plant; open 7 days a week; making $75 to $100 per week. Don't bother me unless you mean business and have the money. Pickers lay off. C. C. Haddox, Kenton, Ohio.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES.—For one, three and six sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. The Newman Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, O. 101 4th Ave., N. Y.

WRITE the Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo., for seats and moving picture machines of all kinds, as they always have some slightly used goods in stock for immediate shipment and sell them at bargain prices.

GET YOUR CHAIRS.—And theatre equipment at cut prices, used chairs 50 cents up, new chairs, $1 up. Tell me your wants, I can save you money. Jos. P. Redington, Scranton, Pa.

FOR SALE.—Powers 6A machine complete, used a few weeks, perfect condition, $175. Edison type "B" used 4 months guaranteed $85. Standard No. 4 complete equipment, slightly used, $70. Rebuilt Edison Ex. models and Powers No. 5 of quality, $50 and up. We sell new machines and take old outfits in part payment. Stelzer Bros., 417 Broadway, Lincoln, Ill.

FOR SALE.—Or will exchange for first quality opera chairs, Eberhard Schneider Junior Professional Camera No. 70. New used four times. Write for list of extras. Rip Van Winkle Film Co., Stamford in the Catskills, N. Y.

SLIDES.—American flag, 20c; other stock slides, 15c. RELIABLE SLIDE CO., 231 North Eighth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

CHEAP.—Mirroid screen, 13x17, new; asbestos booth 8x12; 2 flaming arc lamps. Box 369, Canton, Ohio.

6-A POWERS MACHINE complete; Edison transformer; used four weeks; guaranteed like new; $200. H. E., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

COMPLETE.—Moving picture outfit, double asbestos booth, 2-piece mirror screen, 6x9 each. Haffners, 34 Boulevard, North Beach, N. Y.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.—Tripods, lenses. Repairing all makes. R. W. PITTMAN, 50 West St., New York City.

FILMS WANTED.

I WISH to correspond with any manufacturer of films or releasing agents in a position to furnish one four to six-reel feature each day. Address P. O. Box 857, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WANTED.—One or more first class feature films to book in Indiana on salary or commission. If your films are not first class save stamps. References and bond. C. E. HILL, 412 North Main St., Sullivan, Ind.

CAN USE some more three-reel wild animal features with good action. Must come subject to examination on screen. Will guarantee express charges. Give title, make and release date. A. L. Brown, Orpheum Theater, Lansing, Michigan.

PICTURES BOUGHT for cash. Cash will be paid for good single or multiple reel pictures that have not been shown and on which exclusive rights can be given. Screen demonstration required. E. W. R., Room 1008, Singer Bldg., New York City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE.—Two hundred reels film with posters, $2.50 each and up. Also second hand machines. Bargain prices. Wichita Film & Supply Co., Wichita, Kans.

FOR SALE.—New Copy of the Balkan War in three reels including heralds. Scenic Banner and plenty of paper. A very timely subject on the present European crisis. Price, $110, $25 with order. Balance, C. O. D. on inspection. Address M. H. Livingston, 609 Fairholm Ave., Peoria, Ill.

WALLA WALLA FRONTIER DAYS CELEBRATION.—In motion pictures, all the wonderful feats and interesting characters of this great western country, beautifully filmed exclusively by us, in three reels. Price, $195. Release Oct. 1. Open territory. H. C. Hauok, 309 Swetland Bldg., Portland, Ore.

BARGAIN.—Three-reel feature, "Million Dollar Pearl Mystery; or the Stolen Necklace." Perfect condition. With all mounted advertising paper, 1-3-6 sheets, and photos; $100. D. Rosin, 412 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

SACRIFICE my two features for quick sale. "Victory or Death," 4 reels; "Gambler's Revenge," 4 reels. Plenty of paper, photos, etc. Sent subject to examination on deposit of express charges. John P. Spang, 4532 Champlain Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

FEATURES FOR SALE.—Three and 4-reel subjects. All A-1 condition, with all kinds of advertising matter, photos, heralds, slides, etc. Send for bargain list. R. Levine, 642 West 64th St., Chicago, Illinois.

FILMS in excellent condition, all with posters; $2 to $10 per reel; two-reel 101 Bisons, $25; Keystone comedies, $15. Films shipped subject to examination and partial acceptance if express charges are guaranteed by express company. Enterprise Film Co., Houston, Tex.

FOR SALE.—Helen Gardner in "A Sister to Carmen," four parts, for Michigan, Northern Indiana. Excellent condition, including mounted paper, photos and banner. Address J. H. Dargusch, 621 South Main St., Piqua, Ohio.

BUSINESS CHANCE.—Feature films with full advertising shown in but few towns; big bargain for cash. Would consider trade. Box 137, Anderson, Ind.

FOR RENT.—Passion films, four parts, colored; guaranteed. Biblical subjects wanted. Lectures free. LUBACK, 1109 Manhattan Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

DRUMS.—Complete set at a bargain. For description write The Elite Theater, Somonauk, Illinois.

SET DEAGAN MUSICAL BELLS.—Wurlitzer style C orchestrian, best of condition; will sell cheap for cash. Box 137, Anderson, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED.—To locate E. C. Maloney, who has our two-reel South Pole film. Feature Film Co., St. Paul, Minn.

60 STYLE SIGNS for moving picture theaters. Samples mailed free. Cut prices. We pay express charges anywhere. JORDAN SHOW PRINT, 320 W. Superior St., Chicago, Ill.

SEE ME FIRST before building your theater. Moving picture theaters a specialty. T. John Folks, Architect, Second National Bank Bldg., Paterson, N. J.

WE ARE PURCHASERS of all Apex Features for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and the best of the other releases. Book now.

THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, $35.00. SEALED ORDERS, $50.00. EAST LYNNE, $40.00. BLACK TRIANGLE, $35.00. ENGLAND'S MENACE, $25.00. VAMPIRES OF THE NIGHT, $25.00.

If you want to know the names of the Apexes, look up the late issues of this paper.

Book "CALLED TO THE FRONT, or EUROPE AT WAR," 3 reels, wonderful paper.

All films released since June 1st passed by the censors.

Best commercial service in the United States. Write us.

Machines and chairs of all kinds, prompt shipments—⅝ x 12 cored carbons, $19.00 per 100, ⅝ x 10 Bio or Electra $16.50 per 100, cash with order.

LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO.
105 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

REGULAR RELEASES TWICE EACH MONTH

CARLSON'S

Cartoons of JOE BOKO'S Adventures in the BIG LEAGUE

REGULAR RELEASES EVERY SATURDAY

BLACK AND WHITE

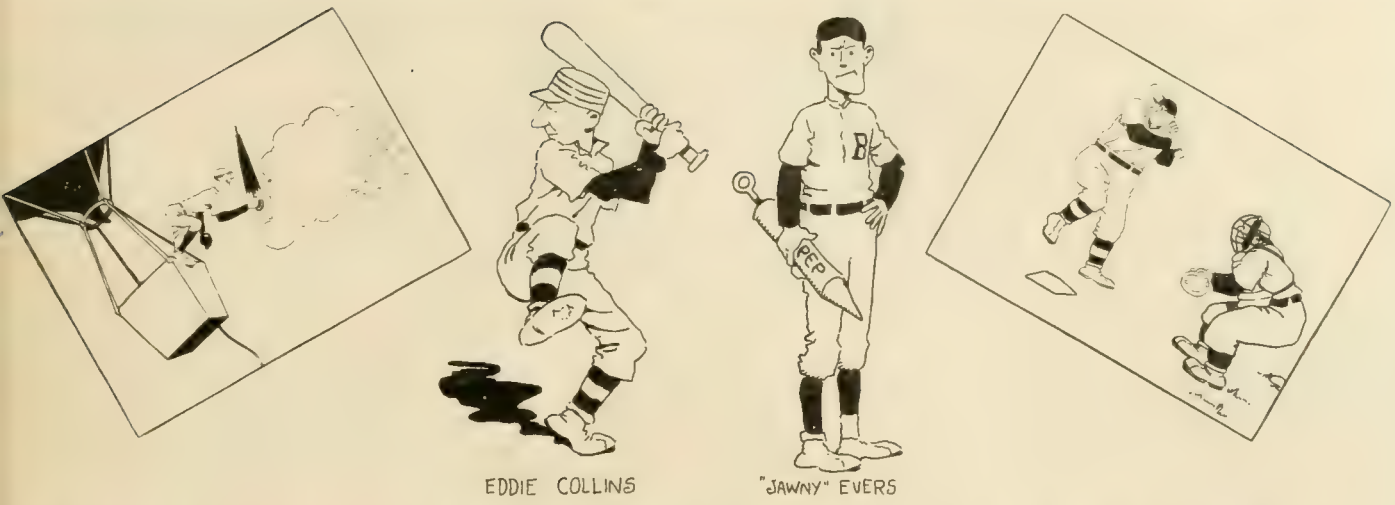
Featuring the Well-Known Negro Comedians, BERT MURPHY, FRANK MONTGOMERY and FLORENCE McCLAIN

Sample copies gladly submitted to prospective purchasers for unsold territory

Complete programs furnished exhibitors who desire NOVELTY AND AMUSEMENT VALUE for service (rental) in unsold territory—either one day each week or fortnightly.

Historical Feature Film Co.

105 WEST MONROE ST., CHICAGO



NOVELTY and AMUSEMENT VALUE

Baseball Cartoons by THE Artist of Sports

CARLSON

(Formerly with CHICAGO INTEROCEAN)

We offer, to be released within 24 hours after the last game, Carlson's animated Cartoons of the World's Baseball Series of 1914

(ACTUAL PLAYERS)

This will draw in any theatre daily for one to four weeks. Between 500 and 600 feet. Every foot a laugh.

This will be sold outright, not rented; price $50.00. Not more than one copy sold to any town with population less than 25,000.

Rights reserved to reject any order.

Historical Feature Film Co.

105 WEST MONROE ST., CHICAGO

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS 178
ALLIANCE PROGRAM, THE..... 166

BAUM, L. FRANK..... 201
BRITISH NOTES 171

CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES.. 212
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES. 214
CENTAUR ACTIVITIES 175
CHICAGO LETTER 176
COMMENTS ON THE FILM (Licensed).. 187
COMMENTS ON THE FILM (Independent). 188

"DAPHNIA" (American) 191
DOINGS AT LOS ANGELES..... 198

EXHIBITORS' NEWS 209

FACTS AND COMMENTS 159
FLORIDA LEAGUE CONVENTION..... 172
FEATURE FILM STORIES..... 250

GORDON, JAMES, BACK FROM BERMUDA. 168

HOW PUPILS LEARN PRODUCTS..... 190

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES..... 240
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES..... 262

"KATANA, THE OATH OF THE SWORD" (Sawyer) 200
"KITTY COBB" (Warner's)..... 194

LOCKWOOD, HAROLD 194
"LURE OF THE YUKON, THE" (Picture Playhouse) 195
LICENSED FILM STORIES..... 223
LICENSED RELEASE DATES..... 260

MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES...202
MARTIN, VIVIAN 200
MASTERPIECE FILM MEN..... 171
MAX LINDER REPORTED KILLED..... 170
"MIDNIGHT RIDE OF PAUL REVERE, THE" (Edison) 193
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, THE.... 172
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR..... 176

NEW COLUMBUS BRAND..... 197
"NIGHTINGALE, THE" (All Star)..... 192

OBSERVATIONS BY MAN ABOUT TOWN. 174

PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE. 180
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT. 182

"RESCUE OF STEFANSSON SURVIVORS" (Sunset) 167
REISINGER, HUGO, DIES IN GERMANY. 165

SAN FRANCISCO HAPPENINGS..... 199
STEADMAN, MYRTLE 201
STRANGE STORY FROM TENNESSEE.... 165
STRONG SCREEN SUBJECTS..... 160
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed).... 223
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent).. 240
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Features)..... 250

THEODORE WHARTON IN TOWN..... 171

WAR TAX AROUSES THEATRICAL MEN. 161
WARWICK, ROBERT 199

TO ADVERTISERS.

ASBESTOS SUPPLIES.
JOHNS, H. W. MANVILLE CO..... 266

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO..... 268
BELL & HOWELL..... 268
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO..... 266
CORCORAN, A. J..... 238
DETROIT ENGINE WORKS..... 269
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO..... 268
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS..... 242
FULTON, E. E..... 238
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO..... 261
HALLBERG, J. H..... 228
HOKE, GEO. M., SUPPLY CO..... 238
PICTURE THEATER EQUIPMENT CO.... 264
L. C. SMITH & CO..... 268
STRELINGER, CHAS. A..... 238

CARBONS AND ACCESSORIES.
ADVANCE THEATRICAL EXCHANGE.... 237
CARBON ECONOMIZER CO..... 237
HERZBERG, W. F..... 269
HOMMELL, LUDWIG & CO..... 238

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURE FILMS.
ALBUQUERQUE FILM CO..... 266
ALCO FILM CORP.....244-45
ALL STAR FEATURE CORP..... 141
ALLIANCE FILM CORP.....232-33
APEX FILM CO..... 225
ARCTIC FILM CO..... 224
BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION CO..... 142
CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CO..... 241
COSMOS FEATURE FILM CORP..... 249
COSMOFOTOFILM CO. 239
ECLECTIC FILM CO..... 146
EXCELSIOR FEATURE FILM CO., INC.. 234
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO..... 134
FAVORITE PLAYERS FILM CO., INC.... 236
FOREIGN FILM CORP..... 267
GENERAL FEATURE FILM CO..... 242
HISTORICAL FEATURE FILM CO.....256-57
I. S. P. CO..... 227
LASKY, JESSE L., FEATURE PLAY CO.. 127
K. & S. FEATURE FILM CO..... 247
MASTERPIECE FILM MFG. CO..... 136
NEILSEN, F. O..... 265
OZ FILM MFG. CO..... 135
PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORP..... 226
PLAYGOERS FILM CO..... 229
RENFAX MUSICAL MOTION PICTURE CO. 241
SAWYER, INC. 138-39
SELECT FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO., INC. 235
SHERRY, WM. L., FEATURE FILM CO... 243
U. S. FEATURE FILM CO..... 265
WARNER'S FEATURES. 219-22
WARNER, S. L., FILM CO..... 140
WHITMAN FEATURE FILM CO., THE.... 144
WORLD FILM CORPORATION.144, 145, 150, 151

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
BAUSCH & LOMB OPTICAL CO..... 259

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
BIOGRAPH 213
COLUMBUS FILM CO..... 148
EDISON, THOS. A., INC..... 156
ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.....130-31
KALEM CO. 149, 158
KLEINE, GEO. 152-53
LUBIN MFG. CO.....154-55
PATHE 147
SELIG-POLYSCOPE CO. 271
VITAGRAPH OF AMERICA..... 157

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
MAJESTIC MOTION PICTURE CO..... 270
NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CORP..132-33
THANHOUSER FILM CORP..... 126
UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.....128-29

MISCELLANEOUS.
ANGELUS STUDIOS 268
BOON SCENIC STUDIOS..... 259
BOTANICAL DECORATING CO..... 268
CENTAUR FILM CO..... 265
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS. 255
EASTMAN KODAK CO..... 259
ECONOMY FILM CO..... 237
ERNEMANN PHOTO-KINO WORKS..... 238
GUNBY BROTHERS. 242
HOLCOMB & HOKE MFG. CO..... 264
INDUSTRIAL MOTION PICTURE CO..... 268
KRAUS MFG. CO..... 251
LEARS THEATER SUPPLY CO..... 269
M. W. B., CARE M. P. WORLD..... 243
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO..... 238
NATIONAL TICKET CO..... 262
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO..... 269
OPPENHEIMER PRINTING CO..... 267
PENNSYLVANIA EXHIBITORS 263
PREDDEY, W. G..... 268
SCENARIOS CRITICISED 231
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE CO..... 238
STERNLOW, CARL E. FR..... 247
STOCKTON'S SCRIPTWRITING SERVICE. 267
TRENDLE, GEO. W..... 238
TRIPLETT, J. M..... 268
WILLATT STUDIOS & LABORATORIES.. 143
WYANOAK PUBLISHING CO..... 265

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA MANUFACTURERS.
GENNERT, G. 251
SCHNEIDER, EBERHARD. 238

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
DEAGAN, J. C..... 231
SEEBURG, J. P., PIANO CO..... 259
SINN, CLARENCE E..... 267

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO..... 269
ANDREWS, A. H. CO..... 269
BENNETT SEATING CO..... 269
HARDESTY MFG. CO..... 269
STEEL FURNITURE CO..... 269
WISCONSIN SEATING CO..... 269

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO..... 212
MENGER & RING..... 231
MURRAY, GEO. H..... 137
NEWMAN MFG. CO..... 242
THEATER SPECIALTY MFG. CO..... 237

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO..... 251
PRECISION MACHINE CO..... 215
PHANTOSCOPE CO..... 263
POWER, NICHOLAS CO..... 272

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
DAY & NIGHT SCREEN CO..... 251
GENTER, J. H..... 249
INTERNATIONAL MOON SCREEN CO.... 268
MIRROR SCREEN CO..... 258

SONG AND ADVERTISING SLIDES.
ERKER BROS. 266
NIAGARA SLIDE CO..... 242
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO..... 266

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO..... 267

FILM EXCHANGES.
APEX FEATURE SERVICE..... 230
BRADENBURGH, G. W..... 268
CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO..... 269
GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO. 260
LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO..... 255
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE.... 231
WESTERN FILM BROKERS..... 238

Manufacturers of the Wonderful

REMBUSCH PATENTED GLASS MIRROR SCREEN

And all other kinds of Curtains for Moving Picture Projection, White Opaque, Glass Transparent Screens for Rear Projection, Goldcloth Fibre Screens, Mirrorcloth Fibre Screens, Seamless with Stretchers or Rollers.

Phone Seven-Eleven F. J. REMBUSCH, Pres.

MIRROR SCREEN COMPANY, INC.
SHELBYVILLE, INDIANA

The Glass Mirror Screen reflects the picture entirely by Diffuse Reflection. Send for my booklet explaining the philosophy of screens. You will learn something.

Nine different finishes. For wide or narrow houses.

FRANK MANNING, Eastern Representative. No. 125 West 48th Street. Phone: Bryant 2416

SEEBURG "MOTION PICTURE PLAYER"

It has solved one of the Big Problems of the Moving Picture Business.

Played either manually or automatically, it produces real music for the pictures.

"The Wonder of them all"

Get Complete Information on it by Addressing

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO., Manufacturers, 209 S. Republic Building STATE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

No matter how thrilling a story one may read, interest is not sustained if poor type, poor paper and poor press work make hard work for the eyes. It's the same with motion pictures. A clear picture is as necessary as a good scenario.

Because the basic product is right, the clearest pictures are on "Eastman" film. Look for the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Increase Picture Quality Increase Your Profits

Picture patrons are critical of the films you show them. They know good quality, and they go where it is found. Along with good film service, you must have efficient lens equipment to hold your steady patrons. One sure way is to use

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

The finest detail in every picture thrown on the screen together with illumination of the utmost brilliancy are assured when Bausch & Lomb objectives are used.

Regularly supplied with Edison and Nicholas Power Machines.

Send for our interesting free booklet for owners and operators.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL ST., ROCHESTER, N. Y.

15 DAYS ONLY—SCENERY—15 DAYS ONLY

GARDEN DROPS, STREET DROPS, ROCKY-PASS DROPS, PALACE SCENES
PLAIN CHAMBERS, CENTER DOOR FANCY INTERIORS, KITCHENS, PRISONS, ETC.

Made in ANY SIZE, on the best of materials, and painted by our most competent artists, in either WATER COLOR or BRILLIANT DYES.

AT ONLY 6c. per Square Foot

Remember, this offer lasts for 15 DAYS ONLY. ALL ORDERS must reach us BEFORE OCT. 18.

DON'T DELAY. This opportunity to buy BOON SCENERY at this LOW FIGURE may never occur again. It is made ONLY to test the Advertising Power of the Moving Picture World. WE POSITIVELY REFUSE to fill an order, at this price, unless a reference to this magazine is made when answering this advertisement.

TERMS: One-third of amount with order; balance C. O. D., with privilege of Thorough Inspection.

BOON SCENIC STUDIOS, Hicksville, Ohio

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Pathe, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Geo. Kleine, Lubin, Columbus, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph.

Thursday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Columbus, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Lubin, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Sept. 26—The Gold Thief (Drama).....
Sept. 28—A First Class Cook (Comedy).....
—The White Hand Society (Comedy)..
Sept. 29—The Derelicts (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 1—The Spirit of Jealousy (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Peasant's Lie (Drama).....
Oct. 3—The New Road's Mascot (Drama).....
Oct. 5—The Borrowed Cook (Drama).....
Oct. 6—Gwendolin (Special—Two Parts—Dr.).
Oct. 8—Their Little Drudge (Drama).....
Oct. 9—They Were College Boys (Comedy)..
—The Man Hunters (Comedy).....
Oct. 10—His Mother's Home (Drama).....

COLUMBUS.

Oct. 6—What Would You Do? (Comedy)....
Oct. 8—The New Apprentice (Comedy).....
—Kissing Germ (Comedy).....

EDISON.

Sept. 26—Twins and Trouble (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—Love By the Pound (Tenth of the Wood B. Wedd Series)—(Comedy)
Sept. 29—The Mystery of the Glass Tubes (Eleventh of the Chronicles of Cleek Series—Drama) .....
Sept. 30—Buster Brown Gets the Worst of It (Comedy) .....
—In a Prohibition Town (Comedy)....
Oct. 2—The Poisoned Bit (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 3—A Transplanted Prairie Flower (Drama) .....
Oct. 5—Father's Beard (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—Greater Love Hath No Man (Drama)..
Oct. 7—Seth's Sweetheart (Comedy).....
Oct. 9—The Long Way (Special—Three Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 10—A Fragment of Ash (Drama).....
Oct. 12—Buster Brown's Education (Comedy)..
George Washington Jones (Comedy)....
Oct. 13—The Letter That Never Came Out (Drama) .....
Oct. 14—Andy and the Redskins (Eleventh of the Andy Series)—(Comedy).....
Oct. 16 On the Isle of Sarne (Special—Two Parts—Comedy-Drama) .....
Oct. 17—The Case of the Vanished Bonds (Dr.)

ESSANAY.

Sept. 26—The Strategy of Broncho Billy's Sweetheart (Drama).....
Sept. 28—Sweedie's Clean-Up (Comedy).....
Sept. 29—White Lies (Drama).....
Sept. 30—The Fable of "The Adult Girl Who Got Busy" (Comedy).....
Oct. 1—Slippery Slim Gets Cured (Comedy)..
Oct. 2—Golf Champion "Chick" Evans Links With Sweedie (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—Broncho Billy Trapped (Western Drama) .....
Oct. 5—The Fickleness of Sweedie (Comedy)..
Oct. 6—The Verdict (Drama) .....
Oct. 7—The Fable of "The Family That Did Too Much For Nellie" (Comedy).....
Oct. 8—When Slippery Slim Met the Champion (Comedy) .....
Oct. 9—The Real Agatha (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 10—Broncho Billy and the Greaser (Drama)
Oct. 12—Sweedie Learns to Swim (Comedy)...
Oct. 13—Through Eyes of Love (Drama).....
Oct. 14—The Fable of "The Author and the Dear Public and the Plate of Mush" (Comedy) .....
Oct. 15—Snakeville's Peacemaker (Comedy)....
Oct. 16—The Other Man (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 17—Broncho Billy Rewarded (Drama)....

KALEM.

Sept. 26—Rory O'Moore (Drama).....
Sept. 28—The Viper (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 29—Grouch, the Engineer (Drama).....
Sept. 30—The Ex-Convict (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
—Food For the Dogs of War (Educational) .....
Oct. 2—The Slavery of Foxicus (Comedy)....
Oct. 3—The Legend of the Amulet (Drama)..
Oct. 5—The Dancer (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 6—For the Love of Mike (Comedy).....
—Hesanut Hunts Wild Game (Comedy)..
Oct. 7—The Lost Mail Sack (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 9—The Tattered Duke (Comedy).....
Oct. 10—Fate's Midnight Hour (Drama).....
Oct. 12—The Girl and the Stowaway (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Oct. 13—Percy Pimpernickel—Soubrette (Com.)
Oct. 14—Seed and the Harvest (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 16—Si's Wonderful Mineral Spring (Com.)
Oct. 17—From Peril to Peril (Drama).....

GEORGE KLEINE.

Aug. 25—"To Forgive, Divine" (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 1—The Voice of Innocence (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 8—The Eyes of Genius (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 15—When Youth Meets Youth (Cines' Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 22—The Master Force (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 29—A Shot From Ambush (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 6—The Wrecked Special (Cines—Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....

LUBIN.

Sept. 19—Pins Are Lucky (Comedy).....
—The German Band (Comedy).....
Sept. 21—An Untarnished Shield (Second of the "Beloved Adventurer" Series—Drama) .....
Sept. 22—The Wise Detectives (Comedy).....
—A Six Foot Romance (Comedy).....
Sept. 23—Toys of Fate (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 24—The Triumph of Right (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 25—The Investment (Drama).....
Sept. 26—Did He Save Her (Comedy).....
Between One and Two (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—The Beloved Adventurer Series No. 3—An Affair of Honor (Drama)....
Sept. 29—Jinks and The Barber (Comedy).....
—Jealous James (Comedy).....
Sept. 30—His Brother Bill (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 1—His First Case (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 2—The Greater Love (Drama).....
Oct. 3—On Circus Day (Comedy).....
Oct. 5—The Beloved Adventurer No. 4—An American Heiress (Drama) .....
Oct. 6—Wifie's Athletic Mamma (Comedy).....
A Hunting Absurdity (Comedy) .....
Oct. 7—The Girl at the Lock (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 8—In Old Virginia (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 9—The Green-Eyed Monster (Drama).....
Oct. 10—When the Ham Turned (Comedy).....
Oct. 12—The Beloved Adventurer, No. 5—The Girl from the West (Drama).....
Oct. 13—Swami Sam (Comedy).....
Neighborly Neighbors (Comedy).....
Oct. 14—The Bond of Womanhood (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 15—The Impostor (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 16—The Long Lane (Drama).....
Oct. 17—The Smuggler's Daughter (Comedy)..

PATHE.

Aug. 10—Typical Russian Dances (Dancing)...
—A Rousing Reception (Comedy).....
Aug. 11—The Art of the Furrier (Vocational)..
—Iron and Steel Industry (Bombay) (Educational) .....
Aug. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 40 (News)....
Aug. 17—Dakar, the Principal Port of Senegal, French West Africa (Travel)...
—Military Trained Dogs, Belgium (Mil.)
Aug. 18—Cairo, the Capital of Egypt (Travel).
—Uriage and Vicinity (Scenic).....
Aug. 19—Pathe's Weekly, No. 50, 1914 (News).
Aug. 24—Pathe's Daily News, No. 53, 1914 (News) .....
Aug. 24—Edible Fishes of the English Channel (Ocean) .....
Aug. 25—Rapids and Falls at Trondjen (Travel)
—Picturesque France, Lower Brittany (Travel) .....
—From Havre to Buc by Hydro-Aeroplane (Color-Travel) .....
Aug. 26—Pathe's Daily News, No. 54, 1914 (News) .....

SELIG.

Sept. 26—The Newsboy Tenor (Drama).....
Sept. 28—The Going of the White Swan (Special—Two Parts—Drama).....
Sept. 28—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 61 (News) .....
Sept. 29—The Real Thing In Cowboys (Comedy-Drama) .....
Sept. 30—The Loyalty of Jumbo (Drama).....
Oct. 1—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 62 (News) .....
Oct. 2—An Embarrassing Predicament (Drama)
Oct. 3—Four Minutes Late (Drama).....
Oct. 5—The Moving Picture Cowboy (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 63 (News) .....
Oct. 6—The Way of the Redman (Drama) .....
Oct. 7—The Reparation (Drama).....
Oct. 8—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 64 (News) .....
Oct. 9—Jimmie the Porter (Comedy).....
—Doc Yak's Bottle (Cartoon).....
Oct. 10—Her Victory Eternal (Drama).....
Oct. 12—The Dream Girl (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 12—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 65 (News) .....
Oct. 13—The Mexican (Drama).....
Oct. 14—The Mysterious Beauty (Comedy).....
Oct. 15—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 66 (News) .....
Oct. 16—The Man-Hater (Comedy) .....
Oct. 17—The Woman of It (Drama).....

VITAGRAPH.

Sept. 26—Hearts and Diamonds (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Sept. 28—When the Gods Forgive (Drama)....
Sept. 29—Regan's Daughter (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Sept. 30—The Heart of Sonny Jim (Comedy-Drama) .....
Oct. 1—The Love of Pierre Larosse (Drama).
Oct. 2—Eats (Comedy) .....
Oct. 3—The Royal Wild West (Special—Two Parts—Comedy) .....
Oct. 5—Fisherman Kate (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—His Unknown Girl (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 7—Kill or Cure (Comedy).....
Oct. 8—The Loan Shark King (Drama).....
Oct. 9—Josie's Legacy (Comedy) .....
Oct. 10—The Rose and the Thorn (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 12—Midst Woodland Shadows (Drama)...
Oct. 13—Marcea, the Foster Mother (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....
Oct. 14—The Peacemaker (Comedy).....
Oct. 15—His Dominant Passion (Drama).....
Oct. 16—Fatty's Sweetheart (Comedy).....
Oct. 17 The Girl in the Case (Special—Two Parts—Drama) .....

Greater New York Film Rental Company
All Specials Supplied. Main Office: 126-132 West 46th Street. Depot: 116-118 East 14th Street, New York.
Licensed Film Supplied to Licensed Exhibitors :-: :-: :-: :-: :-: Write or Call for Particulars

Good Light Is An Attraction

Brilliant light has a wonderful "pulling power." Flaming arc lamps outside your theatre help attract the crowd; your house is recognized 'way down the street.

Good illumination also shows up the signs, making them brighter, more easily seen and read.

Further, a well lighted exterior is one of your most telling advertisements, giving your theatre a cheery, inviting appearance. Install

Type W Long Life Flame Arc Lamps

These powerful units are especially adapted to illuminating the outside of theatres, being substantially constructed and weatherproof. Type W Flame arc lamps are easy to install and economical to maintain—they give a long period between trims and require the minimum of attention. The operation in service is so satisfactory that there are thousands now in use all over the country.

Make your theatre the "brightest spot on the street." Write to our nearest office for further particulars.

General Electric Company

General Office: Schenectady, N. Y.

ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boise, Idaho
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Dayton, Ohio
Denver, Colo.
Des Moines, Iowa
Detroit, Mich.
(Office of Agent)
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Fort Wayne, Ind.
Hartford, Conn.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Knoxville, Tenn.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
St. Louis, Mo.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio

For Texas, Oklahoma and Arizona business refer to Southwest General Electric Company (formerly Hobson Electric Co.), Dallas, El Paso, Houston and Oklahoma City. For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Company, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

4932

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.
Sept. 28—A Modern Rip Van Winkle (Two Parts—Drama)
Sept. 30—The Ingrate (Two Parts—Drama)...
Oct. 5—Daphnia (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 7—Billy's Rival (Drama).....
Oct. 12—Jail Birds (Two Parts—Society Dr.)..
Oct. 14—Down by the Sea (Drama).....

BEAUTY.
Sept. 21—Caught in a Tight Pinch (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 29—The Legend of Black Rock (Drama).
Oct. 6—Nieda (Drama)
Oct. 13—Winsome Winnie (Comedy-Drama)...

"101" BISON.
Sept. 26—"Richelieu," (Four Parts—Drama)...
Oct. 3—Love and Baseball (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 10—The Phantom Light (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 17—Monsieur Bluebeard (Two Parts—Dr.)

BRONCHO.
Oct. 14—End of the Alley (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 21—Shorty and Sherlock Holmes (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 28—The Golden Goose (Two Parts—Dr.)..

CRYSTAL.
Sept. 29—Charlie's Smoke (Comedy).....
—Belmont Butts In (Comedy).....
Oct. 6—Liferitis (Comedy)
Oct. 13—Oh You Gypsy Girl (Comedy).....
—Some Collectors (Comedy).....

DOMINO.
Oct. 15—Jimmy (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 22—The Power of the Angelus (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 29—Eric the Red's Wooing (Two Parts—Drama)
Nov. 5—In Old Italy (Two Parts—Drama)....

ECLAIR.
Oct. 4—The Man Who Came Back (Western Drama)
Oct. 7—The Line Rider (Two Parts—Western—Drama)
Oct. 11—Cupid Victor (Comedy).....
Oct. 14—The Squatter (Three Parts—Western Drama)
Oct. 18—The Quarrel (Western Drama).....

FRONTIER.
Oct. 4—Four Days (Drama).....
Oct. 11—Dolly's Deliverance (Western—Drama)
Oct. 18—In the Hollow of an Oak (Drama)....

GOLD SEAL.
Sept. 29—The Trey o' Hearts Series No. 9 (As the Crow Flies) (Two Parts)
Oct. 6—The Trey O' Hearts, Episode No. 10 (Steel Ribbons) (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 13—Trey o' Hearts, Episode No. 11, "The Painted Hills" (Two Parts—Drama)

IMP.
Oct. 5—Shadows (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 8—Universal Boy, in Rural Adventures (Juvenile Comedy).....
Oct. 12—Mary's Convert (Drama).....
Oct. 15—The Futility of Revenge (Two Parts—Drama)

JOKER.
Oct. 7—The Base Ball Fans of Fansville (Comedy)
Oct. 10—Cruel, Cruel World (Comedy).....
Oct. 14—On Again, Off Again, Finnigan (Com.)
Oct. 17—Across the Court (Comedy).....

KAY BEE.
Oct. 2—One of the Discard (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 9—The Sheriff of Muscatine (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 16—The Word of His People (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 23—The Spark Eternal (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 30—The Worth of a Life (Two Parts—Dr.)

KEYSTONE.
Sept. 26—Fatty's Debut (Comedy).....
Sept. 28—Hard Cider (Comedy).....
Oct. 1—Killing of Horace (Comedy).....
Oct. 3—Fatty Again (Comedy).....
Oct. 5—Their Ups and Downs (Comedy).....
Oct. 8—Hello Mabel (Comedy).....
Oct. 10—Their Love Pangs (Comedy).....
Oct. 12—The Anglers (Comedy).....

KOMIC.
Sept. 27—Bill Manages a Prize Fighter (No. 7) (Comedy)
Oct. 4—The Million Dollar Bride (Comedy)..
Oct. 11—Bill Spoils a Vacation (No. 8) (Comedy)
Oct. 18—Dizzy Joe's Career (Comedy).....

MAJESTIC.
Oct. 4—Out of the Air (Two Parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—The Unpainted Portrait (Drama).....
Oct. 11—The Sands of Fate (Two Parts—drama)
Oct. 13—The Warning (Comedy-Drama).....
Oct. 16—Back to the Kitchen (Comedy-Drama)
Oct. 18—For Her Father's Sins (Two Parts—Drama)

NESTOR.
Oct. 2—Out of the Frying Pan (Comedy)....
Oct. 7—The Old Bell Ringer (Drama).....
Oct. 9—He Never Said a Word (Comedy).....
Oct. 14—No Release This Week.....
Oct. 16—The Way of Life (Drama).....

POWERS.
Oct. 2—The Actress (Drama).....
Oct. 9—The Mayor's Manicure (Comedy-Drama)
Oct. 16—The Padrone's Ward (Two Parts—Western Drama)

PRINCESS.
Sept. 25—The Final Test (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Balance of Power (Drama).....
Oct. 9—The One Who Cared (Drama).....
Oct. 16—The Touch of a Little Hand (Drama).

RELIANCE.
Oct. 3—The Wireless Voice (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 5—Our Mutual Girl, No. 38 (Topical).....
Oct. 7—The Badge of Office (Western—Drama).
Oct. 10—The Tardy Cannon Ball (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 12—Our Mutual Girl, No. 39 (Topical)....
Oct. 14—Bad Man Mason (Western Drama)....
Oct 17—The Revenue Officer's Deputy (Two Parts—Western Drama).....

REX.
Oct. 4—The Pipes of Pan (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 8—A Law Unto Herself (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 11—Virtue Its Own Reward (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 15—Her Life's Story (Drama).....
Oct. 18—Kid Regan's Hands (Two Parts—Dr.).

ROYAL.
Sept. 26—Scarecrow (Comedy)
Oct. 3—Cousin Billy (Comedy)
Oct. 10—The Pet of the Petticoats (Comedy)..
Oct. 17—(Title Not Yet Announced).....

STERLING.
Oct. 5 Myers Mistake (Comedy)
Oct. 8—Hypnotic Power (Comedy).....
Oct. 12—The Close Call (Juvenile Comedy)....
Oct. 15—Heinie's Outing (Comedy).....

THANHOUSER.
Oct. 4—A Dog's Love (Drama).....
Oct. 6—The Cripple (Two Parts—Drama).....
Oct. 9—The Benevolence of Conductor 786 (Comedy)
Oct. 11—The Rescue (Drama)
Oct. 13—The Diamond of Disaster (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 18—Left in the Train (Comedy-Drama)...

UNIVERSAL IKE.
Sept. 29—The Shack Next Door (Comedy)....
Oct. 6—The Neglected Wife (Comedy).....
Oct. 13—Mary Green's Husband (Comedy).....
—An Educational Subject on the Same Reel

VICTOR.
Sept. 28—The Proof of a Man (Drama).....
Oct. 2—The Rock of Hope (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 5—Disillusioned (Drama)
Oct. 9—The Woman Who Won (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct. 12—His Father's Son (Two Parts—Drama)
Oct 16—The Funny Mr. Dingkem (Comedy)..

FEATURES.

ALCO FILM CORP.
Oct. 5—The Nightingale (All Star—Five Parts—Drama)
Oct. 12—The Ragged Earl (Popular Plays and Players—Drama)
Oct. 19—The Key to Yesterday (Favorite Players—Four Parts—Drama)
Oct. 26—Michael Strogoff (Popular Plays & Players—Five Parts—Drama)

APEX.
Sept.—Queen of the Counterfeiters (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct.—Called to the Front; or Europe at War (Three Parts—Drama)

BOSWORTH, INC.
Sept. 14—Burning Daylight.....
Oct. 1—The Pursuit of the Phantom (Drama)..

BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS CO.
Sept. 28—Fighting the World (Five Parts—Drama)
Sept. 28—The Square Triangle (Three Parts—Drama)
October—Life's Shop Window (Drama).....

CALIFORNIA M. P. CORP.
September—Salomy Jane (Drama).....

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CO.
Oct. 1—Sealed Orders (Seven Parts—Drama)

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.
August—What a Woman Will Do (Four Parts—Drama)
Sept.—England's Menace (Three Parts—Drama)

COSMOS FEATURE FILM CORP.
Oct. 15—Lena Rivers (Drama)

ECLECTIC.
Oct.—Colonel Heezaliar, in the Wilderness (Comedy)
Oct.—The Colonel's Wife (Three Parts—Drama)
Oct.—War Stricken Louvain (Topical).....
October—A Prince of India (Four Parts—Dr.)
October—In Soak (Comedy).....
October—Max Has the Boxing Fever (Comedy)—Picturesque Lake Dhal (British-India) (Scenic)

FAMOUS PLAYERS.
Sept. 10—The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch (Four Parts—Drama)
Sept. 21—Such a Little Queen (Five Parts—Drama)
Oct. 5—Marta of the Lowlands (Five Parts—Drama)

FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO.
September—The King's Defence (Drama).....

GAUMONT.
August—War (Drama)

GEORGE KLEINE.
September—Vendetta (Five Parts—Drama)...
Sept.—The Lion of Venice (Six Parts—Drama).
October—The Naked Truth (Five Parts—Dr.)..

HECTOR FILM CORP.
Sept.—Born Again (Five Parts—Drama).....

HEPWORTH-AMERICAN.
September—Creatures of Clay (Three Parts—Drama)
October—Dr. Fenton's Ordeal (Two Parts—Dr.)

LASKY.
Sept. 17—The Making of Bobby Burnit (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct. 12—Where the Trail Divides (Five Parts—Drama)

LIFE PHOTO FILM CORP.
September—Captain Swift (Five Parts—Drama).....

PLAYGOERS FILM CO.
Oct.—The Great Diamond Robbery (Six Parts—Drama)

PICTURE PLAYHOUSE FILM CO., INC.
Sept. 5—The Mystery of the Poison Pool (Five Parts..
Drama)
Sept. 10—Desperado of Panama (Three Parts—Drama)
Sept. 17—Lure of the Yukon (Three Parts—Drama)..

RENOWNED PLAYERS.
Sept.—A Great Mistake (Five Parts—Drama).

SAWYER.
Sept.—Tyranny of the Mad Czar (Four Parts—Drama)
Sept.—Doc (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct.—Thirty Minutes in Melodrama (Two Parts—Comedy)
Oct.—The Factory Magdalen (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct.—The Volunteer Parson (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct.—The Detective Queen (Four Parts—Drama)

THE PREMIER FEATURE FILM CO., INC.
Sept.—Across the Pacific (Five Parts—Drama).
Sept.—The Dancer and the King (Five Parts—Drama)

WARNER'S FEATURES.
September—Alone in New York (Five Parts—Drama)
Sept.—The Price of Crime (Three Parts—Drama)
October—Hunted Down (Drama).....
October—In the Duke's Power (Drama).....

WORLD FILM CORP.
Sept. 28—Mother (Four Parts—Drama)
Oct. 5—A Gentleman from Mississippi (Five Parts—Drama)
Oct. 12—The Man of the Hour (Five Parts—Drama)

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty Thousand.....$4.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$5.50
Fifty Thousand.....$6.50
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

Pennsylvania Exhibitors Attention!

Mr. Exhibitor:

Are you in touch with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania?

If not, take a step in the right direction.

Cut out the accompanying coupon, fill in and mail to Samuel F. Wheeler, the League's President, care of the Belmont Theatre, 52nd above Market Street, Philadelphia.

The League is compiling a list of every exhibitor in Pennsylvania. It is desirous of having your name and data connected with your house, in order that important communications may be sent to you regarding the crusade that the League is conducting against censorship and other legislation adverse to the exhibitor.

Call the attention of your fellow exhibitor to this request.

This list is entirely a private one and will not be accessible for promoters or persons with commercial interests.

IT IS SOLELY FOR YOUR BENEFIT

CUT OUT AND FILL IN THIS COUPON

Name of Theatre.....

Address .....

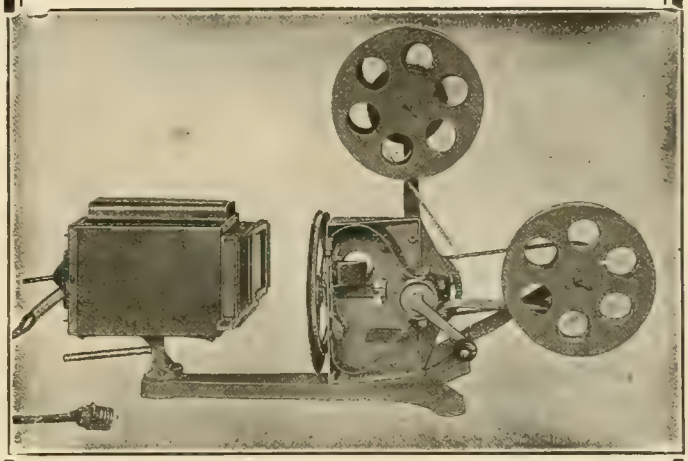
Name of Proprietor.....

Number of Seats.....

If you are interested in the welfare of your home, church, school, college, employees, salesmen, lodge, club, army and navy posts, Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A., read this advertisement about the

Phantoscope

and the wonderful acquaintance-sale offer we are making



What the Phantoscope is

THE Phantoscope projects motion pictures from standard motion picture films obtained from any film agency in any city the world over; it projects an 8-foot picture; it takes its light from ordinary electric sockets, using either current, or can be run equally well by special gas generators. The film may be stopped anywhere to be examined and studied. It also projects magic lantern slides, enhancing its utility where one picture is as important as a moving film. As a stereopticon it equals the most expensive apparatus. It is thus really three machines in one.

How easily it works

THE Phantoscope's simplicity and dependability have been proved by 225 educational, religious and commercial institutions where it is now in daily use. It can be set up in two minutes, and operated by a boy of ten or twelve. Easy to carry—weighs but 20 pounds in its case.

WE POSITIVELY GUARANTEE the materials and workmanship of the Phantoscope and hereby unhesitatingly agree to replace within one year any parts found to be defective.

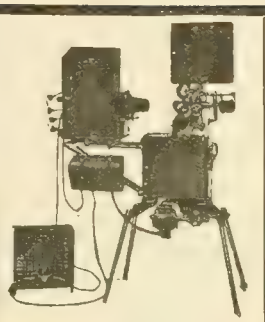
Introductory offer

WE have decided to sell the next 500 Phantoscopes at $75 apiece, instead of the regular price of $100. This is complete, with carrying case, attaching cord, screen on which to project the picture and a box of carbons. We commit ourselves to this special offer only as long as these 500 specially priced machines last. We expect this offer to be eagerly seized by the public. Act at once if you don't want to be disappointed.

Send us your check, money order or draft for $75, and your Phantoscope will be shipped to you at once, under the broad guarantee mentioned above.

THE PHANTOSCOPE COMPANY

Dept. C. 30 Church Street, New York

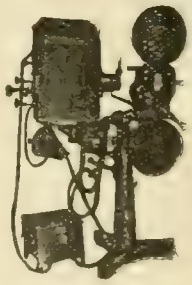


POWER'S

Moving Picture Machines and Supplies

We Carry a Large Stock of Up-to-the-Minute Supplies and Can Ship Same Day as Ordered

Write, Wire, or Call for Prices on the



SIMPLEX

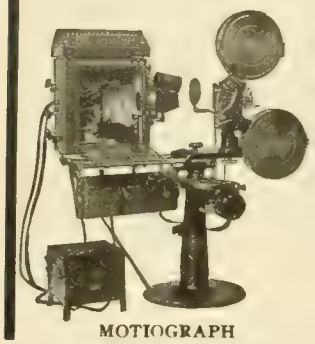
MAIL ORDERS OUR SPECIALTY

Power's 6A
Simplex Projector
Motiograph 1914
Edison's New Model "D"

And Everything for the Theatre

(Except Films and Posters)

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETELY



MOTIOGRAPH

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

21 East 14th Street, New York

The Largest Motion Picture Supply House in America

EDISON

This Machine Cleared $268 in One Month

For a Motion Picture Theatre!

Dozens of motion picture theatres are making extra profits of $25.00 to $60.00 weekly with our latest automatic machine for making "Butter-Kist" popped corn—crisp, crackling, melt-in-your-mouth, pure creamery-buttered corn—the kind that people will walk blocks to buy. This is a high-class machine that will harmonize with the finest theatre lobby. Some of the most up-to-date motion picture theatres in the country have the inviting, nickel-winning "Butter-Kist" Corn Popper in their lobbies. It's the best investment ever offered motion picture theatres. And scores have proved it!

"Butter-Kist" Corn Popper
Draws Nickels Like Magic

While you are getting one nickel a day from each "movie" customer this machine produces anywhere from one to five extra nickels a day. And remember that 3½ cents out of every nickel is new net profit. This is new profit for you. It does not detract one penny from your picture business, in fact, it has a tendency to increase it. It brings the crowds. The "Butter-Kist" Popper looks different—works differently from any pop-corn machine you ever saw. A machine you will be proud to own. Superbly built of plate glass; metal parts of polished German silver and nickel; cabinet of mahogany, oak or ivory-white enamel. Occupies but 32 x 26 inches of floor space. Stands six feet high.

Can Be Installed in an Hour or Two

Our latest Machine is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity. Simply make a one-wire connection to a lamp socket and every part of the machine operates. Popping plate requires gas. Everything works automatically. It feeds the corn in proper quantity, pops it, separates unpopped grains if any, carries the popped corn to a buttering device, butters it and drops it down ready to be scooped, piping hot, into bags. Capacity can be regulated as desired. No labor, no watching, no time wasted. It does everything but make change. This the ticket taker can do.

Don't Delay! Get the Facts Today!

Let us tell you about this spot-cash money maker. Two minutes' time and a 2-cent stamp put all the money-making facts before you. We'll send you facts, figures and photos that explain everything. Sold on easy terms. Will pay its way from the very first day. Others are doing it—so can you. Write—right now! (66)

HOLCOMB & HOKE MFG. CO., 1461 Van Buren St., INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA

F. O. NIELSEN, booking

"THE SPOILERS"

For the States of

OHIO, WISCONSIN, MICHIGAN, INDIANA and ILLINOIS

(EXCEPT COOK COUNTY)

WRITE OR WIRE

720 SCHILLER BLDG., CHICAGO

TITLES

Our Title Department has been reorganized, elaborately equipped and placed under the direction of recognized experts.

Its highly perfected apparatus, linotype machine and job presses enable us to produce the most difficult title work in any language—artistically, accurately and quickly—and at lower prices than have ever yet been quoted.

Developing & Printing

Save money and insure the best results by entrusting your work to the largest and most complete commercial plant in America.

CENTAUR FILM COMPANY

Bayonne, N. J., and 1600 Broadway

Your Show Window

Perhaps you do not realize it, but your lobby is the Show Window of your theatre, and your attractions will be judged by your display.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are now sole authorized manufacturers and sales agents for lobby photos, by exclusive contract with

The General Film Company

Also sole authorized manufacturers and sales agents for lobby photos, by exclusive contract with

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company

The reason is because we make the best and the manufacturers will sanction nothing else.

11 x 14	Suitable for framing (Sepia)	$1.50 per doz.
22 x 28	Suitable for framing	.40 each
22 x 28	Suitable for framing (Hand Colored)	1.00 each

Send us your order. If your pictures are not miles ahead of any pictures on the market, return them at our expense.

Have you heard of our coupon plan? If not—write us.

The Wyanoak Publishing Co.

136-146 West 52nd St.
New York, N. Y.

State Right Buyers Take Notice

COMING THE BIG ORIGINAL PRODUCTION COMING

FEATURING

GEORGE SONTAG

Of SONTAG AND EVANS, of California

In "THE FOLLY OF A LIFE OF CRIME"

U. S. Feature Film Company OROVILLE CALIFORNIA

The ALBUQUERQUE FILM MFG. CO., Inc.

Featuring that Clever Comedienne

Miss Dot Farley

Two Comedies Weekly
Releasing through

THE UNITED MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS, Inc.

Who distribute through
Warner's Features, Inc.

By request from many exchanges we take pleasure in reviving the Frontier Twin Stories

Written and made famous by
Miss Dot Farley
Under direction of
Gilbert P. Hamilton

Farce Comedy Production
By

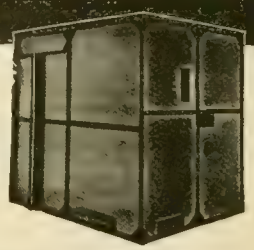
Arthur McMackin

'Nuf Sed

Western Studio:

406 Court Street, Los Angeles, California
GILBERT P. HAMILTON, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

J-M Transite Asbestos Wood Booths



Absolutely fireproof. Prevent noise of machine from disturbing audience. Cannot become electrically charged or grounded.

J-M Booths conform to all the requirements of state and municipal regulations, insurance authorities and inspection departments wherever ordinances compel the use of a fire-proof booth.

Furnished in portable and permanent types. Write our nearest Branch for "J-M Theatre Necessities" Booklet.

H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.

Albany	Cincinnati	Kansas City	New Orleans	San Francisco
Baltimore	Cleveland	Los Angeles	New York	Seattle
Boston	Dallas	Louisville	Omaha	St. Louis
Buffalo	Detroit	Milwaukee	Philadelphia	Syracuse
Chicago	Indianapolis	Minneapolis	Pittsburgh

Erker's

"The House to tie to"

Every Exhibitor Needs Supplies
We Have Them—Everything You Need
We've Got the Goods—Waiting for Your Orders
Our Catalogues will explain all

E R K E R ' S
608 Olive Street St. Louis, Mo.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY
(INCORPORATED)
Jobbers for Powers, Edison, Motiograph and Simplex
LARGEST LEADING SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

Mercury Arc Rectifier	Wagner Converters
Flame Arc Lamps	Brass and Wood Frames
Automatic Ticket Registers	Ticket Choppers
Exit Signs	Asbestos State Booths
Slide Ink	Ft. Wayne Compensares
Carrying Cases	Fire Extinguishers
Tickets	Fire Boxes
Condensers	Carbons
Pianos	Cement
Chairs	Trap Drum Effects

MIRROR SCREENS
PROMPT SHIPMENTS BACKED BY A SOLID GUARANTEE
A Few Slightly Used Machines
N. W. corner 13th and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

MAKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and anyone can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact, they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:
24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address:

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.
1733 West 9th Street Brooklyn, N. Y.

Stockton's Scriptwriting Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

REV. E. BOUDINOT STOCKTON, S.T.B.
161 So. Arlington Ave., East Orange, N. J.

Are You Tired

of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection

contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3

Piano, (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 71st St. Chicago, Ill.

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs.

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Ave. and Leo St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Roll Tickets

THE BEST AT LOWEST PRICES

Guaranteed Accurate Numbering. Best Cardboard. Cleanest Printing. Why buy poor Tickets when You Can Get QUALITY FIRST for Less. Write for our Samples and Prices. It will pay you to do so.

THE OPPENHEIMER PRINTING CO. Power Bldg. CINCINNATI, O.

ATTENTION! STATE RIGHT BUYER

A four-part Modern Drama

BACK TO THE WAVES

A beautiful story replete with dramatic situations and sensational incidents.

One, three, six Posters—Heralds—Cuts—Photos, etc.

WIRE OR WRITE

FOREIGN FILM CORPORATION,

251 North 13th Street, PHILADELPHIA

NO WAR BOOST ON OUR PRICES

Regardless of the present European unpleasantness we continue to use all essential chemicals such as

METOL AND HYDROQUINONE

and consistently maintain standard prices for quality,

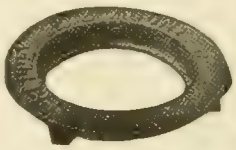
DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

Send today for our price, quality and service guarantee

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE CO., 223-233 W. Erie St. CHICAGO

CONDENSER BREAKAGE STOPPED

by using the Preddey Mount; fits any lamp in a moment. Very simple and rugged. Pays for itself in a week. Lasts forever. Get circular. Positively stops breaking. Price $4.00. Used everywhere. Condenser expense ended.



W. G. PREDDEY

669 Haight St, San Francisco, Cal.

S. S.

PEACE PEACE PEACE

It is a continual fight to draw the crowds. Give your patrons a better show than your competitor, and the fight is won. Projection of a steady, bright, flickerless picture counts more than anything else. We are distributors of the Motiograph, Powers, Simplex and Edison Machines and Genuine parts, and handle all supplies. We take back your old machine in part payment on a new one. Cash or easy payments. Write today for our plan. Catalog free.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

160 North Fifth Avenue Chicago

The Best -TERMINAL--The Bell

Simple in Construction

Easy to buy or use

As efficient as terminals costing twice as much

At your exchange or write to manufacturers

THE BELL & HOWELL COMPANY

1803 Larchmont Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

BEAUTIFY YOUR THEATER WITH FLORAL DECORATIONS

It gives artistic Atmosphere. It produces Charm. It gives an appearance of Culture — enhances Beauty— delights your Patrons—produces Tone and Class. It is a profitable-patronage build ng Investment. We have every imaginable floral effect and botanical production of America and Europe.

Beautiful Colored Catalogue Mailed Free to You

We Specialize on Floral Parades and Summer Specialties

BOTANICAL DECORATING CO.

504 South Fifth Avenue CHICAGO

READ THIS: We quote absolutely the lowest prices ever offered on reliable goods.

G. W. BRADENBURGH

802 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Largest firm dealing in films of every description

The finest list of exclusives in the trade. Write for lists.

We make a specialty of multiple reel features, Mary Pickford and Keystone films, new or slightly used, with posters.

Want to buy for export, features and single reel subjects. Must have posters. Write your offerings.

Posters, Mounted or Unmounted, Bought and Sold.

Extensive line of supplies, from a camera for the manufacturer to a sledge hammer for the operator.

WANT TO BUY FILMS, SINGLE AND MULTIPLE REEL SUBJECTS.

"Triplett's Loop Setter"

For Power's, Edison and Motiograph Machines. ALL MODELS.

Do away with operators' "Bugaboo" by installing "Triplett's Loop Setter" on your machine. Will reset the lower loop as fast as it hops off. Guarantee Satisfaction. Will send on approval. Write for circular. Price, $12.50, postage paid. Proposition open to dealers.

J. M. TRIPLETT 6 NORTH COLUMBIA ST. WENATCHEE, WASHINGTON

Note:—In ordering, state make and model of machine, whether belt or chain driven takeups, and whether straight or spiral gears on takeup drive pinion.

HOLD ON! DON'T SHOOT!!

But WIRE TO-DAY for a

"MOON SCREEN"

It will make your Theatre once more a brilliant center of attraction!

The "MOON SCREEN" produces a highly artistic lighting effect and cuts the cost of lighting in half.

For the next two months, prices have been reduced to a point where they bring the "MOON SCREEN" easily within the reach of all.

The International Moon Screen Co.

387 Grand Street, New York.

PUT in your own lighting plant and pay for it with your Central Station bills. A Foos generating set will produce current for less than 3 cents per kilowatt, and is more reliable than service from a Central Station.

Ask for Bulletin 98.

FOOS GAS ENGINE CO.

Springfield, Ohio.

Studio in Los Angeles

FOR RENT

Near business section of city. Large enough to accommodate three companies. Laboratory in connection. Price reasonable. Address

Angelus Studio

215-25 E. Washington St.

Los Angeles, Cal.

THE L.C.SMITH REWINDING SET
EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00
GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET.
L.C.SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N.Y.
PAT. PENDING
PAT. PENDING

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs

immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.

Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave. Pittsburgh, 318 Bissell Blk.; Boston, 69 Pearl St.

Follow the Crowd

If you need no more convincing argument, Mr. Man-With-Something-to-Sell-to-the-Picture-trade the well filled advertising columns of The Moving Picture World ought to influence you in placing your copy.

If you want to know why the World's advertising columns are filled from week to week, drop us a line and let us tell you some of the things which Moving Picture World advertising has accomplished.

Tell Your Advertising Story in

The Moving Picture World

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO

537 West Market St.

LOUISVILLE, KY

25% on Carbons

Saved by using THE ACME CARBON ECONOMIZER. Guaranteed to burn carbons down to three-quarters of an inch.

In ordering state size of carbons used and extreme opening of carbon clamps.

$2.00 per pair postpaid. Remit in P. O. or express money order.

W. F. HERZBERG,

Manhattan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

REAL QUALITY CHAIRS FOR QUALITY REEL SHOWS

Ask for FREE booklet V-2 upholstered Veneer Seating V-3

If you are interested in

Motion Picture Theatre Seating

send ground sketch and we will draft for you FREE seating plan showing the most economical arrangement of seating for your theatre.

American Seating Company

Display Rooms and Installation Service

14 E. Jackson Blvd., CHICAGO 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

Boston, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Forty Other Large Cities

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE

1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1885

WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

The A. H. Andrews Co.

115-117 So. Wabash Ave. Chicago, Ill.

Branches in all Leading Cities

New York Office 1472 Broadway, Long Acre Bldg.

Seattle Office 508-10-12 First Ave., So.

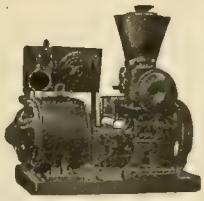
San Francisco Office 782 Mission St.

The "Standardized" Theatre Chairs

Do you want a life-saving chair?
Do you want a space-saving chair?
Do you want a sanitary chair?
Do you want a scientifically built, double standard chair?

We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US

The HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio



Good Light Means Big Crowds

The Sandow Moving Picture Electric Light Plant gives perfect light any time you want it, at 1-10 the cost of public service. Light enough to ship as baggage. Carry your own electric lights. Catalog 201 tells you how and how much. Want it?

Detroit Motor Car Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan.

Eye Comfort Lighting System

For Moving Picture Theatres
Write for prices and illustrations.

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.
Chicago, 229 W. Jackson Blvd.
New York, 6 E. 39th St.

BEST OF CAMERA MEN

Furnished for all Occasions

CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO.

4108-22 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill.

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

AGENCIES:

H. S. Ansley, 1476 B'way, Long Acre Bldg., New York City. 'Phone 5619 Bryant

California Seating Company, 720 South Hill Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

H. A. Johnson Seating Company, 1214½ Third Ave., Seattle, Wash.

THE WISCONSIN SEATING COMPANY

New London, Wis., U. S. A.

Theatre Supplies

Such as seats of all kinds and all leading makes of moving picture machines, Iron Booths, Curtains, etc., always in stock for immediate shipment. Send us a list of your wants and see why we are the largest THEATRE SUPPLY concern in the west. Always have some slightly used chairs and picture machines on hand.

Lears Theatre Supply Co.

Sam Lears, Prop.

509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

MAJESTIC MOTION PICTURE CO.

TO ALL EXHIBITORS:

FAY TINCHER
As Ethel, the stenographer, in the "Bill" series.

In response to numerous appeals from Exhibitors for enlarged photographs of Majestic stars for Lobby display, we have prepared a set of artistic bromide enlargements, 14 x 17, all new poses, of the following players:

BLANCHE SWEET — LILLIAN GISH
MAE MARSH — DOROTHY GISH
HENRY B. WALTHALL — ROBERT HARRON

These we will mail to any Exhibitor at cost price, each 50c., or $3.00 for the Set. Special prices on larger sizes up to 5 feet high. (All photographs autographed.) Also a unique character photograph of

FAY TINCHER

as she appears in the Komic

"Bill, the Office Boy"

series, in which Miss Tincher has created the part of Ethel, the stenographer. Size of photo, 14 x 28. Price, $1.00.

For these SPECIAL LOBBY DISPLAY PHOTOGRAPHS, address MAJESTIC STUDIOS, 4500 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif.

THE MAJESTIC GUIDE FOR EXHIBITORS

(In which we try to tell only the truth about all Majestic releases)

HIS MOTHER'S TRUST (1 Reel). Release date Tuesday, Sept. 29.—Not entirely up to Majestic standard in detail of production, but a strong story featuring Robert Harron.

OUT OF THE AIR (2 Reels). Release date Sunday, Oct. 4.—One of the most thrilling pictures we ever have seen. The hero drops from a flying aeroplane to a moving train, both going 60 miles an hour—a marvelous feat never before attempted.

THE UNPAINTED PORTRAIT (1 Reel). Release date Tuesday, Oct. 6.—An exceedingly well produced, strongly interesting society drama.

SANDS OF FATE (2 Reels). Release date Sunday, Oct. 11.—A fairly well produced story of the great American desert; not one of the best, but nevertheless featuring Dorothy Gish and Robert Harron in an interesting story.

Studio:
4500 Sunset Blvd.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Majestic Motion Picture Co.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

Business Offices:
29 Union Sq. West,
New York City

THE HOUSE OF SELIG

SELIG LEADS OTHERS FOLLOW

SELIG CREATES OTHERS IMITATE

NEWEST SELIG WINNERS

YOU WILL FIND THEM PROFITABLE

BIG WAR PICTURES RELEASED REGULARLY EVERY MONDAY AND EVERY THURSDAY

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL

FIRST IN PEACE
FIRST IN WAR
FIRST IN POPULARITY

Bold, Fearless, Intrepid, Clever, Expert Camera Men

With the German army and navy
With the British army and navy
With the French army and navy
With the Russian army and navy
With the Austrian army and navy, etc., etc.

Order by Wire or Letter from Your Nearest Exchange, General Film Co.

Selig Current Releases for Week October 12-17

THE DREAM GIRL

RELEASED OCTOBER 12—TWO REELS

A thrilling and exciting Selig sea-drama, wonderfully portrayed by TOM SANTSCHI and BESSIE EYTON, and other Selig stars. Love and adventure intermingled.

Hearst-Selig News Pictorial

RELEASED OCTOBER 12—ONE REEL

Showing latest news pictures from the European war.

THE MEXICAN

RELEASED OCTOBER 13—ONE REEL

A typical Selig Western drama, depicting the tale of a courageous revenge.

The Mysterious Beauty

RELEASED OCTOBER 14—ONE REEL

A laughable Selig farce-comedy, picturing the misadventures of a gullible young swain in search of a sweetheart.

Hearst-Selig News Pictorial

RELEASED OCTOBER 15—ONE REEL

Big war pictures direct from European battlefields.

The Man-Hater

RELEASED OCTOBER 16—ONE REEL

A boisterous Selig farce-comedy, showing how Cupid juggles the resisting hearts of human kind. Full of comical scenes and big laughs.

The Woman of It

RELEASED OCTOBER 17—ONE REEL

An extraordinary Selig psychological drama, depicting a startling vision of love in the primitive age.

Released Oct. 15 GARRISON'S FINISH SPECIAL

LATEST SELIG THREE-REEL FEATURE. From the popular novel written by W. B. M. FERGUSON.

A thrilling, gripping, exciting Selig production filled with action, produced as only Selig can. Thousands of people shown in the most exciting race track scene ever filmed. A wonderful production, true to life; filled with spectacular effects, startling realism, and telling a beautiful love story.

Wire or Write Your Order at once to Special Feature Department, General Film Co.

WATCH FOR "The Rosary"

Another big Selig gorgeous production from the inspiring drama staged by ROWLAND & CLIFFORD.

STATE RIGHTS FOR "The Spoilers"

Make big money. Wire or write for terms. Desirable territory still open. Fortunes are being made.

BRILLIANT FOUR-COLOR POSTERS AND HERALDS READY FOR ALL SELIG RELEASES

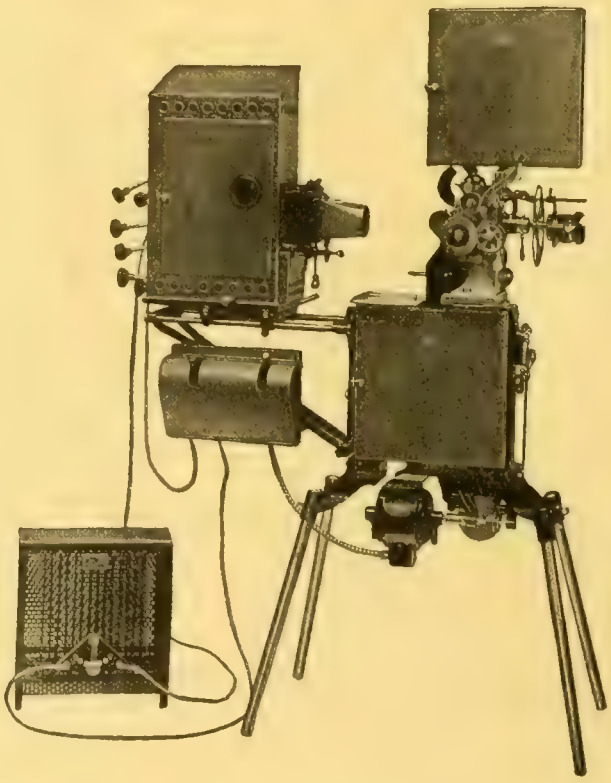
All Selig Pictures Released Through General Film Co. Ask Your Exchange

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY

General Offices, 20 East Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

THE WORLDS FOREMOST PRODUCER

More POWER's To You, Mr. Exhibitor!



Write for Catalog G

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 22, No. 3 October 17, 1914 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "A Dog's Love" (Thanhouser).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

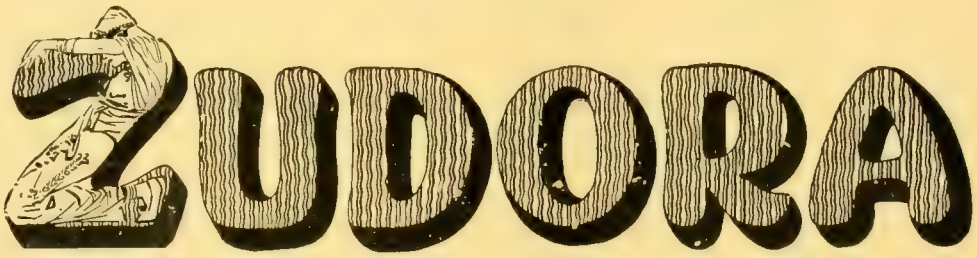
NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

Announcement—

THIS announces the coming of another great Thanhouser serial story to follow The Million Dollar Mystery in the leading theatres and in 500 prominent newspapers.

Watch for



Thanhouser's Greatest Photoplay

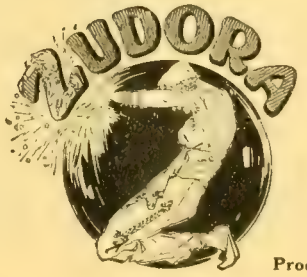
This new production will be a revelation of Hindu mysticism and science. It will portray mechanical effects never before seen at the movies. It is alive with thrills—SENSATIONS. Zudora is the masterful creation of Daniel Carson Goodman—famous author, philosopher, scientist and originator of the modern school of realism in motion pictures.

It has been novelized by Harold MacGrath for the newspapers. The story will be complete in 20 episodes. A two-reel episode will be released EACH WEEK starting November 23.

Write for Booking Information

Exhibitors who profited by the overwhelming success of The Million Dollar Mystery will be quick to realize the value of this new attraction—ZUDORA. Applications are now being received. Rush yours in AT ONCE if you wish to secure this headliner. Write to

Thanhouser Syndicate Corporation
71 West 23rd Street, New York City



Produced by

Thanhouser Film Corporation

New Rochelle, N. Y.

Producers of The Million Dollar Mystery

KAY-BEE

KEYSTONE

BRONCHO

KAY-BEE

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Friday, Oct. 16—The Word of His People.

Friday, Oct. 23—The Spark Eternal.

Friday, Oct. 30—The Worth of a Life.

KEYSTONE

Three a Week

Monday, Oct. 12—The Anglers.
Thursday, Oct. 15—High Spots on Broadway.
Saturday, Oct. 17—Zip, the Dodger.
Monday, Oct. 19—Dash, Love and Splash—Santa Catalina Islands.

The Keystone Co. in the very near future will release a multiple reel comedy every other week in addition to the regular releases.

BRONCHO

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Wednesday, Oct. 14—The End of the Galley.

Wednesday, Oct. 21—Shorty and Sherlock Holmes.

Wednesday, Oct. 28—The Golden Goose.

DOMINO

One Two-Part Photoplay a Week

Thursday, Oct. 15—Jimmy.

Thursday, Oct. 22—The Power of the Angelus.

Thursday, Oct. 29—Eric the Red's Wooing.

Released Exclusively Through the Mutual Film Corporation

PENNANTS—Beautiful bright colored pennants of the four brands can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 35 cents for one, $1.25 for set of four.

PHOTOS—8 x 10 photos of our players can be had by sending to the PUBLICITY DEPT. 15 cents for one, 50 cents for set of four, $1.00 for set of eight.

Keystone Mabel in Four Poses 50 Cents

New York Motion Picture Corporation

FORTY-SECOND ST. and BROADWAY, Longacre Building, NEW YORK

DOMINO

Philadelphia!

The Phenomenal Growth of the Universal

—There are 180 theatres in Philadelphia.

—EIGHTY-SIX of these are being supplied with Universal service.

—You know what the opposition is. It includes the General, the Mutual, Warner's, the Famous Players and DOZENS of smaller feature exchanges. All told they divide about 53 per cent. of the business among them. All the rest (about 47 per cent., nearly half of the whole) is Universal!

—Great heavens, man! What further evidence do you want? What could be a more crushing argument in favor of the Universal's infinite superiority?

—Don't blind yourself to FACTS. Don't go against the stream. Don't crawl against the current when it is so much easier to get in the swim WITH THE CURRENT.

—Watch for further facts about the phenomenal growth of the Universal. Then put on your thinking cap and T-H-I-N-K !

Watch for more facts next week !

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE."

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CARL LAEMMLE, President

Montreal!

The Phenomenal Growth of the Universal

—There are 95 theatres in Montreal and its suburbs.

—Of this number the UNIVERSAL CANADIAN FILM EXCHANGE is supplying 41 with Universal service! Think of it! The Universal is doing nearly half of the entire business in that territory in the face of competition which comprises the Mutual, the General, the Famous Players, Warner's and about 20 smaller feature companies!

—Forty-one out of ninety-five are Universal. The remaining 54 are divided among the COMBINED COMPETITORS !

—This is one of the greatest sensations in the film business. AND MORE TO COME.

Watch next week !

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE."

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CARL LAEMMLE, President

Harry Myers!

His First Universal Release Makes Unprecedented Hit

—We're simply snowed under with wires of congratulation !

—On "ROCK OF HOPE," that first HARRY MYERS' VICTOR, we released last week! Almost every Universal exchange in the country has fired in its telegram of praise—praise for Myers' work, for Miss Theby's work, for Mr. Shaw's work, for our enterprise in securing 'em, and for a better picture than these stars ever produced before they came to Universal. "ROCK OF HOPE" MADE A SMASHING, INSTANTANEOUS, COMPLETE HIT !

—So watch for the second Harry Myers' Victor. Out Friday, October 23rd, under the name of "The Bride of Marblehead" with Myers and his ex-Lubin co-stars—Rosemary Theby and Brinsley Shaw—again. And a totally different kind of drama than "Rock of Hope." It has the greatest explosion at sea you ever saw in a picture. Watch, watch, watch !

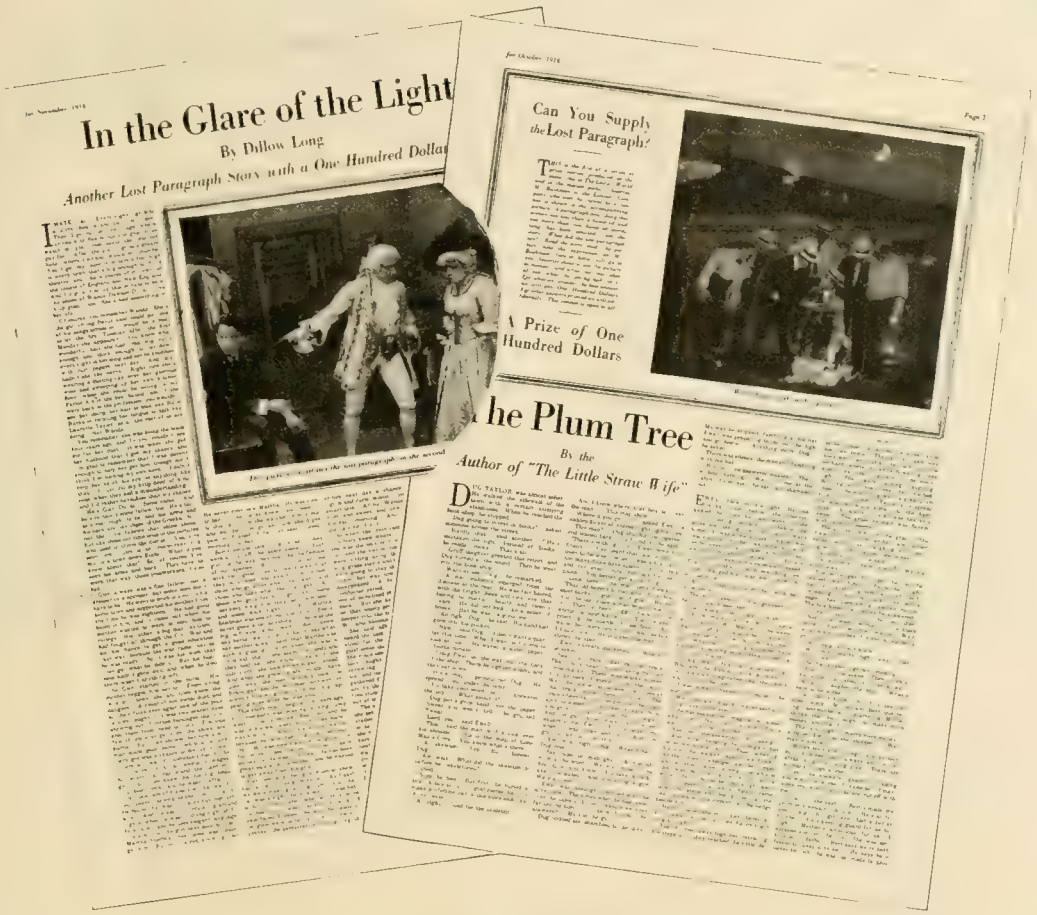
—Watch for MARY FULLER in her first Victor, "The Witch Girl," two-reel masterpiece of Friday, October 30. It will pack your house to suffocation. Order the posters right now!

—Watch for L-KO's crazy—funny "Love and Surgery" (another first release, out Sunday, October 25) with Billy Ritchie and Pathe Lehrman, and weep for the exhibitor who's without the Universal comedies !

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CARL LAEMMLE, President



In the Glare of the Light
By Dillon Long
Another Lost Paragraph Story with a One Hundred Dollar
Can You Supply the Lost Paragraph?
A Prize of One Hundred Dollars
he Plum Tree
By the Author of "The Little Straw Wife"

Lost---a Paragraph in each of these stories in

THE LADIES' WORLD

Millions of "Ladies' World" readers are following the story each month. Millions of them are trying to find the missing paragraph each month. They want to earn

One Hundred Dollars Reward!

They know they can find it in your theatre if you are booking this most unique and very remarkable series of Essanay feature pictures.

Every month a different "Ladies' World" story with prize offers.
Every month the three-reel Essanay feature containing the lost paragraph.
Every month a sure fire hit.

GET IN ON THE MONEY THAT IS OFFERED YOU BY

THE LADIES' WORLD---ESSANAY

ESSANAY

Six - A

G. M. ANDERSON

Three Big Laughs

Three Big Thrills

MARGUERITE CLAYTON

Released Monday, October 19

"She Landed a Big One"

(Sweedie, the Fisherman's Daughter)

Sweedie "shows up" her father as a fisherman.

Released Tuesday, October 20

"Mother O' Dreams"

A stirring drama in which an orphan's dreams of luxuries and a mother's love suddenly become a reality.

Released Wednesday, October 21

THE FABLE OF

"The Long Range Lover and the Lollypalooze"

By GEORGE ADE

How a love-sick lawyer found a Lemon done up in a most attractive Package.

Released Thursday, October 22

"Slippery Slim, the Mortgage and Sophie"

Slippery Slim, the Justice of Peace, marries Mustang and a real comedy results.

Released Friday, October 23

"The Private Officer"

(In 2 Acts)

A romantic and spectacular drama of army life. Adapted from The Munsey Magazines. Featuring FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN.

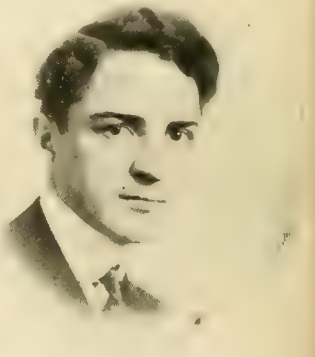
Released Saturday, October 24

"Broncho Billy—Favorite"

A thrilling Western drama, featuring G. M. ANDERSON.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

First to Standardize Photoplays

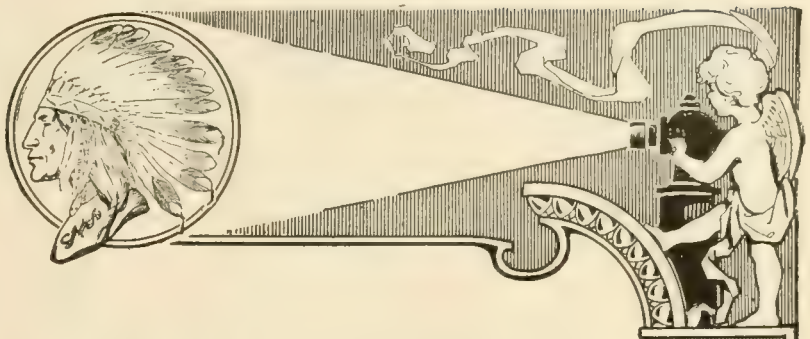


BRYANT WASHBURN.

ESSANAY FILM

Laboratory and Studios, 1333 Argyle St., Chicago. Downtown Offices 521 First

-Week



FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

IS PRESENTED IN

"In the Glare of the Lights"

AND

"THE PLUM TREE"

The man who was voted the world's most popular photoplayer is at his best in these two tremendous dramas, the first of ESSANAY'S prize mystery dramas. "The Plum Tree" (in 3 acts) was released Sept. 18. Exhibitors write that it is breaking all their records for them. "In the Glare of the Lights" (in 3 acts) is booked for release Oct. 17. IT IS ANOTHER WINNER. Both these thrilling plays are produced in conjunction with the complete short stories published in the October and November issues of THE LADIES' WORLD MAGAZINE. In each story a paragraph is missing. LARGE PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR THE BEST WRITTEN MISSING PARAGRAPH. FIVE MILLION READERS of the magazine will demand to see the film dramas in order to solve the mystery.

BOOK THEM NOW

Released through the feature department of the GENERAL FILM CO.

"One Wonderful Night"

(IN FOUR ACTS)

is "packing 'em in" all over the country. It is called "one wonderful picture." FEATURING FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN.

"Blood Will Tell"

(IN THREE ACTS)

The climax of romantic Colonial dramas. Critics call it "one of the best photoplays ever produced."

"The Good-for-Nothing"

(IN FOUR ACTS)

Features G. M. ANDERSON, the most picturesque of all photoplay stars. The drama is one of gripping intensity.

"Ambushed"

(IN THREE ACTS)

Another of those ESSANAY successes abounding in mystery and adventure which delight any audience.

Manufacturing Co.

ational Bank Building. Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona.

The FAMOUS PLAY

HALF YEAR'S

(DISTRIBUTED THROUGH PARAMOUNT

CURRENT RELEASES:

PRODUCTIONS:	ARTISTS:
THE LOST PARADISE	H. B. WARNER
THE UNWELCOME MRS. HATCH	HENRIETTA CROSMAN
SUCH A LITTLE QUEEN	MARY PICKFORD
MARTA OF THE LOWLANDS	MME. BERTHA KALICH
WILDFLOWER	MARGUERITE CLARK

These productions have been recorded in the annals of the industry as distinctive film achievements.

FORTHCOMING ATTRACTIONS:

THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN — MACLYN ARBUCKLE
Henry W. Savage's comedy drama triumph, by GEORGE ADE
Released October 26th

HIS LAST DOLLAR — DAVID HIGGINS
The famous racing play, with the star in his original role
Released October 29th

BEHIND THE SCENES — MARY PICKFORD
The noted play of theatrical life by Margaret Mayo
Released November 2nd

THE MAN FROM MEXICO — JOHN BARRYMORE
H. A. Du Souchet's famous comedy
Released November 9th

THE STRAIGHT ROAD — GLADYS HANSON
The master-work of the distinguished dramatist, CLYDE FITCH
Released November 12th

ARISTOCRACY — TYRONE POWER
The dramatic success of two decades, by BRONSON HOWARD
Released November 26th

MRS. BLACK IS BACK — MAY IRWIN
The distinguished comedienne's foremost comedy success, by GEORGE V. HOBART
Released November 30th

THE STEPSISTER — MARY PICKFORD
A genuine and delightful surprise—a Pickford classic
Released December 21st

AN UNPARALLELED SERIES OF

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director
EDWIN · S · PORTER, Technical Director

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PICTURES

ERS FILM CO.

PROGRAM

PICTURES CORPORATION)

FORTHCOMING ATTRACTIONS—(Continued)

PRODUCTIONS: ARTISTS:

SOLD — PAULINE FREDERICK
The great emotional drama, Pauline Frederick's first film appearance
Released December 28th

THE MILLION — EDWARD ABELES
Second Famous Players-Savage production
Released December 31st

THE CONSPIRACY — JOHN EMERSON
The dramatic triumph of the last theatrical season, with its original star
Released January 7th

THE CRUCIBLE — MARGUERITE CLARK
The powerful and world-famous story by MARK LEE LUTHER Released January 18th

THE DANCING GIRL — FLORENCE REED
The celebrated emotional drama by HENRY ARTHUR JONES
Released January 25th

MISTRESS NELL — MARY PICKFORD
The renowned romantic play by GEO. C. HAZELTON, JR.
Released February 1st

THE LOVE ROUTE — HAZEL DAWN
The recent successful dramatic romance
Released February 4th

HER TRIUMPH — GABY DESLYS
The celebrated international star's first and exclusive film appearance
Released February 8th

THE SIGN OF THE CROSS — WILLIAM FARNUM
A stupendous and spectacular film version of WILSON BARRETT'S immortal drama
Released February 21st (Lent.)

THE COMMANDING OFFICER — JULIAN L'ESTRANGE
An adequate representation of the great military drama
Released February 25th

FILM TRIUMPHS PRODUCED BY THE FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
213~229 WEST 26TH ST.
NEW YORK

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

HENRY·W·SAVAGE
In association with the Famous Players Film Co.
Offers

MACLYN ARBUCKLE

In GEORGE ADE'S
Comedy Drama Triumph,

"THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN,"

with
WILLIS·P·SWEATNAM,
In Five Reels,

For many years conceded to be the greatest stage contribution to American humor

PRODUCED BY THE

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM Co.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President,
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director EDWIN·S·PORTER, Technical Director
Executive Offices,
213-229 W. 26TH. STREET, NEW YORK.

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

36 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

MASTERPIECE FILMS MASTERPIECE FILMS

MR. MAX FIGMAN

Supported by MISS LOLITA ROBERTSON
in

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"

(Five Reels)
By Edward Eggleston

TO BE RELEASED OCTOBER 22

WRITE OR WIRE FOR RESERVATIONS

Attractive paper consisting of three one-sheet, two three-sheet, one six-sheet and one twenty-four-sheet.

Aside from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Les Miserables," "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" is probably more widely read by the American public than any other novel.

The production of the film version of this work is thoroughly in keeping with the greatness of the subject.

M. DE LA PARELLE, Producer
Elliott J. Clawson, Assistant Producer

Address all communications to

THE MASTERPIECE FILM MFG. CO.

1111 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

MASTERPIECE FILMS MASTERPIECE FILMS

JESSE L.

JESSE L. LASKY

PRESENTS

FOR THE SECOND PARAMOUNT QUARTER

The following eloquently magnificent array of known successes and star players.

DECEMBER

7 THE GHOST BREAKER with H. B. Warner

14 THE MAN FROM HOME with Charles Richman
In Association with Liebler Co.

24 CAMEO KIRBY with Dustin Farnum
In Association with Liebler Co.

JANUARY

4 THE GOVERNOR'S LADY All-Belasco Cast
In Association with David Belasco

11 THE GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST All-Belasco Cast
In Association with David Belasco

21 THE GOOSE GIRL Special All-Star Cast of Players

28 MERELY MARY ANN All-Star Cast
In Association with Liebler Co.

FEBRUARY

15 WARRENS OF VIRGINIA Star Announced Later
In Association with David Belasco

18 THE COUNTRY BOY Special All-Star Cast of Players

MARCH

1 THE WOMAN Star Announced Later
In Association with David Belasco

All produced on the universally recognized LASKY standard of artistic excellence.

JESSE L. LA

LONG ACRE THEATRE

JESSE L. LASKY
President

SAMUEL
Treas. and

LASKY

Basing Nothing on Promises, Announcement of What Has Gone Before and What is to Come on the

FIRST PARAMOUNT QUARTER

Reveals a continued desire to achieve a goal of artistry and productive thoroughness heretofore not attempted by any producers.

SEPTEMBER

7 THE VIRGINIAN with Dustin Farnum
NOW PLAYING

17 The MAKING of BOBBY BURNIT with Edward Abeles
NOW PLAYING

OCTOBER

15 WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES with Robert Edeson

22 WHAT'S HIS NAME with Max Figman

NOVEMBER

5 READY MONEY with Edward Abeles

16 ROSE OF THE RANCHO with Bessie Barriscale and Belasco Cast
In Association with David Belasco

12 THE RINGMASTER with Theodore Roberts

Original Policy of One Production a month relegated to the discard by popular public demand which now calls for twenty-eight LASKY productions during the forthcoming Paramount Year.

SKY FEATURE PLAY CO.
NEW YORK CITY

GOLDFISH
Gen. Mgr.

CECIL B. DE MILLE
Dir. Gen.

WORLD'S LARGEST
SAWYER INC.
FILM MART
1600 BROADWAY-NEW YORK

"D O C"

THE SAWYER PROGRAM NEEDS NO DOCTORING
—specially when such writers as Eleanor Gates are on the list with their biggest successes.

"D O C"—First a "Saturday Evening Post" Feature
NOW a Four Reel SAWYER Feature

FIVE MILLION PEOPLE READ THE STORY—THEY ALL WANT TO SEE THE FILM

THE ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY

GREAT DRAMA OF DIPLOMACY, LOVE AND WAR

Written and Produced by Lorimer Johnston for the SANTA BARBARA MOTION PICTURE CO., Who Also Created "THIRTY MINUTES OF MELODRAMA."

Two Reel Comedy Burlesque—The Laugh Hit of the Year

PHOENIX FILM CO., of San Rafael, California, Presents

FRANK NEWBURG (Former Vitagraph and Selig Star) in

"THE SPIRIT OF THE CONQUEROR"

or "The Napoleon of Labor"

Napoleon comes back to earth. In his second life he becomes the champion of organized labor, leading the forces of labor in their battle against capitalism and oppression. His masterly generalship leads them to victory—and without violence! A charming romance is woven into this unique drama.

MASTERPIECE OF STORY AND PRODUCTION

THE TYRANNY OF THE MAD CZAR

Thrilling Four Reel Historical Drama
MAGNIFICENT PRODUCTION
GORGEOUS SETTING
HUNDREDS OF ACTORS

THE KING OF THE BOWERY

Another Four Reel Money-Getter
Picturesque East Side of
New York—Its Life, Its Feuds
This Picture has a Punch

"SAWYER ZONES WILL BOOK YOU"

ZONE OFFICES

1. NEW YORK—1600 Broadway.
2. BOSTON—Phoenix Feature Film Co., 129 Columbus Ave.
3. NEWARK—"Sawyer."
4. ALBANY—"Sawyer," 29 N. Pearl St.
5. MONTREAL—"Sawyer," New Birks Building.
6. PHILADELPHIA—Ford Features, 1126 Vine St.
7. PITTSBURGH—"Sawyer."
8. BUFFALO—"Sawyer," 509 Iroquois Building, Chas. F. Rich, Mgr.
9. OHIO—Edwards-Zetler Feature Film Co., 294 N. High St., Columbus.
10. DETROIT—Progressive Film & Equipment Co., 97 Woodward Ave.
11. INDIANAPOLIS—"Sawyer."
12. CHICAGO—Union Film Co., 164 W. Washington St
13. OMAHA—"Sawyer," 1404 Douglas St.
14. MINNEAPOLIS—Sherman Feature Film Service, Temple Court Building.
15. ST. LOUIS—"Sawyer."
16. KNOXVILLE—"Sawyer."
17. DALLAS—Dallas Film Co., Andrews Building.
18. DENVER—Will open later.
19. SAN FRANCISCO—Nat. A. Magner Co., Inc.
20. SEATTLE—"Sawyer."
21. WASHINGTON, D. C.—Heffert National Film Co., 225 Woodward Building.
22. LOS ANGELES—Nat. A. Magner Co., Inc.
23. SYRACUSE—"Sawyer."
24. CLEVELAND—Edwards-Zetler Feature Film Co., 623 Superior Ave.
25. WINNIPEG, CAN.—"Sawyer."
26. KANSAS CITY—"Sawyer," 663 Gibraltar Bldg.

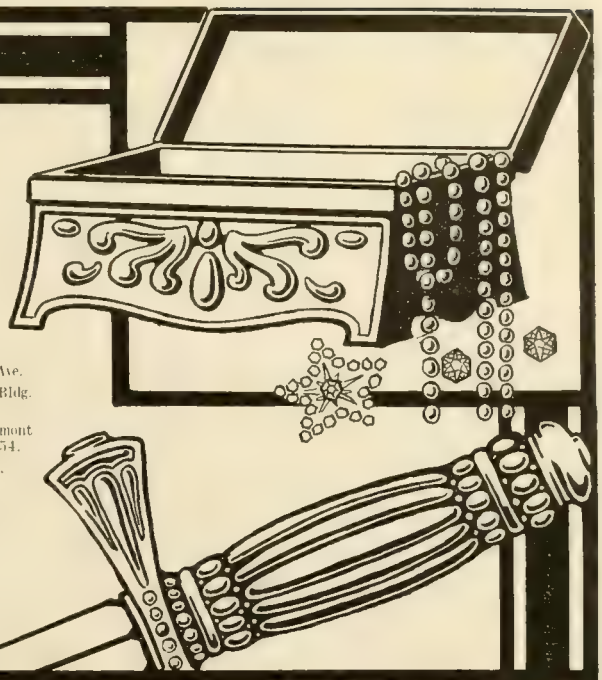
The Box Office Attraction Co.

William Fox President

Executive Offices: 130 W. 46th Street, New York

Exchanges Operating in

New York 130 West 46th St. Phone, Bryant 7340.
Chicago—Mallers Bldg. Phone 1716 Central.
Cleveland Columbia Bldg. Central, 6260 R; Bell Phone, Main 5677.
Philadelphia 1333 Vine St. Phone, Walnut 4503 4
Dallas—1907 Commerce St.
Minneapolis — Jewelers Exchange Bldg. Phone, Northwestern Nicollet 2498.
St. Louis—3632 Olive St.
San Francisco —107 Golden Gate Ave.
Pittsburgh—121 Fourth Ave.
Syracuse—Eckel Theatre Bldg. Phone, Warren 119
Boston 10 and 12 Piedmont St. Phone, Oxford 6254.
Kansas City—928 Main St.
Denver—Ideal Bldg.
Seattle -1214 Third Ave.



The

CRIMINAL CODE

In 4 Reels of Intensity with a BIG PUNCH at the Finish—

NOW RELEASED

Wire, Write or Call at Nearest Exchange

BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION POLICY.

Three feature photoplays weekly.
Three exclusive single reels a week.
Three special big productions monthly.

LENA RIVERS

READY FOR SHIPMENT

A WELL-KNOWN CAST
OF
MOVING PICTURE PERFORMERS
WITH

VIOLET HORNER

IN THE TITLE ROLE

CONSTITUTE
THIS SPLENDID PHOTOPLAY IN FIVE PARTS FROM THE
FAMOUS BOOK
BY

MARY JANE HOLMES

A FULL LINE OF ADVERTISING MATTER

WIRE OR WRITE

110 W. 40th St. WHITMAN FEATURES CO. NEW YORK

PHONE, 5667 BRYANT

JANE EYRE

BY

CHARLOTTE BRONTE

A FOUR PART

PRODUCTION WHICH WILL MORE THAN SATISFY THE MILLIONS OF READERS OF THE BOOK, AND ONE THAT WILL THRILL THOSE WHO ARE NOT FAMILIAR WITH THIS WONDERFUL STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BEING SHOWN DAILY

AT THE OFFICES OF

110 W. 40th St. WHITMAN FEATURES CO. NEW YORK

PHONE, 5667 BRYANT

The WARNING

A Perfect Production

A 3 reel Wharton-made American Drama, pronounced by members of the board of censorship to be the finest they had seen in months. A moral lesson which nobody can dodge, presented in some of the most strikingly dramatic scenes ever screened. A wayward son glimpses the future in which his father, impatient of the law, takes it upon himself to punish the son for his degrading crimes. Without exception this is one of the great masterpieces among photoplays. Features Creighton Hale and M. O. Penn. 1-3-6 sheet posters.

The Broken Promise

Four-part drama—love and revenge by the seaside—a moving story of a quaint people amidst quaint surroundings. An old-fashioned fishing village by the sea is the scene for many splendid backgrounds, exceptional acting and interest which is kept at a glow. 1-3-6 sheet posters.

Miss Cinderella

One reel comedy by the All Comedy Company. A modern Cinderella at a mountain resort and her slipper in the trout brook make a fine catch for the Prince Fisherman. The best in film entertainment. 1 sheet posters.

The Perils of Pauline

If you want to gamble with your feature films all right, but run Pauline at the same time and you've got a steady puller which appeals so strongly to the fundamentals of human nature that it can't fail to please. This great serial film is a performance in itself.

PAULINE TAKES ANXIETY OUT OF THE BOX OFFICE

ECLECTIC FEATURE FILM EXCHANGES FOR YOUR USE

Atlanta—61 Walton St.
Boston—3 Tremont Row
Chicago—5 So. Wabash Ave.
Cincinnati—217 E. 5th St.
Cleveland—622 Prospect Ave., S. E.
Dallas—Andrews Bldg.
Denver—Nassau Bldg.
Kansas City—928 Main St.
Los Angeles—114 E. 7th St.
Minneapolis—4th & Hennepin Sts.
New Orleans—910 Gravier St.
New York—115 E. 23rd St.
Omaha—1312 Farnam St.
Philadelphia—1235 Vine St.
Pittsburgh—715 Liberty Ave.
Portland—392 Burnside Ave.
Salt Lake City—68 South Main St.
San Francisco—67 Turk St.
Seattle—810 Third Ave.
St. Louis—3210 Locust St.
Syracuse—214 E. Fayette St.
Washington—7th and E Sts. N. W.

THE ECLECTIC FILM COMPANY

"The Cream of American

ECLECTIC FILMS PATHÉ-NEW YORK

110 WEST 40th ST., NEW YORK

and European Studios"

WILLAT

Studios and Laboratories

Now Open for Business

LARGEST BEST EQUIPPED
NEWEST

STUDIOS to Rent
By the Day

Printing and Developing
For the Trade

Capacity, 1,500,000 Feet per Week

Inspection Invited

We cordially invite everyone interested in the Motion Picture industry to inspect the New Willat Studios and Laboratories. C. A. "Doc" Willat will be glad to show anyone over the entire plant (10 minutes' car ride from Fort Lee Ferry—130th Street).

Willat Studios and Laboratories
Inc.
Fort Lee, N. J.

COMING

POPULAR PROGRAM

A NEW HIGH-CLASS SERVICE

28 Reels Weekly 1-2-3 Reels

All Features

Comedy Dramatic

BRANDS

Jester, Comedy		Cee-O-Bee, Photoplay
Owl	"	Willat	"
Gaiety	"	Longacre	"
Luna	"	Niagara	"
Frolic	"	Palisade	"
"O.K."	"	Canyon	"
Pastime	"	Continental	"

Popular Photo Plays Corp.

911 Longacre Bldg., New York City

Whatever Happens

you can get it as it happened as fast as the express can carry it from camera man to factory to you. Then whatever happens to your other films you needn't worry for you have the sufficient in itself to fill the house many times a day. You hit everybody with this news, because it's the news that everybody wants to know about and it contains so much of interest that every individual in your audience will find something of SPECIAL INTEREST to him.

Pathé Daily News

The Pathé Daily News puts life into every exhibition.

Issued semi-weekly.

Now to be obtained through the Eclectic Feature Film Exchanges.

ATLANTA 61 Walton St.	CINCINNATI 217 E. 5th St.	DENVER Nassau Bldg.	MINNEAPOLIS 4th & Hennepin Sts.	OMAHA 1312 Farnam St.	PORTLAND 392 Burnside Ave.
BOSTON 3 Tremont Row	CLEVELAND 622 Prospect Av.,S.E.	KANSAS CITY 928 Main St.	NEW ORLEANS 910 Gravier St.	PHILADELPHIA 1235 Vine St.	SALT LAKE CITY 68 South Main St.
CHICAGO 5 So. Wabash Ave.	DALLAS Andrews Bldg.	LOS ANGELES 114 E. 7th St.	NEW YORK 115 East 23d St.	PITTSBURGH 715 Liberty Ave.	SAN FRANCISCO 67 Turk St.
	SEATTLE 810 Third Ave.	ST. LOUIS 3210 Locust St.	SYRACUSE 214 E. Fayette St.	WASHINGTON 7th & E Sts., N. W.

THE ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 WEST FORTIETH
NEW YORK CITY

"The Cream of American and European Studios"

THE HOUSE OF SELIG

SELIG LEADS OTHERS FOLLOW

SELIG CREATES OTHERS IMITATE

ANOTHER BIG SELIG FEATURE

IN THREE SPECTACULAR REELS

GARRISON'S FINISH

From the Popular Novel by W. B. M. FERGUSON. Released October 15

A thrilling, gripping, exciting, race-track picture play filled with powerful dramatic scenes and vivid action

PRODUCED AS ONLY SELIG CAN

Magnificently staged with spectacular scenes on a real race track. Every detail true to life and complete with genuine accessories. Thousands of participants in the big scenes, running horses, jockeys, trainers, etc.

OTHER GREAT SELIG THREE-REEL FEATURES ALREADY RELEASED

HERE THEY ARE!

IN TUNE WITH THE WILD

Three Reels Written by E. A. MARTIN

A great Selig Jungle-Zoo Special, featuring

KATHLYN WILLIAMS

CHIP OF THE FLYING "U"

Three Reels Written by B. M. BOWER

A hilarious Western Comedy, featuring

KATHLYN WILLIAMS

THE FIFTH MAN

Three Reels Written by JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

A spectacular Selig Jungle-Zoo animal picture, featuring

BESSIE EYTON

HEARTS AND MASKS

Three Reels Written by HAROLD MAC GRATH

A sensational Selig detective drama, featuring

KATHLYN WILLIAMS

LITHOGRAPHED POSTERS— One-sheets, three-sheets and six-sheets, in four brilliant colors; also SELIG HERALDS ready for use with each feature. There are more to come. Get into line now. Make your theatre profitable with Selig features.

Order these great Selig Features with Posters and Heralds NOW from Special Feature Department, General Film Co. Write or wire TODAY.

Get your local newspaper to run the stories about these great Selig pictures just before the dates when you will exhibit the pictures. The newspaper can get plates for all of these stories already released, from the Western Newspaper Union, Chicago.

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY

General Offices, 20 East Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

THE WORLDS FOREMOST PRODUCER

COLUMBUS FILM

RELEASED THROUGH

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

EVERY TUESDAY

Tuesday, October 6th	What Would You Do?	Single Reel Comedy.
Tuesday, October 13th	Why Skunkville Went Dry	Single Reel Comedy.
Tuesday, October 20th	Love Charm	Single Reel Comedy.
Tuesday, October 27th	Mulligan's Ghost	Single Reel Comedy.

SPECIAL FEATURE RELEASES

Monday, Oct. 19 THE RED CROSS NURSE—3 Reels

A THRILLING WAR STORY

Monday, Oct. 26—WHEN LIONS ESCAPE—3 Reels

EXCITING ANIMAL DRAMA

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

COLUMBUS FILM

110 West 40th Street, NEW YORK

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

The Headliner Everywhere

Throughout the United States and Canada

—at the better theatres everywhere—The Million Dollar Mystery is a headliner. No other motion picture production vies with it for this honor. It leads! And this supremacy is due to the exceptionally high quality of the picture—to the fine photography, the interesting plots and the wonderful acting.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

Story by Harold MacGrath Scenario by Lloyd Lonergan

Thanhouser's Million Dollar Motion Picture Production

Exhibitors: Episode No. 17 has just been released. The story is complete in 23 episodes. A two-reel episode is released each week. The story by Harold MacGrath is now appearing in 300 of the leading newspapers. $10,000.00 will be paid for the best 100-word solution of the mystery. Bookings on all episodes are now being arranged. Apply to

SYNDICATE FILM CORPORATION

71 W. 23rd Street, New York Room 411, 5 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago

or Syndicate Film Corporation Representative at Any Mutual Exchange in the United States and Canada

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Tuesday, Oct. 13. "The Diamond of Disaster." (Two reels.) A strong drama played by an exceptional cast, including Irving Cummings, Carey L. Hastings, J. S. Murray, Ernest Ward, Daniel H. Thompson and Justus D. Barnes.

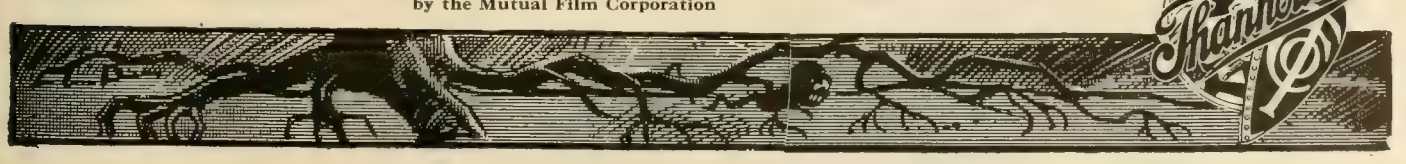
Sunday, Oct. 18. "Left in the Train." One-reel drama, featuring Mildred Hellar, Virginia Waite, J. S. Murray and the Thanhouser twins—Madeline and Marion Fairbanks.

49

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Head European Office, Thanhouser Films, Ltd., London, W. C., England

Regular Thanhouser Releases are distributed exclusively in the United States and Canada by the Mutual Film Corporation



SHUBERT FEATURES

WORLD FILM
Exclusive

Lewis J. Selznick

World Film Corporation

Presents

A SPECIAL RELEASE

The Messrs. Shuberts'

Photoplay Reproduction of World Famous

NEW YORK HIPPODROME

Stupendous Spectacle

"AMERICA"

in 6 Parts

Released October 19th

Arrange bookings through nearest office

ATLANTA	DETROIT	MONTREAL	SEATTLE
BOSTON	DALLAS	MINNEAPOLIS	ST. LOUIS
BUFFALO	DENVER	NEW YORK	SAN FRANCISCO
CHICAGO	INDIANAPOLIS	NEW ORLEANS	SALT LAKE CITY
CLEVELAND	KANSAS CITY	PHILADELPHIA	TORONTO
CINCINNATI	LOS ANGELES	PITTSBURG	WASHINGTON

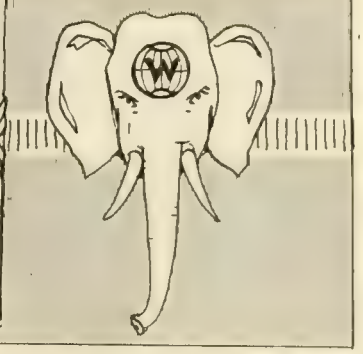
Home Office: 130 W. 46th St. New York City

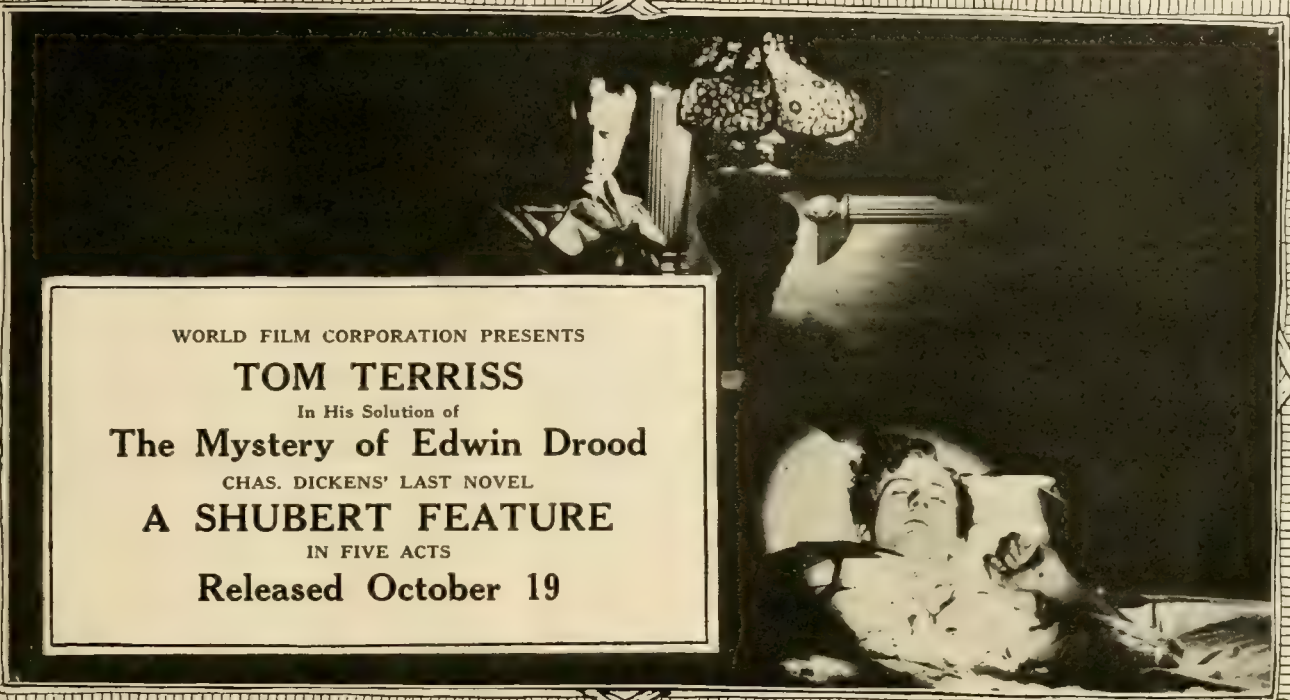
$2 Plays to offer to your public for 10c.

CORPORATION
Rights to all

WILLIAM A. BRADY
Picture Play Co. inc.
FEATURES

Vice Pres & Genl. Mgr.





WORLD FILM CORPORATION PRESENTS

TOM TERRISS

In His Solution of

The Mystery of Edwin Drood

CHAS. DICKENS' LAST NOVEL

A SHUBERT FEATURE

IN FIVE ACTS

Released October 19

WORLD FILM CORPORATION PRESENTS

When Broadway Was a Trail

With BARBARA TENNANT

A Beautiful Love Story of Old New Amsterdam

Superbly Pictured

A SHUBERT FEATURE

IN FIVE ACTS

Released October 26

$2 Plays to offer to your public for 10c.

LUBIN

A SERIES OF BEAUTIFUL PHOTOPLAYS

"The Beloved Adventurer"

By Emmett Campbell Hall

Featuring

Arthur Johnson and Lottie Briscoe

ALSO PUBLISHED IN BOOK FORM—15,000 Copies Sold the First Week

HERALDS
for
"The Beloved Adventurer"
from Hennegan & Co.,
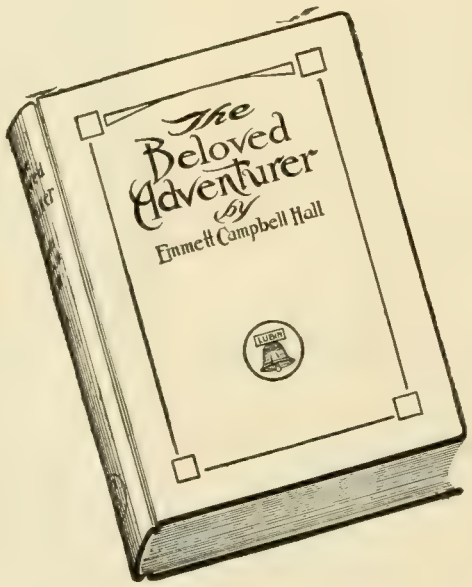
Cincinnati, Ohio.

POSTERS
from
the A. B. C. Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Released on the regular programme every Monday through the General Film Co.



1st of Series—
"Lord Cecil Intervenes"
2nd of Series—
"An Untarnished Shield"
3rd of Series—
"An Affair of Honor"
4th of Series—
"An American Heiress"
5th of Series—
"The Girl from the West"
6th of Series—
"The Golden Hope"
7th of Series—
"The Holdup"

A Series of 15 Single Reel Dramatic Photoplays—One Released Each Monday
The First Was Released September 14th

Fifteen chapters to the book, each chapter in its regular order, representing a release. FULL CLOTH BINDING, with fifteen full page half-tone illustrations, including an autographed frontispiece of Arthur Johnson

Single copies, 25 cents; in lots of 25 or more, 15 cents each

Secure these books from the General Film Co. Exchanges. Exhibitors are urged to place immediate orders as the Edition is limited.

Lubin Manufacturing Company

Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Office, 154 West Lake Street

LUBIN

THE PRODUCER OF MASTERPIECES

EVERY EXHIBITOR SHOULD BOOK THESE EXCEPTIONAL FEATURES. (Through the General Film Special Service.)

WILLIAM ELLIOTT (Late Star of "Madame X" Co.) in

SIX REELS — "THE FORTUNE HUNTER" — By WINCHELL SMITH
Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

FIVE REELS — "THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR" — By J. HARTLEY MANNERS
Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

SIX REELS — "THE WOLF" — By EUGENE WALTER
Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

THREE REELS — "MARAH, THE PYTHONESS" — By CLAY M. GREENE
Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

READY FOR EARLY RELEASE

EVELYN NESBIT THAW
AND HER SON, RUSSELL WILLIAM THAW

FIVE REELS — "THREADS OF DESTINY" — By WILLIAM H. CLIFFORD
Produced by JOSEPH W. SMILEY

EDWIN ARDEN IN

FIVE REELS — "EAGLE'S NEST" — By EDWIN ARDEN
Produced by ROMAINE FIELDING

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

In a Five-Reel Comedy Drama by LAWRENCE McCLOSKEY — Produced by GEORGE TERWILLIGER

THREE REELS — "STONEWALL JACKSON'S WAY" — By EMMETT CAMPBELL HALL Produced by EDGAR JONES

IN PREPARATION

ROSE COGHLAN
and ETHEL CLAYTON in

SIX REELS — "THE SPORTING DUCHESS" — By CECIL RALEIGH
Produced by BARRY O'NEIL

SIX REGULAR RELEASES EACH WEEK

"THE BELOVED ADVENTURER," 5th of Series, "THE GIRL FROM THE WEST" Drama. Monday, October 12th
"SWAMI SAM," "NEIGHBORLY NEIGHBORS," Split Reel Comedies. Tuesday, October 13th.
"THE BOND OF WOMANHOOD," Two-Reel Drama. Wednesday, October 14th.
"THE IMPOSTOR," Two-Reel Drama. Thursday, October 15th.
"THE LONG LANE," Drama. Friday, October 16th.
"THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER," Comedy. Saturday, October 17th.

SPECIAL ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS

Lubin Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
Chicago Office - - - 154 West Lake Street

$20,000 WAS PAID THIS BEAUTIFUL 22-YEAR OLD GIRL

For Her Magnificent Work in George Kleine's Modern Masterpiece

"The Naked Truth"

IN FIVE PARTS

Featuring, in almost every scene, the wonderful work of LYDA BORELLI. $20,000 for five reels, $4,000 a reel, $4.00 a foot. We think that establishes a unique world record for salary and at the same time assures you something very unusual in histrionic talent!

"THE NAKED TRUTH" is founded on the French Novel by Henry Bataille. It's a virile, earthy drama of today. It's a story of a Woman's Surpassing Love and Its Disillusionment. A pretty story Vividly and Brilliantly told.

"THE NAKED TRUTH" is booking heavily. Everybody likes The Naked Truth—so will you—so will your patronage. Arrange to play it NOW!

PHONE OR WRITE THE NEAREST BELOW LISTED KLEINE BRANCH OFFICE

The following George Kleine attractions are booking heavily. Set a date now. Pick your dullest day and try them out. They're money-makers, every one!

THE LION OF VENICE

A Magnificent Six-Part Subject. Made in Venice, Italy, by the Photo Drama Company. In Six Parts.

SPARTACUS

A Mammoth Spectacle, employing thousands of people in the making. A twin sister to "Quo Vadis?" Contains the largest arena scenes in pictures. A story of Ancient Rome. In six parts.

EUROPEAN ARMIES IN ACTION

Timely Views of the Great War! Contains scenes of German, French, English, Belgian, Austrian and Servian Troops in Action. A sure money-getter. In Four Parts.

GEORGE KLEINE

Chicago—166 N. State St.
Denver 405 Railroad Bldg.
Seattle—213 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
Dallas—238 Saner Bldg.
New York—226 W. 42nd St.
Minneapolis — 210 Temple Court Bldg.
San Francisco 653 Pacific Bldg.
Toronto—76 Adelaide St. W.
Atlanta—43 Moore Bldg.
Pittsburgh — 509 Lyceum Theatre Bldg.
Los Angeles—701 Majestic Theatre Bldg.
Boston—597 Washington St.

BOUND, GAGGED AND TIED BETWEEN THE RAILS!

Just one of the many thrilling scenes in George Kleine's latest "Special" now booking through the SPECIAL FEATURE DEPARTMENT OF THE GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

"The Golden Beetle"

IN FOUR PARTS

ESSENTIALLY A STORY OF ADVENTURE on the High Seas and in the Jungles of India. Four Reels of Thrills and Excitement that will delight the man who loves sensational film.

A STORY FAIRLY BRISTLING WITH ACTION. Conspicuous for its tense moments, its spectacular battles with jungle beasts and its clever, intricate but easily followed plot.

SURREY'S ADVENTURES IN THE JUNGLE BENEATH THE RUINED TEMPLE; His rescue from the grave; His message for help tied to the wings of a ferocious eagle; His battle with a lion in the jungle; His shipwreck and his final return to claim his legacy, are absorbing incidents in a story charged with unusual situations and exciting exploits.

NOW BOOKING THROUGH SPECIAL FEATURE DEPARTMENT OF THE GENERAL FILM COMPANY

You can also book the following Kleine "Special Features" through the various feature departments of The General Film Company.

VENDETTA

From the novel by Marie Corelli. Now playing to capacity business throughout the United States. Unquestionably the best five-part commercial subject ever released under the Kleine standard. In five parts.

OTHELLO

A photo-dramatic masterpiece made in Venice, Italy. Follows closely the Shakespearean version. The first serious attempt to preserve in film the beautiful drama of the master poet. In five parts.

THE SONG OF THE SOUL

A story featuring Francesca Bertini, beautiful in conception and execution. A modern heart-interest drama. In three parts.

(Full line of publicity matter for each attraction)

GEORGE KLEINE

166 N. State Street CHICAGO, ILL.

EDISON

BOOTLES' BABY

A dramatic adaptation of the celebrated novel by the same name. By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

Thoroughly at a loss to account for the feeling, all of Gilchrist's companions felt a certain restraint whenever he came around. Broody and melancholy, he diffused an air of gloom that was very depressing. Gilchrist's life had become embittered by an unhappy marriage and despite the fact that his wife and child were in want, he had thrown them both off with contempt.

Grace Gilchrist made one last appeal, and then realizing that she would have to make her way in the world, decided to impress Gilchrist with his responsibility by leaving the baby girl for him to care for. She crept into his quarters and left the sleeping child on his bed, pinning a note on her sleeve saying that he would have to provide for her until she could secure a position.

How the baby became the care of a comrade "Bootles" and how he eventually proposed to Grace is the most interesting part of the plot. In two parts. 2,000 ft. To be released Friday, Oct. 23rd.

COMING EDISON RELEASES

Monday, October 19th	THE ADVENTURE OF THE SMUGGLED DIAMONDS	1,000 ft. Drama
Tuesday, October 20th	THE MAN IN THE DARK	1,000 ft. Drama
Wednesday, October 21st	TWO'S COMPANY	1,000 ft. Drama
Friday, October 23rd	BOOTLES' BABY	2,000 ft. Drama
Saturday, October 24th	BUSTER BROWN'S UNCLE	500 ft. Comedy
	A QUESTION OF CLOTHES	500 ft. Comedy

TWO GREAT EDISON SUCCESSES

"THE LONG WAY," a three part reel just released. A masterpiece of dramatic production. Scenic and photographic effects are very beautiful. (Now ready.)

"MY FRIEND FROM INDIA," another masterpiece in which Walter E. Perkins is in the title role. To be obtained through the General Film Company's special releases. Full of laughs. (Now ready.)

Order Edison Posters of the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, direct.

TRADE MARK

Thomas A Edison

Thomas A. Edison, Inc.
239 Lakeside Ave., Orange, N. J.
Makers of Edison Kinetoscope, Model D.

VITAGRAPH

"'Midst Woodland Shadows"

An Idyl .....MONDAY, OCTOBER 12

Born amid the beauties of nature, Anita meets, like a vision, a man. They are mutually attracted and wedded amid the most entrancing scenes eye has ever beheld. ANITA STEWART and EARLE WILLIAMS in the leads.

"Mareea, the Foster Mother"

Two-Part Drama .....TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13

Her love for others and her unselfish interest in them, brings her joy and happiness. Her greatest happiness is reciprocated love of her foster child. ANNE SCHAEFER and all-star cast.

"The Peacemaker"

Comedy .....WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14

The shrewdness of an old friend patches up a lovers' quarrel. It is so cleverly done, both admit it was no fault of the other. VAN DYKE BROOKE, NORMA TALMADGE and ANTONIO MORENO.

"His Dominant Passion"

Drama .....THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15

Greed leads him to a crime, that robs him of his family. He discovers his ill-gotten gain is only dross and he dies of remorse. LEAH BAIRD and WILLIAM HUMPHREY are the principals.

"Fatty's Sweetheart"

Comedy .....FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16

He tries to do the hero act for her benefit. He finds himself a hero without trying. It's a bigger surprise to him than anybody else. There's where the laugh comes in. HUGHIE MACK as the hero.

"The Girl in the Case"

Two-Part Drama .....SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17

She finds herself in a tight place. She gets out of it, saves her sweetheart and arrests his false accusers. It's a thrilling and daring attempt, very successfully performed. MAURICE COSTELLO in the lead.

SIX A WEEK

"HIS WEDDED WIFE"
Drama .....Monday, October 19

"ANNE OF THE MINES"
Two-Part Drama .....Tuesday, October 20

"UNDER FALSE COLORS"
Comedy .....Wednesday, October 21

"THE MILL OF LIFE"
Drama .....Thursday, October 22

"A COSTUME PIECE"
Comedy .....Friday, October 23

"GOODBYE SUMMER"
Two-Part Drama .....Saturday, October 24

VITAGRAPH ONE, THREE AND SIX-SHEET POSTERS

THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA, E. 15th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

PREMIERE MOTION PICTURES

Produced by the VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

RELEASED

A MILLION BID	5 PARTS
GOODNESS GRACIOUS	3 PARTS
MR. BARNES OF N. Y.	6 PARTS
LOVE, LUCK and GASOLENE	3 PARTS
CAPTAIN ALVAREZ	6 PARTS
SHADOWS OF THE PAST	3 PARTS
BINGLES' MELODRAMA	3 PARTS
MY OFFICIAL WIFE	5 PARTS
UNCLE BILL	3 PARTS
THE PAINTED WORLD	3 PARTS
FLORIDA ENCHANTMENT	5 PARTS

COMING SOON

BROADWAY'S GREATEST SENSATION
THE SMASHING HIT

"413"

3-PART DETECTIVE DRAMA WITH A THOUSAND THRILLS

THE MOST REALISTIC TRAIN WRECK EVER FILMED. ALL-STAR CAST

FILMDOM'S LAUGHING SUCCESS

The Win(k)some Widow

4-PART COMEDY —WITH— CISSY FITZ-GERALD HER FAMOUS WINK AND GREATEST CAST IN COMEDY

AS PRESENTED AT THE

Vitagraph Theatre

NEW YORK CITY

FOR TERMS AND PARTICULARS APPLY

General Film Co.'s SPECIAL SERVICE

By Arrangement with Broadway Star Feature Co. (Inc.)

STATE RIGHTS STILL AVAILABLE FOR "THE CHRISTIAN"

APPLY VITAGRAPH-LIEBLER FEATURE FILM CO. 116 NASSAU ST., N. Y. C.

KALEM'S FIVE-A-WEEK

THE LYNBROOK TRAGEDY

A Two-Act Modern Drama of the Alice Joyce Series

Her father, dragged to ruin by heartless Vivian Gregg, Ruth Malloy desperately battles to save her sweetheart from a similar fate. How the cup of victory is dashed from the actress' lips comes as a startling surprise. Get this feature.

Released Monday, October 26th. The most stirring scenes shown on the 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters.

THE NO-ACCOUNT COUNT

Having stolen the count's clothes, Weary Willie endeavors to masquerade as the French nobleman. But he gladly goes back to hoboing when he takes one peek at the awful face of the heiress who seeks to wed him.

Released Tuesday, October 27th.

HAM, and the VILLAIN FACTORY

Tad sees his sweetheart autoing with his rival, Ham. Later Tad has a fearful and wonderful dream. And the adventures which befall Ruth Roland, Lloyd V. Hamilton and Marshal Neilan in this farce make this the greatest rib-tickler ever released by Kalem.

Released Friday, October 30th.

The MENACE OF FATE

Alice Hollister and an All-Star Cast in a Two-Act Drama.

Stolen from wealthy parents in infancy, Ethel Wilton grows up a typical product of the slums. At a great crisis in her life young Doctor Westcott appears. The manner in which he saves the girl and restores her to her grieving parents fills this story with heart-throbs.

Released Wednesday, October 28th. Strong 1, 3 and 6-Sheets.

THE VENGEANCE OF WINONA

The battle in which the Indian lover conquers his sweetheart's kidnappers is so real as to make your patrons lean forward in their seats. An Indian drama that is out of the ordinary.

Released Saturday, October 31st. Superb 1 and 3-Sheets.

Says Helen:—"Diving on horseback from a 50-ft. cliff is all in the day's work for me!"

KALEM COMPANY, 235-9 W. 23d St., New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers

WESTERN OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.
DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this Issue will be found on page 414.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, October 17, 1914.

Facts and Comments

THE State Fire Marshal of New York has felt obliged to issue a serious warning against the use of explosives behind the screen. The men who work the "effects" are demons of energy. When in a war picture the bursting of a shrapnel is seen, nothing will do for the "effect" man but to explode a life-like imitation of a real bomb. We suppose that some of these ambitious workers were driven to desperate straits when the explosion of one of the modern siege guns had to be simulated, and they let their zeal run away with their "sangfroid," and they grew absolutely reckless. One of the horrors of war on this side is the re-introduction of "effects." We heartily indorse the stand taken by the Marshal, who says "that the disregard for the safety of the public by the careless use of high explosives is appalling." He calls attention to the fact that "explosions have already occurred and accidents have resulted, but fortunately serious consequences to the audience were averted by timely action on the part of the manager and stage hands." The old popular fallacy of regarding every operating booth as a source of danger from fire has gradually died out, and we certainly do not want to revive the ancient superstition by these fantastic tricks behind the screen.

* * *

WE are glad to see so many opera houses, as distinguished from the "opry house," go into moving pictures, and we wish them great success. We hope, however, that the management of these houses will be placed in the hands of men with moving picture experience. Just because a judicious mixture of operatic offerings has proven popular at motion picture entertainments it must not be inferred that no skill is needed to mix the ingredients. On the contrary, the success lies entirely in the mixing process. To show a reel or two of pictures and then drive a few cheap singers of both sexes upon the stage and have then commit mayhem upon some classic opera or any part thereof is preposterous as an entertainment and cruel as an experiment.

* * *

IS an exhibitor justified in temporarily removing portions of a film that he has hired? The practice is common. While at first thought such action on the exhibitor's part might seem arbitrary, it must be admitted that much can be said in mitigation if not in defense. There are films that have never seen the censor, voluntary or official. These need pruning in nine cases out of ten. The exhibitor has to do a little operating if he does not want to offend his patrons or, perhaps, get into trouble with the police. War films, particularly, have to be revised by the exhibitors. If at the end of the show the amputated celluloid is duly restored, the practice of "re-editing" will rarely do much harm. We have heard it said, however, that some managers not only amputate, but retain the butchered part, making a sort of crazy quilt to show at a social gathering to surprised and delighted friends. Some of these motley mavericks are said to run into a thousand feet or more.

* * *

COPYRIGHTED plays that have been seen in their filmed versions have little value for stock companies. This fact is at once a tribute to the quality and popularity of the screen and a lesson to be pondered by the men who think about disposing of filming rights to their productions. They must decide which is the larger cake for them—the royalty from the film producer or the possible expense from the stock companies.

* * *

"CRIME films," which no censors will ever see or cut, are to be made for the special benefit of budding detectives at Police Headquarters. According to a report originating in the Commissioner's office, motion pictures of pickpockets or other criminals at work are to be made under the direction of old, experienced sleuths and the younger men are to learn something by watching these screen demonstrations. Another innovation is a Rogues Gallery in motion pictures.

* * *

ONCE more we have to point out the execrable folly of giving a long show for five cents. A friendly reader writing from a small city in Maryland tells of a local theatre giving the public ten reels, including a Famous Players feature, for five cents. We believe the exchange furnishing high-class feature service to such a theatre ought to take the manager aside and talk to him heart to heart. It ought to be intimated to him that no exchange can rent first-class features to a man who will cheapen them. If the man wants to ruin himself by surfeiting and tiring his own public that is his own business, but the cheapening of a high-class feature is another affair. It hurts the prestige of the producer to have it figure on a ten-reel show for a nickel.

The Quest of Quality

By W. Stephen Bush.

NOTHING is growing more rapidly these days than the number of large theaters which their builders and owners intend to devote to the exhibition of motion pictures. The phenomenal success of one very large Broadway theater with motion pictures only has stirred the ambition and enterprise of hundreds of moneyed men throughout the country. Take up any paper in any of the big cities and you are very likely to read of these new motion picture theaters which we may, following the fashion of our British friends, well and justly call "picture palaces." I have personally visited a number of recently built, big theaters in the Eastern States, and can testify of my own experience that the financial returns have been in excess of even the most sanguine expectations. I have seen theaters, seemingly in the most impossible locations, with seating capacities ranging from 1,500 to 2,800, crowded to the last inch, while scores upon scores of disappointed patrons were lining up against the box office. Some of the success is due to the improved quality of the pictures and some of it to the improved methods of presentation.

A very serious question which must agitate every friend and well wisher of the industry is the problem of a sufficient supply of that quality upon which the present success has largely been founded. No doubt the men engaged in the production and distribution of motion pictures are quite confident and ready with their answer that this supply will last. Perhaps it will, but something more than hope and assurance are needed to maintain the supply.

We have at the present time a very small number of extraordinary productions of supreme merit. These, of course, cannot be included in any account of the regular sources of supply. It will be months and perhaps even years before Europe can be depended on for high quality features. It is true that European contributions to the quality market have been diminishing in number, partly by reason of unpopularity, and partly because of the swift domestic advance in feature production. However this may be, the fact of the practical wiping out of European features remains and must be reckoned with.

The film plays of the great producers, whose successes are well known and who have enabled the exhibitor to appeal to the best classes of patrons, show no perceptible loss of quality. It seems, however, that these productions alone are not sufficient to meet the demand for quality films. The desire for and appreciation of quality on the screen is by no means confined to one or two houses in the big cities of the land. The hunger for quality has become well nigh universal. Not one or two, but scores of quality theatres in the same city are looking for quality films. Is it possible to provide all these theaters with films of a uniform standard of excellence? We make no pretence of being able to answer this question, but we cannot fail to observe that within the last few weeks comparatively weak features, plainly below a previous ironclad standard of quality, have found their way into the company of what is admittedly excellent. Such things are perhaps unavoidable, especially in the present state of stress in the film market, but a frequent repetition of these weaker productions undoubtedly constitutes a grave menace to an exhibitor who depends upon uniformly good pictures.

If it is impossible now, or at any time hereafter, to guarantee features of undoubted quality, once a week or once a month or at any other interval of time, then it will be far better all around to discontinue the feature as a regular and indispensable part of the motion picture entertainment. It is far better both for the exhibitor and for the welfare of the industry to take an occasional feature chosen in the open market by the exhibitor himself than to offend the picture-loving public with too many weak productions, which come in the "regular course of the service."

It is humanly impossible to maintain the same standard of excellence and to score one hundred per cent. with every photodrama. It is, however, not only possible, but absolutely necessary to maintain a high average quality.

We cannot lose sight of the fact that the public will never again be satisfied with any but a high average of quality, and this is especially true of features. They say that poor clothes look particularly bad on large men. For a similar reason do multiple reels show up particularly bad on the screen. Whether the multiple reel is an absolute necessity to success in motion picture work is a question on which even experienced men are apt to hold a variety of opinions. It is pretty sure, however, that the multiple reel of obviously inferior quality, whether with or without a famous trademark, is bad for exhibitors. Long before multiple reels had attained their present prominence The Moving Picture World predicted that the progress and prosperity of motion pictures depended not on quantity but on quality. This fact is fully as true today as it was four and five years ago.

We wish the greatest measure of success for every fine new motion picture theatre. We are gratified to know that superior methods of presentation coming into vogue everywhere will be a great help in winning and holding popular favor and patronage. The main thing, however, is, and always will be, the picture of quality. No house can long live without it. If the time table release system is destructive of quality, keep away from it. If you find there is no dependable quality feature service go into the open market and be blind to everything except the trademark of quality. We want every one of the many fine new houses to prosper, and we know of no better advice to give them than to be persistent in the quest of quality. Quality cannot forever perch on any single banner; quality must be sought and wooed and picked. A final bit of advice to the exhibitor: In the long run no one else can do your picking for you.

FILMS FOR PARCEL POST IMPROBABLE.

It seems improbable at the present time that moving picture films as at present manufactured will be admitted to the mails as parcel post matter, according to the remarks of certain officials of the Post Office Department based on the report of Colonel Dunn, of New York, who is in charge of a bureau for the investigation of explosives. It is said that films are combustible, notwithstanding the use of approved containers. The regulations do not provide for the transmission of dangerous articles, no matter how packed, through the mails, which are primarily for the transmisssion of letters. The mails, therefore, cannot be likened to express, for in the latter merchandise alone is carried and in a majority of cases, in the event of fire, materials lost or damaged could be replaced, but in the matter of letters there is no telling how much trouble would result. When the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, with respect to the use of special containers, was broached, it was said that it was thought the Commission recognized the inflammability of films and therefore designated certain labels to be used, with a view to their being given special care.

Hero and Villain

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

THOSE who select scenarios have rejected many a good script on the pretext that its story had already been told on the screen. Yet we are confronted almost daily with the clash between hero and villain, the monotonous selection of mediocre minds, the eternal reiteration of incompetency in scenario departments. A heroine slights one man, favors another, and the dreary old tale is told over and over again. Whether it be false accusation, protracted vengeance, forced marriage or last-moment rescue, it matters not—lack of variety in dramatic subjects dulls the program and wearies the audience. Immaculate heroes and villains of the deepest dye may have existed in the days of Sophocles, but they are getting scarce. The people we meet persist in being complex characters, presenting more than one phase of human nature.

The average man may be very, very good at times and simply horrid at others; he may lapse from the normal to the abnormal, not be the same man that he was, his morality may ebb and flow like the tide, and for less apparent reasons; but, as we find him in real life, he is neither flawless nor wholly incapable of fine motives of conduct. He is just human. We have, in fact, come to speak of a man who has only one side to his character as abnormal, and we usually send him to the insane asylum or some less attractive place of confinement. I say "usually," because scenario editors continue to select plays in which the two-legged creatures are so far removed from the average that they are not to be classed with those encountered in ordinary existence. We do not insist upon plausibility of incident in plays—one experience may differ widely from another—but they would appeal more powerfully to us if the characters showed that they were part and parcel of the world with which we are familiar.

The double life illustrated in "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is finely illustrative of what happens where men are dominated by intermittent influence for good or evil, and, on that account, the story flashed out on the world like a great torch, throwing light upon the facts, if not upon the influences at work, in the lives of men impelled at one time to virtuous behavior, at another to atrocious misconduct. Do you believe that men now guilty of atrocities in Europe are villains of the deepest dye? Are not most of them committing acts which they would abhor in cooler moments? It is all very well to write of the underworld, to use the dark and pitiful settings of criminal action for dramatic purposes, to depict conditions there for purposes of contrast, to show the effect of unfavorable environment, but its people, those who are not degenerates, have two-fold natures, as has been demonstrated in their complete regeneration. A dramatist who does not know this should stop writing and study human nature.

Look over the list of your friends, think over the men of prominence throughout our hundred millions of people—where are the heroes? We are not without reverence, but we have come to recognize that frailty is as common as it is human. The man who steps up on a pedestal in this country, sticks his hand in the breast of his coat, swells to his physical limit and says "Look at me," is a joke. We all know what is the matter with him. We have no heroes in the antiquated sense, though millions of men are heroic in the sacrifices they are making for others, and so are tens of millions of women. To be a hero in the eyes of friends, one must be loved for one's justice, fairness, kindness, sympathy, tolerance and sincere depth of generous feeling for others. That is why so many good mothers are real heroes, though not so acclaimed. If we are to have heroism on the screen, let it be of the kind that inspires the best that is within us.

The only villains we know are those we happen, for one reason or another, to dislike, usually the most recent of our bete noirs, for we moderate our feelings toward earlier ones to intensify on the one under immediate disfavor. Once we hate, we see all that is hateful in the character of the hated. Hence the idea of a villain. The strutting hero and the skulking villain grew out of exhaustless vanity—the hero is ourselves, the villain the other fellow. But these roles have their serious disadvantages, aside from that of eternal repetition. Given a hero and a villain on the screen in supposed dramatic struggle and we know the rest. It will not do to have the villain get the girl. What an edifying spectacle for people of even moderate intelligence! Hist! The villain has done the deed with the hero's weapon! The innocent man will be accused! Spare his life! Ah! The girl has the papes! Villain has confessed in his dying moments. Ride, girl, or you will be too late! Small boys in the audience put their fingers in their mouths and whistle. At last, just in time! Embrace and fade out.

This regulation diet may be nutritious for a while, but it is giving people indigestion. Another kind of hero is the has been, the one of large billboard and screen announcement. "Mr. Frosco presents Mr. Hamfat of the original cast," when we are treated to a Romeo with scarcely any hair and a forty-inch waistband. Many theatrical leaders now entering upon motion-picture production simply bring with them the traditional stage methods of portraying character. The only way to turn their flank is to liven up the stage with moving pictures converted to stage use. Nothing is so false as the old-showman idea that there is a line drawn between good men and bad men. The line, if it exists, is between the two-fold personality of a normal human being.

Each character is an individual. "What is an individual?" asks the lady who gets and forgets her information easily. I do not falter because I do not know, but because the explanation is involved. We are compounds in a way. Starting with two ancestors, we have progressed arithmetically to great numbers, but we would be the same as the first two if it were not for what is known as "variation." We vary, not men alone, but the ladies also. Circumstances purely accidental or some invisible law cause us to change constantly from ancestral type, hence the black sheep, usually ascribed to a scapegrace some generations back. To variation our evolution is due to that and other causes. So each child of the two parents is different from the other children and shares with them parental resemblance to a physical degree, though presenting characteristics that are not evenly proportioned. For one thing, an individual is a human creature in process of evolution, moving forward according to inherent energy, hampered by his structure in a struggle for greater power and liberty of soul action.

We are not heroes and we are not villains. Some have distinct personality to reveal, and when this revelation is made with great skill in one or another creative art, the revealer becomes known as a genius. Let the dramatist reveal himself as he pleases, but he has not even glimpsed human nature if he sets his types too far apart, one in the clouds and another in the bowels of the earth.

"The world makes grave errors in judging these things;
Great good and great evil are born in one breast;
Love horns us and hoofs us, or gives us our wings,
And the best could be worst, as the worst could be best."

Looking Forward

Aims, Policies and Methods of the League's New President—Wants to Gain the Confidence and Co-operation of Every Exhibitor—League Plans to Return Equivalent Value in Return For Per Capita Tax

By W. Stephen Bush.

IN MAKING a forecast of any administration, political or otherwise, the two great factors to be considered are the platform and the personality of the executive. Where the platform and personality harmonize in an uncommon degree it is safe to predict at least the making of a strong and honest effort. Apply these principles to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and it is safe to predict not only the effort but the successes most likely to crown the effort.

The platform and policy of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League today is union, harmony and conciliation. This was the policy which emerged most triumphantly at Dayton. This is the spirit which pervades league circles all over the country. There can be no doubt that this spirit of harmony, union and conciliation has found a most fitting embodiment in the person of the newly elected president, Marion S. Pearce, of Baltimore.

There is indeed reason for the belief that the League will in the future play a greater part than it ever did in the past. The personality of the president is important, to be sure. It is essential that he command the confidence of all the members in the League. He must possess some obvious qualities for leadership. Over and above the question of personality, however, stands the question of principles. The League must be headed in the right direction. Its policies must be progressive and constructive. The strongest personality cannot survive being wedded to wrong principles, while a less assertive personality may be made strong by adherence to sound principles.

The New Headquarters.

When I recently visited the new headquarters of the National League at Baltimore, the first moving picture writer to do so, I found the new president imbued with sound principles and resolved to obey the mandate of the Dayton convention. He believes that amalgamation is and ought to be the watchword of the hour. He believes that amalgamation means a getting together and a general opening of doors, likewise a monumental grave for the burial of all past differences. The new president knows no factions and with a tact and delicacy which has scarcely been appreciated he has kept away from all entangling alliances. In addition to being conciliatory he is diplomatic and very patient. Let there be no mistake, however. It is the patience of determination. At present his freedom of movement is somewhat hampered. The appointment of a National Executive Committee has been so far delayed because amalgamation has made little or no progress. Mr. Pearce is satisfied with the policy of watchful waiting, for the present at least, and busies himself in the meantime with useful constructive work.

The New President a Self-Made Man.

The new president has been actively identified with the moving picture industry for something like seven or eight years. He was the motion picture pioneer in Baltimore and its tributary zone. He sold his exchange to the General Film Co. in 1910 and has since been actively engaged in building and conducting motion picture houses of a superior type. At the present time he is putting the finishing touches on the largest motion picture house in Baltimore which he intends to model upon the most approved standards known.

He is no novice in the work of organization. On the contrary, it was he who formulated the first plans for organization in Baltimore. It is due to his efforts no less than to his standing in the community that every attempt to harass the moving picture interests of Baltimore and Maryland by hasty or ill-advised or hostile legislation has failed completely. The mania for compulsory legal censorship of motion pictures struck Maryland as it struck other states. Mr. Pearce was quick to see the danger. He called his fellow exhibitors together, advising and conferring with them and then quietly the newspapers and political leaders were approached with arguments of common sense. The follies of censorship were pointed out, its ineffectiveness, its vicious consequences, both to the exhibitor and the state. Thereupon censorship died in and about Baltimore. When harsh measures were threatened against operators the same quiet but hard-working influence made itself felt and the danger passed away.

To appraise the true measure of the new president one must see him preside over a meeting of his own finely and thoroughly organized local. He is out for useful action. He is quick to get at the useful and practical end of things and he knows how to lead his meeting toward results. The utmost freedom of debate prevails. There is no attempt at repression of any kind and everybody is invited to speak fully and freely. At the end of the meeting whatever action may be taken has the full approval of everyone present and the resolutions of the meeting and the work of the committees are actually carried out.

Zealous for the Advancement of the League.

No one appreciates more keenly than its president the difficulties that lie ahead of him. The consequences of disunion and strife cannot be blotted out in a day. The finances of the League have suffered. Its usefulness to the exhibitor from whom a per capita tax is exacted has been made doubtful. These difficulties, however, do by no means appeal or even discourage the president. He faces them strongly and cheerfully and firmly believes that no difficulty ever increased in size by being looked at and confronted. His views on this subject will be found interesting, not only to the organized exhibitor, but to all exhibitors throughout the country. Looking up from the desk where he has spent many and many an hour taking thought for the welfare of the League and sending out encouragement in all directions, Mr. Pearce said to me:

A Program of Usefulness.

"This organization to live has to be useful to the exhibitor. In order to start the organization on its career of service its financial condition must be improved as much as possible. The organization naturally depends for its funds on the per capita tax from the various state bodies. We cannot move without money. The greatest proof of loyalty to the national organization is a prompt discharge of the per capita tax obligation. Now that the blight of censorship has been removed from the councils of the organization, I look for a general revival of interest in organization work. I have proof that such a revival of interest exists and I point to the many letters that reach me from exhibitors in various states. These letters come from exhibitors who were active in the past in organization work, but who became slack when they felt that censorship was to be favored by the national organization as a body. These men refer to the work at Dayton as an incentive to a renewal of their activities as organizers. Here is a letter from W. B. Moore, the president of the Kansas League. This man had gone into Missouri to revive the League there, but his discovery that Missouri was suspended at the last national convention blocked his further efforts in that direction. He says he has been corresponding with the senators and congressmen from Kansas, giving and receiving reviews and arguments on censorship, but he says he is tired of fighting alone and is in need of help and encouragement, suggesting that the president's presence would be the best help."

After some thought the new president decided to attend this convention in Kansas, arranged for October 8 and 9, and since passed into history. Mr. Pearce has gotten in touch with representative exhibitors in Missouri and it won't be long before that state is re-organized and again affiliated with the National League. One of the hardest workers for organization in Missouri writes that the last two years have seen the organization in Missouri, including St. Louis, "shot to pieces." It would lead me too far afield were I to enlarge this picture of reviving interest and of the hearty response given to such interest by the new president. Suffice to say that every exhibitor, whether organized or unorganized, has Mr. Pearce working for him. He has a large program of usefulness, but it is entirely practical and needs nothing more for its successful working out than the confidence and co-operation of the exhibitors.

The Proposed National Bureau of Information.

The Moving Picture World at frequent intervals has pointed out the need of a bureau of information which ought to be in a position to help exhibitors anywhere in the solution of either individual or collective problems. The establishment of such a bureau is one of the great ambitions of the newly elected president. He feels that if such a bureau can be established, the exhibitors belonging to the National League will get a practical and definite return for their per capita tax. It is plain that such a bureau cannot be established without means or maintained without means, and it is likewise plain that some time must elapse before the bureau will be in full working order and serving a useful purpose.

This department, according to President Pearce, is to be at the disposal of every member at all times, to give advice in connection with any exhibitor's business on request, to furnish information of every sort pertaining to the League, to act quickly in emergencies and to act with definiteness and in such manner as to accomplish results for every member of the League.

It is also to keep members advised in advance of anything of interest that is anticipated in the exhibitor's own locality, that would be appreciated by a member, and enable him to know of such happenings far enough in advance to take whatever steps he deems wise for the full protection of his business and himself. In every way this bureau will stand ready to protect the exhibitor and be so constant in service that telegrams and special letters may be resorted to in emergencies, with the satisfaction of knowing that a prompt and satisfactory response and action will be forthcoming.

In time a body of trained experts will be on hand at all times, and not the least useful of these experts will be the legal experts. While it is true that most of the legislation affecting exhibitors will be state legislation and therefore subject to different jurisdictions, it must also be borne in mind that the legislation of one state is generally framed with a view to conditions and tests in other states. Familiarity with these laws and their workings will be of the utmost value to the legal expert bureau, who can thus offer advice or raise protests in the jurisdiction of any state to which he might be called in an emergency. The legislators of one state are surely ready at all times to listen to what has been done and what experience has been gained in other states. In time such legal experts may be able to render valuable service both to the exhibitor and the people of the state in framing judicious and equitable laws that have stood the test of experience.

It is too early to outline all the fields of usefulness in which such a bureau might eventually render service. The thing of importance now is to get the bureau started and to provide funds for this purpose. It is the intention of the president and a settled principle of his policy to enlist the aid of the journalistic organs of the industry in furtherance of harmony and co-operation everywhere.

It is needless to say that the Moving Picture World, which has always stood for the whole League and for the interests of the whole League, will add its proper share toward promoting the sound and constructive program of the newly elected president.

Horsley Wants a Name

It Is to Be Chosen by Competition—$100 Cash Prize for Best Suggestion.

THE announcement recently made that David Horsley's product is to be released through the General Film Company has aroused greater interest and drawn more widespread comment than any event that has occurred in the film world in many a day. Letters and telegrams have been pouring in to Mr. Horsley's office by the hundreds. Almost every one of these communications carried suggestions of a brand name for the new releases, while several expressed an objection to the tentatively adopted name of "Ace."

As a result Mr. Horsley has decided to withdraw the brand name of "Ace" and to choose the new title by open competition and has offered a cash prize of $100 to the person who shall suggest the most appropriate name. The competition is open to anyone, male or female, who is in any way connected with the motion picture industry. This classification will, of course, include exchange men, exhibitors, scenario writers, directors, actors, the trade press, accessory manufacturers and all employees of manufacturers or film concerns, whether in the studio, factory or office. The selection of the name from the list submitted will be left to a committee of disinterested judges. Each competitor will be limited to one suggestion and is required to explain the significance or reasons for his or her suggestion in a letter which must not exceed 50 words in length, and the competition will positively close at noon on Saturday, October 24th.

The first release of the new brand will be made on November 9, and three days each week thereafter.

To Fight Legalized Censorship

National Board Plans to Raise $50,000 for a Campaign of Education—$30,000 Already Pledged.

J. W. BINDER, of the National Board of Censorship, announced this week, that in the last six weeks he had raised $30,000 from the manufacturers, big feature men, the Eastman Company and others for the purpose of starting a campaign all over the country under the auspices of the National Board against legal censorship of the pictures in all its forms. It is now estimated that the amount already raised is insufficient for the purpose, and Mr. Binder is engaged in bringing it up to $40,000 or $50,000.

Last July Mr. Binder delivered an address before the exhibitors' convention in New York City on the evils of legal censorship and the means of remedying it, but believing that that body was to a great extent powerless to do anything effective, at least for the present, he sought other means to bring to a practical realization some of his schemes. He found what he sought in the resolution of the board's executive committee, passed a year or so ago, to the effect that the passing of a picture by the board did not give it the stamp of the board's approval. With this resolution was another with regard to consultation with the National Board by local advisory committees.

Taking up the matter with the executive committee, Mr. Binder has developed a systematic scheme for such co-operation between the local boards with the national, and it is to put this scheme into practical operation that the manufacturers and others have raised the fund. Briefly, the scheme is this: There will be in every city and town an advisory committee of five members, composed of representative men and women. When complaint of a particular picture is made either to this committee or to the police or licensing boards, a committee inspector is sent to view the picture, and if the reports be unfavorable a second police or licensing board inspector is sent to verify this report, and should both inspectors concur in their report, the National Board is queried as to having passed it. Should the National Board report that it has not passed the picture the licensing board of the city will notify the exhibitor to take it off or lose his license. "Of course," says Mr. Binder, "the local authorities can still force a picture off the screen in their own town whether it is passed by the National Board or not; but the board's statistics show that hardly one picture in a thousand passed by the National Board has caused trouble except from politically legalized censors."

In inaugurating and putting the scheme into operation Mr. Binder says that the board will go over the heads of the legal and political machines and will appeal directly to the people themselves by means of a campaign of education conducted in the uewspapers and by other means that will reach the masses, the object being to rouse up in each community an anti-public opinion that will of its own weight smother and kill all legal censorship propositions. This, of course, will take time, but the board is in hopes that in some places the scheme will be put into actual running operation almost immediately.

Would Mulct Exhibitors of Cincinnati

Mayor Suggests Picture Theaters Might Provide Money to Recoup Depleted Municipal Finances.

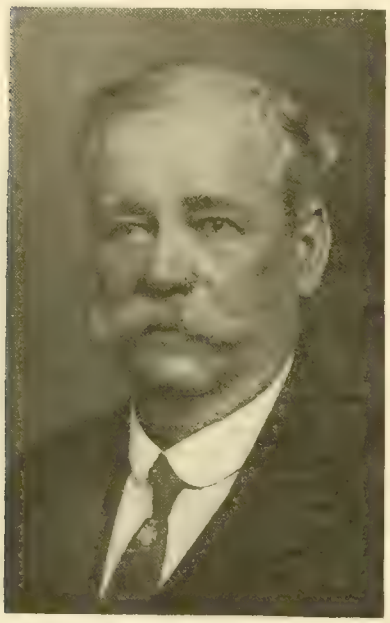
THE attitude of Cincinnati motion picture exhibitors toward the threatened deficit in the finances of the city, occasioned by the new statutory limit on the amount of the levy has changed from the impersonal worry felt by all good citizens over this distressing state of affairs to something more definite. This has arisen by reason of the fact that Mayor Spiegel and his advisers, casting about for means of raising additional revenues, hit upon a heavier license fee for motion picture and other theaters as an obvious and easy means of raising money. The mayor has ordered an investigation for the purpose of determining whether the theaters cannot be legally required to pay more than the present limit of $300, applying to houses with a seating capacity of 1,000 or over. While there are comparatively few motion picture houses in Cincinnati of this size, the smaller exhibitors are not deriving much comfort from this fact, as the plan proposed is to grade the houses more carefully, thus making the maximum fee applicable to a greater number, or perhaps increasing the fee all along the line. With this in prospect and the possibility of a Federal tax as well, the average exhibitor is wondering whether he is supposed to have anything left for himself after the tax collectors and the rest of them get through with his receipts.

A. J. D. Wallace, Chilean Exhibitor

South American Intends Opening an Exchange for the Distribution of American Films.

IT'S a long way from Iquique, Chile, to New York, but that is the distance A. J. D. Wallace, South American exhibitor, traveled in order to get expert surgical treatment for his wife. It was last April Mr. Wallace set out for New York. He found the right doctor, Mrs. Wallace was restored to health, and Mr. Wallace made plans to return home in the middle of July. On Independence Day the two were riding through the Bowery in a taxicab when a trolley car collided with their conveyance. Mrs. Wallace was seriously hurt and taken to a hospital. It is hoped that by the end of October she will be able to return to Chile.

Mr. Wallace was found by a World man in a Spanish club on the twenty-second floor of the McAlpin. Mr. Wallace's facility in English led the visitor to remark that the South American seemed more English than Spanish, which brought forth the remark that while he spoke French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, German and English the latter was his "worst." "I am of Scotch descent," said Mr. Wallace, "my father being a sea captain who settled in South America.



A. J. D. Wallace.

"What about my theaters in Chile? I have two, one in Iquique and one in Negreiros. The former seats 600 in the orchestra and 800 in the balcony and has 20 loges. In my Negreiros house there are 300 seats on the ground floor and 700 in the balcony, besides 16 loges. We do not pay a flat rate for the use of films, but instead 20 per cent. of receipts. Heretofore I have been getting my supply from a Cinematografica Italo-Chilena of Buenos Ayres, which concern furnishes most of the photoplays on the coast. We have good service, often showing some of the larger European stuff before it is seen at all in the United States. Of course, now that the war is on, the South American exhibitors will get little European stuff.

"Our prices of admission are 20 cents American money for the ground floor, which means a dollar in Chilean currency. Seats in the balcony are 10 cents. We give matinees on Sundays and feast days. Evening performances are from 9 o'clock to 11.30. If we have an unusually long feature, such, for instance, as "Cleopatra," "Last Days of Pompeii" or "Michael Strogoff," we show it in two nights. Ordinarily we run six reels an evening. In case of a big subject we have no difficulty in charging and getting an increased price of admission, and under these circumstances we lengthen our program.

"My patrons like big dramas and cowboy pictures where there is riding. They are fond of Max Linder; his wife, too, is popular. I knew her in Paris. We have Vitagraph and Edison pictures as well as the European subjects, and the Universal is gaining down there little by little. Personally I like Vitagraph films for their sharp photography, the black and white. I class it with that of Nordisk, which I think the best in films—there is a tone quality to them.

"I am going to get some films here before I return, and when I get back to be an exchange man myself. I have been negotiating with a number of manufacturers, but have not as yet closed any contracts. I believe on account of the war American films will be used more extensively, and once they are established it is reasonable to suppose that South American exhibitors will continue to do business with the United States. American films are sent first to Buenos Ayres, and from that point distributed. The duty is very much less than you impose in this country. Here I think it is approximately 1 cent a foot for foreign films, or $10 a reel. Down there it is about 60 cents a thousand feet. I think it very likely I will form connections with some American manufacturer to take charge of his interests in South America."

Service Organization Formed

Leading Picture House Managers of Cincinnati and Suburbs Aim to Secure Better Pictures.

THE Park, the Orpheum, the Arcade, the Alhambra, the Casino, the Nordland Plaza of Cincinnati, Ohio; the Burnett, Temple and Lyric of Newport, Ky., and the Lyric of Covington, Ky., are an aggregation of leading motion picture houses in and around Cincinnati which have formed a tentative organization for the purpose of securing better attractions by co-operative work. One of the plans proposed is co-operative buying on behalf of the whole string while the general advancement of the film drama as a whole, as far as Cincinnati is concerned, is a part of the object aimed at. At a preliminary meeting held last week at the Savoy Hotel a temporary organization was formed and a committee appointed consisting of H. G. Kruse of the Park, A. G. Hattesheimer of the Orpheum and L. W. Foster of the Arcade, whose business it will be to secure the best of the new features produced for immediate exhibition at these theaters, all of which are so located as not to interfere with each other. In connection with this idea, a conference was had a day or so later with W. Parrish, traveling representative in the territory of the Alco Film Company of New York and while nothing definite has been announced as the result of the conference, it may be inferred that the new co-operative association will have the pick of the company's productions. According to the plan settled upon by the theaters referred to the cost of the service involved will be apportioned according to the grade of the several houses which are members, based upon seating capacity, location and so forth. While some of the members are affiliated with the state and local exhibitors' organizations, the combination has no connection with any other association, being organized solely for the purpose indicated. It may be said also that the class of the theaters mentioned, which include only leaders in the Cincinnati and suburban houses, guarantees that these purposes will be attained with comparatively little difficulty.

More Stars for Famous Players

Second Quarterly Contribution to Paramount Program Reveals Fine Array of Plays and Players.

UNPRECEDENTED as was the first three months' program of the Famous Players Film Company released through Paramount Pictures, the second section of that program contributed by the Famous Players even surpasses the former galaxy of celebrated stars and plays in degree of national prestige and popularity.

The program for December, January and February, which is announced elsewhere in this issue, reveals for the first time the fact that the Famous Players Film Company has induced Florence Reed, one of the most prominent of the younger stars of the day, to appear before its camera in her first film characterization, which important event attaches even greater significance when it is disclosed that the subject selected for her is none other than "The Dancing Girl," the famous emotional drama by Henry Arthur Jones. Florence Reed has just attained a great personal triumph in the sensational success, "The Yellow Ticket."

"The Straight Road," generally conceded to be the masterpiece of the eminent dramatist, Clyde Fitch, is also introduced by the Famous Players to the motion picture public.

Mary Pickford is represented on the program by a subject entitled "The Step-Sister," which it is intimated will cause a genuine surprise, and by the charming romantic play, "Mistress Nell." "The Million," Henry W. Savage's great comedy triumph, is also scheduled for forthcoming release, presenting Edward Abeles in the principal role.

The program further includes "The Conspiracy," the sensational triumph of the last theatrical season, with John Emerson, its author, in his original role; "The Crucible," by Mark Lee Luther, starring Marguerite Clark in her second film characterization for the Famous Players; and the much-discussed production of Wilson Barrett's sublime drama, "The Sign of the Cross," which is at present creating a furore in England.

KEANE'S TRIP POSTPONED.

The visit of James Keane of the United Keanograph Company, San Francisco, to New York, with his great feature, "Money," has been postponed by the illness of his wife, Charlotte de Felice, who has undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Senate Recedes on War Tax

To Report a Measure in Which Motion Picture Theatres Will Be Graded According to Seating Capacity—Theatrical Managers to Fight for Classification as Well as Gradation.

THE Senate Finance Committee on Saturday, October 3, at Washington accepted the graduated scale for the taxing of motion picture and other theaters approximately as suggested by Fulton Brylawski, secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the District of Columbia. The war revenue measure as it passed the House of Representatives provided for a flat rate of $100 on small as well as large houses. At work in the Capital City with Mr. Brylawski were Marion S. Pearce, president of the National League, and Dr. W. P. Herbst, president of the Washington organization. Exhibitors and theatrical men all over the country have been active in urging upon their Senators the importance of a change in the proposed method of assessing the tax. The theater interests, under the leadership of the United Managers' Protective Association, have left no stone unturned in their efforts to show Senators how inequitable they considered the proposed measure. Mr. Brylawski has received about seventy replies to his letter of protest to Senators. At the request of the Senate Finance Committee Mr. Brylawski prepared for the Collector of Internal Revenue a statement as to the approximate number of motion picture theaters in the country seating less than 300, the number seating more than 300 and less and 500, the number seating more than 500 and less than 800, and those seating over 800, which statement was included in the report of the Collector of Internal Revenue and filed with the Senate Committee. Mr. Brylawski estimates that the substitue for the House clause will result in a saving to motion picture exhibitors nearly $1,000,000. This is the scale as agreed upon by the Senate Finance Committee:

Theaters seating less than 300	$ 25
Theaters seating more than 300 and less than 600	50
Theaters seating more than 600 and less than 1,000	75
Theaters seating over 1,000	100

Ligon Johnson, general counsel of the United Managers' Protective Association, when seen by a World man at the association's office in the New York Theater Building, expressed satisfaction with the way the fight on the war tax was going. As was pointed out by the Moving Picture World last week, the association's Board of Directors includes twelve prominent film manufacturers: J. Stuart Blackton, J. J. Kennedy, Adolph Zukor, P. A. Powers, George Kleine, Harry R. Raver, C. H. Wilson, Jesse Lasky, William N. Selig, Siegmund Lubin, Carl Laemmle and Samuel Long.

"We have had replies from many Senators," said Mr. Johnson, "telling us that they will be glad to help us in securing an alteration of the flat tax of $100 as proposed by the House. We have also received many letters from influential men all over the country promising to do all in their power to secure a more equitable distribution of the tax. Senators have been hearing from people throughout the country, people of influence. The fact that the Senators are willing to heed our appeals perhaps may be explained by the fact that we have had a chance to reach them. The measure was jammed through the House in such haste that we did not have time to get together. Our members are scattered from one end of the country to another. Then, again, this organization is only a few weeks old, and as yet we have not the cohesiveness that will surely obtain when we are older.

"We're not going to rest on what has been accomplished. The war revenue measure after the Senate passes on it has got to go back to the House. If the popular branch passes a different measure then we will go after the members of that body. We are circularizing every exhibitor in the country this week, asking them to appeal and to have all of their friends appeal to their representatives as well as senators for a reduction in the tax affecting theaters. We don't think the proposed reduction is anything like what it should be. Our proposition is that there should be both classification and gradation—that is, classification as to the seating capacity of theaters and gradation as to population. Under this idea the maximum tax on a metropolitan theater would be $100, the tax being graded and classified from that point down to $5 for a small motion picture house. Even at this figure we believe the amusement world would be contributing to the so-called war tax more than its just share of the burden.

"The reduction so far accomplished applies almost solely to the motion picture houses, inasmuch as the lowering of the imposition on seating capacity practically eliminates the regular theaters. You know even the one-night stand theaters, including the balcony and gallery, nearly always seat a thousand or more. This partial victory has not in any way interfered with the enthusiasm we are putting into the work. There is a feeling of satisfaction that we have been able to override the flat declaration that $100 would be the tax on all theaters. I will probably be in Washington on Thursday, and hope, with the good aid that is coming to us, to be able to secure still further reductions that will apply to the one-night stands."

The following letter has been sent to the members of the Senate by Charles C. Shay, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes:

New York City, N. Y., Oct. 3, 1914.

As the head of the division of organized labor most concerned under the proposed war tax on theaters, and, inasmuch as our Alliance not only furnishes the carpenters, property men, light operators and stage crews of theaters and traveling companies, but also the machine operators, etc., in motion picture theaters, all of whom are directly concerned, I respectfully ask that you consider the protest made by our organization against the theater war tax, as proposed.

We are at a loss to understand why the theater alone of American institutions should be singled out as the chief burden bearer. The theater, and by this I mean to include picture houses and all, is the first to feel financial depression. Hundreds of theaters proper that even a year or so ago had attractions every night now have them but once a week or once in two weeks. In hundreds of houses where our men had steady work but a short time ago, work every day in the week, there is but an occasional performance. Many motion picture theaters are either closing or having to economize to a degree that closing would mean but little. And, notwithstanding this, the theaters are singled out for the heaviest and, in many instances, an unbearable war tax. And this, too, in the face of the fact that the theater owners and those connected have to pay all the stamp taxes and other duties demanded of others.

How is it that the burdens are not more evenly distributed? Why are not other American enterprises called on to show their patriotism and share the burdens? Again, why not call for contribution upon some of those classes that enjoy special privileges or who receive special benefits from the government? The United States spends millions yearly to maintain its inland waterways, and to this expenditure we will contribute. The yacht of the millionaire, the motorboat, the sailboat and the water craft of the pleasure seeker use these waterways without let, hindrance or cost, but no tax is placed on them.

River, sound and coastwise shipping carry on their business through aid of these beneficent expenditures of the government, but they are not asked to contribute. Automobiles of the well-to-do skim the state and national highways, but they escape. Trolleys and transportation companies borrow part of the sovereignty for use in their business operations, but are not even asked to pay a war tax in return. Mine owners locate their mines on government land without one penny compensation. They dig from the earth amounts of coal, iron, gold, silver, copper, lead and other metals—dig this from ground of which the Supreme Court has declared the government to be "the original and ultimate owner"—dig all at will, sell all at will, keep all the selling price without a war tax. From another point of view: Theaters and motion pictures are educational in character. Are they less desirable than saloons? Do candy shops or soda fountains add more than theaters to mental or physical welfare?

This letter is in no way meant as an attack on any interest or enterprise, and the foregoing are mentioned merely to emphasize the question: Why the theaters, when they are already the greatest sufferers from financial conditions? And the one parasite of the theater, who profits merely in the necessity of others, the ticket broker (or speculator, and there are hundreds in the business in the larger cities) why no tax from them?

If American institutions are all to bear an equitable portion of the war levies, we must still protest that any tax along the lines proposed is unfair to a large percentage of the theaters, and being so, is unfair to the people who depend upon them for employment.

One hundred dollars might not be excessive for the big and valuable theaters in our metropolitan centers, but it is ruinous to the little and cheap theater, and to the nickel picture house that barely manages to keep going.

If a tax is to be placed on theaters, we earnestly urge that it be graduated under population in five or more divisions, as for example, in cities of more than 500,000, of less than 500,000 and more than 250,000; cities of less than 250,000 and more than 100,000; cities of less than 100,000 and more than 10,000; and that in addition the theaters in each of these divisions be classified first as to theaters proper and motion picture houses and, second, as to seating capacity, with $100 as the very maximum tax. A tax of $10 on the average motion picture house would be a burden; $15 would be a hardship on the average one-night stand theater. Our men work in these theaters, and we know conditions.

If the $100 flat tax goes through, the five-cent moving picture houses will have to increase their price. Of course they can throw an explanation of this necessity on their screens and let their patrons look elsewhere than to the motion picture operators for the cause of the raise, but this will not reopen closed theaters or bring back patrons that the added cost has driven away.

We respectfully request that you aid in getting any war tax levy, if one must be, more generally distributed, and if a levy must be made on theaters, that this be no more than the theaters' fair portion; and among the theaters the tax be reduced to such an assessment on each house as circumstances would fairly warrant.

CHARLES C. SHAY, International President.

SAN FRANCISCO LEAGUE SENDS PROTEST.

The Exhibitors' League of San Francisco has forwarded a telegram to the offices of the National Organization protesting against the proposed special tax on picture houses.

Kirkwood Screeners' President

Much Interest Taken in the Annual Election, Which Brings Out an Unexpectedly Large Number.

THE annual election of the Screen Club, which was held at the clubhouse in Forty-seventh street on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, October 3, aroused a great deal of interest in the trade. For the presidency there were three candidates—James Kirkwood, Joseph Farnham and Billy Quirk. The friends of each had been active the last few days of the "campaign." Literature of a lively character had been sent to the members by two of the candidates' workers. Mr. Farnham's committee sent out the first blast, which intimated that it was not an "occupational" or a sentimental campaign. Arthur Leslie, in the interest of Mr. Kirkwood, in a circular promptly accepted the issue and asked the question: "Shall an actors' club elect James Kirkwood, an actor and director, as its president?" The battle was on. The actors turned out. Mr. Kirkwood received over 50 per cent. of the total vote, Mr. Farnham less than 25 per cent. There were 226 ballots polled, the largest number of Screeners ever in the clubhouse on any one day.

James Kirkwood.

The others elected were: First vice-president, Ben Wilson; second vice-president, C. A. ("Doc") Willat; third vice-president, Charles O. Baumann; corresponding secretary, Bill Barry; recording secretary, Paul Scardon; treasurer, George Blaisdell; board of governors for two years, Jacob H. Gerhardt, King Baggot, Jule Bernstein and Frank Powell. The entire Kirkwood ticket went through with two exceptions, those being "Doc" Willat and Frank Powell.

There was a lively gathering at the clubrooms in the evening. The club register looked like an index of the film trade. Among the names were those of many manufacturers as well as players. The best of feeling prevailed, and it was agreed that it was worth while having a bit of a "scrap" if it resulted in arousing so much interest. Members came from Philadelphia, among them being Arthur Johnson, George Terwilliger, Peter Lang and Earl Metcalf, and they brought along John Ince as a guest. The vote was not announced until after 1 o'clock, and many remained to hear the returns. Jacob H. Gerhardt, the retiring treasurer, received 198 votes for membership in the board of governors, which was the highest vote recorded for any opposed candidate.

STATE FIRE MARSHAL SAFEGUARDS PICTURE THEATERS.

Declaring that the destruction of life and property is invited by the careless use of bombs and explosives in moving picture theaters, State Fire Marshal Thomas J. Ahearn has decided to prohibit their use in connection with such entertainment.

Their special liability to produce fire in the theater, and the danger of premature discharge in their handling, as well as the danger from panic through their discharge, are the causes of the Fire Marshal's safeguarding actions.

He respectfully requests and insists that the managers of moving picture theaters refrain from the use of any thrilling device by which the public welfare may be injured.

WIDOW OF THE REV. HANNIBAL GOODWIN DEAD.

The death is announced of Mrs. Rebecca Allen Goodwin, widow of the Rev. Hannibal Goodwin, inventor of motion picture film and organizer of the Goodwin Film and Camera Company. Mrs. Goodwin passed away at her late home, 60 Berkeley street, Philadelphia, at the age of 82 years. The suit started by Mr. Goodwin to establish his claim as the inventor of motion picture film has only recently been finally decided in the courts, long after the death of Mr. Goodwin.

Japanese-American Film Company

Organization Numbers Forty Japanese Players and Is Located at Los Angeles—Has Made Many Successful Pictures.

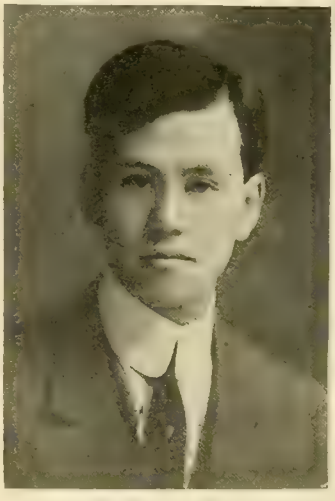
ONE of the most interesting trade announcements of the week chronicles the entry of a new producing company into the field. And as this is the first company in America to be owned, controlled and operated by Japanese, many will be glad to know details of this latest addition to the Los Angeles film colony.

The Japanese-American Film Co. had $200,000.00 paid into their treasury before they started business. Every cent of this was subscribed by Japanese business men, and every bit of the managerial work will be directed by members of the same race. They are fortunate in having secured Sawyer, Inc., to market their films.

K. Numamoto.

The company brought over from Japan a stock company of forty members. The plays will all be Japanese in theme, and all the customs of the old country will be treated with absolute fidelity in the films. This was noticeable in the first production, "The Oath of the Sword." In it were no kisses or other demonstrations such as America is accustomed to. The heroine does not go down to the boat to see her fiance embark for America—because it would not be the correct thing to do in Japan. And just as painstaking are the directors in every other detail—costuming and scenic settings, which are all beautiful.

Miss Hisa Numa.



Tomi Morri.

For over two years they have been producing commercial, educational and industrial features, which had a large circulation in Japan. It is planned to make dramatic pictures in Japan during part of each year, and also in Hawaii, where a great proportion of the villages are Japanese, and the weather is usually sunny. The president of the corporation is K. Numamoto, and the secretary is J. Takata.

Prominent members of the company are Miss Hisa Numa, leading woman, who is 20 years old. She has been featured in motion pictures and is a great favorite among the Japanese people. Mr. Tomi Morri, leading man, is 30 years old, and is a star of the Japanese legitimate stage in Japan, and has been with Broncho Film Co. for the past two seasons. Miss Kohano Akashi plays character leads, and Mr. Jack Y. Abbe juvenile leads.

Standard Program Announces Plans

New Combination of Exchangemen and Exhibitors to Begin Business with 21 Reels Weekly.

A MEETING of representative exchangemen from all parts of the United States and Canada in Indianapolis, Ind., on October 1 and 2, resulted in the launching of a strong combination called the Standard Program. The forming of a million dollar corporation under the laws of the State of New York was determined upon and general plans for the execution of the organization's project will be actively begun at once. Twenty-one reels a week comprise the company's first output, which will be increased to meet demands.

The following cities were represented at the meeting: New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Buffalo, St. Louis, New Orleans, Dallas, Portland, Ore.; San Francisco and Los Angeles. Letters were read from most of the exchangemen in the cities not represented, all of whom expressed themselves as in favor of the plan. Joseph Hopp of the Union Film Corporation of Chicago presided as chairman, and E. T. Peters of the Texas Film Corporation of Dallas was secretary. Mr. Markowitz of California, Sam Werner of St. Louis, and Mr. Peter were appointed a committee to draft an agreement, which was signed by every one present.

To band together twenty-five exchangemen operating in the United States and Canada is the purpose of the company, and this is practically consummated. Each member had to agree to buy twenty-one reels of film each week and pay for this film in proportion to the quality of the individual production. The basic idea generally expressed was that they did not want manufacturers to ship them films on a percentage basis, because under those conditions they were forced to take what was sent, regardless of quality. Also they were equally determined on not buying film at a set price of so much a foot, as under those conditions the quality of the program would not improve because of the lack of incentive on the part of manufacturers to raise standards. They wanted a program not as good as those past and present, but one far superior to any program ever attempted.

The members believe there are a sufficient number of high-class manufacturers to make the Standard Program a new standard of merit. It was stated at the meeting, in substantiation of this, that already good film had been offered to them sufficient to release thirty-four reels weekly, instead of twenty-one, which, however, will be the initial number. December 1 is the approximate date of the first release. Its exact nature is not announced. As now planned, however, the program weekly will consist of two three-reel subjects, three two-reel subjects, and nine single reels. Seven of the latter will be comedies.

Territories will not be divided by state lines, but so as to facilitate the shipping arrangements of each office with the purpose of giving the most efficient service to the exhibitors. As an instance, Newport and Covington, Kentucky, although just across the river from Cincinnati, have always belonged to Indianapolis in the old way of demarkation, but with this apportionment these cities will be allotted to Cincinnati.

The board of directors will be selected from exchangemen. Mr. Peter will probably be in charge of headquarters in New York. Adequate offices will quickly be opened.

Out of this movement may grow a consolidation of manufacturers. One manufacturer has expressed a desire to organize another federation, with the view of both bodies working hand in hand for the common good.

Mr. Peter announced this week that another meeting would be held either in New York or Chicago as soon as the charter is issued, probably in about ten days, at which time a further announcement would be made as to the manufacturers who will release through the Standard Program and the list of officers and directors. "Each picture will be submitted to the board of directors before going to the exchanges," said Mr. Peter, "and it will have to be of quality or it will be rejected. It is designed to make the manufacturer keep up the standard of every subject, and to further this principle we will have detailed reports from each exchange on every production. The manufacturers are in accord with us and believe that holding up the standard of each will result in substantial benefit to all the others."

OVATION FOR MISS MERSEREAU.

Miss Verna Mersereau appeared at the Regent Theater, New York, on Wednesday evening in conjunction with the Kalem two-part drama, "The Dancer," and received a splendid ovation. The picture is an excellent one and Miss Mersereau's presence added to the evening's entertainment

Charles R. Macauley Making Pictures

Famous Cartoonist, Artist and Author to Produce Two Half-Reel Cartoon Films a Week.

THE picture business looks so good to Charles R. Macauley, for the last ten years cartoonist on the Evening World, that he has decided to give up newspaper work entirely and devote his whole attention to the production of pictures. Mr. Macauley takes this step in spite of the fact that he is receiving top-notch salary for work in the line in which he has acquired such distinction. He has been a follower of pictures for a long time—studied them, dissected them. Already the Union Photoplay Company, of which Mr. Macauley is president, has produced "Alice in Wonderland," which will be released November 15. The subject is in six reels. Mr. Macauley has followed with fidelity the whimsical text of Lewis Carroll. The costumes, the making of which he supervised himself, follow the drawings of Sir John Tenniel, known on two continents as the foremost cartoonist of his time. Mr. Macauley designed also the scenery used in the picture.

Charles R. Macauley.

Mr. Macauley also is the author of "The Prince of Peace," the production which is to be staged by David Belasco under the patronage of Andrew Carnegie. It was through Mr. Macauley's instrumentality that the philanthropist and the theatrical man were brought together. It is intended later to adapt the stage version for production on the screen, and it will be made on an elaborate scale, running in length perhaps eight or nine reels. The subject is a comprehensive history of the world. It begins with the time of Christ and then cuts back to the period of Rameses II, the first great conqueror, and then on to the Crucifixion. The tale then proceeds to the present day. It is expected to make the release of the screen production about the time the war in Europe is drawing to a close, "in other words, at the psychological moment," as Mr. Macauley says.

The cartoonist on October 6 began active work on a new series of cartoons, which will be released twice a week in half-reel lengths. It is expected that the first subject will be thrown on the screen in about three weeks after the beginning of the work. Mr. Macauley says it will be his aim to have his cartoons before the public as soon as possible after making, in order to take full advantage of the timeliness and of the topical value he intends to inject into them. In his twenty-five years of newspaper work he has absorbed the speed atmosphere. He has been accustomed to working fast. So, too, he has made a study of the day's news in order that he may more accurately determine just what particular subject is uppermost in the minds of the larger number of people. Pliny P. Craft will have charge of the general distribution of the work of the cartoonist. Among the theaters that already have contracted to show these half-reel films is the Strand.

It is the intention of the Union Photoplay Company to produce six features a year. These will all be under the direction of Mr. Macauley, and will be based on his own stories and plays. The previous work of the new director has not by any means been confined to the pencil and brush. He has written extensively. He is the author of "The Red Tavern," published by the Appletons, which is now in its fourth edition. "I think we will show picture lovers some real novelties," said Mr. Macauley the other day.

HOTEL WILL RELEASE THROUGH SAWYER.

King W. Vidor, of the Hotel Film Manufacturing Company, Houston, Texas, has been in New York City to arrange for a market for the product of his company. He finally closed a contract with Sawyer, Inc., which firm will handle his company's pictures.

Colonial's President Goes to Court

James D. Law Seeks to Recover from Protective Committee $150,000 Damages for Alleged Libel.

ANOTHER chapter was added to the maze of litigation which has arisen out of the promotion of the Colonial Motion Picture Corporation when James D. Law, the president of the film corporation, filed an action in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York during the past week against the members of the Colonial Owners' Protective Committee to recover $150,000 damages for alleged libel.

The members of the committee named as defendants in the suit are John D. Dunlop, Alwyn Ball, Jr., Roland Phillips, Howard C. Griffiths and James S. Clarkson. It is alleged the committee distributed circulars among the stockholders, numbering over six hundred, reflecting on Mr. Law's integrity and honesty.

The subject matter of the circulars which the plaintiff asserts were freely distributed to the stockholders is cited at length in the complaint drafted by H. Francis Dyruff, counsel for the plaintiff. The acquisition of the studio and plant at Wissahickon, Pa., by the Colonial Motion Picture Corporation was branded as a huge swindle by the committee, according to the papers in the action. The complaint recites that the committee accused the plaintiff of negotiating the sale of the plant to the film corporation for $100,000 through methods so "fraudulent, dishonest and unfair that the transfer could readily be set aside in a court of equity." The actual appraised value of the studio and plant, according to the circulars, was only $14,000.

Moreover, the plaintiff asserts that the committee unjustly charged him with being wasteful and unscrupulous in handling the finances of the corporation, and he takes exception to the charges embodied in the circulars that he obtained money through ulterior methods. On the contrary, he maintains that the price named in the transfer of the property also represented the value of certain patents which he transferred to the corporation at the time.

Under the terms of the agreement, however, the committee claims Mr. Law was not to be paid until $500,000 worth of stock out of a total issue of $2,500,000 had been subscribed for. Despite this phase of the contract it is alleged he appropriated various sums of money which he applied on the transaction, although it is alleged the patents proved useless.

The committee also charged that Mr. Law was guilty of gross mismanagement and cited the production of "The Seats of the Mighty." The original estimates called for an expenditure of $15,000 in producing the film, but it is alleged the head of the film company appropriated $50,000 in producing the photoplay.

Mr. Law avers the publication of the circulars was part of a plot to depose him as president of the corporation and secure revenge on him for his instrumentality in bringing about the suspension of Proctor W. Hansl, former secretary and treasurer of the company, whom he refers to as a friend of the defendants named in the present action.

The foregoing may recall to readers of the Moving Picture World an article printed in this journal on November 29 of last year under the caption of "Promoter's Rainbow."

BIOPHONE CHARGES INFRINGEMENT.

The Commercial Biophone Company, Inc., of 110 West Fortieth street, has filed an action in the United States District Court against William Morris, the Cort-Kitsee Company, John Cort, president of the latter company, the Orpheum Operating Company and B. F. Keith's New York Theaters Company, charging infringement of certain patents used in the moving picture industry.

The complaint recites that the plaintiff owns exclusive rights to a disk and starting device used in synchronizing films which has been employed in producing the so-called Harry Lauder Singing and Talking Pictures by the defendants named in the action, it is alleged, without the consent of said plaintiff.

An application was made before Judge Mayer for a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from utilizing the device described in the plaintiff's patents in producing talking machines. Permanent injunctive relief and an accounting of the profits which it is alleged have accrued to the defendants is sought in the action.

MAX LINDER DENIES HE IS DEAD.

The newspapers of Sunday, October 4, contained a cable dispatch from Paris announcing that Max Linder, the famous Pathe comedian, had telephoned in to Paris from a hospital stating that he had been only wounded, was recovering, and expected soon to return to the front. This of course is a refutal of a story of a few days prior, coming from Berlin by way of Rome, that the funmaker had been killed in the battle of the Aisne. At the Pathe offices in this city it was said there was absolutely no information other than that contained in the dispatches, and the belief was expressed that the first message was due to mistaken identity, Mr. Linder being as well known in Berlin as he is in Paris. The friends and admirers of the comedian will hope that the second report is authentic and that Mr. Linder's recovery is rapid and complete.

The New Rental Basis

No Scale of Prices—Scale of Merit Only.

WINFIELD R. SHEEHAN, General Manager The Box Office Attraction Co., in discussing trade conditions on his return recently from a trip around the country said: "Movements of all independent manufacturers, outside the pale of the 'regular program manufacturers,' have disclosed an obvious tendency toward organization and combination. Many new programs have been announced and exchanges for the handling of these new programs are rapidly springing into being. Those who have followed the market closely are inclined to prognosticate the beginning of a new order of things this fall—a new order wherein the exhibitor will be the gainer. For a long time we have been warned that the industry is in a period of transition. The wise ones heretofore who have been trying to feel the pulse have been swept off their feet by an undercurrent of complicating information.

Winfield R. Sheehan.

"The long subject has considerably complicated the calculations of all students of the market. Their popularity seems to fluctuate with the seasons. The truth of the matter from the point of view of the practical exchange man is that long film is popular if it is good. Indeed, all good films are popular whether long or short. The trouble is that too often are showmen and manufacturers prone to generalize.

"This seeming error in judgment on the part of the 'outside manufacturer,' while it has not resulted to the advantage of manufacturers in combinations, has considerably improved conditions for the exhibitors. The competition has injected into the market new material. Those manufacturers who are now profiting by their experience—and the upshot of it all will result in a final effort to get away from building scenarios around stock lithographs. This Fall the exhibitor, instead of using the traditional 'regular service' like the independent English exhibitor, will go where he can select the best films and not the best advertised films.

"In England today the exhibitor smiles tolerantly when asked by a new over-zealous American agent, 'where he gets his regular service.' In the language of the Bowery, the answer is 'There ain't no regular service' in England. The service is rented by the foot—at a flat price per reel. The showman changes service according to the quality of the pictures. He invariably shows his independence by booking his shows from as many exchanges as there are in his territory. In other words, if he is running a seven thousand foot program, all single reels, he'll book each subject from a different exchange.

"This is the secret of the much talked of 'quality program' shown in the English theaters. Their mode of selection is gaining vogue here. Theater managers are being forced by local competition to discrimination. Up to now they have found it convenient to trade with one exchange, week in and week out. They had 'other things' to do besides going around looking for 'fillums.' Going around looking for good subjects now will be their chief duty. Even if it means trading with a new exchange every day, they'll go where they can get the best for their money. No more 'weekly rental prices.' The only scale they will recognize will be merit."

CHICAGO LETTER

BY JAS. S. McQUADE

Interesting News of the Trade in Canada.

DOUGLAS H. BERGH, special traveling representative for George Kleine, returned to the city last week after an absence of six weeks, during which he visited Toronto, Pittsburgh, New York City and Boston.

The George Kleine subjects are in good demand in every city visited. In the Canadian territory traversed, which is under the management of Douglas Cooper, business is good and the future very promising, Mr. Bergh says. The George Kleine subjects are very popular with the Canadian people, and "European Armies in Action," which was running at the time of Mr. Bergh's visit, was in high demand, owing to the prevailing war excitement.

In Canada every working exchange must have a license in every province, in order to do business. The yearly cost of a license in Ontario and Quebec is $150 for each province, and in the other provinces of the Dominion the license rate is either equal to or more than the amount quoted. The censorship fee in Ontario is $1.50 per reel, and in Quebec, $1 per reel. No film can be exhibited in a moving picture theater unless it has a censors' certificate attached, and to obtain this certificate an exchange license is required for the film.

Mr. Bergh informed me that the censorship now prevailing in Ontario and Quebec is considered fair and liberal by people in the trade there. The boards are composed of broad-minded men, and when a film is once passed in any province it is good for exhibition anywhere in that province.

Films can be imported and exhibited in the large houses, which occasionally show pictures, by paying $5.00 per reel for censorship fee, in addition to $20.00 a reel for duty. The Canadian authorities make a distinction between the large houses which show pictures occasionally and the regular picture theaters. Films imported for exhibition in the large theatres are not permitted to be presented in the regular picture houses, unless the owner or manager of the films has a film exchange license, paid for in the amount before stated.

Every film subject going to Canada for rental or any other purpose is taxed with a minimum duty of 20 per cent. per reel, no matter what its age or condition. The law has placed a minimum value of $80.00 on each 1,000 feet of a film subject, on which the duty is 25 per cent. This duty must be paid if a reel is taken into Canada for only a single night.

In the provinces of Quebec and Ontario exhibitors, as a rule, have a minimum admission of 10 cents, outside of the large cities, where 5 cents is charged in many houses. In the larger cities the higher class houses charge 25 cents for special features.

Mr. Bergh observed that Canadian exhibitors use much less printing in front of their houses than exhibitors in the United States. Their lobbies are attractive, and they prefer not to have the whole front and lobbies covered over with posters, as is done in many of the large cities in the United States, where the whole front, no matter how attractive architecturally, is billed like a circus.

Mr. Bergh noticed that in Pittsburgh, in the downtown district, nickel houses prevail. When features are used in these houses the price is changed to 10 cents. Business is in a very flourishing condition in that city.

The Moving Picture World was seen everywhere Mr. Bergh traveled. He could not recall a single theatre or exchange where he did not see a copy while on tour. "Exhibitors refer to it as their guide," concluded Mr. Bergh.

Mr. Bergh left for a tour through the South the latter part of last week, during which he will visit all the principal cities.

America's President Tells of European Conditions.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Manufacturing Co., was seen one day last week at the La Salle Hotel, where he and his family are making headquarters during their stay in the city, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson will proceed to their home in Santa Barbara, their sons now being at a college in Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson and their two sons have been in England and on the Continent since June 27th. They arrived in London on the latter date and left that city for Italy on July 14th, the tour being made both for business and pleasure.

The main object of Mr. Hutchinson's visit to Europe was to investigate the conditions in Continental Europe, and to make more satisfactory contracts for the American output in those countries. About two weeks were spent in Venice, Milan and in the Italian lake region. Mr. Hutchinson was well pleased with the volume of business done by his company in Italy, and expresses himself as being well satisfied with the contract made in that country. He found that there was a strong demand in Italy for dramas and comedy dramas of the better type. The Italians demand fine artistic settings in all their subjects, and the acting, costuming, etc., must all be in harmony on the same high plane.

Switzerland was afterwards visited, wholly for pleasure. The party was about to enter Germany, where Mr. Hutchinson expected to transact important business for his company, when the war broke out. Not thinking that the outbreak at first was serious, Mr. Hutchinson and his family repeated their attempt to enter Germany, but were stopped by force on the frontier. There was nothing to do except to make the best of it in Switzerland and to abide the time when the journey could be resumed to London.

Mr. Hutchinson stated that the announcement of war immediately paralyzed business in Switzerland. As an instance of the sudden change made in the business affairs of the little republic by the outbreak of the war, Mr. Hutchinson cited that the Berne exposition, a national affair, which was visited daily by 25,000 people before war was declared, had not a single visitor a few days afterwards. Switzerland has quite a number of good moving picture theatres in its principal cities, but all these were closed shortly after war took place, as exhibitors were unable to get their service from Paris, Berlin or Milan.

Against the wishes of the American consul in Berne, who stated that he would not be responsible for the safety of the party, Mr. Hutchinson and his family set out for Paris. They were the pioneers of a great host of people, English and American, who were seeking flight to London. The journey was made by train, but the party had to get off repeatedly in order that troops might board it while the party waited for the next, which, in its turn, was stopped, and the same experience was gone through many times over before Paris was reached. It took six days to reach Paris, a distance of less than 300 miles, but London was reached safely on August 28th.

Mr. Hutchinson found that the demand for the American product in London showed a big increase and that other American manufacturers were experiencing the same condition, owing to the effect of the war. The American is still doing very fair business in Russia and also in Spain. South Africa, Australia and Eastern business shows a larger volume than ever before for the American product, Mr. Hutchinson says. He announces that big plans are under way for increasing the gross output of the American, and that these plans will be given out later.

What Is the Matter With Denver Exhibitors?

In the moving picture department of the Denver Times, in the issue of Oct. 3, the following paragraph appears:

The closing down of the beautiful United States theater this week, because of too much expense and not enough nickels, brings forcibly to the front again the question of 10-cent motion-picture houses in Denver. Of course, it is a question much argued, and few at first glance can see the necessity for a raise in price. But they are looking only from the public point of view, not from the exhibitor's. And though there is little doubt that the proposed but defeated plan to raise the price to 10 cents two years ago was somewhat premature, fair-minded persons who have studied the matter thoroughly realize conditions have changed since then, and are more inclined to admit the exhibitors are justified.

It must be taken into consideration that more big features, pictorial and dramatic productions are being shown in the first-class houses now. That means a larger expenditure of money on the part of the exhibitors and a correspondingly larger value for patrons.

It is a sad admission to make that some exhibitors all over the country refuse to consider their obligations to competitors and to the trade. To these men their occupation is not a business enterprise, conducted on strictly business principles, but rather an exploitation in which mind and energy are centered on immediate returns, without due regard—or with none at all—for the future. To crowd their houses by offering extravagant programs at five cents admission is their chief object. It is nothing to them that such a policy means bankruptcy to some of their competitors and a lowering of the real value of moving pictures in the estimation of the public, because they do not see failure lurking in the background for themselves. Such men, in the long run, are forced by circumstances and competition stronger than they can meet to attempt to deceive the public by offering quantity instead of quality; and then the end comes swiftly, because the public refuse to be gulled.

The proposed plan to raise the price to 10 cents two years ago was iniquitous, because it was an infringement on the rights of the exhibitor by the exchange, as was shown by me in my Chicago letter at the time. The remedy must come from within the ranks of the exhibitors, not from without. There must be co-operation and a sort of business brotherly consideration among exhibitors, as in other legitimate branches of trade. This does not mean the exclusion of legitimate competition; but it does mean the death knell of ruinous competition. Furthermore, it means the good of all—the exhibitor, the exchange and the manufacturer.

A short time ago my letter included a brief article on the business conditions among exhibitors in Fort Dodge, Iowa. In that enterprising little city the exhibitors had their ups and downs until they got together by mutual consent and agreed that 10 cents should be charged for strictly picture programs, of a fixed number of reels. Since then they have all been doing well. And why not? Fort Dodge, after the arrangement, had just as many patrons of the picture houses as before. Every house is getting its due share of the business, because each is endeavoring to give the best program possible for the money. And there is no kick from the public.

What is the matter with Denver exhibitors? Is there any reason why they should not meet and decide on the number of reels that should be offered for 10 cents in all theatres of a certain capacity (mutually agreed upon) and over? Is there any sound reason why they should seek to beggar one another by reckless and ruinous competition when by harmony of action they can reap an encouraging harvest in recompense for their efforts?

Chemicals May Be Imported from Germany.

Solicitor Johnson, of the State Department, Washington, D. C., holds that no principle of international law stands in the way of importing from Germany chemicals and other articles needed by American industries. In a recent address at a meeting of representatives of these industries Mr. Johnson stated that export cargoes from a belligerent to a neutral nation could not be considered contraband of war or subject to seizure, if the good faith of shipment was established.

The conference appointed a committee to confer with Secretary Redfield on future plans, and was assured by the secretary that the commercial attache to the American embassy in Berlin, recently appointed, would be sent to Rotterdam at once, if that proved necessary, and kept there while American business interests could be served.

The shortage of hydrochinon, metol, projector carbons, etc., now prevailing in the market should soon be relieved if the above indications prove right.

Chicago Film Brevities.

The eight-reel suffrage photoplay, produced under the auspices of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, is now receiving the finishing touches at the Selig studio, this city. The title has finally been decided upon by Mrs. Medill McCormick and her associates. "Your Girl and Mine" was selected after a careful consideration of the long list of titles submitted. Everyone will agree that this title is not only fittingly appropriate but stirringly catching. It has also ben announced that Gilson Willetts, the author of the scenario for "The Adventures of Kathlyn," is also the author of the scenario of "Your Girl and Mine."

* * *

Louis M. Noto, formerly with the Cort-Kitsee Company, was in the city last week on personal business. He expects to remain for two weeks.

* * *

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the Liquor Dealers' Protective Association of Illinois was opened at Alton, Ill., one day last week. Resolutions were passed protesting against the manufacture and presentation of moving picture films which show the liquor business in an unfavorable light.

* * *

In a cablegram from Paris to the Chicago Tribune, dated Oct. 3rd, Max Linder, "the man with the mobile countenance," and probably the most noted photoplay artist in Europe, who was reported as having been killed at the battle of the Aisne, had telephoned the newspapers in the French metropolis that he was still alive. He stated that he had been wounded, but is now convalescent.

* * *

It has been learned that bills already have been drawn up for presentation in the next Wisconsin legislature providing for a state license, a state building code, a state censorship board and other matters pertaining to picture theatre business.

* * *

E. M. Newman, lecturer and traveler, will open up a new series of travel talks at Orchestra Hall next November and December. These talks will include such subjects as Egypt, the Holy Land, "The Riviera to Paris" and "Berlin—the War Center." Pictures taken by Mr. Newman in the European war zone will also be shown.

* * *

Burton Holmes, the king of moving picture lecturers, will begin his travelogues at Orchestra Hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 14, and will continue them until Nov. 14. The subjects will include England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany and Austria, and the allied powers.

* * *

George H. Wiley, ex-national secretary of the M. P. E. L. of America, has been in the city all week. He will prolong his stay until next week.

* * *

The herding of French and Russian prisoners at Koenigsberg by the Germans, an interesting war film, was included in the Hearst-Selig Weekly, released Monday, Oct. 4. The result of the battle of Termonde, showing the ruins of that city, was shown in the Hearst-Selig Weekly, released Thursday, Oct. 1. Mr. Selig brought over the negatives of these films from Europe when he returned from his recent trip.

Lost Paragraph Series.

A Brand New Idea in Motion Picture and Magazine Co-Operation.

THIS new idea has been inaugurated by the Ladies' World and the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, and is now being offered to the five million readers of the Ladies' World and the immense audiences of the Essanay Company in the Lost Paragraph Series.

This series has, as its first feature, "The Plum Tree," a short story that is appearing in the October issue of the Ladies' World. Simultaneously with the publication date of the magazine, the Essanay Company releases a three-reel feature under the same title. In the magazine story a paragraph has been purposely omitted. It, however, appears as a scene in the play. A monthly prize of $100.00 is offered by the publishers of the Ladies' World for the magazine reader, or the theatre patron that can reproduce, most accurately, the paragraph omitted each month.

This arrangement has a tremendous value. Every reader is obliged to go to the treatre to see this picture before an accurate idea can be had as to the missing scene.

The Ladies' World has been specializing in motion picture features for over two years, ever since the launching of the enormously successful series, "What Happened to Mary," and thus far no feature they have offered has been lacking in profit to the motion picture business. This latest idea is the best one yet offered, inasmuch as it is not giving publicity to one single person but to an entire company, and is bringing all the resources of the Essanay organization in play. Each of the stories is of a different nature and each one of the many excellent Essanay actors and actresses will have a chance to display their powers.

The first of this series began in the October issue of the Ladies' World and the three-act play was released by Essanay Company September 18th. The officers of the Ladies' World advise us that replies to the contest have been coming in by the thousands.

MONTGOMERY NOW PRODUCING DARKFEATHER SERIES.

Frank Montgomery is hard at work producing a two-reel feature, "The Witch of the Sierras," from the scenario by D. F. Whitcomb. This is the first in the "Mona Darkfeather Series," to be released weekly for twelve weeks through Sawyer, Inc. Each of the two-reelers will be complete in itself, with Mona Darkfeather featured. This one is full of western, military and Indian action, and the popular Indian actress is supported by William Nye, J. K. Messick and others.

The comedy company producing "Monty Comedies" for the Sawyer "Seven One-Reel Comedies Weekly" service, is putting on "Touchin' Dad," with Billie Rhodes, William Carroll, Bill Ryno and Harry Fischer, under the direction of James Davis.

EXHIBITOR WESTHAUSER DROPS IN.

J. A. Westhauser, proprietor of the Log Cabin, Riverdale avenue, Yonkers, was a caller at the World office last week. Mr. Westhauser says his house is situated in the Parkhill section of his town and caters to fine patronage. He is featuring the Mary Pickford Biograph releases and using Mutual service and specials as well as General Film. He puts on six reels, running two shows a day.

Doings at Los Angeles

MONDAY, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week I went for a 300-mile trip through four counties in southern California, touring in a small car in an area 80 miles long and 30 miles wide. Thirty-six large and small cities were stopped in, and numerous villages passed through. Everywhere I went I found business good, but the people complain of the war and the tightness of the money market. In several cities the "opera houses" which for years have been used only for dramatic productions, have been equipped with projection machines, and feature pictures exhibited. In San Bernardino, one of the richest of valley cities, P. S. Harrison reports business excellent, and on the night I was there, his words were backed up by a full house, Little Mary Pickford being the drawing star. This theater was formerly a legitimate house, and many of the most famous stars of this country have graced the large stage. Mrs. M. L. Kiplinger owns the place, and Mr. Harrison is the manager. By the way, this house is said to be the first large theater building erected in Southern California, having been built in 1882, and was for a long time the only theater outside of those in San Francisco. On the opening night of the films, there were 1,800 people in the house, and seats numbered but 1,100. This is the first theater in this city to make an actual success, and business looks better than ever. Mrs. Kiplinger and Mr. Harrison also have several other theaters throughout the south. They will open a new house in Riverside early in October. All along the line the local papers are playing up the "Trey o' Hearts," now being put out by the Universal, and furthermore the exhibitors say that this series is actually the best they ever booked, and that the spectacular scenes are so thrilling that many people stay to see the whole installment twice. Several big showmen who are using the Paramount service seem anxious to receive the Oz fairy stories and if they come out as well as Los Angeles houses did, they will be well satisfied.

* * *

Interiors the same as exteriors; go out and find them and then shoot, is the new idea of Ed Winfield of the Usona company, who has devised a novel lighting system whereby the inside of a residence may be photographed just like a set in the studio. This will mean that many sets which are coveted by a director may be used instead of a copy made in the studio. Large buildings and other public places may then be photographed. If the system comes out all right it will mean a great saving of property and scenic expenses.

* * *

Max Asher of the Sterling forces has secured Velma Steck, who has been with Kolb and Dill, to play leads in the Ford company. Max is a great Dutch comedian, and the new star of the stage should be seen to good adventage with the funny Max.

* * *

Henry Walthall of the Mutual company was the toastmaster at the regular Wednesday night good fellowship dinner of the Photoplayers' Club this week. He was ready with some clever stories and his entertainment was interesting.

* * *

Again Mack Sennett has returned from Catalina Island, where he did some "wonderful" water scenes. Every company around here in this fine zero weather goes to the ocean for many scenes. Sure, they go swimming after the work is done.

* * *

The Photoplay Authors' League held a taboo meeting on the strand at Ocean Park last Sunday. Shop talk was prohibited. Anyone who broke the law was to be ducked in the ocean. A two-minute executive meeting preceded the swimming and festivities. Luncheon on the sand added to the day's fun. Most everyone wore bathing suits and splashed in the surf. Nearly all members were present, with their wives, sisters, sweethearts and friends.

* * *

The Mutualites were at a nearby town recently doing some "Bill the Office Boy" pictures, and Tammany Young, who is the diminutive Bill, was in his usual boyish make-up. He tried to buy some cigarettes at a store and the clerk refused to sell to him; law says no. Director Eddie Dillon had to identify the actor so that he could get his smoke.

* * *

It is said that the little girl named "Happy," who doubles for Cleo Madison in the "Trey o' Hearts," was severely injured when she rode a horse, fell and was thrown heavily to the ground. She suffered a broken hip.

"13"—Will it get us, or will it not get us? That question was repeatedly sifted through twice as many brains of the Wilfred Lucas "Trey o' Hearts" company at the Universal, and even Dare Devil Larkin and plucky Cleo Madison were almost at the edge of their nerve, for so far good luck trailed this company. The thirteenth issue is a corker. Larkin said that "we might as well do our worst in this, and then get through with the risky stuff." They got a risky scene all right. A husky young landslide provides a thrill. It was set off by dynamite, and, owing to the steepness of the bluff, the avalanche of stones and dirt slid faster than planned, and the players escaping in an automobile were injured by flying boulders and rocks, while Lucas and his cameramen were struck and hurt by flying rocks. The escape was spectacular, and the whole company is now congratulating itself. If the car had not raced the landslide, it would have been carried over the cliff and probably all would have been killed.

* * *

M. De la Parelle, Elliot Clawson, and the two stars, Max Figman and Lolita Robertson, the main people of the new Masterpiece Film Manufacturing Co., have started in earnest on "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," and that production will soon be near completion. Negotiations for other well-known pieces are under way. After the first piece has been put on the "Truth Wagon" will be done. This company intends putting on a number of fairy stories afterward.

* * *

Louis Scherer, location hunter for the Universal, is trying to win fame as a second Barney Oldfield. He locates in a powerful racing car, and the other day while returning from a canyon scene for "The Trey o' Hearts" he tried to take a dirt curve going about 40 miles an hour. Result: Teddy Tetzlaff or John Marquis outclassed. Scherer turned turtle, and his car rolled over twice and landed right-side up. Damage, only a sprained axle. He claims that his life is charmed.

* * *

Adele Lane, of Selig's, was painfully injured when a bear clawed and bit her hand while she was trying to escape from a building by the fire ladder. The bear came on too soon and the young actress was just a second too late to avoid the infuriated animal.

CLARKE IRVINE.

"Perils of Pauline"

Two Kinds of Thrills in the Fifteenth Episode Make You Hold Your Breath.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

LIKE all of the previous episodes, this picture is distinct and complete in itself, but the interest in the story is not thereby lessened in any way. This time Pauline supplies the villain with his opportunity and idea, because she gets the "speed bug" and not only purchases a racing machine, but enters it in the coming auto races, and then announces her intention of running her car herself in the race. Of course Harry does not want her to do it, and as this will interfere with the new deviltries of her guardian, he makes a bold bad effort to have him put hors de combat by means of a professional duelist and a poisoned rapier.

Pauline, of course, has her finger in the pie both in bringing about the duel and also by taking her part in the free fight with the roughs whom the villain has to summon to his rescue when Harry gets hold of the rapier. Then follows the thrilling auto race with its exciting dangers and big smash-up when the "tacks" strewn across the course by the villain's confederates wreck—not Pauline and Harry—but the professional duelist who has been trying to run into them with another racing car.

There are some very excellent views of a genuine auto race well utilized to bring out not only the story but also the real perils of that kind of sport. It should be a very popular picture and a good drawing card.

WORLD FILM'S DETROIT PROJECTION ROOM.

A miniature theater, or projection room, is being fitted up as a part of the quarters of the World Film Corporation at 99 Woodward avenue, Detroit, where it occupies one-half of the fourth floor. It will be fitted up with twenty theater seats, will be handsomely decorated and will be used for the advance showing of the company's films to the exhibitors. A gold fibre screen has been installed, as well as a picture machine. The room is 8 by 27 feet in size.

DICKERSON RESIGNS FROM WORLD FILM.

Douglas Dickerson has resigned as manager of the Detroit office of the World Film Corporation, and pending the appointment of his successor, Edward D. Selden, personal representative for General Manager Lewis J. Selznick, is in charge.

"Marta of the Lowlands"

Mme. Bertha Kalich Gives a Remarkable Performance in Famous Players' Five-Part Subject.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

HERE is a picture that deserves to live when all who had to do with its making "have vanished into air, into thin air;" for it is a photographic record of the art of a great emotional actress, inspired by a great theme—the portrayal of a woman's physical infatuation for a man she abhors and the gradual development of genuine affection for one who brings to her his heart, his protection and his name. "Marta of the Lowlands" is more—it is a worthy example of the stature the motion picture has attained in the year 1914.

Scene from "Marta of the Lowlands" (Famous Players).

Angel Guimera has given us a tragedy, more of the soul than of blood. It is a story of the master and the woman, the one powerful, dominating, the other humble, abject; in his full manhood he imposes his will on her in her youth. The shackles may tighten, but they are never permitted to lessen. Sebastien is of the Stone Age, Marta is only a woman, of any age. She realizes her position, the woe of it all, but is powerless. Sebastien may be cruel to Marta; there is nothing for her to forgive, inasmuch as apparently there has been no offense. She turns on him only when she sees that he has deceived her—that he has encompassed her marriage with a worthy man without acquainting him with the previous relations of master and woman and warning him as to what the master has decreed for the future—in other words, the master will marry to repair his shattered fortunes, the woman will marry a man of the master's selection; marriages of convenience both—the master's convenience.

Scene from "Marta of the Lowlands" (Famous Players).

"Marta of the Lowlands" is in five parts, the first of which is devoted to a prologue. Mme. Kalich enters the story at the beginning of the second part; until the end she holds the spectator under the thrall of her artistry. It is a gray life story she portrays for us. There are few smiles. On her remarkably mobile face is stamped the tragedy of her living death; but when the features lighten at the end of the story, as Marta realizes her deliverance is at hand through the instrumentality of the one Sebastien had intended as the agent to consummate her ruin, the contrast is sharp. The great joy in the face of Marta is reflected in the mind of the beholder.

Mme. Kalich is given strong support. At the head of the other players are Wellington Playter and Hal Clarendon. Mr. Plater portrays the part of Manelich, the shepherd. He fits the part. His characterization of the highland lad who goes to the lowlands to take a wife is marked by keen intelligence and fine feeling. Mr. Clarendon as Sebastien, the feudal master, is excellent. His work is virile, forceful. Playing opposite a woman of Mme. Kalich's commanding personality demands quality. It is worthy of note that these two members of the Famous Players stock company acquit themselves with marked credit. Muri, the young friend of Marta, is delightfully played by Miss Lillian Kalich, the daughter of the star. Others deserving mention are Frank Holland, in the role of the chief servant of Sebastien; George Moss, the venerable villager, who suggests Manelich as a desirable bridegroom for Marta, and also the player who takes the part of Marta's father.

Of strong scenes there are many. They are not lacking in the first half of the story, but they come fast in the latter half. The picture was produced by J. Searle Dawley. Surely "Marta of the Lowlands" is the peer of his best. The splendidly photographed exteriors are of Cuba. The atmosphere is ideal. We have the low lands and the high lands. We have the shepherd in his garb of skins lying on the hillside surrounded by his sheep, the wide valley spread out before him. We have the overlord, the master of all he surveys, both animate and inanimate. We have the superb Kalich.

ELEANOR WOODRUFF IN DIFFICULT PART.

Eleanor Woodruff, Pathe leading woman, stars in the forthcoming three part drama "The Ticket of Leave Man." In the story a young man is convicted of a forgery committed by a friend and sent to a penal colony in the tropics. He falls in love with the daughter of the colonel in charge of the camp and when his sentence expires sails for home by the same boat on which she is a passenger. The ship is wrecked and the girl and man cast away together on an uninhabited island. Some time elapses—their clothing is worn out and needs replenishing, so the girl clothes herself in sacking. Miss Woodruff shudders when she tells of this experience. "You see" she says, "the scenes on the island were taken down in Bermuda. Day after day I had to appear on a picturesque stretch of beach not far from a fashionable hotel, clad only in what was once a grain bag, with legs bare to my knees and arms also exposed to a broiling sun. The cool and attractively garbed guests at the hotel would come and gaze at us as we went through our part, much as though we were visitors from Mars or some other outlandish place. It just made me furious to hear their would-be clever remarks about my costume as I worked away under that torrid sun supremely uncomfortable in that scratchy sacking. 'My word', said one man with a monocle, 'look at our friend Eve just escaped from the blooming garden.' I can tell you I was mighty glad when we finished that shipwreck stuff.

Eleanor Woodruff in "The Ticket of Leave Man" (Pathe).

Moving Picture Educator

Conducted by the REV. W. H. JACKSON

THE EDUCATIONAL PICTURE.

By the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

An Unadvertised Vitagraph.

The Vitagraph Company has always been very modest with regard to its educational pictures. Too much so, in fact, because it frequently does not give out any previous notice about some of its best work. This is the case this week, when as the tailpiece to their comedy "The Ageless Sex," released September 16, they release "The Raising of a Sunken Yacht." Judging from the synopsis of the comedy they cut it down from the whole reel that it was advertised as in order to make room for the educational; and we must congratulate them on their wisdom. The picture shows the sunken yacht, the subsequent stages of the raising, the divers making fast the chains and cables, the raising of the vessel by means of a great derrick, the pumping of the water from her hold, and, close up, the mooring of the yacht, the diving apparatus and the powerful pumping engine used. Considerable comment was made on the picture in the place where we saw it and all of it was favorable. One man remarked, "Why don't they give us more of that stuff; it's good!"

A Question of Feet.

Inquirer.—You are both right and wrong as to Vitagraph's "A Study in Feet." It is the first comedy that has been released on that idea; but it is not the first photoplay. Thanhouser used the same idea in "The Little Shut In," released May 17, 1912, but they made a heart interest drama out of it instead of a comedy. You will find the synopsis of the Thanhouser picture in the "Moving Picture World," volume 12, page 564, and the comment on 12:730.

Synopsis of Kalem's "Wolfe."

Historian.—The synopsis of Kalem's "Wolfe, or the Conquest of Quebec," is begun in the third column of page 1322 of the "Moving Picture World," volume 20, and completed in the first column of page 1320. Page 1322 should have been numbered 1320 and page 1320 should have been numbered 1322. The continuation of page 1320 is page 1324, and the continuation of page 1318 is page 1322. Annotate your pages as follows and you will have no further confusion or bother. At the bottom of column three, page 1318, write: "continued on page 1322"; at the top of column one, page 1320, write: "continuation on page 1322," at the bottom of the third column of page 1320 write: "continued on page 1324; at the top of the first column of page 1322 write: "continuation of page 1318," at the bottom of the third column of page 1322 write: "continued on page 1320"; and lastly at the top of the first column of page 1324 write: "continuation of page 1320."

Bible Parables.

Clergyman.—Comparatively few of the parables have been made into moving pictures. The Prodigal Son was done by Eclair in 1911 and by Pathe in 1912, and Edison started to make a series of the parables in the winter of 1912-13, but only completed two of them, "The Good Samaritan" and "The Wise and Foolish Virgins," as the demand at that time was too small to warrant going on with the work and the work was dropped. Since then nothing has been done. If you wish to obtain them query the Eclair, Pathe and Edison companies.

Kalem Releases.

The Kalem Kalendar for October calls special attention to two of its productions that should both be excellent from an educational point of view.

The first of these is "The Seed and the Harvest," the Kalem two-reel release for October 14. It is the story of how the indulgent mother of two sons spoils the younger at the expense of the elder until her idol reaps the inevitable reward of his sowing, and the heartbroken mother, realizing what she has done sets about the task of regenerating her darling while her elder son reaps the reward of his sacrifices and filial devotion in the love of the girl who has been instrumental in opening his mother's eyes. A story of this kind has the real punch and the more of them you can get hold of and run in your house the better. Parental indulgence of children is one of the great crying evils of today, and the more intelligent a man is the more he realizes the importance of bringing home its evils to every one. Get the picture and then advertise it, especially to teachers, clergymen, parents and young people.

The other picture is "The Boer War," the Kalem five-reel special, released through the General Film Masterpiece Service, June 10, 1914. According to the Kalendar it is of great timely interest and value to all who wish to understand clearly the methods of fighting by and resisting "frontal attack" as employed in the present European war. Today the Germans are using the "frontal attack" methods employed by the English in South Africa, while the English are turning to account the wonderfully effective tactics that the Boers so successfully employed against them. If we must have war pictures, let us at least have those that can teach us something as well as make our flesh creep. A picture like this, the events of which are historical enough not to inflame our passions and prejudices and will at the same time give us a clearer and more intelligent idea of the real nature and awfulness of war, is distinctly good, and will help to fit us in doing our part to bring about the lasting peace of God when the warring nations get tired of playing the devil's game. The same thing can be said of the other two great military specials produced by Kalem, namely, "Wolfe, or the Conquest of Quebec," and "Shannon of the Sixth." A special review of "The Boer War" will be found in the "Moving Picture World" 19: 1216, and the synopsis 20:1608.

General vs. Miscellaneous.

Four letters from as many exhibitors as widely separated as Georgia, Colorado, Texas and Canada, come to us by the same mail and all four asked practically the same question. We give our answer here as the same question may be bothering others who have not yet screwed up courage enough to write in and ask.

The four exhibitors have been making up moving picture catalogs for themselves according to the directions we explained in detail in the Moving Picture World 19:1554 (Dec. 27, 1913). They have reached a point where they say that under the head "General Topics" they now have more entries than they have under all the other heads. This ought not to be so, and from other things they say the trouble in these cases seems to be that they have simply used the General Topics as a place to put everything that they did not know where else to file. In other words they were really using the heading as if it was synonymous with miscellaneous, a pitfall we warned them against in our explanation. "Miscellaneous" is not a classification heading at all. It is simply a waste basket. The word means, made up of all sorts of things, all mixed up, promiscuous. On the other hand "general" means common to all, common to the majority, so large in scope or meaning as to be more or less indefinite. For example a box filled with books, clothes, and various other kinds of things would be a miscellaneous collection. A box filled with books alone, even though the books were on all sorts of subjects, would be a general collection. It would be a collection of one kind of thing, namely books. Again, take the different particular headings in the classification: religion, science, industrial arts, literature, etc., each heading is definite and refers to one kind of thing. On the other hand there are several kinds of things that cover several of these particular heads all together. A newspaper, for example, is made up of stories about religion, and science and history, etc., but the stories that make up a newspaper all have one trait in common, they are all stories. A newspaper is not a miscellaneous collection, but a general collection of several particular kinds of stories. The pictorial newspapers such as Pathe's Weekly and pictures about newspapers, like Edison's "How a City Newspaper Is Made," belong under "general topics." Another general topic is "polygraphies," that is writings that cover a great deal of ground or so many topics that their common trait or characteristic is vague and indefinite. Such for example are the series like "Dolly of the Dailies," or "Chronicles of Cleek," or children's stories. Lastly take the censorship of pictures. The board passes some and refuses to pass others. The pictures are on all kinds of subjects, but they are all remarkable for one thing in common, namely censorship. Hence the censored pictures are another general topic. Or, since pictures may be remarkable for other things than censorship, a better heading is "Pictures for Some Reason Remarkable." We give below the subdivisions of the heading "General Topics" that we have found useful in classifying the pictures. If the following headings and subdivisions are not sufficient to cover all you have under "General Topics," write and tell us what you have left and we will try and help you classify them properly.

0 GENERAL TOPICS
07 Newspapers. Journalism
07.01 Pictures about newspapers
Filed alphabetically by place of publication and name of newspaper.
e.g. 07.01 - Brooklyn, Eagle
07.01 - San Francisco, Examiner
08 Polygraphies
082 Collections
082.1 Series. e.g. What happened to Mary
087 Pictures for different classes of persons
087.1 Children's stories. See also 398.4 Fairy-tales
09 Pictures for some reason remarkable
094 Noteworthy production. First of their Kind. Etc.
098 Noteworthy internal characteristics
098.1 Pictures prohibited and suppressed. By order of the 098.11 Religious authorities
.12 Civil authorities
.121 Pictures censored by the National Board
.121 (4-9) Locally censored pictures. Subdivided like 9 History
.124 Violations of copyright
099 Noteworthy external character or circumstances

Information Wanted.

The following letter has just been received from Mr. W. C. Howland, president and manager of the National Bureau of Municipal Research. It explains itself.

> We are receiving inquiries from different cities for moving picture films on educational topics such as would interest a chamber of commerce or board of trade audience, and I have been referred to you. What film concern can furnish films of this character? I hope your experience in this kind of work will enable you to suggest the names of some of the companies who make a specialty of educational films.

We have referred Mr. Howland to our catalogs of educationals in the "Moving Picture Year Book for 1912," and the volumes of the Moving Picture World for 1913 and 1914, and asked him for more definite information as to just what is desired. Meanwhile, will not any one who has any suggestions to make along these lines write in and let us know about them?

"THE EDUCATIONAL ELEMENT IN A PHOTOPLAY."

A Paper Read Before the Ed-Au Club at Its Meeting, Saturday Evening, Oct. 3, by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

IT is claimed by some persons that there are as yet no such things as educational pictures. This is from one point of view substantially true; but only substantially, not absolutely. There are very few pictures, indeed, that have been constructed along proper pedagogical lines for the avowed purpose of serious education; but there are some. Under the direction of medical experts, Lubin has made about fifty thousand feet of film for use in the study of disease. Columbia University has made several hundred feet on the action of different drugs on the heart and the circulation of the blood. Pathe has made a number of pictures showing the scientific revelation of radia-microphotography and the ultra-microscope. These pictures are undeniably educational from every point of view. Between this extreme and the latest melodramatic thrill there is a vast multitude of pictures possessing every degree and shade of educational value, and the point in question tonight is what is this thing or factor or element which they possess in common and which gives them a greater or less claim to having an educational value.

Now, look at it from the other extreme. Here is a picture. Its title is, "The Villain Doomed." The advertisement describes it as "a highly exciting melodrama, of intense dramatic thrill and of great educational value." At first we are inclined to smile. But think a moment. Even straight melodrama may have an educational value. The old idea that education meant stuffing a man with all sorts of information was exploded long ago. The succeeding, opposite idea that education was simply getting out of a man what there was in him has also met a similar fate. Nowadays, the majority of educators hold that St. Paul's idea is correct. Man has a body, a soul, and a spirit. He feels; he thinks; he wills. Education means training a man to feel, think and will in the best possible manner. The picture we are watching is a straight melodrama. But virtue is rewarded and villainy punished. We feel better. That is as it should be. The hero or the heroine pass through all kinds of hardships and trials and come out of them a better and nobler man or woman. We not only feel better, but we see that the trials and hardships were what taught them their lesson or made them better and stronger. We have done some thinking, and done it, too, along the right lines. The picture has a heart interest and punch that grips us and makes us want to imitate the characters we have seen. We make up our minds we are going out and become heroes and heroines ourselves. We have done some willing, and done it, too, to some good purpose. For the moment we have been lifted out of the old rut and been given a vision of the higher and better things of the new plane to which we have been raised. Whether we stay on the new plane or not depends on other things than the photoplay. Its mission is done. It has put us there. It educated us out of the old into the new and better, and the educational element in it is the thing that has accomplished this.

Again, "The Villain Doomed" turns out to be not a straight melodrama, but a travesty on the old tank drama. It is full of caustic wit and satire and genuine humor. At first we watch it, slightly puzzled, until we get the proper point of view; but from then on we watch it laughing or chuckling or silently amused, according to our dispositions until the picture is out. Here we have the same educational element as before; but it is of a higher degree or order. There is the same exercise of the feelings, the reason and the will in the right direction, but it is more subtle in its working. We did our thinking and willing first, and then sat down to enjoy ourselves. At the start we had to know more, we had to think harder, and we had to decide, not an objective action, but a subjective idea. In order to appreciate the point of the story we had to know about the tank drama, we had to analyze it and criticise it and then make up our minds that there was a funny side to it. Then we sat back and gave ourselves up to the enjoyment of that way of looking at it. The educational element was there. It appealed in the same way. But it appealed to a more educated spectator, a more developed intelligence, a keener sense of feeling, a better trained will.

The same is true of every form of photoplay. In all of them there is the same appeal to the fundamental powers and capacities that every man has, and this appeal is educational just in so far as it calls those powers and capacities to exercise themselves in the right way. The educational element in a photoplay is its appeal to a man's better self; and its educational value is in proportion to the way in which it makes a man enjoy better, think more highly of and make up his mind to hang on to and get after "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report." In other words, every photoplay that impresses on a man the value and importance of the good, the true, the beautiful, and makes him want to get up and go after and obtain them, has an educational value; and the element or factor that gives it that value is the factor or element that does these things.

This sounds like sermonizing. But it is not. It is a straight-from-the-shoulder talk about something that has a very practical bearing on the work of every one of us, whether we are the photoplaywrights who write the scripts, the editors who accept them, the directors who produce them or the newspapermen who review them. The spectator takes what we give him and exercises his feelings, his reason and his will on it. The result may be good or bad. It depends on what we give him. It is up to us to give him the best that there is and what will make him better than we was before. It is quite true that the public go to the photoplay for amusement and entertainment and not for instruction and teaching. But I am not advocating the administration of nauseous and unwelcome lessons in a homeopathic, sugar-coated form; I am pleading for a pure-food supply of candy and sweetmeats. Except from necessity, people do not eat candy for nourishment, but because they like it and enjoy it. But candy made out of poor and adulterated materials ruins the digestion and even poisons people. In the same way photoplays made out of uneducational and vicious materials plays the mischief with a man's mental and spiritual digestion and sometimes poisons his whole make-up. We are responsible for the materials we put into the photoplays we write or accept or produce. We already have a pure food commission in the National Censor Board, and when we can guarantee the purity of our own ingredients we need no longer fear, but can be more than willing to welcome laws that will insure the integrity of all products on the market and will put the benzoate using manufacturers out of business.

The Art of Exhibition

Rothapfel's Ideas on How the Best Program May Be Secured Under Present Conditions—"Features" and "Variety."

By W. Stephen Bush.

AT the Friars Club—Monastery would be a better word—Samuel L. Rothapfel told me in his usual direct clean-cut way of his views on "The Program." His ideal is the open market, but he hastens to add that this ideal at this time seems unattainable.

"Allowing," said Rothapfel, "for all present handicaps, I firmly believe that personal initiative and enterprise on the part of the exhibitor count very much, even in the matter of programs. Lack of interest in his program is the bane of the exhibitor. Perhaps that lack of interest has been encouraged by conditions over which he had and has no control. The little exhibitor especially, is easily tied by service regulations, but it seems to me that even he is in a position to assert his judgment if he knows how to approach the exchange in the right spirit. He must know how to be diplomatic or insistent in turn, but if he is willing to take pains he will never go wholly unrewarded.

Exhibitors' Influence Growing.

As to the bigger exhibitor, the man with a well-conducted house of good capacity, it seems to me he can get pretty nearly what he wants. As far as conditions allow we simply have to delve in and pick our own programs, making variety the chief attraction. The program must represent something as a whole, it must be a fitting program, a program with an atmosphere of its own. This is the policy I follow with my own programs. In order to do this successfully, certain standards in the selection of dramatic, comic, topical and other subjects ought to be followed.

"While it is plainly inadvisable to lay down hard and fast rules, it may be said in a general way that in the selection of a drama the test ought to be its power of tugging at the heartstrings without causing the disagreeable effect of a severe strain. Pathos, rather than pure tragedy, ought to be the dominant note. What we exhibitors generally call 'heavy plays' are to be avoided. It is well to move the audience, to stir their hearts, to rouse their indignation against injustice and win their throbbing sympathy for weakness and misfortune, but it is inadvisable to lift the curtain on plain, unmitigated horrors.

"In selecting the drama it is natural that its musical possibilities must weigh with exhibitors. These are, of course, very general rules I may lay down and I realize that audiences differ vastly. Hence, the necessity of exhibitors selecting their programs with a view to their audiences. I will tell you later what methods I have chosen of feeling the pulse of my audience and getting at the real sentiments of my patrons.

"Every man who is called to this profession instinctively devises tests of his own and the results of these tests must aid him in the picking of his program. It is to be remembered, however, that while all audiences are different, there are many respects in which all audiences are perfectly alike. They are all human. If it is done skillfully you can read them all, but you must do it without letting them feel that they are being lifted higher. Briefly restated, decisive tests of the successful photo drama are that it must have a good theme, it must be well acted, it must be well photographed and it must be well directed.

The Program in Detail.

"Now, as to comedies. I think the one essential is that they be clean. Unless a comedy shows up well under this test, it can never get on any screen for which I make the selections. I have no impossible standards here and when I see my audience go into convulsions of laughter over 'slap stick' and 'rough house' screen farce, I do not assume to correct their taste, but am glad to see them laugh. After all, that is the one object of the comedy and if it can be obtained without any offence to decency, nothing more ought to be asked. Here, too, the complexion of your audience, its degree of culture and refinement, its place in the social scale, etc., ought to have great weight.

"The topical film is winning a prominent place on every strong program, and I am glad of it. We specialize in topical reviews at 'The Strand.' These reviews are partly original and partly compiled on the eclectic plan from the best material on hand. I know that they have a very strong hold on my audiences, because I could name scores of people high in commercial and professional circles in this city who wait for these reviews with a child's enthusiasm for the coming of Santa Claus. Many of them after thoroughly absorbing every particle of the review, just take in perhaps part of the comedy or a few scenes of the drama and then go away to look at the rest of the program later in the week at their leisure.

"Educationals."

"No doubt you have noticed the deep interest which holds our audiences when the 'educational' part of the program is being displayed on the screen. Somehow, I feel that the word 'educational' does not cover my idea of the purpose and effect of this character of film.

"To 'educate' my audience, in the ordinary sense of the word, is about the last thing I would care to attempt. What I want to do is to rest the audience. In presenting a program lasting something like two hours, it is impossible to entertain your audience without resting them. The old-fashioned intermission is, of course, out of the question entirely; the best substitute ever found for it is the entertaining film of an 'educational' nature. Again, I say, I use the word 'educational' with the proper reserve and distinction. Take your audience at the conclusion of a strong climax of a strong drama. I cannot think of catapulting an audience thus set to thinking and lifted out of itself, into a ripe, roaring comedy. I therefore show them something which delights the eye and soothes the mind without touching any emotional cords. Scenes of beautiful fountains or waterfalls, dainty bits of animal life, scenes from the beautiful countries of the world, monuments of architecture, glimpses of foreign lands and foreign nations most admirably fill the interval which ought to come between the dramatic and the comic.

"Wherever I can I select colored or tinted pictures for this purpose. To produce the effect that I desire these scenes must be skillfully assembled. No one knows better than you what can be done by skillful assembling and how flat on the other hand three or four hundred feet of good film can be made to look if the assembling of the scenes has been either left to chance or supervised by a 'bonehead.' I always make sure that the last scene in these 'educationals' is the strongest and where I can get a touch of the dramatic I am eager to seize on it. In all these pictures of animal life there is a vein of mild but delicious humor which no audience ever fails to appreciate. You know how often these pictures have been followed and interrupted by ripples of the most spontaneous kind of applause."

I did not think it possible to do justice to the subject of the program without introducing the question of features.

What About Features?

"Will you speak a strong word or two on features?" I asked.

"Features?" Mr. Rothapfel shot the word back at me with an emphasis of disapproval. "Features? I do not like the word. I suppose you mean a picture of greater length?

"Yes," I said, "and strength."

"The two do not always go together," Mr. Rothapfel remarked, sententiously. "The mere length of a picture does not impress me at all, certainly not favorably. I opened the Regent without any features in the ordinary sense of the word, yet the critics were kind enough to say that my programs was full of features. The method of presentation may be a feature, the music may be a feature, any number on the program may be a feature by reason either of its timeliness or its special treatment.

"Of course, I know that the word feature has come to designate a film of greater length. However, I am getting away from judging the value of films by length. In fact I pay as little attention as possible to the footage and in my announcements no reference is made to so many parts or so many reels. I realize, though, that the film of greater length, or if you will, the feature, has come to stay, but I think it will be materially shortened in the future. I will acknowledge as a genuine feature only that subject which both in its theme and in its treatment is distinctly superior and at the same time totally free from padding. I don't like to deal out entertainment to my patrons by the measure. Quality is the only real feature in my eyes. It has happened time and again that the feature, so called, on my program has been dwarfed by some other part of the entertainment. By a splendid scenic for instance with beautiful music, by a particularly appropriate topical review or by some other item on my weekly offering. I do not think it is sound policy to rely on just one part of your program and trust to it to pull through the rest.

The Elusive Charm of Variety.

Here we were interrupted by another guest of the Monastery, a prominent attorney of this city, whose recent visit to the Strand had made him a convert to motion pictures. Strangely enough, as he joined in our conversation, he praised the very points in the program on which Mr. Rothapfel had laid such stress. When he had left us I asked Mr. Rothapfel just what he meant by saying that variety must always be the program's chief attraction.

"I simply mean," said he, "that the exhibitor must get his wits together and incorporate something into the presentation or into the musical accompaniment of his pictures to make them seem different. He must be able to rise to every emergency. There are occasions when just the crash of a bass drum will impart a wonderful and original touch to the performance. In fact, there are a hundred things, trifles apparently, which if seized at the right time, will give the desired spice of variety. These things cannot be taught in lessons. They will be demanded or suggested by the occasion and the happy thought must arrive at the same time with the occasion.

"You know a program can be presented in varying order. The thing is to keep away from getting into a rut. Opening and closing your program always on the same order is like feeding your people with the same food all the time. You can open with a topical, swing onto a comedy and put on your drama or your heavier picture, interpose a scenic and close with a comic. Or you can open with a scenic or a topic, follow with your comedy and then give your drama, etc. Part of the charm of variety is to be secured by appropriate changes in the order of presentation. The comic cartoon, which has lately come into vogue, is another gain for variety on the program. It bids fair to become very popular."

As we left the Monastery Rothapfel turned to me with a smile, saying: "When one of your own musicians at a rehearsal blurts out 'D—— it! this is beautiful,' you know that you are not far wrong with your music, and when we meet again we will speak of music and its effect upon the screen and upon the audience."

Industries Educational Film

New Los Angeles Company Will Have Its Studio on the Roof of a Large City Building.

The first moving picture producing company to build a studio on the roof of a city building has nearly completed its unique studio and on the first of October active operations started. The Industries Educational Film Company headed by prominent local men, has started work in the new and modern Knickerbocker Building at 643 South Olive street, Los Angeles. The new structure is ten stories in height, with all modern conveniences. The officers are: President, W. M. Freese, who also is the general manager (who has resided here for fifteen years, for the past five years has been closely in touch with moving pictures); secretary, C. H. Sayles, formerly an attorney here; treasurer, Pierre C. Bayne, for three years the chief reporter for Bradstreet's. Mr. Freese is already certain of two releases for the new films, and as soon as work starts the films will be announced. The company will produce dramas and comedies. This company is setting a somewhat new plan in action, for the whole studio and laboratory will be open for lease at any time. Advertising films will be made, and any kind of special pictures will be made as ordered.

The ninth floor will be the main business place. The managing director, business office, scenario editor, and general offices will have space at the front, while at the rear will be located the half-dozen dressing rooms for stars, twenty-five rooms for stock players, and room for 200 extras. Nearby will be the lavatories, with bath rooms adjoining, and back of this section will be the laboratory, with large developing, drying, printing and film finishing rooms. Hot and cold water and air, with all modern building equipment will add to the comfort and convenience to all workers. Two passenger elevators and one large freight car connect with both floors.

On the top floor the main scene of action will be set. Here are the stages and scene departments. The main space is 50 by 100, the largest portion of which is reserved for space for about three working stages, while a generous portion is allotted to the permanent stage which can be used for most anything. One new feature about the main stage room is the window scenery, which can be instantly changed to suit the set. Sliding frames are worked in the casings, there being a plain glass, for an ordinary room, prism glass, to be used as lighting, opaque for dark sets, leaded colored panes for church scene, and the old-fashioned four-pane window. Every prop and scenic effect will be interchangeable, and permanent.

The outdoor portion of the studio is on the roof, a total space of 50 by 150 feet being available. The whole space is to be converted from a barren gravel roof to a most beautiful garden and forest. At the front is a sub-roof, 15 by 50, which will be made into a lake. The elevator mechanism house will be covered with cement to represent a mountain cabin, as will the other house at the rear. The tank will be turned into some sort of a scene. Big exterior scenes will be done on the roof, and most any kind of a scene can be produced here. The skylights are made flush with the floor so they will not be noticed when taking pictures here, and at the same time the light can be used on the top floor stages.

Players going to and from the studio in make-up will be rushed down to the back entrance and into a court, there loaded into machines and taken to and from the studio. Plenty of good shots can be had in the vicinity of the building, as it is located practically in the heart of the business section. Central park, the city hall, and many other important settings are close by and the director should not want for city scenes. Car lines to both mountains and sea are only a block distant, and interurban lines are but a few squares from the studio. As soon as work starts, and films are turned out, the new company will make interesting announcements as to the product. CLARKE IRVINE.

Harry Goldberg, Casino Feature Film Co.

ONE of the fastest growing film exchanges in the country is that of the Casino Feature Film Co., in Detroit, Mich., of which Harry D. Goldberg was recently appointed General Manager of Sales.

Mr. Goldberg started in the moving picture business as booking agent in the City of New York for the Sedeg Feature Film Co., a subsidiary organization of the Gaumont Co. This was in January, 1913. After he had been in the field for about four weeks, he had shown such executive ability and was so successful in producing new business, that the management felt he was suited for something better, and the result was that he was put in complete charge of the Sedeg office. In March, of the same year, he was transferred to Detroit to take charge of their branch office. In October the Casino Feature Film company, which had only been in existence a short while, took over the business of the Gaumont company, the agreement being that the Sedeg office be withdrawn. John H. Kunsky, the general manager of the Casino Feature Film Co., saw in Mr. Goldberg a "valuable asset" and, although the office was abandoned, Mr. Goldberg was made a tempting offer to join forces with the Casino company, which he accepted.

Harry Goldberg.

He started on the road booking theaters for the Casino company, and again showed his ability as a business-getter. In fact, in a very short time he doubled the number of theaters booking Casino films and had orders coming in for a while faster than the company could take care of them. When the Sales Manager of the Casino company resigned a few months ago, Mr. Kunsky lost no time in appointing Mr. Goldberg to the position, so, instead of traveling salesman, Mr. Goldberg now has the well-deserved and important title of Manager of Sales.

The Casino company is the Michigan and Wisconsin agent for Paramount pictures, and is booking in Michigan alone over 125 houses.

BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS IN MINNEAPOLIS.

District Manager E. A. Westcott announces the opening of the Minneapolis office of the Box Office Attractions Company on October 5. The quarters are situated in the Jewelers' Exchange Building, 627 First avenue North.

The Ultimate Triumph of the Single Reel Production

By John J. Coleman.*

I MAY be decidedly wrong and by some called a hopeless conservative, but I cannot rid myself of the idea that the sensational success of the motion picture industry can be directly traced to single reel pictures, which caught the fancy of the earlier patrons and which hold their own today in spite of the vast number of longer productions clamoring for a market. You may call that rank heresy if you choose, but that is the way I feel about it. Bear with me a little further and I will try to prove my contention to your entire satisfaction.

John J. Coleman.

Vast sums of money are being invested daily, solely upon the theory that the silent drama can effectually replace the spoken drama; manufacturers are going to great lengths to secure the original casts of successful stage plays in order to produce six-reel versions for the screen; new exchanges have been opened expressly to book these lengthy films, and regular theatrical booking agencies have opened their doors to these productions; but notwithstanding this sudden activity all along the line, the single reels of merit continue to furnish the main bulk of the picture programs, throughout the land, proving conclusively that they are the foundation stones of profitable exhibiting.

It is a significant fact that the president of one of the largest motion picture manufacturing concerns in this country has put himself on record as opposed to any production over three reels in length and it is equally significant that a genuine demand for comedies—single reel comedies, mind you—has suddenly developed, presumably because comedies have been neglected in the mad rush to register stage triumphs and market them ahead of the other fellow.

Suppose we admit, for the sake of argument, that the long picture's the thing; then what is to become of the theaters who are dependent for their patronage upon noon-day crowds, upon travelers waiting between trains, upon busy citizens with an hour's time to while away? Can you honestly see how they can do business at the old stands with five and six-reel feature pictures and serials (continued next week)?

"But," says the manufacturer of feature films, "I don't need the little fellows anyway; I desire to see my productions billed like regular theatrical attractions: two shows a day and three hours of entertainment for one dollar." Truly, a consummation devoutly to be wished, but nevertheless one which every manifestation of common sense rebels against. In the first place the producer of film stories cannot get along without the small theaters of two hundred and ninety-nine seats, and in the second place he owes a debt of honor to these self same theaters that should impel him to turn out goods that they can market. They made him; let him make them. And they can't market six-reel pictures.

Let us get down to the personal viewpoint and see what further arguments in favor of the varied program (consisting of single reels and short two-reel films) we can find.

Have you ever sat through a six-reel picture without squirming in your seat from sheer weariness? Did you glance about you and notice the effect of the continuance performance upon your fellow amusement seekers? Were they not, one and all, as restless as yourself? And how, pray tell, could they be otherwise? With brains and eyes working in unison, their restless bodies indicated the physical tiredness that they undoubtedly were experiencing. The same thing could not happen if you were witnessing the performance of a spoken drama, because in that you have voices to break up the strain; in other words, you call your sense of hearing into play to assist the eyes and brain.

With the setting forth of these facts, I have concluded my brief against motion pictures of extreme length. Now, with your indulgence, I want to go one step further and point out the way to the attainment of ideal manufacturing and exhibiting conditions for everybody concerned.

Perhaps you may have inferred from the foregoing that I would condemn every motion picture exceeding one thousand feet in length. That is for from the truth. What I really would endorse is this: For those theaters seating one thousand or more people, a program consisting of a single reel comedy, a short two-reel drama, and a three-reel dramatic offering, interspersed with high class music. In those houses seating less than one thousand persons, a program of one and two-reel subjects with appropriate music.

And now I want to make a radical suggestion—one that if adopted, will certainly go a long way towards revolutionizing conditions as they are today, both from the manufacturer's and the exhibitors' viewpoints.

Why designate one thousand feet as a single reel? Why not let the story run 1,100 or 1,200 or even 1,400 feet as a whole? Why kill the effect of a good scenario by condensing it so that it comes within the thousand-foot limit? Or why pad a 1,400-foot scenario so that it will fill two spools? Every modern projecting machine takes two thousand feet of film so there is no worry on that score. Then why not do these things and thereby produce better pictures?

After all is said and done, motion pictures have "caught on" simply because they can be viewed at any time throughout the afternoon or evening; because, in other words, they make up an ideal continuous performance and the chance passerby has given them his hearty support for that reason more than any other.

If the first nickelodeons had offered six-reel films, they would have perished miserably, but they couldn't get them and so they grew and with them the manufacturers have grown.

That is why I believe in the ultimate triumph of the single reel production, be it 1,000 or 1,400 feet in length.

*EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Coleman was a practical theatrical man (actor—author—manager) long before he became interested in motion pictures, and it is because of this fact that his view, or rather his prognostication, of the future, throws an interesting light upon a troublesome question—namely, what shall we ultimately produce. For more than a year, Mr. Coleman has spent his time profitably in the studio of the Gene Gauntier Feature Players, writing scenarios, directing features and single reel pictures and studying at first hand the ins and outs of production and distribution.

ECLAIR PRODUCER EXPLORING IN MEXICO.

Alfred Hollingsworth, who is producing some two and three-reel features for the Eclair Company, at Tucson, Arizona, has just returned from a very interesting trip into Mexico.

Leaving Tucson on the 23rd of September, in the company of Mr. Brackett, a financier from Jacksonville, Florida, and Al G. Bernard, general manager of the Aracapa Land and Cattle Co., the party proceeded by auto to the 10,000 acre ranch in the Aracapa valley, owned by Mr. Bernard, and were just in time to witness the fall round-up. A number of interesting pictures were secured of the actual round-up.

From the Aracapa Ranch, a run of fifty miles brought the party to the Mexican line, which is guarded by the old Spanish Haciendo of Saba, a historical building some 150 feet long, with old court yards, loopholed for defense, and the scene of some stirring Indian battles in the old days. Permission was obtained from the Consul to use the location, and Hollingsworth expects to put on the historical battle of "The Adobe Walls" in which twenty American frontiersmen held over two thousand Indians at bay.

Another half-day's travel brought the party into the Papago Indian country, where they camped for the night. The party again reached Tucson on the 27th, having completed a circle of 250 miles, over rough, mountainous country, frequently without any roads at all, and with no water for sixty miles at a stretch. However, Hollingsworth says he enjoyed every moment of the trip, and got a fund of material for scenarios, and some locations that it would be impossible to duplicate.

MISS CLARK RE-ENGAGED FOR "THE CRUCIBLE."

Marguerite Clark, whose initial appearance in motion pictures will be made in the next release of the Famous Players, in "Wildflower," has been re-engaged by that company to appear in a screen version of Mark Lee Luther's powerful story, "The Crucible," which is to be a subsequent Famous Players release. The charm and sincerity which Miss Clark infused into the bewitching role of "Wildflower" indicated her unusual value as a screen artist and resulted in her re-engagement by the Famous Players for several other characterizations.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Ballyhoos.

TWO exhibitors send in photographs showing them or their employees in dress-up for special stuff. Thomas A. Humanson sends in a program asking for comment, as he wishes to get out a weekly program, and wants brother exhibitors to send him samples. He wants to know what we think of the contribution of a local man on the pictures printed on the back of the lone program he has gotten out so far. We think that if there are a few more in town like this chap there will be no shortage of copy. Later on, when space permits, the matter will be given in full, but right now we want to tell Mr. Humanson what we think of his program and run a picture of the Mexican boys who help him advertise his shows. It is Mr. Humanson in the middle and he painted in that turnip-sized diamond himself.

We think that the program sent is not quite what he wants. We take it he is in a town that is none too large. He wants not only to educate his people into going to the shows, but he wants to educate them to keep on going—which is what they talk about when they mention the "higher education." The program sent is a faithful report of what he has to offer and is going to offer. In a town of red hot fans it would be all that is needed. But unless even the babes in arms are crying for the pictures, the program could be changed to make business. Tell about the pictures in all aspects. Tell how they are made and worked. Play up the personalities of the players. Just incidentally, on page three, tell which are coming and WHY. Talk to the reader in a chatty way. Get him interested and keep him interested. Mr. Humanson uses the Hennegan colored covers and prints on three pages. Unless he can give eight pages, it would be better, for the time being, to discount the color and put into the price of black and white what he new pays for color unless he appeals strictly to the Mexican passion for colors, and even then, through use of chat, he can tell a lot in small space. The back page stuff is good. Two or more pages would be better.

Leo Hirsch.

The other masquerader is Leo Hirsch, who got the reels of "The Human Wolves" and then got himself up in this wise. He says he attracted a lot of attention and played to S. R. O. Mr. Wells runs the Photo-play theater, Watertown, S. D. Naturally he aroused some attention going down the streets disguised as the parlor floor suddenly come to life, but he points the moral that anything even slightly out of the ordinary will bring results; a point that all good showmen know and few others.

Oh! Very Well.

Gosh! It isn't safe to hand out any records. Every time we start something like that some chap out West finishes it off. R. Kuhn, of the Kuhn theater, Lebanon, Oregon, rises to remark that North Carolina has nothing on the hustling West. Now someone else whittle down the Kuhn figures. Can you? He says:

> In reading my new copy of the "World" which arrived this morning I came across the communication in your department from Manager Block of the Victoria theater, Beaufort, N. C., stating that he has run "The Last Days of Pompeii" June 18 and doubting if there is another town of his size in the country that would undertake such an expensive undertaking, seeing that the population of his city is only 2,500 souls.
>
> For his own edification I would like to say that he is away behind when it comes to stating those facts, as I had "The Last Days of Pompeii" in March, "Quo Vadis?" in April and "Antony and Cleopatra" in May at the "Kuhn theater," Lebanon, Oregon, population 2,000 and booking every big production that we can get hold of.
>
> The enclosed photo will give you an idea that although in a small town we believe in having things up to date and put up as good a show as you'd find in larger cities.
>
> I enjoy reading your department very much and receive a good deal of help from it.

Mr. Kuhn sends a picture that shows a "regular house." We are sorry he didn't pick out some photoplay advertising stunt instead of the lady kilties. We are fond of lady kilties, but they don't belong on a photoplay page. And when we get lady kilties we like "close ups" and the closer the better.

One More.

After the records we have given, we do not think that C. W. Richards of Lake Providence, La., gets off very close to the front platform, but, on the other hand, half of the population of his town is brunette, and perhaps we should divide by two and give him 925. Anyhow he says such nice things about the paper and us that we are going to submit his letter and his record. We could do no less. In passing he sends in an excellent, but not specially noteworthy, two-column advertisement. Perhaps we did help him. Certainly the advertisement is all that is needed. He says:

> We take the World every week and can hardly wait for each issue. We are delighted to have a weekly reference work which so thoroughly covers the field. The adv. helps are wonderful. We are inclosing you ad. taken from our weekly news. (We have only weekly.)
>
> We notice in your columns of adv. helps that Manager Block, of Beaufort, N. C., claims a record in putting on the Kleine, "Last Days of Pompeii," in a town of 2,500. We can beat that. Our town is 1,850 population, of which one-half are colored, and we are running all of Geo. Kleine's attractions.
>
> And following those come the Vitagraph Broadway features, and General Film Co.'s special features. We also run "Perils of Pauline" on the tenth episode, which is ahead of New Orleans theaters, and in the same week that it is run in Memphis, Tenn., and we start the "Million Dollar Mystery" as a Saturday night attraction; and with this, our profits are getting bigger, and they pay well. Manager is operator also. We are coming again soon.

We hope that Mr. Richards does come in again and often. If you chaps didn't come in we would go out, and we enjoy this job better than anything we do. We are just stuck up enough to feel that we are helping some people, and to the man who is on the level that is even better than circulation getting. For that matter the paper feels the same way and it's a mighty fine thing to work for people that feel that way about things. We can say this because the copy goes straight to the printer and it won't get cut out, but while this department does hold readers, the greatest value to the editorial department is that it makes good. That's one reason why it does make good.

Last Call.

Here is the last time we are going to credit anything to Real Reels and George E. Carpenter unless the cuss drops up that promised line, but this is too good to go to a limited circle. Have a laugh yourself.

> Did you read that story recently in Colliers about the chap who got a check for $300,000 for a simple little device for autographing kodak films?
>
> Here is a chance for a few embryo inventors to pick up some pin money along the following lines:
>
> An automatic film box with self addresses that will walk to the depot and get on the right train on schedule time.
>
> Patent slides, photos and cuts crossed with Homer pigeons that will fly home to the exchange.
>
> Rubber walls for theaters taking Paramount Service.
>
> Aperture plate that will automatically move every time there is a mis-frame.
>
> The lemon detector for use by exhibitors who frequently change their service.
>
> Automatic operator that will thread a film, throw a switch and feed carbons.
>
> Opinion machine for collecting the uncensored verdicts of units in an audience.
>
> Self-righting lobby frames that refuse to be knocked down in the rush.
>
> The Advertiser's Elixir, a mild tonic for the exhibitor who says "what's the use?"

Just in passing Carpenter comments on Paramount Pickings and does not say they swiped his fables. Justice has been done. They both do good fables.

A Question.

The Tyler Picture Palace recently changed hands and R. W. Buzzell is now manager. He sent out a typed card of invitation to the private opening, and we are still guessing as to whether he did well or ill. At that it depends on whether or not he gave out many cards and the class of persons invited, but if he invited so few that a typed card served, they should have been made personal letters and not cards, and if he had cards they should either have been engraved or printed in imitation of engraving. The typed card, at best, is a makeshift. Either a typed letter or a printed card. The question is merely which. Even with a small crowd, the printed card, we think, would have been better, unless the aim was to suggest the absolute intimacy between the management and the person receiving the invitation.

Anyhow their first picture was not Lord Chumleigh. It was either Lord Chumley, the original title of the Sothern success, or Lord Cholmondeley, which is the way it is properly spelled.

We would like to see more of the advertising.

Improvement and Correction.

Billy Welch, of the Empire theater, Kansas City, explains that he is not secretary of the Kansas City Exhibitors' League local because there is none. He is using up the letter heads that he had when there was one. Kansas City should have a local, and a good one, with all the good houses in town.

Mr. Welch sends in a self-supporting program. Ads top and bottom and on the back page the printer's bill, and all he has to do is to get out the copy. It even pays for Hennegan cover stuff, which looks very good where you can get them without undue cost—and they are cheap, at that. He gets about three-fifths of the inside pages and the front cover. We would make the front cover work just a little harder, but, as he suggests, the program is better than a previous submission, because it is worded so as to make the offerings seem more interesting. Now it makes you think that it might be worth while going down to the house to see what it talks about. That is all a program can do.

Gets a Choice.

C. J. Rose, of the Hippodrome, Gloversvile, N. Y., sends in a folder that tells of the acquisition of the Universal service to add to the Mutual, already under contract. It goes somewhat elaborately into detail with lists of the brands and players and the statement that they take daily the best six. A sheet inclosed is to be checked by the patron to indicate a preference for anything from six reel features to six one reel singles. Mr. Rose calls it a business boomer, and it ought to be. With a strict adherence to the truth it suggests that they take their pick of about thirty reels a day.

He also incloses what he calls a get acquainted ticket. It is merely a variant on other schemes, but the wording may help. It is recommended.

SPECIAL GET ACQUAINTED DAY TICKET

This ticket issued with our compliments, and entitles bearer to attend any MATINEE, week of September 7th, except Monday or Saturday, as our guest. Not good at night.

HIPPODROME THEATRE
C. F. ROSE, Manager

This helps the matinee business without seeming to try.

Helping Out Saturday.

George A. Roberts, of the Oneonta theater, Oneonta, N. Y., writes:

> One of the things I like best to do during my week's work is to sit in my room on Saturday evenings after a mighty hard day's work and read the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, as it comes to me on the last mail every Saturday evening.
>
> I get a lot of good ideas out of it, and I take a great pleasure in reading "Advertising for Exhibitors," and also the way that you tell some of them how much better it would be if they would change their advertising to read this way, and that way. It is not only a great thing for them, but a great thing for the one who reads your different comments.
>
> I am inclosing you a small photograph of the way that I worked up "The Man on the Box" a street ad. that really caused a lot of talk on the streets, and a copy of the "Local Theater News" that I get out once a week. If any of these appeal to you enough to print them, I should be pleased to read something about my own advertising some Saturday night while sitting in my room.

We do not think that we ever saw a house organ just like this. It runs a pair of regular 13 em columns and a double column in the center. The outside columns are given to the outside advertiser and the center double column to the house. The latter uses about half for house talk and half for chat. There is no formal program, just stuff to read, and you read the house stuff because it is not formal.

We think it would pay to take some stuff from the outside and run a regular weekly program, but at least this errs on the side of readability. A sheet like that in eight pages could be developed into a local weekly, and even in present form could be used to advantage. Certainly it gives the advertiser a return. It's good for the house, too, but not quite as good as it might be.

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Cutting It Down.

WILLIAM B. COURTNEY seems to have found the greatest reduction in school courses. He has found a "$30" school course "cut to 15c." On this connection we desire to announce that we have a new "guarantee" scheme. You will find courses that cost you $25 and where you are "guaranteed" the sale of your first script for $10. Very good. Now the price of Technique of the Photoplay is two dollars. Send us, personally, $12 and we will send you the book and guarantee that you will sell your first script for $10. Send us $22 and we'll guarantee to buy it for $20. Send us $102 and we'll buy the first script for $100.

We cannot guarantee any sale except to ourselves. We cannot guarantee the sale of a second or succeeding script unless you send in the money to buy them with, but if it comes to being a good chap, send us $102 and we'll send the book and guarantee the sale of your first ten (to us) for not less than $10 each. We are the nicest natured little cuss, and we'll help you to kid yourself along if you want to.

Inquiries.

We really enjoy the change in the handling of the Inquiries Department. We did not like the idea at first, since it seemed to entail more work without additional pay, but we have been running around the country this summer and working three and four weeks ahead sometimes, and it did not seem fair to a correspondent to keep him waiting a month for a reply, so we changed over to the personal réply system. So far the privilege has been abused only once, and on the other hand we can reply to a question more fully by personal reply where the author does not expect a full letter. Of course we are not offering this free service out of pure loving kindness. We get a return in the suggestions as to the troubles of the readers of this department, or else it would not pay us to bother, but we find that the average writer will speak more fully if he or she knows that the question will not be held up to ridicule with a possibly identifying initial attached, and so for a little more work each day we are able to cover more ground.

Please feel free to tell all your troubles and ask questions that may strike even you as being foolish. This department is to help you, not merely to earn some money for us, and we want to help you all we possibly can, short of taking you into our lap (or is it laps?) and telling you all about it.

But please don't write in lead pencil. If the information is not worth pen and ink, it isn't worth much, is it?

Not Half Trying.

Once on a time, and inside the calendar month, we saw a bunch of small boys trying to establish a local jumping record. One kid went on the seat of his trousers about three inches short of the good mark and, as he got up, he limped off remarking that he didn't half try.

That's like a lot of writers. They do not half try. They make a try at writing a story and fall down, and if it comes back they remark they did not half try. And meantime the one who not only does try but gives three more ounces of effort than he thought himself capable of, gets over the mark and is acclaimed by his fellows.

If you don't want to half try, don't cry because you come home with gravel in your hip pocket and a dust mark where you'll get the rest of your punishment. Nothing ever was done by half trying, and the man who only half tries is right in line for the chute that lands in the northeast corner of nowhere. Give every ounce that's in you to every try and then you're none too certain of winning.

Unusual.

If you should see John William Kellette wandering around with his mouth open and a dazed look on his face, it is not merely because he comes from New Rochelle. Carroll Fleming, who used to put on the big stuff at the Hippodrome, lately went to Thanhouser as director. He gave them one of his vaudeville sketches and Kellette put it into shape. And Fleming right away insisted that Kellette take all of the money for the work instead of splitting 90-10 per cent. and taking the big half. No wonder Kellette gapes. But remember that Fleming is also an author and knows what it means. If all producers were like that—after they got to be producers—think how lovely things would be. Meantime Fleming is elected to the truly ises.

See the Horns.

A little goat with a sky-blue hide touched up with nile green, with purple horns and gilded hoofs has wented away from our private kennel. He is now the property of a man who wrote that he knew we were no longer criticising, but he liked the way we used to criticise and so he sent in a story anyhow.

It was nice of him, but it cost him six cents in stamps to find the answer and it cost us a certain standing with the Recording Angel. We are not criticising for money, bouquets or anything else. We have some pupils and know where to get more when these graduate, and we do not want any volunteers.

Incomplete.

Marc Edmund Jones, in the August Script, writes that there is a call for a new technique that will be worth something. Mr. Jones always has risen superior to practical technique in writing his scripts, so much superior that in some circles (including ours, yes), visioning back to get in something you forgot to tell in the first place is known as "Marcedmunding." He is at work on an article on "Graphical Plot Development" that will be "a mathematical scheme for the measurement of plot values, which is of value when the factors in a plot do not readily fit into their proper grooves."

Will three or four friends please be good enough to send in their September copies of The Script. We only got three of the August issue. We do not get the sheet direct. We would hate to miss this mathematical demonstration, and yet we cling to the ten dollar fee.

After It's Over.

A couple of weeks ago we dropped in at a place at Coney Island where the kitchen is clean. At a closeby table were a couple of vaudeville players, and they came over to be introduced to the, to them, new half of our family. "He was always good to us," explained the head of the team. "Of course, he kicked some, but it didn't hurt."

He had forgotten the times we used to skin his hide from about three inches from the top of his head to within two inches of his heels. He forgot all about the time we used to talk to him with a whip in one hand and a handful of salt in the other. Now he tops the bill wherever he and his wife play, and he owns three or four apartment houses, and he just remembered that we didn't always altogether like his act. It didn't hurt -now —and it had helped.

We've got some pupils and some readers who feel the same way about it, but fewer because we have been doing this work only about three years, but some of these days you'll realize that if today we had not cut open the flesh and rubbed salt in you would not be where you will be five years from now.

This is not meant as a defense. It is told, called up by a chance rencontre, just to cheer you up a little. Keep on listening and do not cuss too much.

Studying.

When you get on a street car do you read the war news or do you look at people? And if you look at people, do you know what they mean? Do they mean anything to you, for that matter?

Do you know how a tactful man will sidestep a conversational "souse?"

Do you know what a tactless man will do?

Do you know what an old lady will do?

Do you know what a young woman will do?

Do you know what the conductor will do, if appealed to?

If you do not, how can you expect to write about street car travelers who have absorbed too much?

Ever see a child playing peek over its mother's shoulder with the hereinbefore mentioned?

Ever see a kiddie win over a grouch?

If you are wise you will not lay your story on a street car, but the things you learn there will help you write parlor stuff or boat stuff or street stuff or any other old kind of stuff. It is part of your equipment to learn all these things against the time you will need them. The real author has at least a bowing acquaintance from the top to the bottom. He knows a couple of millionaires and a couple of gunmen and all walks of life in between. They all come in handy. We've gotten as much copy out of "Little Buck" and Sam Schepps as we have out of the big people.

Study life as well as books and you'll be better equipped to write of life. Books will help a lot, but people are the real books even if some of them are bound in full calf and others in pigskin.

Mystery Stories.

Here it comes again. We thought we had written a last word, but lately we've been asked more questions, and we've suggested to an editor who has the rights to the output of a certain concern that some of our old stuff, sold that company, might work into good material.

And the result of the cogitation is to show that the really good mystery story is not a mystery story at all. You know the answer from the start. Take one of our own, for example. The answer came in the next to the last chapter. There were about twenty chapters. The question was, who stole the emerald? In the fiction story the whole thing was kept under cover until, in the last part of the story, a few paragraphs told the entire matter. In film it would be necessary to show the actual theft of the jewel, its place of concealment and all the rest, leaving as the only suspense the question as to whether or not the detective would find the solution, and how. If the film version is made, a part of the time he will be on the wrong track and you, the spectator, will know that he is on the wrong track.

The answer is very simple. You cannot mystify the audience and give a whole chapter of leader in the last hundred feet. You must exchange for the question as to who stole the goods the question of how the theft was discovered.

Take the other story, which concerns a series of supernatural events. It was merely a matter of the earliest form of magic lantern, the concave mirror, but the new mystery is how the other people find it out.

Mystery stories require careful treatment, but they are not any more difficult than any other story with proper suspense. It is merely a matter of how.

Boobs.

Now and then we use the word "boob" in this department. It is not a particularly nice word, but it so expressive! But some people seem to think it means anyone who doesn't know much.

Please, Kind Reader, it is not that. It means the man who never will know much. The man who doesn't try to know much. The man who says, "I write a fine story for the Gumph, but they wouldn't buy it, so shall I sue them?" That's what we mean by boob.

The softest place in a soft heart and a softer head is for the man who is starting in and who is in earnest. We didn't have the slipperiest sort of sledding in our own starting days, and if, from our experience, we can ice the track for others and make it a little easier, we are only too glad, but we will be eternally hornswiggled and other horrible things if we can snuggle up to our ample breast the cuss who writes "My script didn't sell. Why didn't it?" Talk about writing in the plural, please, and do not try to sell the first.

Just today we had occasion to look up some old magazine novelettes for a date. Our first story, one of the ones we liked best, was the fourth to be published by the same concern. We thought it was hard treatment then, but to day, reading over the scrap book index we realized that they were wise in holding it until the fourth, when the other three had paved the way. That's how it is all along the line. The first isn't so good, no matter what you may think, and if you think it, you are in the boob class.

Sing It.

We can tell all of the popular songs, even when played on the hand organs, for the past fifteen years, but we go further back than that. There is an old hymn that starts off:

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er.
I'm nearer home today
Than I ever was before.

It's the sort of junk that most of that hymnal stuff is, but there is a cheering thought in it just the same. To the man who works and keeps on working, each day brings him closer to the desired check, and if the check is merely the sign of victory, the closer he comes the less anxious he is for the check.

Don't be a check chaser. Be a writer.

Proper Paper.

Once more we rise to remark that there is but one test for paper. Take a sheet of paper just after you've put a new ribbon in your machine. Hit the keys hard to get a good black impression. Take the sheet down to the store. Put a sheet of the paper you want to buy over the nice, black impression. If the typewriting shows through the paper is too thin. If the writing does not show through and the paper has a good writing surface, then it will do whether it is fifteen or twenty pound bond. The way to tell how much it weighs is to weigh it. Take the five hundred sheets out of the box and put them on the scales. If they weigh five pounds, it is twenty pound paper. If the weight is less, multiply by four and you get the exact weight.

Building Up.

There used to be a time in your early days when the family stood around and wondered that so small a child could count "clear up to ten." Later you got into the hundred class. Your mind outgrew the tens into the hundreds through growing familiar with the tens. It is the same way with writing scripts. You must learn to count ten before you can expect to count a hundred and you must learn to get ideas before you can expect to get good ideas. But keep on thinking ideas and after a while you can't help thinking good ideas, and the time will come when you can almost always get an idea good enough to go on the screen.

A Typewriter Tip.

When your ribbons seem to wear out in a week or two, don't declare that you have been swindled. Look to the tension of the carriage. Perhaps the carriage is drawn along at so high a tension that the type scrapes along the ribbon. Keep your tension down to the point where the spring will barely permit you to use your top speed. It will be easier working and it will be vastly easier on the ribbons. Some operators seem to think that the faster the carriage moves along the better and faster they can work. The reverse is the truth. The best machine is set at a tension that barely moves the carriage to the next printing spot as the new type bar gets above the paper. On the other hand, a tension too light makes for smudgy work. Do not accept and fully pay for a machine until the adjustment is precisely suited to your touch. Then leave it alone.

Snakes.

Arthur Reall says he was several times told that a snake story could not be used because no director would handle the snakes, and he points out that two recent stories have run large snakes.

We have the mate to Reall's story in our own morgue and we were told that no one wanted to handle the snakes, and yet Paramount and J. Searle Dawley have made snake stories lately.

In selling remember it is just this: It is not that an idea is good or bad but merely that a director wants to do it. He may turn down ten snake stories, get the idea that perhaps a snake story might be a good thing after all and have to go and write his own script because the others have all been sent back.

It is a good deal of a gamble with most anything that is not the old cut and dried easy stuff. It is one of the reasons why there is not a greater variety in the output. The director is supposed to make a thousand feet a week, no matter what he is doing, and he does not take chances on getting stuck with the unusual.

The only thing to do with a story that offers some unusual element and is turned back on that account, is to hold it up until the business grows into a new plane and then send it out again.

Small Stuff.

While you are waiting for that hundred dollar check for a two-reel story, did you ever try doing small stuff? You can at least get in the price of paper and carbons and stamps if you have an observant mind and go at things right. The writing game does not consist wholly of short stories and photoplay. Do filler stuff.

As an example, we were reading System a couple of months ago. There was a paragraph about identifying cuts. We did not think it was as good as a scheme we had originated. It took ten minutes to write out a brief description and today we got a check for $4.10 for 410 words. You cannot buy much real estate with a princely sum like that, but a cent a word is as good as fiction average, and the money is the same sort of coin as you get for stories.

The trick in making money on the short stuff is not to send what you do not feel pretty certain is new and just what the editor wants, but once you get into the trick, you can make a nice little sum, and if you have used your eyes and ears you can cover a wide field.

It is comparatively easy to find good fiction, but the editor is often hard put to find small filler stuff, and if you will study the right sort of publications you can land almost anything from the fauna and flora of the North Polar Regions to new ways to cook noodles, and you'll stand a better chance with the noodles than with the pole.

Specials.

If you write a story with the idea of fitting one man or one woman in one particular company and the story does not sell, you must rewrite it if you want to try anywhere else. It doesn't pay. Write the sort of story that does not depend on the personality of any particular star and if one company does not want it, another might. It's fine to write a story that will suit the one player you most admire, but do not do it unless you have a pull with that company or unless you are rich enough to indulge in the luxury of writing what you want to rather than what is wanted.

Sympathy.

It is so foolish for an author to try and sell scripts through sympathy! A photoplay factory is no branch of the United Charities and the editor is not the almoner for the boss. He doesn't care about this being your first script if it's a good one—but he is not going to take it to help you along or to keep your interest up. If you are going to quit if you do not sell a script pretty soon, he probably hopes you will, for no one working in that frame of mind can hope to succeed. You can lay bare the innermost recesses of your soul, but unless you accompany the exposition with a good script the editor will remain as cold as a chunk of ice. You may think it helps you to write that you are a struggling young author presenting your first script and you do so hope that the editor will take it because the Blank company is your favorite company, and you think Miss Dash is the cleverest player in the business, but it doesn't. The Blank company did not get a reputation for itself through putting on the scripts of a half-baked beginner, nor did Miss Dash make her name through her work in incomplete character studies. About once in a million times the sympathy plea may get one somewhere, but that is not a gambling chance.

Winter Stories.

Two or three dozen letters want to know if now is the time to start sending out winter stories. It is, but please remember that "winter stories" no longer mean what they did four or five years ago. In the meantime Los Angeles and Jacksonville have been discovered, and most companies now work at least some of their people in the open the year around. It is no longer a case of having to write "all interior" stuff from August to January and all outside the rest of the time. Now when the leaves fall off the trees the eastern companies hustle down to the Clyde line and book passage south. They may keep the home studio open with one or more companies, but they will have some companies in the field.

In the Licensed branch Biograph sends its companies to Los Angeles. Edison usually sends companies to Florida and Bermuda, though keeping the home studio fully employed. Essanay has companies in Niles, but works in the Chicago studio. Kalem has a permanent electric studio in Jacksonville and companies in California as well. It does no work in New York in the winter. Selig works companies in Los Angeles. The plans for the Chicago studios are apparently not formulated as yet. Vitagraph has one western studio and uses field companies. Lubin keeps a studio in Jacksonville and generally sends a dramatic company south, but there are three electric studios in Philadelphia.

On the Independent side American works wholly in California. So does Beauty. Bison, Broncho, Kay-Bee, Keystone, Domino, Frontier, Gold Seal, Joker, Komic, Nestor, Powers, Rex, Royal, Sterling, Universal Ike, and some Victors are made in California and the show does not matter. Some Victors, Imps, Thanhousers, Princess, Majestics are made in or near New York.

The matter of all interiors for winter use is no longer important.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending 4 cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

The first seventy-four questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form. They may be obtained by remitting 25 cents, money, or stamps, to the editor. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy. You may be surprised at the number of questions you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 54.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Permission to use the contributor's name must accompany each answer, otherwise only the name of the city will be used. Theater managers looking for high-class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

Suppose the incandescent lights in your theater dimmed perceptibly when you struck the projection arc, and brightened again when you cut it off. What would you conclude from this, and what tests and measurements would you make in order to locate the trouble? Suppose the incandescents burned to c. p. when you struck the projection arc, or even when both arcs were struck, but at a certain time each evening they dimmed, and at a fairly regular time would brighten up again, and that during this period the striking of your projection arc also affected the incandescents. What would you conclude from this? Suppose the dimming and brightening to be frequent, and at irregular intervals, and of varied amount. What would you conclude from this?

Roll of Honor.

The Roll of Honor on Question No. 48 is as follows: Joseph H. M. Smith, Forth Worth, Texas; L. C. La Grow, Albany, New York; A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington; L. B. Minges, Lestershire, New York; New Orleans, Louisiana; W. J. Neff, Reno, Nevada; John Solar, Watertown, New York; Thomas H. Williams, Buxton, Iowa; George Van Deurs, Brooklyn, New York; Gordon V. Humphrey, New York City, New York, J. I. Roberts, Nashville, Tennessee, and Montreal, Canada.

I have selected the reply of John Solar as being the most complete reply to question 48, although all those on the Roll of Honor were correct, and most of them very good.

Reply to Question No. 48.

By John Solar, Watertown, N. Y.

The Question:

Give the rule for finding the c. m. area of a wire to conduct any number of amperes, d. c., any distance with a given drop in voltage. Apply this rule, and figure necessary size of two-wire operating room circuit, 100 feet in length, to supply 50 amperes at 3 volts drop.

The Answer:

Formula for finding the area in C. M. of a wire to conduct any number of amperes, any distance, with a given drop of voltage.

$d^2 = \frac{21.6 \cdot D \cdot I}{e}$ or $d^2 = \frac{10.8 \cdot L \cdot I}{e}$. In which d^2 = area in C. M.; D = distance in feet one way; I = the current in amperes; e the drop in voltage; L= total length of the wire used in the circuit; 21.6 = the constant to be used with D, and 10.8 = the constant to be used with L. Example: To find the size wire required to carry 50 amperes in a circuit 100 feet long, with a drop of 3 volts.

$$\frac{21.6 \times 100 \times 50}{3} = 36000 \text{ C. M.}$$

The area of a No. 5 wire is 33102 C. M. and the area of a No. 4 is 41742 C. M. No. 5 rubber covered wire is rated at 54 amperes, and would be large enough to carry the current in this case, but not with the per cent. of loss given. In order to keep within this per cent. drop we would have to use the No. 4 wire, with its area of 41742 C. M., which would be 5742 C. M. more than is required. Wires selected with a view of keeping the voltage drop within given limits are usually larger than necessary to the purpose, but in no case must they be smaller.

The following formula for solving question 48 may be easier to understand than the one already given:

$$\frac{\text{Drop of Voltage}}{\text{Amperes}} = \text{Resistance of the circuit}$$

$$\frac{\text{Resistance of the circuit} \times 1{,}000}{\text{Number of feet in the circuit}} = \text{Resistance per 1,000 feet of wire.}$$

The tables, giving the size of wire for a given resistance are prepared per 1,000 feet, so we will have to reduce.

Examples: to find the size of wire required to carry 50 amperes in a circuit 100 feet long, with a drop of 3 volts.

$\frac{3}{50} = .06$ ohms resistance for the circuit, and $\frac{.06 \times 1{,}000}{200} = .3$ ohms per 1,000 feet.

From the table we find that No. 4 wire has a resistance of .24800 ohms per 1,000 feet, and No. 5 wire has a resistance of .31280 ohms per 1,000 feet. The No. 5 wire has more resistance, per thousand feet, than .3 ohms (result of our example). Therefore, if we used it we would have more than 3 volts drop, so we would again be obliged to select the No. 4 wire.

A Caller.

On Wednesday, September 2, the editor had a caller in the person of R. C. Tarlton, president of the Majestic Amusement Company, Memphis, Tenn., of which our old friend C. F. Bridges is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Tarlton is visiting New York to look over different makes of pipe organs and other moving picture theater music producing instruments.

Messrs. Tarlton and Bridges, under the disguise of "Majestic Amusement Company," entered the amusement field in Memphis something like five years ago. They bought out the Memphis interest of Mr. Montgomery. They were both new at the game; but, be it said to their credit, they have more than made good. It takes but a few moments' conversation with Mr. Tarlton to demonstrate to the observant one that he has made a close study of the business from all points of view, and I am sure that his partner, Mr. Bridges, has done likewise. It is pleasing to chronicle the success of men who have acquired that success by good, hard work, close observation and study, and that is exactly what Messrs. Tarlton and Bridges have done.

A Theory.

R. G. Hawkins, Lincoln, California, theorizes on Brother Lewis' trouble as follows:

> Noting, on page 1238, August 29th issue, that S. B. Lewis, Winchester, Ky., has trouble, will say that I had the same thing happen several times, but allowed it to continue only a foot or so. I have noticed that the trouble always started at a splice which has parted half way across the film. My theory is that in going under the gate one side of the film lags behind, owing to the pull being on one side only at the half way parted splice. This lagging causes the teeth of the intermittent sprocket to climb up and run on the film stock, instead of in the sprocket holes. This would cause the film to be indented between each sprocket hole, just as Brother Lewis' film was indented. I am operating a motiograph and know such a thing can happen and not be noticed at all on the screen, though a man with a good ear can readily note something is wrong. I make the thing right again by grasping the film, above the gate, between thumb and finger, thus increasing the tension until the sprocket teeth slip back into the holes. Some day I am going to send a description of a system of light shields and lens port coverings I use.

All right, Brother Hawkins, come across with the description and don't wait until "some day." As to your theory I must criticize your statement that it could not be seen on the screen. If the intermittent sprocket teeth were meshing properly with the sprocket holes on one side, and traveling between the sprocket holes on the other side, why that would mean that the film picture would be very much wapperjawed in the aperture—certainly enough so that it could be readily seen. In fact, come to think of it, I do not see how the condition such as you describe could exist, since the film at the aperture would have to be an eighth of an inch further down on one side than on the other, and that certainly is not possible. We would like to hear from other operators who have had similar experience, if there are any.

A "Mechanical Marvel."

A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington, lands on J. C. Brennan's "Wonderful Invention," on page 1237, August 29th issue.

> Have just received The World and opening it at the department, the very depths of my soul were stirred with sublime admiration of Mr. J. C. Brennan's Mechanical Marvel. Your prediction that really high class men would soon be entering our humble profession is now verified. Of course Mr. Brennan does not read The World. The inadequate, amateurish stuff therein contained is doubtless far beneath the notice of a mechanical genius of his calibre. Now, I hope none of the boys will insinuate that the matter contained in our projection department is beyond Mr. Brennan's comprehension. Seriously this is a worse case than that of the man who wanted to know if the Edison wires entering the building carried volts or amperes. That genius was densely ignorant, and, of course, had no business in an operating room, but at least he did have the saving grace of a desire to learn. Here, however, is a self confessed incompetent who proudly publishes the fact that he does not want to learn. How long will it be before such barnacles on the ship of progress are eliminated? They cannot be helped and educated, because they refuse to be told. If you, or some of the departmentites would give this man a good, stiff roast it would be well deserved. It might even do him good, though I doubt it, because that sort refuse to be told. I wonder how much money he hornswoggles his employer out of each week in the form of wages.

Well, Brother Stewart, you hope that some of the departmentites would land on Brennan, and I guess after you read your own letter you won't do any more hoping, because your wish has come true in your own very able effort. I have no sympathy with this man Brennan. As Friend Stewart says, after calmly sending in a description of an "invention" of his which was enough to forever damn him in the sight of real operators, he coolly informed us that he did not bother reading the projection department. The above roast is a pretty hot one, but I am sorry to say that it is fully justified by the facts.

Number Wanted.

Thomas H. Williams, Buxton, Iowa, encloses a year's subscription and says:

Kindly give me, through the department, the number of the local M. P. O. U. of San Francisco; also the address of its secretary.

The number of the San Francisco Local is 162; the address is 68 Haight street. Their secretary was, and I think still is, Anthony L. Noriega.

A Corker.

The editor of this department gets some queer questions shot at him, but here is the limit, from George Gernod, Maurer, New Jersey:

Would the rays coming out of a one million candlepower searchlight turn a wheel at a distance of 500 feet on a very dark night, the wheel having very fine bearings, and very easy to turn?

Brother Gernod makes a sketch to illustrate his meaning, which is that if a wheel made like the wheel of a water mill was mounted on ball bearings, and the rays of a searchlight directed against its paddles, would the wheel turn? For some unexplainable reason friend Gernod seems to think it would be more likely to turn on a very dark night. Just what gave him the notion that the light rays have propelling power I don't know, but for his information I will say that I am of the opinion that if you could concentrate the rays of a one million candlepower searchlight on a feather the feather would promptly burn up, but it would not even move so much as a one-millionth part of an inch. Next!

Voltage Versus Amperage.

A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington, writes:

In the communication from Seattle, Washington, titled "Shocking Discussion," issue August 8th, a theory is advanced which I think is wrong; or, to be exact, only partially correct. While the subject would be more in place in the columns of a journal devoted to electro-therapeutics than in the projection department, still anything calculated to give the operator a clearer understanding of the relation of voltage and amperage to some extent enables him to realize more thoroughly the nature of the force he is handling in his every-day work and therefore has a certain value. Seattle says that high voltage and low amperage will produce a shock, while low voltage and high amperage will produce a burn. Now, I contend that the physiological effect of one ampere of direct current flowing for a given length of time will be precisely the same whether it is forced through a resistance of one ohm by a pressure of one volt, or through a thousand ohms by a thousand volts. The voltage has nothing to do with the effect of the current. The statement is often made: "It is voltage that kills." This is both right and wrong. High amperage is harmless at low voltage, as in the case of a welding current of 2,000 amperes. You can put your wet tongue across the live jaws of the machine, and, although it would instantly fuse and weld a heavy bar of iron, you feel neither shock or burn. As a matter of fact, however, it is amperage that kills; a fraction of an ampere proving fatal in some cases. All the voltage does is to force the ampere into the body. A good analogy is the assassin and his knife; the man represents the voltage, and the knife the amperage. It is the knife that actually kills, but it would be harmless without the force of the man to drive it. What I think Seattle has in mind is this: If you put one hand on the positive and the other on the negative wire of a 500-volt circuit you will get a shock. This is because the voltage has forced a fraction of an ampere (say ¼) through a part of the body that is susceptible to shock. Now place one finger across the same wires and you will get a burn. It did not shock you because it did not pass through the pleural cavity where the vital organs are located. If the resistance of the body could be lowered to 100 ohms from one hand to the other, then a pressure of 25 volts would give about the same shock as was received from the 500-volt wires, where I was assuming the resistance of the body to be 2,000 ohms. In both cases ¼ ampere would flow and the effect would be the same. I would not like to see a long-winded discussion on this subject taking up valuable space in the department, as it is not of suffcient importance, but I would like to have the question settled by someone who understands the physiological effect of the electric current.

I sent a copy of Brother Stewart's letter to the warden of Sing Sing Prison with a request that it be referred to his prison physician, and now have a reply as follows: I would state that the inquiry is rather vague. If he means the effect of electricity upon the human body as observed in our electrocutions, I can say that a current usually of 1,800 to 1,900 volts, and an amperage of 7 to 10 is used, death being produced by the chemical changes in the body, subsequent to the heat generated by the electrical current. If it is ascertained precisely what the editor of the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World desires to know I shall be glad to submit a more detailed statement." (Signed) H. E. Mereness, Jr., Assistant Prison Physician.

I have not asked for a more detailed statement, because it seems to me that this makes the matter quite sufficiently plain. It is the "voltage which kills," because death is due to the heat generated, and heat is due to the forcing of current through high resistance, and since only a high voltage can accomplish that it may be fairly said it is the voltage which kills. Of course, if you could force enough current through the body at low voltage to produce heat, the effect would be the same, but, as a matter of fact, the body would not take any current at all if the voltage was low.

But to get back to the original discussion: In order to feel shock you must have voltage high enough to force current through the high resistance of the body, and in order to produce burn or injury you must have enough energy consumed to produce heat. This is not a very complete comment, but I guess it conveys the idea, and it is about all the space we can spare on a proposition of this kind. By the way, the reason you get no shock from the welding current is that the voltage is too low to force current against the resistance even of the wet tongue.

Size of Spot.

One exceedingly important item is, as a general proposition, entirely over-looked, or neglected, by the average operator. I refer to the size of the spot at the cooling plate. How many operators have really made any serious study of the things involved when it comes to considering the size of the spot at the cooling plate? Very, very few, I am afraid, and yet, to my way of thinking, here is one of the most important things connected with the profession. In the first place, I venture the assertion that in nine theaters out of ten, yes, in twenty-nine out of every thirty, the operator concentrates his light too much, the concentration being at the expense of purity, and all too often at the expense of actual more or less frequent discoloration on the screen.

There is always the temptation to reduce amperage and concentrate the light as much as possible, and while this may be done with very good success by the operator who is exceedingly careful, and who will watch his picture like the proverbial hawk watches the chicken it is about to pounce upon, still the average operator who attempts this will have shadows on the screen, and even the careful operator who adjusts his light little and often will, while he may not get actual shadows, have a less pure screen illumination than the one who carries a large spot; this latter by reason of the fact that near the edge of the spot there is always discoloration, due to chromatic aberration, and this will be present in an increasing degree where cheap condenser lenses are used.

I am more and more becoming convinced that it is true economy to carry a spot less than two and a half inches, or at least two and a quarter inches in diameter. Of course, at first glance the operator and manager who is accustomed to the small spot will look at a two-and-a-half incher in horror, since it looks like, and, viewed purely from the amperage standpoint, really is a tremendous waste. However, the current waste point of view is not the only thing to be considered. The operator who carries a two-and-a-half-inch spot will only be using the center of the light which is the pure, white part of it, and, moreover, he will, indeed, be a tremendously careless operator if he has any shadows on his screen.

I would like to hear from operators on this proposition, and I would also like operators and managers to give the matter their very serious consideration. In all too few theaters do we find a clear screen. I have had occasion during the past two weeks to look at the performance of an operator who is a thoroughly competent man, in so far as actual knowledge goes. In the matter of electrics he is par excellence, high class in the mechanical end of things, and very good in optics, but, nevertheless, and notwithstanding all this, his performance is absolutely rotten, because he will not watch his picture, and he carries a small spot. The inevitable result of this combination is shadows, and I have counted as many as six discolorations of the light in five minutes, and some of them pretty bad ones, too. Now, if this man carried a large spot this would not occur, at least in anywhere as great a degree. Think it over, gentlemen, and give the matter some serious study, since it is worthy of attention.

Which Is Best?

George A. Johnson, Bentonville, Arkansas, wants to know:

Which is best for projection, a wall or a cloth curtain. Also tell me how to prepare same to get the best results.

A perfectly flat plastered screen coated with white muralite, alabastine or some other patent calcimine, to be had at any paint supply store, to which just a small quantity of ultramarine blue has been added—enough to give the calcimine a faint blue tinge when mixed in a bucket. The ultramarine blue should be in the dry form, of course. It also can be bought from any paint supply store. You can also use a cloth curtain stretched tightly over a frame, sized with good, strong glue sizing and then calcimined as recommended for plaster. In either case you should throw the light on the screen, and draw a line around it, about one to one and a half inches inside the edge of the light, and then paint up to that line with flat black, made by mixing lamp black with one-third boiled linseed oil, and two-thirds turpentine, so as to outline the picture in black, with the picture overlapping the black slightly.

It seems to be as though somebody told me, awhile back, that some other sizing was better than glue, but I do not remember now what it was. I will be obliged to whoever it was who corrected me in that particular matter if he would set forth his idea again.

Western Operators, Notice.

When I was west a year ago last summer I purchased some very beautiful pampas grass and had it shipped home. Can any western operator tell me where I can get some more, meaning by this, the address of some one who deals in it? I want to buy a large bouquet, say two dozen stalks, and any one knowing where it can be procured will convey a distinct favor by sending address, and, if it is known, the price.

Sets Them Studying.

Gordon Thornburg, Salt Lake City, Utah, orders a question booklet and says:

> The questions and their answers are real interesting, and they certainly set a fellow studying. There have been many excellent replies, and I believe it would be hard to estimate the value of the knowledge an operator has a chance to acquire through the projection department, especially since the questions have been running. There are not many operators now sending in ideas about writing on glass. The thing must have been settled, but let me say that the simplest and easiest method I ever found was to clean a cover glass perfectly and then wet it with my tongue. When dry you can write easily without the ink spreading. I have tried two or three kinds of ink and have had no trouble at all.

Brother Thornburg sends in replies to questions 46 and 47, but the 46 end of it was too late to receive consideration. As to the writing-on-glass matter, it was found that several inks were now available with which the operator could write on glass with about the same ease as he could write on paper, notably an ink made by the Thaddeus Davids Company called "Glassine," which comes in many colors; an excellent slide coating is also manufactured by the Western Slide Coating Company, Spokane, Washington, and, having discovered and named several practical inks and coatings we, of course, dropped the matter.

Cause for Brush Sparking.

Hy. Albert, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, writes:

> I take pleasure in informing you that since you recommended my instruction sheet, page 1098, August 22 issue, I have had many to apply for the same; one from Cuba. At the same time I have had 70 per cent. of them ask the question: What is the cause of brushes sparking? With your permission I submit the following for the benefit of your readers:
>
> FAULT OF BRUSHES.—Not set diametrically opposite. Not set at neutral point. Not properly trimmed. Not in line. Not in good contact.
>
> FAULT OF COMMUTATOR.—Rough, worn in grooves and ridges. Out of round. One or more high bars. One or more low bars.
>
> EXCESSIVE CURRENT IN ARMATURE.—Too many lamps in the circuit (overloaded.—Ed.). Ground and leak from short circuit on line. Dead short circuit on line.
>
> FAULT OF ARMATURE.—Short circuited coil. Broken circuit in coil. Cross connection in coil. Weak magnetic field.

In the first place, Brother Albert, I did not recommend your sheet of instructions. I simply mentioned the fact that you had a sheet of instructions which you would send for 7 cents in stamps. There is a big, long difference between that and a recommendation. The causes of brush sparking have been very thoroughly dealt with in the series of questions now running. However, your list of reasons for sparking is quite correct, except where you say "too many lamps in the circuit." What you meant is all right, but lamps are not the only things that consume current; you should have said "overload."

Distance of Machine from Wall.

Galveston, Texas, unloads the following query on the editor:

> What distance, in your judgment, should the projector be from the front wall of the operating room?

This brings up a very important matter. In nine operating rooms out of ten the projector is jammed right up against the wall, and this, too, in many instances, without any earthly reason for doing it. The last operating room the editor designed here in New York City he located the projector far enough back from the wall so that the operator could walk clear around the machine, and it works fine. The lens opening in the wall was, in this instance, four by five inches—not at all excessive. The stereo opening was, of course, necessarily a little larger, but one fire shutter served for both. Of course, there are conditions where it is desirable that the projector be set pretty close to the wall. For instance: Where there is a steep downward pitch, or where a lens of such short focal length is used that the light rays spread rapidly and necessitate too large an opening in the wall, if the machine were set back so that the end of the shutter spindle was, say 15 to 18 inches from the wall, as it should be.

This, of course, brings into question the size of the operating room also. The modern projector, the Simplex, for example, is 48½ inches from the front edge of the top magazine to the end of the lamp controller at the back of the lamp house when setting level. If the machine be sharply tilted it would add probably six to eight inches to that measurement, making a total of, say 4 feet 8 inches, and if the machine be set back 16 inches from the wall that would make a total of 6 feet from the wall to the back of the longest lamp control. With an operating room 8 feet deep this would still leave 2 feet behind the machine. We may, therefore, conclude that, given an operating room depth of 8 feet, from front to back wall, the machine may clear the front wall by 16 inches and still leave plenty of room behind.

The advantages of setting the machine back from the wall are several, not least of which is convenience in looking through the lens to thread the film in frame; also if the operator has any work to do on the shutter, or anything at the front of the mechanism he can stand in front of the machine and do it. And still another advantage is that one can go clear around the machine and clean both the floor, and the machine itself, thoroughly. My own recommendation is that where the lens is not of too short focal length the machine be set back far enough to leave not less than 16 inches in the clear between it and the front wall, except in cases where a steep pitch in the projection makes it necessary to keep the machine as far ahead as possible in order to clear the heads of the audience.

There is no earthly reason, except under the conditions, named, in ramming the machine right up against the front wall. It is inconvenient; it looks badly, and it is not good from any point of view.

Missouri Ideas.

John W. Creamer, Chillicothe, Missouri, grabs his trusty pen and indites the following:

> Am running a 1911 Motiograph, Model 1 A, taking current through a Fort Wayne compensarc. Would you recommend the use of a 9/16 lower electra carbon and a ⅝ bio carbon up to 60 amperes? If not what combination would be better? I have always used ⅝ bios above and below and got a brilliant picture at 74 feet. However, we ordered ⅝ bio and received 9/16 electra, and were told to use the 9/16 below and ⅝ above. We were also told that this was what the majority of houses were doing in Kansas City since the European war had stopped the importation of German carbons. And now let me describe a plan which will be of benefit to Motiograph operators who use lugs such as those shown at H, Fig. 5, of the Handbook. We used such terminals for the past year, and they would sometimes burn off after six hours' actual use with 60 amperes. One week I remember the former operator put on new terminals each night before starting the show. Lately we secured lugs, as per sketch, and attached same to carbon arms just as we did the former kind, but found out the wire leads had to be brought > over on the same side of lamp as the terminals. I then cut holes in the lamp house as per Fig. A., of the sketch. This interferes just a little with some of the lamp adjustments, but I don't have to change the terminals every night. With the former kind of terminals I could run ten reels with one setting of carbons; now I only run seven or eight. What kind of lubricant would you suggest using in the Motiograph intermittent, other than high-grade white vaseline?

As to the intermittent, Brother Creamer, I would myself prefer a steam engine valve oil. I would fill the intermittent about half full with this, and then, if the machine pulled heavy after running a reel, I would add sufficient light lubricating oil to make the mechanism run easy. While it is true that makers of the Motiograph recommend vaseline, I cannot agree with their recommendation for the reason that vaseline is not a good lubricant. As to the carbon matter, I cannot tell you, in the department, what particular make of carbon I consider best. However, the Electra and Bio are both good, but the custom is to use the same size carbons below and above with a. c. However, if two sizes are used the better practice is to use the smaller carbon below. I have never experimented with different size carbons on alternating current, and would like to hear from operators who have. Not so very long ago I designed an operating room for a theater in Brooklyn and in trying out the machine we found the dealer had delivered the wrong carbons, so that until I could rush a man down town and get some carbons I only had a ¾ cored and a ⅝ solid, both 6 inches long. It was only a try-out of the machine, so I put in the ¾ cored above and the ⅝ solid below, and to my surprise I got a peach of a light. I am not saying this would work all the time—I do not think it would, but it certainly did work that day, and worked good, too. I do not believe, however, a solid lower carbon would give good results on alternating. Probably there was some peculiarity to that particular carbon which held the current steady and central at the tip of the carbon. Have any operators ever actually made a practical test of solid carbons below with a. c., the solid being considerably smaller than the cored upper, of course? If they have, let them arise and be heard.

Can't Be Did.

Boston, Massachusetts, orders a question booklet, and says:

> Please tell me whether or not I could get the projection department for two or three years back, if possible in a separated form.

Nope, you cannot get the department in a separated form. The only way would be to get the back numbers of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, or the bound volumes, and, of course, that would be a little expensive. I think you will find that the Handbook will serve your purpose, although it is a fact that the department contains a mountain of information on affairs pertaining to projection.

From Poughkeepsie.

George F. Deutsch, Poughkeepsie, New York, gets busy with the typewriter, and here is the result:

Have read the department, questions, answers and comments with much interest ever since I subscribed for the WORLD. With regard to Thomas E. Applegate's, page 1509, September 12th issue, questions and your answers, I take it the electric light company is about to deliver a. c., and, as Mr. Applegate says, either 110 or 220 volts, presumably via the Edison three-wire system. I think his employer is about to purchase machinery to rectify the a. c into d. c., and he intended to ask whether it would be advisable to get a 110 or a 220-volt current rectifier. I, myself, started projection on a d. c. line and when the a. c. change came this same problem confronted me. At first a motor generator appealed to me, and then the mercury arc rectifier. I finally decided on the latter, and have had no reason to be sorry for my selection. I got a 30-ampere G. E. rectifier, equipped with a 40-ampere tube. I have had it two years, and have had no trouble, and no new tube. I have made a connection on the rectifier, with leads and a three-pole D. T. switch, so that I can throw over to a. c., utilizing the compensator of the rectifier as a straight transformer should my rectifying mechanism go wrong. I have not used this connection, except on a trial, but I found it to work as well as any transformer. I got an 11-point regulating reactance with a dial switch mounted on a sub-base of slate and put same on the rectifier. I think the General Electric Company are putting their rectifiers out that way now, instead of having to change the amperage by switching the leads on the back, which I find very unhandy. For a long time I used a butter-fly nut and had to crawl in behind the rectifier and make the change when going from motion pictures to lantern slide lectures. Of course, this wait gave the condensers a chance to cool, which was good for the slides, but I find the condensers cool very rapidly when the light is off, and since I have had this regulating device I throw my switch off, make the change, bring my slides into position to handle, and strike a new arc, regulate the lamp with relation to the stereo lenses, and proceed, unless the lecture be lengthy, and of costly slides, in which case I pull out my front condenser and substitute a holder with a 14-inch meniscus, placing the hot lens on a card board box to prevent its breaking. I then pull my lamp back far enough to fit the new combination, and I, of course, get less heat in the condensers, although I use more current and hold the slides much longer on the curtain. In this case I also remove my upper 5/8 carbon and substitute a 1/2 inch one, since I only use about 15 amperes. My machine is a Powers Six A. The rectifier is installed in the operating room, which is the only place for it, since you know there is sometimes trouble with the relay sticking from mechanical friction or electro magnetism. I have the interior of the operating room painted dead black, and a black curtain hung about the rectifier, this latter helping considerably to keep the room dark, the only white light escaping is around the condensers, and in this respect I think the Nicholas Power Company could improve. (I think they all could. Ed.). I note you advised Applegate to buy a 50-ampere outfit, and this, I believe, is sound advice, since a large machine will carry a smaller load to better advantage than the smaller machine will carry the same load, still a 30-ampere rectifier will give him a good illumination on a picture the size of mine, 14 feet wide. I note the big houses in New York City are not using enormous size pictures any more. Titles are being made in larger print, and can be read from any position in the house, and better results are obtained where a medium-size picture is used; also it is not so hard on the eyes. A motor generator set is a fine thing if the brother knows how to take care of it and keep it in shape, but if he don't he had better learn, or someone else will, if his manager finds many repair bills coming in. I read the article on the new Baird Projector, and it looks good to me from all points of view. The take-up, the framing device, tension regulator when running, film entirely encased, focusing from the back, dowser between the lamp and condensers, the close relation between the intermittent and revolving shutter, window in the oil well, and the framing by the movement of the entire mechanism looks good. The machine appears to be handy and delays between the pictures ought to be reduced to a minimum, and you know this counts. You may preach perfect projection from now until the cows come home, but managers are pretty much all alike. They figure on giving a certain number of reels to the show and on a certain number of minutes to a show, and the operator is expected to make those reels, no matter whether they over-run or under-run when handled properly, fill exactly that space of time, totally irrespective of breaks, changes, advertising slides, long reels or short ones, calling of patrons to the box office, through the slide medium—a thing designed for the convenience of physicians, but which is being abused by callow youths and silly girls who think it a joke to give some fake doctor name to call each other out by means of a slide. It is only in the most up-to-date houses that one sees perfect projection, and I certainly feel sorry for the gink who has to grind in the other kind. I am not working in any of these places, but I am a photographer connected with a state institution and have placed the movies in the same for the benefit of its unfortunates, and I am trying to deliver the goods "par excellence," in which I have had great assistance from the department.

Brother Deutsch's scheme of using the rectifier transformer for a. c. in case something happens to the rectifier mechanism is unique. I have submitted it to the General Electric Company for an opinion as to its practicability, and have suggested to them that if it is practicable, they incorporate that feature into their machine and provide the department with a drawing instructing operators how to make that sort of connection. Brother Deutsch sent a rough sketch which I also forwarded to the General Electric Company. His letter is interesting all the way through, particularly his method of substituting a long focal length condensing lens when running lecture slides, which, of course, has the effect of pushing the lamp further back and reducing the heat. His scheme of hanging a black curtain around the rectifier is also most excellent. The necessity for the elimination of light from the operating room is one of the things which the average operator seems to be totally and absolutely unable to grasp. I have seen men really working hard, trying to produce high-class work with every incandescent in the operating room going full blast, and the walls of the operating room white plaster at that. It simply could not be done. The wise operator, or even the half-wise operator, will insist upon his walls being painted dead black, or at least a very dark color, and he will not allow any incandescents to be burning when the show is running, except it be absolutely necessary on account of work being done on the idle machine. I make the unqualified statement that it is an exceedingly difficult, not to say impossible, thing to deliver high-class projection with light in the operating room, especially when the operator is handicapped by an inadequate or wrongly located observation port, or the throw is a long one.

General Electric Company's rectifier department writes that the thing is entirely feasible, and that the connections indicated will enable the operator to utilize the main reactance of the rectifier as a straight a. c. transformer in case anything goes wrong with the mercury tube or other mechanism of the rectifier. The General Electric company says:

> Our Mr. Russell is of the opinion that sometime in the past we have had an article in the projection department covering this scheme, although we are unable to locate the same in our files at this time.

I also suggested to the General Electric that if this scheme was really feasible it ought to be incorporated in the rectifier, to which they reply:

> We have so very little demand for the use of the scheme that we have not deemed it advisable to incorporate this feature in our rectifiers, but will be glad to furnish copies of the enclosed wiring diagram to any of our customers who may desire to use it. We have taken tests on this scheme which have proven that it is as efficient as the best economizer on the market, but most theaters, once having installed a rectifier, dislike very much to be compelled to use a. c. for even a short period, and, as a result, keep one rectifier tube, and sometimes two in stock.

Yes, it is certainly advisable to carry an extra tube in stock, but, even so, suppose a tube should give out right in the middle of a reel. If the a. c. connection were a part of the rectifier, then the operator could switch right over to a. c., and, while he probably would not get very good results, he could, at least, finish the reel, or even the show. I would suggest that most likely the reason why the General Electric has had a small demand for this scheme is that nobody knows anything about it. To my way of thinking it would be a decidedly valuable adjunct to the rectifier, and, so far as I can see, the only extra cost would be a little wire and a three-pole, double-throw switch. I again suggest to the General Electric, this time publicly, that that particular thing ought to be a part of their regular rectifier.

A Correction.

Recently I was informed that the Precision Machine Company, of this city, manufacturers of the Simplex projector, were preparing to put out an improved condenser mount on their lamp house. It now seems this announcement was premature and this correction is made with the view of setting the Precision Machine Company aright with the trade.

It is a fact, however, that a new style condenser mount is necessary for the new Type "S" lamp house which they will place on the market October 15, on account of the construction of the lamp.

While I am about it, I might state that there have been some changes in the personnel of the management and office force of this company. Howard B. Coles, formerly General Manager, is no longer connected with the company, and Mr. J. E. Graef has succeeded him with the title of Acting General Manager.

The change will in no way affect the output of the machines, the sales department remaining in charge of Mr. J. E. Robin, Sales Manager, and the business of the company will go right along just as it always had, the only difference being in the factory methods and manner of marketing its goods.

Got His Deserts.

One, John Mason formerly manager of an "operator's school" in Toronto, Canada, was recently yanked into court on a very grave charge. Judge Coatsworth found him guilty and remanded him for sentence.

Well, it seems that sooner or later most of the fakirs "get their's" one way or another, and if Mason is guilty of the crime charged he ought to be given a good, long sentence.

Another Motto.

Above the desk of a merchant I recently observed a card bearing the following legend:

"Arms and legs are cheap—use your head."

Never was there more truth contained in an equal number of words. Stop and think a moment, gentlemen, and let those words sink into your understanding. A laborer uses his "arms and legs"; in other words, his muscular power. He's cheap! The carpenter who works on rough work uses his arms and legs, plus a little brain work; he's not quite so cheap. The expert carpenter uses his arms and legs, plus considerable brain power, and he becomes foreman, or, if he does not, he gets the limit of the scale; but still, at that, by comparison he is cheap. The carpenter foreman does not use his arms and legs very much, but uses his head considerable, and he gets an advance over the expert journeyman. The boss carpenter does not saw any boards at all, neither does he nail them in place. He rides around in a buggy or automobile. He's a contractor, and usually makes pretty good money. The railway general manager does not do any physical work at all. In fact, in order to exercise his muscles he is compelled to play golf, or do something of that sort to keep from getting sluggish and fat. He uses his brains and gets from ten thousand a year up.

Oh, yes, I think I hear some operator reader say: That is all right enough; I knew that long ago. What's that got to do with me? Well, my good Christian friend, it has got just this to do with you, if you will let it have. The operator who uses his arms and legs only, is the cheap man, he's the man who gets the lowest price, or gets the "union scale," if there is a union that is strong enough to compel the manager to pay it to him, and it is a lead pipe cinch that the union scale is all he is worth, and possibly then some. But the operator who uses his brains, or rather, who applies his brains to his work, is the chap to whom the manager is willing to pay the union scale, or above the union scale, or, if there is no union scale, then the highest price going. Why? Simply because any fool can twist a crank and make a splice in a film with a little practice, but, in order to become a real operator, one has got to use brains—has got to apply brains to his work, has got to reason from cause to effect, has got to study and keep abreast with the times, has got to improve upon his work constantly, and that, my dear sirs, is what gets the money. The union, a most meritorious institution, and one in which the editor of this department firmly believes, can, by certain methods, force wages up, and can compel managers to pay a certain sum per week for a certain class of theater, to some extent regardless of the ability of the individual man or the excellence of the work he produces, but, if the manager is compelled to pay a certain price to an inferior man—the man who is a careless, slovenly, sloppy workman—who uses his arms and legs and not his brains, then he will, if he is a real manager, be perfectly willing to pay an advance over the union scale to the man who will apply brains to his work, and produce superior results on the screen.

Don't tell me, gentlemen, that this is not true, because it is a proposition similar to the proposition that one plus one equal two. There are, of course, I freely admit, many managers who do not seem to understand the difference between high-grade work and work of less excellence, but, as I have said time and again, that class of manager is becoming less conspicuous every year, and finally will, to all extents and purposes, disappear. Projection will improve, and the operator who uses his brains will always be several good, long jumps ahead of his brother who confines his efforts to his arms and legs. All over the world, as the motto says, arms and legs are cheap, but the product of brains comes high.

Very Generally Read.

One of the largest supply houses in the middle west, and one having the highest standing as well, in the course of a recent letter to the editor said:

> Throughout the middle west we find that the projection department is read very carefully by operators and exhibitors, and without doubt you have accomplished a great work in waking up in the operator an enthusiasm towards improving his projection. Conditions along this line seem to be constantly improving. We can tell this from the intelligent way in which operators and exhibitors are now ordering goods. There was a time in the supply business when orders received by a jobbing house were often decidedly puzzling.

For all of which many thanks. We are trying to do that very thing—awaken an enthusiasm in the operator, and get him to improve his knowledge, and his work. The co-operation and help of such houses as the one in question, even though it be not given openly, is appreciated and will aid materially in furthering the work we are trying to accomplish.

All Union.

W. J. Neff, Reno, Nevada, sends in answer to question 48, and says:

> We are all union here now. Conditions are good, and improving. There are three houses here having two machines each. One house uses a Powers Six A, another Simplex, while I have the latest A One Motiograph.

All of which requires no comment except to say that "conditions improving" always sounds good.

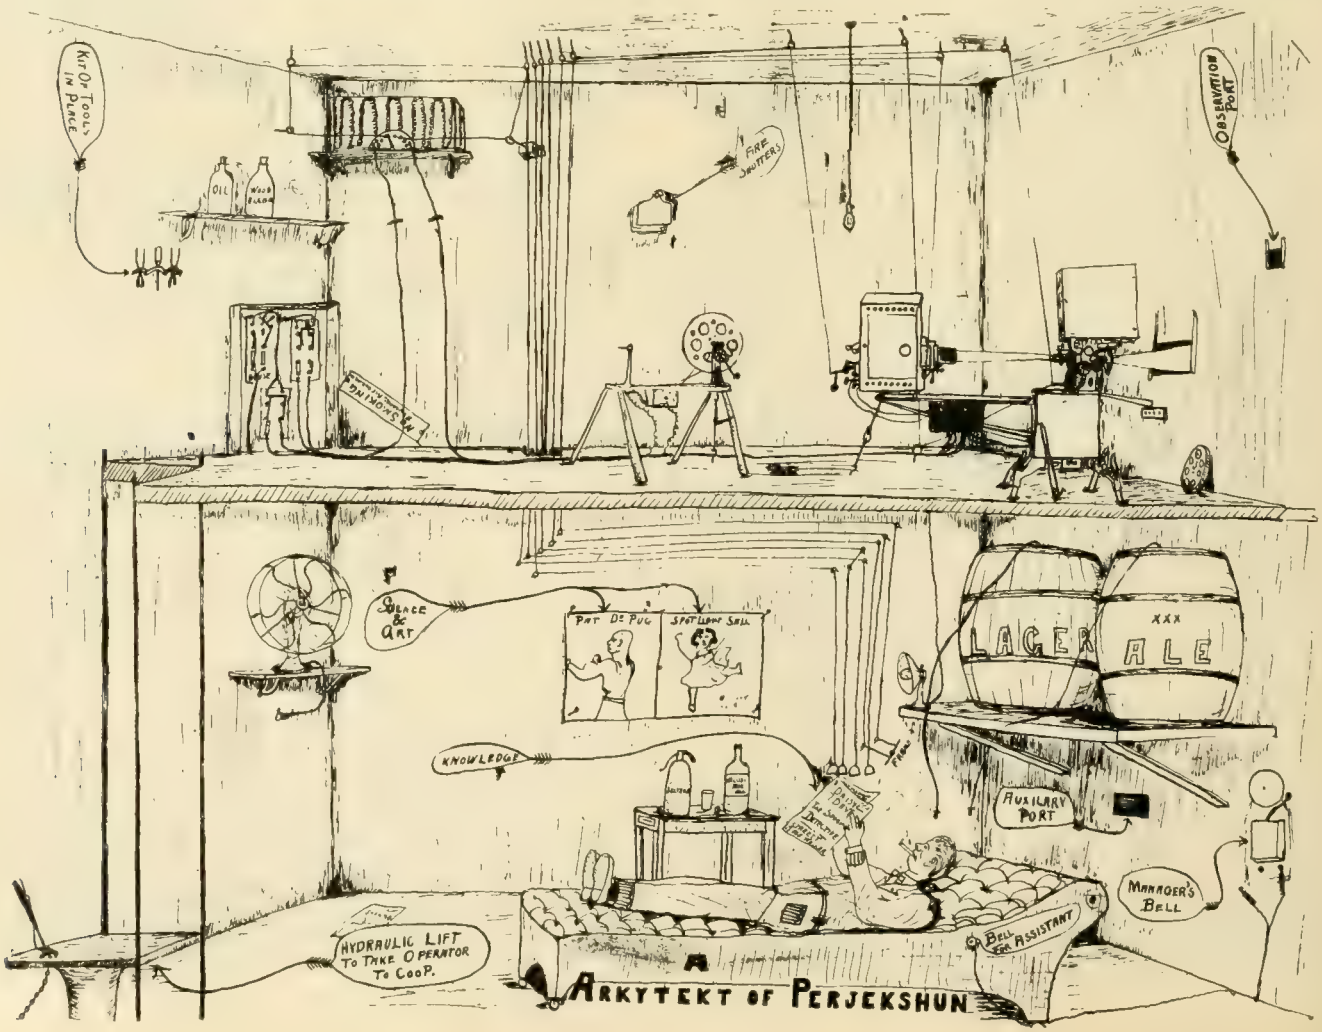
Valuable Contribution.

L. C. LaGrow, Albany, New York, who, upon this occasion, signs himself "L. C. LaGrow, A. P., M. P., O. I. D. F.," has exercised his inventive ingenuity in the accompanying picture.

Concerning it he says:

> I mailed you, under separate cover, drawing of the elevation of an ideal operating room, together with ante-room. Of course, this room may not exactly fit in with your ideas, but then you are not an "Architect of Projection." Haw, Haw, Haw; That was rich! Now, if you get a chance to sell this idea of mine to anyone who is writing a book which covers the "entire motion picture business," and who wishes to incorporate the same in the aforesaid book, I appoint you my agent to sell it for the nominal sum of $72,892,146.37, of which you may keep 10 cents for yourself for your trouble.

We certainly trust that Brother LaGrow feels better since he has got all that out of his system. However, he has made one very serious mistake. He should have had a Hindu slave fanning the reclining operator, with, perhaps, a maiden or two doing a dance for his amusement. Well, the drawing is pretty good anyhow, and really, under the surface, it aptly hits off a goodly number of faults, all too common if you stop and think it over a little.



Comments on the Films

Licensed

THE MYSTERY OF THE GLASS TUBES (Edison), Sept. 29.—The "Chronicles of Cleek," written by Thomas W. Hanshew, and directed by Ben Wilson, who plays the leading role. The smuggling of cocaine into England is the theme of this plot. It does not take Cleek any length of time to discover that hen fruit is utilized, crated in the usual way, as a conveyor of the drug. He meets with many melodramatic adventures, but in the end brings the smugglers to grief and comes out on top of the heap. A clever release.

WHITE LIES (Essanay), Sept. 29.—Adapted from a Munsey Magazine story, by H. Tipton Steck. Richard C. Travers and Ruth Stonehouse ably portray the suffering young couple, who are in financial straits. Each determines to overcome their difficulties, surreptitiously, but unfortunately they obtain positions in the same factory and eventually meet at the lunch table, which creates a surprising denouement, interesting and amusing.

GROUCH, THE ENGINEER (Kalem), Sept. 29.—A railroad drama in which Helen Holmes and J. P. McGowan are featured. Master Billy Gillett also deserves mention; the author is E. W. Matlack. Mr. McGowan is also the producer. There is exceptional heart interest engrafted in this story, illustrating how the sympathies of a little child can overcome chronic grouchiness. The acting on the part of the principals, especially, is of an exceptional nature and the photography up to the standard. It is good to see.

JINKS AND BARBER (Lubin), Sept. 29.—Written by J. A. Murphy and also directed by him. This proves to be a hilarious sort of comedy, rather boisterous in nature but nevertheless possible. It introduces the barber shop and lost hat episodes successfully. The finals involve the victim in all sorts of troubles. Well acted in every respect. On the same reel with "Jealous James."

JEALOUS JAMES (Lubin), Sept. 29. This is the story of an insanely jealous husband, the possessor of a pretty wife, who contorts every ordinary happening into extraordinary complications, involving his better half, much to his own sorrow. In the end he is cured of his jealousy by strenuous means. It creates laughs. On the same reel with "Jinks and the Barber."

THE REAL THING IN COWBOYS (Selig), Sept. 29.—A conventional plot, which has been worked over and over by different manufacturing companies, but which contains some originality. It is the old story of the girl who has her ideal regarding the man of her choice, which in this case happens to be a cowboy. An eastern suitor becoming aware of her ideas, makes good in her western environments, and at the risk of his life saves her from a perilous situation and proves that he is the man she has in her mind's eye.

BUSTER BROWN GETS THE WORST OF IT (Edison), Sept. 30.—This number of the series, by R. F. Outcault, is hardly up to the standard of the preceding offerings. An amusing complication must be rational, possible and convincing to be amusing enough to create laughs; absurdities are a poor substitute. To keep up the interest in a comedy series each succeeding offering must be as strong, if not stronger, than the prior ones. On the same reel with "In a Prohibition Town."

IN A PROHIBITION TOWN (Edison), Sept. 30.—On the same reel with "Buster Brown Gets the Worst of It," is offered by J. Edward Hungerford's boisterous comedy of the above caption, in which a ream of flypaper plays the leading comedy role, assisted by a cast of hard working actors. A country boob, a storekeeper's clerk, in a prohibition town, objects to a drummer's attentions to his sweetheart and labels his sample case "whiskey." Overacted, otherwise it would have been a good offering.

FOOD FOR THE DOGS OF WAR (Kalem), Sept. 30.—This educational completes the second reel of "The Ex-Convict," and the title is synonymous of the scenes visualized. The casting of projectiles, the loading of shells, the testing of arms and ammunition are a few of the many interesting features shown in this timely subject. Very interesting.

THE FABLE OF THE ADULT GIRL WHO GOT BUSY (Essanay), Sept. 30.—George Ade tells how an "old hen" put one over on the Debutantes and "copped" the finest looking chap in town. It might be possible that Mr. Ade is justified in calling Clara "old hen," but she is not the worst looking one of the bunch, at that. The way she gets rid of her competitors and then rounds up the masculine contingent, to make a selection from, is laughable in the extreme. She gets the pick of the bunch. Moral: Woman is never dangerous until she attacks single-handed.

THE LOYALTY OF JUMBO (Selig), Sept. 30.—A picture drama of the jungle, which contains many exceptionally beautiful tropical scenes, and the cameraman deserves great credit for his work. There are many intense moments in the scenes depicting the uprising of the natives. Jumbo, a trained working elephant, figures extensively in the plot and eventually is instrumental in saving the whites from massacre. An offering worth viewing.

THE HEART OF SONNY JIM (Vitagraph), Sept. 30.—In this comedy drama Rosetta Boniel, the author, has given little Bobby Connelly a great vehicle in which to show his natural talent, and the little gentleman takes full advantage of his opportunities. In this story is shown the unselfish nature of a loving child and the sacrifice he makes to relieve his mother from distress. The story is pregnant both with laughter and tears. The work of Sonny Jim and his dog Toto is good to see.

THE SPIRIT OF JEALOUSY (Biograph), Oct. 1.—This is a picture drama which is quite unique in many ways, and though it opens in a conventional way in the home of a man who is out of work, later it develops an original and interesting story. Gossiping neighbors plant the seeds of jealousy in the mind of the husband against his faithful wife. In a drunken dream he sees himself enact a tragedy. Later he realizes what a mistake he has made and that the object of his jealousy is his savior. A meritorious number.

SLIPPERY SLIM GETS CURED (Essanay), Oct. 1.—A laughable picture-play which contains a comedy temperance lesson. Slim contracts the "booze habit" and combines it with a worse one, that of coming home "soaked" at about 4 a. m. Sophie is his wife, and getting tired of his shortcomings determines she will cure him. She gives him spirits of ammonia, which she has heard is a sure cure. Slim breaks for the river, jumps in and attempts to drink it dry; relieved, he swears "never again."

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 62 (Selig), Oct. 1.—Among the many interesting visualizations shown are the Canadian troops marching from camp to embark for England to join the allies; the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by distinguished visitors, review the soldiers in the camp; great crowds at Rome before the Vatican at the election of the Pope; numerous war scenes, showing prisoners and wounded in the various hospitals in camps in different countries, also views of the different cities in Belgium and France after the battles, etc.

THE LOVE OF PIERRE LAROSSE (Vitagraph), Oct. 1.—A story of the fur country, by J. Herbert Chestnut, directed by Theodore Marston. George Cooper, James Morrison, John Costello and Dorothy Kelly by their splendid acting make this an unusual offering. The forest fire scene is beautifully photographed. In the end there is a most gratifying surprise, which redeems an otherwise repulsive character in the preceding scenes. Intensity and naturalness are a pleasing feature of the picture.

THE PEASANT'S LIE (Biograph), Oct. 2.—A tale of love and deceit. The guardian of a young girl is induced by her jealous admirer, for a stipend, to tell her a falsehood which separates her from her lover, and the briber attempts to win her. However, another man puts in his appearance and faith brings truth to the front. The guilty instigator is barred from the race of love. This release is well acted and photographed.

THE SLAVERY OF FOXICUS (Kalem), Oct. 2.—A Roman burlesque, by Ruth Roland and Marshal Neilan, who play the leading parts. This is a very laughable pictureplay. The plot is a mixture of ancient and modern environments. Edwin Ray Coffin, the author, hit upon a happy idea when he combined Roman togas, typewriters and telephones into a general mess. Foxicus, the hero, bucks the stock market and corners Amalgamated Coffee. Villainus ends his career in a cactus bush.

THE GREATER LOVE (Lubin), Oct. 2.—A story of marital troubles, written by Ethel Glenn Hall and produced by Edgar Jones. There is nothing very original in this pictureplay. It is the old story of a thoughtless wife, a wronged husband, a weak and emotional artist and another woman, who almost yields to the temptation of assisting in the elopement through her love for the husband. However, her better nature prevails, and assisted by her sympathy for the artist's child, she sacrifices her own feelings and helps the others on the road to happiness. Not very convincing.

AN EMBARRASSING PREDICAMENT (Selig), Oct. 2.—A laughable comedy picture which involves a pretty stenographer, a bashful bookkeeper and a nervy and nervous French barber in a series of laughable complications. The whole thing ends up where the barber, to get even, mixes up his rival's clothes and that of the girl's in adjoining bathhouses, leaving them in an embarrassing predicament. The conclusion is not satisfactory to the barber. A very funny release.

EATS (Vitagraph), Oct. 2.—This comedy is on the boisterous order and concerns the adventures of two hoboes, Slim Sam (Billy Quirk), and Shorty Jim (Lee Beggs), who also directed. Edward J. Montagne has succeeded in placing this duo in many funny situations. Without money they eat, drink and are merry; they dwell contentedly in jail in the closing scene, on the sweet recollections of the feasts they have enjoyed at the expense of others. The comedians are well supported and the picture is good for many laughs.

THE NEW ROAD'S MASCOT (Biograph), Oct. 3.—A workman who has been discharged, is driven by circumstances to desperation. For the sake of his daughter he yields to temptation and commits an act repugnant to his better nature. Shame arouses his manhood and he determines to take a new road. This picture contains many interesting scenes, which have been finely produced.

A TRANSPLANTED PRAIRIE FLOWER (Edison), Oct. 3.—A smooth running pictureplay, written by Beatrice Morgan, which contains one intense scene, where the identity of a gentleman burglar is disclosed in a surprising manner. The plot opens in the West and the later scenes are laid in New York. Gladys Hulette, Harry Beaumont, Sally Crute and Edward Earle are the principals. A fine offering.

BRONCHO BILLY TRAPPED (Essanay), Oct. 3.—Another of G. M. Anderson's western dramas, in which he plays the lead. The plot of the story hinges on the fact that the Broncho gets mixed up with a moonshiner, who falls in love with and insults Broncho's wife. Fearing Broncho's vengeance he betrays him to the government officials. His plans fail to work, however, and the tables are turned upon himself. A well made picture.

THE LEGEND OF THE AMULET (Kalem), Oct. 3.—This pictureplay is based upon an ancient Indian legend, and is produced with the usual Princess Mona Darkfeather cast. The story is a beautiful one in its primitiveness. Mona's sweetheart hears of a lost sacred amulet, the recovery of which will end the plague, which has attacked the tribe. He finds it with the assistance of a phantom chief. Much beautiful scenery is shown and a thrilling struggle transpires on a cliff, one of the combatants being hurled over into the gorge. A good Indian release.

ON CIRCUS DAY (Lubin), Oct. 3.—This comedy was written and produced by Romaine Fielding and is of the rough and tumble order, the scenes being mostly laid in and about the tent of a cross road circus, which is showing in a rube town. The principal suffering comedians are the Sauerkraut twins, who are trying to see the show on their nerve. They meet with many adventures. It gains laughter in some places.

FOUR MINUTES LATE (Selig), Oct. 3.—A railroad drama, concerning an engineer and fireman, who are rivals in love. The fireman, attempting to ruin the other, who is the favorite one, resorts to devilish means, that of turning back the engineer's watch four minutes, for the purpose of making him responsible for a collison. Fortunately fate prevents the contemplated accident. There is much intensity in the closing scenes, where the fireman's conscience almost drives him to self-destruction. There is a happy ending, however.

STRANGE ANIMALS OF SOUTH AMERICA (Pathecolor).—In this finely colored subject there are shown several close up and intimate views of the smaller animals of the lower half of the American continent. Among these are the paca of the rabbit family; the coati, resembling the raccoon; the tatou, or giant armadillo, and the mara, a member of the pig family.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 63 (Selig), Oct. 5.—Scenes showing the ceremonies changing the name of the battleship "California" to "San Domingo"; practice of the Gridiron Squad at West Point, also coaching the football players at Notre Dame; a series of pictures displaying the latest in evening gowns—in black and white; Governor of Alabama boosting "Buy a Bale of Cotton"; cotton being sold by auction at Atlanta, Georgia; several scenes from the theater of war, principal among which are the return of the wounded and being welcomed by relatives and friends in France, Germany and Russia; the immense throng at the Peace parade, Grant's Tomb, New York, etc.

FISHERMAN KATE (Vitagraph), Oct. 5.—A comedy written by William Addison Lathrop and produced by Captain Harry Lambert, featuring Kate Price. Kate, her husband and their friend Bill go fishing. After a few minor mishaps, Kate feels a tug at her line, she shrieks, and in her excitement falls overboard. She is rescued and forced to wear a seaman's suit, which causes much merriment. Then she gets sea-sick and persuades the captain to start for home, where she sees a calendar—Friday, the 13th—the cause of all the trouble. This number creates laughs from start to finish.

THE BORROWED BOOK (Biograph), Oct. 5.—This is a story of two old cronies, who are chronic chessplayers, also, one is a bookworm and the other a staid business man. The difficulties which arise over a borrowed book (a rare publication) which the book-worm has discovered on a bookstand, creates for a certain time a serius misunderstanding between them. It is all the fault of a servant, who takes the book without permission, and, being discharged, throws it into her trunk and carries it away. Later the friends are reconciled and in the end the game of chess is continued. A pleasing release.

FATHER'S BEARD (Edison), Oct. 5.—This comedy, written by Mark Swan, is greeted with laughter. Kennedy longs for a beard, such as his father used to wear. He goes away for a time and grows one; on his return he is taken for a burglar who has been pestering the village. Returning he finds the house barricaded against him, but after a strenuous effort he succeeds in convincing his family and gains admittance. Finding his beard is the cause of the trouble, he shaves and presents it to his wife as a souvenir, who throws it in his face.

THE FICKELNESS OF SWEEDIE (Essanay), Oct. 5.—A comedy, in which Sweedie again outhits the police department. This offering is ridiculous, as no such thing could happen. Danny Slimson and Henry Bigger are rivals for the hand of Sweedie, Danny sees Sweedie reading a letter and he surmises it is from Henry. She goes in search of Henry and Danny steals into the house and hides in a mattress, where he is discovered by the sweethearts, who call the police. A very lively chase follows.

Licensed Specials.

REGAN'S DAUGHTER (Vitagraph), Sept. 29.—A special feature in two parts, written by Ed Montagne and directed by Theodore Marston. Harry Northrup, James Morrison and Mary Anderson have the leading roles. Dorothy Kelly has the title role. It is a story laid in the Tennessee mountains, wherein a detective captures an outlaw who proves to be his sweetheart's father. In the turn of events the outlaw saves the detective's life at the cost of his own. His love for the mountaineer's daughter and the gratitude for the father's sacrifice, cause him to keep from his sweetheart the knowledge that the father was a criminal in the eyes of the law. The intense scenes are full of interest and suspense, and the backgrounds and photography are fully adequate.

THE DERELICTS (Biograph), Sept. 29.—A two-part pictureplay which has exceptional attractions in its variety of unusual contrasted scenic selections, on both sea and land. Throughout the two reels the interest in the story is kept up in a clever way by the director, and sympathy for the little heroine impresses itself upon the spectator. Strange circumstances and persecutions keep up the suspense, which culminate in an enticing manner.

THE EX-CONVICT (Kalem), Sept. 30.—A special two-act drama which depicts to what extremes a husband will go, even to sacrificing his honor, to gratify the ambitions of a thoughtless, selfish wife. The scenario is by Alice C. Brown, and Guy Coombs and Anna Nilsson are featured. The acting deserves special mention and the photography is adequate, but there are knotholes in the directing perceptible, caused, no doubt, by the producer's attempting to direct and play the lead. However, it is quite convincing.

HIS BROTHER BILL (Lubin), Sept. 30.—This two-reel war drama was written by Charles P. Brown and produced by John E. Ince, who plays the title role. The story of this plot transpires during and directly after the Civil War, and the many scenes are faithfully portrayed, as regards costuming and equipments. Two sons of a New England farmer enlist in the Federal army and with the bounty money they receive pay off the mortgage on their father's farm, which is very commendable. The younger brother is killed and Bill, the older one, has an opportunity for vengeance on his brother's slayer. An accident foils him and later they meet in a peculiar manner. The ending is satisfactory.

HIS FIRST CASE (Lubin), Oct. 1.—This is a two-part story of the illicit drug traffic, written by Paul Powell and shows the strenuous efforts and dangerous stunts a young special agent, in the custom service, is forced to go through with before he succeeds in landing his men. Some fine water scenes are shown, where a revenue cutter pursues and overtakes a private yacht, which is used by the smugglers. There is a love theme, of course, in which the young agent's sweetheart saves his life. L. C. Shumway and Velma Whitman deserve mention.

THE POISONED BIT (Edison), Oct. 2.—This two-part pictureplay, by Clyde Moray, is graced with a plot that is full of complications, but Director Preston Kendall has worked it out in a very clever manner. The cast is a large one, headed by Edwin Clark, who in the beginning is a waif. He escapes from the gypsies and in the ending scenes is discovered to be the scion of a noble family. There are many pretentious scenes, in which the general ensembles are so gracefully handled that the picture holds attention from this fact alone. All deserve mention for clever work, especially Mr. Clark. A fine release.

GOLF CHAMPION "CHICK" EVANS LINKS WITH SWEEDIE (Essanay), Oct. 2.—In this two-part comedy "Chick" Evans makes his first appearance before the camera and never once does he look it in the eye. Mr. Evans is a Western amateur golf champion, and attempts to teach Sweedie, the cook, who has fallen heir to a fortune, to play golf; here is where the fun comes in. She breaks all the clubs, swinging on the balls as though she were knocking a "home run." It all ends in a riot, in which Sweedie cleans out the police force and everything else in sight.

THE ROYAL WILD WEST (Vitagraph), Oct. 3.—This two-part special feature was written by Charles Brown and produced by Sidney Drew. It is a new and original idea in wild West shows, all the cowboys, Indians and ranchers are royal subjects; born and bred and residents of England. The idea is conceived by two young English stockbrokers, and they proceed to make a film picture, entitled "Bad Ike, the Bally Nuisance of Red Gulch," with the assistance of their fellow club-members. It proves to be "some show," and makes a hit with the public as a rip roaring burlesque. The picture is certainly a laugh producer.

THE MOVING PICTURE COWBOY (Selig), Oct. 5.—A special two-part picture play. There are some astounding feats, performed by Tom Mix, shown in this offering. Luke Barnes obtains employment with a moving picture concern, as a cowboy, and declares he can do the feats that cowboys are supposed to do. He goes to an uncle's ranch, and proceeds to entertain the cowboys with the stories of his "stunts." He even shows a medal, which he states was given to him by his admiring co-workers. What happens to Luke when the cowboys find him out is demonstrated in the picture. A laughable offering.

THE DANCER (Kalem), Oct. 5.—A drama in two acts, featuring Danseuse Mademoiselle Verna Mersereau and Robert G. Vignola, who is also the producer. Evelyn Wade, an interpreter of classic dances, is in despair over her mother, who is seriously ill. De Forrest, a millionaire, who is in love with the dancer, makes her an offer to dance at a reception he is giving. She accepts and later becomes his wife. In her triumph she forgets her mother. Believing her husband is in love with an actress, she returns to her old home to learn that her mother has died in dire poverty. The dances are admirable. Acting and photography are up to the standard.

Independent

WHERE THE MOUNTAINS MEET (Reliance), Sept. 30.—This story, written by Gardner Hunting, develops a simple, appealing theme in an entertaining manner. The cowboy hero furnishes a shack for the girl and her invalid father, a situation which arouses the sympathy of the observer. The hand-to-hand conflict with the bad men was realistically staged. The photography is good.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 63 (Pathe) September 28.—Good pictures of the wireless station at Sayville, N. Y.; the drill in mine rescue work at Ellsworth, Pa.; interesting view of a log cabin still standing on one of the principal streets of Pittsburgh; four good war items, including the arrival at Marseilles of the Algerian troops with the new 4-inch guns and some Belgian field manoeuvres.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 134 (Universal), Sept. 30.—The Coney Island Mardi Gras, James E. Sullivan funeral, an Alabama railroad wreck and very interesting views of German, English and Canadian troops preparing for action are chief events in this number.

KILLING HEARTS (Keystone), Oct. 1.—Two musicians and an Irishman make love to a girl. They become embroiled in a row. Two of them start to fight it out and the third marries the girl. This low comedy number proves only fairly amusing, the plot being very thin.

THE BALANCE OF POWER (Princess), Oct. 2.—A business story, in which the vice-president of the company tries to advance himself to the presidency instead of the son of the former president. The girl gets some votes at the last minute which save the day for the son. The rescue of the girl from drowning was the strongest feature of this rather conventional story.

THE SHERIFF'S MASTER (Reliance), Oct. 2.—A suffragette arrives in a small Western town and stirs up the women. The sheriff has to do his own washing. This comedy is well-photographed. The theme has, of course, been handled before in a number of ways.

FATTY AGAIN (Keystone), Oct. 3.—Fatty experiences several reverses of fortunes in this boarding house story. He is first ejected for failure to pay his board. He then fixes up a postal card offering himself a handsome salary and is warmly welcomed back by the girl's parents. When the truth becomes known that he is really a sideshow barker, they again turn on him. This is true to certain phases of life and quite amusing throughout.

THE MILLION DOLLAR BRIDE (Komic), Oct. 4.—A unique and amusing comedy offering in which the bogus count dresses up a baby girl, by use of a dummy, and endeavors to marry her, thinking she is an heiress. The photography is good and the subject, while decidedly foolish, is original and laughable.

A DOG'S LOVE (Thanhouser), Oct. 4.—Another story featuring the Thanhouser Kidlet and the big Shepherd dog. The friendship between the little rich girl and the canine is very pretty, and when the child dies the dog carries flowers to her grave. This is well photographed and contains some genuine pathos. A good offering.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL, NO. 38 (Reliance), Oct. 5.—Continuing the story written by Carolyn Wells. Margaret exchanges the baby's heirloom with that of a friend, and while endeavoring to set matters right is held up by a shotgun in the hands of her friend's brother. This experience will be continued next week.

MYER'S MISTAKE (Sterling), Oct. 5.—Max gets into rivalry with a younger man over a girl and pretends to be killed. He is placed in a coffin and buried, but digs out again. This contains considerable humor of the slapstick sort and is amusing in its way. The photography is good.

NIEDA (Beauty), Oct. 6.—A simple, tragic story, well acted and beautifully pictured. Marguerita Fischer plays the part of a girl raised in the hills without seeing any human being save her father. The settings are wonderfully effective. The lover comes and is killed by a fall. The girl then wanders like Ophelia, strewing flowers, and finally is killed herself in the same place her lover died. A good tragic offering.

BILLY'S RIVAL (American), Oct. 7.—Just a little story of a young married couple, in which the jealous husband has unjust suspicions of his wife. He relents when he finds her love talk was directed to a neighbor's baby. Nicely pictured and pleasing.

HELLO MABEL (Keystone), Oct. 8.—In this number Mabel Normand plays the telephone girl in a hotel. A man flirts with her, creating jealousy on the part of the wife. As handled the plot is very obscure in meaning until toward the last. Not a very strong subject; the photography is uneven.

CRUEL, CRUEL WORLD (Joker), Oct. 10.—A burlesque on the old-fashioned melodrama where the man with the mortgage threatens to move out a poor family on a cold, wintry day. The fake snow storm was certainly elaborately suggested. The heroic lover is bound to the tree containing the rent money; he pulls the tree up and carries it to the family on his back, when the money is, of course, discovered. This is quite an amusing offering in places.

THE PET OF THE PETTICOATS (Royal), Oct. 10.—The story of a famous musician who climbs through a window to the apartments of a neighboring admirer who wishes him to play at her musicale. The jealous husband creates trouble and the musician impersonates a butler. This is farcical and is only fairly amusing. The photography is good.

THOSE LOVE PANGS (Keystone), Oct. 10.—Charles Chaplin and Chester Conklin disport themselves in further love affairs in this number. The humor is of an eccentric sort and winds up with a rough house in a moving picture show. Quite pleasing of its kind.

A CLOSE CALL (Sterling), Oct. 12.—Little Olive drops her piece of bread and jam over the cliff and slides down after it. Felix comes to her rescue and great excitement is caused among the older folks. A child story with some clever little actors in it. The plot, of course, is very light.

THE ANGLERS (Keystone), Oct. 12.—The ugly daughter of the millionaire is besieged with suitors. The principal scenes occur in the middle of a shallow stream where they all struggle and get soaked, including the woman. Not very delicate humor, but will bring some laughs. The duel scene was quite funny.

O! YOU GYPSY GIRL (Crystal), Oct. 13.—In this half-reel comedy Vivien and her lover rent clothes from some gypsies. The town marshal and others are after the gypsies and arrest the masqueraders. The story in this is rather light, but it is well pictured and quite amusing.

SOME COLLECTORS (Crystal), Oct. 13.—This, on same reel with above, shows the efforts made to collect a sum of money from a dead beat. The plot is not very strong.

OFF AGIN ON AGIN FINNEGAN (Joker), Oct. 14.—Finnegan becomes a cop in order to win the girl, whose father insists he must work. Finnegan's dream is very fantastic. It is shown by some good trick photography and contains many eccentric situations. One of the best features is the disappearing hobo. A good example of the old style eccentric comedy.

HEINE'S OUTING (Sterling), Oct. 15.—Max takes his girl on a picnic. He borrows a bather's checked suit and finds himself in a peck of trouble as a result. There is an ambulance runaway and a general scramble toward the last. This is well photographed and quite amusing.

THE FUNNY MR. DINGLE (Victor).—Oct. 16.—The girl's father picks out an eccentric fellow to marry his daughter. The young lover plays a number of jokes on him. Mr. Dingle upsets the boat while sailing with the girl and the hero comes to the rescue. Just a series of amusing little incidents, without any particular plot uniting them.

ACROSS THE COURT (Joker), Oct. 17.—A Max Asher issue with a number of pleasing comedy stunts in it. The flirtations across the court of the apartment house were very amusing. Max turns down the old maid after proposing to her and marries Louise. The low comedy characterizations in this are unusually good. The close is not quite up to the opening scenes in interest.

IN THE HOLLOW OF AN OAK (Frontier), Oct. 18.—The villainous Joe intercepts a note hidden in the hollow of a tree by the girl. He then tries to steal the payroll money, but the hero and his friends ride to the rescue. The plot of this Western number is an average one, but the photography and settings are better than usual.

THE QUARREL (Eclair), Oct. 18).—Mildred Bright and Stanley Walpole appear as a married couple in this Western offering. He drinks heavily and they quarrel violently, she calling him a drunkard and he insinuating that she loves another. The sickness of their child reunites them. This is well acted, though a trifle sordid in tone.

COLONEL HEEZA LIAR IN THE WILDERNESS (Eclectic).—This excellent single reel will furnish amusement for young and old alike. It is one of the well-known series of drawings showing the experiences of Colonel Liar in the desert and jungle—as told by himself. Certainly the cartoonist has a lively imagination, and he portrays a gorilla and a human of marked athletic ability.

THE COUNT THAT TOOK THE COUNT (Eclectic).—The lady-killing propensities of a farce count get him into continual conflict with a half tipsy Irishman who gets mistaken for the count, gets into the count's hotel room, later into the house of the man who wants his daughter to marry the count and every time the count turns up proceeds to knock him out. Nothing new in it except that the girl who has been locked into her room by irate papa gets the telephone lineman to lend her his instrument so she can telephone her sweetheart.

MISS CINDERELLA (Eclectic).—A good comedy drama idea spoiled by being mixed up with broad farce. Cinderella put into the background by her sisters goes to the brook to wade. The prince goes fly fishing and accidentally hooks one of her shoes. This part of the picture was splendidly done, and it is worth seeing the picture for this alone. Some people may like the rest.

Independent Specials

THE WIRELESS VOICE (Reliance), Oct. 3.—A two-reel subject in which Jack Conway plays the young inventor. The girl's rascally uncle tries to steal the plans of his invention, but is electrocuted by a device arranged by his own pal at the last. The opening situations contain many unnecessary scenes, but the story becomes quite interesting later. The photography is good and the cast a pleasing one.

OUT OF THE AIR (Majestic), Oct. 4.—A two-reel railroad story, which contains plenty of action and proves a winner of its kind. The discharged hero finds his chance to make good when he rides in an aeroplane to catch a runaway train. He crawls down a rope and lands on the freight just in time to stop it and save the girl's life. The drop is not actually made from the aeroplane, but the machine is used in racing with the train and the illusion is very good. The photography is clear and attractive and the story altogether quite pleasing.

DAPHNIA (American), Oct. 5.—In this two-reel offering the girl is a member of a counterfeiting gang in the mountains. The detective plays her a shameful trick, pretending love for her while he rounds up her lover and father. The men are sent to the penitentiary and ten years later the girl, who runs a large gambling house and is known as Daphnia, finds her revenge by sending the detective's son to prison for passing counterfeit money. An odd story with some unusual points about it that makes it interesting. George Field, Ed Coxen and Winnifred Greenwood have the leading roles.

THE CRIPPLE (Thanhouser), Oct. 6.—A two-reel story by Philip Lonergan. In the first scenes is shown the friendship between the two children. The little boy is injured by an auto and grows up a cripple. In later years a second injury restores the crooked leg to normal shape and he is able to dance and run and offer his love to the girl he grew up with. Though dealing with a physical affliction, this story is so handled that it leaves a pleasant feeling with the observer.

VIRTUE—IT'S OWN REWARD (Rex), Oct. 11.—A two-reel offering featuring Pauline Bush as the older sister of a young girl. The latter leaves school and goes to work in a canning factory, where the foreman makes the wrong kind of advances toward her. The older girl then invests her savings in fine clothing and lures the foreman away from the young girl. There is some very good acting in this number on the part of all the principals and it gets up a strong interest. The young girl, resenting the foreman's inconstancy, marries her former lover. The close is a little bitter, where they refuse to let the older sister look at her child. Some real life in this number.

THE PAINTED HILLS (Gold Seal), Oct. 13.—Eleventh episode of the Trey o' Hearts series. In this number the principals leave the railroad and take to horses. Hopi Jim, the outlaw, joins the conspirators and Judith saves Alan from a disastrous rock slide. Jim takes a hard fall over a cliff and there is quite a lot of good action running through this. At the close Judith is tied to the back of an unbridled horse which runs with her into the desert. A good western instalment.

THE SQUATTER (Eclair), Oct. 14.—A strong three-reel number taken in the Mission country of Southern California. The plot is complicated and full of interest and follows clearly from scene to scene. It concerns the troubles of a quatter and his daughter brought about by the crooked foreman of a neighboring ranch. The atmosphere of the production is very good and the story itself compels the interest of the observer. The cast, which includes Edna Payne, Fred Hearne Robert Frazer and Norbert A. Myles, does some very good work. A strong offering.

THE FUTILITY OF REVENGE (Imp), Oct. 15.—This two-reel number possesses considerable interest and at the same time contains a number of minor faults which prevent its being very strong. Dorothy Phillips plays first the mother and then the daughter, and for this reason it is difficult to think her father would not recognize her in the latter role, the girl being, of course, the image of her mother. Alexander Gaden gave a good portrayal of Dent, the gentleman crook. The story itself is of a melodramatic turn and quite entertaining in spite of its uneven development.

THE PADRONE'S WARD (Powers), Oct. 17.—A two-reel story dealing with the Italian Mafia. The Padrone is a member of the black hand gang. His ward, a beautiful girl, sells clay statues on the streets. The young bank president comes to her aid during a fainting spell and a love affair develops. The chief incidents thereafter are the attempted blackmailing of the lover and the killing of the clay modeler by the Padrone. This type of story is becoming somewhat obvious in development. None of the scenes are handled with any great intensity. It makes a fairly strong offering.

COUNTRY INNOCENCE (Imp.), Oct. 19.—A story covering two generations. The city man lures away a country girl. She returns a year later with an illegitimate girl baby. Her lover, Jim, marries her to give the child a name and the mother dies. Years later the father, who now has a grown son by his real marriage, comes to the country on a hunting trip. The son falls in love with his half-sister and tries to elope with her. They are thrown from a rig and the son dies later, after his father has learned the bitter truth of the situation. The theme of this is rather sordid and it is none too convincing in places. The cast is pleasing and the photography very fair.

THE LURE OF THE YUKON (Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc.).—This three-reel subject presents a strong Alaskan story, abounding in rugged exterior scenes. A dog team appears in many of the scenes and some of the characters make their way over the trails in snow shoes. The plot concerns two brothers, one of whom falls in love with the daughter of a gambler. The latter and his pal tie the brothers with ropes and make away with their gold, leaving the young men to perish. The girl saves them and later the Territory police round up the gamblers. One of them is killed and the other escapes only to die in the snow. A convincing picture of life in the Alaskan gold fields. With the exception of a few scenes in the first reel the photography is pleasing.

EVEN UNTO DEATH (Warner).—For an extended review of this picture by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton see the Moving Picture World on another page of this issue.

FALSE PRIDE HAS A FALL (Warner).—For an extended review of this picture by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton see the Moving Picture World on another page of this issue.

THE KEY TO YESTERDAY (Favorite Players), Oct. 12.—For an extended review of this picture by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton see the Moving Picture World on another page of this issue.

THE WARNING (Eclectic).—For an extended review of this picture by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton see the Moving Picture World on another page of this issue.

THE OATH OF THE SWORD (Sawyer).—For an extended review of this picture by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton see the Moving Picture World, volume 22, page 200.

MIGNON ANDERSON LOSES FATHER.

Frank Anderson, father of Mignon Anderson, leading woman with Thanhouser, died at his home in New York City recently. The deceased was well known as a tenor for a period of twenty-five years, serving in opera, on the dramatic stage and in vaudeville. His last professional engagement was with the famous Yankee Comedy Four eight years ago. Since then deceased engaged in the insurance business in New York. Mr. Anderson was known professionally as Frank Armstrong and never lost his interest in the amusement business, being secretary of Brooklyn Lodge No. 30, T. M. A., at the time of his death. He was also a member of Charter Oak Lodge, F. & A. M., who accorded him a Masonic burial. Mr. Anderson was born in Baltimore and leaves a widow, known in dramatic circles before her marriage as Hallie Howard; and three daughters, Mrs. G. H. Christoffers, Mrs. J. J. Callahan and Miss Mignon Anderson. Almost the entire Thanhouser stock company and the memberships of his lodges were present at Mr. Anderson's funeral services and a room was filled with the floral offerings received.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN "WILDFLOWER."

MARGUERITE CLARK, the fascinating little star, who attained a great personal triumph in "Baby Mine," Margaret Mayo's successful play, is the latest stage celebrity to be converted to the screen, through the medium of the Famous Players four-part production, "Wildflower," to be released October 15. "Wildflower," by Mary Germaine, is a drama of the lights and shadows of the sun-kissed forest, and the depths and shallows of human life, a delightful tale of sweet innocence and eternal youth, admirably exemplified in the personality and mannerisms of Miss Clark.

Marguerite Clark.

There are many tender passages in the production, many humorous touches and some tinged with the sadnesses that creep into any true story of life. But Wildflower sheds her fragrance throughout the four reels of the subject, a thing of beauty always and always a symbol of purity.

Marguerite Clark's first film characterization is a notable one, and entitles the enchanting little star to be considered an important acquisition to the screen. She is supported by an adequate and capable cast, including Harold Lockwood, James Cooley, E. L. Davenport and Jack Pickford.

BRITISH NOTES.

THE military or naval feature film promises to dominate the program of moving pictures in Great Britain for some time to come. Already the first fruits of those producers enterprising enough to turn the outbreak of war to pictorial account are to hand and there is no sign of abatement. This week-end eight multiple reel exclusives are to be released, while next week will add as many more and the following weeks all bring in their train still further "war features." The question spontaneously arises, "is the war being overdone?" For the past two months practically every moving picture show in the country has featured a war drama at every performance in addition to the increased editions of topical news films. Therefore the tendencies of public taste in the matter of dramatic subjects with military or naval settings should be carefully followed. Almost every household has some relative or close friend out at the front or with the reserve forces and with this fact constantly in mind to be played upon by vivid newspaper accounts of the ghastly horrors of modern warfare they cannot really be blamed for turning their heels upon the exhibition that specializes in hair-raising representations of the present conflict. The reaction is bound to come and the show with a good variety of every-day subjects will receive its share of patronage. American manufacturers contemplating making war dramas for British consumption might weigh up these points carefully before embarking upon an expensive undertaking. The best of subjects is liable to be overdone and that can only quicken the demand for lighter material.

* * *

The announcement that Guy Standing of the Famous Players Film Company has left half finished "The Silver King" in order to take up a commission in the British navy has been given considerable publicity by the press. It is safe to forecast a greater demand for films featuring this artist upon his return.

* * *

Kineto, Limited, of Warelow street, London, is known the world over for industrial and scenic films. A piquant idea of the enormous stock of "travels" this firm must have on hand is provided by the capture of Samoa. Immediately following the news of the capture this firm rushed off copies of a scenic film of Samoa under the attractive title, "Britain's Newest Colony."

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN

MISS CARRIE HETHERINGTON, Miller's Theater, Los Angeles, Cal., sends the musical program which she selected and played in accompaniment to the eight reel feature "The Christian." Miss Hetherington used "The Photoplayer" (an instrument which has been described before in this department), in the interpretation of her musical setting, and states that her efforts were commented upon in a highly complimentary fashion by the Los Angeles newspapers. We have heard from Miss Hetherington before regarding "The Photoplayer" and her success with the instrument. She selects good programs. Here is the one for

"The Christian."
Open with "Donau Weller Waltz" (by Ivanoici) until
On the Isle of Man, "Dorothy Vernon Waltz," until John goes to find Glory, "I want Just You," (Owen) until Father Lampluch Visits Isle, "Buds and Blossoms Waltz" (Doyle), until Polly and Lord Robert alone, "Bring Back Days of June Time" (Harris)
Following Day, "Ocean Breezes" (Herbert)
"Come Unto Me," "Calvary" (Rodney), until
Polly sees brother coming, "Prelude opus 28" (Chopin), until John and Father in Library, "Calvary," again until
In London, "Temple Bells Waltz" (Klein), until Hospital Ball, "Scarf Dance" (Chaminade), until Hospital shown again, "Temple Bells Waltz" again, until Close-up of Glory and Drake, "Mine" (by Sloman), until Father John, "The Rosary" (Nevin), then "Meditation," by Morrison, until Hospital, "Nearer My God to Thee."
Glory makes discovery, "Evening Star Song" (by Wagner)
Turning Point, "Amanda Waltz" (by Tegada), until Her First Success, "In the Shadows" (Finck), until Glory's Apartment, "Die Lotusblume" (Lange), until Father John, "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan), until Vera's Home, "Bring Back the Love" (Schwartz), until Glory on stage, "In the Shadows"
Glory's Apartment, "Elevation" (Chaminade), until Father John Calls, Third Nocturne (Leybach), opus 25, until Hands Glory paper, "Wedding March" (Mendelssohn), until Back to bedside, Third Nocturne, until Lord Roberts home, "Oberon Overture," until Polly dies, "Abide With Me."
Vera takes baby home, "Overon Overture," until His Work, "Hark, Hark, My Soul" (Dykes), until Tired of the stage, "Hypnotic Waltz" (Hoschna), until Glory goes to the church, "Mighty Lak' a Rose" (Nevin) until To Avenge Himself, "Die Junge Nonne" (Schubert), until Simple Pleasures of Poor, "Merry Widow Waltz" (Lehar), until Lead Kindly Light, "Lead Kindly Light," until Father John goes to Glory, "Lament of the Rose" (Sonnakolt), until Lord Robert's Vengeance, "Die Junge Nonne," until Darby Day, "Gallop di Bravura" (Schulhoff), until Panic in slums, "Rosamunde Overture" (opus 26, Schubert)
Glory and John on rocks, "Day in Venice" (Nevin) until John grabs her throat, "Rosamunde Overture," until Glory puts her arms around him, "Dreams" (by Pascal), until He goes out window, "Lohengrin Introduction" (Wagner), until Glory picks up cross, "Rosary" (Nevin), until Lord Robert, "Simple Aveu" (Thome), until Lord Robert goes to Father John, "Semiramide Overture," until Glory speaks to John, "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn), until Mob enters, "Semiramide Overture," until Glory talks to mob, "Midsummer Night's Dream," until Drake asks Glory to be wife, "All That I Ask Is Love"
Father John and Glory Alone, "Rock of Ages" until end.

For the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with the instrument referred to ("The Photoplayer"), it may be explained that it combines the piano and organ and can be played by means of perforated rolls or manually, or both. The rolls are kept convenient to hand—one can be playing while you are changing the other, so no time is lost in changing from one to another. A double tracker makes this possible, and is perhaps the most marked characteristic of this instrument. For example, the performer might play all of the above program from the perforated rolls, or only a part of them; you might start with "Donau Weller Waltz" (played by a roll), and while that was playing, adjust your second number, "Dorothy Vernon Waltz." While this is being played, remove the first roll and adjust in its place your fourth number. At the cue: "John goes to find Glory," the performer can play the song "I Want Just You," (the third number on the program); this is on the supposition that you have not all the numbers called for among your perforated rolls. At "Father Lamplugh visits Isle" you have the fourth number ready ("Buds and Blossoms"), which plays until "Polly and Lord Robert Alone." While that is playing, remove the roll containing "Dorothy Vernon Waltz," (remember, there is provision for two rolls being in place at the same time) and get the next roll ready. Possibly this may be Chopin's "Prelude opus 28." In this case you will play "Ocean Breezes" and "Calvary" by hand (for want of a better expression), then at cue "Polly sees brother coming" start your perforated roll containing the "Prelude;" while this is playing you will have time to remove the last roll in use—in this case it would be "Buds and Blossoms Waltz," and insert the next roll you intend using. And so on to the end. I do not mean to say Miss Hetherington worked in precisely this manner; she may have played the entire program without the assistance of any perforated rolls, or she may have used them throughout. I am merely trying to show how the "Photoplayer" can be used if need be.

And I am also trying to illustrate my former contention that the best results can be obtained from this (or any other mechanical instrument) when it is manipulated by a competent musician. He (or she) may not be quite up to the requirements of "Rosamunde" or "Semiramide" overtures, or some of the other more difficult numbers, but these can be used by means of the rolls. It is fair to presume that the ordinary pianist has a stock of waltzes and popular songs memorized or in his library, so these need not necessarily be included in the library of perforated rolls. And if the latter contains a good selection of classic and standard music, one can (working both manually and mechanically) put up a good musical program.

I am not intending to "boost" the Photoplayer above everything else, but I know that in competent hands it is a really good instrument and capable of excellent results, and Miss Hethertington's letter gave me a chance to say so—again. But don't fire your pianist and put an usher to work on the musician's job if you want to get musicianly results. "It can't be did."

"Patriotic Songs."

A letter from a small town in the Northwest (names withheld by request) contains the following:

"Lately we have had several 'war pictures' which have given opportunity for using National airs and patriotic songs of the European countries involved. These numbers always get a good round of applause when I play them, as they are very appropriate. Some of the pictures demand this music. "The Kaiser's Challenge" gives the words to "Wacht am Rhein" as an insert. Now my manager requests me to omit all National airs pertaining to these countries—whether in 'war pictures' or any other pictures showing European scenes—as our patronage includes a small sprinkling of the foreign element, some of whom might take exceptions to the playing of these tunes. I claim that if the music is objectionable, the pictures themselves would be objectionable for the same reasons, and if it is bad taste to play tunes which might stir up racial prejudices or enthusiasm it is likewise in bad taste to show pictures calculated to arouse these same feelings. Am I right?"

You are wrong in the position you assume. In the first place, your manager was very lenient when he merely requested you to omit music of this character. Some managers would have compelled you to do it or hunt another job. The manager is in a position to watch his audiences and judge what appeals to them and how; if he makes a mistake he is the boy who must pay for it, not you. So even if your contention was right (that hearing the patriotic airs produced the same effect as did the sight of the pictures) it could have no bearing on the question. But your contention was wrong. The interest of the picture is something on the same order as the interest of the newspaper, or the war map or bulletin board; a little stronger, maybe; but different from the purely emotional feeling which is appealed to by familiar songs of the home countries. Your "sprinkling of the foreign element" might enthuse a little over some of the war pictures, but when—at a moment of tension—you inject "Rule Britannia," "Wacht am Rhein" or "Marseilles" into the performance, there is a chance that some enthusiast will become over-demonstrative. Music is purely emotional and appeals strictly to the emotions.

In Chicago (and in most of the cities containing a large mixed population), music of this description is omitted. The musicians themselves took the initiative in many cases. Just to give the matter a concrete form it was made the subject of a request to the members of the Chicago Federation of Musicians by the president of that body. Except in isolated instances you will hear no "National Airs" played in Chicago save those of our own country.

Be neutral. Play marches.

Cheese.

I can't decide whether this music is descriptive or suggestive. A correspondent (Miss M. L. J., Baltimore, Md.) in a long, rather personal letter—during which she calls the Moving Picture World her "assistant Bible"—springs this one on me:

"Last night we had a Sterling comedy which dealt with Limburger cheese and I played 'I'm Awfully Strong for You' and such numbers."

That struck me as being funny. How does it strike you?

Demonstrating Theater Opened

J. P. Seeburg Opens Carmen Theater in Chicago to Demonstrate His Photoplayer.

IN order to be able to demonstrate to exhibitors the possibilities of its new motion picture player in a small theater, the J. P. Seeburg Piano Co., of Chicago, has opened a picture house at 5056 Broadway, called the Carmen Theater. Exhibitors everywhere are invited by the company to call and see the instrument in operation.

The Western representative of the Moving Picture World went one evening to see Mr. Seeburg's demonstrating theatre and found a pretty and well equipped house, seating 288, and charging an admission to the public of 10 cents.

The auditorium, which is rather long and narrow, is tastefully decorated in pink and gray, and lighted by the indirect lighting system. When we entered an Essanay two-reeler was on the screen, well projected, but what engaged our attention most was the soothing flow of melodious music that came from the orchestra pit where the new Seeburg motion picture player had been installed. It is quite remarkable what one of these instruments can do and how well adapted it is to moving pictures.

The writer was particularly well pleased with the organ part of the player, which John H. Bunte, the congenial and energetic sales manager of the Seeburg Piano Co., told him has 104 pipes, set of cathedral chimes and automatic attachments for bass and treble. The instrument has two key-boards, one regular 88-note piano and the other a 58-note organ. Either can be played separately or both together. It can also be played automatically with music rolls which are of considerable length, each containing ten selections. The rolls are made specially for the Seeburg Motion Picture Player.

In addition to the piano and organ part of the player are a number of other instruments which can be played separately or in combination with others. These are: Xylophones, bass drum, snare drum, cymbal, triangle and castanets, and for sound effects, a cow-bell, fire-gong, steamboat whistle, locomotive whistle, thunder effects, wind siren, tom-tom, crash cymbal, bird call, baby cry, telephone and door-bell, horse trot, automobile horn, etc. These instruments and effects are operated by buttons and pedals.

Motion picture exhibitors these days invest considerable money in church organs. The organ of the Seeburg Motion Picture Player is, of course, not as big and comprehensive as a $10,000 church organ, but in tone quality it compares most favorably with any organ the writer has ever heard in a picture show. The cost of the Seeburg Player is much less, and besides it has all the instruments and sound effects for playing up a picture. G. P. H.

William West

WILLIAM WEST has spent many years on the stage, serving in almost every imaginable capacity since the time of his first appearance at the Old Wood's Museum in Philadelphia. He spent ten years in stock company work, playing in Brooklyn and at the Fifth Avenue and Lincoln Square Theaters in New York.

After some time in vaudeville, he filled very successful engagements with McKee Rankin, W. J. Florence and a number of other equally well-known actors. Among many notable plays in which Mr. West has taken part, not the least remarkable was "The Danger Signal," which ran no less than one thousand and nine nights. He toured the country in Walter Fessler's remarkable scenic melodrama "The Great White Diamond," in which the actor created a part never before attempted upon the stage—that of Landazza, the Nyctalops, who is blind in daylight but sees vividly in darkness. It was a most difficult role which Mr. West handled so artistically that he carried off the honors upon every occasion. Other plays in which Mr. West has appeared are: Dion Boucicault's "Arrah-Na-Pogue," "On the Wabash," "The Little Busybody," "Mexico," "That Girl from Texas," "Blue Jeans" and Tom Robertson's "Caste."

William West.

Five years spent as a member of the Edison Stock Company has served to convince Mr. West that the picture player, like every other artist, must ever be a student, and we find him diligently at work observing and studying the various problems which constantly arise in the newer field. His character portrayals range from farce and burlesque to tragedy and pathos—each one a gem of its kind.

Mr. West's success is due in a great degree to his wonderful skill in the difficult art of "making-up." He has a thorough knowledge of the essential differences between the stage make-up and that required for the photoplay, a subject of which he is an undisputed master.

The fidelity with which Mr. West presents his various character portrayals can readily be gathered from a few of our more recent films—"Grand Opera in Rubeville," "The Resurrection of Caleb Worth," "The Tango in Tuckerville," "The Borrowed Finery" and "Frederick the Great."

Keenly alive to every situation, with a high artistic appreciation founded upon long years of experience, Mr. West may truthfully be said to represent all that is best and finest in dramatic art.

"The Story of the Blood-Red Rose"

Director Colin Campbell Produces With Exceptional Talent an Original, Poetical Story by James Oliver Curwood, Founded on an Ancient Fable.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

IN Selig's three-reel feature, "The Story of the Blood-Red Rose," the trade is furnished with a subject that well illustrates the great forward stride that has been taken in the writing of scenarios. Here we have something that is not only different in story from anything we have seen on the screen, but also in literary and photodramatic merit. Indeed, Mr. Curwood could write a very entertaining novel from the plot, incidents and characters of this scenario, which Director Campbell has so magically visualized in 3,000 feet of film.

I could not help thinking, while these films were being run off in Selig's private projection room, that the producing director is the all-important factor in the successful visualization of a meritorious scenario. The latter can be so easily marred in the hands of a producer who lacks the subtle art of inclosing himself in the proper atmosphere and the intelligence that brings right vision of the time and settings of the story.

Scene from "The Story of the Blood-Red Rose" (Selig).

In this case Mr. Campbell deserves unstinted praise for his nice assignment of the characters in the cast, and for his happy supervision of the costuming. In the settings, both exterior and interior—and some of them required both fine imagination and thoughtful care—he has excelled. That dungeon scene, specially built, is horrible in its gruesomeness. The rats scampering over the floor, as the prisoner is thrown down on it from the opening above, adds to one's nervous shrinking. The cave of old Hagar, the witch, is so constructed as to shed a mystic glow around her.

I was specially impressed by several forest scenes in these pictures. The light effects are exceedingly happy, because they are so natural. The time of day and the places were well chosen to produce these alternations of light and shade, as the king's hunting party pass through the forest. The cameraman was well on his job on all occasions.

In the final scene, I am of the opinion that Mr. Campbell's poetic conception of the passing of the lovers, Godiva and Paulo, would have been better rounded out had the stained-white rose been dissolved into Godiva, in spirit form, this to be followed immediately by the dissolving of the dead Paulo into spirit form, beside her, and then have the attenuated forms fade away. As it is now Godiva comes back in spirit form to the spot where Paulo is lying. She then resumes material form and the dead Paulo is restored to life in material form. In this way they fade out, creating the impression that in some mysterious manner they have been reunited in material bliss.

Miss Kathlyn Williams appears as Godiva, the beautiful daughter of the simple shepherd of the forest. Paulo, the young huntsman, Godiva's lover, is impersonated by Wheeler Oakman. Chief interest centers on them throughout, not by reason of the drift of the story, but for talented acting as well. The scene in the room of the king, where he attempts to overcome the affrighted and desperate Paulo, shows a simulation of horror and a resort to desperate measures in self-defense by Miss Williams that is thrillingly realistic.

Charles Clary, as the King of Urania, is an imposing figure. He is always the despotic king, except when nearly caught in a trap by his incensed queen. The queen of Urania is sustained by Miss Eugenie Besserer in a strong characterization. The Sancha of Frank Clark is a fine impersonation, fully in keeping with his reputation in character parts. Miss Camille Astor cannot fail to attract notice as Hagar, the witch. In brief, the cast is fully worthy of the fine story and of the talented production. Paulo, the handsome, young huntsman, and beautiful Godiva, his sweetheart, lived in a forest in the kingdom of Urania, about the middle of the sixteenth century. The king of Urania meets the lovers in the forest and determines to have Godiva as his own. Paulo strikes the king to the earth when he attempts to kiss Godiva, and for this he is placed in a dungeon and condemned to death.

The king abducts Godiva and brings her to his castle. She bravely resists all his advances and one night, to avenge himself for her slights, he shows her the dungeon where her beloved Paulo is imprisoned. Having secured a potion from her friend, Hagar, that will change the human body into various forms, Godiva, seeing that she will be overcome by the king, calls to her lover that she is coming to him, and then swallows the powder. A white rose falls into the hands of the waiting Paulo, who kisses it rapturously and places it in his breast. Then he succeeds in making his escape.

Paulo makes his way to the cave of Hagar, in order to have his sweetheart changed back from the white rose to human form; but he finds that his old friend is dead. Then he escapes to the mountains, where for years he wages vengeance on the king's forces.

Scene from "The Story of the Blood-Red Rose" (Selig).

Several years pass and the king once more is hunting in the forest. We see Paulo darting through the brush stalking his arch enemy. An opportune moment comes and he shoots the king with a bolt from his cross bow, but is wounded to death by the king's followers at the same moment. He succeeds in evading his enemies and lies down to die. As he pulls the death arrow from his wound, his life blood dyes the white rose red, and his sweetheart and he are united in death.

The date of release has not yet been fixed.

KLEINE-CINES STOCK LEAVES WAR ZONE.

Owing to the many annoyances contingent upon the mobilization of the military forces in Rome, the Cines Co. has moved several of its more important stock companies to foreign countries. Miss Lyda Borelli has taken a band of players to South America, where she will produce four multiples having their locale in Brazil, while Miss Francesco Bertini has embarked for the Riviera in Southern France with a party of Celio players.

SEND FORT PICTURES TO FEDERAL COURT.

At the trial held this week of Robert Fowler, Charles K. Field, R. A. Duhem and Riley Scott, charged with obtaining pictures of the Panama Canal Zone which revealed Government fortifications, United States Commissioner Krull decided to place the matter in the hands of the Federal courts. R. A. Duhem is head of the Duhem Motion Picture Manufacturing Company, 700 Hayes street, San Francisco. He accompanied Aviator Fowler on his memorable flight across the Isthmus, securing some remarkable moving pictures.

"The Wireless Voice"

Two-Reel Reliance Melodrama with Electricity in the Leading Role.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CAST:

Hastings, a young inventor.....Frank Bennet
Mary Manners, his sweetheart.....Irene Hunt
Sykes, a crooked electrician.....Vester Pegg
Warren, partner of Hastings, and Manners, father of Mary.

TWO live wires, Hastings and Warren, are shown engaged in perfecting a wireless apparatus which has all the appearance of being the real thing—it might as well be, so far as the layman is concerned—and there are glimpses of a wireless station that contribute to the realistic atmosphere. One almost feels a sensation of educational rectitude in contemplating the intricate devices handled by the team of young inventors. They succeed in establishing communication between their two stations and demonstrate that they can keep in touch with either by means of a portable apparatus carried on the back of an automobile.

Scene from "The Wireless Voice" (Reliance).

Hastings visits the house of his sweetheart to tell her of the good news, and interests her father, a promoter and capitalist. An inspection follows, during which the workings of a dangerous high-voltage switch are made conspicuous, one of the kind that electrocutes without other trial than careless handling. Manners decides to finance a company for exploiting the invention, but he demands 51 per cent. of the stock. The young inventors do not care to be robbed in that highly respectable way, and they decline the proposition. Manners is vexed, and he decides to get it all by a lower form of thievery. Enter villain, Sykes, a crooked engineer.

Scene from "The Wireless Voice" (Reliance).

Sykes is ready and willing to do the dirty work, and a moment is chosen when Hastings is off on an auto excursion with his sweetheart and chauffeur for purposes of trying out his portable machine. Sykes and Manners go in another motor car to the main station, that the former may secure sketches of working parts and secure a patent before the investors make application, running many risks thereby in eluding an interference suit and criminal action. Sykes is discovered at his dastardly work by Warren, partner of Hastings, and a rough-and-tumble fight results in triumph for the villain. He puts it all over young Warren, and makes a quick getaway in the motor car with Manners.

Do they escape? Ah, no! Young Warren drags himself to the keyboard and signals. Hastings at the portable hears him in time to intercept the villains. He holds them up at the pistol point, very much to the embarrassment of Miss Manners (poor girl) and carts them off to jail. Like a flash—this is an electric play—Manners is condemned and serves a term in prison. Sykes probably gets his deserts, but he is of no particular consequence from this time on.

Manners comes out of jail with revenge in his heart. He breaks into the unguarded station and suddenly develops into an expert electrician, showing thereby that he should not have hired Sykes in the first place. If you want anything well done, especially a crime, better do it yourself. On this general principle, and that of one bad turn deserves another, Manners arranges a wire system and steel plate so that Hastings will be electrocuted on entering the station door. Manners turns on the full current at an outside box and lies in a field to watch results.

Hastings appears, but he is with his sweetheart, Mary, the daughter of Manners. Horrors! Manners will murder his own daughter! No! He will save her! He rushes to the high voltage box to turn off the current, but he reaches beyond the handles, his own body deflects the current, and he is instantly killed. Hastings gets his daughter and it is to be hoped, for the sake of their children, that evil tendencies are not hereditary.

"Even Unto Death"

A Three-Reel Tragedy Made by the Albuquerque Film Company and Released Through Warner's Features.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S. T. B.

EXCELLENT production, almost perfect photography and some of the most beautiful marine scenes that we have ever seen are marred in this picture by a too loosely constructed plot and the "unhappy ending." The relationship of the characters is not clearly established until the end of the second reel, and in the case of the two sons of the minister is still further confused by calling one of them Jack and the other John and having them so much alike in appearance that it requires close watching and hard thinking to realize which is which when they appear by themselves in a scene. As the story in no way hinges on this similarity of name or appearance, it is a mistake that could and should have been avoided.

The unhappy ending is also unnecessary, because the story is of too light and sentimental a character to warrant three deaths and the tragic overshadowing that blights the latter days of an old and godly minister"s home. By slightly changing the plot at the time of the quarrel between Jack and Walter, all this could have been avoided and the story brought to a happy ending and made incomparably better. Instead of being killed, Walter should have been severely wounded and then have indicted Jack for assault with intent to kill. This would have permitted the same development of the story with the exception of the ending, which as it stands involves the very unpleasant situation of a girl dying for love of her brother's slayer and the subsequent suicide of the slayer.

Apart from these flaws the picture is an exceptionally good one. The author, Miss Dot Farley, and the director, G. P. Hamilton, have done careful and painstaking work well deserving of all praise. The settings and locations are decidedly attractive and unusually well chosen, especially in the scenes depicting Dorothy's sketching the seals sporting on the rocks, her getting caught and washed away by the rising tide and her subsequent rescue by Jack, the last of which we understand nearly cost the lives of the actors and the director.

Another exceptionally well developed thing is the trial, which results in Jack's being held for the grand jury. The skillful alternation of courtroom scene, leader and bust develops the evidence plainly and in a highly dramatic manner; and the having the verdict hinge, not on evidence as to the killing, but on the balance of probability deduced from the popular opinion as to Jack's personal character is quite new and refreshing. Altogether, the workmanship of the production is so good and appealing that it is with distinct and fervent regret that we find it winding up in a tragedy with which we cannot sympathize.

"A Dog's Love"

One-Reel of Thanhouser, of Pathos and Beauty.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CAST:

Baby .....Helen Bridgely
Mother .....Ethyle Benham
Father .....Arthur Bauer
Visitor.....Fan Bourke
Dog ..... Shep

THIS play becomes one of delicate pathos toward the end through some remarkable feats of double exposure and it is one of beauty throughout because of the acting of a four-year-old tot, Baby Helen, a veritable star in her class. Shep contributes with exceptional intelligence—he is not eternally looking at his master out of scope for a word of command. The introduction of dogs and babies into screen plays where the action does not hinge upon their presence of the weak device of incompetent directors, but this baby is one of the most delightful central figures ever exhibited on the screen, and the dog is where he belongs—it is his play.

Scene from "A Dog's Love" (Thanhouser).

Baby Helen is one of those poor little rich girls without companions of her age, for she is not permitted to play with free-lance children in the streets. She has a tea-party of her own in the garden one day, with dolly as her guest, when Shep sticks an investigating nose through the hedge and is informally asked to participate in some appetizing refreshments. "I 'vite you to my party," says Baby Helen, and Shep gravely pushes through a hole in the hedge. He sits down at the doll table and does not mince matters. He eats as though he enjoyed it.

This is the beginning of a friendship which ripens into intimacy that begets love. Baby Helen finds a listener to her prattle, and Shep warms to the generous and fond human tot. They become companions in a sort of relation that we only read about among grown-ups, that of disinterested friendship between creatures unrelated. Thus it happens one day that they are together when joy-riders run over Baby Helen and send her tiny soul adrift with an endless stream to eternity. Shep warns the family and brings help, but it is too late. He soon after follows the mourners to Baby Helen's grave.

It is said that we are only fit to love when we comprehend the meaning and purpose of life. This sounds true, but we often wonder if intelligent dogs have not, if only in a vague way, some comprehension that they exist. They seem, in rare cases, to know the meaning of death. Perhaps they only guess at it, but their conduct often gives the impression that they deeply feel the loss of a friend, and it is known to a certainty that they have dreams.

Shep carries flowers to the grave and even steals a watering pot for the flowers, but these tricks add little or nothing to the value of the portrayal. It is when the remarkable double exposures begin that the play becomes psychological, a powerful lack in Thanhouser releases as a rule, and grows impressive. It is the spiritual that wins, not the mere movements of characters through a series of incidents. I do not know what director handled this subject, but I suggest that he apply his thought visualizations to the human characters of future stories.

It is the exhibition of what passes in the minds and hearts of characters that brings an audience into closer sympathy with them and makes tense interest possible when melodrama merely brings a laugh. The double exposures are timed with such skill in this instance that all concerned in their production deserve high praise. They give beauty and dignity to a very simple story.

Hughie Mack

HUGHIE MACK, of the Vitagraph players, was born in New York City, Nov. 26, 1884, and was christened Hugh R. McGowan, the "Mack" being a nickname of his boyhood days that clung to him in his early manhood. Always known to his intimates as Hughie Mack, when he began to pose for moving pictures, he retained the name because it was popular among a large following of friends. Mr. Mack's father, Richard McGowan, was born in Longford County, Ireland, and came of a long line of Irish ancestors. Miss Rose McGrath was the maiden name of Mr. Mack's mother, born in Brooklyn, N. Y., her father being prominent during the Civil War.

Hughie Mack.

Mr. Mack received his education in the schools of Brooklyn, attending public school No. 42; graduating from there to St. Theresa Academy. During his spare time, while attending the public school, Hughie sold newspapers and was the most successful newsboy in his district because of his naturally happy disposition. At the age of sixteen he became interested in amateur theatricals and was appointed principal comedian of the St. Theresa Dramatic Club.

Although Mr. Mack never appeared on the stage as a professional before he became a screen artist, he accepted engagements to appear at club entertainments, and it was his work while entertaining members at a club supper that his possibilities as a moving picture actor became apparent to an influential member of the Vitagraph Company. An offer to join the company at Flatbush was accepted and it was but a short while before Hughie Mack became a recognized Vitagraph favorite.

Since joining the Vitagraph Company, scenario writing has become a part of the day's work with Mr. Mack, and he is the author of a number of popular screen stories besides lending valuable assistance in the writing of the Fatty series, one of the most laughable series of comedy pictures now before the public. The most important pictures in which Mr. Mack has appeared include: "The Amateur Lion Tamer," "Mr. Bingles' Melodrama," "Ancient Order of Goodfellows," "The New Stenographer," "Mary Jane Entertains," "How Fatty Made Good," "Fatty on the Job," etc.

Hughie Mack was married to Mary E. A. Reel, in the Transfiguration Church, Brooklyn, and is the father of three children, two boys and a girl—Robert, Richard and Rosemary.

EXTENUATING CIRCUMSTANCES.

Emmett Campbell Hall tells this himself, so, of course, it must be true. He was, he deposes, standing in the lobby of a Washington theater, peacefully absorbing satisfaction from the lavish display of posters announcing the showing of "The Beloved Adventurer" series and the fact that the book, published by the Lubin Company coincident with the release of the first installment of the series, was to be had at the box office as patrons hurried, when he became conscious that the manager, to whom he is known, was pointing him out to a friend. "That's Hall, that lanky guy. He wrote the plays and the book, you know," the manager remarked. The other man surveyed the blushing author with kindly eyes. "Oh, well," he said, "you never can tell what any of us might do under stress. Perhaps the poor chap is the only support of a large family of small children, or he may even have needed new tires for his automobile.

"The Warning"

An Exceptionally Dramatic Wharton-Made Eclectic, Pointing a Practical and Very Important Moral.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

ASIDE from some slight evidences of careless direction in two or three instances, this picture is one of the most intensely dramatic and morally inspiring stories that we have seen in a long while. The plot is simple and straightforward and decidedly melodramatic in development, but this last trait has been so skillfully restrained and made subordinate to the character portrayal and the moral issues motivating the story that we lose sight of it entirely unless we stop to think. In other words the picture is a successful example of how the melodramatic can be legitimately used to intensify the dramatic climaxes of a story in itself full of genuine human and heart interest.

Scene from "The Warning" (Eclectic).

Much has been said about "dream stories" and a great deal of it is only too true; but the present picture is a notable exception. The transition from the introduction to the dream is beautifully done by visioning instead of leader and we see the boy in spirit rising from his bed while his body lay prone across its foot. Almost before we realize it the action of the dream has begun and goes on with an increasing dramatic force and intensity until the final moment when as the boy's body strikes the water the scene suddenly dissolves into his falling body striking the floor of his bedroom. Another point also calling for special mention is the fidelity displayed to the known facts of the psychology of dreams, especially in the case of the father. His love and tenderness and real affection are effectively brought out in the introduction, but the last impression on the boy's mind was that of a severe, rebuking parent. Such he becomes in the dream. But the transition is not an abrupt one and the change is so gradual and natural that we only realize it with a shock at the end where he bids the boy prepare to die, and the real truth that the second and sterner portrait is only a dream distortion does not fully dawn on us until the final scene after the boy has waked up.

Scene from "The Warning" (Eclectic).

When the boy is captured, he is put into the stern of a boat, unhandcuffed, while the two policemen both sit with their backs to him and row. This is bad and should not have happened. Also it could easily have been avoided with such a finished swimmer as the boy shows himself to be. A second bit of carelessness was when the boy breaks into his father's house for the last time. As he goes in from the outside, the French windows open outward. As we see him closing them after he gets in, they open inside. This rather spoils a tense situation and should have been avoided. The only other mistake of importance was with regard to the minister. The story as developed demands a Protestant minister, not a Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergyman. But Protestant ministers do not trot around their homes in a cassock, nor do they wear Roman Catholic rochets and English university scarfs in their pulpits. Some of them do wear vestments, but great care is taken that they shall be different from and not to be confounded with Catholic vestments either Roman or English. This sort of thing is a pity as it both annoys the spectator and detracts from the real value of a picture. Unfortunately it is a common fault and we noticed it in two other pictures seen this week.

Despite these faults, however, the picture is one of the most noteworthy and best now being put out. It is not only good in itself as a story, but its workmanship evinces able, earnest, painstaking effort to produce the best results and make if possible a perfect picture. This is especially noticeable in the bust, showing the father praying for his son just before he casts him into the sea. The depiction of the emotions is perfect even to the real tears that well up from his eyes and roll slowly down his cheeks. This remarkable result was obtained because the actor was really praying, not for a fictitious son, but for the success of one of the belligerents in the present European war. All of which proves that a man who is willing to put all that he is as well as all that he has into making his work a success, deserves to succeed.

"False Pride Has a Fall"

An Unusually Good Comedy-Drama, Exceptionally Well Made by Albuquerque—Released by Warner.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S. T. B.

BOTH in plot and production, this picture ranks far above the average. The story, whose author, Miss Dot Farley, also plays the lead, is simple, straightforward and full of heart interest, a bit of real life in fiction form, the truth, pathos and humor of which grips one with a genuine thrill of the kind that warms the cockles of the heart, not the kind that makes your flesh creep.

The theme is the old, old story of the girl educated into becoming ashamed of her humble parents, who is brought to a realization of the artificiality of the criterions of modern "society" when compared with the standards of life as God made and intended it to be; but the treatment is distinctly new and refreshing. The girl, brought up on a Western ranch, is sent to an Eastern finishing school where she becomes the finished product of "culture." The parents turn up at an inopportune time and the girl, suddenly ashamed of their gaucherie, attempts, though unsuccessfully, to put them into the background, and is brought to a realization of the true meanness of her action by the real gentlemanliness of her husband.

The original touch lies in the development, which lays the stress on the haps and mishaps of the girl acquiring culture and springs the inner acquisition of false pride as a surprise when the girl is brought face to face with the problem of introducing to her cultured friends a father whom she has welcomed and who is sitting at her dining table in his shirt sleeves and mistaking real champagne for cider. The picture is entirely free from any of the suggestions of slapstick or coarseness into which, in less competent hands, it might have degenerated and it is noteworthy for the refinement and delicacy with which the situations have been handled throughout.

The only real fault with the picture is that in two or three places there is an unskillful or careless sequence of scenes which give a wrong impression as to the actual course of events. For instance, when the girl leaves home for school, the scene of the farewell party is immediately followed by the exterior showing her getting into the buckboard to go to the station, and the abruptness of the change gives an air of unreality to the story at this point. An inserted scene or leader would have obviated this entirely.

"The False Guardian."

Two-Reel Kalem Production Featuring Alice Hollister as Heroine, Supported by a Competent Cast.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

A WELL-CONSTRUCTED and entertaining drama has been produced by Robert G. Vignola in this two-reel photoplay entitled "The False Guardian." The theme is not unlike that in Arnold Bennet's play, "The Great Adventure," except that in this story the valet impersonates his dead master for criminal purposes, and in "The Great Adventure" the master impersonates his dead valet for comedy reasons. Each situation is unique in its way and makes a successful story.

John Graham's brother dies, leaving a request that he take charge of his estate and act as his daughter Helen's guardian. This John Graham starts to do, but while traveling with his man, Butts, is stricken with heart trouble. Butts is an accomplished rascal and plans to exchange places with his master. He calls a physician, saying his man is ill. Graham's case proves hopeless and he dies.

Scene from "The False Guardian" (Kalem).

Having disposed of Graham's body Butts proceeds to carry out his deception. He goes to the Graham estate and palms himself off as Helen's uncle. The reception is successful and he finds the coast clear except for one thing.

Scene from "The False Guardian" (Kalem).

Stone, the butler, has been his old partner in villainy prior to this time and demands hush money. Butts, of course, takes care of him and silences him temporarily.

Helen is in love with Tom Ryder and desires to marry him. Butts refuses permission for reasons satisfactory to himself. This causes the girl to dislike him and she plans to elope with Tom. This plan is discovered by Butts, who intercepts the lovers, turns Tom out of the house and locks Helen in a room.

The imposter then thinks of new villainy by which he hopes to rid himself permanently of the girl. He discharges the old housekeeper and pretends the girl is insane. He communicates with a sanitarium and arranges to have her transported to this for safe keeping.

Helen puts up a struggle to avoid being taken away from her home, but is hustled into an auto, in charge of Stone, the butler. In the meantime Tom has discovered the plot and follows in his own machine. During the chase the first auto rams into a tree and is wrecked. Helen is slightly injured and Stone fatally. Before dying the butler makes a confession. The police are then notified and Butts placed under arrest.

This story is compact and well-photographed throughout. The cast includes Alice Hollister as the girl, Harry Millarde as the lover, John E. Mackin as the uncle, Henry Hallam as Butts and Robert Walker as the butler.

Paramount Program.

Big Feature Organization Announces Many Interesting Releases With Popular Players in Leading Parts.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION are announcing this week their releases for the second three months and the list of pictures and stage celebrities included in the productions stands unexcelled in the history of motion pictures. While the pictures of Famous Players and Jesse L. Lasky constitute a substantial portion of the program, even these producers have never before announced so many feature films at any one time.

Beginning with Lasky's "Ghostbreaker" the first week in December, with H. B. Warner as star, the entire series to March 1 is one of especial note. To those who saw Mr. Warner in "Lost Paradise," he will be remembered as an actor of distinctive personality who has fairly won his popularity with the public.

Mary Pickford, "America's sweetheart" as she is called, appears in two new pictures, "Stepsister" and "Mistress Nell." Ever a favorite, picture patrons have something to look forward to in these new appearances.

Among the Bosworth releases are Lois Weber in "False Colors" and "Aurora Leigh." These should prove of decided merit, especially Elizabeth Barrett Browning's classic. The story of "Aurora Leigh" is loved by Browning readers everywhere, and this gem of literature will be a novelty in film releases.

Dustin Farnum, endeared to the public through his splendid interpretation of "Squaw Man," will appear Christmas week in an entirely new role, "Cameo Kirby." That he will further enlarge his circle of admirers need hardly be prophesied.

"The Girl of the Golden West" has long been a stage favorite. First, Belasco presented this western drama in truly Belasco stage settings. It was a success from the first production. Success is hardly adequate to express it, however, for this play was put on the grand opera stage and filled long engagements at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The picture is made with an all-star cast and will strike a decided note of favor with western picture lovers.

"Merely Mary Ann" comes before the public on the screen, and with "The Goose Girl" and "The Dancing Girl" makes a trio of interesting femininity.

"Her Triumph" features Gaby Deslys, who is known world-wide as a dancing stage celebrity. Her appearance in moving pictures is a triumph in achievement for Famous Players, could it be considered that any achievement were difficult to them.

For the Lenten season "The Sign of the Cross" is furnished, while March 1, the beginning of spring very appropriately opens with "The Woman."

Altogether, Paramount Program has for its first six months a list of features that augurs well for its continued success.

PARTLY ACCEDE TO MUSICIAN'S DEMANDS.

The Detroit Theater Managers' Association held another meeting on September 29 to take up the matter of a new agreement with the house musicians. The men are demanding a 5 per cent. increase for this year and the same increase each year for three years with the proviso that no theater can cut down on the size of its orchestra. The managers have refused to grant the demand of the musicians but have offered them a 5 per cent. increase for the coming year, with the understanding that they will keep as many men in their orchestra as they see fit. No agreement has been reached as yet.

"The Path Forbidden"

A Good Excelsior Five-Part Subject Containing Some Unusual Examples of Double Exposure.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE CAST.

Violet Dare—Mrs. Joe Brill, mother of Lucy and Pearl ..... } Octavia Handworth
Lucy Brill ..... }
Pearl Brill..... }
Curtis Holmes, a young lawyer.....Gordon De Maine
Joe Brill, father of Lucy and Pearl....William A. Williams
Jim Kent, a young physician.....Hamilton Crane

THE Excelsior Company is releasing on the Alliance program a five-part subject (about 4,500 feet) which is bound to cause much interest among those having knowledge of the difficulties attending the making of double exposure. In "The Path Forbidden," from the book by John B. Hymer, Octavia Handworth is seen in a number of most minutely timed synchronizations. Among the incidents are the passing of an article—in one instance a card—from one to the other. The story does not depend on these evidences of the skill of Producer Handworth, however. The locale is Lake Placid, in the Adirondacks. There is an abundance of good scenery. The photography is excellent; the atmospheric conditions are of the best.

Scene from "The Path Forbidden" (Excelsior).

Scene from "The Path Forbidden" (Excelsior).

Octavia Handworth plays a triple role; all of the three interpretations are well handled. In the first she plays a frivolous young matron, whose indiscretions lead to her separation from her husband. Later she is seen as twin sisters, separated in infancy. One has followed the footsteps of the mother. There are the same characteristics, the same love of gayety, the same disregard of the conventions. The second is all a woman should be. It is the crossing of paths when the two are grown to womanhood that furnishes the opportunity for the double exposure. If it can be said in these days that it is possible to establish illusion in scenes involving dual roles it must be admitted that "The Forbidden Path" accomplishes it.

William A. Williams does excellent work as the father of the two girls. Especially commendable is his makeup in the "twenty years after." It is convincing. Gordon De Maine is the young lawyer engaged to Pearl and whose marriage is prevented by the impulsive departure of the young woman with his rival. When he meets Lucy, the physical counterpart of the woman who had deceived him but possessing the mental attributes that hold as well as attract, he quickly falls in love with her. Hamilton Crane is strong in the bit that falls to him.

There are good situations, among the best being those in the final reel. It is here that the father, restored to health, finds his second daughter, of whom for twenty years he had not had a trace. There is a most happy conclusion.

NEW EDISON SERIES.

The Edison Company will launch four new series of photoplays from stories written by authors well-known in the literary and dramatic world. There will be no chain connecting stories in the different series, as each story will be of independent and complete interest.

"Below the Dead Line," a series of strong detective stories by Scott Campbell, deals with the exploits of a celebrated private detective, Felix Boyd, employed by the largest financial concerns in New York City. Robert Conness will appear in this character throughout the series. The first release, "The Case of the Vanished Bonds," will be October 17.

"Young Lord Stranleigh," a series which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, by Robert Barr, embraces four two-reel subjects in which the young aristocratic Lord will afford an excellent vehicle for Marc MacDermott. The girl with whom the Lord is in love will be played by Miriam Nesbitt. The initial installment "The King's Move in the City," will be released November 27th.

"Olive's Opportunities" is the title of a series especially written for the Edison Company by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, the well-known writer whose stories are full of virility and action. Mabel Trunnelle will be known as "Olive," the young girl brought up in a gypsy camp, whose parentage is a mystery. Irrepressible and full of joy of living she will go through many exciting situations. "A Gypsy Madcap" is the first story to be released, on December 1.

"The Girl Who Earns Her Own Living" is a series by Mark Swan, who has written exclusively for the Edison Company for about two years. In this series each story will show the struggle of a young girl to maintain a decent existence and the girl in each story will be a different character. Each one, however, will be played by Gertrude McCoy. The first releases of these dramatic and human interest stories will be "The Stenographer" on December 5.

REMODELED HOUSE OPENED.

The People's Theatre Co., Inc., at Oshkosh, Wis., has opened its remodeled theater. The name of the picture house before it went under its change in structure was The Rex; it is now known as the New People's Theater. The officers of the company are A. N. Koehn, president; John H. Laabs, vice-president; N. J. Foulkes, secretary; A. A. Abraham, of the Teller City National Bank, treasurer, and W. S. Campbell is managing-director. Besides operating the remodeled house, the company also runs the North Side House at 171-173 Main street and the South Side House at 1122 Oregon street, both in Oshkosh. A stage big enough to accommodate any vaudeville sketch has been incorporated in the remodeled structure. The programs will be composed of moving pictures and vaudeville. Music is furnished by an orchestra of five pieces.

PERKINS IN "WHO GOES THERE?"

Walter E. Perkins, the quaint comedian who will be remembered for his remarkable interpretation of Augustus Keen Shaver in the Edison three-reel comedy, "My Friend from India," is being featured in another of H. A. Du Souchet's successes "Who Goes There?" Mr. Perkins, who starred in this play on Broadway as "Toppy" the young bashful lieutenant, will appear in the same role in the three-reel photoplay now being produced by the Edison Company under the direction of Ashley Miller.

SUPERBA THEATER CHANGES HANDS.

Charles E. Sears, of Lancaster, Ohio, recently purchased the Superba Theater, at Delaware, Ohio. The theater was run for the past few years by Frank D. King, who is city auditor of Delaware, and John Gaynor.

"The Ragged Earl"

Popular Plays and Players Company Picturize Andrew Mack in His Famous Comedy-Drama.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S.T.B.

FOR clean, pure comedy-drama, of the highest educational character we have seen nothing to compare with "The Ragged Earl" as made by Lubin for the Popular Plays and Players Company. It represents a type of photodrama that for the past five years we have been trying to convince manufacturers, directors and photoplaywrights is not only the kind that the American people want, but is also the kind that will increase the bank account of all concerned. It is a typical example of educational comedy or of "pure food" as compared with the "adulterated candy" entertainment that is so common nowadays. Give us more of it.

Scene from "The Ragged Earl" (Popular Plays).

As to the acting, Andrew Mack, who plays his old role of Gerald Fitzgerald, Earl of Kildare, the ragged earl, has achieved as great, if not greater, success before the eye of the camera as he did formerly in the eyes of thousands of legitimate theatergoers, and he is most ably supported by the cast with which Lubin has supplied him. William Conklin as Sir Henry Hardcastle is excellent; Edward J. Peil as Lord Wildbrook, the old roué who wishes to marry Kathleen, is inimitable and Ormi Hawley and Eleanor Dunn as the two stepchildren of Sir Henry are simply superb. So also is the actress whose name should have been listed in the cast who played the part of Lady Hardcastle.

Scene from "The Ragged Earl" (Popular Plays).

Another thing deserving comment is the settings and locations. The interiors are not only in keeping with the character of the story, but they also coincide with the exteriors, a point that is apparently almost always, to judge from what we see, overlooked or paid little attention to by nearly every director. Fairmount Park, the Wisahickon Drive, and the Lancaster Turnpike offer some of the most beautiful exteriors that can be found anywhere in the world and, judging from the locations, we recognized in the picture these and similar localities have been utilized for all they are worth by a director who had a discerning mind.

"England Expects---"

Two-Part Cosmofotofilm Subject Produced by London Film Company Touches Question Close to English Hearts.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THIS topical two-part subject was written and produced by George Loane Tucker, of the London Film Company's forces. Mr. Tucker has selected for his title the first two words of Nelson's well-known message to his men. The story shows the reluctance of a business man to enlist, to leave his wife and three children. His father holds a medal won in the Boer war and his grandfather possesses the Victoria Cross, won at Inkerman, in the Crimean war. In spite of the immediate martial ancestry the man hesitates. It seems hard to understand that he is of the same blood. There is a suspicion on the part of the wife, and it seems well founded, that there is a bit of yellow in her husband. He finally enlists, however, and there we leave him.

Scene from "England Expects——" (Hepworth).

Charles Rock portrays the grandfather, George Bellamy the business man, and Jane Gail the wife. The work of the players is good, and will contribute to make interesting in the United States a story that primarily must have been intended for Englishmen. Miss Gail finely interprets the patriotic wife; it is plainly evident that were she in the position of the man of the house there would be no hesitation in joining the colors. Mr. Bellamy is unconvincing as the husband only insofar as the man cast as his father seems to be of nearly even age.

The picture dwells much on the domestic side of the enlistment question. Three children with their martial toys have much to do. There is incorporated in the action scenes of troops as they march through the streets, on their way to the front. These are timely and constitute a real factor in the strength of the story. As a reflection of the absorbing topic in England at the present time "England Expects——" has its greatest value.

DAYTON BACK ON JOB.

After an enforced absence of more than a week because of a nervous breakdown, James Dayton, scenario editor of the Universal West Coast Studios, has returned to his desk. For the past two months, owing to the rapidity with which the directors have been turning out finished productions, the western scenario department has been hard put to keep ahead of them with stories. In an effort to supply the demand, Mr. Dayton worked night and day for a number of weeks with the inevitable result that he finally broke down. After an absence of two days, he attempted to return to his desk, but after a few hours, he was forced to give it up and go home, where he remained for more than a week under a doctor's care.

RECEIVES FEDERATION OF LABOR CHARTER.

The stage workers and motion picture operators of Lexington, Ky., who some time ago organized a local union, have applied for admission into the Bluegrass Federation of Labor and have been accepted. The new union affiliates with the American Federation of Labor. It now has a membership of thirty-three and has made arrangements to hold meetings at Union Labor Hall on Broadway, Lexington.

"The Key to Yesterday."

Buck's Novel Picturized in Four Reels by Carlyle Blackwell for the Favorite Players.

Reviewed by the Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, S. T. B.

THE plot of James Neville Buck's story, "The Key to Yesterday," hinges on the resemblance between a noted French artist, who temporarily loses his memory and a South American revolutionist. The revolutionist is condemned to be shot but makes his escape after getting wounded in his left hand and then disappears from the story. The artist receives an accidental wound in his right hand, is unable to go on with his painting and takes to traveling. He is robbed and mishandled by highwaymen in the West, and in consequence loses his memory but realizes that the key of his studio, which he finds in his pocket, will bring back the forgotten happenings of yesterday if he can only find the door that the key will unlock. This is what gives the title to the story. He makes new friends in the United States, again becomes a successful painter and meets the South American ambassador who had condemned the revolutionist and who charges him with being that man.

Scene from "The Key to Yesterday" (Favorite Players).

Scene from "The Key to Yesterday" (Favorite Players).

Unable to disprove the accusation, owing to his loss of memory, the artist goes to South America and is mistaken for the revolutionist until the fact that it is his right hand that is wounded reveals his separate identity. Later he gets mixed up in a revolutionary episode, is wounded and shipped off to France in a tramp steamer, and eventually finds and unlocks the studio door with a resulting return of memory. The story is complicated by a wife whom he leaves in Paris when he goes traveling and whom he finds just expiring when he gets back home, and by a girl of the States to whom he has become affianced while his memory was gone and who follows him to South American and Paris. The story is an involved one, and although the screen version has simplified it much, it still remains a difficult one to tell and the faults of the picture are almost if not entirely due to this fact. The main thread of the story is very well worked out indeed, but there are times when the motives that actuate the actions of the characters is not at all obvious or apparent and in one or two places the spectator is annoyed by loose threads in the plot. Aside from these faults, which are inherent in the story itself, the production leaves nothing to be desired, is remarkably noteworthy, and in spite of all difficulties, the director and actors have produced a conspicuously notable picture out of extremely intractable story material.

ARBUCKLE IN "THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN" (Famous Players).

An epoch in the development of the motion picture industry is marked by Henry W. Savage's initial film offering, Maclyn Arbuckle in "The County Chairman," by the celebrated humorist George Ade. Aside from the unique importance which attaches to the production as the first offering of this producer to the motion picture public, the phenomenal run of the original production, which established a record, makes the film version of this stage triumph an important screen event.

Maclyn Arbuckle in "The County Chairman."

Maclyn Arbuckle's impersonation of Jim Hackler is destined to live as a perfect character study. It is true to life and void of all fictitious value, and while there is ample variety of mood, feeling and purpose, there is never any faltering from the keynote of sincerity. The production, which is in five parts, will be released on the Paramount program October 26.

DOROTHY DONNELLY WITH BOX OFFICE.

Dorothy Donnelly, the creator of Madame X, has been engaged by the Box Office Attraction Company to play the star part in Henri Bernstein's play, "The Thief." Miss Donnelly will be supported by an all-star cast to include some of the most popular stock actors in the country. Miss Donnelly's status as an actress is well established. Her splendid emotional performance in Madame X kept the play on Broadway for two seasons. Her receptions on the road after the phenomenal run in New York, was described by some of the newspapers as a succession of triumphs.

"The Thief" was produced by Frohman and held the boards at the Lyceum Theater for a record-breaking time. The critics in their comments, called it a "drama of dramas." It is one of Henri Bernstein's masterpieces.

The picture will be produced under the immediate direction of Edgar Lewis, producer of Captain Swift and other big features. Richard Buhler, one of the most popular leading men in the country and a favorite of Washington society, will play opposite Miss Donnelly. Special effects, properties and scenery have been made for the production. It will be staged on an elaborate scale.

PHILIPPINE EXHIBITOR IN TOWN.

R. F. Roces of the Ideal Moving Picture Company of Manila, P. I., is visiting in New York City.

"The New Partner" and "The Man in the Dark"

Two Edison Stories of Interest and of Contrasting Merit.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"The New Partner."

CAST:

Elizabeth Marsh.....Gertrude McCoy
Mr. Burns, a lawyer.....Harry Eytinge
Phillip Barton, her unknown partner..Edward Earle
Mr. Hyde, superintendent of factory..Robert Brower
Mr. Farley, the cashier.....Richard Neill
Mrs. Murphy.....Mathilde Baring
Maggie, Tim, Mary — the Murphy children..Edna Hamel, Andrew J. Clark, Gene Cowles
Boggs, the foreman.....Robert Kegerreis

A LOVE story of sociological tendency, "The New Partner" is stimulating and intellectual rather than emotional, though it might easily have been both. It opens up an interesting situation, that of a young lady but recently returned from Europe because she has inherited half of a manufacturing business, the other half belonging to a type of man still cherished in the minds of young lady authors, the gentleman of leisure. The gentleman of leisure went out with the three-bottle men, a generation ago. He is still heard of in romantic novels by ladies of leisure, but, as a club man, more or less familiar with club life, I lost sight of his type years ago. Today, when a man owns one-half interest in a factory, he is chiefly concerned in getting the other half.

Scene from "The New Partner" (Edison).

Be that as it may, a pretty situation is set up when a bright and energetic girl becomes the partner of an indolent young man whom she has never seen. The author goes at the story easily because there is a bright story to tell. The character of it dictates its construction, and the author's indubitable ability goes a long way towards rendering sustained attention easy. The girl partner finds that factory conditions are not entirely what they should be, so she disguises herself as one of the hands and is shocked at the brutality shown by managers and superintendents in actual touch with the wage-earners.

She does not go to the other partner and wake him up. Chance takes him upon an official tour of inspection and chance in the shape of a factory fire gives him an opportunity for the display of heroism in carrying her out through flame and smoke. Having had her in his arms, he rapidly acquires the habit and ardently embraces her when she next sees him in her disguise. She turns out to be the partner he has not seen and all ends well.

So far as the action and the acting is concerned, this drama is skillfully done. It is structurally correct, but there seems to be a lack of feeling in all that is portrayed. The story is, in consequence, rather cold. The material of stage setting and movement is nicely shaped, but the spiritual is not there. The meeting of a man and woman under such circumstances, both young, both heart-free, is replete with opportunity. Soundness of construction is there, but the soul is absent. Bright and original in form, the treatment is inadequate, whereas, the two must be exquisitely combined to give a play particular distinction or have it make a lasting impression.

"The Man in the Dark."

CAST:

Silver Joe.....Frank McGlynn
Viola.....Mabel Dwight
Jim, Silver Joe's friend.....Yale Benner
A Valet and Butler.....William West

Interest in "The Man in the Dark" is entirely due to treatment, a treatment that is effectively realistic at times and delicately spiritual at others, demonstrating that Mr. Collins can accomplish a great deal more with better material. With taste artistic and considerable experience as a director, Mr. Collins devotes his ability to visualizing a story dependent upon the situation of a girl kissing her brother and thus arousing the suspicions of her loved one.

Most of the story is told by a tramp in a cheap lodging house. His end, therefore, is seen from the beginning. He has just found among some garbage a letter that he had returned many years before, after his last bachelor dinner. He was about to be married to a girl he loved, and was bidding goodbye to old cronies, when one of them, who had arrived too late at the festivities, called him out to spy upon his bride-elect. They see her kiss a man they do not know, and worse than that, give him money. Horrible! It could not be an erring brother. No! She was faithless. The man who led her to believe that their wedding would occur on the morrow now writes a letter and breaks it off. She writes him and explains—it was her erring brother.

Scene from "The Man in the Dark" (Edison).

Her letter was not read. The injured groom-elect, yet never to be, returned her letters unopened, and by some means not known it was consigned to the garbage in which he found it all too late—he had meanwhile gambled away his fortune and drowned his sorrow in various alcoholic beverages. Such is the sad story he tells in the cheap lodging house to a lot of other wastrels. Now, he knows. She was innocent all the time. He hunts up her home and finds one of his own servants there, now grown gray in service. Where is she? Dead! Sadly the hobo returns to his lodging and burns the letter. Without comment on the story—I am sure I will be excused for not making any—the treatment given it by Mr. Collins shows what can be done with such material and indicates that he will come to his own in due time.

SOME COLES PHILLIPS PICTURES.

An announcement that Coles Phillips, one of America's foremost artists, is about to contribute a series of twenty portrait likenesses of motion picture actors and actresses is further evidence that the moving picture business is steadily undergoing a change toward higher ideals.

Mr. Phillips' pictures will be done in six colors and put out among exhibitors by the Coles Phillips Company, Inc., of New York City, for distribution among patrons of the theaters.

It is understood, also, that the distribution of these pictures will be made in connection with another attractive scheme to be launched by the Coles Phillips Company very soon.

No doubt Mr. Phillips' entrance into the motion picture field will be heartily welcomed. Such high-grade undertakings as these deserve the approval and support of the trade generally. They unquestionably stimulate public interest and tend to elevate the motion picture business.

"Steve Hill's Awakening"

A Railroad Picture in Two Parts, by Marcus Dow, of the New York Central Lines, and Produced Under His Direction.

Reviewed by Harry W. De Long.

NEW purposes are being developed for the use of animated pictures every day, or every two days, at least, especially along educational and industrial lines. The latest to be produced, with the above caption, was written and visualized for the New York Central Lines for use in the work of educating employes in connection with the safety work being conducted by Mr. Dow for the company. This picture will be used in connection with large safety meetings, which will be conducted along the line. A car is also being fitted up as a traveling theater for use in the smaller towns. The Santa Fe, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad will also utilize this picture.

Scene from "Steve Hill's Awakening."

"The New York Central is the pioneer in this commendable innovation for railroad use. The picture while being industrial, contains a plot in the unfolding of which there is much human interest. There is also a love theme permeating through it in which the leading characters are involved. The principal parts are played by professional actors and actresses and they have to grasp the situations and portray their roles artistically, especially Alvah D. Simms, who takes many risks in demonstrating the careless stunts indulged in by yardmen and switchmen in railroad yards. Miss Frances Gibson, who has appeared in many pictures with the Lubin, Thanhouser and Solax companies, does splendid work as his sweetheart.

Illustrations are given of all the duties which employes are expected to perform, such as throwing switches, shunting and coupling cars, climbing on freight cars while in motion, etc. The story is an interesting one, showing the life of a boy who was born to the railroad business, his father having been a yardman who died from injuries carelessly received, leaving his children to the care of an Orphan Ayslum. Fifteen years later Steve is employed in the same yard where on account of his carelessness he is discharged. In a dream visions of the railroad yard pass before his eyes as he sleeps and he sees many accidents through carelessness, finally seeing himself lose his leg; awakening he resolves in the future it will be "Safety First."

The subject was made by Messrs. Folsom and Davenport.

SOMEONE MUST BE "KIDDING" MUSKOGEE.

Moving picture films taken on the battlefields of Europe begin to arrive in America. When even moving picture men themselves admit that the scenes are too horrible to exhibit they must be bad indeed. "They show for the most part," we are told, "mere heaps of slain men and horses, in many cases revealing frightful wounds and disfigurements. The scenes are too shocking for exhibition."—Muskogee (Oklahoma) Phoenix.

The Oklahoma editor may rest his soul in peace. The "films taken on the battlefields of Europe" have not "begun to arrive," and furthermore there does not seem to be even a remote possibility that they will, either.

"The Long Arm of the Law"

Presented by the I. S. P. Co., a Detective Photoplay of Ever Increasing Interest, in Multiple Reels.

Reviewed by Harry W. De Long.

THOSE that are pleased and edified by thrilling, intense and rapid action will find they are being fully satiated on viewing this picture. It really electrifies without being inordinately melodramatic. The intensity is continuous through the four reels, growing stronger to the denouement. An innovation in this picture is the fact that in the most thrilling scenes only two characters are involved, a thief and his persistent and relentless pursuer. Every mode and method of locomotion are utilized in this picture, an aeroplane, automobile, motor boat, railroad trains, shank's horses, and finally an empty barrel, in which the thief is eventually captured. Other pleasing features are that no murders are committed nor is a shot fired, except by the detective to free himself, shooting a strap off his wrist, firing through a door panel.

Scene from "The Long Arm of the Law" (I. S. P. Co.)

Scene from "The Long Arm of the Law" (I. S. P. Co.)

The artists who play the roles of "Bat" Henry and Cecil Douglass certainly earn their salaries in their respective strenuous parts, which involves two of the most thrilling chases imaginable. The plot is a superior one in all respects, and the photography is above the average. The entire cast deserves mention for intelligent and artistic work. The University Club scenes are really superior to the usual club settings; the director deserves credit for his fine work.

ITEMS FROM PARIS.

Charles Pathe has left for London. He will take charge of the British concern and will arrange for the immediate delivery of huge batches of film from America. Pathe will probably start producing on a large scale in England as soon as the necessary arrangements have been made.

The Paris works of the Vitagraph Company are now closed.

"At the Old Cross Roads"

Production of Select Photo Play Producing Company Released by Alliance Films Corporation.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

A MELODRAMATIC story of the old South is shown in this five-reel production. Estha Williams appears as Parepa Mendoza, a part she enacted in the stage version. Rae Forde appears as the daughter of Parepa, who is a Creole. The plot of the story hinges on the question of whether the girl has negro blood in her veins.

There are a number of highly dramatic scenes in this photoplay, which resembles in theme and treatment the well-known play, "The Octoroon." The first reel establishes the Southern plantation setting and throughout the narrative the atmosphere is well maintained. Some of the clothes worn by the girl and hero were somewhat too modern, but this is true of many productions dating back to earlier days.

Scene from "The Old Cross Roads" (Select).

In the opening scenes Dayton Thornton, son of a minister, shoots and kills Colonel Martin following a drunken brawl. Dayton then flees to the hills and afterwards lures Parepa, a former slave, to follow him. He wrongs Parepa and then turns her out. The Creole woman returns to the town and enters the church conducted by Dayton's father. A dramatic scene occurs where she kneels in the meeting and confesses herself a sinner. The minister, learning the truth and that Parepa is about to become a mother, sends for his son and enforces a marriage.

Scene from "The Old Cross Roads" (Select).

Dayton and Parepa agree to keep the marriage a secret. Her daughter is born and named Annabel. She is claimed by Dayton as his adopted daughter. Eighteen years pass and the old trouble is forgotten until the appearance of Tom Martin, the grown son of the murdered colonel. Tom takes up the quarrel and vows to kill Dayton.

To complicate the situation the young man falls in love with Annabel. Some pretty and romantic scenes are here depicted. The feud is temporarily forgotten, as a result of Annabel's pleading, but Dayton, with true villainy, has determined on his revenge. At a reception given by himself Dayton agrees to the marriage of Tom and Annabel, but at the same time announces so that all may hear that the girl is the daughter of Parepa and has negro blood in her veins. This is the strongest situation in the story and is handled convincingly.

Great excitement follows. The negroes rise against Dayton and clamor for his life. Annabel loses her reason and flees from her sick bed. Parepa, desiring vengeance because of the assertion that she and her daughter are colored, follows Dayton and during a quarrel, shoots him to death. Tom discovers Annabel and saves her from self destruction. The girl recovers her reason and later comes the trial of Parepa. At this trial Colonel Kerr, Parepa's old lover, brings papers showing she is of Spanish origin.

The acting in this story is melodramatic, but at the same time forceful and effective. It makes a strong offering of its type.

"The Patchwork Girl of Oz"

[An Appreciation by the Rev. W. H. Jackson].

Advertisements are too often exaggerating and lead to disappointment, when the vaunted ideals are not realized. Fortunately this does not apply to the "Patchwork Girl of Oz"; if anything its merits are under rather than over-advertised, giving one that pleasure of realizing something beyond expectations. "It is better than we expected," is the best-advertisement any picture can receive, besides paying the highest compliment to those producing it. Without doubt this was the general tenor of the sentiment of a large audience in a leading New York theater during the first week of this picture.

For several years we have had so much foolishness labeled "Fun," and so many coarse and vulgar absurdities called comical, that it is a welcome relief to see "Comedy—Without Vulgarity" and "A Punch without—brutality."

Young pople never had a better picture than this portrayal of their well known "Wizard of Oz." It is perhaps the cleanest and most fascinating of this class of picture, its untiring length is also one of its virtues and successes. A delightfully romantic extravaganza, a spirit of intelligent fun pervades the whole. Never before has so much time and trouble, art and skill been expended on this class of picture, reflecting on L. Frank Baum the greatest credit—a credit to be shared by all his aids. This film must be placed on the Educational list, if for no other reason than to prove the great advance it marks over those of but recent date. It is a higher pioneer for the future.

Although this is not an extended review there are some attractions which should be emphasized. The magic display is unusually good and alluring, bringing about some of the best parts of the photographers' art. The acting of such unusual characters is "thoroughly adequate" and with the radiant beauty of the scenes particularly satisfies. The great majority of young people will want to see it a second or third time, while older people will say to each other:

"Forget a while the cares and turmoil of our busy lives, and hie with us back to the days of our childhood."

GIBLYN WRITES NEW STORY.

Charles Giblyn, director of the Nestor (Universal) company and known throughout filmdom for the finished artistry of his production, has added another to his already long list of quiet stories of real life with gripping heart interest. Entitled "As We Journey Through Life," it shows Murdock MacQuarrie as an old man sitting idly turning the leaves of an old family album. As he gazes at the pictures, each in turn brings to his memory some episode of his life and as he turns the pages, his mind's eye, looking back over the expanse of years. Replete, as is the latest production, with tense situations that play upon the finer human emotions, it is doubtful if any of Mr. Giblyn's previous pictures equal it in point of artistry and keen, sympathetic heart interest.

CHANGE IN UNIVERSAL PROGRAM.

Beginning with the week of October 19th, the Wednesday Nestor release on the regular program will be transferred to Tuesday, and will take the place of the Universal Ike Comedy, which brand is to be discontinued. The Sunday Frontier will be transferred to Saturday, and the L-KO will start Sunday in the place of the Frontier.

The first L-KO comedy entitled "Love and Surgery," in two reels will be released Sunday, October 25th. The L-KO brand will be released every Sunday thereafter.

Local "War" Scenes.

Animated Cameramen Brave English Guns to Get Pictures of Converted Cruiser Off Sandy Hook.

JACK COHN, manager of the Universal Animated Weekly; the Animated Weekly cameraman, U. K. Whipple, and a representative of the Universal Weekly, aboard the tugboat Timmons, hunted out the British converted cruised Caronia, lying about ten miles off Sandy Hook, New York, and secured moving pictures of exceptional value to be used in the current release of the Animated Weekly.

Presumably the transformed Cunarder was eagerly watching the entrance of the harbor for possible prey when the Universal tug bore down upon her. Six-inch guns gleamed from her deck, fore and aft; smoke pouring from her two funnels, her anchors up, officers pacing back and forth across her bridge with binoculars raised toward the horizon,

British Cruiser Caronia.

the Caronia presented the appearance of a runner at the mark waiting for the revolver to crack when the Universal representatives sighted her. Aware that they were outside of American waters, the Universal people realized that they approached the vessel and took moving pictures at their own risk. But the Timmons floated the American flag, and as a sort of a peace offering, several English newspapers and magazines were aboard, ready to be handed over to the British naval officers.

Jack Cohn Passing English Papers to Ship's Officer.

Without slackening speed the Timmons swung right alongside the slowly moving cruiser; the officers leaned over the side and demanded to know what business the encroaching tug had there.

"English papers for you—do you want them?" was the response.

Of course they did; the news traveled over the fighting vessel and hundreds of heads craned over the side and through port-holes; officers and men began to cheer the stars and stripes on the Universal tug—and all the while the Animated cameraman was winding up pictures of the scene. A surprising part of the exciting event was the seeming failure on the part of the officers to notice the operations of the camera until after the newspapers had been handed over and many intimate animated scenes had been secured. The discovery brought a command from the captain of the cruiser to steam ahead; his instructions to Mr. Cohn were to the effect that what pictures he might have secured were absolutely not to be printed or made public.

But the Animated Weekly had achieved its purpose. Its patrons were to have an intimate and splendid study of one of these English converted cruisers—a vessel that had, prior to the war, sailed the ocean as a beautiful passenger liner—and a sight of the crew which mans it. The nondescript appearance of the crew aboard the Caronia is an interesting fact. Again, it will be shown in the motion pictures, that the English have done everything possible to avoid identification of the former merchantman. Her name on her bow and her stern had been completely erased. The only words visible on the cruiser are painted in big white letters across the bridge and over four of her guns. They read:

"Fear God and Honour the King."

Other pictures which will form an interesting feature of the Universal Animated release are those of some British officers from the Caronia boarding an out-going steamer, the Kent, and taking off one of its crew, apparently a German reservist. The Timmons came to a stop twenty feet from the side of the Kent and photographed a bulky suitcase being lowered into the lifeboat. When the man and baggage were aboard, the ten sailors pulled for the Caronia. All this was photographed.

Charles Ogle.

WHEN Charles Ogle left the Edison company, with Miss Mary Fuller and Walter Edwin, to join the Universal company and play in the features that were to star Miss Fuller, he was one of the oldest men, in point of service, of that company. Mr. Ogle has done every kind of a role for the camera from the character to the heavy and lead. For several years he was seen in the leads most of the time, but of late he has been turning to the "heavies" with remarkable success. Under the direction of Mr. Edwin, he has already appeared in several features with Miss Fuller in the lead. In "The Witch Girl" to be released as a Victor two-reeler on October 30th, his work was unusually masterful. "His Big Chance" and "The Girl of the People" are other features, already finished at the Universal Eastern studios, which have given him fine roles.

Charles Ogle.

Mr. Ogle was born in Zanesville, Ohio, where he was educated to be a minister. But in his twentieth year he decided that ministering was not to his taste and so cast his lot with things theatrical. For fifteen years Mr. Ogle was connected in various branches of the theatrical profession, accumulating a tremendous fund of experience which, supplemented by arduous study, gave him a broad foundation to build success upon.

Following the wishes of his parents Mr. Ogle deserted the theatrical field to enter the Illinois College of Law from which he subsequently graduated. Then followed three years of practice.

Mr. Ogle found the call of the stage too strong, however, and so returned. He spent several more years upon the stage, serving mostly under the management of Shuberts and Klaw & Erlanger. He played in Clyde Fitch's "Blue Mouse" Company and that was his farewell appearance upon the stage.

Manufacturers' Meeting Called.

Invitation Issued for Conference to be Held at Hotel Wellington on October 20, 1914.

THE movement among motion picture manufacturers and makers and dealers in motion picture supplies and machines to form an organization of the trade for a general uplift and to promote trade expositions has, as was previously announced in the Moving Picture World, been formally organized and incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. With this beginning as a nucleus it is now proposed to hold a big meeting of the eligible members of the motion picture industry at the Hotel Wellington for the purpose of electing offieers and formulating a definite plan of action. The date set is October 20, and the committee in charge has issued the following letter to the trade:

Dear Sir:—This letter is of considerable importance. Will you kindly read it through carefully and let us have your reply at once. You have undoubtedly heard of the movement among the manufacturers to control and conduct the next national exposition of this industry. This movement has now taken a concrete start and awaits your active cooperation. For your information, the history of the movement is briefly as follows:

It started definitely at Dayton, Ohio, at the time of the Exposition there in July last. General dissatisfaction was expressed by the manufacturers present over the lack of attendance, space charges, general expenses, etc. This feeling was greatly added to by the previous and utter failures of the Toronto and Wilkes-Barre Expositions. Moreover, even in the case of the two largely attended New York Expositions of 1913 and 1914, it was felt that the manufacturers had been charged an unnecessarily high rental for floor space.

In other industries, notably the automobile and electrical trades, the manufacturers themselves hold their national shows with all around success and with important result that previous floor rentals were more than cut in two.

With these ideas in mind, those manufacturers who were exhibiting at Dayton or their representatives met spontaneously in several meetings, during which a preliminary organization was formed, temporary officers elected and an assessment of $10 levied upon each member for preliminary expenses.

The committee on organization consulted with Job B. Hedges of New York City who had organized with success the Automobile Accessory Dealers' Association and upon Mr. Hedges' advice, application was made for a charter under the Membership Corporation Laws of the State of New York. These laws are designed especially for mutual benefit associations and are distinct from the ordinary corporation laws of a commercial or industrial character.

The name Motion Picture Trades' Association was decided upon, a charter was secured and a constitution and by-laws were adopted. The Association is therefore now a corporate body ready to do business. Nothing further than this has been done or determined upon.

The comparatively few men active in the movement thus far would have appreciated your help from the beginning, but someone had to start the matter and they feel that what has been done so far will meet with your approval. All minutes and papers are open for your inspection.

You are urgently asked to attend the first annual meeting which will be held on October 20, 8 p. m., at the Hotel Wellington, Seventh avenue and Fifty-fifth street, New York City, where the management has gratuitously offered a large room for our use.

At this meeting, regular officers will be elected, committees appointed and a general organization affected. Membership is limited to one member for each firm. You or your representative will have equal voice with all other firms in the organization and management of this Association.

The general idea is to divide pro rata the profits of the show among those manufacturers who exhibit, thus reducing the floor rentals. However, this and other important matters will be discussed and decided upon at the meeting.

Kindly write at once to the address above of your ability to be present at the October 20th meeting. Your suggestions are invited. Respectfully yours,

MOTION PICTURE TRADES' ASSOCIATION, ETC.

Plan Novel Song Pictures.

Treble Clef Co. Dominated by Louis Bernstein and Henry Waterson Ready for Business.

SCARCELY a week goes by without some new development in the motion picture fields is being recorded. One of the newest angles of the picture business is a combination of music publishers under the firm name of Treble Clef Co., organized for the purpose of producing and marketing films based on an entirely new idea.

Together, the men who form the Treble Clef Co., are able to control the rights to a very considerable percentage of the popular song hits of the day. The plan is to put these songs into motion pictures—both those which have been written and are now popular and those which are destined to be popular.

The names of two men in the music publishing business is sufficient guarantee that the plan is feasible and that it is backed with "all the money in the world."

Louis Bernstein, of Shapiro & Bernstein, and Henry Waterson, of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, powerful in the music publishing world, head the company.

Each song will be treated differently, but the general treatment of all of them will be somewhat as follows: The prelude will be an intimate scene introducing the authors and telling the story of how the song was written and what inspired it. Sometimes this will be comedy and sometimes it will be straight drama. Then will follow the action of the story of all the verses as written by the author. Between each verse the chorus will be introduced on the screen, and the film will end with a combination of the verse, the chorus and a scene with the authors again as the story goes into a final fade. The whole thing will be accompanied by a specially arranged score of the song itself, timed exactly to the action of the piece and sinchronized with the camera when the picture is taken.

The company has been organized and has taken a building at 154 West Forty-sixth street, New York City. Three well-known directors are already at work. The Treble Clef Co. expect to be able to get out two releases a week, and announcement may be expected in the very near future of the first release.

The business end of the enterprise will be in the hands of Harry Cohn, formerly with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and a brother of Jack Cohn, editor of the Animated Weekly. The plan is to have an agent in every state or territory to release the films, which will be mostly single reels, in the vaudeville houses first, and then to book them in the motion picture houses.

C. E. RYTENBERG HAS "THE OLD HOMESTEAD."

Frank Thompson, son of Denman Thompson, of "The Old Homestead" fame, has addressed the following letter to The Moving Picture World under date of October 1:

October 1, 1914.

Editor, Moving Picture World,
17 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Dear Sir:—

Persistent rumors have reached me regarding the claims of certain persons that they have contracted for the motion picture rights to "The Old Homestead," of which I am the sole owner. I wish to state that the only person who has the authority even to speak of the motion picture rights to this play is one C. E. Rytenberg.

Will you kindly print a few lines regarding this matter in your magazine, as it is very annoying to hear unfounded rumors of this kind?

Thanking you in advance, I am,

Very truly yours,
(Signed) FRANK THOMPSON.

GRAND THEATER, LEWISTON, IDAHO.

An exclusive motion picture house is the Grand Theater, Lewiston, Idaho, under the management of A. H. Hilton. The Grand has a seating capacity of 350, and is illuminated with the indirect lighting system. Although the auditorium is bright enough to read a newspaper, the light does not affect the screen, for it is a Radium Gold Fibre screen. A Power's No. 6 machine and a Mercury Arc Rectifier are used. With this combination Mr. Hilton gets perfect light and projection. A piano is the only musical instrument used. The ushers, of which there are two, are in blue uniform. Business is always good.

Grand Theater, Lewiston, Idaho.

MINNESOTA CONVENTION.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Minnesota is going to hold its convention and exposition at the West Hotel, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 27, 28, 29.

Lasky-Belasco Pictures

First of the Production of Belasco Plays Will Appear in November in the Paramount Program.

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, head of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, Inc., announces the Lasky releases for the second quarter of the Paramount program, and from all appearances, it is as formidable an arrangement of plays, of infinite variety, and rare selection as could be conceived.

David Belasco.

On the first quarter of the Paramount program the Jesse L. Lasky Company has released "The Virginian" and the "Making of Bobby Burnit," and within the next three weeks will release "Where the Trail Divides" with Robert Edeson, "What's His Name" with Max Figman, "Ready Money" with Edward Abeles and "The Rose of the Rancho" with Bessie Barriscale and an all-Belasco cast.

The second quarter of the Paramount program begins December 1st, and the first release of the Jesse Lasky Company in this quarter will be the "Ghostbreaker" with H. B. Warner and Rita Stanwood, and following this will come "The Man from Home" with Charles Richman, produced in association with the Liebler Company.

"The Rose in the Ring," a story of circus life, with Theodore Roberts in the titular role, comes next. During January the Lasky releases will consist of the "Girl of the Golden West" in association with David Belasco and with a Belasco cast, and in association with the Liebler Company, Dustin Farnum, in "Cameo Kirby."

February will see the Lasky production of the "Warrens of Virginia," in association with Belasco and with a Belasco cast, and "The Woman," under the same auspices, also with a Belasco cast and many of the original players.

It is more forethought than anything else that almost everybody at the Lasky studios have had one time or another been associated with David Belasco and are perhaps better acquainted with his methods of production than any other man in the motion picture industry.

Cecil B. and William C. De Mille have long been collaborators with Mr. Belasco, and Wilfred Buckland, at present artistic director of the Lasky Company, occupied the same position with Mr. Belasco for many years.

The first Lasky-Belasco picture will be the "Rose of the Rancho," November 16.

BOX-OFFICE SERVICE AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Grace M. E. Church, of West 104th street, New York City, has just signed up for the releases of the Box Office Attraction Company. Dr. Reisner, as part of his social program this winter, will give exclusive moving picture entertainments to the members of his congregation. In talking of this feature of the church work, Dr. Reisner said:

"I have been personally interested in the 'movies' from the time it was a disgrace to enter a picture show. I have watched the industry grow and have fairly marveled at the wonderful things being achieved. When I enter the Riverside Theater, Mr. Fox's palatial show house on upper Broadway, devoted exclusively to moving pictures, I appreciate the progress that has been made—but more wonderful than the elaborate show houses are the pictures shown. After I saw the 'Will o' the Wisp,' 'St. Elmo,' 'The Square Triangle' and 'Criminal Code,' at the Riverside Theater, I decided that they were just the kind of subjects that any congregation ought to see.

"After these were shown it was voted that a moving picture entertainment be made a regular feature of the church work. I saw Mr. Fox and have practically left the selection of my programs to his Box-Office Attraction Company, for the man who selects the pictures for the Riverside can select pictures for the most discriminating and exclusive circles in the country."

"Shorty" Hamilton

HE has no other name. He has no other work. Making people laugh is his life's work, or play, for he delights in causing spasms of smiles. His facial expression always tickles the happy nerve in every person's body, and a roar of wholesome laughter always follows one of Shorty's inimitable screen stunts. In private life, this well-known New York Motion Picture comedian is as funny as he is on the screen. Even when I met him at his rooms in the Ocean Park Hotel, where he lives, he gave me cause to laugh. Can you imagine it, he was in the bath tub, splashing around and scrubbing himself with a big brush. He laughed and said "Oh, that's all right, I did a scene today—rolled down a cliff into the dirt, and here's where I get separated from it."

"Shorty" Hamilton.

I waited around in his apartment for a few minutes and while there I smiled every second, for on the walls were perhaps a hundred stills and character pictures of Shorty. In every costume he seems to be a compelling force for laughter. Each picture is truly better than the last, and all are comical. After a while the little man from Thomas H. Ince's studio came out and greeted me, and then the tooth pulling started. He is the worst man to tell history, especially personal.

Shorty Hamilton has come up with the picture game. His past is synonymous with almost darkness. He says he just "lit" in pictures, after a life of many adventures. His age, well Shorty can ride a horse, fall down cliffs, and do almost everything that a young man can do, and he is young. His great ability to pantomime and mimic have won for him a host of admirers that is hard to beat. He made good with the picture world, and he is here to stay. In his last picture "Shorty Gets a Title," he is seen to good advantage, and some of his latest releases are even better. But he is not the "heavy" that he seems to be in the dramas of the underworld. Far from it, he is a good little man, and has many friends in this part of the world. Shorty received a letter from an eastern admirer recently in which was this sentence: "You captured many feminine hearts here when we saw you in 'Shorty and the Fortune Teller'—you should drop in and see us sure." Just the same, he is a popular player, here as well as in the east.

CLAIRE IRVINE.

CINEMA CAMERA CLUB RECEPTION AND DANCE.

The Cinema Camera Club of America (Incorporated), the offices of which are at Sixty-fifth street and Broadway, will hold an invitation novelty reception and dance at the Pabst Coliseum, 110th street, between Lenox and Fifth avenues, on the evening of Saturday, October 10.

"DOUGH AND DYNAMITE."

The first of the multiple reel Keystone comedies, featuring Charles Chaplin, will be released October 26. The title is "Dough and Dynamite." It was directed by Mack Sennett, and is said to be a real scream.

FEATURE PHOTOPLAY NOW RENTING.

The Feature Photoplay Co., widely known in the trade as the enterprise of H. Lande, has added a film rental department and is now renting films as well as selling feature subjects on the states right plan. To take care of the increased volume of business, which is already assured because of the departure, the company has taken larger quarters in the Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second street, now occupying suite No. 919, not far removed from the old quarters at Room No. 903. Mr. Lande says his company is already prepared to offer renters a selection of twenty new subjects.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

THE recent train wrecking spectacle pulled off near South River, N. J., by the Vitagraph Company, has resulted in the enterprising concern securing unstinted advertising in newspapers, magazines and trade publications. There can be no doubt that it was one of the greatest thrillers in theatrical production ever witnessed. The realism was so pronounced that during the periods leading up to and after the culmination of the wreck the spectators forgot that they were viewing a motion picture production. The spectacle brought out many points that form food for interesting reflection. One of them is that, in spite of all claims made by the press for efficiency in reflecting events of the day in print, there is ample room for just criticism on the ground of a lack of true conception of conditions. There were more than a score of newspaper and magazine writers on the scene and no two of them agreed upon the main facts. All of the writers were upon the scene from start to finish and each produced in print a different version of the main features of the event. It may well be said that the motion picture supplants the newspaper as a reliable reflector of the news of the world. When the Vitagraph reproduction of the wreck is shown upon the screen it will not only forcibly convey all that the many newspapermen have tried to tell, but will also bring to the public mind many features which absolutely escaped the attention of the pen drivers.

* * *

Among the spectators at the scene of the wreck were many experienced railroaders and men who had spent years in other pursuits requiring frequent travels about the country. Some of them stood upon the track as the train to be wrecked started toward the point at which it was to be switched to the trestle to be used as the instrument of destruction. "My God!" exclaimed one of them, "this is a lesson never to be forgotten. In all my life I have never realized as I do now the awful consequences of something happening to a train running at full speed with the engineer in the cab dead." The speaker made an involuntary movement as if to leap from the track but restrained himself and stared with wide-open eyes at the on-rushing locomotive as it "took" the switch, swept upon the trestle, rushed madly along its length and over the end of it into the water with the passenger coaches plunging after it. The man stood transfixed with horror for several seconds. He was speechless when he turned to his companions. Recovering his composure he said: "Boys, that is the only way to properly convey to the minds of the public the great importance of giving the utmost care to every detail connected with safety regulation in railway traffic. All I have read and all I have heard on that subject has failed to impress me as these few moments of motion picture work have done."

* * *

No reflections of this character appear to have affected any of the newspaper writers who saw the event. They reported in a matter-of-fact sort of way that a large sum of money had been spent in wrecking a train to get a thrilling scene for a motion picture and briefly described the wreckage to show that the details were satisfactorily carried out. One of the writers has since stated that motion pictures are bound in time to supplant writers and lecturers in many fields where endeavor is made to impress the importance of precaution for the safety of the public. "I could write columns upon that wreck from a standpoint of safety for the public, but my space is limited to a plain statement of occurrences, and not possibilities. The motion picture warns us of the possible horrors attending the employment of careless or physically deficient men on train engines. It points out the great responsibility resting upon the shoulders of the railroad companies in the construction and operation of their roads. Why," said he, "this scene we witnessed speaks volumes for an appeal for perfect switches and well constructed and cared for trestles and bridges. In these days of appeal for 'safety first' the motion picture is, indeed, an important factor."

* * *

A couple of days after the South River spectacle the New York World published a letter from a correspondent who stated: "The movie directors have developed a mania for presenting various so-called stunts in their photo plays. These may cause laughter or thrills in the audience, but at the same time they are very dangerous to the actors. * * * I wonder whether the film companies pay any indemnity to players who meet with accidents while doing such dangerous stunts?"

* * *

It is opportune to state that if any mania of the sort mentioned by the correspondent has developed it is not on the part of the motion picture directors. They are but instruments through which the producing companies endeavor to comply with the public demand for realism. At the same time, it is but fair to state that the producers do not require the actors to do anything that is very dangerous, nor will actors make attempts in that direction. As a rule actors are as sensitive regarding their safety as other people are and do not undertake anything unless precautions for the preservation of that safety have been taken. Of course the best of regulations will some times fail and accidents will happen. That will occur in all channels of life, more especially in the theatrical world. The chances taken by motion picture actors are insignificant when compared with those taken by many actors on the stages and in circuses.

* * *

The correspondent need have no apprehension as to the question of indemnity. He evidently is not up-to-date. If he were he would know that compensation laws are in force now in most of the States of the Union and since July 1st last motion picture players in the State of New York are assured indemnity in case of accident. A State Commission looks after the indemnity side of the question. The players come under the Workingmen's Compensation Act.

* * *

In the issue of September 19th, occasion was taken to criticise in these columns an article on extras and supers that appeared in another motion picture publication. A letter from a lady now located in Los Angeles, Cal., informs us that our criticisms "did my heart good." She states that she is unfortunate (so she considers it) enough to be one of those who are engaged to play special parts and knows that all those who are not in stock are looked down upon by the "artists" who never saw the back of a stage. "I also know," says the correspondent, "that professional people, those of stage experience, understand the extra idea and grant one the courtesy due an experienced actor or actress."

* * *

The same correspondent also refers to criticisms in these columns on the advantages taken of stage struck young women by certain booking agents and puts the matter in such forcible light that it commands more than passing attention. She says: "The White Light district is not alone in these practices. There are men about many of the studios who are no better. Some are directors and some are agents of the director, occupying positions that should place them above such things. While fighting the slave pictures some of the picture companies might well come in for investigation. This is not an attack. I am a woman beyond the years where I am open to insults of that sort, but I KNOW what I am talking about. I do not care to appear in print on the subject, but I am not afraid to sign my name. I am a constant reader and now a subscriber."

* * *

Although the correspondent signed the letter, the name is withheld in compliance with her desire to avoid publicity in connection with the matter. It is hoped her letter will have a wholesome effect upon those against whom it is directed.

WORLD FILM GETS BLANEY PICTURES.

Everything that was once owned by the Chas. E. Blaney Feature Film Co. is now the property of the World Film Corporation, by a deal closed by General Manager Lewis J. Selznick, of the latter corporation. This gives the World Film control of the two picture plays, Cecil Spooner in "The Dancer and the King," and "Across the Pacific," as well as the productions and picture rights to all the other Blaney plays.

Mr. Selznick announces that work will start immediately on the presentation of the Blaney pictures at the Peerless Studios, Fort Lee, N. J. The Blaney studio ceases to exist, and the direction, as well as the production, is to be under the exclusive control of the World Film Corporation.

Cecil Spooner, in "The Dancer and the King," is to be released Nov. 16, and "Across the Pacific" is scheduled for Nov. 2 in the World Film Weekly program. Both these features are in five acts.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"THE MYSTERIOUS HAND" (101 Bison Drama).

Francis Ford and Grace Cunard discontinued "My Lady Raffles" series of crook detective dramas to produce the sensational serial play "Lucille Love." The remarkable success of "Lucille Love" undoubtedly justified this, but still, one has not forgotten, and will not forget in some time, such dramas as "The Twin's Double," "The Return of the Twin's Double," "The Leopard Lady," and "The Mystery of the White Car." You liked them for their virility, action and sparkling plots. Above all you enjoyed the work of these two artists, Miss Cunard and Mr. Ford, who were responsible for the writing, the directing and the acting.

Scene from "The Mysterious Hand" (101 Bison).

